conclusion of the Book of Numbers burnish they are fished armake a good part of the Land of Canaan, according to the four quarters of the Deuteronomic, and so may world, East, Welt, North and South: but in the 34. of Numb. have reference to what fol- the limits of the promifed land are narrower; the reason may Joseph 3, where he repeaterh be, because there is a diffinition betwitt that which has heredimuch of that which has he bear tary to the Ifraclines, as their constant possession and that which tary to the Ifraclites, as their conflant poffession, and that which by conquest was added to ir, and made tributary; and if they had lesse then, the fault was not in Gods failing of his nervacion o pueces, we shall be a fine process of the state of the sta

V. 15. known] Not only wife and worthy men, but fo known and reputed by the people.

V. 19. * terrible wildernefs] By reason of the extream bar-, rennels, having (for the most part) neither house, nor men, nor beafts, nor tiefs, nor trees, nor grafs, nor wels, nor tivers, nor in the wilderness of sand take this for the Champion Countrey of Moab, some for the wilderness of Arabia, where the II-raelites had remained fourty years.

*Chap.8.15.
V. 22. We will [end] The motion of fending fearchers, or furveighers of the land of Canaan, proceeded from the people, yet was it approved by Mofes, and by their joyne confent, and approbation from God, it was put in execution, Num.14.

V. 25, faid, It is a good land 3 So faid Caleb and Johns, whom (though but two) he preferreth before the other tenne; nis, was called by both the (e names.)

the better part being rather to be believed then the greater

V. 3. elevanth mouth] Called in Hebrew, flubat, answering part, who railed a bad report of the land, and as falle as it was to part or January, and part or reordary.

V. 4. at. Marcot in Hearty Affaroth and Edrei, were two Cities of the land of Og, Joh. 13, 31, within fix miles diffance times miftaken? how ungrateful is he required, when his faone of another, where he might dwell by turns ; at this time therly discipline of love is received as a demonstration of hatred cowards them ?

V. 28. up to heaves] So said the false-hearted, and in this, false-worded spies, to discourage the people; otherwise such excesses of speech, intending to raise the minde to an extraorwords [which dwelt at Affaroth] for the clearing of the fense, dinary apprehension of extraordinary things, are figurative hyperboles, not unufual in the Scriptures, and very frequent in humane Writers, especial poetical.

Chap.ii.

mentioned with Caleb now, because he was advanced to an higher condition then any of the rest, who is therefore afterward mentioned by himfelf, verf. 38,

v. 36. wholly followed] God must not be obeyed or served by halves, but wholly and intirely; and that, as it is most ac-ceptable to him, so is it most profitable for man.

ceptable to him, so is it most probable for man,

V. 37. for your fales] Your murmurings made me sometimes too rash in speaking, P[al. 106.3. and sometimes too flow in believing in the Lord, which moved him to offence against me,

Num.20.12. See Deut. Chap.3.26. & Chap.4.21.
V. 40. tanye] He doth not now turn them back toward the Red Sea, but repeateth what he had formerly faid unto them. Num.14.25.

them, Num.14.25.

V. 42. I am not among you] Signifying, that man, though he have a courage to fight, hath no power to prevail, but when God is at hand to help him; and therefore when there is just cause to go forth to war, he is to be fought unto to go forth with the hoft, Pfal.60.10.11.

V. 44. as Bees do] When they fet upon drones, or Wafpestor V. 44. as Best do J When they let upon drones, or Walpesjor fwarm about the ears of those that provate them, Pfal.118.12. so the Amorites inraged, in great troops purfued you, and with their warlike weapons (as the Bees with their stings) made at you, to wound and kill you.

V. 45. would not bearken | Such was your flubbornneffe when it was well with you ; and fuch your hypocrific when the rod of correction was upon you, that he shewed as little respectro your tears or prayers, as you did to his precepts, Zach.

7.11,13 V. 46. Kade[h] A wildernelle, P[al.29.8, according to the dayet] Repeating the words again, he admo-nisheth them to double their thoughts upon their abode in that place where they were many dayes, yea many years; for though by a right progresse it was but eleven days journey, veri, st. yet by their fins, they whre made to wander there almost thir-Ev eight years, Ch.2.14, therefore there was just ground to come over the words again, that they might recount the rubs they had in the way, and the reasons of so long delay. See Anzat. on verf. z.

CHAP. II.

Verf. 1. A S the Lord spale Num. 14.25; nount Sin That is, the Countrey of Idumea, which was mountainous; called Idumea, as it were Edomea, from Elau, who was called Edom; and it was called Scir also, (for so was he called) the word signifies hairy, as he was : See

Annot. on Num. 24.18.

y. 3. Northward That is, toward the land of Promife, which is Northward to those that travel out of Egypt.

thall be a fraid God is able to give and take away courage as final be affaid. God is able to give, and take away courage as he pleafeth. 5 wmaking them afried, no doubt he made them give confent to let them paffe by the borders of their Countrey, though they deeped their paffe get through it, Num. 20.21, take ye goad teed. In the precedent words it is faid, they of mount 50 fillad he grain of its fifty finalists; and here it is faid, they of mount 50 fillad he grain of its fifty finalists; and here it is faid, the first the single state of the first fir Maclices, that they should receive no hurt from the Inhabitants of mount Seir, fo the Ifraclites upon this prohibition forbear ing all violent acts against them, they were more astaid then hurt: For Gods favour to us binds us to shew the more obedience to him in what feever he commands or forbids; Deut. 4.9.& 12.19. Mal. 2.15,16.

12.19. Mail: 15,16.

V. S. kezulg-haue given] Not onely by my general providence alarting every one his portion, which by the fame providence I transfer from one to another at my pleatine, but I give an elpecial grant for fecturing his policifion against your invation; though a sterwards when his posterity have made up the mealure of their iniquity, (as Gen. 15.16.) they may be expelled out of their possession.

V. 6. buy meat 1 They had Manny to car, yer they might car other meats, when they could get them a but of that they had a certain and conflant provision, Exed to 16.

V. 7. * be knowells] A figure called Meiolis , whereby more is meant then is expreft; as not onely Gods knowing, but his ordering, and governing their walking through the wil-

V. 35. Anakims] That is, men of huge (flature, of the posterity of Anak the Gyant. See Chap. 2.0.

V. 26. [Are Calif] For he was one of the two, who made a furwigh of the land before; Joshua was the other, but he is not by the old name, the land of Moab e in this was mount Nebo

where Moles dyed, Chap. 34-1,5.
children of Lor]. The Moabites descended from his incessures iffue, Moab; yet God is fo gracious, that for Lors fake, who nue, moast yet con it logracious, that for Lots take, who finned of ignorance, and ferwed God with uprightneffe, rather, then for their own, he giveth this order for their peaceable poffention. The goodly are not forgozent by God, though many years after they be out of memory with men. See verf. 19, where there is the like charge given concerning the children where there is the like charge given concerning the children of the control of the seed of the control of the Ammon, where Lot is again mentioned as the root of that flock, on which God fer fo much fayour as extends to the branches Aretched out afar off.

Ar] The chief City of the Monbites, Num.21.15,28. V. 10. * Enums] That is, terrible ones ; for their tall flature. and tyrannical oppreffion. Some derive the word from Ema, which in Hebrew fignifieth terrour. Others trem Amma, in the which in Hebrew ingnineth itriour. Others from a mmajor was fame language fignifying a cubit, as men of a large cubit: or by their tall flature confifting of many cubits. By the expulsion of these Emims out of their possession, Moses encourageth the people to the conquest of Canaan.

V. 12. as Ifrael did] That is, Efau drave out the Horims; as the Israelites did those people whose land they possessed; to wit; the land of Og and Sihon: whereof see Num.21.24.8 ver. 35. Or the words may be read, as I fraet fhall do : which may be the meaning of the words, as a prophetick speech, spoken (by way meaning or the words, as a proprietic species spoken (by way of affurance) in the preter tenfe.

V. 14. as the Lord finare] He sheweth hereby, that as God is true in his promifes, so his threatnings are not in vain; but are fure to take effect to the confusion of the wicked, as his promifes to be performed to the comfort of the godly.

to be performed to the control of the godly.
V. 19. children f.E1] See Annot, on ver.9.
V. 20. Zameummin That is, boyferous, or prefumptuous; or abominable wicked ones, though they called themfelves Rephaims, that is, Physicians, or prefervers: they are called Zuig zims, Gen. 14.5.

ims, Gen, 14.5.

V. 23. * Arims] * Join 13.3.

V. 24. * Arims] * Num, 21.13.

V. 25. put the dread] This declares that the hearts of men are in Gods hands, either to be made faint, or bold. See Annot on

v. 4. & Num. 2.3. V. 3.6. * fast maffenger] * Num. 21.21, V. 27. * tame paffe] * Judg. 11.19. V. 29. children of Efau] Called (after his other name) Edomires; who, albeit they had denyed them passage through their land, yet allowed them to coast along their borders, and surnished them with necessaries for their money, Sa ver, 28, compared with this 29, Num 20.20, 21.

V. 30, bardened ] See Annot, on Exed 4.21. & on Chap.

Y. 33. Chap. 29-7.
V. 34. utterly defirored God had curfed Canaan, and therefore he would not that any of his wicked race should be pre-Deut.20.16. Lev.27.28. Job 18.16.17.

V. 35. * onely the cattell] * Chap. 3.7.
V. 36. God delivered] Though they were so many thous fand able men for the Warres, yet the victory is afcribed to the Lord of Hofts, and not affumed to themselves, Pial.

V. 37. river Jabbok] Neer which Jacob wraftled with the Angel, Gen. 32. 22. it appertaineth to the poliession of the Ammonites, Judg. 11.15.

CHAP. III.

here are mentioned

Edrei] See Annot, on Chap. 1.4.
V. 2. I will deliver] See Annot, on Chap. 2.4. V. 2. Argob] This is another name of the Kingdome of Ba] fan, or a province in that Kingdome, 1 King.4.13.

V. . all those cities] Which were no fewer then threescore.

V. 8: on this fide forders] To those who journied from Egypt.
towards Canaan ; but those that were in Canaan were said to definefit.

1Pfalt. 6.

1Pfalt

DERDITATION CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PRO 48. Sien and Hor, Num. 34.7.

V. 11. onely Og remained] Viz. in that Region. In the Hebrew it is, of the stock of Rephain, which in the time of Abraham possessed the whole Country, Gen. 14 for all the race of the Gypout the whole Country, Cen.14, for all the face of the Cy-ants was not every where rooted out, as appeareth by Goliah the Gyant of Gath, 1 Sm.17.4. See also Num.13.33.8 Josh. 15.14. but for that Country, the off-spring of Rephaim was with Og utterly rooted out.

btd. flead of Iron ] Belike wood was not ftrong enough to bear his weight and strength, in stretching and turning him-felf upon his bed. Some take this repository not for a bed for ordinary fleep, but for a sepulchre, the bed of the sleep of

after the cubite of a man] There were divers forts of cubites; fome were measured from the bending of the arm to the palme where the fingers meer, and these are called our short cubits: where the ingers meet, and thele are called our more cubits; fome from the bending of the arm to the end of the longest finger; and these were longer and shorter according to the difference of humane statute: and when it is said of the statute of rence of humane flature: and when it is lad of the flature of a man, the largeft usual measure among Arcificers is meant, a cubic of a foot and nine inches long; so that this bed was fifteen foot, that is, five yard and eight inches long, and seven foot broad

(Substitute of the day) Because these words are thought to import a longer continuance of time then the age of Mofes fome think they are the words of Ezra, or of fome other Sacred Scribe, who wrote part of the 34. Chapter of this Book, from the fixth verse, to the end of it: but because the words, ver. 13. mentan verie, confident out: out occanic the words veriff-next before these, and vers. 15. next after, do plainly appear to be the words of Moss, there is no reason to think that these words [unto this day] have any other authout but him: and words (unto this day) have any other authout but him: and though from the conquell of the fee places, and the tainse given to them to the time of Mofes his writing of this flory (which was at the latter end of his life) there paided not path three or four moneths, yet might it be laid (unto life day); for the words are not fingly an affirmative, that he I Donns were called fo, as by common and ancient cutlome, but this yair of the control of the day of the common and ancient cutlome, but this yair has the control of the contr them called them to to this day; and to the continuance is not to be extended beyond his time, which might be no longer then the time of Mofes; and yet it might be a matter to be noted, that he could take fuch a portion of the land from Gyants, and fill continue them in his power and under his name; for it is the manner of Conquerors to change the names of the places conquered; and by adding [unto this day] Mofes both places conquered; and by adults [Land a motive of courage to gives a note of affurance of his flory, and a motive of courage to the Ifraclities by the example of Jair to do valiantly, and to fer sheir names on conquered Townes and Countries, as he had

V. 15. Gilead unto Machar] Part of Gilead : for the Reube-V. 15. Oilean unio Mathri J Part of Gilead: for the Reubenites and Gadites therein were partners with him. See ver. 12. & Annot. on Num. 3.40. See alfo, i Chr. 2.22. V. 17. Chinnereth See Num. 34-11.

falt Sea See Annot. on Numb. 34.3. V. 24. what God] He meaneth nor that there are indeed many Gods, or any other but the true God; but he fpeaketh with respect to the common and corrupt speech of them , who attribute that power unto Idols that onely appertameth to the attribute that power unto Adol time outly appealment of the true God, and by way of contestation and contemps against faile and fained Gods, Pfal. 8.6.8. 8. 89.8. V. 3.7. If print the let me go over, smaller 3 God had told Mofes he should not go over, Num.20.12. we must think then that either Mofes took the laying of Godder no absolutes commination, but such a one as was made of Hezekiahs death, 2 King. nation, but such a one as was made of Hezekiath scatta, 2 king a. 1. and of Nineversh estruction, Jonah 3.4. Or that he suffered his affections to go too far, in destring to go further then God would have him; yet this was nor of any, super-stickion to the place, in regard of any holinesse in k. 4 from its reference to the ancient Patriarchs buried there, ( as fome Popith gloffes would have it ) but that he longed to fee that ropin giottes woule nave it / our roat he longed to let that Land fo long ago promifed to Gods people, as the glory of all lands, Ezck. 20.6. and to fee Gods promife fully performed (whereof the Ifraclites fo much doubted) by their actual pofferfi-goody mountain] Some think it was mount Moriah, on which the Temple was after built, but that was too far off for Mofes to fee, being 210. furlonge diffant from Jordan , Jofephus of the Wars of the Jews, 1.5. c.4. Or one of the moun-tains of Bethel, which were lighter then it, and nigher to Jortaming detuces, which were signification it, and digner to Jordan: but certainly it was frome mountain of eminent fines, though not here named, intell'éLebanon be it, which some diffirmt, raising the word sand; to be redundant; or sa sometimes its taken by way of exposition, as, and Lebanon, that is to fay, Lebanon. See Annot. on ver. 8.

Libines A mountain fituate in the North-part of the Land

banon and Gilead together: Gilead hath several names for se- of Canaan, and famous for tall and strong Cedara, and other

& 14.8. Cant. 4.11, V. 26. for your fakes] See Annot. on Chap. 1.37. Num. 33. &

27.13,14. Deut. 32.51. V. 27. thine cres As before he faw by the Spirit of prophetic the good mountain which was Sion, fo here his eyes were lift-ed up above the order of nature to behold all the plentifull Land of Canaan; whereof God was much more able to give him a true, full, and clear prospect at once, then the Devill could present an apparition from an high mountain of all the Kingdomes of the world, Matth.4.8.

CHAP. IV.

Vers. 1. To de] For this Doctrine flandeth not in bare knowledge, but (withal) in practice of life, ver. & Chap. s. r. Pfal. 78.6.7.

V. 2. Shall not adde] Not as a Comment or Exposition to a Text, but man must not adde any thing to Gods Word, either aca, but man mun not aude any thing to Isoda Word, either for words or meaning contrary to it, nor as Gods Word, with an intentry make that of Divine authority which is but humans, as the Papific do by Apocryphal writings and unwritten Traditions. See Chap. 12.32. & 18.20.

diminife] By denying any part of it to be of Divine authority, or concealing any part of ir, either for words, or meaning, or by partial belief of it, or obedience to it. God is not to be or by partial delete or it, or obedience to it. God is not to be believed, obeyed, or ferved in part and by halves, but as he is to be loved, wholly, Chap.6.5.

V.3. year over 1 Gods Judgments executed on fome Idola?

Test, ferve for infruction and caution to others. See Num. 25.

veri.3,4.

Baul-Peor] Baul is a common name of all Idols, fignifying a Lord: because Idolaters carry themselves towards them as servants; and Peor is the proper Idol of the Moabites and Midlanites. Sec Num,25-3. John 32.17.

V. 4. † cleave to the Lord] † Chap. 10.20. & 13.4. V. 6. wifedome] Because all men naturally desire wisdome, he proposeth that as a motive to obedience; and because they generally miffake it, he sheweth wherein it confisteth, and how much it excellers all humane wifedome of what kind or degree foever, 2 Tim. 2, 15. Job 28, 28, Pfal. 111.10. Prov. 1. 7. and

V. 7. * fo night] So ready at hand both to instruct, as ver, 36. what to do, and to deliver us from undoing, and to manifest his power apparently on our fide, 2 Sam. 17.23. † Joh. 24.19 Pfal. 46.1,2. & 86.5. & 145.18. & 148.14. Lam.3.57.

V. 9. † teach them, & c.] † Gen. 18.19. Deut. 6.7. & 11. 19. Pfal.78.6.

V. 10. * [picially the day] * Exod. 19.9,16. & 20. 18. Heb.

* make them hear] * Pfal. 51.8.

V. 11. burnt with fire] The Law was given with fearful miracles, to declare both that God was the author thereof, and alfo that no flesh was able to abide the rigour of the same, Chap. .23. Heb.12.18.

$.32, Heb.1.3.18.
V.13. *no fimilitude]. *verf.15.
V.13. to perferm] God joyneth this condition to his Cererant, to wit, the condition of bodelence on his peoples part, as of providence, protection, and deliverance on his own part.
*wrate them, *Exod.4.4.12.
V.14. *Statutes and Hadgements] The Occanonial and Judicial Laws. *Mal.4.8. Bodd History Condition in predictal Laws. *Nat.4.8. Bodd History Condition in prepared for all them that make any image to repetient God a no manner of similitude For he is the invisible God, and hath no messaer of immutater y ror ne is the invinite Good, and math no visible image, whereby a man may make a repreferration of God, Col. s.15, See Bit.40.18. & Adv. 17.29.

V. 16. any figure] The Image of God cannot be made, not must the Image or Figure of any other creature be made by way of refemblance of him, or religious reference unto him, verf. x .. Exed 20.4,5.

V. 19. driven to worship them ] Or compelled by the prevailing of a glorious object over thy frail nature and feeble spirits, which can make but weak resistance to firong temptations, divided | Diffributed; or fo imparted, that by turn they may be of use, and do service to all the world.

V. 20. iron furnace) That is, a furnace to mollifie and melt, Iron in, which require than excessive heat. See : King. 8, 11. He hath delivered you out of moft miferable flavery, the iton-years.
Deut. 28.48, which melt wringeth the acce, and the furnage of fire which most tormenteth the body; wherein he alludes to the fervile labour of the Ifraelites in making and burning of bricks." See Exod. 5.7. Jet. 11.4. a people of inheritance] Exod. 19.5. 1 Pet. 2.9, V. 21.

Chap.v. V. 21. fat your fake ] See Annot. on Chap.1.37.& 2.26.& 21. ( Fathers, may be underftood the Patriarchs who were before the

2. & 34.4 // 1.2. I mult dye] Moles good affection appeareth, in that he being deprived of fuch an excellent possession doth not envy them that must enjoy it. And indeed he that is sure of heaven, as Mofes was, need not envy any one for any earthly fe-

V. 23. which the Lord the God bath forbidden thee Or, as the

V. 23. which the Lord thy Good Bull provident live! Or, as the Lord thy Good bath charged time, Exod, 20.45;
V. 24. † confuming fire] He is a Sun and a flield, Pfal.84.11 to warm and defend thole that love and fear him; but a fire to burn and confume fuch as irreverently rufn upon him, or re-burn and continue usen a irreverently runn upon mus, on the bellioully rife up againg him. † Chapp. 3. Heb. 12.29.

1. 12. remained long I Heb. wazed old.
2011 corrupt your felves I Corruption is both the mother and the daughter of Idolatry: for when the heart is corrupted, it breedeth Idolatrous affections and fancies; and when Idols are made and used . they corrupt the heart and conscience more

V. 26. heaven and earth to witnesse] By heaven and earth, may be meant the intelligent creatures in the one, and on the others or, if the infensible creatures be meant, the meaning is, that God will bring evidence and witnesse from them to convince and condemn them of ingratitude. See Ifa.1.2.

foon utterly perish ] Chap.7.10. Josh, 22.18, 2 Pet, 2.3.
V. 27. few in number ] Heb, men of number. For the Hebrews when they use the word number absolutely, mean a small number or a few , because the greatest multitudes are of those things which cannot be numbred; as the flars of heaven, and duft of the earth, therefore is Abrahams progeny promifed as a num-the earth, therefore is Adrahams progeny promited as a num-berleffi increafe, Gen. 13.16. & 81.55.

$\mu$ : 8.8. \text{ Godd}^2$ ] Not in deed, but in name and opinion of bru-tifh Idolaters, though fo far fhore of Divinity, that they have neither reason not lense, Chap. 18.3. 8, 6.4. Jet. 16.13.

$\mu$ 2.3. \text{ all thy heart}$ ] Not without word, here or ceremony; but with a true confesion of thy faults, and a fincere desire of his

† if from thence, &c.] † Chap.30.1,2. Nehem.1.9. Jer, 29.

12, 13. V. 32. † one fide of heaven] † Chap 30.4.

V. 33. and live] See Annot. on Exod. 33.20.
V. 34. out of another Nation] That is, the Israelites out of the temptations | Tryals of their obedience, Chap. 7. 19. and 29.3.

V. 35, that thou mightelt know] God wrought these wonders, that he might be known not only to be God, but the onely God, fince none could do such works as he had done, 1sa, 45.5.

Mark 12.29,32. V. 36. out of heaven] Exod.19.9. & 20.18,22. Neh.9.13. upon the earth ] Mount Sinai, Exed. 24.16.

V. 37. brought thee out, &c.] Exed. 13.3.
V. 38. as it is this day They had already won fixty Cities of Og, Chap. 3. 4. and conquered him, and Sihon King of the Amorites, ver. 46, 47. of this Chapter, which conquefts were an earnest of further victory over their enemies.

V. 40. that it may * go well ] God premifeth reward not for our merits, but to encourage us that our labour shall not be lost, oft metas, out of coloning in the number of the Chap, 51.6. Eph. 63, 10. A1, fewerd, & 6, 1 Num. 35.6, 14. P. 42, fee thirber] Exod. 2.1.2.13. Num. 35.15. P. 45. Tellimonies] The Articles and points of Covenant, whereby Gods in mids is efflicted unto the people in his proposal, and theirs in their acceptance of them. See I King.2.3. V. 45. † Beth-Pero] That is, the house or Temple of the Idol Peor, the God of the Mosbites and Midianites. See Num. 25.3. † Chap. 3.29.

V. 48. Mount Sion | This is not that Mount Sion of Jerufalem, and the Temple, but differing from it both in the writing, and in the fituation : for Sion, where was the Temple, was written with Tfadi, the other Sion with Shin : and Sion with Tfadi was in Jerusalem on the one side Jordan, the other Sion was on the other

V. 49. Sea of the plain ] That is, the falt Sea , whereot fee Annot. on Num.34.3.

CHAP. V.

Verf. 1. ALL Ifrait] As Chap. 29. 10,11. To speak to so many at once that all might hear, required a very loud and shrill voyce. do them | Chap. 4. I.

V. 3. made not this Covenant] The word [not] is not alwaics purely negative : Sometimes it is to be taken for not onely, or not principally, Gen. 3 2. 28 Mat. 9. 13. So it may be here expounded, the Lord made not the Covenant at Hereb onely with those who are now dead, (at least the most of them) with them and their pofterity after them, as the Promife, Act. 2.39. Or , by giving of the Law at Horeb, upward unto Adam, with whom there was not fuch a formal, legal, and particular Covenant made, as with them at Horeb, though in his substance it were the fame: for they were obliged to believe in Chrift, and to keep the Law to the utmost of their ability, fo far as it was revealed unto them; and in many particulars both of the ten Commandments, (as against Idolatry, and for keeping of the Sabbath, and of the ceremonial ordinances, as faculices, the diffinction of clean and unclean beafts, with others: they prachifed that which afterward came under legal Precepts . Chap. 20.

V. 4. + [ace to face] Not in a visible or sensible form or figure Chap. 4.12. but to plainly, that you need no more to doubt who it was that spake to you, then of him that talketh with you face to face.

† Exed.33.11.

V. 5. 1 flood between ] Gal. 3. 19. Exod. 19. 16. &c. & 30. TS.

V. 8. graven image] See Annot, on Exed, 20. where the Ten

v.o., graven image 1 see Annut, on Exon, 20. where the ten commandements here repeated, are explained.
V. 9. jealous God] That is, of his honour, noe permitting it to any others, no more then a generous husband would permit the profittution of his wife to another man. See Hol. 2, verf.

iniquity] In the children eternally, if they live and dye in the fins of their Fathers; and temporally (if they do not) for their Fathers fakes; who as they might in their pofterity have perified. fo are they in them punished.

ca, to are they in them punnicu.

V. to. love me] Love of God, and obedience to God, are linked together, fo that the argument is good from the one to the other; as Joh. 14.15.

V. 11. nor hold bim guittleffe] But so guilty, as that he will punish him; for the words are a figurative Liptote. or Litotes, whereby more is meant then is expressed, I Sam, 13,21.

V. 13. fix dayes] Meaning fince God permitteth fix dayes to our labouring we ought willingly to dedicate the feventh wholly to ferve him.

V. 14. franger ] An uncircumcifed person shall not be suffered to violate the rest of the Sabbath by any publick profanation. See Neh. 13.
V. 15. therefore the Lord This reason is peculiar to the Jews;

the rest, Exod. 20. are general, obliging universally all perfons in all ages.
V. 16. Homour With love, reverence, obedience, affiftance and fuccour, if they shall have need.

V. 17. not hill All manner of killing is not here forbidden, but that which is done without warrantable cause and lawfull authority.

V. 18, not commit adultery] See Annot, on Exed. 20.13.

V. 19. not steal See Exed 20.15.
V. 20. sulse witnesses See Exed 20.16.
V. 21. neither shalt thou desire ] See Annot. on Exed 20.

V. 22. added no more ] That is, no more precepts of the De-calogue, or Moral Law, nor any more laws to the people immediately; for the other ordinances were delivered to them by the mediation of Moles. See verf. 30,31.

V. 23. for the mountain did burn with fire] This is not rendred as a reason of the darknesse, but as a reason of the peoples fear; which was the more, because exceeding thick darknesse. verf.22. and bright flaming fire appeared on the mount at the fame time; which, as it was more strange, so was it more terrible, as the fire and hail coming together, Exod.9.24. Pfal.18.

V. 25. if we bear] See Annot, on Exod. 20.19.
V. 26. and lived] See Annot, on Exod. 33.20. & Deut.

4. 33. V. 28. † well faid] † Chap. 18.17. V. 29. † O that, os.] † Chap. 32.29. Pfal. 81.13. 16.48.18. Ter 44.4.

+ alwayes 1 + Chap. 11.1. V. 31. by me In the mountain.

V. 32. † to the right] † Chap. 2.27. & 17.20. & 28.14. John 2. 7. Prov.4.27. CHAP. VI.

Verf. I. De them] See Annot, on Chap.4. T.
V. 2. few A reverend fear of God is the first beginning to keep his Commandements, Ecclef. 12-13.

I command thee That is, God: for though Mofes spake some times in the third Person of God, yet he often useth the first, as if God himfelf spake; from whom, and in whose name he giveth the charge unto the people. prolonged] Chap.5,16. & 22.7. Exod. 20.12. Prov. 3,2, 1 Pet.

V. 4. one Level One in the substance of the Deity ( though three in the Persons of the Trinity): and therefore being one

Lord to all, he alone is to be worthipped by all in one way and Lord to all, he alone is to be worthipped by all in one way and form of worthip: and though but one, he must be loved and ferved with all the heart, foul and might of every man, as in the next verse: and all that is too little for so great and good a God, though it be a great deal more then we can perform, Chap.4.35. Zach.14.9. Mar. 12.29. Joh.17.3. 1 Cor. 8.4,6. Ephel. 4.5.

Annet, on Chap. 4.29. Gen. 31.6. V. 6. teach them Ot, whet them; that is, (harpen them, so that of the hearers, Chap.4.9. Evol.13.8. 2 Pet.1.13.

V. 7. talk of them when Holy discourse is never out of seafon.

V. 8. Fontlets ] Which are not (as some expound) to be taken literally, but parabolically, with this meaning, that we should as much remember and mind the Law of God, as if it were written in frontlets on the forehead, and bracelets on the armes; though the Jews, the Pharifees especially, followed the literal fenfe, Mat. 22.5. See Annot, on Exed 13.16. Prov. 3.3. & 6.21.

& 7.3. V. 9. * write them ] * Chap. 11.20. V. 10. * cities, which, &c. ] * Josh. 24.12. Neh. 9.25. Pfal.

V. 12. * Then beware] Let not wealth and case cause thee to forget Gods mercies, whereby thou wast delivered out of mifery.

* Chap.8.11. Prov.30.9.

* Chap.8.11. Prov.30.9.

V. 13. * ferve the Lord] * Mat.4.10. & Luk.4.8.

fwear by] We must tear God, and ferve him only, and confess his Name, which is done by swearing lawfully, Jer. 4.2. And when swearing is lawful, then to swear by another name then Gods, is mlawful.

Gods, 15 mlawial.

V. 16. tempt the Lord] By making doubt, or tryall of his presence, without warrant from his revealed will; or, by provoking him to wrath by your

the motervated with, or 30 y providing that to wrath by your unbelief and neuronizings, as formerly you have done.

V. 17. * diligently] * Chap. 11. 22. P[al. 119.4.

Tellimonite! His Laws by which he hat tellified his Will concerning thine obedience unto him.

Statutes] The same Laws ratified by his authority for rules of obedience with commination of penalty to those that disober commanded thee] This verse beginneth in the plural number, but endeth in the fingular, that every one should make application of general precepts to himfelf.

V. 18. [ight of the Lord] We must do not what seemeth good in our own eyes, but what is good in Gods fight, Chap. 12. 8, 21, 25. V. 20. * when thy foul * Exod. 12.26. & 13.14. V. 21. * mighty hand] * Exod. 3.19. & 13.3. V. 23. and brought us! The more we receive of Gods benefits the more are we bound to his obedience, Luk. 12.48.

V. 14, for our good] Our conformity to the Law of God doth him no good, Job 35, 7. Though the law be his, the benefit of obedience is ours; and the more conftant it is, the more beneficial. Prov. 9.12.

V. 25. our righteoufueffe] So it should be if we could exactly keep the Law, Rom. 10.5. but because we cannot, we must berake our felves for refuge to the righteoufnels of Faith, ver.6. and so be saved, not by our own justice, but by Gods mercy for Christs merits, as divers Translations render it, He will be mereiful unto us, Chap.24.13.

CHAP. VII.

Verl. . Seven Wations ] In the 33 of Exodus, ver. 2. & Deut. ed; and in the 15.of Gen.ver.19,&c. are named ten: the Hivited omitted, and the Kenites, Kenezites, Kadmonites, and Re-phaims added: the reason of which difference may be that one part of the people might have several names, and several parts of them might be comprehended under one name; or fometimes general names, fometimes particular might be mentioned.

V. 2. make no Covenant] Heb. cut no Covenant. See Gen. 1 5. 17,18. Jer.34.18. No covenant of cohabitation in the fame Countrey; much leffe of marriage, unless they be converts to the true Religion. See Exod. 34.15,16. 1 King. 11.2. Ezra 9.

the true Keigion. See Exod.34,15,16. 1 Aing.11.2. Delay.
2,12. Neh.13.23. ludg.3,6,7. & 14.23.
V.4. * turn away.6c.] * 1 King.11.2. Neh.13.26.
V.5. diffrey] God would have his fervice pure without any pollution of fuperfittion and Idolatry, ver:25. & Chap. 12.2, 3

Exod. 23. 24. & 34.13. V. 7. feweft] Before God had made a miraculous multiplicarion of you from those few which were of your posterity of Jacob.

V. 8. loved] You freely, finding no cause in you more then in 44.3. Zeph.3.17.

V.9. † to a thousand generations] † Chap. 5.9, 10. Exed.

20.5,6. V. 10. to his face] The words are doubled, for affurance that God will so apparently take vengeance of his enemies, that they shall plainly perceive (as they do a thing set before their they that plainly perceive us they do a thing let be do enter the face) he doth it, and that he doth it for their wickedness, as in that example of the Idolaters, and of the lusters after fieth, Num. 11. and of Corah and his company, Chap. 16. Exod.

V. 12. mercy] This Covenant is grounded upon his free grace: therefore in recompencing their obedience he hath rement to his own mercy, not to their merits. Chap. 28. 1. Levit.

V. 13. the fruit of By multiplying thy posterity, and with-holding the mishaps of abortion, and feeble and deformed births. Deut.28.4.

V. 15. † all ficknesses, † Exad. 23. 25. Pfal. 105. 37.
V. 16. no pity] We ought not to be mercifull, where God commandeth severity: for such a mercy to others would prove a cruelty to their own fouls that use it.

a crucity to their own fours that the it.

V. 18. remember, &c. ] Pfal. 77-11.

V. 19. templations] The tryals of their faith and obedience were very great, and fuch as required miracles to uphold them. from falling from God, and to fcourge and recover them when they were fallen, Chap. 4.34. & 29.3.

(a fhalf ) This is to be referred to the precedent verse, concerning the destruction of Pharach and his people, meaning they shall be overcome as well as they were, though not with in many works of wonder.

V. 20. hornet] The fmaller creatures shall be armed against the enemies of God, and of his people, and shall subdue them as well as the greater.

V.21. † among you] † Exod.17.7.
V.22. left the beafts] So that it is for your commodity that God accomplisheth not his promise so soon as you wish, V. 23. untill they be deftroyed ] That is, destroyed utterly.

V. 23. sensus teny to editivitied. I man is, destroyed utterty.
V. 24. defive their name? So, as their name shall be buried in oblivion, or, if it be mentioned, it shall be bur as the stirring of a sepulcher, which will rail can offensive time.
V. 25. an absormation? A thing that the Lord doth loath and shope, as the other last hough one fin more then another, Idolatry especially.

CHAP. VIII.

Verf. I. Bferve to do] See Annot. on Chap.4.1.
V. 2. to prove thee] See Annot. on Exod. 26. 4. ver£16. of this Chapter.

VELLE, O. CITHS LADPEC.

V. 2. † Int by every used] Nor by the ordinary way of provision, wherein mans providence is exercised anely, as in preparing of bread, (the principal substance of his Table) but in room thereof, either Gods word or command will make a miraculous thereof, either Gods word or command with make a miraculous fupply of food, as by Quailes and Manna, and that without any means at all; bis word, that is, his will, made as readily and evidently known by his powerful work, as a mans mind by his word, will support a mans life: and when a man hath meat, it is the virtue of that word and power of his that nourisheth ele it would be more likely to choak then to feed; but his word of command would foften stones into dough, and make poyfon to be both meat and medicine. † See Mar.4.4. Luke 4.4. Mark.

16.18.

V. 4. thy rayment] Befides the provision of apparel which they had of their own, they were furnished with many fuirs of feveral fizes for themselves and their children by borrowing of the Efizzes for themselves and their children by onrowing or the La-gyptians, Exod., 3.2. & Chap12.37. These being by a Divine power preserved from decay, some conceive the garments of thriving children, or young men miraculously grew up with their persons: But it is more like that many of different ages and flatures dying, their garments were kept for, and used by such as succeeded in the same measure; for we must not multiply miracles without necessity; where one is mentioned (as the preferring of clothes without decay) there is no need nor ground for God to make, or man to imagine any more.

F. 5. chafteneth his fon] God sheweth his love as well by afflictions, as by apparent favours; as a man sheweth love to his son, as well by providing Physick for him in his sicknesse, as sood in his health, Heb. 12.6. and his chastening of his children is for their correction and amendment; not as the punishments of the wicked for their ruine and deftruction, a Sam.7.14. Pfal.

of the wicked, soft interir time and certification, a Samiying, Face [89,33, Prov. 3:11,12. Rev. 3.19.

V. 6. † fear] Chap.6.2,13, & 10.12.

V. 7. † bringeth thee, &c. 1 † Chap.6.10,11. & 11, 10,12.

V. 9. [Benez] That is, flore of Mines of iron and braffe, Chap.

23.25. Job 28.2. V. 10. [halt bleffe] For to receive Gods bleffings, and not to be thankful, is to contemn God in them; and we must not onely others fo to do, Chap. 10.15. 1 Sam. 12.22. 2 Sam. 22.20. Pfal. conclude our refreshings with thanksgiving, but pray for a blesfing before the ufe of them, See I Tim.4.5. Rom.14.6.

Chap.ix.

30.9. V. 14. lifted up ] By afcribing Gods benefits to thine own V. 14. upraup J by alcribing Gods benefits to think own power, or care, or skill, boafting as if thou hadft them of thy felf, without receiving them from God, t Cor. 1.7. or, as if for fone worthiness in thee God had been so bountiful unto thee, Hos.

V. 15. terrible wildernefs] See Annot. on Chap. 1.19. Ch.32.

10. 15. to rive winating 3 declaration Chapter 1. 15. Conyon 10. 151. 16. to do thee good Jer. 24.5. Heb. 12. 1. 11. 1. V. 19. if the beginning of the word [thou] taken diffributively in the beginning of the liver famounts to a collective fenfe, and is a much as Jud 11 in the end of it.

CHAP. IX:

Verf. 1. This day I is not precifely to be taken for one of the three hundred fixty five dayes in the year, but for a thort time neer at hand, within this two moneths: for Moles field this the fift day of the eleventh moneth, Chap. 1.3. and the people passed over Jordan the tenth day of the fift moneth, Josh 4.19.

possifie Nations | So, as not onely to have their land for thine habitation, but their persons at thy disposal, either for slaughter or fervice, Lev. 25, 45, 46.

up to heaven ] He speaketh according to the report of the Spies.Chap. 1.28. See Annot, on Gen. 11.4.

V. 2. heard (ay] By the report of the Spies, Num. 12. ver.

2.5,33.
V. 3. confuming fire ] His burning indignation will not be quenched until the enemies be confumed: the hear thereof made their hearts to melt afar off, John 5.1.8. Chap. 7.5. fo [halt thou drive] That is, Gods justice having doomed them to destruction, he will give you the power to do execution upon them; yet divers of them were destroyed by horners, Chap. 7. 20 without their pursuit or flaughter, to wathout then pointing of thoughts.

V. 4. * in thine beart] * P[a].14.1.

*mp righteen[nefs] * Ver. 5. & 6. Ezck. 36.22.

V. 5. for the wickedneffe of thefe nations] Gen. 15.16. 1 Tim

1.9. Lev. 18.25.
perform the word &c. Gen. 12.7.8t 13.15.8t 15.7. & 17. 8. 8t

26.4.8 28.13. V. 6. Biff-necked] Exod. 32.9. and fee Annet, on Exod. 32.3.8

V. 8. in Horeb] By Idelatry to the golden Calf. Exed. 23.4.

V. 9. neither eat bread ] Moses the chief Minister of the Law fasted fourty dayes and fourty nights, at the publication of it, Exod, 24.10. so did Christ before the publication of the Gofpel, Mat. 4. 2. and Elijah that famous Prophet betwist them per, seat. 4. 2. and can faithful canons require to constitute the contribution of the

V. 14. let me alone ] Signifying that the prayers of the faithful are a bar to flay Godsanger, that he confume not all. See mil are not to toy Coursings; may recommend and Sydnation Exod, 22-10.

V. 16. † I loyed J | Exod, 22-9.

V. 17. and braje them] See Amost on Exod, 22-19.

V. 18. fpury days and fpury) Some hence collect that Mo-for falled fourty days and fourty lights, now the feeond time by occasion of the fin about the golden Calf, and fome hold a third time ver, 25, but for twice its probable, though not certain, and for the third time it is neither certain nor probable. See Annet, on Exed. 34.28.& on ver. 25. of this Chap. Pfal. 106.ver.

V. 20. to have destroyed him] Whereby he sheweth what danger they are in that have Authority, and result not wickednesse. See I Sam. 3.13.

V. 21. your fin ] That is, the object of your fin on which you fet your idolatrous conceits, and to which you directed your idolatry, Exod. 32.20.

into the brook ] See Exed. 32.20. out of the mount ] That is, Horeb, or Sinai.

V. 23. then yeu rebilled] At the return of the Spies, Num. 13. 31.8 14.1.

V. 25. As I fell down at the first These words import onely a repetition of a thing that was somethy done, as if it were, as I faid before; for he was three feveral times on the Mount in the fpace of fourty dayes, once at the receiving of the Law, Exed. space or tourty dayers once at the receiving or the Law, Exed. 24.18, after that when he intereded for the people upon their fin committed in worthipping the golden Cali, Exed. 32.30,31, And thirdly, when he received the new Tables, Exed. 34.28. of which some conceive that Moses so many times fasted tourty dayes and fourty nights; which is not likely : for they that make shat allowance of time for fafting and absence from the people, the people: yet the other Levites were employed in singing.

V. 12. and are full . . . . Chap . 28.47. & 31.20. & 32.15 Prov. | allow too little time [not full three dayes] for many bufineffes with the people. Befides, if from the feveral mentions they will infer so many fourty dayes past, they may say it was four times as well as three; for the like mention is madeagain, Chap.to. 10. Thirdly, two of these times belong to the same action, which is for reconciliation after the fin touching the golden Calt: which obtained by once fasting fourty dayes, what need was there to do the like again ?

V. 26. | defirey not &c. | Exed, 32.11.

V. 27. Remember thy (ervants ] By the authority of Gods promife, and fincerity of those to whom he promised he strengtheneth his hope of obtainment of mercy , notwithflanding their

V. 28. † was not able, &c.] † Exod. 32.12. Num. 14.16. V. 29. Tet they are thy people 3 Nouwithstanding their grosse Idolatry, their manifold murmutings, and other rebellions he hath not yet given them a bill of divorce, they are yet the peo-ple of his Covenant, and his vifible Church upon earth, Chap. 28.9.P[al.95.7.& 100.3.]er.14.9.

CHAP. X.

Verf. 1. Em thee two]Here precedent passages are repeated

V. 2. an Ark of wood | Of this Ark, of what wood it was, and in what manner made, fee ver. 3. & Exod. 25. To. The order for making the Ark was given before the second writing of the Law, as in the fore-cited place of Exodus; but it was not made indeed until afterward; as appeareth by comparison of Exod. 13-510-with Exad 37.1.

V. 3. Shittim wood] Which yields firm and durable timber, Exad 25.5,5.0.

V. 4. † be wrote] † Exad 34.28.

V. 6. to Mofera; there Agron died T He died on mount Hor. which is the place adjacent or circumjacent, where the Ifraelites encamped, it is called Moferoth, Num. 33.31. whither the people came now the second time; for wandering in the wildernesse came now the technical time; in or flrange for them to come again and again to the fame place, and to the place from whence they came was varied which without this confideration may be thought a contradiction: befides, the places of their incampings. had fomerimes divers names, as the place here called Bereth of is a contenues avers names, as the pince nere cause attents of the children of Jankan, Num, 33,31; is called Remigabay. It is likewife to be observed, that for [came] mult, for avoiding of con-tradiction, be read [bad come] for the Hebrares having but one preter I enfoit is used formetimes for the preterperfect. times for the preterimperfect, fometimes for the preterplupers fect Tenfe, as in the next verfe.

tect lenis, as in the next verie.

Y. 7. Gudgedh) Num. 33.32. It is called Harhagidhad, comparing this place with that, their journeying to and from any be conceived to be from Halmonahn to Molerath, Num. 33.30 from Molerath to Brazia, also, yet. 31. or (as here it is called Bereath of the children of Jacken; and in their return they same from Benjakam to Okojevok, and from Majerath to Gudgedah, as it is here. Some endeavour to diffolve the difficulty by laying blame upon the Scribe that copied out the place, as if he should have left out somewhat which he sound in the Text: some anhave left outlonewast which he found in the lext: louis win-fewer by affigning feveral names to one place; fome by a nice diffinguishing of the same name Mofereth and Mofera, apply-ing the former to be the mansion of the Israelites here mentimon use a memory of the memory of the fractions for the memory of the me ther as in their fituation were afunder; but the best answer is, that is musable and uncertain were the windings of the litac-lites in the wildernefs, an may appear by the May of Adrichom, Delph of the deferr of Pharm, interp. 116. & 117. Theat.ter; Ind. C. and yet there night be more wanderings then he hath drawn out in his footted lines.) that the fame place might be training a quayer d adquer, the place whence and whither again and again, according as their turnings and windings, their flay or diversion weight bern. or divertion varied them.

V. 8. at that time Which is not to be taken firially for the time of the precedent incamping, but with more latitude, for the time while Aaron was Prieft, Num. 3. 6. or, at the time mentioned, ver. 5. when Mofes brought the new Tables from the Mount.

| feparated] † Rom. r. r.
| to bear the Ark] Which belonged to the Tribe in general; yet
| to that at some special and solemn times, the Priess did (as they alwayes might ) bear it themselves as they were Levites, Josh. 3.

† to stand before &c. ] Chap. 1.38.

and to biffe] Minister in the Tabernacle, and offering of facrifices belonged to the Priests, fo did the folemn bleffing of praise to God, while the facrifices were offered.

P. 9. the Land he ish inhoritance] That is, having God for his God in especial manner; as he is Gods portion rather then any their feet to the spade to dig gutters and chanels to keep waof the other Tribes, fois God his, and thereupon he hath his maintenance out of that which God hath fet apart for himfelf, his own allowance out of every Tribe wherein the Levices are differfed, and fo the God of Jacob turned their. Fathers curfe, Gen.49.7. into a bleffing. See Annot, on Num.18.20,21,3c.
Deut.Chap.18.1.Ezek.44.28.

V. 10. according to the first time | See Annot, on Chap. 9.

V. 12. † what doth, &c.] † Mic.6.8.

V. 13. for thy good Prov. 9.12. Jer. 32.39.
V. 14. and the beaven of heavens By heaven may be meant all the visible heavens: and by heaven of heavens that which excels them all, the third heaven, the place of the bleffed, Gen. 14.19.Pfal.115.16.

the earth alfo] Exod. 19.5.Pfal.24.1.

V. 15. had a delight ] Chap.7.7,8.
V. 16. circumcife ] Caft off all your evill affections, Jer. 4.

Vet.4.

fliff-necked] See Amot, on Chap. 9.13.

V. 17. a God of gods? Above all that are gods in name onely: for indeed there is but one God. See Amot. on Exod.

Lord of lords ] Rev. 17.14.

V. 19. Love the [tranger] Lev. 19.34. V. 20. [wear by bis Name] See Annot. on Chap. 6.13. V. 21. thy praise That is, the object of thy praise, in whom shou thalt find most matter and cause of praise and glory. See Jer. 17.14. and he that makes thee worthy of praife, and fo to be praifed, Chap. 4.6,7.

V. 22. threefeure and ten | See Annot. on Gen. Chap. 46

CHAP. XI.

Verf. 2. V Hich bave not feen ] He addresseth his speech veil. 2. V Piles pave not jeen 1 He agaretien his ipeen their fathers departed out of Egypt, but unto those, who then being under twenty years old at that time, and of apprehension then to oblerve : (for those about twenty years were cut off for their murmuring) to these now of the ancienter fort who had feen Gods miraculous deliverance he speaketh, who ought ra-ther to be acquainted therewith, then those that had onely heard of them, and not feen them.

V. 4. red Sea, &c.] Exod. 14.27.

V. 16. Dathan and Abiram Korah is not left out, as more innocent then they; but the flory being fully fet down, Num. 16. where the three principal confiprators are particularly named, in other places, which refer to that flory, it is fufficient to name any of the three, as Jude 11. Korah onely is named, and vet Dathan and Abiramare neither excluded or excused; and here, and Pfal. 106.17. Dathan and Abitam are named, and yet Korah is not left out as lefs guilty: (for it may be as he was first named in the first mention of their conspiracy he was ringleader to the reft ) but because the mention of any one will bring to memory the reft, these two are the rather named together, because they were not onely brethren in evil, but brethren alfo in bloud, whereas Korah was of another family.

the four of Rouben The destendants in a direct line, though the four of Rouben The destendants in a direct line, though remote, as grand-children, great grand-children, in the He-brew phrase, are all called sonnes, as well as the immediate

V. 7. but your eyes ] An undoubted evidence of the truth of this holy ftory, wherein Moles appeals to fo many eye-witnef-fos of Gods miraculous acts yet alive.

V. 8. may be firong] Not to be head-firong, nor fliff-necked against God, but humble hearted and obedient towards him is the way to be arm-ftrong against enemies. See Josh. 1. 5

V. 9. † prolong your dayes] Grace is a good friend to humane nature: (though corrupt nature be an enemy to grace) for it nature: (though corrupt nature or an enemy to grace) for tupholds it in health, and prolongeth life, whereas wickednesse cuts off the life by the halves, Pfal. 55.23. and if the godly be taken away while they be young, it is but from the evil to come, Ifa 57.1. And if the life of the wicked be prolonged, (as Ecclell 18.75.1. And if the life of the wicked be prolonged, (as Ecclell). 7.15. it is faid) it is not in favour, but in anger, as the Amorites were forborn, to make up the measure of their iniquity, Gen. 15. 16. that their judgment might be the heavier when i † Deut. Chap. 5.16.& 6.2.& Prov. 9.11 & Chap. 10.27. V. 10. with thy foet That is, with bodily labour, which, (though it be usually called the labour of the hands; as Pfal. the Annot on the place) The meaning is, that it is not like the the wilderness.

land of Egypt, which (having but little rain, Zach. 14. 18. but ter for the watering of their gardens, whereas in Canaan the land was watered and made fruitful by rain from heaven. V. 11. + of hils and valleys] + Chap. 8.7.

V. 12. † the ejes of the Lord] † Ezra 5.5. Jer. 40 4 in mare.

Pfal. 34.15.& 33.18. V. 13. † diligently] † Ver.22. V. 14. the first and latter] The first , (meaning after feed) was to bring the corn out of the ground; the latter afterwards to make it full in the ear Zach 10.1. Jam 5.7. Jer 5.24. V. 16.† take heed]† Chap 4.9. V. 17. [hut up the heavens] Amos 4.7.

V. 18. frontlets | See Annot. on Exod. 13.16. and on Deut. Chap.6.8.

V. 21.7 as the dayes of heaven] As long as the heavens endure. And the phrase also may import a temporal prosperity like an heaven upon earth, as an earnest of that everlasting happinesse in heaven above. † Pfal. 89.29.

V. 22. † diligently] † Ver.13. P[al.119.4. cleave unto bim] Gen.21.24.A&.11.23. Josh.22.5.

V. 24. every place ] Within the compais of the promifed land, not universally as if they were to be Lords of the whole earth, as the Tewish Rabbins vainly fancy. † uttermoft fea] That is, the main Ocean, which was the Weltern bound of the Land of Canaan. † Chap.34.2.

V. 25. † fear of you] † Chap.28.10. Exod. 23.27.

V. 25. † fear of you] † Chap. 20.15. V. 26.† a bleffing, &c.] † Chap. 30.15. V. 29. put the bleffing upon &c.] The manner of bleffing and curfing upon Mount Gerizim, and Mount Ebal [two hills neer together in the Tribe of Ephraim ] is conceived to be thus: fix of the Tribes were placed on the one mount, and fix on the other : in a little valley betwirt both ( for there is but a little valley berwixt them) flood the Priefts only, one while pronouncing bleffings upon the observers of the Law, another while denouncing curses against the transgressours of the Law. While a bleffing was pronounced, the Tribes on Mount Gerizing founded out Amen, and when a curfe was denounced. Amen was founded from the Tribes on Mount Ebal. See Annot, on Chap. 27.12. V. 30. are they not ] This manner of interrogation hath the force of an affured affirmation, as if he had faid, they are, and well known fo to be.

CHAP. XII.

V. 4. red Sea Sec. 1 Exod. 14-17.
V. 5. and what be did] As well concerning his benefits as his Verf. 1.

ALL † the dojes that ] † 1 King. 8.40. Pfal. 10-433.
V. 2. † utterly destroy ] † Chap. 7.5. Num. 33.

† bigb mountains &c.]† Num.22.41.2 King.23.13.15. V. 3. names] Either forbearing to name them; as Exod. 23. 13. and putting other names in their flead; as Num.32.38. or by naming them onely by way of reproof or contempt, z King.

V. 4. not do fo] You shall not serve the Lord in such fort to they served Idols in their superstitions and idelatrous observances; especially you shall not serve him in consecrated groves; or you shall not do so by those things which belong unto the Lord, as unto such things as are dedicated unto Idols. And if any of the faithful fervants of God did at any time facrifice in groves, they either had an especial warrant, or their fact was their fault ; against this negative rule , there can be no difpenfation but by divine Authority.

V. 6. | thither, &c.] | Lev. 17.3,4. Ezck, 20.40.

V. 7. there] See Annet. on Num. 18.10.
ye [hall este] The Priests such things as belonged unto them; and the people such things as were allowed unto them: and they might eat of the peace-offerings ; but they might not eat of the fin-offering, nor of votive-offerings, nor of the whole oburnt-offerings, appeareth, Num. 18.9,15. Or, by their eating before the Lord, may be meant their feasting and rejoycing, when they were thrice in a year to appear before the Lord in the place where the Tabernacle was, or the Temple should be.

before the Lord This is to be understood chiefly of the Priefts, who might eat in places which had neer reference to God, with whom the people were not to be partakers : Or, if it be referred to the people, they may be faid to eat before the Lord, when eating they give thankes unto the Lord, Rom. 14. 6. Or, becating they give thankes unto the Lord, fount 14.5. of the caufe they were to eat a second tythe (after they had paid the first to the Levites) onely in that City or place, where Gods Sanctuary was set up. See verse 17,18. of this Chap]

V. 8. after all that we do] For God will be ferved after a more exact and perfect manner when ye come into the Land of Ca-128.2.) is sometime attributed to the feet as Gen. 30. 30. (See naan, then hitherto he hath been, or conveniently could bein Chap. xii. right in his own eye.] Not that they factificed altogether after their phantafie; thut in many things they took too much liber; took what they liked a rot, in elegator fact contained lawes by were not to be fortse from obligation and practice of them the promitted land, as now they were in the wildownels, there neither Circumcition, nor the Palkover, nor other Ore for the part thereof was to be even by the owners who offered the part thereof was right bit one etc.] 1404 that they sacrineed alogeties after their phantafes; but in many things they took too much liber-ty to do what they liked: or, in relpech of the ceremonal laws they were not to be folice from obligation and practice of them in the promifed land, as now they were in the wilderness, where neither Circumcifion, nor the Paffeover, nor other Ordinances (which were neither moral nor judicial) were, or could conveniently be observed as in the land of Canzan they might, and must be too : and withall it was to admonish them that the more Gods favour was manifefted to them, (and it is more ma-nifeft in the fruition then in the promile of his bleffings) the more should their obedience be manifested to him, 1 Chr.13.4. Judg-17.6.Prov.14.12.

V. 10. in fafety] This is spoken with reference to their Anniversary recourse to the place of the Tabernactor Temple thrice a year, that they might not fail of their appearance there so oft as was required, for fear-lest in their absence their enemies should invade their dwellings, and take away or spoyl what

shev left at home

V. 11. [hall choofe] That was for a time the City Shilob, where the Tabernacle was placed, Jer. 7.12, Pfal. 78.60, and where it continued unto the dayes of Samuel, which was two hundred continued unto the daycrof Samuel, which was two hundred fourty and three years; or, 4 so from think; by three hundred, 1 Sam, 4.1.2, 13, shough called the Temple, 1 Sam, 3.9. and afterwards fertallen, where the Temple was built in Samonton time. See Annat. on 1 King, 8.1.9. Pfal.y 3.68.

choice sower! That is, fuch things as you wowd freely, being a your own choice; or, fuch things as you wowd freely, being anyour own choice; or, fuch things as you officed, nor taking, what come first to hand, but with choyce and election of the fairest and best, as anevered for Gods service and acceptance.

V. 12. before the Lord] At the Tabernacle or Temple, or in the City where either of them shall be erected for the folemn fervice of God to be presented to him, as conversant with those that fineerely ferve him.

half no part ] His rejoycing is not because he hash no part of inheritance, but because, though he have no such portion as the reft, he shall rejoyce in the participation of the offerings, &c. Or thefe words may have reference to what was faid before, which is that the Priefts should invite the Levite to their feasts; as may be collected from Chap. 16.11,14. and that because he hath no portion of lands with the other Tribes, Num. 18.20.

V. 13. Take heed &c. ] Chap. 11.16. Lev. 17.4.
the burnt-offerings ] Under this word are office holy oblations comprehended, though they be not expressy mentioned, as burnt offerings are.

ofterings are.

**P. **z. the unistem**] Every one, whether cerebrionially unclean, or nor, might cat of the fame kind of beatts which were appointed for fearifice, as well as of them that were noy, as the Ro-buck, and the Hart, which were not to be facilified to the Lord; foring o'vil meats ("whereo'file foeaketh here) there was nor that diffinction observed betwigt persons or medes as in sa-crifices there was, ver. 20, 21, 22, of which this diffinction is to be observed; some creatures were ceremonially unclean, so that they might neither be facrificed nor exten, whereof see Lev. II. & Chap, 14 of this book; some were wholly clean, which might be both eaten and offered in facrifice; as of birds the Turtle and Pigeon, and of beatts the Sheep, Rine, and Goars; and some were partly clean, and partly melean, so clean, that they might becaten, and fo ceremonially unclean, that they might not be factified; whereoffee Chep.r.c.,

9. 16. as and 13 That the ground may define to use not used for meat to man or beaft, because the blond of factifies not used for meat coman or beath, because the bloods of facinifies is pecularly on officeration to 604, so a type of the blood of Christ. Therefore reasons need on mind the centing of blood, whereof few extra 3,44 and definion. Gentle, ... / 7, 9, 1766 feeel, This Green flowershments prontenes to for fike the Christer, and imprincible in them to them that do it, Chapt. 4, 7, Neb. 10-39.

f ver. 30. 86 4 17:

W. 21. be too far ] They that dwelt too far off from the place R. 21. De tos far I mey that aware too far of from the place of the Tabernacie or Temple, might for all that keep their fealts here mentioned, though they had not Prieff and facifi-ces as at the place where the Tabernacle or Temple flood; for ces as a time place where the a socialized or a completion a sort though the Priefts were there, it was not their duty to kill the catted which were exten in their particular or private houses; therefore they that dwelf as such difficult extent could not appear, need neither forbear their fealis, nor be firmpled because they had no Priests among them to celebrate such services as were done at the Tabernacie of Temple.

P. 22. | Thei] | ver. 15. Chap. 14.5. & 15.22.
unclean. & ] There was a two-fold ceremonial uncleannesse: a lefter, which onely rested on the pairs who was ceremonially unclean, and did not communicate an uncleannels unto another; and there was an uncleannels by which another became ceremonially unclean, by touch or company; the former leffer uncleannels was no let to a fociable eating with others who them. So are we to understand, Lev. 7.15. V. 28. after thee for ever ] A man cannot better blefs his children then by his own obedience to his heavenly Father Ifa-48.18.10.

V. 30. after they be deftroyed ] That is, in time to come, when their judgment is out of mind, or little thought of, being path a great while before, elfe their destruction might be a warning againft their evil imitation of them. V. 30, enquire not ] With any purpose to make any pattern of their practice.

V. 31. burnt them ] They thought nothing too dear to offer to their Idols : whereby it appeareth how fubril and powerful Sacan is in drawing Idolaters to do fo contrary both to grace and nature,Lev. 18, 21.& 20,2. 2 King. 16.3. Jer. 32.35.

CHAP. XIII.

Verf.r. DReamer] Which, faith he, hath things revealed to

V. 2. come to pajs ] As the Prophecies of such Prophets age falle, so are their wonders fallacious and counterfeit, 2 Thess. 2. gielle, if they were true wonders, they were Gods feales, which are never fet to confirm an untruth: and therefore the Devils argument was good, (though his meaning was naught) when from a miraculous mutation of ftones into bread, Mat. 4:3. he inferred the Divinity of the Son of God. For if God had wrought a miracle to confirm the position, it must need have been assured as undoubtedly true. But many things forespoken may come to pais, and yet not by any Divine revelation: for the Devil may to a falle and idolatrous (ungerflion (as in this verse) affix a preto a raile and dolarrous juggetion (as in this verie) aim a pro-diction by his skill in natural cauties: as if a Jefuite, to per-fwade the Indians to the Popith party, should give them for a fignt of assurance, a prediction of the celipse of the Sun: In such a cafe we must bring the proposal to the tryal of the Scripture and alwayes prefer the Divine word before a natural or diabolical work V. 3. proveth jou ] Tempteth, or tryeth. See Annot. on Gen.

to know | Or (as fome render the Hebrew word) that it may be matifelt or known and difcerned to themfelves or others, or fo convicted in the fight of God, that he may without suspition of injustice punish them for their Apostasie. V. r. put to death ] When their evil hearts are made known by their evil workes, and of those evil works they are sufficients by convicted, and for them judicially condemned, Chap. 18, 20,

Jet. 14.15. Zach. 13.3.

V. 6. if thy brother] All natural affection must give place to Gods honour: and in such a case we must shew our selves rather children of God then brethren, or kinfmen, or kinfwomen, n what degree of relation foever, Chap. 17.2.

V. 9. thou fhalt firely kill bim] When his cruel heart is difovered fufficiently by his cruel work; and when of that work ie is convicted for it and judicially condemned by the Magiftrate, Chap. 17.7.
thine hand Thou who area witness to accuse him, shalt cafe the first stone at him: for the witnesses were to begin, and all the people to follow in throwing stones at the offender, Chip.

17.7.Ad.7.58. 177.1.ct.7.50.

V. 13. childr no f Belia! Belia! lignifieth without yole, and it is ufually applyed to fuch as a remost unruly, submitting to no yoke, living by no rule, and so most wicked and licentious; and therefore the word it often taken for the Devil, 2 Cor. 66. 15. and for conformity to him, wicked men may be fo named;
who are Devils incarnate. See I Sam.1.16. 2.12. & 21.24

Judg.19.22. V. 14. inquire] This is spoken chiefly to the Magistrate, who hath power to punish such faults, abomination Though Idols be set our gloriously in Images of gold and filver, and curious mixtures of colours, and their remgoin and inversand curious mixtures of colory a and their rem-pers gorgeoufly garnifiled, yer is Idolated Jonthsone and a-bominable thing in the fight of God; and fo it should be in the fight of men. Exod. 8.26.

V. 15. defreging it atterty] Which theweth, that no Idolatry is more execuable, nor more grievously to be pumished them theirs, who have formerly professed God, and have fallen off from that profession.

V. 16. an heap] Of rubbifh, a monument of ruine, never to be repaired or built up again.

V. 17. to thine hand ] Thought it come to thine hand, it shall we not ceremonially unclean at all; the latter was: yet, they not cleave of filek to ir, fo as to parry with thee; but thou shale that were thus unclean, might, in their meat, communicate cast is an exercise thing, Chap, 7.25, 26.

God hath accurfed to fuch confusion and ruine.

Verf. 1. Cut your felves] See Annot on Lev. 19.27, 28.
between your eyes] That is, in that part of the forehead which is above the partition between the eyes. for the dead That is, by occasion of the dead, as by way of la-mentation for their death, Lev. 19, 28. & 21.5. Jer. 16.6. &

V. 2. an holy people] That is, in respect they were consecrate, feparate, or set apart from other Nations, 2s the peculiar people of God, not in respect of inherent holiness, or of Saint-like life; for they are justly charged with many great rebellions, Chap.
9.throughout. Yerthat relation to God did bind them to more 9.throughout. Yet that relation to God did bind them to more holinefie then other people to take his example for a pattern of holinefis, and was to keep themat a further diffance from conformity with the corruptions of uncircumcifed Nations. Y. 3. downshafe thing! That is, not onely what mans nature abhorreth, but what Gods law forbiddeth; for when it is for-bidden by God, it should be abominable to man.

V. 4. thefe are the beafts This ceremonial law inftruceth y, 4, sneje are no weapt 1 ans ectemonia law intrudent the Lewes to feek a spiritual purende even in meats and drinks. [http://mail/] The Hebrew word [ 5th ] fignifieth the Iedler cat-tel , not lefter for age, as the lamb in respect of the theep, but in their kind, and is commonly taken for a sheep, or a goat.

V. 5. mild goat ] In other languages this creature is called by a name figuritying a Goat, and a Deer or Hart, in thort a Goathart, resembling a Goatin his hornes and hair, especially his beard, and an Hart, or Deer, in the rest of his body : of which see Plin.l.8.c.3.

Pygard So called after the Greeks Translation: the Hebrew word [D [bon] used onely in this place is variously understood: some take it for a wild beast, whose horn turns inward derflood : fomer take it for a wild beath, whole hora turns in water words his head, fome for a kind of Eagle; fome for an Unicorn; fome for a wild beath like to a Fallow-deer, or Roe-buck: but though to unic he not perfectly underflood of, as the names of many living creatures, herbes and shones are not) yet thole to whom the precept or prohibition of fuch things was given, had the right underfloading of them, (with the rule, whether it were a command or alcaveat ) if not in particular, yet by the wild exe | Such as do not fort with tame cattel, but haunt defert places, and are hurtful to man, and no way ferviceable, but when they are hunted to death. And as there are wild oxen, and wild goats, so of all forts of domestical creatures that are tame, there are of like kind which are wild. Plin. hishlib. 8. cap. 53. Chamois] Wild one: the Hebrew word Zemerr is rendred in the best English Translations by a French word, Chamok, which the beft English Translations by a French word, Chamsis, which fignificht a wild gots, a goar than hauns the rocks, and other places out of ordinary access: many Authors give it the place out of ordinary access: many Authors give it the name of cannels part, which is a centure refembling a Cannell in his head, and a Libard or Panther in Ipots, for the body of it hath white floor upon a red ground, Plans. Access the place of the plans and a Chamber of the plans access the plans access to the plans acce

V. 10. nor fins] See Annot on Lev. 11.9.

V. 9. that flyeth] See Annot.on Lev. 11.20. V. 21. dieth of it [elf] This also is to be understood of such a

V. 21. ditth of ut (e/) This allo is to be understood of such a creature as dyeth by any mishap, as falling, drowning, or any other way, so that the bloud was not let out of it, but remained in it; and it is to be understood of a clean beast: for the unclean were not to be eaten at all. See Lev. 11.39.

unto the firanger] Which is not of thy Religion; for the Converts of other Nations were bound to the same rule with the verts of other reactions were bound to the latter face with the Hebrews, Lev. 17.15. that he may eat it.] Though for the most part such creatures as die of themselves, be not wholesome food: yet sometimes the disease affecting but one principal part, as the Verrigo, or turn in the head, the rest of the body may be of use for diet.

in the neas, the rett or the body may be st the tor diet-his mothers mily See Amoro. In Exod. 3.7, 19.5, 19.6 the holy Lord God his peculiar people, engageth these of different and detent observances in thy diet, that is be not different dy the uncleannels or loolenels thereof.

V. 22. truly tythe] Chap. 12. 6,17.
V. 22. before the Lord] See Annot, on Chap. 12.7.

tythe of ] See Annet. on Chap. 26.12.

that theu mayft learn ] In the place where thefe tythes were caten, the fear of the Lord was especially taught, and to be learned the better by the solemn service there performed, and learned the better by the lotenn tervice there performed, and by dicting themfelves with especial reference to the Lords por-tion of tythe, and his ordinance in the use of a tenth to them-felves, called the second tenth: whereof see Annot. on Chap. 12.

V. 26. bestow that money Mar. 21.12. V. 27. Within thy gates Living in the same City with thee, Chap.10.9.& 12.12,19. & 18 1,2.& 26.12.Num.18.20,24.

ATIVE, ATIVE ATIVE AT THE ATIVE AT THE ATIVE AT THE ATIVE AT common, Exod. 23. 10, 11.) was laid up in store for the use speci-fied in the next verse, where the giver himself is not mentionnea in the next verie, where the giver numier is not mention-ed; nor was he to have his part in these tythes as in those obla-tions which were brought for publick scafts.

V. 29. may blesse thee ] By blessing and beneficence to others;

men may derive bleffings upon themselves. Bounty is the way to plenty, and a godly liberality a prevention of poverty. See Prov. 11.24,25.

CHAP. XV.

Versi. Nd of every seven years] Versiz. Exod. 21.2. & 23.
V. 2. shall release it] To such poor debtors as are not able to pay what is due to be paid that year, fo it appeareth by verf. 4.

This release is taken by some to be but a forbearance of payment for that year, which might be expected the year following, but if the party were as unable that year as the former, it was not then to be called for and the lender was to expect a recompence from the bleffing of God, ver. 6.

neighbour or brother By this is understood a neighbour or brother not by community of humane nature, (as fomerimes it is) but by nation : fo that one of another nation, though a profelyte or convert, if he were not a natural Jew, was not (as fome restrain the rule) to have this priviledge, who, if they had not to pay, were to make recompence by service. But it is more probapay, were to make recompence by tervice. But it is more proba-ble that his Religion gave him as much priviledge as his carnal kindred could do, and therefore that the profelyte shall be ta-ken for a neighbour and brorker, and so have as much sayour for Gods fake (if not more) as for mans.

Gods fake (if not more) as for mans.

**P. 4. Faxe when Or that the be no poor among you; That is, made poor by exading that of them which they are not able to pay; for God will have poor alwayse for the exercise of the charity of the rich yeer. It. Mat. 16.11. though private poor, rather then publick beggers; for fuch are forbidden by law, and order taken in well-governd Common-wealths that three be

V. 6. | tend to many nations] + Chap. 28.12,44. V. 8. open thy hand, &c.] Mat. 5.42. Luke 6.34. 2 Cor. 9. ver.

V. a. Gine unto thee Bring the punishment of fin upon thee, if he stand in need of thy charity by giving or lending, and thou with hold the relief, because the year of release is at hand.

with noise the rener, occasive the year of reteate is at hand.

V. 10. not grieved] Charitable beneficence must be performed with cheerfull benevolence; for God not only loveth a cheerfull giver, but boundfully rewardeth him, Vers. 18. & cheering gives, but community terraction many visit for $4, 29. & Prov. 11. 14. & 26. 27. V. 11. the poor flids sever coafe ] That is not contrary to what is faid, well. 4. See the reconcilement there. V. 12. in the [Found year] That is, as the beginning of the feveralty year, but the release of debts was at the end of the fe-venth year, verf. 1.

V. 14. liberally] As acknowledging the blefling of God upon his labour, and conscionably recompending his painfull and faithful fervice, ver. 18. trainful tervice, ver. 18.

V. 17. until maid-frozan! That is, for giving unto her as unto the man-fervant, ver. 13, 14, 15. not for boring thorow the ear, which was peculiar to a man-fervant.

V. 18. double bired! For three years fervice was the flinted.

V. 18. doubt bird! For three years fervice was the fineed eime of an hicing, fla.1s.1s. But the Hebrew fervan here fpoken of, ferved fix years, which is twice fo many, V. 1.9. nor Heave? Being sproprieted to God, they man not be utiled for the fervice or advanage of man; therefore the three and woold must be given must be Fried. The world of the first flat of the first meant, verf.20.

meant, ver1.20.

V. 20. before the Lord Chap. 12.7, 17.

V. 22. the unctean and clean Which is not lawful, if it were offered as a peace-offering; for of such onely the clean were partakers, Lev. 7.20. parasters, Levy. 20.

V. 23. and eat the blood ] This prohibition is often repeated for better caution against all kinde of cruelty, and baccufe blood was sprinkled for accoments, and so as the conference to God to be kept out. of common use. See Lev.

er von de frötigere.

CHAP:

Annotations on the fifth Book of Moles called Deuteronomie.

CHAP. XVI. Verf. 1. Moneth of Abib] Containing part of March, and he ripe, and the first ripe ears were offered at the Passeover the fecond day of unleavened bread, Lev. 2,14, & Chap. 22,10.

*Exod.13.4. & 1.2.2. V. 2. and herd] The Passeover was to be a lamb or young, kid; but this of the herd is thought by some an additional fa-crifice of a sheep or bullock offered at that time, Numb. 28.

bu name there] Where he is known and acknowledged by his worthip, as a man is known by his name.

V. 3. bread of affliction] So the unleavened bread was called. because it was to mind them of their afflicted condition, from which they fled in fuch hafte, that they could not flay till the their departure. See Anyon, on Exon. 12.85.

V. 7. units thy tents ] Or, to thy dwelling place, whether tents, or houses; and indeed this lath effecial reference to the set-led estate of the Hebrews in the Land of Canaan.

led citate of the recrews in the Lind of Canaan.

V. S. g. g. g. g. of unlearned bread were (even, but the leventh is fooken of by it felf, as having fomewhat proper and peculiar to it, and it so be understood for unleavened bread to be like unto the reft, for the ordinance is exprelly for. feven, Exod.; 2.19. Lev. 23.8. V. 9. feven weeks Beginning the next morning after the Dalleover the fickle to the corn For the reaping of the fleaf to be waved before the Lord.

V. 10. the feaft of weeks] See Annot, on Lev. 23.15.
V. 11. rejoyce] In cheerfull Feafting: whereof, see Chap.

V. 13. of Tabernacles] See Annot. on Exod. 23.16:& Lev. 23 34. & Num.19.12.

V. 10. altogether just ] Not seeming just, but so indeed; not just in part, but intirely just, in measure and degree; not just to fome, but just to all, and to all alike; and not fometimes just, but alwayes, this is altogether juft.

V. 21. grove] Chap. 12.3. See Annot. on Exod.34.13. & on Gen.31.13;

CHAP. XVII.

Verf. I. W Herein & blemifb] Chap. 15. at. Lev. 22. 16.

Mal. 1.8 & 14.

V. 2. or woman! Shewing that the crime cannot be excused by the frailty of the person: for soth sees are obliged to Gods holy prohibitions and precepts; and his justice and mercy are upon the same grounds indifferently distributed to both; Gal.

V. 3. boft of heaven] See Annot, on Gen. 2.1. are communical. Whereby he condemneth all Religion and Scruce or God, which God but had commanded; and with-all in this routine in a Figure called justics, or Linter, whereby more into there is a Figure called justics, or Linter, be underflood fwindlers, as you are communical, its to be underflood fwindlers, and comply for bidded, but with fee. net commanded] Whereby he condemnethall Religion and Service of God, which God hath not commanded; and withbe timestrineed prompages: again to simply prompages, our waits to fifth congest to write it with an in with man a pure y minimizers of year commissions, as in the feword Commandment, and in the lives written, he muit diligently read in it; nowithshanding fourth verife of this Chapter, Chap 4.19. "Lev. 10.21. Jet. 7.321, the multiplicity and greatness of the affaires of his kingly office, Judicature; and the offender condemned there was the rea-light and the offender condemned there was the rea-light and the offender condemned there was the rea-tion was done without the waters of the dier for his execution, which was done without the gates of the City, whether the death were by floning, (as here, and Ad.7.) or by crucifying, as that of our bleffed Saviour, or any other. Chap. 22.24. [halt flone him] See Annot. on Chap. 13.9.

V. 7. first upon him] Laid on his head as avowing the gailt of that man, or throwing stones at him to put him to death. See Annot, on Chap: 13.9. Lev. 24.14.

All the people] To fignification common confent to maintain Gods honour and true religion, and their detellation of fuch impiety againft him.

fo Shalt thou put] To facrifice finners to publick juffice, is the means to obtain mercy for the preservation of them that survive, * Verf. 12. & Chap. 13.5. & 19.19. & 21.21. & 22.24. &

F. 8. herecen blood and blood. This is, between those wild manner and blood to be find by violence, and blood to be find by blood to be find to be find by blood to be wherein the maw] Or, the breast; as Exod. 29.27. Lev. 7.31. Or, the maw] Or, the breast; as Exod. 29.27. Lev. 7.31. Or, the maw] Or, th party be never fo neer in alliance or kindred.

pice and plea]. Pleading for and against in the fame cause; form accusing, and found enging.

[note and love]. Whether it be of malignity, or casualty.

[out faul those] For the pitching of his Tabernack, or building his Temple.

V. j. Judge] Who shall give Sentence as the Priests coun-sel him by the Law of God, in matters of Religion, or the Ceremonial Law; but in civil controverses there were civil Magi ftrates, who were to hear and determine betwirt party and pare ty's yet lo, that if there were a feruple, or case of confesence which made the Judge doubtful what to determine, he was to confult with the Prieft, Pfal. 122, 45, Mal. 2,7. 2 Chron. 19, 8,8%.

Numb.27.21. 10 : 10 VIII. fentence of the law ] The Judge was not to give what Sentence plettled limitleft, but according to the law; and if the Cafe were fuch as was not already ruled by the Law, God was to be confulted with, and refolution to be made by his decining to the Law, God was to be confulted with, and refolution to be made by his decining the Cafe with the Cafe was to be confused by his cafe to the Cafe with the Cafe was the Cafe with the Cafe was the Cafe with the Cafe was the Cafe was the Cafe was the Cafe with the Cafe was the

which they fled in fuch hatte, some view which they fled in fuch hatte, some view of an exact 12.10.

V. 4. and its fraging I has is not meant punchally for the period flower of the fulling of the Patch Lanb, for they departed not cill the next day, but with fone latitude of time: ar their man, Exch. 44, 23, 24, he that contains coully diokeyeth him. According, or coming forth is taken for their perparation for the full that they are the formal period of the period for the period f lar atans.

V. 15. not fit a firanger! Not one of mother Nation of Religions, left he change ruse Religion to Idolatry, and bring the both into flavery and find Chapt. 13. Jersjo. 21.

V. 16. no multiph boyle J. Nov. affect to be Mafter of too many horfes, left they disuld occasion him or his people to have many nones, set they invote occasion namorius people to make too much to do with the idolations Egyptians, to go or faith Courters to Egypt; where there was great there of fuch cared, Y King, to, 15/18; the shundaries whereof might occasion rook much confidence in their number and firefight. See Els. 31.12

Bzek. 17.1 5. hathfaid ] Not in express words, but implicitely, and by confequence, when he fleewed himfelf much offended at those who would have made them a Captain to lead them back into Egypt.

Would 144,11.

that way] He speaketh not of any particular way, but of that way (which soe veries) which leaded in unto Egypt: for in this way (which soe veries) which leaded in unto Egypt: for in this case the matter of moment lyeth not in the journey, but in the end of it.

end of it.

V. 17. militylywirer? If Kings may not, much lefts may their Subjects; fince it is of more moment that they have children then interious perions, and though the Partiarith had more wives then one far one; it was not according to the first inflution of Marriage. See Annot on Geith, 119, It was never the children of the ch allowed by Gol, though for a time tolerated, upon reasons which contern hot our times. And this might the rather be forbidden to a King, because of the power of his example upon the bidden to a King, because of the power or nis example upon an manners of his people.

granty multiphy I Thus is, immoderately addite himself to mult-tiphy goldon or filter; for coverounfies it a milderwous, filt ind man of great power, in a King efpecialty, finetic wifffor re-ward attempt, admit, and uphold any wickedness; and oppose and fuppretia any good man or good cutif, Edn. 17.

King ought to write it with his own hand : but by whomfoever Sam. 10.25.

V. 19. read it] Josh. 1.8. Pfal. 119.98. Chap. 31. 11. V. 20. not lifted up] Not fo lifted up above his Subjects, as to forget they are Brethren, but to make his Government rather loved by lenity, then feared or hated by rigour, I King 12.7. Dan. 5.20.

CHAP. XVIII

Verf. 1. Made by first Which were partly burned for Gods-the Levites, Levit. 7 33, 34. as in the right of the Lords inheri-tance, who har referred that portion for the Forvice of Jaims, fell, and the fuffendance of his fervants, Num. 18. 20. Deur. 10.

lell, and the luttenance of ms lervants, Nunn. 8-10. Deut. 10.
9. John. 13.14.35. Ezzk 44.35. Cor. 9.13.
V.a.: the Lord is their inheritance T fiery must look to the Lord for their portion, and final find it in him by his right in all, and his farout to them, whose riches and beneficence will supply.

V.7. es bis breifren] Though they artend the fervice of the

Sanctuary by course, years any would willingly offer his service | part, their failing of possession was not Gods, but their own who was not bound unto it by his turn . he was to be admit-

V. 8. like portions] For their diet out of the revenues of the Tabernacle, while they attend at it, who at other times were maintained by the tythes; wherein fome conceive they that did not perform such a service in the Sanctuary, had neither any sustenance thence not somuch in tythes as their brethren who underwent the fervice in their turns.

fale of his patrimony] Which he was to keep, for if he did not spend the monie he might redeem it at any time. Levit.

V. 10. paffe through the fire | Either as a superflitious pur ging, by passing between two fires, or by an idolatrous factifidivination] Taking upon them to foretel things to come, Micah 3. 11. Without any ground of reason or Divine reveobserver of times] Superfliciously making difference of dayes or times, good or bad, as lucky or unlucky, an inchanter ] Is fuch an one as uleth longs and verles, or other words or ceremonies to produce supernatural effects. V. 11. Or a [barmer] A Charmer is the fame in effect with a wizard] Is the same with the Diviner.

a regard 1 is the same with the Diviner.

a Necommuno! One that feeke he the dead: 2s I Sam. 28.

V. 14. Init was fulfired! Hich. It is the Lard thy Gad hath gives the : that is, Prophete and Individuors to teach thee, that thou may fi not need to feek to Diviners for infludions or direction.

V. 18. a Prophet like! This is meant principally of Clarift, Act. 3, 22. berwist whom and Mose though there are many remarkable conformities, as Numb. 12.3. Expd. 32. 32. compared with Marth, 11, 29, Joh, 2. 17, & Deut. 5. 5. Gal. 3.19. pared with March. 17.29, 100, 2-17, & Deut., 5, 300 al. 19. with March. 2-5 & Expel. 1. with March. 2-yet wishall God promises the reasoning and the second march of the property whom his people were to be instructed from time to time. In that they should not be affrighted with God speaking to them as formerly they had been.

as tormerly they had been.

V. 19. I will require it of bim] That is, I will call him to an account, and bring him to punishment for it.

V. 23. if the thing follow not] For it the Prophecie were of God, it must need some to palle, for he cannor lie, nor be deceived; though it follow not to fay, the thing is come to palle, therefore it is the Lord that speaketh; for they that use to foretell, may among many untruths light upon fome truth: as if a blind man shoot many arrows at a marke, he may sometimes blind man those many arrows at anarke, he may fometimes hit it, though it be rather by chance then any good cunning; and fometimes God may for trial, [Chap13.3.] in judgement guithing the people by migliguidanes, fuffer it occome to palfe. See Annot. on Chap. 13. 2.

nath of quid of him] Though he forestel fearful things, thou that not be attaid of him, fince he is, a falle Prophet, and, his predictions plant on trace effect.

CHAP, XIX.

Verf. 1. THeir cities ] On the other fide Jordan : for on the one fide there were three appointed before, Chap.

4. v. 41. See Numb 35. 14. within the land, (chough now precisely in the midd!) That is, within the land, (chough now precisely in the midd!) fo that from all para there may be convenient recourie to long of them. The three, Cities were so be ofequal dilatace one from another, and as it is probably conceived, the distance was triangular thus, like the Capital Greek letter delta A.

V. 3. prepare thee a way For commodious passage unto them; which some think was paved, and had markes of direction, that they which shed towards them might normisse their way, nor be hindered, if there were need to make an ha-ever flager] Which kil'd against his will, and bare no hatred In his heart before.

V. 4. ignovantly] At unawares, or unwillingly. See Num-

V. 5. and live] That murder be not committed upon murder, by flaying of him in weathful revenge who flew another against his will.

V. 7. for thee] He speaketh to the people as to one man, or

v. 7. for inter] it is present to the please are wine warm, so to Moles, as in their names, and for their tile.
v. 8. mlarge this early When thou good over Jordan, and are posified on the whole Land of Canaan, to give maje thy father? I Which he promide to thy fathers to give thee, are to Abraham, Gen. 15.7. to Haac, Gen. 26.3. and V. 9. If thou keep] The promife of the Land of Canan was but conditional, and therefore if the people did not their

Chap, xxi.

fhalt thou adde In thy enlarged portion verf. 8, which if it be without the Land of Canaan, the Cities of refuge shall be there : but me read not of those three Cities more added to the former fix . for the enlargement of the dominion of the Ifraelites in the time of David and Solomon was not formuch in actual possession, as a tributary dominion: in which case . ( if is were none otherwise ) the Cities of refuge were of no use to the people of the Jews: nor was this therefore an idle ordi-nance; for if the people had kept covenant with God, he had enlarged their borders, not only by conditional subjection by tribute, bur by actual policifion.
V. 11. if any man have, co. Numb. 35, 26, 21, &c.

V. 12. of his citie Not where the man-flayer hath taken Sanctuary for faferie, but where the flain man dwelf.

V. 13. put away guilt] See Annet. on Chap. 17.7. V. 14. land-markel See Annot. on Chap. 27, 17. Prov. 22.

V. 15. at the mouth] An Enallage of number: that is, of mouth for mouthes; Or, though the feveral witnesses, they must agree as if they had but one mouth

V. 17. before the Lord Gods prefence is where his Ministers are affembled to do according to his commandements.

CHAP. XX.

Vers. 1. VV Hen thou goeff ] Which is to be understood of a warrantable warre, which require it a just caufe, and lawful authority , and great necessitie , when peace will not be entertained, verf. 12.

W. 2. the Prieft] The Prieft, shough he warred not with his hands, did animate to the battel with his tongue.

V. 4. goeth with you ] That is, is prefent to defend you with his grace and power.

V. 5. not dedicated it ] For when they entered first to dwell in an houfe they gave thanks to God, acknowledging that they had that benefit by his grace, and it may be alle feelted with finging of Plalmes at their first possession of it, which was a kind of dedication of it to the use intended. See the title of the thirtieth Pfalme.

V. 6. planted a vineyard Or garden, or any fuch like thing, which makes men unwilling to go to warres : for as in all the fervices done to God, we are to bring a good will to the work; fo especially in warre God requireth a most chearful and cordia refolution to fight his battets, not eaten of it] Heb. not made it common. For the law concerning a vineyard was, this for the first three years the fruit of it should not be eaten: the fourth year it was offered to God a and the fifth it was common to the owners and to others. See

Lev. 19.23.
V. 8. faint as well as ] Commardile is carching, especially v. 8. fam when as J Comments is carefung, especially in such as should be leaders unto others; infemuch, that some hold that an army of Harts led by a Lyon, would be more valorous and victorious then an army of Lyons led by an

V. 10. proclaim peace For though nothing fcom more contrary to peace then war; yet war is not to be undertaken, if peace may be obtained without it: and the end of war should be peace; and therefore David enquiring of Uriah concerning Josh his army, and the war; asked him of the peace of the war: fo it is in the Original, a Sam. 11.7. But this is not to be un-derstood of the Cities of the Land of Canaan, for they were to be more feverely dealt withal ver. 16, 17. and for flewing them more favour Ifrael is blamed, Judg 1.28. but of Cities without the Land of promife, verf. 15.

V. 14. women, and the little ones ] The weaknelle of the fex in the one, and of age in the other, made them objects of compaffion; when men, who were more able for doing, were more ob-noxious to the fuffering of violence; yet fometimes the flaughter was to be general, when God did particularly prefcribeit, women and children not excepted, Joh. 6.21.

V. 15. Thus [balt then do] In sparing women and children,

v. 15. I mis fout 1988 as j in paring women and children, and taking the floyl, as werf. 14.
of thefe nations ] Which are after mentioned, ver. 16.17.
V. 16. fave alive nations ] If they refule conditions of peace, when they are tendered unto them; this flaughter is to be un; derstood, not of beasts, but of mankind, Josh. 11.14.

V. 17. the Hittites | See Annot on Chap. 7.1.
V. 19. is mans life | This is spoken of the fruitful tree, which ministred food for mans sustenance; and so is called mans life, by a figure called a Metonymie, whereby the cause is put for the

CHAP. XXI.

Verf. 1. SLain] This Law declareth how chary the Lord is of Spilling mans blood, how displeasing the shedding of it is to him; and how dangerous to others that have their curbe his concupifcence in this monethly for bearance; and in hearts and hands defiled with it; when a whole City or Count that time he might be better acquainted with her disposition. trey may be charged with one mans murder, and brought to and so he might the better judg, whether she were sit or worthy punishment for it, if they do not folemnly teftifie their clearnes and it be not known? Upon diligent enquiry after the bloudguilty person.

V. 2. they thall measure 1 If there be any doubt concerning the diftance or neernels of it to the place of the flain.

V. z. which is next | Since the guiltie person may be most V. 5, *** DWICH M MEAT! SINCE the gottle period may be most fix to lurke there, or thence to have come co do the murther; or there to have connectived or plotted the execution of it; or be-audic they that were next, it is like, night have the first notice of this wicked act, and had therefore the advantage of other places for a Resonable purities and apprehension of the mur-roke] The like is faid of the facrifice of the red Cow, Numb. 19.2. which as it was a type of Christ had a furable fignification unto it. See the Annot, onthat place : but here being killed for or in flead of the murderer, which should have sutfered if he had been taken; it may fignifie and unruly wrath-full man, not subject to the voke of reason or conscience, and fo a foone of Belial, that is, one without yoke : See Annot, on Chap.13, v.13.

V. 4. rough valley] A place which of it felf was to be abhorred, to make the thought of murther more horrible. The red, to make the thought of mutther more horrists. Inc Hebrew word Mahhaf, is pur formeitters for a brook, or for a valley, Infignifieth properly a declive place, or a place of defeart, where waters usually fall, and once together, although there be no water in it; and the word Ethan; tendring here by rangh, fignifieth from; a satisfier fortified by hills count about it, or having hard and frong things in it, as rocks and flones.

having hard and ftrong things in it, as rocks and trones, firite off I Signifying that the murderer deferved to be for utiled, and that they, it they had him, would do capitall executed and that they, it they had him, would do capitall executed the state of the sta

v. 5. by their word] See Annot. on Chap. 17.11.
v. 6. wash their bands] Murder desileth the hands with bloud, Isa. 1.15. and washing the hands was a ceremony of clearing a mans felf from the guilt of it, as we fee in Pilate, Matth,27.34. V. 7, this bloud] By this it feems either the flain man was brought were the Heifer was killed, or the Heifer to the place where the flain man lay. neither have our ] We neither faw the deed when it was done, nor knew the living man that flew the flain.

V. 8 Be merciful! This was the prayer which the Priest made in the audience of the people.

lay not invocent blond ] That is, the bloud of the flain. But if they were not guilty of it, what need they pray for mercy; or that the guilt might not be imputed unto them ? Because it was not enough not to have their hands or hearts polluted with fo hainous a crime , but they must so far cleer themselves from it, as in this manner, to thew their deteffation of it, elfe they were to be reputed, and deferved to be punished as guilty, though not in fo high a degree as the murderer.

not in io nigh a degree as the murderer.

V. 9. So shalt thou put away So speaketh Moses to the Priest, shewing that thus they might acquit themselves of the guilt of that sack, which otherwise in some degree would be charged upon them : See Annot. on Chap. 17. v. 7.

V. 12. [have ber head] Which may be taken as a token of mourning for her finall parting from her parents, verf. 13. whom filement, which was onely a frandalous looking on the dead by that ceremonic the lamented, as to her utterly loft and dead, especially if they or either of them were killed in the war; where is permitted unto her to mourn after the manner of her Country ; or her head might be shaven for the reason alledged in the next Annotation.

pare her nails ] The Original hath no more but [ she shall mike her nails ] which some render That she shall make or suffer them to grow, or, let her nourish her nails; and then the meaning may be, That the deformitie of her shaven head and long nailes should allay the affections of him that took her, that he might not rake her to wife, unless the should shew her felf a true Convert to the right Religion. But most read the words pare her nailes, and the Originall word being rendred (as it is by fome) make, or dreffe; by dreffing of her nailes may be meant paring of her nailes; and fo it might be to admonish her to put off her former manners, and to betake her felf to a contrarie courfe; which is further implied by putting off the attire of her captivity, (according to the cultome of changing the garment in mourning , 2 Sam. 14.2. See Josephus Antiq.1. 4 c. 8.) for the must revolt from her former Religion , and profess the Religion of the Hebrews, elle the was not to be taken to wife, Exod.34 16.

V. 13. bewail ber father] See Annot, on verf.12, afull moneth] That time was observed in mourning for Aa-to be his, or no.

thy wife] This was permitted onely in the wars, otherwife they could not marry ftrangers; nor fo neither, but by fuch an especial allowance as this is.

V. 14. no delight in her] If he were actually married he had not liberty to leave her, though he hated her, Chap, 22,13,19. but if upon some purpose of marriage, or intemperate desires, he had lien with her, (which is meant by humbling her, which though mentioned without reproof, is not allowed) and had not yet married her, the was of a captive to be made a free woman again.

let her go whither [he will] Heb. thou [halt fet her free to her foul. That is, give her power to do according as her foul de-fireth; as in fervirude, the foul may be faid to be fub ied to the higher power, Rom, 13.1.

V. 14. have two wives In this supposition plurality or more wives then one, is not allowed, being contrary to the first inflitution of marriage, Gen, 2, 24. to which our Saviour reduceth the Pharifees for resolution of a matrimonial question, Matth. 19. 4.5. See Annet. on Gen. 4.19. but presupposing the practice, he refolveth the cafe concerning the first-born fon of the hated wife, which was held also in second marriages.

V. 17. double portion] As if a man have two fons, his estate being divided into three parts, the first born was to have two: the other, one; and if he two many fons, he is to have two; the other, one; and if he two many fons, he is to have double to them, as he must have a third part for their fixth, a fourth fortheir eight, a fifth for their tenth throughout.

the right of the fifth own he his! Except he deferve to be de-

if this chaftening will either not be received, or if thereby he be not bettered, then when all other means were fruitlefs, and hopelefs, the Magistrate was to be appealed unto.

V. 19. lay bold on bim Or, cause him to be apprehended. V. 20. [Jubborn] Contumecy, or flubbornness in a diffolute person shows he is incorrigible, therefore he deserveth to dye by the Law.

by the Law.

a glutton] Heb. an eater, or devourer of fielh, and a drinker, or carosfer of wins: Because usually men are most excessive in such kinde of meat and drink; though there may be, and is gluttony and drunkenness committed in other meats and

V. 21. flone him? Which death was also appointed to blaf-V. 11. nowening! Which estain was also appointed to blain-bemers and Idolaters; forthat to difolely the parents, and to be flubborn against their authority, is an horrible sin. V. 23. all night] For Gods Law by his death being satisfied, he required nor that there should be still a visible monument, or remembrance of his wrath: See Josh. 10. 26. but ir was otherwise in the case of Saul and his fonnes, 2 Sam. 21.

accursed] A temporal curse it is to all that undergo it, Gal. 2, 13. which is seconded with an eternal malediction, on such as die in their fins without repentance.

that thy land be not defiled ] That there might not be a visible monument of an accurred thing to remain: there was a demalefactors, whereby fome might take occasion to murmur at the justice done upon them, and firangers might think the worfe of Gods people for having fuch malefactors among them. Or, by these words, [that thy land be not defiled] may be meant that great offenders are to be put out of all manner of communion of men, being indeed vile as dung, Plal. 83. 10. which was to be covered in the earth, Deut.23.13.

CHAP. XXII.

Verf. 1. Hide thy felf ] Or, make as if thou fawelt it not.
V. 2. not night | Shewing that brotherly benevolence must be shewed, not onely to them that dwell neer unto us, but alfo to them that are far off : yea in this cafe juflice and charity must be offered to an enemy, Exod. 23.4.

V. 3. with his asse And so likewise with his Horse; for under these creatures particularly named , the cattell or creatures of other kindes are comprehended fo far as they have reference to the good or hurt of their owners.

V. 5. The woman [hall not] For this prohibition there may be many reasons: as, because it was against the ordinance of God, for distinction of sexes, which would make men effemia nate, and women immodeft; and might be occasion, or give opportunity to fome to commit finnes against nature ; and it is ren, Numb 20.39. and for Mofes, Deut, 34.8. but withall there observed that the worst and wickedest fort of men, have been might be somewhat more in this matter, as that the man that most noted for wearing the apparel of women; as Caligula, took her might learn to be moderate in his desires, and to Sardánapalus, Clodius, and others.

Chap.xxiv.

V. 6. dam with the young ] If God deteft crucky done to birds, how much more to man, made according to his Image See Aunot, on Levit, 22,28.

V. 8. battlements Their houses were so built that they might walk upon them, 2 Sam. 11, 2. Matth. 10, 27, and the battlements which were borders of each fide, were to be fo fixong, not be like to fall over them.

V. 9. nat for The renour of this Law is to teach the people to walk in fimplicity, and not to be curious of new inventions : as allo to warne them against mixtures in Religion and manmers, with other Nations.

defied | Or, corrupted, Which may be understood of a ceremonial defilement afor the neglect of a ceremonial Law caufed at leaf a exemponial uncleanness, both personal and real : and by these mixtures, the fruit might be physically corrupted, either by an ill temperament or weak neurithment of them, efpecially if they were fown too thick or that the ftronger feed fucked the juice from the weaker.

ed the jujec from the weaker.

V. 10. see and an afr] Which might be partly because of their unequal strength, and statute betwixt them, which might prove a pressure to the lower and weaker; but withal (if not principally) to admonish the people against unmeet mixtures, and matches of the clean, and unclean; the oxe was a clean creature, the afs unclean.

V. XI. of wollen and linen | See Annot. on verf. 9. & Levit.

V. 12. ffluges] See Annot. on Numb. 15.39.

F. 17. the cleth] Meaning the thest wherein were the figns of her virginity, which are of the colour of a maidens bluth; yet for the clearing of her innocency, the Elders (not the yonger fort) might have the view of them; for thereby (as Physikans affirm) the truth or fallhood of the sufpition of her former chastity might be discerned, Vales. de facra philos. c. 25.
V. 18. chastife him? Either by strokes, or very sharp words at the leaft, befides the americament, verf. 19.

V. 19. to the father | For the fault of the child, redounded to the shame of the parents, therefore he was recompensed fince he was flandered.

not put her away] If the be content to continue with him as

V. 22. both of them dye. In adultery there is divers times the concurrence of (eyera) (us of hainous guilt; as of yow-breaking, of theft, whereby one mans feed may come to inherit another mans effate; besides the soulness of defiling the marriage bed with lawlefs luft; and therefore it was punifhed with death in both fexes, without pattiality to either.

V. 24. bis neighbours wife Because the was betrothed. The was a wife in right, though not in fact; for the murual flipulation or promife makes the marriage bed, not the lying together which is but a confequence upon it, and a confirmation of it, because she evied not? For her filence in such a case, was a sign

17. 26. (a is this matter? By violence on the one fide, and innocence on the other.

V. 28. lay hold on her] This argueth violence, and enforcement, which geeth beyond inticement, and so it is a different case from that of Exod. 22.16.

Cale tran that or seed 22:16.

17. 29. Hoy bright! See Annot, on Exod. 22. 17.

Ball he bit miss? I That is, if her father give his consent to the martiage, as in the place fore-cited.

17. 30. his fathers miss? He hall not lye with his stepmenter, meaning thereby, all other degrees are forbidden, Levic. 18. 8.

discover his fathers that ] That is, uncover or remove that covering, which his father onely had power to make bare, or

CHAP. XXIII.

[ Jounded] In one or both of them : for the word is of the fingular number. Or, is an shall not enter ] Shall not be accepted, or admitted as one belonging to the Common-wealth of Ifrael, or hear any office in the Church or State of Ifrael, Levit, 22.21, 22. Nehem, 13.1, 2, 3. Ifa. 56. 3.

V. 2. baftard] Some reftrain this to a baftard, that is an alien from the Nation of the Ifraclites, who though he would embrace the Religion of the Ifraclines was not to be admitted to their holy affemblies : howfoever, whether the law be made to their holy attembers; newtoryer, was use is see by moso of aliens or home-born, it was an admonition of chadity; in re-gard of the infany and contempt of fuch a polluted pofterity. V. 3: tents generation] Inclusively, to that until the grand-child of the eleventh defeont, there was no admittion of the off-fpring of a baffard into the holy Congregation. for ever ] Some read, and for ever, as an aggravation of their abousinaties | Except in case of necessity, as for necessary rejection, as though that of the bafterd, vers. a. were too little; and therefore to thew the condition of the Ammonite and Moabite more abominable to the Ifraelites, for ever, is added to the exclusion fore-mentioned. Or the meaning may be, that this ordinance against the Moabites to be cast off to the tenth generation was to last for ever, which is thought to be made rather against the men then against the women: for Modbitish wives (if their husbande were Ifraelites, as it was in the cafe of Booz and Ruth, Ruth 4, 10.) had more acceptance among If aelitifh women, then a Moabitifh husband had among the men of Ifrael, if he had married an Ifraelieish wife.

V. 4. met jou not] Heroby he condemneth all that further not the children of God in their vocation : not onely they that lo hurt, but they that do not good to G.d: people are displeafing to him, and he will for their omiffion of observance, repay them with vengeance.

V. 7. thy brother ] An Edomite is brother to an Ifraelite, as Edom, or Bfau (for he was called both) was brother to Ifrael not abbor an Egyptian The reason rendered is, because the not abbu an appropriate the reason renered is, uceasing the fifractices were firangers in their land; though they endured hard bondage there, yet at their first coming they were very kindly entertained, Gen. 47.6. and at their going out of figypt, Exod. 11.3. & 12. 35, 36, and it was more agrecable to the goodnels of their Religion to forget the offences, then the favours of their Land-lords.

V. 8. third generation] After their first profession of the II-raelitish Religion, if their fathers having renounced Idolatry and received Circumcisson, their children persist in the profesfion of the fame.

non or the lame.

V. 9. then been thee] A Souldier should be a Saint, and precifely abstain from all forts of fin, as a dying sick man, since (carrying his soul in his hand, Judg. 12.3, 1 Sam, 19.5.) he is in danger of death every flep, and confequently of damnation, if he dve in fin unrepented of.

he dye in fin unrepented or, V. 10. one of the samp] That was for the people, but if a Prieft were ceremonially unclean, it was enough for kim (as fome affirm) to go out of the Temple or Tabernacie, and Coure of either: and if any were unclean before, he was to keep out of the Camp, or Temple, &c. and not to enter until he were cleanfed by withing, verf. 11. See Num. 19.
V. 12. whither then [ball ge] For the necessities of nature.

V. 12. whither then fleating. For the necessities of nature.
V. 13. a paled upon thy neuron. Or; biglies by weapon, or, amang by weapon! Which, what it was may be known by the use to which it is put in this verse; which knewth, that Goda people should be pure, both in foul and body: and by this suriosity concerning bodily defilements, he meant to admentish them to be for much more curious of the cleanest of the foul, as it is more excellent then the body.

V. 14. malketh in the midfi Because the Ark, which was the sign of Gods especial presence, was placed in the midst of the Camps of Ifraci.

V. 14. not deliver This is meant of the Heathen, who fled from their Mafters cruelty especially, and embraced true Reli-from their Mathers cruelly especially, and embraced true Religion: who were not to be given up to their Mahers, until they had given over their wrath, and were reconciled unto them.

V. 18, bire of a where Hetchy is forbidden that any gain of evil things should be applyed to the service of God, Mie. 1. 7;
but the Pope takes tribute of whores, and Papish hold the price of whoredom to be bass, but not unjust.
of a drg. Happy because the impudence of lust is compated to that of dogs, wherefore such as were most shaneless were called Guick from dows. Some make into the theory of Some called Cynicks from dogs : fome take it to be the price of fome dog of most use, let out for hire to breed others of the same race; or of the price of the first of the litter, which was neither to be offered nor redeemed, as the firftling of an Affe was, Exod-

V. 19. upon ufury See Annot. on Exed. 22.25. V. 20. unto a firmer? This was permitted for a time, partly, for the hardnesse of their hearts, as bils of divorce; but by a ftranger was to be underflood, one rather of another religion, then of another nation; for if he were a convert to the Mraelitish Religion, he was to be accompared as a brother, Levit, 25.

Bidle thee I If thou thew thy charity to thy brother , God will declare his love towards thee.

V. 21. fin in thee] If thou shoulds not pay, or perform what thou nait vowed.

V. 23. heep and perform! If the vow be lawful and godly.

V. 24. heep bours vineyard! Orchard, or Olive-yard, being hired to labour in it, or fuch as occasionally passe by them, or through them, if necessity urge them, they may take some re-freshing; as the Disciples did passing through corn-fields which they fowed not, Matth, 12.1.

put any into thy weffel To bring home to thy house,

CHAP. XXIV.

Yerls. Some uncleanness Nor of adultery, as fome take it:
Sfor if that could be proved the was to die for it: and if it were doubtful, the was to be tryed by the water of jealoufie, Numb 4. but some bodily uncleannesse, as of leprose, or some other disease which is an impediment to contentment or fome other success which is no imposiment to contentment in her: To chefe, as caules of divorce, are added by fome, barrenness, madnels, flubornness, repreaching infolency foward her husband, which is an uncleanness of the minde, or any other things which dispose him rather to loath them then to love her. Bereby God approveth nor the fickle-ness of mens sufficients, in a light-or causificit teaving of their mytes, Mail. 3ct. but premittents a paring, for prevention of danger through delike, Marth. 196,7,89,9. In this Bill, (which was a fishedule, or writing) begreve her a release of the bands of was a fishedule, or writing begreve her a release of the bands of whom he would, the form which we have a release in the burstands when he would; the first first house arther a pit burstands of choice to give the wife a bill of divorce, then at the wives to give choier to give the wife a bill of divorce, then at the wives to give one coth chushed, which was not allowed among the Jewes; as Jefsphus affirmeth, Antiq. I. 15 cpp. II.

**P. 4. may not the the regat as the his wife, after that fire it defined. That is, put sway for fome uncleanneds, or if the were not when by the Econd man as a wife, her lying with him was an unsleanned; and that a putting sway for a since only, might here were not supported to the support of the property of the property of the supported by the dealers in the bit hand of the ray, or clumb ther that was divorced, he me has been defined forgress to dura was him wife. See Malled, a. Lee the left forgress is our away him wife. See Malled, a. Lee the left forgress is one was well as well. pur away his wife. See Malach, 2.14, 15, 16. Yer before the was taken to the hed of another, be might take her again, but was piken to the hed of another, he might take het again, but not after, theologic he were again divaried, early site land to find 1 fluch lightness and lewdness findule be practiced, is voud draw aguit of fin upon the people, and a curie upon the land, Pall 10734.

**Y. 5. 2010 and pikenful Which may casel him to break off V. 5. 2010 and pikenful Which may casel him to break off V. 5. 2010 are similarly similarly with the people of the people of living, when increoor scenies me use in two verse. V. 7. Iteriang. See Anno. on Exed. 2.1.6. V. 8. of the plague of typuse? Which thou makel incur by contempor of their authority, or contumney against it, who are fet over thee, whether in the Church, or in the Common weal.

both he cannot grind, ) not any thing whereby a man getteth his living, which therefore is called his life in this verice.

See 2 Chron. 26.19. Numb. 12. 10.
. V. 10. not ge inte his boufe] Although thou mayst appoint

V. 10. ms go sine bis bus(s) Although thou may appoint what to have, yet thou that receive for a pledg, what he may finate, and will willingly pare with.

V. 12. they will be study library ledg is here mean; is plain by the following werfe: and by this God admonified the lenders take library ledge, study at all) as he floud into need often to return, and reliume.

V. 13. Sim gett down) See Annor, on Exod. 12.16.

Wafer the Lard J As done with respect to God presence, and knowledg: shough the mybe unthapsfully yet God will not forget it; but accept it as an a 6 of conformity to his own law, and so far settlement as merching to man as arithmet. and fo far rightcous; and withall as merciful to man, as righteous before God.

V. 16. The children Which is a law for man to follow, but V. 10. The children Which is a law for man country, put God, to whom all, both parents and children, are guilty of finne, and who is fupreme Lord of life and death, is not bound, unto it, See Annot, on Exod. 20, verf. 5. & Joh. 7. 24. & 2 Sam. 25.

veri, 22.

V. 17. the firanger] Who being unknow, and without friends, was molt like to be wronged by falle acculations, and other hard measure; therefore God hath so much the more care of their comfortable condition, as men have the lefs.

V. 18. Therefore I command thee] To do juffice, and to fliew mercy to ftrangers, to the fatherless and widow; of opprefling whom thou houldeft be the more apprehenfive, because thou whon thou housest we the more apprenentive, secaute mou thy felf walt oppreffed in Egypt, and thou must show thy felf thankful for thy deliverance, by charitable offices toward those that need: for he will not judg them mindful of his benefits,

CHAP. XXV.

Verfix. B sates] When the crime deferverh not death. D V. 3. foury [hipes] Every fault, that deferred nor death, was not to be punished with fourty firings, for correction must be done according to the proportion of the fault, verf, a, but the punishment of any fault (which was not capital) must not exceed the number of sourty stripes, of which the Jewes need to abate one, lest they should by miscounting go one beyond : yet fomerimes it is like fome of them did not out one personal yet commune of the control of the control of mercy make that flint, but out of cruelty, that they might begin their accompt again the foomer; it might be fo with Saint gin their accompt again the looner; it might be to with bank 2 and, when as we read, 2 Cor. 11, 24, the five times received lourty firipes (ave one, (a) it is probable for preaching five times against their minds) the keeping back of that one, might bring thirty nine more upon his back the fooner, and fo for that one he might have one hundred fifty and fix: to cruel are the mer-cies of some wicked men. Some think these stripes were given with a whip of three leather thongs, wherewith, having given thirteen blower, they made accompt they had given thirty nine fripes, which was one leffe then the just numbers for three times thirteen is thirty nine.

V. 3. vile] As if he were rather a flave then a brother, or rather a beaft then a man; and by use of extreme tyranny in this kind, mens hearts might be bardned in cruel contempt of this sind, mens meater migut ne manura in struction concurpt to those whom they should love apid effect, hairing the sin, and not furting the sinner, but so as may rend to his greater good, Or, he might, showen wite by garaginity of pain, falling down to the ground as half dead, or by loosing the liganques of the re-tentive faculty.

V. 4. preadeth out ] There were many waits to bring the P. A. Beagette apr. J. Intern were many wates to out in the grain out of the ear of Corp., as the thing findruments, a Sam. 24, veril. 22, bearing with a flaff, bringing the wheel over the cat, 162, 38, veril 52, 38, and here by creading of the out, (which was in the forcoodly with the Jones, Half, 102, 115, but with Romannes, Greeks, and other Nations, Nava de re Rushies, 1, 1, cap. 12. Columella de re Ruftica l. 2. c. 21. mholwhile he was la-boured was not to have his mouth muzzled, but might feed himself while he prepared ford for man; and had as much li-berry to his meat, as his Mafter had surfocicy over his work. Saint Paul applies this to the maintenance of the labourers in Salit rate appose the to the maintenance of the Apounces in the Golpel. See 1 Cor. 9.

1. 5. ber husbande breiber] Or next kinfman, for the Heatew most glabband, fignifierth new onely a natural brother, but allow kinfman; for the may be that it is not meant that the matural brother should marry his brothers wife, bur some other of the kindred, who was in that degree which might marry ; yet it the sinace down to was in that cagece which might marry 1 year, may be a natural brother, as Dang was to Er: See Annot, on Gen, 38, ver. 64, and if there were many brothers, this rule was, when as one died, fucceffively to be observed by the furviving brother; but this was to have place onely where the brother died altogether childles; for if he had no fon, but a daughter, there was another rule to be observed , for continuation of the name and family of the deceased, Numb. 36. ver. 2,3. so that her sides the case of extreme necessity, when the brother died altogether childles, the Negative precept, Levit, 18.16. & 20,21. stood in force.

V. 6. in the name] That is, in the flead, for it was not ne-ceffary, that the name of the first husband should be put upon the fonne of the fecond; for the fonne of Boaz by Ruth was not called Mahlon, the name of her first husband, but Obed. See Ruth, 4.10, &c.

Ruth.4.10.8CC. V. 9. loof bis [hose] Looling of the those and giving it, Ruth.4.7.8. was accretionly of alienation of land, whereby the feller, refigning up his land to the buyer, and etender of his those: figuilying, that nor he, but the buyer had the right to tread on that ground from that time forward. In this case the remove your used, but with another interaction, which was been considered to the third with the control of the unknown buther, who was the control of the unknown buther, who was the second of the unknown buther who was the second of the unknown buther who was the second of the unknown buther when the second of the unknown buther when the second of the unknown buther who was the second of the unknown buther was the second of the unknown buther who was the second of the unknown buther when the second of the unknown buther was the second of the unknown buther when the second of the unknown buther was the second of the unknown buther when the second held 42 worthy to go barefoor, in that he would not uphold the name of and raife up feed unto his brother.

foit on his face Or, on the ground before him, as in contempt and defiance of him.

that will not build up] By raising him iffue to uphold his family. See Annot. on Exod. 1. 21.

mily. See Annot, on Exoc. 1, 21.

V. 12. cut off ber band 3 Because by such an act the may main the man, and utterly disable him from being a father; and because the sheweth her self to be a very imputent woman, thankful for thy deliverance, by charishle offices covard those that needs for he will not judg them mindful of his benefits, where no tenedicial unto others.

V. 19. nat ge again to field he! A mere full oblivion is to be preferred before a jult remembrance. This care of he poor the probable, Levin 19.9, wherein men were to be for free, that the probable, Levin 19.9, wherein men were to be for free, that the probable, Levin 19.9, wherein men were to be for free, that the probable, Levin 19.9, wherein men were to be for free, that the probable of the p ed by Saul, about four hundred and fifty years afterward, I Sam. 15. 2, 3. and further purfued by the Simeonites in Hezekiahs dayes, I Chron. 4, 42, and yet further when Queen Efther prevailed'against Haman and his ten fons, Esth. 7, 10. & 9, 12, 14, who were flips of that corrupt and accuried flock of Amalek.

CHAP. XXVI.

Vers. 2. The first of all By this Ceremony, they acknow-ledged that they received the Land of Canaan as a free gift of God : this oblation was yearly, and the time of the year when it was made, was the feast of Tabernacles, Numb. 18. 12. See I evit. 22.19.

to place his Name ] To be called upon ferred and worthipped: Sec Annor. on Chap. 16. 2.

V. S. A Swidth Meaning Jacob, who lived twenty years in Syria with Laban, who was the fon of Bethuel the Syrian, Gen.

yeady to perifo] By the deadly hate of his brother Hau pur-poing to kill him, Gen. 27. 41. and his approaching towards him, with four hundreth men in an hoftile manner, Gen. 33. 1. and his hard fervice unto Laban, wherein he was confumed by drought in the day, and frost in the night; Gen. 31: 40. and lastly, ready to perish by the famine in Canaan, whence he removeth into Egypt, for necessary sustenance to preserve his life, Gen. 42. 1,2, &c: V.7. when we eried] Alledging the promifes made to our fathers, Abraham, Ifasc, and Jacob.

N. 10. then fall the first that Price that is the place where it shall be set that the place where it shall be set, but the place where it shall be set, but the Price thall take it out of thy hand and place it verf. 4. it ] That is, the basket where the first-fruits are pur, verl. 2.

before the Lord ] That is, before the Altar of the Lord, v. 4. V. II. veloce | See Chap. 12. verf. 7.

V. 12. year of tything) To wit, the third year. There was a three-fold tithe, one was that which our of the whole was taken for allowance of the Levites; and out of that which remained there was another tithe taken for the owners to eat with thankelgiving in the place where the San Quary was fituate; as in the City of Shiloh when the Tabernacle ftood there, and in See Annot, in Chap. 14: 28. From this addition of tithe more then was other years, (for in them there was but a double tithe, in this a third tithe besides the other two) it was called the year of tithing.
the third year | See Deut. 14.28.

V. 13. before the Lord ] That is, fincerely, as in his presence

V. 13. before the Lural in activity in the city, as in an appearance without all guile or hypocrific.

V. 14. my meaning] That is, being ceremonially unclean by mourning for, and burial of the dead; for none fuch might earthereof, Levit. 7. verf. 20. See Hof. 9. 4. It was to be eaten with rejoycing, as in manner of feafting, Deut. 16.verl. 11, 15.

See Annot on verse the twelfth of this Chapter, and Chap. 28. for any unclean Common or profane use, or for any unclean person to eat thereof. for the dead ] To furnish the funeral of the dead, or the faerifice offered to dumbe and dead Idols, Pfal. 106.28. according to all ] As far as finful nature would fuffer ; for elfe as David and Paul fay, there is not one just, Pfal. 14. ver. 3.

V. 17. Thou hast avouched] The Covenant betwirt God and his people, confifts of mutual conditions; on the peoples part the conditions are faith, whereby they embrace him, and rely upon him as their God; and obedience to his Commandements, as their Law maker and Governour.

V. 18. the Lord hath avouched ] On Gods part, the conditions are to take them for his peculiar people; which implyeth both his protection of them, and provision for them, both for this life and the next.

CHAP. XXVII.

Vers. 1. Command you] That is, Moses Gods Minister: Or, God by his Minister Moses. V. 2. great flores, and plaifter] These were not stones for building of an Altar; but being smoothed over with plaister, they ferved for another use, noted in the next verse.

V. 3. write upon them] What was written, fce Annet, on v. 8 and for the reason why we may conceive it to be, for that God would have his Law fer up in the borders of the Land of Canean, that all that looked thereon, might know that the Land was dedicated to his fervice; and that the twelve Tribes (according to whose number, it is probable, the stones were twelve, were especially obliged to obedience to the Law of God upon their actual poffession of the promised Land.

V. 4. mount Ebal] See the Annut, on verfiz.

V. 5. iron tool] The Alrar should not be curiously wrought because it was to continue but for a time : for God would have but one Altar in Judah; and as yet the ark not having a certain place, the altar was to be but fuch a one as might ferve for the prefent occasion, and afterwards be easily demolished.

V. 8. upon the flones That is, not upon the ftones of the alter, verf. 5, 6. but upon the ftones which were plaistered.

this law | Not the whole Book of Deuteronomie, or Exodus. but the principal part of the Law, which is the ten Commande. ments, with some other selected parcels of most use for edification of the people, which were (as some conceive) the bleffings and curfings upon Mount Gerezzim and Mount Ebal, verl.

very plainly] So that it may be callly and readily read by those who are least skilful in reading.

V. 9. this day thou are become See Annot, on Chap. 26.

ref. 17, 18.

V. 12. Thefe shall shand] See Annot. on Chap. 11. 29.

npm ] Josh. 8.33. It is said, over against; yet no contradiction: for they that stood upon the one, stood over against the mount Gerezzim I Is a Mountain neer the City Shechemi Judg. 9.7. Neer unto it, (onely a little valley betwirt them) is Mount Ebal, which verl. 4. was named before Mount Gerezzim because the curses, after mentioned, pronounced from the top of Ebal, take up a very great part of the Chapter.

Simen. and Onely the Tribes who were born of the wives of Jacob, Leah and Rachel, (though not all of them (for Reuhen and Zebulun were the fons of Leah, and flood upon Mount Ehal) are named first, and have the more honourable part applyed to them, which is to affift at the pronouncing of bleffings upon Mount Gerezzim.

Toleph] Meaning Ephraim and Manaffeh his fons, in whom he had a double portion; for they were each of them reputed. and provided for as feveral Tribes, and provided for as leveral x troit.

V. 13. cut/f2 | Signifying, that if they would not obey God for love, they shall be made to obey for fear.

V. 14. the Leviter] That is, the Priests of the Tribe of Levi, Josh. 8. 33. standing with the ark in the valley betwize two hills, whole office from God was to pronounce, not onely bleffings, whose omee from Gos was to pronounce, and oney oftening, Numb. 6, 13, at which they looked towards Mount Gerezzin, but curfes, at which they turned their faces toward Mount Ebal, to which the Tribes fore-named were (by their prefence and (aying Amen) to fignifie their affent.

loud voyce] So loud that all might hear; or those who were neer, beginning their Amen with a loud voyce, the reft might take it from them; and from them again others, till it went through all the company.

V. 15. image] Under this he containeth all the corruption of Gods fervice against the first Table.

in a feeret place ] God will not indure Idolatry in fecretimuch lefs when it is committed with publick fcandal.

for, Amen I is committed with public learness.

for, Amen I That is, some of them shall say Amen, at the pronounciation of the blessings, some at the denusciation of the curses, as they are before distributed among the Tribes.

Amen] Signifieth truth: or, be it true: and that either im-

V. 17. land mark] To enlarge his own portion, and to take from another mans: or diminish the inheritance of his father, to gratifie a friend. See 1 King. 21.3.
V. 18, blind to wander] When their eyes should rather guide him, and their hands lead him in the right way. See Job 29.15. V. 20. fathers skirt] See Annot. on Chap. 22. 30.

V. 26. to do them ] Conformity in work, is the best confirmng of the words of the Law; yet the Law is fo perfect, and all ing of the words of the Law; yet the Law is to penece, and an men fince the fall fo imperfect, that it is not onely a rule for our life, but a rod, upon discovery of our failings, to make us runne to Christ, the Lord of life, for fasety against the second death, Gal. 3, 24.

CHAP. XXVIII.

His Chapter is for the material contents of it much like the 26. of Leviticus, the clearing whereof, may be a sparing of some labour in the expounding of this. Verf. 2. evertage thee] If thou be diligent in hearing, and constant in doing of the will of God out of pure love to him, though thou hast no mind of the reward, but shouldest rather run from it, then aim at it, or labour for it; bleffings should follow thee fo fast, as to be fure to overtake thee.

V. 7. feven wages ] That is, many wayes ; a certain number for an uncertain; as v.25.

V. 8, command the bleffing] We obtain bleffings by intresty, but God bestoweth them by command, fince the creatures can no more refift his power in their use, then in their essence, when at first be commanded their being.

V. 10. the Name of the Lord | That is, the Lords children, as Chap. 14.1. Or, his peculiar people, Chap. 26. 18.

affaid of thee] The holy league betwixt God and his people, is matter of terrour to those, who otherwise would be a terrous to them. See Exed.23,22.

F. 21, treafure.

Chap. xxviij. V. 12. treasure, the heaven | Heaven is the treasure of every | phesy for after-times, he speaketh of Ships as things then known bleffing; even those which are most earthly, have their Origi-10 those to whom he spake.

V. 13. and not the tail ] A proverbial speech, importing high preheminence, or a fecurity from contempt,

V. 15. not hearken To hearken, is more then to hear, for that comprehendeth hearing with attention, and with a ready disposition to actual obedience.

V. 20. perify quicky] Plagues shall come on apace, treading on the feet of one another, like Jobs messengers, making haste to make thee quickly miferable many wayes. See Job Chap. 1.

the wind, and come down as the drops of rain in a shower when it is kindly weather.

V. 26. carkaffe] Thou fhalt be curfed both in thy life,and in thy death, and after it, for thy burial is a teftimony of the refurrection, which fign for the wickednelle thou fhalt want . beine left a prey to be devoured by the fowls of the ayrand the beafts

F. 27. batch of Egypt] See Exad. 9.9.

Emerods] A difease proceeding principally of the excess, and malignity of melancholly bloud in the heads of the veines of the fundament, which fornetimes bleed, and fornetimes

V. 29. grope at noon day Inthings evident and clear, thou thalt lack different and judgment to do what is best, or to prevent, and avoid the worft. V. 32. to another people | Carried captive to another Nation.

thine eyes [hall look ] When they thall return from their

. V. 26. and the King | As he did Manaffeh, Joachim, Zede kish, and others; for they have no more priviledge to offend, ferve other Gods] There is no God but one, 16,4,8, the maker of all things; but there are many gods made by the fond fancies of men; these they shall be made to serve, either blinded in their understandings, or forced against their consciences. See Dan 3

V. 40. caft bis faut It shall perish before it come to maturi

Y. 4. least confunct] Under one kind is contained all the vermine which defrey the fruit of the land, which fometimes functed and prey upon the leavings at each other; as Joel 1.4. Y. 43, very high! Heb. high, kigh. very long! Heb. long long. See Annote, on ver. 13.

V. 46. for a fign | Of Gods great it lignation, which shall evident upon thee.

for a monder J Thus a people once to happy in Gods favour thould be to unwife and wicked as to deferve to great a change V. 49. as the Eagle flieth ] With fwiftness of her wings greediness of prey, without any respect or pitte: such were their enemies mentioned, Jer. 4. 13. Lam. 4. 19. & Ezek. 17. 3. See

V. 53. the finit of thine own body ] See Lev. 26.29.
V. 57. not give to aim of them ] That is, neither to his brother;

por to his wife, nor so a remnant of his children, whom yet he barb not caren.

V. 57. between her feet] See Annot. on Gen. 49. 10. V. 58. to do all] For he that willingly offendeth in one point, is guilty of all; because in a willing breach of one he contemns the Authour of the Law; and he that contemns him in one point, obeyes him not in any, James 2.10. For though he observe the matter of the Law, he doth it for some other reason, then the Word, or Law of God, and so to him it is no fear fil Name] The name of God is sometimes put for Goe himself, as Pist, 20, 1, so here.

V. 61. not written] Though God hath threatned many forts | wayfaring men paffed away. of punishments in expresse termes, yet he hath many more plegues in flore, then are committed to record, or writing.

V. 63. rejoyce over you to defiroy ] Not as a work of mifery to the creature, Ezek, 33.11. but as an execution of juffice upon

V. 64. ferve other gods ] See Annot on ver.36.
V. 68. with [hips]. In mentioning Ships, he gives them occasion to remember their passage through the Sea without ships, by Gods miraculous making of the water to give way unto them, Exod. 14.21, 22, 29, and to fland as a wall on each fide their paffage, and afterward to turn, and overwhelm their enemies. This mention of Ships by Moles, confuses the fiction of them who fain there were no ships untill about fourty years beto those, to whom he spake.

by the way whereof I spake That is, that miraculous way foretold by God, and fore-mentioned by Moses, Exad. 14, 16. thou shalt nor go that way, nor shalt see that way any more; for that is covered with the Sea, which no more shall be divided to they the bare ground for thy paffage, as once it did. Or, no more that long and winding way by many turnings and changes to and fro, backward or forward in the wildernefle; and when many hundreds of years after the Jewes (upon the taking of Jerufalem by the Romanes ) were fold captives many wayes, to make mee quickly minerator many wayes, See Joo Cang. 1.

Y. 2, Infg] See Anno. on Inc. 16:25-19, and dome were carried into Egypt partly by Shipan partly by carried more and while That is, infleted of min. by exceeding great drought grains of dult final aftend into the sys with lame todor own whereby they pelfed out of Egypt cowards Calling of the Common of the Wildernell's yet was not their pallage in the way of the Wildernell's yet was not their pallage in the way of the Wildernell's yet was not their pallage in the way of the Wildernell's yet was not their pallage in the way of the Wildernell's yet was not their pallage in the way of the Wildernell's yet was not their pallage in the way of the Wildernell's yet was not their pallage.

fold.] That is, fet to fale, and they shall be so vile, and con-temptible, that none shall bid any money for them; or, they shall be fold , and none shall buy them again by way of re-demprion ; and hereof read Josephus of the Warres of the Jews, lib. 17. cap.16.

CHAP. XXIX.

Verf. I. Befide the commant The fame in fubflance, but not paleogether the fame, but much varied with fundry additions of explanation, admonition, with fome new com-mands, comminations, and benedictions, which were not men-tioned in the former Edition of the Covenant; in which respect it may be faid to be diverfe from the former : fo diverfe, as if it were another belides it.

V. 2. Moles called It is not like that all this wasdelivered at once, but that the people dismitsed having heard feme part before, were called together again to hear the reft.

ye have feen] See Amot, on Exed, 19.4.

V. 3. temptations] Tryals or proofs of Gods power. See Attact, on Chap.7.19.

V. A. not given you! They had both sensual eyes and eyes. but a fpiritual apprehension and use of those great works, they had not; and they had it not, because God had not given it unto them: fo that wonders without the work of grace, will not avail for mans conversion, but grace without them will be sufficient for Faith and falvation.

V. 5. stoibes not waxed stil See Annot. on Chap. 8.4. V. 6. not exten bread Made by mans art, but Manna, which is the bread of Angels, Pfal. 78, 24, 25, nor d'ink wine] For your drink hath been as miraculous as your bread; water fetched out of the rock, Num, 2011. Pfal. 78, that ye might know ] By a miraculous supply of your wants of both; how great a God I am in power, how able to provide for my people without ordinary means.

V. 10. allof you] All of what difference foever, by fex, by age, flature or flate must be made to know what they are bound before the Lard] Who feeth you, though you fee not himsand in you feeth what man cannot fee, ( your bearts) and therefore you may not think to diffemble with him in making of the Covenant, nor in a guileful observation of it.

V. 11. sby [tranger] Such as came with thee out of Egypt, and left their Idolatrous Religion behinds hem. from the bewer ] A proverbial speech, as from a thread to a shoe-

V. 12, enter] Heb. paffe. Alluding to them who when they made a fute Covenane divided a beaft, and paft between the parts divided. See Annot, on Gen. 15.10.

V. 13. a people unto himself ] Chap. 28.9.
V. 14. that is not here] Meaning your posterity.
V. 16. passed by ] To come through (as is said before) and to paffe by, (as here) feem repugnant; but the meaning is , that they came through some parts of the Nations, where they saw their Idols, ver. 17. and passed by others; or that though they came through them, they made no stay among the people, but as

V. 18. Lest there should be He proposeth the Covenant in general terms both for those that are, and those that shall be, vers. 14,15. left any one should expect a priviledge from the curse, if he do transgresse: or this word (left) may be answered by ver-zo. lest any one should do so, the Lord professes he will not foare him.

root that beareth] That is,a corrupt heart whence proceed evil words and deeds, which are bitter leaves and fruit, bitter by rerepentance if they be pardoned, and bitter by pain if they be punished; and unto God as distasteful as the bitterest gall can be unto man. And though it be in the root, and that hidden in the ground, yet it is as well known to God, as that which is in the branches or fruit obvious to the view or tafte of man.

fore the last Trojan Wars, which is breetilen this record of Mo-les by above two hundred years: and although this be a Pro-up the fruitful jugee of the earth, and make it karten; where fore Abimelech when he had overthrown the City of Sichem and he complaineth of his age, to make them the more to acfowed the ground with falt, Judg. 9. 45. See Pfal. 107. 34. text and margine. Jer. 17. 6. V. 28. as it is this day These words are not to be taken as the word his time fuch as is faid, verf. 22, but they are spoken as of the time when the Prophecy should come to passe, as in the name, and by those who should see it accomplished.

V. 19. the fecret things] Thefe words are not, as the former the words of God, but of Mofes; and they are an Epiphonema, or a fententious conclusion of that which went before, wherein mention is made concerning curfes and judgements, in which there are many forets which men cannot fearch into as the wicked thoughts of men, and their privy practifes, Chap. 27. verf. 15. what manner of curse shall come upon men for their finnes as they are particularly named, Chap. 27. verf. 15, &c. and when they shall come, and who are impenitently guilty of such finnes, as deserve these curses; these and such like secrets we must leave as locked up in Gods private Closet, of which the

Rey is in his own keeping, not in ours.

V. 19. revealed things] Are of many forts, but those here chiefly meant, are the Rules of duty to God and man, revealed not for contemplation, but for practice, and the Judgments in the generall before threatened to the transgreffors of them; in which sentence he giveth a Cavear against curious presumption in prying into hidden matters, and careless neglect of known

CHAP. XXX.

Verf. 1. Bill negled, and the ungracious abuse whereof deferveth the curfe : or, the bleffing to those that keep the Law the curfe to fuch as break it.

the cuite to increase the state of the state

V. 4. utmost parts of heaven] As farre upon earth, as there is heaven beyond or above it.

fetch thee] And bring thee into thy Countrey.

V. 6. circumsife thy heart] See Annot, on Chap. 10. ver. 1.16.

V. II. not bidden from thee] The Law is fo evident that none can pretend he is ignorant of it.

V. 13. bejond the [ea] By beaven, vorf. 12. and fea here, he meaneth places most distant-

V. 14. very nigh] So neer, that it is within thy nature, and thou canft not pretend any ignorance of it, for it is by word of mouth revealed to thee, and that thou mayft not forgerit, it fhall be written for thee, Chap. 3x.9.

that thou man # do it ] By Faith in Chrift, for fo his obedience is made ours, and without it, mans obedience is very imperfect, not onely because he cannot do all he should , but because he doth not all he might in outward exercises and duties of devo-

V. 16. love | So that to love and obey God, is the meanes to escape death, and to obtain life eternal.

to keep his Commandements Though God command to keep his Commandements, it doth not follow, that it is in mans power to perform them, (no more then it was in the power of La-zarus to deliver himself from whence Christ bade him come forth, Joh. 11.43. and fuch as was his corporal, is mans spiritual deadnesse, Eph. 2.1.) for the Law implyeth a right of command, and a duty to obey, and not any ability thereto, or if an ability, an ability once had, though fince loft, when entrufted to the cultody of our first parents free-will, it was treacheroully made away by their confent to the evil motions of Satan. V. 19. I call heaven] See Annot, on Chap.4.26.

V. 20. thr life and ] That is, effectively the cause, or Christ the Author of life and length of dayes, for in him we live, move and have our being, that is, by power and virtue from him, Act. 17. 28.

CHAP. XXXI.

Verf. 1. VEnt and Spake That is, (as some take it, Moles Veti. 1 Vans an page 1 into 15, the some taster, where them affembled, ipake as followeth-but it may be some and fibely, is, he went to in fpeaking, or began again to peak 5 for the Hebrews safe to ophrafe beginning, by gaing, or vifing.

V. 2. as bandered and rewortly years del J filty years might have made him too aged to bear fo great a burden, yet his fight was nor dimme, nor his natural force decayed when he dyed, Deut, 34.7. Dut the cutter trains was, in short most in which we had favour.

fick, nor weak, he must quickly dye, yer. 14. and must not lead favour.

the people over Jordan, as he saith in the next words, and that Johna was designed to take the Charge which he laid down:

V. 19.

cept of a younger man for their Governour in his fread.

no more go out and come in ] That is, do the office of a Captain to lead the people forth to war, and to bring them home back

V. 2. and folhua He joyneth the Lord and Joshua together. that it a people may have the better hope of his happy guidance, who, though he were before but a Minister or servant to Moses, was now to be Commander in Chief under God; as himfelf had been; and whatfoever difference they conceived betwist them as men, they were to expect, that he as guided and affifted by God, would be a lufficient Conductor of them to the policifion of the promife, and therefore they might follow him with confidence, and must follow him with obedience, rather as second onely to God, then as Succeffour to himfelf.

V. 4. as he did to Sibon ] God is the fame in future , that he was in former Favours to his people, and judgments to their enemies, if they be not rebels against him, or revolters from unto the land] That is, the Inhabitants of the Land. V. S. Before your face ] They shall so flye or fall before you ; that you shall perceive that you prevail by the power of the

V. 6. Be fireng and of ] For he that must govern his people (Specially so numerous and apt to murmure) hath need to be valiant to represe vice, and constant to maintain virtue,

V. 8. The Lord & be that doth] Gods affiftance is the fureft ground of couragious confidence.

V. 9. this Law] That is, the Book of Deuteronomy. to the Priefts \ Who were to be most conversant in it.that they might the better inftruct the people out of it, especially in the year of releafe, which was every feventh year, Exed. 23.11. when was folemnly and entirely to be read unto them, verf. 11. of which bare the Ark ] The Ark is mentioned here by occasion of the Book, which was laid up in the fide of it ; and for the bearing of the Ark, there is some doubt whether it belonged to the Priefts only, or to the Levites with them, or whether to either; as Priefts, or as Levites. Some conceive that the Priefts muft bear the Ark, and not the Levites, and therefore that Uzzah being but a Levite when he rouched it, was fmitten , because he prefumed upon the charge of the Priefts, but it appears, that the tumed upon the charge of the Pricets, but it appears, that the Levites, (which were the fons of Cohath, who had the charge of the Ark, Num.3.31.) did carry it, as verf. 25. of this Chapter, though not onely, nor alwayes, for at fome extraordinary times the Priests did bear it, John 3.13. & 1 King. 8.3. yet with this difference, that the Priests might, and fometimes did it upon especial occasion, to restisse their piety, or for greater folemnity: but the Levites must do it, as a part of their service in ordinary. See I Chr. 15.2. And yet might they not touch any of the holy things they carried, untill they were covered by Aaron and his fons the Priefts, Num.4.15. and therefore the fin of Uzzah . ions the Pricits, Num.4.15. and therefore the in or cizzan, whether Pricit or Levite, was not only, for that he and the reft fuffered the Aik to be carried on a Carr, ( which they hould have born on their (houlders ) but for that he either fained a peril of falling, and fo feemed hypocritically to support it, or that he took the boldnesse irreverently to touch some part of it, for which he ought to be fmitten as he was, Num.4-15.

V. 10. year of release] Every seventh year was a year of releafe. See Annot, on Chap. 15. 1, 2.

V. 11. before the Lord ] Before the Ark of the Covewhich was the fign of Gods prefence, and the figure of

Thou Shalt rend It is not faid who in particular, but it is like the fervice was performed by fome eminent perfon in the Prieft-hood, as by Ezra, who is called both a Scribe, and a Prieft, Neh. 8.1,2. A Scribe,as he was a Writer of the Law; and a Prieft,as a Reader, and Expounder of it to the people, and a Sacrificer to

V. 12, children Children must be timely instructed in the Law of God, that they may be inured unto it, and habituated in it before they come to be men; for young Saints are most like to be old Saints, (though one of the Devils proverbs calls them the old devils.)

V. 14. in the Tabernacle] The Tabernacle is fomerime taken for the whole space, or place, which was marked, and bounded out for holy uses, and not fit for the curious Tent of curtains. Exed.26.10,11,&c. Here it is taken for that part of the Coure which was neer the door of the Tabernacle, for into the Tabernacle it felf none but the Priest might enter.

V. 15. pillar of a cloud] That is, a cloud in form, and fashiosa of a pillar, as the flaming fword, was fire in form of a fword, Gen.

V. 17. bide my face ] That is, I will take my favour from 34.7. but the chief reason was, he knew though he were neither them; as to turn his face towards them, is to shew them his

V. 19. this fong ] See Annot on ver. 30.

a witheffe ] For me against their disobedience and ingrantude.

Chap.xxxii. and against their oblimacy, or stupidity, who, though they Babel: others of assigning portions to the Nations, as of Seiv is were warned of the wretched end of wicked works, would not the posserity of Esau, Chap.a.s. and through the whole earth

V. 10. then will they turn ] Outward profperity, though good for the body, may be bad for the foul; for many will no longer obey God then they are under his rod, who turn their profession ty, which should be a cause of their obedience to God, to an occation of contempt against God.

V. 21. tellife against them That their own wickednesse wrought their woe, and that their sufferings were but the just reward of their disobedience.

which they go about ] There were fome fo ill minded among them, as to medicate on mischiese before hand, whereby they deferved their expulsion out of the land, which as yet they had not gotten possession of the Land: but God foresaw how bad they would be, and therefore fore ordained a just reward for their wickedness.

V. 23. and faid] Hitherto God fpake of, and to Joshua but by Mofes; now he fpeaketh to him by himfelf, and here

but by Motes; now ne peaseen to min by nimier; and serie both given him his chaege, and encourageth him to it.

V. 26. in the fide of 1 Or, by the fide: and (as fone Hebrew Rabbines note) in a shell by it felf placed on the right fide of the Aik ; for there was no writing kept in it, but the two Tehles of the Ten Commandements, I King. 8.9. 2 Chron. 5. 10.
And though in the Epifile to the Hebrews we read of more And, though in the spittle to the treorem we read of those shings in the Ark, as the golden pot of Manna, and darons Rod that budded, Chap. 9.5. yet neither there, nor in the fifth of Rings, or in the second of Chronieles, is there mention of any other writing; and whereas in those two Historical Texts it is faid , there was nothing elfe in the Ark fave the two Tables which Mofes pur there ar Horeb; and in the Epiffle to the Hebrews the pot of Manna and Aarons Rod are faid to have beer brews the port of Manna and Aarona Rod are faid to have, been placed there: The onform is, fifth, that is the Art fills, is here underflood by the Art fills and as Chrift is faid to have fulfered in Jeruslatun, though precision, nor in it, but nece time to; To the port of Manna and Aarona rod may be faid to be in the Art, though placed but by the fills of tir: but because they are faid by the Apollie to be in the Art, in the fame phrase that is also with Fallers, the better answer is, that there is to much distributed to the Art is the state of the Art is the Art is the state of the Art is the Art i the Hebrews, that there was time enough, and changes of time great enough, that by feveral turns both might be true; and doubtless were forthough it be no where noted in the Scripture, when and upon what reason they were kept in, or laid upout of the Ark

V. 28. beaven and earth to record ] See Anudt, on Chap.; werf. z.

V. 19. you will usterly corrupt] By the Spirit of prophette he forecels their defection, as a forerunner, and cause of their fit ture affliction.

V. 30. of this fong ] Which followerh in the next Chap-

CHAP. XXXII.

Verla. [ 100 em, O beavens ] Hate beginnech the Song forturneth his speech to the heavenz, either meaning by the heavens, Angels, the Inhabitants of the heavens, and by the saith, men, the inhabitants of the earth; as by the land, the inhabimen, the institution of the carries as by the nearest the institution of the land, Chap 31.4. Or elfe by the heavests, and the earls, we may understand the heavests, and earth themselves. The meaning is, by such a passionate expression, to stirre up their apprehensions; or by appealing to the heavens, and earth, which have neither sense nor reason, nor religion, and yet obey Gods Ordinance, to shame them, who proteste to have all, and againft all are diffuedient to him: or that upon their rebellion againft God, the heavens and the earth thould both joyn in judgment against them, at is threstried, Chap 28.23.

V. 2. My Dellrine field drop] I would have my destrine: drop from my lips upon your hearts to mollific them; or that is may be unter chient as a fruitfull den or rain which maket graffe and flowers to fpring and fprout, Heb. s. 2. Sec Ifs.

V. 4. He is a rock ! In firength, and fixednesse a group, and durable foundation , that cannot be removed, 11s. 25. 4. and 28. 16.

V. 5. their firs? That is, their fin, which footech, and illentificate their fouls, 2 Cor. 7. I Jude ver 1.2.

sate 16. they fils solidated 1 That is, not such fin us is of infinitely sphilat his children may, and many times do commit, but of maligning spectra fields, and concentration.

V. 6. O finish peak? I. Great inguisted this groue fally, and the later are the second of the sec

the ingraticude is great which returns evill for good to amons V. 8. divided to the Nations ] This fome conteive to be meant the policity of Elau, Chap. 1.7. and through the whole earth the Lord distributeth the portion to every people as pleafeth himfelf.

himfelf

fet bounds] Or limits; meaning the division of the Land of Canasan among the children of ifrael according to the Lords allotment; for it was some (for the most part) by lart; Num. 34.13. and the disposition of the lot is of the Lord. Prov.16.33.

V. 9. the Lordsporting The Lord hath chofen the people of Ifrael for his peculiar portion, out of all the Wartons of this world. Amos 2.2

lot ] He alludeth to the division of the Land of Canans, as if the fons of Jacob had fallen to him by lot,

V. 10. be found] Not by change, but with refolved theyer he manifested himself to him in the Wildernesse. bowling wilderneffe] Because of wilde treasts . Whose hoise is owling, when they want provision.

V. 11. fluttereth over her young ] Either to reach them to five.

Vill, justice or or justify there to teach them to nye, or to fave their from violence, on her using I leis noted as the peculiar property of the Engles to ear; her young in her classes, as the catcheth, or carryich the prey; but with fuch tendernesses, as that the may not have them, and at fuch an height, as others may not reach them.

V. 12. the Lord alone] By the pillar of cloud by day, and of fire by night. V. 13. ride upon the bigh places That is, tryumphantly pre-vall over the feated Cities, whose walls, and towers are raised higheft, Chap. 93.29. Plal. 47.8. Ha. 98.14.

made him.] The preceperfect confe as in other vertes of this Chapter uled for the future renfe.

honey out of the rock ] Barren places, like rough, and craggy rocks were made to yeeld fruit; or (according to the letter) fwarms of Bees made honey in the clefts of the rocks; and Olive framm of Bees made honey in the clefts of the rocks; and Olive meet profifered in flowy places. V. 14. breed of Bellows] A place of special more for a good hered of carely, or for good pidline for death. biddays of wears ]. The framelle of the executive appears in the ladneys, and the best are such as a sich nort fac; so facts it is the fruitfullest, fullest, and whiteed flower of white combined. See Piel.Sr. er.

pure bload of the grape ] That is, the liquor of it, which in foint pure blood by the grape J I has in, the liquive of his, which in faithe for of grape is red y and beling pure without militarie, his missive ted, and like to blood. See Amat. on Gen. 49.11.

V. 15. 9 January | The world selvived of 3 phys. (Beillings righteoutholic) of up up lightenette 1 by which is means affect. Good peculiar people, I finage, as who houstlabure leads to pright righter toous, just in obedience works Will and Law of God, but we teous, just in obedience volte Will and Law et God, but we have the whether and entruly, and like a fatted bullock, inched abbinch his feeder. The Original word Johanne, it very rively offs, and he feeds to be made by Moise by way of allution to sin one, as in the manner of the figure celled Tawashand, as if the list faid, Ifrait flould be Johanne, but is, Schrichkeit, an one of the list faid, Ifrait flould be Johanne, but is, Schrichkeit, an one of the

V. 17. new goal ] For all falle gods are new ; and young to God the Ancient of dayes, who was from everlating. Dan.

7. 9: V. 18. the Roch that begat] He was called a Rock bafore; ver.4: and here the sums terms continue, but with a great difference from an estraordinary Rock: for the same God who is fo called, is (as a Rock is not) of a quickening and a genera-tive power to beget fone and daughters as they are called, verf.19.

ver.17.
V. 20. bide myface] See Annot. on Chap 31.17.
See what their end] Gods hidrig, 's a withdrawing of his fayourable influence and affiftance, and though he be not feen; vountee minime an assimance; and nough ne or not teen; he can feet and observe; and will fo fee; at or make their observe of the can feet and observe of the can feet and the phrasis is used after an humane minimer, as thany others in the Scripturch as if the watched, (as Modera first ridg, to there in the Scripturch as if the watched, (as Modera first ridg, to Go what would become of him, Exical A. 4.) which their sindeed Cool knowed all things contenting all creatures at one 42° of underftanding.

V. 21. not a scople] That is, furth as I have not caken for a people as I have done Ifrael, nor given Lawes as a Lord unito them, nor entered any Covenant with them; to wir, the Gen-tiles, whom I will uphold against them; and make them victoettet, moch was uppool agente riem; and mace team victorious over them, and when their fins are ripe for a further rejection, and they refule the greatest Favour I can do them, (in lending my Son to fave them), then I will accept of the Gentless of the son to fave them; the company of the son my people, who embrace the Mellias I (rad, by bellet in Min, and addressee to thim: the words in this fessile are applied. by the Apolle, Roth. to. 19.
footifs Mation] So are all blinded Gentiles, who not differns

ing the difference between the Almighty God, and impotent Idols, turn their backs upon him, and fer their faces with bended knees towards them.

V. 22. to the lames hell Or, to the deepelt part of it; A vigothe dirifen by confusion of Tongues upon the ballding of rout Mersphor importing a most deep deflettition, routing out Chap. xxxii.

the lowest bed, may be meant the extremest plagues of the other Joh.20.17.

V. 51. be gerrour of the Lord might perswade men to beware of fin, 2 Cor. 15, 15,

5. II. V. 24. burnt with bunger ] Famine confumes the fieth and modifure, and finivels up a young girle, fo that it makes her look like an old woman; and (as fire) makes the vilage black like a Verf. I. The bleffing ] This bleffing containeth not only a fimple prayer; but an affurance of the effect.

V. 25. [word without, and terrour within ] They shall be flain both in the field, and at home, within their houses, and chambers.

V. 27. Were it not] Here again, as ver. 20. God speaks after the manner of men, who do not what otherwise they would for fear of scandal and encouragement of the w.cked. See Psal.

V. 28. anation void of counfel] This is spoken of the Israelites, who inconsiderately went on in wickedness without fore-cashing what would come of it, Ifa. 27.11. Jer.4.22.

what would code on 1, 112. 27.11. Jer. 4.22.

V. 30. hom [hould one chafe] That is, one of the enemies of Ifrael chafe a thoufand Ifraelites, except God, who was, and would have been their Rock of defence and refuge, had given them upto ruine.

them up to rune.

V. 31. not as our Rock That which was faid before, is spoken in the Person of God; this in the person of Mose, or the people, where comparing the true God of Israel with the false under the name of rocks, the enemies upon former experience of Gods power and terrour in punishing their transgression and wickednelle, (which ignorant and impotent Idols could nordo) have judged the preeminence on Gods fide, against them.

Juageu (ne preeminence on Gods fide, againtthem. V. 32. their vine! (Meaning of the wicked Jews,) is compared to the Vine of Sodome, whole fruit is abhorted, as was all that belonged to that accurfed City, and to her wicked lifter Comorreh.

V. 33. the poylon] The fruits are as poylon, deteftable to God. and dangerous to man.

V. 34. treasures] God hath his just treasures of wrath, Rom. 2.5. answerable to the evil treasure of fin, Matth. 12.35. which is heaped up by the wicked.

is neaped up by the wicked.

V. 35. Ilide inductions! Due is added by way of explication: for the wicked, though they be thought to fland too long, shall fall in due tim-, that is, in the time which God chuseth, as most meet for the honour of his own justice, and for the good of the repent himfelf ] In favour and compassion to his servants,O. his repenting fee Annot, on Gen. 6.6.

V. 36. [udge bis people] That is, give fentence for them, by taking vengeance on them that wrong them, Pfal. 26.1.

his repenting, fee Antor, on Gen. 6.6.

their pawer is gan! When there is leaft hope in the creature, there is most help from the Creatur. See Exod. 14.13; nose [but sop] That, is, none lying hid, as thole in the Prophete Ellis time, who would not bow to Bal.; I king. 4.10. & Chap. 19.14.18. & 2 king. 4.14.35.6.

V. 37. be [bud [sp]] That is, God, spoken against by the wicked, to whom he maketh answer, verl. 99.43.

V. 38. tet herm if sup T list may be applyed to the heathens, (who opperfied Gods people) as a tunn for their Idolatry, when God takes weapenene of them for it. But withlast God forekts the God takes vengeance of them for it. Bur withal, God fpeaks the like words by way of bitter reproach against Idolattous Ifrael, Indg.10.14 Jer.2.18.

V. 40, lift up my band | See Annot. on Gen. 14.22. See al-

V. 4.0: its up my band See Annot. on Gen. 14.22. See al-fo, Hebe. 5.6.107. evor.) That is, God protefleth by himself, tath the will doss he faith, directward, verf. 4.7.42. V. 21. from the beginning.] Or, the tend of recenter. That is, the chief of the enemies of my people. Or, from the viginning, of recognizes that is, from the beginning of the exemies oppored. fion of my people with revengeful minds towards them; I will begin my revengers the beginning of theirs.

V. 46. to observe to do all ! Observing to do, or observe to do (even) all : else the sense is not so clear.

V. 47. For it is not a vain Not vain that I command, nor shall it be in vain that I have promifed unto you. See Ifa. 55. V. 49. mount Abarim] See Annot. on Num. 27.12.

V.50. and de in the mount | This is not a command to Moles to dye, but a decree that he should dye there; for he was not to kill himfelf, but to expect there untill God took away his foul gathered unto] Sce Annot, on Gen.25.8.

the particular right of each to the comfort and reft with the with them) and fewer then Naphtali one of the fons of Billiah fame people; as when our Saviour faith, I afcend to my Father Rachels hand-maid. and your Father, to my God and your God; he meaneth not V. 7. Hear the voyce of Judah, and bring bim unto his people all hope of growing up, or recovering prosperity again. Or, by two Fathers, or two Gods, but only one Father, and one God.

V. 51. becaufe ye trespaffed ] See Annot, on Num. 20.10.

thereot.

V. 2. The Lord came from! Or, unto Mount Sinai: { for the word will admit of three readings, though more utually it be rendered from, or out of it? Throughout the whole verfethere is a continued metaphor, wherein God is brought in as the Sun, thewing himfelf to the people in divers places, in feveral kinds and degrees of glory and goodnesse; as at Mount Sinai, God called for his people to make a Covenant with rhem : out of it, er from it, he went to guide them towards role up from Seir ] A Monntain of Idumea. The former fayour was as the light before the Sun-rising; here at Mount Ser he role up, and shewed himself in special Favour and glorious power, when in their way by Seir or Edom, the braid revolution and glorous power, when in their way by Seir or Edom, the braident Sei-pent (a Type of Chrift the Sun of righteoulntife arising with the bling in hir wings, Mala.2. and a remedy against the biting of hery Serpents) was erected Some take it literally as that the glory of God began to fhine from Mount Seir, ( the rop whereof might be feen neer Sinai) and that it paffed thence to Mount Sinai, becoming more and more glorious, and there fertled for a time.

fhined forth from mount Paran] A Mountain in the wilder-ness, neer unto which Moses made a repetition and explication of that Book of Deuteronomie, Chap. I. verf. 1. and where it is conceived by fome, that God endowed the Elders of Ifrael with a large measure of his Spirit : and there also did he manifest his miraculous power in provision for his people by fending Quailes from heaven.

ten thousands of his Saints That is, holy ones : meaning an infinite company of Angels : for the good Angels are all of infinite company of Angels : 101 take good Angels are all of them. Saints, though Saints be not Angels; and they attended him in the foleunity of his appearance at Sinai, from whence allowar his Law delivered: See Act. 7. 53. Gal. 3. 19. Heb-

afters law | Given with the fire of terrible lightnings, Exod. 19.16;18. Or, because the Law is the rule of our ardent devetion to God, and fervent affection to our neighbours.

from to God, and trevent affection to our neighbours;
for them] That is, for his people.
V. 3. in thy hand] That is, in the Lords hand: by which is fignified his power and protection; the person is often changed, inginized his power and protection; the perion is often changed, the Spirit fometimes moving the infpired pen-men to speak of God, fometimes (upon speaking of him) ravilining their af-fections in devotion towards him, and moving them to speak to at thy feet ] Thy holy people attended upon thee at the foot of Mount Sinai, (where thy Majefty appeared) as disciples at the foot of their Teacher, Act. 22.3.

V. 4. Mofes commanded] The fourth and lifth verfes are the words of the pious part of the people extreding their good affection to the Law, and to Moles, by whole mediation they the Inheritance ] Or an hereditary law to be kept by themfelves, and transmitted to their posterity.

V. S. King | That is, Prince, or chief Governour, Judg. 19.
I. meaning Moses: for the Kingly government, as it is described, I Sam. 8.9. was not yet fet up in Ifrael. Or if it be meant of fuch an one, it is a propesse of the Common-wealth of Israel in the reign of Saul.

in felburun] That is, in Ifrael, See Annot, on Chap. 22.

V. 6. live, and not dye] See Annot, on Gen. 42.2. let not his men be few] Or, let his men be few: For the word tet not his men to few J Or, the was men acress. The two tends (not) is not in the Original, yet in may be repeated as in Job 30, 20,25, & Pfall, 9, 18. The needs fould not unways the forgettes, the expellation of the poor find proviled for ever; but the word maximit be repeated thus: the expellation of the poor fould may prife for ever: or, nor the expellation of the poor profile for ever. So, the Reduces live and yet of yet and be not his more a number; that is, let them be few : and if the words be read without the word not, let bis men be a number, (as in the Doway Bible) that number may be either few or many. The Geneva renders the gausera many, one amore, on cen. 35.8.

Ber may be either lew or many, Ine Genera renders the people on earth were the fame, and being in heaven (both of head), their folicity there is the fame: therefore the word head) their folicity there is the fame: therefore the word [bir] here repeated, doth not imply they went feveral wayes, for had different kindred or company in heaven; to but it horeth

The prayer of Moles, or voice of Judah is not to be underflood of the person of Judah, for he was dead long before this time, but of the Tribe of Judah, and of the bringing of him un-to his people, fome conceive to be a bringing of him with his to this points, to the Carlos of the Africa of the future a coming to his people, as a Warrier returning to his people with victory over his enemies, and fafety and protection to his with vicory over his enemies, and fately and protection to his people; and this as well by prayers as by force of arms of the Tribe of Judah; as in the example of David, who prayed devoutly, a well as fought valiantly and viconomity and vicinomity and vicinomity and vicinomity and vicinomity and vicinomity and vicinomity. This protection was a supervised of the protection of the Tribe of Judah from capativity; for though the return of Judah from capativity and capativity a return of the 1 ribe of Judan from captivity; for though the children of Ifrael, and the children of Judah were opported to-gether, and all that took them captives held them faft, and refu-ded to let them(go, Jer., to, 23, yet the Lords promife was to bring again the captivity of Ifrael and Judah, Jer. 30, 3, which promife implyed a condition of repentance, and that condition promife implyed a condition of repentance, and that condition performed by the Tribe of Judah and Benjamin, and some few forthe other Tribes, they were restored to their people, to with the poor which were left to husband the land, Jer. 3, 10.6. & 0.7. & 5.1. 16. but the other ten Triber, generally perifisting in their impenience, continued in their experiency. Judicains J. Give thou sufficient strength to his hands, that he statemed of the supering strength of the s may not be made a prey to his enemies.

V. 8. And of Levi] Simeon his elder brother, who was joyned with him in the curfe of Jacob, was not here made his partner in the pleffing of Moles: for he is not mentioned at all: the reason is thought to be because that Tribe was exceedingly defiled with fornication spiritual and corporal; and though Levi had his part in the flaughter of the Shechemites. and curse of Jacob for it, yet is his Tribe here bleffed by Mofes and because of his zeal against Idolatry, Exod. 32. 26, 27, &c.

Thummim and terim ] Or, terim and Thummim. See Annor. on Exod. 18. 30.

thy holy One] Thy High Prieft dedicated unto thee by a peculiar confectation.

Massal Signifierh temptation, probation or trial, and so the words may be read, whom thou doest prove with a probation, that is, with some great speacial trial.

Meribab] Of Meribah see Numb.20.13. Of Massah, and Meribah both, fee Exod. 17.7. V. 9. Who faid untel Or, of his father and mother, I have not, and do not fee him. (Concluding both under the more worthy gender) That is, who was fo impartial in Gods cause, as not to 49. 14. gender/ 10 at 15, 400 was to impartist in Gods caute, as not to acknowledg, either father or mother, brother or children, against his command. This is applyed to the state of the High-priest, who was not to defile himself by mourning for the dead, when ther father, mother, &c. Levit. 21, 11, 12, nor being Judg to favour his neerest kindred in a naughty cause. Deut. 17. 9. nor in execution of just punishment to spare his own flesh and blood, how neer soever, from slaughter in the Lords cause and quarrel, as Exod. 32.26,27,28,29.

V. 11. Blefs, LORD] He declareth, that the Ministers of God have many enemies, and therefore have need to be prayed

V. 12. The beloved of the Lord That is, Benjamin, who, as he was his father Jacobs darling, when Joseph was supposed to be dead; so was he much beloved of the Lord; of whose Tribe the first King was chosen, and in whose portion the Temple was by bim] That is, by Gods affiftance; or Benjamin shall dwell in fafery by Levi : for the Temple wherein the Tribe of Levi ministred, was in the Tribe of Benjamin, whose lot of inhe-ritance was betwire the Tribe of Judah, and the Tribe of bu [houlders] God shall choose him an habitation in the chies City of the Tribe of Benjamin; for though the South part of ferusalem (which is called the City of God in especial manner) where was Mount Sion, were in the Tribe of Judah, yet the Northern part, with Mount Moriah, where the Temple flood, was in the Tibe of Benjamin; and being fer upon that hill, it was conspicuously eminent, as the head placed above and between the shoulders. And though God be said to dwell in Mount Sion, and thence some conceive his Temple was situate upon it, yet where it is fo faid, the word Sion must be taken not frielly for the hill of Sion, but by a Synecdoche of a part for the whole, for the whole City of Jerusolem, and therewith for the Temple founded upon Mount Moriah.

V. 13. the precious things of beaven] He plentifully fets forth the fruitfulneffe of the portion of Joseph, by all the means that produce increase, whether from above, as raines, and dewes, which fall from heaven upon the earth, or from beneath, Ezek.

the deep that coucheth That is, the fprings, and rich minerals which are below.

V. 14. by the Moon ] The influences of the Sun by hear, and of the Moon by moilture, and the influences of the Sars, make course of the Moon for that bleffing of the earth.

V. 15. ancient mountains There are some mountains of fand ent mountains; fo are they here, by way of comparison, called tafting bills.

V. 16. in the buff God appeared unto Mofes in a burning bufh, Exod. 2. Chap. 2. and upon the top of ] Which is not another, but the same Jo-called 6, see Annot, on Gen. 49. 26.

V. 17. Huglor) That is, the glory of Ephraim shall be like unto a fair young and lufty bullock, hornes of unicorns] Sec Annot, on Numb, 22, 22, to the ends of the earth] He shall overcome countryes far rethe ten thousands of Ephraim, and the thousands of Manassell.

The fruitfulness of Ephraim, by this comparative proportion, seems to be much more then that of Manassell, and so we finde it at the muster and number of the people, Numb. 1. 33, 37, but when Moses blessed them, the Tribe of Manassen was more numerous, Numb. 26.34,37. yet Moles over-looks the present overplus of the Tribe of Manasseh, foreseeing, and forestelling that Ephraim should overtake it, and overge it in the multitude of his troopes in furnises.

V. 18. in thy going out In thy prosperous voyages by Sea, according to that Gen. 49.13, and thy going out to war against in thy tents In thy peaceable habitation in pasturing of cattel, and other exercises of husbandry, whereto he so addicted himself, that he had rather submit, like a strong As to a double burden of Tribute, then fight for his freedom from it. Gen.

V. 19. unto the mountain ] To the mount where Mofes by the fpirit of Prophesie, foresaw the Temple should be seared, See they [hall suck] The former part of the verse of inviting to the holy mountain, may be meant of both the Tribes fore-mentioned, but this of sucking of the abundance of the Seas, is mentiones, but was nucking or the abundance or the Seas, is to be appropriated to Zebulun, who being commodioully fluate for merchandile, reaped great benefit by the Seas, and by the Cities feated upon the Sea (hore, which is fandy ground, where-of iffacher had fome, though Zebulun more, or more commodious for traffique.

Annot. on Chap. 33.12.

ous for transque.

V. 20. That enlargeth Gad] Either by giving him more feope and compais for his company, as John 17. 15. or by delivering him out of straights when he is distressed, Pfal. 4. 1, 2. Chron.5.18,20,21.

i Chron, 5.18,20,21.
reareth the arm with That is, catching the prey like a Lion, who greedily feifeth on the arm and head together; so that he shall prevail over the strong, and pull down the dignified; for that prevail over the trongs, and pull down the dignified; for the arm is the fittingest part, the crown of the head the highest, V. 11, previded the first part for himself] That is, he, with the Reubenites and half Tribe of Manasseh, got the first portion of Land which was on this fide Jordan, to those which journeyed towards Cansan out of Egypt: See Numb. 32. 23. 29, 33. Langiver] That is, Moles; for he had not his portion by lor. as others had, but by his own request, and Moses his grant, he came with the heads A prophelie for affeveration and affurance, fet down in the phrase of an history, as if already the deed were done: it imports the ferwardness of that Tribe, who would be as ready as the best, to execute the justice of the Lord upon the Canaanites. and his judgements] Which God had denounced against with Ifrael ] For though the Gadites, with the Reubenites, and half tribe of Manaffeh, had their parton this fide Jordan, they undertook the conquest on the other fide, with the rest of they intertoon, Numb. 2, 12, 29, 33.

V. 22. Dan is a Lieux white I As a fierce young Lion, lesping from the hils of Bashau (where he was bred) to catch, the Dd is grey.

Chap. xxxiv.

prey. So is the fimilitude; yet Bathan was a part of the portion | of Manasteh, not of Dan, Deut. 3.13. but the smilitude is in regard of quality, not of place 3. and in this he is resembled (as Judah was I to a Lyon, Gen. 40, 9. and the Danies were valo-rous, of which Tribe were more warriours numbered, Num. 1. then of any other Tribe but Judah, ver. 22,39. Or it may note the disposition of the Danites to hunting and living upon prey

V 23. Naphtali fatisfied with favour? His portion was most pleasant and fruitful by land; and for for ain dainties his situation neer the Sea furnished him with abundance by his traffick with the Sidonians, Tyrians, and Phenicians, fo that he might very well be fatisfied who neither wanted contentment for the quantity or quality of defireable provision.

V. 34. diphis fost in of ] In his portion thall be great flore of oyl, not onely to anoint the face, but to supple the feet; This or oyl, not onely to anome the sace, but to tupple the rect; I his is agreeable to Jacobs prediction, Gen. 49. 40.

V. 25. ivos and briefe! At the feet where thou treadedt shall be Minss of chole metals which thou shalt dig in great abundance. be Mines of those metals which thou shale dag in great shundance; of it may be means of flengshening their shoose with mailes or plates of the means of the state of the means of the state of the state note out, my trength that note out and not miss tras with Moles, Chap. 34.7. Or, the bonour and power of the Tribe of After shall not decay with age, as usually a mans personal strength doth, but it shall continue in vigour and virtue which fall not fail or languish with continuation of time.

V. 26. 6 # # [muril] See the Annot, on Chap. 32.1 f.

in thy bele ] For thy help. in thy help! For thy help.
V. 27. underretels are the weet lefting ormes! Gods protection over his people is above, and beneath, and both everlasting.
V. 22. in [afers alone] Without any enemy to challenge, or

V. 38. in fajety alone | Without any enemy to challenge, or usury any part of his promited position. See Num. 32, the fourtain | That is, the posserity of Jacob spread abroad like the overflowing of a Fountain Pfal. 88. 47. & Ha. 48. 1. & Rev. 17. 15. Or, the funtain of Jacob, may be his plentiful bleffing, which floweth from God as a Fountain that cannot (not as a ciwhich noweth from God as a Fountain that values (for as a cithern that may) be drawn dry. Some for the familia of facil, read the rea of facil, and the meaning then is, that he shall feed and delight his eye in the fruitfulnesse of his land abounding with good corn and wine.

his beguns The heaven's spread over the land of his habita-

V. 39. Interd of the excellency God is not onely a Buckler of defence to his people, but a Sword of affault against their enemies, whom by his affishance they shall excel, and gloriously conquer in combate with them. Sce Pfal.44.5,6,7.

found igers ] Either in their propheties of tryumph over thee or in faining and lying like the Gibconics to cutry favour with chee, Joh.g. 4. Pfal. 18.44. & 66.3. bigh places See Annot, on Chap. 32.15.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Verl. 1. Plaint of Mosh! A part of the wilderneffe where pronounced his laft heling upon them.

Type) I part of Mount Abarim. See Annor, on Num.

2.11.
Fifet) Nebo was one of the Mountains of Abatim, and among them the bigled; and Flight was the highest top of Nebo, thinker he alonged; it com thence, he had the tairest and truest profped of the Lands (2.012).

or the Land of Called! The land of Gilead is here taken largely the land of Gilead! The land of Gilead is here taken largely for that part of the land which was bestowed upon the Reute-nies, Gadires, and half Tribe of Manusch, before the Heathes nies, Gadites, and balk Tribe of Mansflich, before the Ifactires to affect over Jordan to take goldefino of the Land of Canasa for the other These, and Mofas being on the top of Pfight which afforded him a profpect every way, he fift eath his eyes upon till the profit of the profit fight to the furweigh of the other part of Canaan beyond Jordan.

graf material and the first starting of the st unto Das] A City anciently called Lefhem, Jan. 19.47. or Laifh, Judg. 18.27, 29. but afterward poffeffed by the Danites, it was called Dan; it was the furthest part of the Land of Canaan towards the North, as Beer hebe was toward the South; and by thefe two were the utmost limitations of it fet out. See Judg.

V. 2. all Maphtali, and the land ] Their portions were not feverally assigned them in Moses time therefore he either uttered this by the Spirit of Prophetie, as that this was afterward by lot to be the portion of the Tribe of Naphtali; or it was written not by Mofes, but by some other facred pen-man of the Hole Ghoft, who wrote the reft of this Chapter from ver. 5.to the end and all the land of Judab] The like may be understood of the Land allotted to the other Tribes, for his profpe & was not limited to those particularly named. stmoft Sea ] The Mediterranean Sea; the Hebrews ufe to call any great confluence of waters, Sea; and they called this the utmoft Sea, because it was the utmost bound of the Land of Canaan.

V. 3. valley of Heriebo] This was in the Tribe of Benjamin.
eity of palme-trees] lericho is so called, because it abounded with Palme-trees, Joseph. Antiq. lib. 4. cap. 5.

Zoar] Lots place of refuge, fituate neer the Lake Alphaltites;

whereof fee Annot, on Gen.19.20. V. s. dyed] And he dyed (as some, who scem exact in the compuration of time, affirm) the third or fourth day of the moneth Adar, which answereth to our February : from hence the reft of the Chapter (and it may be the whole ) was not written by of the Chapter (and it may be the whole) was not written by Mofes, but by some other by the Lords appointment, who is thought by some to be Erra, but by others more probably Johna, The like observation is to be made of the Book of Johna, made by Johns untill the 28, verse of the last Chapter, but from the 29, where his death is mentioned, is thought to be supplyed by Samuel, Ezra, or King Hezekiah.
V. 6. be buried him] The Lord himself, without any humane act or ayd, prepared a grave for Moses, and laid his body in it, having taken his foul unto himfelf.

over against Beth Peer] The place of that abominable Idol fore-mentioned, Chap. 3.19. & 4.46.

but no man knowth) For though it be faid, he was buried in a valley in the land of Moab over against Beth-Pior, that was fo great in space of ground, that the particular grave might be altogether unknown; especially Gods purpose being to conceal he would leave no outward appearance of it, left the Ifraelices should have made it an occasion of Idolutry. But why had Mofes possession of the land of Moab by his barial, when God faid. he would give the Ifraclites none of the land of Moab? for anfrer to this doubt, fee Annot. on Chap.2.9.

V. 7. his eye was not ] See Annot, on Chap. 31.2. V. 7. mu eye 20.53 2011 Dee Annot, on Unap. 3.1.5.
V. 8. thirty dayes! It was the manner to make thirty dayes the measure of mourning for principal Rulers, whether of the Church or State, so long was Aaron Jamented for, Num.

V.9. and Foshuah ____ was full of ] Mereby appeareth the Eavour of God, that leaveth nor the Church destitute of a Go-bands upon bim ] See Annot, on Num. 8.10.

bends upon bim] See Annot, on Num. 8.10.

V. 10. fine? By this is fearn that this part of Deuteronomy was written not perfeatly, but a good while after the death of Mosse: or, for fine bim, we may read leighte him, according to Orne Translations, (which accord well enough with the Original) and so the Writer having the Spirit of Prophesse, might speak not for his own time, but for a good while after.

face to face | Unto whom the Lord did reveal himfelf fo plain-See Annot, on Exod. 33.11. & on Num. 12.8.

V.11. In all the fignes That is, there is none like him in might and miraculous operations; whereby the Lord magnified his own Majefty, and dignified his fervant Moles his Miniffery. This is no prejudice to the praise of John Baptist, whole excellency did not confift in fignt and wonders, nor in fuch familiarity with God, but in other graces wherein he was exceeded by

ANNOT-

ANNOTATIONS

On the Book of ToshuA.

The ARGUMENT

THe main scope of the koly Ghost in this Book of Joshua, is to glorific God, by the manifestation of his Truth in his Promises, and his Power and All-sufficiency in performance : For whereas he had promised unto Ahraham Gen. 12. four hundred years before, That he would give unto his Posterity the Land of Canaan for a Possession, he remaineth 7. & 13: firm and constant in his Word: And though they provoked him to wrath by their hainous fins, and wilfull rebellions, 15.8 15. both in Egypt and in the Wildernesse, and thereby suffly moved him to nullisse his Promises, and either wholly to de-Exod. 22. stroy them, or at least to cast them off from being his People; yet he rather dispenseth with their sins, and exerciseth his 10. partience and long-suffering, in bearing with their evil manners in the Wildernesse, rather then that their unbe- Acts 13. liefshould make the Faith of GOD of none essent or cause any of his gracious Promises such that their unbe- Acts 13. unaccomplished. So also is Gods Almightie Power in this Book magnified and gloristed, and He mightily declared to Rom. 43. be the Lord of Hofts, by giving unto such a poor contemptible People, whose parents were lately Bond-slaves in the Land of Egypt So great and glorious Victories over Such Warlike Nations, and Such a numerous multitude of puissant enters: Unto which we may adde the manifestation and clorifying shaffus in rooting out these cursed Nations, when their sins were encreased to a full measure; but yet withall some mix ture of Mercy with this just Genas. feverity, in faving some of the Hivites from this common destruction, and from being (as it were) drowned in this 16. generall deluge : Mercy, I say, towards them, in sparing their lives; and towards his own People, in providing for them servants and slaves to do their basest works, that they, in the mean time, as a Royall Nation, might be priviledged, and exempted from such servile drudgery. Another end aymed at in this History, and subordinate to the other, is to describe, and set out to the life, a worthy Prince, and a truely-valiant and victorious Generall, both in his person, parts and properties, in the example of Joshua, as a President and Pattern to all such as are of like Calling and Condition: and that Whether We respect his piety towards God, his justice and charity towards men, or his temper-ance and sobriety towards himself. In respect of God, he is described to be pious, and religious, both in his personall holinesse, and in his publike Calling, as he was a Generall and chief Commander: For he was a man truely fearing God, a strict observer of his Commandements, neither declining to the right hand nor to the left, a worshipper of God in sincerity and truth; and so zealous and resolved in the true Religion and maies of godlinesse, that though he had no other among all the people to joyn with him, yet he professeth, That he and his housbold would serve the Lord. So in Josh. 24. his particular Calling he is propounded as a fit pattern and prefident to all of his Rank: for he wholly dependeth on his 13. chief Soveraign, the King of kings, and Lord of Holks, for his direction and protection: he attempteth nothing of any moment, till he hath first consulted with God, and then he goeth on with undaunted courage, when he commandeth him, against many and mighty enemies: He trusteth not in the arm of Flesh, in his own or the peoples policy and power, but onely relyeth on Gods Promises and Providence; and having his assistance, he is most couragious; but when he seeming difficased, withdraweth his helping hand how is he humbled and dejetted for the losse onely of six and Josh 7.4. thirtie men? Finally, in all his famous Victories he arrogateth no part of the praise unto himself, but ascribeth the Whole glory unto God, as being the principall cause of all his Conquests. In respect also of his carriage towards men, he is propounded as a fingular pattern of Justice and Charity: for being to divide the conquered Land among the people by Lot, as God commanded, he obeieth his Will with all uprightnesses, shewing therein no favour, partiality, or respect of persons, as appeareth in his dealing with his own Tribe; for when (presuming, it may be, on his neernesse unto them in blood and kindred ) they made suit unto him for the enlarging of their Inheritance, under a fair pretence, That their portion was to strait for their numerous Tribe, herefused to gratifie them by scanting others, but retorteth their argument upon themselves namely. That if they were so numerous they were the better able to enlarge their Borders, by their own endeavours; and To putteth them upon labour, to fit the Mountain for their habitation, Josh 171. by felling down the Woods; and upon danger also, by fighting with and driving out the inhabitants of the Valley, though 143143 they were a firong People, and had iron Chariots. His Charity and Love also appeareth, in seeking the peoples wel-fair and prosperity with all his endeavours : for whereas the love and favour of God was the chief ground of their prelent and future happinesse, and there was no other meanes to preserve it unto them, then by their cleaving close unto him in his pure Worship, and shunning Idolatry, he is not onely carefull to maintain it in purity and sincerity all his dayes, but when he was stricken in age, and ready to dye, it was his chief care to have it continued after his departure; and calling together all the Heads and Elders of the people he useth all his art and policy to make a firm Covenant between God and them, That they would cleave onely unto him, and utterly abolish all Idolatry and false worship. Josh, 280 Lastly, he is propounded to all Princes and great Commanders, as a Mirrour of Temperance, Sobriety, and Contentation, in that having in his hand, by reason of his sumous Conquests, so great Power and Authority, that he might have commanded what he list, yet he aspireth not to any Regal Soveraignty, nor to enrich himself with a vast estate, or large inheritance, but resteth contented with such a proportion as by Gods providence was allotted unto him amongst the rest of his Brethren. The last End at Which this Scripture aimeth, is mystically and typically expressed; for Joshua is here propounded as a Type of our Lord Jesus Christ, the onely true Saviour of his Elect People: And so this purpose, that he might more fitly represent this great Saviour of the Church, the Prophet foretold and promised by Moles, his Deut. 18: name is changed by him; and whereas he was before called Oshea, he was afterwards named Joshua, or Jehoshua, 18. being the same name that was given to Christ our onely Saviour; because, as he in a fort was to save his People out Num. 13: of the hands of their earthly enemies by a temporary deliverance and to bring them into the Land of Canaan, as their Reflection and Inherit ance: so our Jesus, presignred by him, was to save all his Elest People out of the hands of all their Spirituall enemies and to give them, as their possession, the heavenly Canaan, of which the other was but a Type : And as this could not be effected by Moses the Law-giver, but was left unto Joshua as his proper Work, unto which God called and affigned him; fo this was to fignific unto us, That the Ministery of the Law, with all its legall Ordinances and Performances, can never bring its into the heavenly Canaan, but is wholly left to be accomplished by our Joh. 6; true Johna and Savion, as his peculiar Work, unto which he is called and fealed by his Father, who hath vanguish ed all our Spirituall enemies, and will give unto sus, at his second appearing, both in our souls and bodies, the full possession and fruition of our holy and happie Inheritance in his heavenly Kingdom, unto all Eternity.

THe Best of Johna 1 It is called the Book of Johna, because it containeth the Historic of the acts of Johna, in his Government, Conquests, dividing the Land, and setling of the State and Commonwealth of Israel, and because (as it is most probable) it was penned by Joshua; following herein the exwealth of Hrace; and occasic (as it is most proposed; it was penned by Johna; following herein the example of Mofes his Predeceffor. Howfoever fome paffages in this Book, could not be penned by himfelf, as containing fome things which were done after his death, but were afterward inferted by fome holy. Man of God inspired by the Spirit.

CHAP. I.

Ow ] Hebr. And it bapened or came Om J. Hebr. And it hopered on came to people. With which copulative the florie is continued and kait to the cond of the Book of Deuteronomy, a saits suffault with the Hebrews. So Ruth 1.1, Judg. 1. r. 1 Sam. 1. 1. & 2 Sam. 1. 1.

after the death] i.e. After the funerall mournings for his death were ended, which lafted 30. dayes, Deut. 34.8.

Mofer the fervant of the Lord | So called, not onely in a com-

susperior process of the Lord 1. Do called, not onely in a com-mon and ordinary fenfe as other men, but in forcial relation to the qualitie and nature of his fervice, as being Gods Depu-tic and Vicegerent, in guiding, influriding and governing of the people of Itale. It which title, God did more honour him, then if he floud have called him, in a bare relation to the could be being as Wise of Hosal scheduled. Done the people of times. By writing times, so on the mode modes in the control of the people of times. By writing times are provided a simple of times and the people of times of times of times are people of times. By the people of times of t

That is Let f field; I.e. Not immediately by hintlelf as be fixed to Mofe, and as it were face to face, for this was his peculiar privileige, Erod. 32.11. Numb. 12.8, but either by form of the proper of an Angel, or by trifon, be being waking to by a decam in his fleep, of which fee Numbar 7. Which waiter made funds a deep imperion, that the things revealed ware of 6 in fallible runb, that there could be no feruple or Author of the Could be the Dischlaration face him. doubt of them. Or, finally, by the Priefts inquiring for him by Urim and Thummim, which is moft probable; leeing this manner of revealing Gods will, to Joshua is plainly foretold, manuser of tereamy gods wants of some are properly from the first file of the tinuall example, well prepared and fitted for the wife manage ing of all the affaires of Church and common wealth; and therefore above all others most fitto succeed him in his place of government. "... Mojes my fervant] namely, my Vice-gerent, in gui-ding and governing of my people in the wildentife, whom I honour by owning him for my faithfull fervant, in the per-formance of all duties required of him in that his place and calling of the control of the contro fathers that I would give unto them.

sabers itat i would give unto them.

mus therefore utife! That is, make no delaies, the exjection of the State requiring prefers dispatch but feeing!

have defined and follemly conforcated thee, to fucced him in the same of the same requiring the same same of the same and qualified thee by my fipits with wifedome and fortitude, go prefernly about this work unto which I have called therefore arife] That is, fit not fill demurring on the matter, but presently prepare thy self for the undertaking of all actions and affaires which belong to thy place of Captain-over this Fordan] The greatest river of Canaan, running a long the land, and falling into the lake Asphaltites, or Dead lea, whereit minglieth its fweet waters with thole which are pitchie and pelliferous, by which being hindred from flowing, it becommeth a dead lake or fea. This river arifeth from the root or bottome of libanus; and that (as fome write) from a double fountain, one on the right fide, called Dan, the other whether did lake I are on the left, called Jor.

The Forder This is here added to shew the neernesse of this river to the place called Shittim, where their campe was now pitched; others think that this Pronoun is added by way or emphans.

Thou and all this people] i.e. Thou as becommeth a good Generall, conducting and encouraging them by thy example; and all the people, namely, the ten Tribes and an half, with the fourty thousand of the Reubenites, Gadites and half the Tribe of Manaffe, who were appointed to affift them in this expedi-tion; foras for the rest of the two Tribes and an half, they were permitted to flay on this other fide of Jordan, in their Cities which they had built and repaired, with their wives, children and cattle. unto the land which I give to them] That is, in reall possession, as before I gave it by promise and right, Deut. 11. 24. Where the pronounc [I] hath its speciall emphasis, 4. I and no other, because none but God alone, without violation of justice can take a countrey from the ancient inheritours and give it unto others. And he may do it as the supream Lord and owner of the whole earth, being his, and the fulnefie thereof to dispose of it, as his proper right, according to his pleasure, Pfal. 24.1.

even to the children of Ifrael This is purposely added because when God changed Jacobs name into Israel, he then promised her people the Pience or King of Hraef, as he is called, Deuther people the Pience or King of Hraef, as he is called, Journe the people the Herofree David more glorithin this title, as 13-23-24 the phis pathericall exchanation and reduplication of people people. The people p V. 3. Every place Namely, which by covenant I have pro-tuem, and by reason or their postesse and in, never gave the whole land promised into their possession. That bave I given! This is added for their singular incongement against all doubts and difficulties, seeing the Lord had given it them, who had fupream right unto what he gave, and omnipotent power to maintain his right against all oppoiets.

As I faid unto Mofer] According to my covenant which I made with Abraham, Ilaac and Jacob, and have lately renewed with Mofes, Deut. 11. 24. for the better confirmation of your faith, seeing it is fresh in your memorie.

V. 4. from the wilderneste] In this verle God delcribeth and boundeth the whole country, given to the fireditts for their inheritance, from the three regions that butted upon them. First, from the wildernesse of fin on the South. Secondly, from Lebanon, the highest and greatest mountain of all Syria, extending it felt from bidon to Damafcus, and bounall Syria, extending it fell from sidon to Damascus, and bounding the land of promile on the North. Thirdly, the great feather is, the Miditerranean fea, (called great in comparison of the petry feas or lakes of Palefline) which bounded the land on the Weft, Numb. 24.6. And is therefore called the Umoof Fa, Deuts. 1.4. And fourthly, the river Euphranes, the confirms on the Eaft, which is not here named, because from this part these bounds are thewed unto Johnu by God.

All the land of the Hittiter.] Which is here specially named, in the special control of the proposed one for all the freen maintons. as else where Mitthe land of the Hittine J Which is here incensive atmes, either by a Synedoche for all the feven nations, as elfe where the Amorites; or as some think, for a speciall purpole, namely, to strengthen Joshus's faith againful difficulties, leeing he hand a speciall promife from God of vanquishing the Hitters, who seemed most invincible, as being a more warlike and puiffant nation then any of the reft.

iliant nation then any of the rett.

V. 5. Ther [ball not any mean be able to fissal before ther] Which words are added for a further encouragement, seeing they had from God a speciall promise, that though their enemies far exceeded them both in number, strength, and all warlike preparations. rations, yet God would give unto them the victorie in the day of battle.

of Dattie.

All the dages of the Hife] i.e. Thou shalt not onely have some good beginnings in thy undertaking; but shalt have a constant and continual tenour of happie successe. And he gives ha reason hereof for the further constraint on of his faith, namely, reason nereor tor the tuttner construction or as ratan, mainty, because he would be ever present with him, as he had formerly been with Moses, and give him his affishance in all his enterprizes, unto whom nothing is hard or difficult.

as I was with Mofes] i.e. As Mofes prevailed in all his unms two wino colors i.e. As moves prevaided in air as uni-dertakings, and was not onely fupported in all the difficulties of his government of a fliffe-necked, murmuring and rebelli-cus people, but also vanquithed and fubdued all those mission his fide Jordan, which rose up against him, only by my misson his fide Jordan, which rose up against him, only by my power affilting him; fo thair thou likewife profper, both in thy Chap. i. government in which thou fucceedeft him, and allo in all thy difficulties, and profper thee in all thy actions which thou un warlike expeditions against thy enemies.

I will not leave thee nor for sake thee si.e. I will alwaies be present with thee to assist thee by my power and Spirit, in all those enterprizes which thou undertakest at my command, so as shou thalt easily atchieve them though they feem never so diffiand that camp accepte ment through any term never to diffi-cult; and therefore go on with Courage, stelling upon me for good fucceffe, not onely in thy firth beginnings, but be affured that I will never faile thee unto the end. The like incourage-ment be given Mofes, Deut. 3 1.6. And thus David flrengthneth his faith in the time of a defertion, Pfalm. 27.9.

verf. 6. Be firing and of a good courage] Though Joshua was exceeding valiant, yet the work which he is now to undertake, had in it fo many great difficulties, that the Lord thought it not Superfluous to repeat often these incouragements, seeing in point of government he was to fulfain a heavie burthen, in re-ipect of the perverse disposition of the people; and to undergo many difficulties and dangers in respect of the enemies whom many dimedites and dangers in respect of the enemies whom he was to incounter, as being men of valt and Giant-like fla-ture and ftrength, and dwelling in Cities with high wals and strongly fortified.

For unto this people thou fhalt divide, &c. ] i. e. Be couragious in undertaking in respect of the greatnesse of thy reward; seeing hereby thou fhalt attain unto an higher degree of honour ing nervy twoir mark acting through an expect or township the n't youchfafea' unto Mofes. For he onely led them through the wilderneffe, but was not permitted to bring them into the promified land, whereas thou shalt not onely subdue all these nations, but also divide their land amongst thy people, and fettle them in it as their inheritance, as by oath I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, that I would do in the fourth generation, which time is now come.

V. 7. Onely be thou strong, Ecc. 3 Where he not onely requireth courage and resolution in Joshua, but also sheweth him the onely fure foundation upon which it was to be grounded, namely, his obedience to Gods law which was deliveded, namely, his obedience to Gods law which was delivered unto them by the Miniflery of his fervant Mofes, the which he was to make the rule of his whole life, not retrying from it, either on the one fide or the other, in any extreame of excelle or defect, through fuperflittion or prophanelle; a adding unto it, or detracking from it. Without which, though there may be in Caprianes and Commanders deferret anlanelle, yet nor its fortiside over every decidence of the caprianes and commanders deferred analysis, in one to be underflood of perfect and exact legal obsellence, who which degree in mortal law and the control of the caprianes and the control of the caprianes and the control of the caprianes and the caprianes are control of the caprianes. The caprianes are caprial to the caprial to the caprianes are caprial to the caprianes are caprial to indeavours, which God in Christ accepteth from us. God requireth not impossibilities of those who are in Christ; but onely by his strict commands admonisheth us what we ought to doe, and teacheth us to pray for what we cannot which Mofes my fervant commanded thee? This obedience Deut. 5,32. & 28. 14. But is particularly applyed to Johna, to put him and all supream Governors in mind, that such obe-

to put thin and all fupreams. Governors in mind, that fuch obscience is principally required of them, feeing their example is as a law to all their fubices.

**that thou mainly profer whitherforcer than gooff i.e. That thou mainly than the good fucetile in all they actions and understings as it is expounded, Deut. 2.9. and for this phale, I will be seen to be supported to the standard profession of the profession of the standard profession of the standard profession of the standard profession of the standard profession to the full profession of the standard professin awares scale to unter the noy meantains of thy mind and heart, abounding as a good reafurie, with the knowledg of God and his law, Piell. 1. T. & 108.1. Matth. 12.34.35. but their folds meditate therein day and night jie. Thou shalt continually take all opportunities to think and consider of it, as being the onely rule to direct thee in all private and publike affaires, Plalm. 119. 105. Deut.17. 18. not departing or declining from it at any time, or in any thing, either to the right hand or to the left: neither is it sufficient for thee to read and hand or to the lett; neither is it folicient for thee to read and know it, or to mediate and ponder on it in all its precepts and palliges, unlefic thou alfo doeft oblerve and practife it in the whale courfe of thy life. And fo that thou carry, by ell pru-dently and prospersolly in all thy undertakings, and have good luccells in all they counfell and enterprises. V. 9. Have not I communded thee? ] Here field God con-fresh, bits because of the control of the control frienth in by a divine vocation, and then by a promife of his efficacious preferce. The former is propounded by way of interrogation, which is used with the Hebrews for a ftrong affirmation; Have not I commanded thee ? i.e. I have without all question affuredly done it , So Gen. 13.9. 2 Sam. 13. 28. 2 Kings 6. 32. q.d. Do what I require with an undaunted dertakest at my command.

for the Lord thy God is with thee] Which is a promise for his better incouragement of Gods speciall prefence and affiftance; neither are we tounderstand it of Gods presence in all places, but of a fingular prefence of his special favour to affift him in all his enterprizes, to preferve him in all difficulties and dangers, and to protect him against all his

V. 10. Then Foshua commanded the officers of the people ] i e. Such as were appointed by the Princes and Magistrates to publish their decrees and ordinances to the people, that taking notice of them, they might observe and obey them.

V. 11. Prepare you victivalls] That is, all provisions fit for fuch an expedition, saving bread, for manna was not yet ceafed, till they were entred into the land of Canaan, and had eaten of the old come of the land, cap. 4.12.

for within three dayes [ Which mult necessarily be understood of the time after the returne of the Spies fent to view Jericho, though the flory of their fending thither be related in the next Chapter, for they spent some time in going thicker, one night there and in their escape, and three dayes in the mountaines, that the pursuers might not meet with them. Neither was it to any purpose to send the Spies to view Jericho, if they did not flay where they were till they returned, to relate unto them in what condition they found it-

which the Lord your God giveth you Which words are added, to make the people couragious and cheerfull in this expedition, feeing it was Jehovah that called them unto it, who oution, item greats Jenovan and cancel them matorit, who was Almighty and al-fufficient to give them good fucceffe, and allo their God, and therefore most gracious and propicious to beliff and prosper them, so as there could be no cause of icar and doubting, feeing neither power nor will were wanting in givethyou to possesse it ] And this also tendeth to their furthe incorragement, feeing God gave it unto them, not onely for a prefent bootic or prey, as he did when they vanquified the Midmires, but that they and their pofferity might poffifie it as their own hereditarie right, by Gods speciall gift.

V. 11. And to the Reshentes (&C.] That is, their Elders and Princes, who were to relate it to the reft of their Tribes.

V. 13. Remember the word] i.e. The agreement and cove-V. 13. Remember the world j.t. The agreement had cover-nant which was between you and Moles, Numb. j.147.20. given part #f. j.e. A place of reft for your wives, children, and cattle, namely, that part of the land in which you then were on this fide Jordan, Numb. 31.33. 1. p. pffe before your breathern armed J Nor that they were to be always in the ware great or form of the battle, (and as it were the forlorn hope), but onely that they should accompanie them in all their warfar, and be present with them in all their expeditions; for the word here used fignifieth not a precedenexpectations; for the word here titled lightest not a preceden-cie in place, but onely a prefence and concomitance; and thereby is meant, that they should be alwaies ready to joyn with their brethren in Sighting against their enemies, armed] i.e. Marshalled in a military order.

all the mighty men of valour | Not all of these Tribes (for the nost of them were to slay still in the countrey allotted to them, to guard it, with their wives and children from the in-rodes of their bordering enemies;) but those onely who were the choicest and most valourous men, and were the fittest to do the best service.

V. 16. And they answered Josbua] That is, as some suppose, the two Tribes and half, to whom his speech was formerly di-rected, or (as others more probably think) not onely the two Tribes and an half but together with them all the rest of the people by their Princes, Elders and Tribunes, seeing this anfwer equally belongeth to all the people, and is not peculiar to fore causily belongeth to all the people, and is not peculiar to their Tribes onely, as posnifing unto Joftua the like willing and cherrill lordeience which they had yielded to Moles; a cleptically in the latter times of his governmen, when as those murmuring and rebellious people were confismed and defitored, and their of their poletrity were come in their places.

V. 17, onely the Let d hy Gal for with they! Which is not to be underftood as a condition of their promifed obedience. but a joyfull acclamation, or cheerfull with and prayer, which they use to make for their Kings and supream Magistrates in they decomate to their tangs and objects magnitudes in their fiftlinguization, and entrance into their government, I King. 1.3 4. q.d. The Lord bleffe thee in thy government, and 6 be with thee, and prefer thee in all thy enterprizes, as he was with Moles, who never failed to obtain happie victories over all his enemies, with whom he fought.

V. 18. who focuer he be that doth rebell, &c.] In which words, they binde themselves unto absolute obedience to all his lawfull commands, under a most severe fanction of corporali pu-

a Kings 6.31. 4.4. Do what I require with an unuauntecourage, temembring who it is that enjoyneth it namely, thy courage him to flew fach valour and fortitude, as betterm-God, who is all-fufficient to preferve thee in all dangers and that onely be strong and of a good courage] Where they exhort and incourage him to shew such valour and fortitudes as beforemChap.ij. charmsching on their part thould be wanting, whereby they | that whereas the contracteth for the lives of her Father, Momay approve themselves worthy the candud of such a Cap-

CHAP. IL.

Verl.: And Johns she foame of Nan fest out But why did Johns take this courfe, having had formerly experience of the ill succelle which Mofes had in the like action ? I Aufwer that there was great differene between this and that fending of Spies, both in respect of the actors, motives, Joshua alone, and that by speciall instinct of the Spirit, or at Johns alone, and that by special instruct or the Spirits of at the least frequent cods, that primarily and principally by the infligation of the people. For though it be laid that God commanded them to find the Spirit, Namb. 13, 14. Yet it was not done simplic because God approved it, but because the nor done impute occasion to a providente, not pocasion the people due of their fear and diffilience required it, and thereforching are way to their importunity, when they would not otherwise be fait field, blur yet afterwards did punish it with ill forcette. For Gods first command was that they Should prefently go up without fear and discouragement, and podesse the land. Deut. 1.21. But when the people demurred ponit, and out of fear and infidelity would not obey it, then sponst, and out or sear and innoenly would not duey it, then the Lord conditionaling to their weakneffe, given hip way of permifilm a fecond command, that they thould lend 1 2. pixs to fearth the land. Secondly, This was done feeredly, soman knowfearch the Jand Secondly, this was done fercetly atomas know-ing of it, faving Johna, and the . Spiestwhom the choice as it-neen for this imployment. That openly by publise command, and performed by retire men of jordal induce and chief valours, but as the event thereof, yen or them not unift for find a deligan Tairdly, their gaves consorting the properties of the land of the properties of the properties of the con-lone as where receivers, so which was the occifion of their maximizing and tebelian. Sourthly, Johnasénasa awits Generall out of a prudent providence to view the Citie, that be might be certified of the strength of its fortifications, and me migat re-cerunes or the intended of its formactions, and the humber and courage of the inhabitants, that he might ac-cordingly manage the warr, and prepare for the (eige. But thole, though they propounded the fame ends, yet nor with the like mind, or induced with the fame motives, but only out of diffrultful feare, and relying herein more upon their own reafon and providence, then upon Gods promiles and powerfull affiltance, as plainly appeared in the event.

But what needed all this adoe in fending and fearching the land, if Joshua believed Gods promise, that he would cast out their enemies, and give unto them their land for a poffelfion ? I aniwer, our faith is never fo ftrong, but that it ftill needeth further confirmation: As we fee in the example of Gedeon, who though he be commended for his faith, yet needed to have it confirmed by divers fignes, Heb. 11. 32. Judgo. 37. & 7.910. Fifty, though we be affured of the end, yet this mult not fliken our ditigence in the use of the meanes which conduce unto the end, and serve Gods providence for the attaining unto it; yea, rather it may move us to use them with more confidence and comfort, seeing we have before-hand affurance of good fuccesse.

out of Shintim 1 In the plaines of Moab, where they then encamped, Numb. 35. 49. (and not farre diffant from the Dead sea) so called from the abundance of trees of that name which grew about it. In which place the Ifraelites committed whoredome with the Midianitish women, Numb.

so fpic feerety] Heb filently, i.e. To spic out the Land with as much filence and secrecie as they could, and that chiefly in as much mence and recreated as respect to their own people the Israelites, from whom they were to keep it secret, that they might not now again be difcouraged with rumors, as they were before, Numb. 13. 28. 32. and also in respect of the people of the Land, that they might not discover and apprehend them, and strustrate the Go view the land even [ericho] The land, for their more con venicat entrance and commodious encamping, and chiefly Jericho, in the conflaces of the land of Canaan, to discover its strength and fortifications, and the best meanes whereby it might be befeiged and mastered.

euen Feriche So called from the figure of the plain wherein it was scituate, resembling a new Moon, or from the sweet smell of Ballam which there abounded, as also Palm-trees, whereof it was also called the Citic of Palm-trees, Judg. 1.16. Deut. 34 .31 2 Chron. 28 15. A place most fragrant and LIMIT, 24. 21. Chron. 28. 15. A place most tragent and cruifull, which wainlength termic Budia, and in breadth Finestie, as Josephus defenibeth it.

As habitarboid seared Rabbi | Some translate it an Hoteffic or In-keeper; just the word most commonly figuites han Hadongand it on been to be taken as the Anophise that the Anaport is the profit of the common translate in the Anaport is the profit of the common translate in the Anaport is the Anaport in the Anaport in ther, Brothers, Sifters and kindred, the maketh no mention of met, posoners, sucres and kindred, he maketh no meation of an humband, verf. 13. Although it is probable that she had now before the spite came to her house, left that courfe of life, and repeated of her fame, a superareth by her communication, with them, which favouresh of religion and the true fear of with mem, which layoureth of religion and the trite fear of God, and besides the Aposlle plainly offirmeth, that she acted her taith in lodging of these spies, which she could not have done, unlesse she had before believed and was truly converted. In whose example we have a singular evidence of Gods free and infinite grace and goodnesse, who in the common deluge of destruction, not onely saved this poor Heathen and Harlot, together with her family and kindred, but also vouchsafed unto her the honour to be married to Salmon, a Prince of the Tribe of Judah, and so not onely to be converted to the faith, and religion of the Liraclites, but also to be one in the number of the arents of our Saviour Christ himself, according to the flesh, Marth I.S.

and lodged there] To whole house as they were directed by antiongen note; I to whote house as they were arrected by Gods specially providence for their safties, so it was by them made othorecof as a place anost convenient for their prefers concession, as being in a remove corner upon the wall of the Citie, and therefore secret, easily come unto unobserved, as being neer the gate, as it is most probable, and when they were there were most likely to be hidden and concealed, a place high and eminent, from whence they might conveniently take a view and prospect of the Citie and countrey adjoyning; and from whence also they might most fitty make an escape if they were discovered.

V. 2. And it was told Namely, (as it is most probable) by fuch as were appointed to keep the watch, and to observe in these times of danger, when their formidable enemies approached so neer unto their Citie, who came in and went out of the gates, and were any waies liable to sulpition.

the come in bither to night lie. Late in the evening, before the gates were fhut, that fo they might more Conveniently lip by to their lodging undiscovered.

V. 3. [ent unto Rahab] being certified that they were come to her house to lodge there.

for they be come to fearch out all the countrey | i.e. For they are infoitious men, who in all probability are tent hither as spies to learch and discover unto them all advantages for the invading of the country and furprising our Citie.

V. 4. And the woman took the two men] i.e. Whom the knew by their discovery of themselves, what they were, from whence they came, and upon what defign, file (upon her conference with them, and the reports which she had formerly heard of the great miracles which God had wrought in favour of his people, and of the feare and faint-heartednesse of her or as people, and or the tears and naturalizations of own nation) being periwaded by a lively faith (wrought in her by Gods Spirit, and bringing home to her heart their reasons and motives) that God would destroy their nation, and give and motives ) that God would defroy their nation, and give his own prope polificition of their land, the flushitists to Gods will, and feeing no faftist faving in his protection, by joying her left in the Johnst and protect, the willingly entertains his fervants, and neglecting all fear and danger, the wholy apply-eith her defended in the companion of the protection. For which and of faith, the is to much commended, Heb. 11.31. And all of faith, the is to much commended, Heb. 11.31. therefore understanding that their coming to her house was discovered to the King, before he could fend any to apprehend them, the taketh care for their prefervation.

and bid them 1 Heb. bid bim. i.e. Each of them spart.

there came men unto me] By a free and ingenious confession of fuch a truth, as, being known to the watch and fome of her neighbours, could not be denied, the politiquely gaineth credit in the hearers to believe that which the intendeth to speak afterwards, though it were an untruth.

but I wiff not whence they were And therefore am to be excuted, feeing I am priviledged by my profession to entertain all guelts who feem honest, and I supposed those to be such, as knowing nothing to the contrary. The which her speech, though some would excuse, as being no untruth, but onely the concealing of fuch a truth as was not necessary to be discovered ; (for being an Inn-keeper, it may be the lodged others in red 3 (for being an time seeper; it may be the noise of the figure the healt that night which were now gone, or whom the fpeelsth in truth, and concealeth thefe Spies in faith and charitie, Heb. 11-31.) Yet the truth is, that her whole fpeech, nall the branches and parts of it, is nothing elfe but a continued equitable the second se vocation and masked lye. And therefore herein her example is no prefident for our imitation 5 for though God acceppiets no premoent ror our imitation 5 for mongra-bot active ted of her faith and charity, yet he approved not of her lies, how/cover he paffed by and pardoned them in this new con-vert, who had as yet but little knowledge, because she failed through frailty and infirmitie.

1. of the gate ] Namely, of the City. v. 1, of megue; Namerly, or not city, suther the men ment I most not? Seeing after they were gone out of my house, I looked not after them as not suspecting them to be either Spies or Israelites; the which the speaketh Chap.ii. that the might by casting before their cies this mist, make them (firmed unto them by many miracles, were ready every hand to leave her houte where they were hid, and to make there no while to stagger and doubt of their performance, the onely upto leave her house where they were hid, and to make there no further fearch for them.

runter teach tor them.

puffue them quickly this the speaketh that she might take off from her selfe all suspition that she was privite to their eferpe, seeing that now they were discovered to be spies she like a good Citizen giveth her best advice for their speedy apprehension, where as in truth her designe was by this meanes to fecure them from danger, and to put the Kings officers off from any further fearch in her house where she had hid

V. 6 to the roofe of the boule] which in those Countries were built flat like a terrale or leads, as is now also in fashion with the Italians, and as it was likewife with the Jewes in with the training at the time of Christ. Mar. s. s. Luk. 5 19. And because the same that the time of the the most open and free passage she layd there her greene stalks of flax that they imight be dryed, and these the now uses to cover and hide the ipies.

V. 7. and the men pursued after them] i.e. Being deluded with her words, unto which ( being over ruled by a specially providence) they gave an over-credulous care, they desided from any further search, and withall speech hashen their unto the foords] i.e. The ferries, or the shallowest place of the river where they might with leaft danger paffe o-

Just the gare i.e. The gare of the City, both to prevent all danger of approaching enemies, and the spies from going out, if perhaps they were ftill in the City, and not yet gone our as Rahab imagined.

gone our as Rabab maginet.

V. 8. And before bey neveleyd down i.e. had composed themselves to take their stell, to which they had intrel sitt an interestent of danger; the halfed up uate them (who seem all his while in fullymene as not knowing what was done) to about the tense with all the former passages, that they might halfen their escape, left they should be prevented either by the returne of tile parsiters when they saw their abour lost, or by a further and mort diligent learch of the Kings offi-

V. 9 And she said umo them i.e. I will now declare unto you what rentons and motives have induced me to desert the you want remons and motives nave induced into to delert the caule of my King and Countery, and to adhere unto you and your party with the exercisme danger of my life and livelihood; because I know that you are highly in Gods favour your purty with the exercisine sanger or my life and stream head 3 because I know that you are highly in Gods favour and under this speciall protection purt we, our King and Coun-try in his high displeasure, professhed by him, and definared to utter ruine and defirection

I know that the Lord bath given you the Land ] i.e. I am ful ly periwaded, grounding my faith upon Gods promifes which he hath made unto you, and the wonderfull mitacles which be hath wrought for you, that he hath as certainly given you our land ( who bath both power and right to dispose of all

And that your terrour] An Hebrailme ; it in that we m gerrified because of you in regard of your neere approach and power, and all the inhabitants of the land faint because arm power, and as me immostants of the same traine occasive efforts. The which flue fields a mother spround of her confidence, facing Good had given to the firselites courage better ting Conquerours, and possessed that the depress fearer and shin't heartestness. And this Good had promifed. Deur.

28.7.85 5.1.
V. 10. For we have heard ] here the rendreth the reason of v. 10. xw we never orara; nere the rendreth tree redule of; ther peoples feare and faint-heartedness, to wit, the report-which they had beard of two great mirathes, the one Godsiepstings prollage for them by drying up the waters of the red sta, which being an aft of omnipotencie declared that he was as the to make them victorious over all their enemies, and to to give unto them poffession of their country according to his promife, as by his miraculous power to make unto them this paffage unto it. And fecondly, their vanquishing of the Amu-ritish Kings, Sihon, Og, and the issue of their victorie, namely their flaughter and utter extirpation.

V. 17. Durhearer did melt | An Hebraie, were diffolved with feare, fo that we quite loft all our valour and courage. Like mortall melted with the fire, or like ice thawed into water and followoon the ground which cannot be taken up again. The fike phrafe. we bave ufed. chap. y. 162 Deut .1.28.& 20.8.

Jia. 13.7. Becamie of your Hebr. from your face, i.e. by realon of Becamie of your Hebr. from your face, i.e. by realon of the your prefence jand that not confidered fimply as men, for fo the Camagnites were more in number and ftronger than they, but in respect of their God whom they served, in whose favour they were ; who being Lord and King of beaven and earth was able to give victory unto whom he pleased.

V. 12. Non therefore [weare unto me by the Lord] where Rahab the weeks and exercife tha fingular act of faith; for where-gs the geople of Itrael, nor with thanding all Gods promifes con-in every part of it, it would have supe too late.

on here-fay and reports of them, was fo confidently perlwaded of the truth of them, that the defireth to enter in covenant with them for her own life and of her friends, as if they had already flormed the City, and had the power of life and death in their bands: And that even when the pies themfelves had great caufe of feare in respect of their present condition, being surrounded with enemies, and fhut up in their City, not feeing with the eye of reason any probable meanes of making an escape, wherein the consulted not with naturall reason which would have told her that her guefts were at this prefent in a desperate condition, faith looking upon Gods power and truth of his promiles, the wholy relyeth upon them in the ablence of all earthly meanes, and defireth them to ratife by oath a covenant with her for the life and fafety of her felfe and friends.

fine I have bewed you kindnesse; where the moveth them to bearken unto her suit, by a modelt commemoration of a great benefit by them received from her, which she extenuate th by tearming it only a kindnesse, whereas in truth it was no lesse then the faving of their lives, with the extreame bazard of her own.

unso my fathers houle] i.e. not only to me, but also for my fake to all my kindred and allies. So versi3, and chap.6.13.

And give me a tractoken] to wit, that you will inviolably scepe covenant with me, and which may ferve for a fign to the Ifraelites when they furprize the City, that they preferve us and not fuffer us to perish in the common destruction. V. 13. And that you will fave a live my father eye. ] For whole prefervation the is more folicitous then for her felte, because they were in more danger, as having no affurance of Gods protection, being yet out of covenant and uncon-verten.

V. 14. Om life for yours] is. We warrant thee on the penaltie of our own lives, which we defire God to out off, if we be not true and faithfull unto thee in our promife; or we will preserve thy life and of thy kindred, even with the hazard or loffe of our own.

If ye utter not this our bufinesses, i.e. if you doe not discover untimely either this our outh unto you, or our figure which we give you for your affurance and fafety, either to anyof your Citigive you tor your aum are ministry-stated to anyor your Citizens, or more especially to any of your kindred, which may prejudice our fafety in our escape, or make others anno whom this preservation is not intended, to keep themselves out of danger, either thrulling into your house or by making use of the tame figne which we give unto you. And upon the observing of this covenant only we will be bound to preferve thee and thy kindred.

V. 15. Then fe tet them down | Namely when they had taken this oath, and given her this fign, and when the had adviled them of the best course to be taken after their departure for their fuse returne : norther is it probable (as some think) that all these speeches passed between them under the window when they were let down and flood without the wall. Though when they were set down and stood without ce wall. I along at may be very likely that his whole bufineffe was in half briefly transacted whileft they were in her house, but againer repeated and imore fully amphified when they were ket down, and now fomewhat more our of danger and onward in their e-Scape, as appeareth verf. 18:

For her boule was upon the Town wall | Namely in anoug corner of the City where utually the poorer fort of people dwelt, though this was to dispoted of by a speciall providence, feeing ifit had been otherwife feated, the could not have had this opportunity of letting them down out of the City, the gares being thut:

V. 16 Get 10u to the mountains | For there were mountaines in the passage between Jericko and Jordan on both sides both North and South.

V. 17. we will be blampleffe of this thy onthe they punctually and strictly propound, and again more fully repeat the conditions on which they touke their oath, because they were re-folved conferentiously to observe it; namely, that the should binde the line of fcarlet thred in the window by which the had let them down, that it might ferve for a figne to the ffraelites, to keep them upon their entrance from plundering the the should bring her friends whom he would have settered into her house, of which is before spoken, and now lastly that none of them in the time of the common slaughter and defiruction, should go out of her house into the freets of the

V. 18. when we come into the land ] i.e. at foone as we are come over Jordan into your country, and are drawing notes unto your City 3 for if the deferred to gather her kindred into her house, when the city was storaged and taken, in selpres of the great feare and perturbation that would necessarily be

Chap.iij.

V. 19. 6th chast faul be upon bloom head it. The fault or Tables of the Law written in stone, which were this deguit of his blood or death shall upon himselfies and not upon him that shall shy him, because he observed not this connict that shall shy him, because he observed not this connict that shall shy him, because he observed not this connict that shall shy him, because he observed not this connict that shall shy him, because he observed not this connict that shall dition to keep within thy doors, which was one branch of the covenant between thee and us ; but contrariwife the guilt shall be upon him that shall kill him finding him there. V. 21. according to your words fo be it ] i.e. I willingly fub-

V. 21. according to your words [be it] is. I willingly fub-mine to all thefe your conditions upon which you have patified your promities as being all coutal and jult.

vi. 22. The parface your thom throughout all the may I to wit, between John and Jordan, whereby is intimated the whole form could be Rababas constell, feeing they had been fur-prized and profit of the habe constell, feeing they had been fur-prized and profit of the habe constell, feeing they had been fur-prized and profit of the habe for the had been fur-table to the habe for the had been for the had been fur-table to the had been for the h it ) by the hands of the pursuers.

rt ) by the names of the purituers.

V. 22. And peffed over ] to wit Jordan, and being come unto Joffius, who incamping at Shittim, and had fent them from thence on this expedition, they related unto him all the former Daffages which they had observed in their journey, and that priwately to himself alone, and not like the other fpies, Num. 13. before the people, having had experience of the mischiefes which it produced. Which it produced.

V. 24. And they faid to Folhua to wit by way of incouragement like valourous and faithfull men to the cause of God, and not like the other daftardly and unbelieving fpies,

The Lord hath delivered] where they speake of that which was to doe, as if already done, to expresse the confidence of their faith, and certainty of their hope.

Faint before us] and therefore there is no doubt but that the Lame Segree Sea and increase increase no country of that the lame Almighty power of God will ere long-caft them out of their land and country, who hath already deprived them of all courage by which they should defend it.

CHAP. III.

Verl.1. And Fosbus arose early] i. e. after the Spies were returned and had related unto Joshua what they A returned and had related unto Johna what they had done and obferved in their veiw of the land, city and inhabitants, and the people were much comforted and incouraged with their joyfull newes, and after that Johna was hereupon resolved to passe over Jordan, to enter into and invade the on relowed to paite over Jordan, to enter into and invade the land of Canaan and befiege Jericho, and had by his officers given notice to the people of his intention, and warning that within 3, dayes they should prepare for such an expedition, and furnish themselves within the compasse of this time with victualis and all necessaries besitting fuch a journey, and they victualis and an necentaries pentring tuch a journey, and tucy according to his command had prepared themselves and were furnished with all provisions, then Joshua role early and removed his campe from Shittim and came unto Jorin the morning Namely, of the ninth day of the first moneth, for they passed Jordan on the tenth day, as appeareth, cap. 4-This moneth which was by the Hebrews called Nilan 19. This moneth which was by the Hebrews called Nifan and Abib, was appointed by God in their religious computation, to be the first moneth of their year, in which they were commanded to celebrate the feast of the Passower, in remembrance of their great deliverance out of the bondage of Ægypt, which was fitly made the beginning of their year, because ther water was not made one regimning of their year, occurre then they feemed by coming out of a cruel thrildome, worfe then death, to begin their life when they enjoyed the liberty of Gods people. And as in this moneth, formerly, they had this great deliverance, fo now a fecond benefit, of entring into Canaan, a type of their heavenly inheritance in Gods King-dome. Otherwise the Jews in their civill account, reckoned dome. Otherwite the Jews in their civil account, reckoned the feventh month from this to be the beginning of their year, which they called Tifti, because they thought it to be the beginning of the worlds creation. The former of these arbeits of the William of t paffe through the Camp, to give unto the people notice of his directions, for such courses as they were to observe in their paffage over Jordan.

early | This is added, to fhew that Joshua performed the duty or a good and wife Generall, not being flothfull and flug-gifth in a buffnetle of fo high a nature and important concern-ment, but carefull and diligent in his undertakings, ruling and guiding the people under his government, not onely by his commands, but also by his good example.

And lodging there Namely, for one night onely, and the Best day passed over Jordan.

V. 2. And it came to paffe after three dayes ] To wit, after the command of providing victuals, mentioned chap.i.i.

That the officers went through the hoff I Namely, the second time with new directions from Joshua for their passage, and

V. 3. And they commanded the people ] To wit, in Joshua's name, as he also did in Gods name, and by his appointment, when you fee the ark of the coveneur] So called by reason of the of the Lord your God ] i. e. Not only the God of heaven and of the Lord your Gold 1. e. Not only the voa or neaven and earth, but your God by a peculiar and perpetuall covenant, whole prefence therefore is in an efpeciall manner to be adored by you, and his Ark which is the vifible figne of it, to be fol-lowed by you with great cheerfulnelle and religious veneration; not in respect of the ark it self, and the materials and sequre of it, but as it was a type of Jesus Christ, the Augel of the Covenant in whom dwelleth the sulnesse of the God-head bodily, Col.2.19. whom they were to follow as being their true guide that went before them, and conducted them into the land of promile, which was also a type of the heavenly Canaan.

And the Priests and Levites bearing it i.e. Which were all of the tribe of Levie. For howfoever ordinarily it was the office of the Levites, and properly of the Kohathites to beare the Ark, Numb. 3. 31. who were only Levites and not Priefts; yet in extraordinary services, for the greater pomp & magnificence, this service was also appointed to the Priests who were the fonnes of Aaron (although very rarely;) as we fee here in the fiege of Jericho, and when David fled from Abfalon, 2 Sam.

you hall remove from your place and go after it ] Whereby it appeareth, that the course and order observed in the time of Mopeareth, that the courte and order observed in the time of Mo-ies was changed by Joshua in bearing of the Ark; for then the pillar of the cloud by day, and the fire by night went before the people and guided them in their journies, and the Ark was carryed in the midft of the Army, as being the fafest place, Numb. 2. 17. but now the cloud is removed, and the Ark as their guide is appointed to go before, and to lead them into the land of promile, which was (as some probably think) to typisie unto them, that the law and its umbratilous shadows could not; but the Ark of the Covenant or rather the Angell of the Covenant typified by it, Jefus Christ was able to conduct them into the promised land. And as there was no other way of entrance into the earthly Canaan but by following the Ark, to there is no other way of entrance into the heavenly Canaan then onely by

V. 4. Tet there [hall be a fpace between you and it] Which distance was prescribed to affect their hearts with an awfull fear and due reverence of Gods prefence, of which the ark was a figne; in which respect at the giving of the law there were bounds appointed about the mount, to keep the people from approaching unto it, Exod. 19.12.

About two thouland Cubits ] i.e. a thouland yards, or thereabouts, as neer as they could guesse with their eye, seeing they could not conveniently measure it otherwise. The which was about the breadth of Jordan when the waters overflowed as now they did, as Authors and all eye-witneffes re-

That you may know the way by which you muss goe ] In which another reason is rendred, why the Prietts bearing the Ark were to go before them in this distance till they arrived on the other to go deture them in one attracte an any arrives on all other inde just over against tem, that is, that they might different to the people a firme and fafe passage in which they might fol-low them in an orderly march for their better fecurity before themselves entred into the River which was yet unknown un-

For ye have not paffed this may beretofore Heb. Since yefterday and the third day; that is, never hitherto, and therefore need this guidance and conduction to fecure your paf-

V. 5. Santifie your felves] to wit, both ceremonially by lev. 5. Sammer sow priver 10 wm.; soon ceremonary by 16-gall purifications, as at the giving of the law, Exch. 19, 10, 15, and fairitually by an internal purity, that you may be prepared to fee a miraculous figne, and glorious effect of Gods powe-erfull preference, namely in that miraculous wonder of di-viding the waters, Levit. 20, 7, 8. Numb. 11, 18, 1 Sam.

16.5.

V. 6. And Joshua spake unto the Priests saying, take up the Ark! Which he doth not enjoyn by his own absolute authority, but according as he was directed and appointed by God, whose commands he obeyed, asthey did his, and God in him. For otherwise he durft not have altered that order which God himself appointed, of carrying the Ark in the midst of the army a causing it now to be carried before all the peo-

And they took up the Ark ] To wit, and carryed it to the other banks fide of the River, herein shewing a strong faith and humble obedience, by hazarding their own lives to fecure the people from all danger, both of that fearfull and uncouth paffage, and also by exposing themselves to the perill of enemies, when they touched upon their land, who might be ready to oppole them, that they might hinder their entrance, and keep them from landing, especially being in such a distance from the rest V. 7. This day will I begin to magnifie thee ] God had much | fo much as doubting of their good fuccesse. V. 12. Take to twelve men! That is, now make choice of honoured Johua in Moles time, when he admitted him to be present with him in the Tabernacle, when he spake with him out of the cloud, and when he was commanded by the impolition of his hands to confecrate him his as successor in his place of government, to indue him with the foirit of wifedome and forgovernment, to indue him with the ipirit of wiledome and for-tifude, and fo to make him partner and partaker with him in his glory. But now he further promifeth to honour him in the execution of his function of Empire and government, q.d. I will now begin to exalt thee in the place unto which I have called thee, in the efteem of the people, by a great miracle which I am about to doe, whereby they shall be brought to acknowledge that I have made thee Head over them, and by thee knowledge that I have made thee Head over them, and by thee will posself them of the promided land; and in this will make thee equal with Moses, seeing as by him I made passing for the propole by dividing the red sea, so by thy unimitery I will make way for them into Canasan, by dividing this river Jordan, and so declare that my presence and power is with thee, as

V. 8. when ye are to come to the brink of the river] i. e. When ye have passed over Jordan, and are come to the brink of it over against you on the other side, then stand still there till It call you from thence, feeing by the ftay of the Ark there, the course of the waters shall be stopped, until all the people be passed over. For so I understand it of the brink of the river on the farther fide, feeing otherwise, the Priefts with the Ark could not in that distance have gone before the people, as was commanded, but before they were paffed over they would have gone before it, and so lost their guidance in securing their pas-lage in the greatest part of it.

V. 9. And bear the words of the Lord your God] i.e. Stirr up your attention, feeing it is not fo much I as God himfelf that your attention, letting it is not to much I as Vod himlett that inpacketh unto you, and not not oncelly beat, but believe allo what he lepsketh, feeting he is truth it left and cannot decrive you, and a God of infinite power, and therefore able to pre-forme what he promitfest, yea, he is allo the Lord your Vod, who hat hockenyou to be his peculiar prople, and therefore will take (pecial/care over you, profper you it your madern the miggand to diployed alloyed alloyed.) profit and wellfare.

V. 10. Hereby ye shall know i.e. By this wonderfull miin the course of nature, constantly run in a continued stream. Ye hall know that the omipiotent God is among you to affifyou, and to give you polifilion of the promifed land, feeing none but he is able to do fitch a work of wonder; neither is he onely powerfull for the prefent to do what he pleafeth, but also for epowerfull to the present to do what he plealeth, but allo for e-ver unto all fucceeding ages, feeing he ever liveth to performe his word and promifes, and this in particular of calling out thefe nations, and giving unto you their land for your inheritance. And therefore go on with courage feeing there is no cause of fear and doubting.

drive from before routhe Canaanites [ He reckoneth here but

feven nations, whereas he numbreth ten in his promife to A feven nations, whereas he numberth ten in his promule to A-phalan, Gent, 1-9. How then is that performed, feeing four of those there named are here wanting, to wit, the Kenitze, Kenizites, Kadmoniet and Rephains, and the Hivites here mentioned, are not there named? Units which some anlws-tackle spraches there only of those nations which Joshua in his time conquered, and that the other nations, from the river of the conduction of the control of the conduction of the conduction of the conduction of the conduction of the conof Ægypt, even to Euphrates, were subdued in Davids and Somons time; but this fatisfies not feeing thefe lands were onely fubdued and became tributaries, but the inhabitants were not cast out, nor their land given to Israel for an inheritance. Others think that in processe of time, some of those named there as feverall, might now be joyned into one, and so bear but one name. But that which I conceive to be most probable, is, that these promises made to Abraham and the peo-ple here, were not absolute, but onely conditionall, if they continued in their obedience, ferving God alone and cleaving unto him; which in a great part they made void unto themselves by their apolitalie and idolarry, in which respect God tellett them plainly, that he would no further proceed in driving out those nations before them, Judg. 2.1, 2,3. and so divers of those lands never came into the Israelites possession. as Tyre and Sidon, the land of the Philiftims, &c. Though the most of them in Davids and Solomons reign became tributaries, which doth not fully reach home to the promife, of giving their land to Abrahams posterity, Gen. 15.18.

V. 11. The Ark of the covenant, even the Lord of the whole earth] Which by repetition of the word Ark, may be thus taken, the ark of the covenant, even the ark of the Lord, &c. Or thus, the ark which is a type of Godspresence, who is the Lord of the whole earth. The which is added to strengthen their faith; for if the Lord of the whole earth, who made it of them that in their paffage they may be eye-witnefles of this great miracle, though the fervice required of them shall not be performed till ve be paffed over Jordan, chap, 4, 1, 2. For that they were the fame twelve here mentioned, appeareth in the 4. verfe of that chapter.

V. 12. And it shall come to passe ] as if he should say, this shall be the iffue of your businesse, and the manner of your passage; that when you see every thing done just in that manner and time which I foretell you, you may not attribute it to any accidentallicauses, but wholy ascribe it to Gods all-ruling providence providence. the waters of Fordan shall be cut off ] i.e. The waters coming from above shall stand still on an heap, and the waters below according to their ordinary course shall passe away, and so leave the channell dry for the people to passe over.

V. 14. And it cameta puffe] that is, as foon as the Priefls had taken up the ark, and the people were come our of their tents and lodgings, and prepared themselves to follow the Priefls towards Jordan.

V. 15. And as they that hare the ark In which words is shewed, that all things foretold verf. 13. were accordingly fulfilled in every particular.

For Fordan overfloweth all his banks in the time of harvest T namely of the barley harvest, which in those hot Countries was in their first moneth called Nifan or Abib, which answereth to the latter part of our March and the beginning of Aprill, in which moneth they kept their Paffeover. Now the realon why at this time Jordan over-floweth its banks, is credibly thought to be the melting of the Snow which lyeth all Winter upon the hils and mountains adjacent, and is melted in their harvest time with the heate of the Sun; which is the cause of the like inundations by the Rivers, Euphrates and Tigris. As the fonne of Syrach hath it, chap. 24. 15, 26. Now this is added for divers reasons; first, to amplifie the greateste of the miracle, in that Jordan was dryed up and made a [afe paffage when the waters were at the highest. Secondly, to commend the Priests faith who adventured to enter and passe over the River when it thus fearfully over-flowed, and did run with a fwift and flrong current. Thirdly, that they might be moved hereby to observe Gods care and providence watching over them, in that he brought them into the land of their enemies in harvest time. when as it was best furnished with all necessary provisions both for the present and the year following.

V. 16. flood and rofe up] As they must needs do, when comming down from above in their ordinary manner, they were Stopped here and had no passage, and therefore did rife up as an high heap, which extended very farr backwards; even from hence where they were to passe over , to the City Adam, which fome Cosmographers place on the East side of Jordan over a-gainst Gilgall, which is beside Zaretan, lying Southward from right over against Fericho] Which place as some think (from this paffage over) was called afterwards Beth-abara, Joh. 1.28, where John the Baptist baptized.

V. 17. Stood firme on dry ground] to wit, because the waters which were above, at the presence of the Ark, or rather of God, represented by it, were kept back and stood on an heaps according to that of the Psalmist, Psal, 114, 2, the Sea saw this and fled. Fordan was driven back, and the waters below, accord ding to their naturall and ordinary courfe, were run away into the Afphaltitis or the falt and dead Sea, leaving the chan-nel dry, and so fit for the Israelites to passe o-

In the midft of Forden ] Which is not meant of the midde? way of the River or middle part, as appeareth by the reasons before given in the annotations on verf. 8. but of the channel neer the bank on the other fide; neither doth ( as learned Interpreters observe) the Hebrew word here used and translated midft, fo usually and properly figuific the middle part of a thing, or that which standeth in the mid-way, as that which is within a thing it fell, or contained within the verge and circumference of it, whether it be in the middle or in the out fide and extream sill all the people were paffed] that is, were quietly and fafely arrived and come to land, as meeting with no enemies to op-pose them and hinder their landing, though it he usuall for people in the like case to guard and man their coasts and Frontiers when they are ready to be invaded, which thele Canaanites at this time neglected, either because they thought it needleffe, as being in their conceit an impossible thing to passe over Jot-dan at this time when the waters were so high that they overflowed the banks, or because God had infatuated and deprived them of the use of their reason, so that they never thought of nothing, and governeth all things contained in it, by his wife them of the ulse of their reason, so that they never thought of more than 100 persons and the could be noplace left for incredultry, or possessing the terror and amazing stars that they durft not a simple that the could be noplace left for incredultry, or possessing the terror and amazing stars that they durft not the could be not t come out into the open field, but kept themselves immured in their strong, fenced, and high-walled City.

CHAP. IIII.

Verf. r. And it came to paffe! In this Chapter is related what things were done after they were paffed over Jordan both neer and about the River, and after they had pitched their Camp in Gilgall, where they lodged that night, verf. 19.

V. 2. Take you swelve men] Here he more fully and amply expresses that command mentioned before, chap. 3. 12. concerning the choice of twelve men, and sheweth to what use they were to be put; which men were to be cholen out of every tribe a man, one with another, because the remembrance of this tribe a man, one with another, occanic the temembrance or this great miracle concerned them all alike, namely that by their relation they might propagate the knowledge of this wonderfull work to all their polterity. Neither were the two tribes and an half to be exempted, though their inheritance was already fallen unto them on the other fide of Jordan; for howfoever they were separated from one another in their habitation by the River; yet they remained full one people and of one religion, and joyned together in the worthip and fervice of the fame God; upon which grounds they afterwards excufed themselves to the other tribes for building that altar mentioned chap. 22. from verf. 22. to 30.

V. 3. middeft of Jordan] i.e. the channel neer the banke where they were now arrived, for why should they fetch the stones further off, when they might have them neerer lodge this night] i. c. in Gilgal, vers. 19.20. V. 4. whom he had prepared i.e. whom he had before chofen for that imployment, chap.3.12.

V. 5. of the Lord your God ] And therefore this fervice, though it may feen mean, is not to be flighted by you, feeing it is done to lo great a Lord and Mafter, and tendeth to the use and benefit of all the tribes of the children of Israel, for whose Skeyou do it.

V. 6. That this may be a figue ] Namely to call to your remembrance in time to come to great a benefit for the filtring up of your felves and your posterity to thankfulnesse, for the ftrengthning of your faith & affiance in God, and working your hearts to true obedience. So Exod. 13.14. Deut. 6. 20. Joih. 22. 27. & 24.27.

in time to come | Heb. to morrow, which often with the He brews fignifieth all that time which is to come, q. d. fo often as you shall have occasion to speak of it to your poste-

V. 7. Then ye shall answer them] i. e. Ye shall be ready to instruct them in the knowledge of these great works which God hath done for you, feeing parents cannot performe a better duty to their children then to train them in the fear of God, and to feafon their minds and hearts with the knowledge and love

V. 8. And the children of Ifrael did fo] i. c. The twelve men appointed to this office, who represented the whole people, every man his particular tribe , and therefore here bear their

N. C. And fet up the twelve flones Namely, befides those twelve flones which were to be fet up in Gilgal, that it might be a monument to them that inhabited about Jordan, or passed by that way of that great minates about, jordan, or patied by that way of that great minates; and were therefore to be pitched in the place where the Priefts that bare the ark flood, not in the middle part of Jordan, where by reason of the depth and diffance they could hardly at any time be feen, but in the channel neer the banks, where they might alwaise be in view form place to he Dienal all could main that. view, faving when the River did overflow its banks.

and they are there unothis day] i. e. by an immutable and perpetual flatute, or to that time when there words by some holy Writer were inserted into this book of Joshua. See the note poon I Sam. s. s.

V. 10. For the Pricets which bare the Ark stood in the midst o Fordan Which words were added to fhew and commend to Fordary | Which words were added to thew and commend to posterity the faith and patience of the Priess, and propound them aspatterns and presidents to all of that calling, with all other faithfull Ministers, in that, when all the people are said. ower naturation naturates, in that, when at the people are faid for fear to half away; they conflantly perfilted and perfevered in that office unto which God defigned them without fear or fainting; faying immoveably in their fation, all the while that Johns delivered Gods commands concerning the carrying of the flones, and the ule which was to be made of them, the taking away of twelve to the land, with the fixing and fashioning of other twelve in the place where they flood, and the tedious passage of fo great a multitude by them over Jordan; and all this not withflanding the fearfull fight of those hideous mountains of water which hung over their heads, and were e-pery minute ready to overwhelme and drown them, unleffer tenth day (on which the Lamb was to be fer apart) that being

they were stayed by a miraculous hand of an omnipotent

according to all that Mofes commanded Joshua] Which is not to be understood, as though Moses had given by his commands directions unto Joshua in all the particular carriages of this whole businesse, seeing we read of no such directions in all the whose pointers; per read or no local directions in all the books of Moles; but as in generall he was commanded by Mo-fes, to obey God in all his commands when they should be made known by Eleazar the high Priest inquiring of the Lord for him from time to time by Urim and Thummim, fo did he now in all things that concerned this bufinefle of paffing over Jordan: according to that former charge given unto him by

Moles, Numb. 27. 21,22,23.

And the people hafted and paffed over ] Namely, as apprehening great danger whileft they were in their paffage; for though they passed over upon dry ground, yet seeing the waters slan-ding on heaps and hanging over their heads ready to over-slow and swallow them up, they were affrighted with this ghastly fight, and through weaknesse of faith made all possible speed to be out of this danger. For though it be faid, that by faith they paffed over the red Sea, even as now also they did over lordan, vet their faith was not free from doubtings, but mixed with failings and much weakneffe, Heb. 11. 29. Matth. 14.

V. 11. And the Priests | Which is added to shew their faithfulnefle in their place and execution of their office, who did not only as good guides and leaders go before them, and hazard themselves to the perill of the first entrance into the River, and with faith, fortitude and patience, long continued in that place of fear and danger, but allo were the last that came away, notleaving their station till all the people were in fafety (that their example might be a prefident for all their successors in the prefence of the people) who flood upon the bank to behold the last act of this great miracle; namely, the return of the waters to their ordinary course as soon as the Priests bearing the Ark were come to land.

V. 12. And the children of Reuben, &c. ] According to their covenant made with Mofes, Numb. 32.20, 27. chap.

V. 13. About fourty thou[and] The rest of their Tribes being left behind to defend their country newly fallen unto them, with their Cities and Inhabitants against the in-roads of their bordering enemies.

as prepared for warr] Or ready armed, verf. 12.
[as prepared for warr] Or ready armed, verf. 12.
[as prepared for warr] i.e. before the Ark of the Lord, which was a visible sign of Gods presence; or, before the people of the Lord; neither is it likely that their place was to go im-mediately before the ark, or, hereby is simply to be meant that they went forward in this expedition in the fight and presence of the Lord, in which sence it is faid, that Nimrod was a great Hunter before the Lord, Gen. 10.9. implying, their great valour and cheerfullnesse in this warlike expedition.

V, 14. on that day the Lord magnified foshua] According to his promile, chap. 3.7. that being in high effect with the people, he might be of more authority in his rule and govern-ment, and fo carrie on the work unto which he was by God called and defigned, with more ease and better successe.

V. 15, 16, 17. And the Lord flake nun Joffmal Whereby is implyed that the managing of this whole bufinefie was by Gods fipciall command to Joffma, and by his from God to the Priests and people.

V. 18. And the soles of the Priests feet] i.e. As at their entrance into the river, their feet no sooner touched the water, but presently they were divided, chap. 3.15. So, as soon as they landed on the Continent, they returned to their former courfe, and this the more to convince them, there was nothing of nature or chance in all this action, but all came to paffe by

Gods (pecial) providence and appointment. unto the dry land] To wit, not the banks neer the river, which upon the returne of the waters were again over-flowed, but the adjoyning Continent, unto which the waters overlowing did not reach.

returned to their place | Namely, not fuddenly and all at once, for then those huge heaps and mountaines of waters, gathered by the flopping of the fiream, would have drowned the whole country adjoyning, but by little and little, and flow degrees, as they were ordered and over-ruled by Gods powerfull provi-

V. 19. on the tenth day of the first moneth ] Namely , the moneth Abib, containing part of March and part of April, in which they were to celebrate the feast of the Passover, in remembrance of their deliverance out of the Ægyptian bondage, chap. 5.10. which they might not do before they were prepared thereunto by circumcifion, Exod. 12.25. which had been omitted all the time of their continuing in the wilderneffe, thap. 5. 5. And therefore by a forciall providence of God they landed in Canaan, and went unto Gilgal on the Chap. v. there circumciled, they might on the 14. day following cele- possible, or out of cowardile, because they durit not come brate the feast of the Passe-over.

and encamped in Gilgal] So called here by an anticipation; as though he should have faid, they incamped in that place which was afterwards by Joshua called Gilgal. And here they pitched their standing Camp, when part of the army marched on further to conquer the Country, as being a place most commodious for this use by reason of its fruitsulnesse, and the River adjoyning to it, and the Mountains which were on either

V. 20. Did Joshua pitch in Gilgal] Namely, in some emi-nent and conspicuous place, that all who passed by might see them, and fo be put in mind of the former miraculous passage over Tordan.

V. 21. 22, 23. And he spake to the children of I frael This Greech for the substance of it, is the same with that yer 6, 7. (onely that was directed to the twelve men which were appointed to bear the ftones, and this to the whole people, or rather plication.

V. 23. from before you] These waters of Jordan were not dryed up before their children unto whom they were thus to speak 3, but before the parents themselves, who are here commanded to make this relation unto their posterity; but they are here faid to have been dryed before them, because this miracle was done not only for the use and benefit of them who now lived and were prefent at the doing of it, but also for their children that were to descend from them, and were now in their loynes, or yet fo young and little, that for the prefent they were unable to observe and make use of this great work of God. And again it is faid to be done before their children. herause they as well as their parents had their interest in the fame God, were of the fame religion, and members of the fame body, Church and Common-wealth,

Red Sea which he dryed up before sa] Where upon the fame grounds he faith, that this was done before the people, unto whom he now spake, when not many of them were present a this miracle, that were of ripe age, faving Caleb and himfelf feeing the men that then passed over the red sea, were in God just displeasure for their unbelief, murmuring, stiff-necked-nesse and rebellion cut off and dyed in the wildernesse, never entring into the land of promile, chap. 5.6.

V. 24. might know the hand of the Lord] That is, might acknowledge and take occasion to glorify God in this manifestation of his power and providence, which is his main end in all his miracles; and ficondarily, that hereby his people might learn to fear God, that is, (as it is here to be underflood) to worship and serve him alone, to imbrace his true religion, and in faith and obedience to do his will, and to observe and keep all his commandements. All which is usually in the Scriptures comprehended under this our duty of fearing God in respect of a special use which the people here spoken unto were to make of it, namely, hereby to be reftvained from apostacie and starting back from obedience unto God, which was the sinne of their fathers and ancestors, Pfal. 78. 56,57. Jer. 32.

For ever | Heb. all dayes, that is, for the whole terme of your lives.

CHAP. V.

[ ] Hen all the Kings ] Though the whole land of Canaan was but of fmall extent, yet there were many Kings in it, because it was the manner of those times to have a King over every particular City; but in after ages men increasing in pride, ambition and covetousnesse, they could not content themselves to be thus bounded and limited, but with power and violence extended their Soveraignty and dominion, not only over many Cities, but also Provinces and Nations.

of the Amorites ] The Amorites were on both fides Jordan whereof two Kings were flain already on the fife towards on the fide of fordan westward] i.e. Inhabiting the Western

And all the Kings of the Canaanites Under these two the rest of the nations are comprehended; under the Amorites those that were scituate neer Jordan Eastward, from the North to the South, and under the Canaanites those that did Westward and bordered upon the Mediterranean

umill we were possed over ] By Gods providence it came to passe that the Inhabitants laid it not to heart to make use of their bearts melted, neither was there spirit in them ] i.e. Their courage wholy was quailed and could not be recollected, like mettals that have no ftrength in them when they lected like metals that have no irrengen in them when they are melted and diffolved, or waters spile upon the ground that cannot be gathered up again; and their understanding also through sear and assonishment failing, they (as we lay ) were at their wits end , fo as they could not thinke or advise of the best meanes whereby they might be preferved from approaching ruine and calami-

out of their Cities and places of ftrength, before they were necessitated by urgent necessity.

V. 2. At that time ] This verse and those following cohere with the last verses of the former chapter, the first verse being a digreffion from the flory, where by ( that time ) is to being a digrettion from the norywhere by ( that time) is to be understood the day in which they arrived and cime to Gilgal, for being so taken, there onely were foured dayes before the Passe-over, in which they were to be circumscled and healed; or as others more probably think; their words are to be referred to that time when as Johna gare them words are to be reterred to that time when as Johnus gave them in charge to prepare for their paffage over Jordan, because otherwise they should have been much strained in time, to the due performance of all that was to be done respecting circum. cision and their preparation for the Passe-over.

make thee sharp knives ] The Hebrew word doth fignific knives of itones or flints, or elfe tharp razors as the Chaldee paraphrase hath it, which might be provided with ease if this charge were given by the Lord before their paffage over Jordan, and with no great difficulty at their first comming to Gilgal; seeing many hands make short and light work, and as there were many knives required to circumcife in the space of one day fo great a multitude, fo there were many hands to make and circumcife] Heb. turn again circumcife, that is, cir-cumcife again, an Hebrailme, like that used Numb. 11.4. Pial. 85. 7. Ezek. 8. 6. whereby is not meant, that those who were already circumcifed should now again be circumcifed, which could not have flood either with religion or naturall reason, feeing they could not again take away that foreskin which was already cut off; but whereas it was first commanded unto Abraham with all his feed and family, and accordingly by him observed, but much (at least) neglected (as some think) in the time of their Ægyptian bondage, till it was again reftored by Moses, sent of God for their deliverance, and quite omitted in the wildernesse, at least from the Spies returning from fearin the wilderaetle, a tleaft from the Spies returning from feat-ching the land, which was the fenod year after their coming out of Ægpt, either out of their neglect of Gods holy Sacra-ment, or,which is more likely, becaute in Ægpt they could not by reason of their opperfilm administer it according to Gods influsionamia in the wildernelle, becuste as Gods a-pointment they were fuddenly to remove from place to place as the cloud removed, that was their guide, which they could not do without great hurt and danger to thole who were newly cir-cumcifed, ver. 8. for though fometime they encamped long in a place, yet all that while they had no affurance of their abode there, but were still at an houres warning to remove. In which case the Lord dispensing with his own ordinance by a new command of their removing, it was in them no neglect or finne; for had it been fo, it is not probable but they flould have been sharply reproved for it by God himself, and his Mi-nilters Moses and Aaron. So that this is the sense of these words, circumcise again, as if he should have said, restore this words, truthicle again; as it in mouth have alla, retote this Sacrament to its primitive ule in the first institution of it to Abraham and his feed, which hath now for a long time been either neglected, or at least omitted. But it may be objected, that Moles was strucken with a dangerous sicknesses objected, cumcifing his fon, though he were in his journey which was undertaken by Gods appointment. Unto which I answer, that this punishment was inflicted, because he had time enough before to have circumcifed his fon, and had neglected it, or if he had been now but eight dayes old, he might have flaid by the way-till the child had been circumcifed and healed, feeing though God had appointed him his journey, yet he had not ftrictly limited him to dispatch it in so short a time.

But why was Joshua commanded by God to circumcife all the people at their first entrance into the land of Canaan ? I answer, first, that hereby he might roll away the reproach which they had contracted in the land of Ægypt, v. 9. Second ly, that hereby they might be prepared to celebrate the feast of the Passe-over, of which none might eate before they were circumcised, Exod 12. 48. Thirdly, For the strengthening and confirming of their faith in this affurance, that God would make good unto them his covenant and all the promifes contained in it , especially this of giving their greated sharings in a tract to heart to make use or promises contained in it; electiny this or giving their greated sharing or in their greated sharing of an inheritance both to them ding on the borders of Canaan, either out of fe- and their feed, leeing this Sacrament was an increading on the borders of Canaan, either out of fe- and their feed, leeing this Sacrament was an increading the contain. The made with Abraham at a **Last and **Last

Chap. v.

Gods providence and promifes, they fecurely reited in their ftations till their wounds were healed, who accordingly took care of them, and in the mean time to possessed the hearts of their enemies with fear and aftonishment, that they did not so much enemies wim rear and accomment, that they did not to much as diffurb their peace, by making any attempts againft them. V. 9. I have rolled away the represend of Regnyl 1.e. I have freed you from that shame and dishonour which did by upon you whilest you were bond-flaves in the land of Ægypt, by receiving you into covenant with me, acknowledging you for my ceiving you into coverant with the acknowledging/ou for the peculiar people, and admitting you to have this priviledge fea-led unto you by this feal of circumcifion. Some understand by the reproach of Ægypt the Ægyptians reproaches which they east upon them whitest they were in the Wildernessea shough God had not out of his love delivered them out of Ægypt, but rather to wear and wast them in the Wildernesse, even unto utter ruine, feeing they remained there ftill after fo many years fpent, till they were almost consumed, and were not brought into the promifed land. See Deut, 8.28. Num.14. 16. the which reproach was now taken away by their entring into the land, which was unto them as an earnest of all the rest, and now further fecured by Gods renewing his covenant with them concerning their full possession of it, and confirming their faith in full assurance of it by circumcision and the Passe-over, which were as seales added to the promise. Some by reproach of Ægypt understand the wicked religion of Ægypt, with which the Sacraments: others by this reproach understand the re-

The place is called Gilgal] i. e. rolling, because their reproach was rolled or turned away, when as by circumcifion they renewed their covenant with God.

V. 10. And kept the Paffe-over ] Which was likewise omitv. 10. Ana gept the Eagle-ver J wanten was income contected in the Wilderneffe, faving only the second year after their comming out of Ægypt. See Numb.9.1.2.

at even J i.e. in the last part of the day, not long before the ouns going down. moneth i.e. Abib or Nifan, the first moneth. So Chap. 4.

19. Exod.12.2.6. V. 11. And they did eat of the old corn of the land ] Which they found in their barns, the inhabitants being fled away; and parched corn. i.e. the new corn which they found flanding on the ground the prefent year, feeing it was now the time of their

was the 16. day they did eat of the corn of the land; neither might they by the law eat of the new corn of the land, till they had brought unto the Priest a sheaf for an offering unto God,25

cision and the passe-over, by which holy ordinances these our-ward bleftings were sanctified unto them.

V. 12. And the manna ceased ] Namely, because there was no necessary use of it any longer, for whereas it was first given them by God to supply their want of all other food, now there was no more need of it when he had brought them into a were then under twenty years of age, and now inpervived, and those who were uncircumcifed in the Wilderneffe, wherein he fruitfull land, flowing with milk and honey; and the nature, because the could be the could tiles, Col.3.11. Eph. 2.14. Gal. 5.6. & 6.15.

V. B. They abode in their places ] i.e. relying by faith upon Sperate a danger, relying wholy upon Gods power & providence.

V. 3. And Folius made sharp knives Or, knives of film. they were infected and corrupted, by living and converting with them; From which he now delivered them, by renewing his covenant with them, and confirming it unto them by his feales, proach which did lye upon the Ægyptians themselves as upon all other nations, in that being out of Covenant with God, and not partakers of the feals of it, they were Aliens and ftrangers from God, in an heathenish and damnable condition , and were so reputed and had in abomination with the Church and people of God, as appeareth 1 Sam. 17. 26. Gen. 34.16. From which reproach they were now freed by receiving the Sacra-ment of circumcifion. Others understand, and that very probably, the reproach which the Ifraelites themselves had contracted in Ægypt, when as living amongst them for above two hunment had been omitted thirty eight years, that is, from the redred years, they imitated their evill manners, and were tainted with their superstitious & false worship, Exod . 3 2. 1. neglecting Gods fincere worthip and fervice, and hereby , as also by their late rebellion, had left this reproach upon their children, through the julf judgment of God, that they had not the Sacrament of Gods covenant, but had their foreikin fill upon them all the while they lived in the wildernesse, Numb. 14- 34, 35-From which wicked Nation they were now differenced, in that they did by circumcifion take upon them and wear Gods Livez on the morrow after the Paffe over] i.e. as it is most probably thought, on the 16. day of the moneth, for the lamb was killed and rofted on the 14. day, and fo the feast began that night, which was part of the 15. day, and on the day following, which appeareth, Lev. 23. 14.

In the [elf-fame day] Which is added to fignifie the peoples earnest desire to eat of the fruits of the promised land, la foon as they might lawfully do it, having first renewed their covenant with God, whereby only they had right to the land & the fruits of it, and been made partakers of the feales of it, circum-

p. v. to confirme his faith in the full affurance of this particu-to confirme his faith in the full affurance of this particut, was a type of the true Joshus, Jesus Christ, who is the Saviour of all believers, circumcifed and uncircumcifed, Jews, Gen-ley promise, Gen. 17, 8,9410. In which respect they now nee-of all believers, circumcifed and uncircumcifed, Jews, Gencante this ungratefull people loathing this bread which came all holy duties in the deep apprehention of Gods great and glo down from heaven, even then when they had no other food to (atisfie their hunger, would now much more have loathed it when they were come into a land that abounded with all Gods

bleffings
neither had the children of Israel manna any more ] Namely, that they might hereby know, that they had injoyed it all this while, not from any naturall cause, but by Gods meer gift and bounty, wherein the earthly Canaan was a type of the heavenly leeing when we are come thither, we shall have no further need of word, facraments, or other ordinances, because God will supply all things unto us immediately by himself, and will

will toppy an tings union as numeratery by numeric, and win-be all in all Reverlex 1.2.3.3.3.3.4. V. 13, when #folias was for #erichool i.e. In the plaines of Perichoon fair from Gligal, where he incamped, whither he now came (as may be probably thought) to obferve the ftrength of the City, and the best opportunities of bestige-that hi lift up bis eies] Which phrase of speech in the Scriptures usually figuifieth some new, sudden and unexpected fight that presented it felf to the beholders. So Gen. 18, 2, 32, 11, 5.

Dan. 10.4.
there food a man i.e. The Lord Christ, who assumed and appeared in the shape of a man, both now and at fundry other times, as a preparative to his incarnation, for that it was no created angel, appeareth by Joshua's adoration and his acceptance of it, feeing a created Angel would have refused it, Rev. 19.

12. 822. 9. Judg. 13.16.
with his [word drawn in his hand] Hereby representing himfelf unto him as the Lord of hofts, the supream and chief Gener unto nim asine and or noirs, the upream and chief Ge-nerall of their Armies, in whose wildome only conducting them, and power affilting them, they should prevaile against their many potent and pulsant enemies, and execute his just their many potent and pulsain the netimes, and execute and pulsain judgments upon those cursed Nations till they were wholy subdued, and utterly destroyed. All which was done to strengthen the faith of Johua and all the Army, in affurance that they should be viscorious, seeing they had God on their fide ready to fight against his and their enemies, Exod. 23.23.

Rom. 8.31.

And Joffins went unto him and [sid] Which is added, to shew
the undaunted courage and resolution of Joshua, whom God had appointed Generall of his Armies, in that he thus boldly and confidently goeth to an armed man (who was also no doubt of a majeticall prefence) to question him on whose side he was, that according to his answer he might either oppose him as an enemy, or othe rwife might entertain him into amity and

V.'14. And he faid, Nay, but as a Gaptain of the hoft of the Lora am I come ] As though he should fay, I am not a mortall mar as thou conceiveft, either Ifraelite or Canaanite; but the Lord of holls and chief Generall both of the Angels which fight for the Church against all its enemies, being Michael the Archangell and chief Prince, Dan. 10. 13. 21. Rev. 12. 7. & 19. 11, 14. and am now come to ayd Ifrael which is the people and hoff of God, and encourage thee and them against all your enemies. and now more particularly to give thee infituctions and dire-ctions, what means are to be used for the besieging and taking of this City Jericho. See chap. 6.2,3.4.

And Joshna fell on his face] Being affected with an awfull fea and reverence of Gods glorious prefence, Exod. 3.2,6. Dan.10 and did worfhip | Because he knew him to be the Lord Christ the eternall fonne of God.

what faith my Lord to his fervant? A question arising from reverence and admiration, fignifying his willingnesse and prompt readinesse to obey all his commands, as though he should have said, let me only OLord know what is thy pleasure, and what it is that I should do, and I willmost willingly per-forme what thou requireft. V. 15. Loofe thy [600e off thy foot ] Which was spoken to possesse Joshua with a more awfull reverence of Gods glorious presence, before whom he now stood, to stirr up his attention in bearkening unto what he spake, and to affect his heart with deeper humility in the fight and fence of Gods Majestie, and his own balenesse and vilenesse. For this ceremony of putting off the shooes, was used to expresse the highest degree of humiliation, when Gods hand was heavy upon any in grievous afflictions, as appeareath Sam. 15. 30. E/a. 20. 2,4. Ezek. 24. 27,23. And io Mofes, Exod. 3. and Joshua here, were commanded to do it, to shew that they might not rashly presume to approach into Gods prefence, but with all humility, low-linesse of mind, and awfull reverence, Levit.16.2. Exod. 30.10. And secondly, to put them in mind that when they did draw neer unto God, they must put off all sleshly lusts and carnall perturbations of the mind, which made them to cleave unto the rious Mateftie, unto whom they were to be performed; and their balenesse and nothingnesse which were to do them.

their balenelle and nothingnelle which were to do them.

For the place whereon thou [fandelf is bob] Where he rendreth areason why he should put off his shooes, namely, because the ground on which he stood was holy, not in respect of any inherent holinesse in it felf, but as it was now fanctified by Gods divine and holy presence. q.d. consider that thou now, standest before thy great and glorious God, to hear the coun-fell of his will, who though he filleth heaven and earth with his prefence, yet he doth now in a speciall manner reveal himfelf. and manifest his presence unto thee, and thereby doth confecrate this place as holy; and therefore be thou according-

y ancetee with manning and annual to the will speak unto thee.

And Foshua did for i. e. With all willingnesse and cheerfulnesse he obeyed Gods command, leaving unto surreages himfelf as an example for their imitation. And being thus prepared, he received from God those directions and commands which are expressed in the first part of the following chapter.

CHAP. VI.

Ow Fericho was firaightly shut up] That is, the City was fo carefully watched and strongly guarded, that no inhabitant could get out, or Ifraelite come in as the Spies had formerly done for fear of any fudden furprize by their enemies that now were neer unto them. Which words were inferted between the precedent discourse of Christs appearing to Joshua in the end of the former chapter, and his following speech in this to inti-mate what great need there was why his faith should be thus confirmed in affurance of good fucceffe in this enterprize, feeing in respect of the strength of the City, and warchtulnesse of the Citizens, without Gods speciall affishence in this work and gracious directions for the well managing of it, it steemed to be a work of much difficulty.

V. 2. And the Lord said unto Joshua He who chap. 5, 13, is called a man, and verf. 14. Prince of the Lords hoft, is here called Jehovah, implying a reason why Joshua gave unto him divine worfnip before, and why now he flould obey all his commands, and wholy fubmit to be guided by his directic

See I have given Which is a word of encouragement where-See I have given Which is a word of encouragement where-by he frengtheneth his heart, and ratich up his faining foi-riss in affurance of victory; notwithfunding he found fuch mighty opposition, that he had full the hope of prevailing in his own firength, feeing he had a promife from God of winning the City, propounded in the prefer tense to intimate, that it was as certain as if he were already politifed of it.

and the mighty men of valour ] Naturally so and so, reputed in former times, howsoever, now the terrour of God being upon them, their hearts melted and their courage fainted, chap.2.11;

V. 3. And ye shall compasse the City In these and the follow-ing verses, the Lord appointeth for the winning of this strong City most weak, contemptible, and even ( to humane reason most ridiculous means, thereby to manifest the glory of his wifdome and power fo much the more, and to fhew that this midome and power to much the more, and to thew that this mi-raculous work was afted by himfelf alone, feeing the means u-fed could no way conduce thereunto, 2 Cor. 12.9. and 4. 7. And fecondly, to try the faith and obedience of Joshua and the people, whether they would deny their own wildome and power, and wholy rely upon God in the use of such means as were quite contrary to their own reason and sense; and that in this triall they might be approved, not disputing the matter with flefh and bloud, but yeelding abfolute and fimple obedience to Gods commands, and cheerfully following all his directions. Thus shalt shou do fix dayes] Not that the Lord needed to long time for the effecting this great miracle for he could have done it at once if so he had pleased, but only to exercise here their faith, obedience and patience in waiting thus long for the accomplishment of his promise.

V. 4. Seven trumpets of Rams-horns] Not the filver trumpets of the Sanctuary, which would have graced the action; and bringing with it more authority, might have encreased their hope and confidence of fuccesse, but these despicable horns fit for nothing but to expose them to fcorn and laugh-and the feventh day ] Whereby is implyed, that they compassed the City once in this march on the Sabbath day, seeing this must needs be one of the feven, with which God had power to dis frence, as being Lord of the Sabbath. And (as one faith) hu-nane works are forbidden on that day, and not divine, and thole are divine which God commandeth.

V. 5. and the wall of the City Shall fall down flat ] i.e. Not world and earthly things, and thereby uncapable to understand all the wall in the whole compassife of it, but such a large part, the things of the Spirit of God, 1 Cor. 2, 14. Eccles. 5. 1, 2, as was sufficient to give the Ifractiens an easier and fairent And to come with all due preparation to the performance of the spirit of the spiri all the wall in the whole compasse of it, but such a large part, lar promise, Gen. 17.8,9.10. In which respect they now nee-ded especially the benefit of this Sacrament, that their faith ded effecially the benefit of this Sacraments that their taith might be firengthened againful all difficulties which they were now to meet with, in refpect of the mighty opportions of their nunerous, warlike and potent enemies, and might here-by be the better encouraged in all their dangerous attempts and undertakings. And laftly, it was enjoyed by God for the triall of their faith and obedience when they were under a great sentation. Forbeing now entred into the land, and invironed round about with many mighty and malicious enenavirones round about with many miguy and maistons effectives, who watched upon all opportunities to ruine and deftroy them, they could never have had a fitter opportunity then this for the attaining of their purpole, if by any [means they might have come to the knowledge of it. For had they come upon them (as Simeon and Levie upon the Shechemites Gen. 34-25,26.) When they were fore of their wounds, they might eafily have flaughtered them, they being utterly disabled might camy have magnetic tracus, they being afterly minored to fight for their lives, or make any refiftance. Herein their faith therefore was throughly tryed, in that, at Gods command they were willing to hazard their whole Army at once to fo de-

ie. He caused them to be made, or, they were made by his appointment.

and circumcifed the children of Ifrael To wit, all that were not before circumcifed, that is, all that were under 40. years of age, and were born fince their coming out of the land of Ægypt.
at the bill of the fore [ins] Heb. Gibeah hazaraloth. Which name was now given unto this place, because the Israelites had there left and buried their fore-skins. V. 4. And this is the caufe | To wit, why they did now re new and fet on foot again this ordinance of circumcifion, which had been omitted at leaft, for the space of thirty eight years in nad been omitted at least, for the space of thirty eight years in the Wilderneffe, because all the people and men of warr who were twenty years old and upward; for their unbelief, rebellion and mumuring dyed in the Wildrueffe, Numb. 14, 23, 3 Cor. 10.5. Heb. 3,17. and were circumcifed before their comming out of Ægypt, as were also their children that were born there and came out with them under the age of twenty, Numb. 14.29. Deut.1.35. And now a new generation was come in their place which were not yet circumcifed, feeing this Sacra-

turn of the Spies untill this day.

turn or the opics intuitions day.

V. 5. All the peofe the cameout of Ægypt] Namely, those which lived there after Moses return out of Midian, and had received from him Gods message concerning their deliverace out of bondage confirmed with so many and wonderfull miracles, these renewed their covenant, and with it their hopes of enjoying the promifed land, and to accordingly prepared them-felves and their children for their entrance in thither, by taking upon them circumcision, the feal of the covenant.

V. 6. Till all the people] Or, all the nation, as the word properly fignificit; neither doth he here (as some observe) honour shole faitbleffe and rebellious men with the name of people, or his people, but doth fecretly ftigmatize them with the name of nation, which is usually taken in a worse sence, that is, for prophane and heathenish men, who were not of the feed of Abraham, but frangers from the covenant.

unto whom the lord [ware] To wit, being provoked to anger by their infidelity and difforedience, Numb.14.23. Pfal.95.10, 11. Heb 3.17,18.

not show them the land That is, not so much as suffer them to see it (which favour he vouchsafed to Moses) and much lesses to inherit and injoy it.

which the Lord (ware unto their fathers] Namely, that he would give it unto them and their posterity, yet not absolutely, but upon the condition of their faith and obedience, which they on their part not observing, but contrariwise provoking God with their infidelity and rebellion, made void this covenant, and wilfully abdicated and distinherized themselves of this promised

V. 7. And their children whom he raifed up in their flead.
Namely, those who were born unto them in the Wildernesse for they who came with them out of Agypt were circumcifed before, ver. 5. to fliew Gods faithfulnesse and constancy in performing his promiles: Seeing the infidelity and disobedience of these rebels could not make them you'd to their posterity, but according to his Word, Numb. 14.31. he would give to their little ones the land for their inheritance and poffession.

Them Johnstireuncifed That is, because God by covenant had given unto them the land of Canaan, therefore he given unto them the feal of this covenant for the better confirmation of their faith.

For they were uncircumcifed | So that Joshua brought into Canaan, both thole who were circumciled in Ægypt, who was built upon the wall fallen likewile with it , chap. 2. appointment to this fearfull destruction ? I answer, though no

V. 6. And Joses] i.e. he did not demurr upon Gods com-mands, nor deferr to use the means which he had appointed shough they feemed never fo weak and contemptible for the though they become a work, but preferred putter hem is exe-effecting of fo great a work, but preferred putter hem is exe-cation, relying wholy upon the power and promifes of the chief agent, who was all-fufficient to do what he pleafed by the weaheft and baleft inftruments.

V. 9. And be faid unto the people] i. e. to the military men imployed in this fervice, or men of warr, as it is expressed vers. meither is it probable that the whole body of the people confiling of lo many hundred thousands should be appointed to go in this march, feeing it would have been of no ule, year rather have been a great cause of confusion and disorder, one hin-

And let him that is armed passe on Which is principally to be understood of the two Tribes and an half, chap. 1. 14. and 4.

12. 13. V. 8. And it came to passe when Joshua had spoten ] In which words is expressed the alacrity and cheerfulnesse of the Priests and people, in obeying the commands of their Generall, though the things injoyned feemed unreasonable, and nothing conducing to the advancement of the prefent deligne, paffed on before the Lord | See the annotation on chap. 4,

Ark of the Covenant ] i. e. in which were kept the two tables on which the coverant was written.

V. g. And the armed men went befere] i.e. marched on in their ranks in that order (as is most probable) which was formerly appointed by God according to their feverall Tribes. Num. 10. 14. to 20.

and the rereward In which was the standard of the Tribe of Dan, Num. 10.25. though others thereby understand the remainder of the people that were not armed

V. 10. nor make any noyfe] That being filent they might the more compose their minds to spiritual meditations on Gods works of wonders, especially his gracious and infallible promi-fes made unto them for the lubduing of their enemies, and this City in particular, Lam. 3.26. Pfal. 4.4.

V. 12. And Johnson the carry] Herein propounding him-felfi'se a wife and good Generall, as a prefident and exam-ple of watchfulnesse and diligence for the peoples imita-

V. 13. And feven Priefts] Whence fome observe, that the Septenary number is much nobilitated both here and in many other places of facred Scriptures: For we have here feven priefts feven trumpets, feven dayes, feven times compassing the City, and on the feventh day feven times, and frequently the number of feven is made use of in the Leviticall Law. So in the Revelation, the visions are represented under this number, seven feales, feven angels with feven trumpets, feven vials. The reason whereof some think to be, because God was pleased to begin and finish all things concerning the worlds creation in feven dayes, fix whereof were destinated to the finishing of the work it felf in the feverall parts of it, and the feventh to a holy reft, in which the whole creation was composed into (as a full were) an integrall frame, supported and fulfained by a divine power and providence, and fanctified to its main ends, to wir, the glory of God and the good of his reasonable creatures, men

V. 16. Foshua said unto the people shout ] The which shouting was an act of their faith and confidence in Gods promise, that was an act of user than any counter in Josephane, using the would deliver the City into their hands, and accordinly was answered in the effect. And hence it is, that this by the Aposfle is attributed to faith, Heb.x1.50. By faith the walls of fertiles fell down after they were compalled about found after. Though there might be alloo other use of this their flouding, namely, to encourage one another in the onflaught, and to firike a sudden terror and amazement in the hearts of the Citizens, whereby they were disabled to stand upon their de-

V. 17. And the City shall be accursed ] i.e. devoted to de-shruction, and so consecrated unto God, as the first fruits of the land of Canaan; in obedience to whole command, it was to be destroyed. See Levit. 17.28,29. Numb. 24.20. Deut.2. 34. The which anathems though it were pronounced by Jo-thus here, yet it was not from himfelf and in his own name and authority, but by Gods appointment, as appeareth 1 King. a.6. 34. And probable it is, that Johus received this command of delitroying utterly this City, and offering it unto God (as it were) an holocult, in which nothing was to be relerved for mass ute (in which lence, the flaughter of Gods enemies is called a facrifice, Efa. 34.6. Jer. 46. 20. Ezech. 39. 17.) though it be not before expressed, but reserved unto this place, to make way for the following story of Achans fin, by which he transgreffed this command

But why was this City above all the rest devoted by Gods

other reason could be given, yet it were sufficient that God commanded it who being absolute Lord of all things in heaven commance Lewis pung anomire Lord of all tunings in beaven and earth, may do with bis own what he pleafest and what-foever he doth must needs be juft, feeing he is justice it felf, and he doth now will a shing because it is just, but it is just be-cause he willed his, Gen. 18. 25. A gain, all these curied na-tions were abominable in all wickednesse, and by their sins deserved the severest of Gods punishments, and therefore it was at Gods liberty to make choyce of which he pleafed, to make them examples of his wrath. But yet fome other ream fons may be given why this City was thus devoted to utter deftruction ; as first, because being the first that was attempted God would make it an example, to all the rest, of his fearfull vengeance, that taking warning by it, they might not obili-nately frand our against God and his people in a desperate wars or if they did, might be made the more unexculable. And le-condly, God would have the whole spoyle of the City devoted unto him, to make known unto his people, by having (as it were) thefefirst fruits offered unto him, that he had an equali right unto all the reft of the land, and all things contained in it, feeing all was his, and by his power only and affidance gotten, and not their own ftrength; howfoever in his rich bounty and goodnesse he was pleased to bestow upon them all the

Onely Rahab the harlot shall live | Others read it, shall be faved, or fafe; becaule (as they conceive) the benefit extended not only to the persons that were in the house, but likewise to their goods, that they might be preferred as well as their lives bid the meffengers ] Some read, hid them carefully and faith-that we fent ] i.e. My felf and some of the chief comman] ders unknown to the people.

V. 18. keep your felver from the accurfed thing ] i. e. confectated unto God, and devoted unto utter destruction without power of redemption, and that upon the penalty of a fearfull cure against him who should presume facrilegiously to rob God of his right, and divert the things devoted to his own prileft you make your felves accurfed ] i.e. liable to that Curfe which is denounced against those that commit this fin, Deut.

and make the Camp of Ifrael a curfe] i.e. bring it under the fame curle, being in a fort partakers with you in your finne, as Iame cutte, being in a lort partakers with you in your finne, as being all but one body, as Achan did, chap, 7. I.

V. 19. But all the filtur and gold | Excepting their Idols and Images made of thele mettals, which were to be burnt with fire, and utterly deftroyed and abolified, Deut. 7. 25. Exod.

and confecrated unto the Lord | being first legally purified by passing through the fire, Numb. 31.22,23.

they shall come into the treasury i.e. shall be laid up in the Tabernacle to be imployed in Gods service, and therefore could not be put to any private ufe. See Numb. 21. 54. V. 10. So the people [houted] i. e. after they had compaffed the City feven times on the feventh day, as foon as the Priefts the City leven times on the leventh day, as soon as the Prietts began to found, the people shouted, being by faith affured that the Lord according to his promise, would cause the walls to fall down flat before them, and give them entrance into the city, Heb 11.30.

V, 21. And they utterly destroyed all that was in the Gity] according to Go ls expresse commandement, Deut. 20. 16, 17. And therefore it was not to be imputed unto the Ifraelites as an act of cruelr, , feeing they had from God himfelf an expresse charge to do upon them this severe execution, and it is no mercy, but foolish pity, to spare where God commands to punish,

King. 20.42. V. 22. But Joshua had faid unto the two men] i.e. he had given them this charge before they entred into the City, for it had been too late to have deferred it, till the city had been taken, and all full of confusion and slaughter.

V. 23. And left them without the Camp] As things unclean, untill they were legally purified, Numb. 31. 10. and so incorporated into the Congregation by instruction, profession, circumcifion,&c. Deut,21.12. whereby they flewed their care to preferve their Camp holy and free from the defilements of hea-thenish and unclean persons; and hereby put these poor aliens and insidels in mind of their miserable condition in which they and indees in mine or their micraous condition in which they lived, till by faith and repentance they were incorporated into the Church and people of God, that to they might for the prefent bewaile their milerie, and earnefly defire to come out of it, by conforming themselves to Gods true religion in al things, both in profession and practice.

V. 24. And they burn the Citie with fire ] Wherein they shewed their faith and obedience to God, in that they were contented unterly to ruine to fair and strong a Citie, to commodioully scituated in a most pleasant and fruitfull foyl, which Chap. Vij. they might have referred as a fure place of retreat on all occa- | bond, that all have a common interest, both in the joyea and floats, beautified with goodly houses for them to dwell in, they | griefs, the wel-fare and calamittee of the whole bear and having at this time no place fit for habitation, and all manner of rich spoyl, goods and furniture of all forts, when as they were or rice 19031, goods and maintaine of an ions, when as they were in a poor condition and defitture of many necessaries, having no other inducement hereunto, but onely Gods meer command, upon whose promises they wholy relyed by faith for a supply of ali their wants.

ali their wants.
V. 25. And Joshua faved Rahab the barlot alive] But how could this stand with their obedience to Gods former commands, so strictly charged upon them and often repeated, that they should make no covenant with thele curfed nations nor fuffer them to dwell in their land, nor fhew any mercy unto them, but utterly deRroy them, Exod. 23. 32, 33. & 34.15 Deut 7. 2. To Which I might answer, that for ought we know, Joshua bad from God a speciall dispensation in this particular case, though it be not here expressed; and God may justly referve unto himlest a royall prerogative, to differse when he pleaseth, with his own Laws. But secondly, I answer, that thele commands were not absolute, but to be understood with these conditions, if they still continued in their sinne and idolarry, enemies to God and his people, and defired not to have any peace with them: otherwise if they turned by true repentance from their idolatry and finne, and willingly embraced Gods true religion and would submit to be circumcifed, and to become one people with them, and if they did timely defire peace before they were befreged, and would be content to yield unto all their conditions, then the extream rigour in the ourward letter of those severe commandes, was to be moderated ward letter of those levere commanaces, was to be moderated by a common equity, which is the very life of the Law, and fome mercy was to be flewed unto them. Which conditions none of these curfed nations observed (aving onely the Gibeonites) being jully given up of God to the hardness of their own hearts, and therefore were wholy devoted to utter de-fruction. See chap. 11.20.

and (he dwelleth in Ifrael ] Yea, and was married to Salmon the sonne of Naasson, a Prince of the Tribe of Judah, one of Christs progenitors, Matth. 1.5. Luk. 3.32.

unto this day To wit, when this story was written, which could not be long after, feeing the was of good years when this was done, and at the writing of this flory, remained ftill alive in Ifrael.

W. 1.6. And $40\text{plant}$ adjunct them] That is, not by a private the third is the property of the property V. 26. And Foshua adjured them] That is, not by a private nour this City with his presence and miracles, Mar. 10.46. Luk.

before the Lord] i.e. By Gods decree made known unto me by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost.

rifeth up] i.e. Shall prefume and addresse himself to build this City.

Lay the foundation thereof in his first borne] i.e. In the death of his first borne. So that for this presumption he shall be punished with the death of his two sonnes; the first in the bginning of the work, the other in the finishing of it, fignified in the fetting up the gates of it, which is the last thing done in the building of a City. Others understand it that he should be punished with the death of all his children, from the eldest to the yongest. Now this curse seazed upon Hiel the Bethelite and his fonnes, in the raign of Ahab, 1 King. 16.34.

CHAP. VII.

Verf. 1. BUt the children of Ifrael committed a tre[passe] ie. munion with them, his particular sinne was an occasion, that a judgement fell upon them all, till upon diligent examination, and inflicting just punishment, they were cleared and acquit-ted, both from the guilt of his finne, and the punishment due unto it. 5 See chap. 22. 20. For a whole common-wealth is but an entire body confifting of many members, which communicate with one another in all temporall bleffings and calamities, even as the head and heart are affected and afflicted with the dileafes and paines of the hands and feet. And God would have it thus, to make us carefull and watchfull over one another, no onely for the common good, but allo for the welface of our felves and of every particular member, feeing we or all minds to gether in one body with first, an inferential charter of the configuration of t

the paricular members.

For Achan the forme of Carmi ] This name Achan is derived For Acoas inejome of Carms I this mame Achan is derived from the verb Achar, which fignifieth to trouble, unto which Johns alludeth, ver. 25. Why half thou troubled as 7 the Lord fall prouble the this day. And hereof it is that be is called A-char, I Chron. 2, 7 to: A deftroyer, or the troubler of liftaels who transgressed in the thing accurred, namely, in taking and sacrilegiously stealing that which was devoted unto God and not to be converted to any private use) against Gods expresse commandement, chap. 6.18,19.
the some of Zabde ] Who also was called Zimri, 1 Chron. 2.

6. Now this genealogie is here fet down to the fourth generation, that both the hilforic might be the move clearly evidenced, with the manner of their disquisition in finding him out, and to implye the staine of his sinae which he had brought upon his progenitors and whole familie, hereby giving warning unto all parents to be the more carefull in the education of their children in the feare of God, that they may not be a difhonour and reproach unto them when they are dead.

V. 2. from Ferichoto Ai ] Called also Hai, Gen 12. 8. and Aija, Nehem, 11. 31. This lay upon a hill three Leagues from Jericho Westward, and fell afterwards to the lot of the Tribe of Benjamin. There were two Cities of this name, the one in the Tribe of Gad, which the Ammonites had taken, and is prophefied against, Jer. 49.3. and this of the Amorites which which is befides Bethaven on the east file of Bethel] Which were two places, not farr distant one from another, and both neer unto Ai. Bethel the house of God, so called from Gods appearing there unto Jacob, Gen. 28.19. And Berhaven the house of iniquity, or vanity and lying; which name was given noute of iniquity, or vanity and sying; which name was given to Bethel by the Prophet Holea, by way of forme and derifion, after that Jeroboam had there fet up his golden Calves, and fo prophaned and defiled it with his idolatry, Hol. 4. 15. & 5.8.

Go up ] To wit, from the plaines of Jericho, to the mountainous places of the country.

exinous piaces or the country.

V. 3. Let must be bepople go up] Which counfell given by the spies, and entertained by Johnas. was not good and priddentall, although (it may by well intended by them, a feeing thereby they provided rather for the case then the safety City: or if they had prevailed against the whole Army of Gods people (for it is easie for him to give victorie unto few as well as unto many) it would have much discouraged and expoled them to extream danger, whereas it was his purpole to chastise their sinne, and not to ruine and consume them.

V. 4. And they fied before the men of Ai] The Lord having V. 4. Analyse jeta before themelo j. At ] Inc. Lora naving to dithearmed them and despired them of all valous and courage, that it is very probable they did not endure the first brunt of the battell, nor the very fight of their enemies, but fled away when they first fidued out of the Citys feeting the men of Ai are faid not to have fmitten them in fight, but as they pursued them in their flight, vers. 5.

Vers. 5. Even unto Shebarim] Heb. a place of breakings derived from Sebber, which fignifieth to break, so called, it feemeth, upon this occasion, because the Israelites army was there broken and discomfited wherefore the hearts of the people melted, &c. Ii. e. were diffolved with extream fear and amazement, and not able to recollect their courage, because they did not so much look upon the defeat and loffe, which was fo fmall that it was fcarce confidethe state of the s uled as a ceremony to exprelle their extream grief and forrows which did (as it were) rent and even cut in funder their ver hearts, and that either when some great calamity did befall them, as Gen. 37. 34. and 44. 13, Job 1. 20. and 2. 12. or when they saw or heard of some sin committed against Gods Majefor help and comfort, by prayer and humiliation, falling down flat on his face before the ark, which was the visible fign of Gods prefence.

untill the even-tide ] Joyning fasting with his prayer throughout the whole day, that hereby he might poure forth his foul with greater fervencie and efficacie.

And out dust upon their heads | Which was another ceremony used in those times in their great mournings. So, 1 Sam. 4.11. uren in more times in user great mournings, 50, 1 5am, 4.11. & x 5am, 13.19. Ezek, 27, 30. Job; 2.12. whereby they expressed agreat degree of humiliation, professing hereby, with Abraham, that they were but dust and after, and deferved to be buried under the ground; Thereby also confessed their frail be buried under the ground; I thereby and contented their trail and lad condition, and that they were as dead men, unleffle God flowed mercy upon them, and ratifed them up again with they and comfort, Job. 109, Phil. 103,14.

V. 7. And Jofhus Isid, Alas, O Lord In this prayer Johus floweth, that he was under a great tentation, and that there was in him a great conflict between the flesh and the Spirit, faith and doubting, and therefore his speeches and ex-possulations are not absolutely to be so taken, as though he were perfuaded of the truth of them, namely, that it had been bet-ter for them not to have come over Jordan, or that God indeed would deliver them into the handes of the Amorites to be destroyed, or that they would have been content to have lived on the other side of Jordan, or that the Canaanites hearing thereof would environ them round, and cut off their name from the earth; for all these things were expressely contrary both to that generall promise, I will never leave thee nor forfake thee; and also to many particular promises, made to Abraham with the rest of their progenitors, and often renewed to Moles and themselves, and therefore to dis-beleive them. had been to question, yea, to deny Gods truth and power, of which implety this good and holy Generall could not probably be sufpected, who had so lately experience of Gods presence and miraculous affiftance. But we are to understand these speeches as proceeding from humane frailty, and weaknesse of faith, and from a fuddain diftemper of passion and grief, which for the time clouded Gods face and favour from him, fo as he could not apprehend the truth of his promifes, nor be throughly perswaded of his presence and assistance. Although in all this his main intention was good, feeing he chiefly respected Gods glory, and choic rather to have rested contented with a streight habitation for so great a people on the other fide Jordan, then that by this accident he should be dishonoured, and his name exposed to obloquie, and the blasphemies of the nati-

V. 8. O Lerd, what shall I say ? ]i.e. What shall I answer to those, who upon this occasion will detract from thy glory, in the manifestation of thy truth and power?

V. 9. and what wilt then do to thy great name? I i.e. How wilt thou preferve the glory of thy name, when these nations shall say, that thou wantest power to protect thy people, or truth in failing to performe thy promiles, Exod. 32. 12. Numb. 14-13.

V. 10. wherefore lyest thou thus upon thy face; ] Which is not a word of reproof, as though God missiked this posture, feeing Christ himself used it, Matth. 26.39. And nothing more pleaseth him, then when poor sinners prostrate themselves before him with broken hearts and contrite spirits: But rather hereby quickneth and hafteneth him, that he should without any further delays, use the meanes of reconciliation which he appointed. As though he should have said, spend no more time in grieving and afflicting thy felf, seeing I am now ready to hear and help thee, and as willing to grant thy suit, as thou to wake it, Exod. 14. 14.

V. 11. Israel bath finned] For though Achan alone comw. II. Appendix princal For though Artist and committed this facilities fact, yet being a member of the whole politique body, it loft hereby its perfection and intireaeffe, and was in a fort diffipated and diffolved, when one member or part of it was vitiated, and could not be re-united in a perfect tegrity and onenefie, till the vitious part were either cured or CUE OF

And they have also transgressed] i.e. They have aggravated their unne by many circumitances. For they have transgrefied my expresse command and broken my covenant, in grence my experie command and broken my covenant, in laying hands on the accurfed thing, namely, the Babylonish garment, and converted it to their private ule, whereas it should have been burnt; they have also facrilegiously stolen away,

Guids; not for that finall defeat, but because it was a figure of science; they thought they could hide it out of my fight; and Gods wrath, feeting he prospected not their expedition according to his former promites, which might discourage the people and make them taue-hearned-as ver. 5.

before the adjet he Levil Whereby he testissed data he did not morane as one without hope, but was supported when the work and the their hearts in this their winked counties, and resolved to continue in it without repenance. I faith in his extrema grief, feeing he addressible himself to God.

my touchain with I commanded 1963. 1 states y, concerning the accurfed thing, chap. 6. 19. or my covenant in not obeying my commandes, as they promifed, Exed. 19. 3. 2. 24. 7.

V. 12. Because they were accursed ] According to Gods threatning chap. 6.18. & ver. 1.

neither will I be with you any more ] But why doth God thus feverely threaten to cast off all care over his people, for the fin of one private and ordinary man? I answer, not onely because this sinne was committed against a strict law newly en-acted and ratissed by a severe sanction, but also, because the transgression of it, would have proved very pernicious to the whole common-wealth of Israel, if it had not been severely punished. For it would have been a spreading sinne, and infected many others with its contagion : It would have overthrown all lawfull order and Martiall discipline, even in the first beginnings and setting of it, and made men carelessy to neglect all Gods commandes, it they did any waies crosse heir own covetous or voluntuous lufte.

unleffe ye defiror the accurfed] i.e. The man who hath committed the fact about the accurfed thing, and so himself is become accursed, and all his with the contagion of his sinne, i.e. not onely Achan himself, but also all his familie and goods, as being tainted with the fame finne. So v. 24.

V. 13. up, fantifie the people] i.e. Both by a legall purificativ. 13. 19, January to the people 1 At. Dott by a regard permetation as walking their cloathes, and not lying with their wives, Exod. 19. 10, 11. And allo much more with a fpiritual function, prefenting themselves before God, with pure and holy hearts. That thus preparing themselves to appear in Gods presence, the offenders might be discovered and punished, and the people freed from the punishment of his sin.

V. 14. The tribe which the Lord taketh] i.e. Apprehendeth pleafed, he could at the 11th have pointed him out by name, because he might by this graduall proceeding, convince Achan of his finne, and bring him to repentance and consession of it, or at least leave him the more unexcusable, and also, because in the passages of his providence, he doth not usually act immediately by himfelf, but ufeth us as inftrumenes to ferve his providence, and to joyn our endeavours for the effecting of

No. 15, fall be burnt with fire] As the accurfed thing ought to have been according to the Law, Deut. 13, 15, 16, chap, 24, namely, after he is first stoned, which was the punishment 24. hauery, after ne is fift tioned, which was the puminiment appointed for blafphemers and prefumptions offenders by the law, Levit. 24.14, Numb. 15.30, 35. Sov. 25. be and all that be hath] i.e. Not onely the accurfed thing, be an aus in the terminal processing the accurred in the public formers adoubters, when a first, and the which thought was a most fevere punishment, yet it was just because God appointed it, whose judgments are alwaises in glatheous, Gent. 8, Jer. 12. 1. Pfal. 145. 17. Though often unfeatchable, and Jeri 21 1 121 4 45; 17: Anough often universitations, and above the reach of our reason's which may appear, whether we respect God, who appointed this punishment: For first, he is supream Lord of all, and may do with his own what he pleafeth, and his will is the rule of justice, year, judice it els. And fecondly, because we owe our lives to God, and deserve death by the first fin, and all that followed it; and therefore God may justly require this due debt, when, and in what manner he pleafeth; or whether we respect Achan and his sinne, seeing he had insected all he hed with its contagion, and so made them liable to his punishment; or finally, whether we respect Joshua, and the people who did inslict and expect it. First, because God commanded it. Secondly, because he had indangered the whole camp to destruction, who were not (simply considered in themselves) guilty of his fact. Thirdly, because he had exposed thirty and six men to the slaughter, who were in like manner innocent of his finne, though by their own fins known to God, they had juftly deferved their death, and all his were justly executed with him by the fame reason, though they were not knowingly guilty of his fact, that they might be examples unto others, to deterr them from the like transgressions and sins.

because be hath wrought folly in Ifrael ] i.e. A base, foolish because of Bain wringers [out] in 151421 1.6. A Date, 1001110, and finfull deed. So Gen. 34.7. Judg. 20.6. $ 25m. 13.1 2, and that in Ifrael where above all other nations piety and righteoutheffic ought to flowirth, in respect of their just laws and Law-giver, and the manifold miracles which they had feen, and rich mercies and bleffings, wherein they were pre-

V. 17. he took the family of Judah] i. e. The severall fami- | derstand the thirty thousand afterwards mentioned. Which lies, Numb. 26.20,21. or rather their tribunes and Princes which represented their whole families.

the family of the Zathites ] That is, at the heads and chief of the familie; of which See 1 Chron. 2.6.

man by man Heb. by the men, i. e. According to the houfoulds of their fathers, and not every one by the poll, as ap-

And he brought his houshold] i.e. Either Joshua himself, or

And no crought on souponal the Education of Zabdi by his appointment.
V. 19. And Fossus faid unto Achan, my some Hereby shewing his love to his person, and that he was in giving judge-chewing his love to his perfon, and that he was in giving judge-ment free from all rega, enger and define of revenge, and onely aimed at Gods glory and the good of the people. give 1 Frysthe glory to the Loval | Namely, by acknowledg-ing thy fines, and his julitie in drawing thee out to define punishment; and thereby all to thee what the low which he hath call upon thee is true and right. Neither feek any longer to his de by fines, feeing from that an al-feeing God to be boult thine accoulter and judges whole knowledge thou cannot the roth of decline his judgements, and when he was be lorified.

national management, and national constitute that in all humble and pentitien manner, that hereby he may be glorified, and thou freed from everlasking punishment.

V. 20. Indeed I bave finited.] i.e. I freely and ingeniously acknowledge that I, and no other, have committed this hap-nous fact, and thereby have made my felf defervedly guilty and worthy of the greatest punishment, seeing I have trans-gressed the just and expresse command of the Lord God of Ifrael, from whom I have received my beeing, and many fingular favours, as being a member of this common-wealth, which he bath chosen for his peculiar people, and inriched with which he had to describe in specimal people, and induced was many bleffings.

V. 21. when I/Aw] Where he shows the progresse and growth of his sin by its degrees; first, permitting his eiesto rove and fix themselves upon unlawfull and prohibited objects, rove and ix themselves upon uniawital and prohibited objects, contrary to Jobs prackie, Job. 21.1. Secondly, by giving liberty to his concupitence in defiring them. Thirdly, by dwall feiring upon the prev. And Isldy, in ultim means by hiding it, to referre it for his own private using means by hiding it, to referre it for his own private using means his filter mater J. a. Under the Babyoning garment, or and the filter mater J. a. Under the Babyoning garment, or wrapt up within it.

V. 22. So Joshua sent messengers To wit, that the truth of Achans confession might be discovered.

and they ran unto the tent] i.e. They made all haft to fetch the things, which were to be burnt and confecrated, that fo justice being executed upon the offenders, Gods wrath might be averted, & the people might be cleared and freed both from fin and punishment, seeing he had threatned that he would not be with them any more, and that they should not stand before their enemies, untill they had taken away the accurfed thing from enemies, until toey nag taken away use accounted timing from among them, yer.ii. 13.

V. 32. before the Lord 1 i. e. Before the Tabernacle, in which the Ark was the facred fign of Gods prefence, where Johnua and the Elders of Ifrael waited expecting their re-

V. 24. the some of Zerab] i.e. The Nephew of Zerab, who is called his son, because he was lineally defended from his loynes, See verf. 1.

and bi somes and daughters] See annotat. on ver. 15.
unto the valley of Actor] i.e. Or trouble, so called by anticipation, upon this occasion, ver. 26.
V. 25, why the two troubled as 2] Alluding to his name, which significant trouble.

and burned them with fire ] i.e. His children with his goods which he could not have done, but by Gods specials command in this particular case, seeing the generall and common law, was that the children should not be put to death for the father, Deut.24. 16. which severe execution was inft with God. See annotation ver. 15. V. 26. an beap of ftones] As they used to do over them who dyed ignominiously, chap. 8. 29. 2 Sam. 18. 17. that it might be a monument to warne others not to commit the like fin.

valley of Achor ] Because all Israel was troubled here with Achans facriledge, as also himself and all his, by this dreadfull punishment inflicted on them, Hol. 2. 15. Ifa. 65.10.

CHAP. VIII.

Verl. 1. T Ake all the people of warr with thee Not (as some think) the whole army, of which there could be nouse in such a service, against so small a company of fighting men as were in Ai, but rather one would have hindred another, especially when it was to be acted by a stratagem of flight, and would by their multitude have deterred that finall garrifon, from iffuing and fallying out of their gates; but that he should in this expedition make choice onely of warlike people that had yalour and skill, and so fit for such a service, By which they underitand the thirty tuourand atterwards mentioned. Which being mightie men of valour, Johna chofe for this imployment, yet. 3. Others suppose rather, that the whole army was appointed to be present at this service, for the better heartning of all the people, who were not yet free from that fear and amazement that had feized upon them by the former defeat, and alfo because they were all to participate in the spoyl of the City, for their better incouragment in the like enterpizes.

and go up to Ai Because standing en an hill, they were to afcend unto it from the Plains of Jericho.

See, I have given into thine hand | And therefore thou must not attribute the glory of the victory to thine own french and policy, seeing it is my free gift, nor make any doubt of obtain-ing it, seeing thou maiest be as certainly affured of it, as if thou hadft it already in present possession.

and his land ] i.e. All that territorie adjoyning to Ai, which

and the land 1.6. All that territorie adjoying to Ai, which was under the Kingspower and juridiction.

V. 2. Distributish to Jericho] i.e. In the generall, thou thalt deftroy it as thou didft Jericho, and not in respect of the manner in every particulartcircumstance; for the King of Jericho was not hanged as the King of Aiwas, nor he accurled that re-built Ai.

that re-ount AI.

onely the flool thereof ] Which the Lord granted to the fouldiers for their better incouragement, whereas if now again they should not have shared in the riches of this City, of which they flood in fo much need, they would have been disheartned and discontented.

lay thee an ambufh for the City ] For in a just warr it is as lawfull to get victorie by policies and stratagens, as by open fight and force; seeing God the authour of justice hath warranted it unto us by many examples, and here also by his own bebinde it lie. On the west fide of the City, seeing they were now on the East side, when they received this com-

V. 3. and all the people of warr] i.e. Not the whole army (for all were not men of warr) but fuch onely as were of great valour and skill in martiall affaires, and to the fittelt for fuch a fervice.

and Jobus choje out thirty thoujand I In which words he more clearly expressed who were that people of warr, whom he chose for this service, manely, thirty thousand mighty men of valuer, and feat them away by night. That they might lye in ambulli behinde AI, but not the whole number of thirty thousand 3 for how had it been possible for such a multitude to have lyen. hid and undifcovered for the space of a whole day, so neer unto the City, and that not far from Beth-el, who were confederate with them ? And besides, the five thouland more which are mentioned ver. 12. And therefore it is more probably thought, that onely thirty thousand mighty men of valour were cholen out of the whole army for this service, and that not this whole number were lent to lye in ambush, but onely five thousand choice out of them which are spoken of in the 12ver. Though (I confesse) this narration doth not make it clear, being fornewhat intricately and perplexedly expressed a as we have the like, Judges the 20. chap.

V. 4. ye shall be in maile God would not destroy Ai by miracle, as he had done Jericho, to the end that the nations dif-

covering the power and policy of his people, might accordingly fear them. but be ye all ready] Namely, to receive my commands and directions, as occasion shall be offered. V. 5. and all the people that are with me ] Namely, the five and twenty thousand that remain of the thirty thousand, to carrie on the fervice and defign against Ai, in an apert and open way, by drawing them out of the City, and encouraging we shall give unto you, (namely, the five thousand chosen to lye in ambush) a fit opportunity of assaulting and entring the City, when al their forces being drawn out, you shall finde it naked, and none in it to make opposition.

V. 6. till we have have drawn them out of the City | Hereby admonishing them not over hashily to discover themselves in their ambush, but to lye close till the citizens that sallied out were drawn far enough out of the City.

V. 7. Then ye [ball rife] Namely, when you shall have a fign given you of our returning from our feeming flight and jetting upon them ; of which See ver. 18. In which your enterprize, you shall be sure to have good successe and victory, seeing you have a promise from God, that he will deliver this City, with all that are in it, into your hands,

V. 8. That ye shall set the City on fire 1 Not the whole City; but onely so much as might be a sign to Joshua and his army, by the imoke accepting of their entrance into it, that they might furcease their defiembled flight, and making a stand might fall upon their enemies. For the whole City was after burned and deltroyed by the whole army of thirty thouland, fear and altonilhment, deprived of all courage in their minds after they bad flain all their enemies, and falling upon those and firength in their bodies, they could make no cleape, being few that remained in the City where wholly possessed of it, and of all the spoyl which they found in it, as appeareth ver. 24.

Chap. ix.

V. 9. Folhar therefore sear them forth To wit, the five thou-fand men appointed to lye in ambush. But Fostus lodged that night among the people ] That is, the twenty five thousand that remained after the five thousand were lent away.

V. 10. and numbred the people] That is, mustered and set in order the people, and to this end, that it might afterwards appear for their better encouragement, that they had gotten this victorie without any losse. V. 11. And allthe people] Namely, which were by him cho-Sen out of the whole army for this service, and were now remaining with him, the five thousand being to be sent away to lye in ambush; and not the whole people or army, but onely the men of warr that were with him, as it is here exprefied.

V. 12. And he took about five thousand men ] Namely , out of the thirty thousand that were appointed for this fer vice.

V. 13. [a thepeople ] i.e. Had so disposed them, as might be for his best advantage in this service, some in ambush behinde the City on the West side, and some with himself in the camp, on the North fide. But he himfelf in the night or in the dark of the morning, (as appeareth ver. 9, 10.) made his neer approach to the City, that so having with him but a small neer approach to the City, that to having windin the Valued company, he might discover himself to the enemy, and by the fight of sich a despicable number, he might draw and incite them to sallie out of the City, the which he did the rather because it was not his purpose to fight with them, but to retreat to the rest of his company in the camp, which were on the

into the midst of the valley Which was between the City and

ns army.

V. 14. And it came to passe when the king of Ai saw it, that they hasted 1.e. When he both saw the smalnesse of Joshua's army, and also that they had placed themselves in a place of the same has the product of the production. difadvantage, to wit, in a low valley, he made hast to lay hold on this opportunity.

he and all bis people] i.e. The greatest part of his strength, fit for this service. For that some remained in the City, appear-before the plain Which was on the East fide of the City. but he wift not ] Which is added to thew their floth and improvidence in managing so great a businesse.

V. 15, and fled the way of the wildernesse] Which was ( as is v. 15, and neather way of the mutacrieffel. Which was (35 is thought) the wildernesse of Bethaven, night unto Beth-el, chap. 18.11.13, where they had left the body of their army. Or, as others, the wildernesse between Ai and Jericho, as steeing to Jericho, from whence they came, to fecure themselves from imminent danger, of being flaughtered by the pursuers.

V. 15. And all the people Because now hearing of the flight of their enemies, they conceived there was no use of fouldiers to defend the City, but that there was nothing elle to be done, but to purfue and do execution upon those that fled.

V. 17. And there was not a man left in Ai] i.e. Not a man that was able to bear armes, or do any fervice in this expedition ; for otherwise there remained still in the City, weak, aged, and impotent men, as appeared ver. 4.

"Beth e'll Whitch being a neighbour town of finall frength, abandoned, as it feeneth, their habitation, and put themselves into Ai, as being a place of more frength, (that unting their forces) they might be the better inabled to defend one another against their common enemie : Although others conceive that they might still dwell in their own town, but now fallied out as well as the men of Ai, having taking like notice of the Ifraelites flight; Seeing it appeareth in the Book of Judges, that it was a place of strength, which could hardly have been taken by the house Joseph, unlesse it had been betraied into their hands, Judg. 1.24.

V. 18. Stretch out thy speare! Which was the figual! to be given to those that lay in ambush, that they should enter and furprise the City; and to those that fled, that they should make a stand, and turne face against the pursuing enemie; though in that distance Joshua could not have known when to give this fignall, or that all the fouldiers were drawn out of the City, had not God himself revealed it unto him; Neither the liers in wait have taken notice of it, unlefte they had had the like secret revelation, or outwardly at least, by fome trumpet or flout of the army

V.19. and fet the city on fire] Not the whole Citysfor then they could not have had the spoyl that was given them, yer. 1, but so much of it as might be a fignall to the army, by the smoke ascending, to make known unto them, when they should re-turne from their counterfeit flight and fer upon the enemie.

V. 20. And they bad not power to flee | i.e. Being through enclosed on all fides between them that had lyen in ambush and the main battell.

V. 21. And all Ifrael i.e. All that army who were imploved in this fervice, both those who had showed themselves to the men of Ai and had encouraged them, being drawn out of the City, to purfue them by a counterfeit flight, and those also who remained in the camp on the North fide, who now likewife joyned with them, when they faw by the Imoke afcending, that the City was furprized by those that lay in am-

V. 22. And the other | Namely, who had lyen in waite. and had now done all required of them, both for the taking of the City, and for giving a fignall to the flying army.

V. 23. And the king of Ai they took alive ] And would not (it feemeth) flay him in the fight, because they reserved him for a more solemn execution, that his death might be exemplary to others of his rank, to fhew them what they were to expect going on in his courle.

V. 24. and [mote it with the edge of the [word] i.e. All the men unable to bear arms, with the women and children who were left in the City, all these likewise they put to the sword, after they had slain all the souldiers in the field, and burnt the City after they had first seized on the prey and driven out the cattell.

V. 25. were twelve thousand men, even all the men of Ai] And with them the Bethelites that came in to their aid are here also comprehended, whereby appeareth, what a small number were in this City according to the report of the spies, chap, 7.2. And withall how wonderfully God had blinded them with felf-confidence to their utter ruine, feeing though they were but fuch a contemptible number, yet they adventured to oppose and maintain warr against such a numerous. puiffant and fucceffefull army.

puillant and fuccessessus army.

V. 26. For #folias drew not bit band back wherewish be firstshed out the fibera? That it might appear both to him and others that he got not the victory by his own prowelle and fleength, but only by Gods power affulting him, and effecting all for him, even as Mofes prevailed against the Amalekites not by fighting, but by praying, Exod. 17.

V. 27. Of that City] By which emphaticall expression he opposeth Ai to Jericho, seeing the spoil of this was devoted to God. But of that reserved for their own use.

V. 28. and made it an beap for ever ] i. e. for a long time, as this phrase in the Scripture often fignifieth; for Ai was afterwards re-built and inhabited by the Benjamites, Neh. 11. 31. which was above a thouland years after it was demolish-

V. 29. And the King of Ai he banged | Executing the greatelf leverity of justice upon the Kings of these curled Nations, as being the greatest offenders; corrupting the people both by their bad government, and also by their evill exam-

take his carkafe down According to the Law, Deut. 21. 12, 23. the which was enjoyned, left by looking on fuch fad objects their hearts should be hardened and habituated in mercileffe cruelty, and that the land might not be defiled by fuch monuments of Gods curies and wrathfull displeasure remaining long upon it.

at the entering of the gate of the City ] Because (as some think) being in those times the place of justice, he had often abused it by administring unrighteous judgment, neither protecting the righteous, nor puaithing the wicked according to their demerits; and therefore in this very place thus abused by him, the Lord executeth upon him the just doom of a righteous judge.

Agreat heap of stones See annotation on chap. 7.26. V. 30. Then Joshua built an Altar ie. Soon after the facking and burning of Ai he built this altar according to that charge given him by Mofes from God, Deut. x1. 29. and 27. 5,6. upon which they were to offer facrifices when they were entred into the land of Canaan, and also a monument of great stones upon which the law was to be written, and that the people hearing certain curses and bleffings pronounced upon mount Eball and Gerazin should give their Amen unto them, which accordingly was here done by Johua.

upon mount Ebal] Concerning the feituation of these two mountains Ebal and Gerazin, expositors differ in their opinions. Some hold that they were scituate neer Ai, for which there were divers reasons; others and that more probably, that they were further up in the Country in that part which afterwards fell by lot to the Tribe of Ephraim, and neer unto Sichem; as appeareth, Judg. 9.6, 7. chap.20.7.

V. 31. hath life up any iron] Namely, to smooth and polifh it with any tooles of the artificer . Exod. 27. 21. & Deut. 27.5.

V. 32. a copie of the law of Mofes ] i.e. (as some conceive) the fumme of the law contained in the decalogue, or as others, hardneffe of their own hearts, to go on in luch a way as would fand that more probably) the bleffings and curfes here menti- bring them to deffruction, chap. 11. 20. oned, feeing where this writing is enjoyned by Mofes, he requireth that they should write upon the stones all the words of this Law very plainely, namely, this Law of blessings and curles, of which he presently speaketh in the next words following,Deut 27.8. 12.14. V. 33. And all Ifrael] To wit, divided into two parts, in Tribes on the one fide and fix on the other.

flood on this fide the ark | In Deut. 27. 12. 12. it is faid that one party flood upon mount Gerizim, to pronounce the bleflings, and the other to pronounce the curles upon mount Ebal; but here that half of the Tribes flood over against mount Gerizim, and the other half over against mount Ebal, whereby it appeareth that they flood not upon the top of these mounezines,bur upon their affcent neer unto the bottome, that they might be the neerer one to another, and both of them to the ark, which flood in the valley between the mountaines, where they might more conveniently hear the bleffings and curfes pronounced by the Levites, and fo might accordingly give their affent unto them mount Gericim and mount Ebal] Both of which mountaine lay in the Tribe of Ephraim, Deur. 1.29.30. Judg. 9.7. And therefore being farther up in the country, and in some diflance from Ai : It feemeth that either this monument and altar, were erected not prefently as foon as they had facked Ai, but in some space of time afterward, when they had made a farther progresse in conquering the country, although the fory of this action be here inferted; or if now it were done to thew their readinesse to execute Gods commands, as foor as they had made their first entrance into the country. Deut 11.29.8 27.2.4. and could do it with any conveniency it feemeth that they got this opportunity by meanes of that terrour and aftonishment with which God had possessed the terrour and attonament with which Good had penetical the hearts of the inhabitants, upon the occasion of the surprize of these strong Cities, Jericho and Ai. V. 14. And afterwards Ji.e. After he had built the altar and offered facrifices uponit, and written the law upon the playiter of the monument.

be read all the words of the law ] Not he himself, but one of the Levites by his appointment, for fo had Moles expresly commanded, Deut. 27. 14.

V. 25. which folbus read not ] Which he did not cause to be read by a Levite and that according to the manner preferibed by Moles, that is, with a loud voyce, that all the people flanding on both fides might hear him, at least their Princes, Elders and chief rulers; neither was it possible that the whole commonalty of the people, consisting of so many hundred thou-fands of men, women; children and strangers; should hear and understand one man reading, at the same time. And this is intimated by those words, before all the congregation of Isra-el, whereby is meant that the Levite must read with such a loud and audible voyce as that all might hear him, for otherwife his reading would be to no purpose, if what should be read were not heard and understood.

and the [frangers] ic. Not fuch ftrangers as came amon them for trade and commerce, but fuch as being converte were Profelites, and together with them made profession of Gods true religion. See ver. 23.

Verl. 1. ON this fide Fordan] i.e. In respect of Moab, to wit, in the land of Canaan where the Ifraelites of the great [ea] i. e. The mediterranean,or in all the couffs adjoying to that fea.

over against Lebanon] Which lyeth in the North part of Ca-beard thereof] To wit, of the facking and burning of Jeri-cho and Ai, which were two frontier Cities of Canaan, and of great ftrength.

V. 2. That they gathered themselves] i e. Combined themfelves in a joynt coveriant to make war against Joshua and the Ifraelites that had invaded their Country.

V. 2. thein habitams of Gibeon] Which was a city of the Hivites, 161, 1, 0, the fell to the tribe of Benjamin, & was given to the priefls, 161, 21, 27 fogether with them of certain other townes which were at least in confederacy with them, If not under their jurissichting as Chephirah, Berroth and Kirjath-jearin, v. 17, with whom no beace was to be made, without special warrant from Godgo at Teast freezall, conditions peculiar unto them which were by Gods appointment.

beard what fofbut had done ] The fame report came to the order won 300m on a dwel . The same report came to the control words are to peace are reague with them, nor more other kings, but wrought in them quite contrary effects in Them a refolution to fight with Johna, in Thefe to yield and many the control was more fifther mount the treatment of control with was controlled by the control with the control was controlled and the controlled by the the meanes of their prefervation, and leaving the other to the

V. 4. They did work willy ] i.e. Politiquely and prudently in respect of the matter and substance of their design, but subtilly and craftily in respect of the manner and meanes which they used in the carriage of it, and in both these senses the word here used is commonly taken.

As if they had been ambaffadours ] To wit, fent unto Joshua from fome far countrey.

and bound up] i. e. Pieced together, and mended where they had leaked.

V. 6. We be come from a far countrey ] This they pretended, because they had heard that God had forbidden the Israelites to make any league with these curled nations, but having given them their land for a poffession, they should utterly destroy and root them out, and had feen an experiment hereof in the ruine of Jericho and Ai, and now feared that it would fall to be their own lot, if by this meanes they did not prevent it. as appeareth, ver. 24, namely, by faying that they were inhabi-tants of countries far remote, with whom it was lawfull for them to make leagues, if they would fubmit themselves to be-come tributaries unto them, Deut. 20,11.

V. 7. And the men of Iffael To wit, the Elders, Princes and chief men of Ifrael, who assisted Joshua in the counsels of State, and the managing of all weighty affaires that concerned the common-wealth.

and how shall we make a league with your ] Seeing God bath ex-presly forbidden it hath given unto us your land for a possession and inheritance, will not fuffer you to dwell amongit us, but hath commanded us to destroy and root you out, Exed. 23.31.

37,33. & 34. 12. & Deut. 7. 2.

V. 8. we are thy fervants ] And not thy enemies, as the Canaanites are, and therefore will not fland upon any tearms and conditions with thee, for the transacting and ratifying of a peace with thee, but as fervants wholly fubmit our felves to thy pleafore, and wil willingly accept of any conditions which thou

V. 9. because of the name] ie Of the glory and power of the Lord (which we have heard much of, and with great admiration) shewed in his wonderful works and miracles, which may be a motive to perswade you to contract a firm peace with us, seeing we do adore and magnifie the fame great and glorious God whom ye ferve and worship.

and all that be did in *Egypt] Which they with much art and skill infilt upon, as being things done long fince, and therefore might by fame come to their knowledge, though they were strangers and lived in a countrey far remote, and subtilly conceal and passe by Gods great works done of late in their pasfage over Jordan, and destroying Jericho and Ai, lest their taking notice of thefe, might have discovered them to be neer neighbours and not ftrangers dwelling a far off, feeing in fuch a great distance the things fo lately done could not as yet have

V. 11. Wherefore our elders ] And therefore you have the more reafon to hearken unto us feeing we come not on our own accord, nor upon the private motion of some few of our citizens. but by the command of all our Elders and Governours. and the generall confent of the whole people of our coun-

14. And the men | i.e. The chief rulers and princes who talked with them and heard all their probable discourse. took their vietuals ] To wit, into their hands, that they might handle and look upon them, and fee if they were fuch indeed as they reported, and so believed and approved their words, being deceived with the fight of their provisions.

and asked no counfel | Namely, by the high Prieft, inquiring of the Load by Urim and Thummin, as they were commanded, Ex. 28.30. Num:27.21. 1 Sam. 30. 7, 8. which doth not prove that it they had confulted with God, he would have given unto them this answer, that they fliould have rejected the fuit of the Gibeonites defiring prace upon their conditions, but is only spoken to task the Princes of the neglect of their duty going on rathly in a businesse of such importance, and not first asking counfell from God.

V. 15. And Tofnus made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live, and the Princes of the congregation ware unto them ] For the opening of which words we most clear a great question, whether this which Joshua did in making peace with the Gibeonites, and the Princes in confirming it by oath, were lawfull or unlawfull. The which is perplexed with fo mawere laying or unjusting. The which is perpexed with so many difficulties arifing from the rext, compared with other places of Ecripture, that it is not easily to be refolved. For how could this peace be lawful, being exprelly contrary to Gods command. that they should make no peace or league with them, nor suffer them to live amongst them, but that they should unterly destroy people muirmir and complain of their Princes for doing of it was of the Lord to hardes their bearts, that they flouid come a-that which was july & why doth Johna pronounce them accur-gaing I freel in barte, that he might define they merely, and that nat wince was junge way do no join he pronounce them accur-fed, if they had done nothing faving the which was equall and right? And why is it faid, that what they clid vas extorted from them by decist, implying that they could not lawfully have done what they did, had they not been circumvented by their fraude and difficultation. On the other fide, if their covenant and oath were unlawfull, why did they not break it, especially being drawn from them by deceit, and seeing also there was an errous in the persons unto whom their oath was made, they erroup in the perions unto whom their cata was made, they not being the fame men whom they pretended themeleves to be a Neither doth it fairlife and clear the doubt, to fay, that though the thing unto which they furare vere unlawfull, but be refigion of neite cath yed, them to observe it, as being thereligion of their oath tyed teem to observe it, as being made not onely to men but allo to God; feeing this cannot binde a man to do that which is simply unlawfull, neither will trylea'e God to call him to be our furety, to witnesse that we will do that which is finful and exprelly contrary to hisreyealed will.

Chap, ix.

For the removing of which difficulties, Laffirm and hope First, because no condition was expressed in it of preferon, true, occure no constitute was experimentate operating their lands, liberties or goods and much left bear ingers.

This work is a dolateror wording, but onely of their livers.

Wherein using eace much differed from that whitch they might provide the with other nations which were far off. For large with other nations which were far off. Wherein this peace much differed from that which they might govern the production of the control of the control budga, to, ake any peace with them, and they were to defixed, and toge them out; but contraitivile if they would accept of their lives and peace, by full mitting to these conditions, and carefully observing them, then they might have what they defired and fued for.

Thirdly, these commands of destroying these nations were Appuly, tone commands or curroying the nations were but poffure; have, which were alwaise to be tempered and qualified with a merall coulty, namely, that notwithflanding the rigott of them, those frouth be spaced and preserved who did forfalse their evil livines, and turn must God by unfained repetitance and new obediences for should not the Judge of heaven and cartly execute righteous judgement ? Will he deflroy the righteous with the wicked, thole who repent with shole that live in their fin > Will he leave off to exercise the works of his nature, in the ving mercy to poor pontent finners, to do his work, his strange work, and to bring to passe his act, his strange act in shewing his wrath, as in the valley of Gibe-works of his nature, in flexying mercy to proor penieur finners, do his work, his frange work, and to bring to pall his 3ch, his frange are in flexying mercy to proor penieur finners, his flexing a bring his wrath, as in the valley of Gibban 1 his flexing and in the wing his wrath, as in the valley of Gibban 1 his flexy of the proof of the p their could will recent of the cuil that it thought to do unto niffment which their conquerous were pleafed to inflict, then, &c. The which we fee experimentally verified in the exampleof the Minivites, who upon their repentance were freed from that deliruction which God have denounced against them by the ministery of Jonas; and of Rahab and her family in this story.

Fiftly, It is faid chapter the ii. verf. 19.20, that there was not a.Civ that made perso with the children of Ifreel, faving the Hi-vites the Inhabitants of Gibson, all other they took in battell. For gainft Ifrael in battle, that he might deftroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour but that he might deftroy them as the Lord commanded Mofes; whereby it is plainly implyed, that if they had not continued in their enmity, but according to the practile of the Gibeonites, had defired and fined for peace, and upon the like conditions, the Ifraelites might lawfully have granted it un-

Laffly, that their covenant and oath in moking and confirmaing this peace with them was lawfull in it felf, and approved by God, hereby appeareth, in that God was fo highly displeased with the breach & violation of it by Saul many years after that (though is were coloured by a flew of zeal toGods people) yet his wrath could be no otherwife appealed, when he had conti-nued a fearfull famine upon the whole land for the space of 3. years, then by hanging up of ? of his fons, and fo rooting out almost his whole posterity.

Mow these realons being premised and duly considered, the objections may without any great difficulty be answered. For first, if it be objected that this longue was unlawfull, because rot the removing or which dimensions, a aminimum users propose, that this coverant and oath made by Johns and the Princes must be Gibbonse, was in the libbtance of it. (Etm., and had exceed all thele curied nations to universal leads the brinces must be Gibbonse, was in the libbtance of it. (Etm., and had exceed) forbidden his people may league with lawfull, though exterted from them by fraude, and diffinulating them. To this knower, that this is not to be underflood of all and every fingular member of all who would not fubmit them-

But if then it be further demanded why this command was and make peace with them upon more eafic conditions, then I rally and for the notifying to be executed, and only forme few with thelic Canamites; namely, they might fuffer them to exceed their own religion and inperfitions, and not compell them to become profetites and imbortions, and not compell them to become profetites and indicate them. They might allow fuffer them to energy their lands, their towns and liberties, and to hold with them free-trade and committees. All which conditions were unlawful to be made government of the profetility of their own habitations, would much government to the made government of the profetility of countered. All which conditions were unlawfull to be made grown and the countered of the counter not leave their idolary and toperlittions, and imbrace Goods Good was not greater to insigned inter times and under a true religion, and fo indapper the lifetiers to be corrupted under. However, the first times to the company of the contract of the contr ties, their goods, lives, and all they had, to live as lervants be deflroyed, because food had threatend a shought under the dominion of the furnities, then, they were for the might an another time have some concest than he might as another time have some conceit that.
God would spare it upon repentance, because he was a gracious God , mercifull, flow to anger, and ready to foreive.

Other objections there are which arise out of the following words in the text, which I shall answer in their due V. 17. Cheshirah and Beeroth ] Which came after to the lot of the Benjamites. and Kiriath jearim ]. Which fell to the lot of Judah. And in it the Prophet Urijah was borne, who prophefied against ferusalem, as the Prophet Ieremiah relateth, Jerem. 46.

V. 18. Because the princes of the congregation had from Hue them] This was the chief reason that reitrained them from de-stroying the Gibeonites, because it came under their comi-liming under the canditions of continuing in obtelences.

The production of the conditions of continuing in obtelences are returning from our finness by rating from continuing the conditions by often conversed as plainly appeared by a result of the conditions by often conversed and the conditions of the contention of the continuing the production of the contention of the content of the cont infilment which their conquerous were pleased to what he caule they had offended in their manner, of obtaining, it is fraude and deceit, though they did this, being, Juppinzed with four of being utterly defloyed, if they did not by this meanes prevent their ruine.

N. 19. we have foreme unto them by the Lord God of Lind ] Where they plead their oath, rather than the lawfulnelle of January 1970 - And Thank in round of point it is applied to the street of the point in it is applied to the street of the street the covenant unto which they had fwom:

(if at leaft them-dent and politique manner, every word having in it its weight, felves did rightly understand it) because the people were to worke his and the Princes hearts to mercy and pity; namely. felves did rightly underfland it) because the people were 1 to worke his and the trunces hearts to mercy and pury ananty, more apprehendive of this obligation, knowing that it was it has what they had done, was not oursel love to fraude and horrible impiery to break fuch a faced oath as was made by decit, but mercely out offerae, to fave their lives at the great God of fixed, from whom they received all the level of the great of the first of the great God of fixed, from whom they received all the level of the great God of fixed, from whom they received all the level of God commands and threatming against the great God of God good they enjoyed, and which they expected for the time to come; and that it would much dishonour God, and bring a great (candall upon his true religion, when the of Ifrael, but also in an especiall manner Ioshua's God, nations neer and far off, should take notice that they had and honour Moses with the title of Gods forward. with much perfidioufnesse and extream cruelty, violated their covenant which they had confirmed with a folenin and facred oath, by fo great and glorious a God as the Lord God

now therefore we may not touch them] To wit, because we are bound to fave their lives by a folemn oath and lawfull to be kept, for if it had been unlawfull, it might have been lawfully broken, but they fued for peace before we befreged their City, and bave willingly fubmitted to all our conditions.

V. 20. This we will do Namely, upon those conditions expressed, ver. 21. We will save their lives, but so, that they shall for circumventing us with their fraud, become unto us our perpetuall fervants, which to an ingenuous man is more bitter then death, the which as it will bring upon them deferved punishment for their deceit, fo fingular profit unto us in that we shall by this means have them as flaves under us to do all our druggery, and take off from our felves fuch base fer-

Left wrath be upon us ] As it furely would be, if we should violate a lawfull oath.

V. 21. And the Princes faid unto them ] Namely, to the murmuring people, that they might appeale their anger and quiet their minds, by propounding unto them such a way as would both sufficiently punish the fraud, and bring much profit

Let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water] i.e. In the meanest condition among the people, which the Scripture ex-

presset by this phrase. See Deut. 20.11.

unto all the Congregation] i.e. For the publique service of God to be performed by the whole congregation in the Tabernacle, as Joshua expressesh it, ver. 23. for which purpole they were bound to provide wood and water to be used in their tary were sound to provide wood and water to be used in taster ceremoniall walhings, fallings, and daily Secifices, wer. 27-which was a work of no finall care and pains in that Country, unto which service (it is probled by they were bound not all at once, feeing they were in their habitations feattered over the whole land, but in their turns as the Levites were.

V. 21. And Joshua called them; ] i. e. After he and the Princes had confulted together, and had refolved on this wherefore have ye beguited us ] i.e. Why have ye used such fraud and deceit in drawing us to make this covenant with you, and to ratifie it by attesting Gods great and glorious name, and have not rather carried on fuch a work as this with honest simplicity, and with an upright heart and hand, not intermixing therewith such cunning lyes and distimula-tion. V. 23. now therefore yeare curfed ] i.e. because you have not indeavoured to preferve your lives by lawfull meanes, but by high and delembling interfore (in refpect of your temporal condition, you have brought upon your felives and your children his heavie curfe of bondage and fervitude. In denouncing of which curfe he may seeme to relate unto that prophetical leurit pennounced by Nosh against Cham their great progenitour, that he should be a servant of servants to this tempera, the which now year-writed in his noderiaunto his brethren, the which now was verified in his posterity. Gen. 9.25. But yet this heavy curse through Gods infinite mercy became in some respects a bleffing to these Gibeonites, feeing by these fervices (though base in themselves) they had neerer approach unto God in the service of the sanctuarie, for the good of their soules, and were in a fort given and confecrated unto God, as the name afterwards given them doth import. For these were (as is thought) those Nethinims of whom we read. 1 Chron 9. 2. and Ezra 2.43. whose office was to attend upon the Levites in the service of the sanctuary, who though tend upon inductivities in the network of the inductivities of the inductivities in the first product of the inductivities of the induc their feverall turnes and courfes. Ezra.8 20, now if David thinles though a great King, chose rather to be a doresteeper in the boule of bis God, then to dwell in the tents of wieledniss. Plat 84.10. Then these poore Gibeonites had no damage bushes in the same and the same of the age by their bale fervices, feeing by them they had this privi-ledge of neere approaches unto God.

for the buffe of my God J. i.e. the tabernacle now, and the temple afterward; yea for the publique fervice, of the whole congregation in things appertaining unto God.

V. 24. And they answerd Fostial 1 to wit, in a very pru-that they acknowledged the Lord to be not only the God and honour Mofes with the title of Gods fervant, and with all humilitie acknowledge themselves servants unto Joshua , who were ready and willing to obey all his com-

V. 25. we are in thine hand] i.e. in thy power to doe with us and lay upon us what fervice thou pleafeft, and as it feemeth good unto thee in a common and morall equitysto deale with fuch as we are all, former circumstances being duly confidered.

V. 26. And fo didheunto then ] namely according to that his fentence which he had paffed upon them, verl,

V. 27. for the Congregation Not as bond-men to private persons, but for the use and benefit of all Gods people in the publique service of the Sanctuary.

Even to this day ] Not only that time wherein this history was written, but even unto perpetuity, and in after ages, as ap-peareth in the words following, in the place which he shall chuse. i. c. Either in the Tabernacle now, or in the Temple hereaf-

CHAP. X.

Verf. r. Wen Admi-zedek] whole name fignifi-eth King of righteoufness; which glorious and specious name he arrogated unto himselfe for his greater honour among the people, although he and his fuccef-fors were cruell tyrants, as appeareth. Judg. 1.7. if at leaft he were his fucceffor and not himself. See annotat, on verse had heard how Joshna had taken Ai ] Where the causes of their confederation and preparations for warre are expressed, and what it was that awakened them out of their lethargic of careleffe fecurity & incogitancie, into which they were fallen by their long wallowing in carnall & finfull delights, namely their imminent & approaching danger. A man might refonably have thought, that hearing long before how God for their horrible and hainous fins had given their land to his people, and devoted the inhabitants to utter destruction; how he had made a paffage for them through the red fea, and Iordan, and miraculoufly feel them in the wildernesse, this should have rouzed them out of their dead fleep; but outward words and works will do nothing, till God bring them home to the heart, as we see in the example of these Kings, compared with the contrary practise of the Gibeonites and Hivites.

and were among them ] i.e. either were daily and familiarly conversant with them in their Campe, their office being to hew wood and draw water for the use of the congregation, or rather held communion with them, by submitting themselves to be under their laws, and joyning with them in Gods fervice.

V. 2. that they feared ] i.e. Adonizedek and the other sings of the Country, and their people with them.

V. 3. wherefore Adoni-gedel Who is named first as the chiefe in this confederacie, because he was most active in the businesse, as being more neerly concerned in it, in regard that he was next unto the danger; for he was in the middle way between the Ifraelites standing campe in Gilgal and Gi-beon, and may also be probably thought to be the chiefe of these Kings, and had in such cases some superiority over the King of Fernfalem] Which is a name compounded of Fereb, That is, will provide, fo called by Abraham when God had provided a Ram to be facificed in the place of Ifaac, Gen. 12. 14. and Schalom fignifying peace, q. d. he will provide peace. Which City with the other foure did afterwards belong to the Tribe of Judah, and were feituate on the South miles from Kiriah-jearim towards the west. Of which see 2 muss from artial-jearint towards the wett. Of which tee z King, 18, 14, 2 Chron, 32, 9, and Eglon, called also Adul-lam, which Rehoboam afterwards re-edifyed and fortified, a Chron, 11, 7, all which Cities were scituate in the mountainous places belonging to Judah.

V. 4. that we may [mite Gibeon] Unto which they were induced by divers reasons, some whereof are in the text plainly expressed : First, that by destroying them they might deterr and discourage other Cities (as it were) by an exem-

Chap. x.

plarie punishment from imitating them in the like desection. becoudy, because this City was (as it were ) a key of their becondly, because this city was (as it were) a key of their countrey, which being in the Ifraelites polifition, would open unto them an cafe pallage to the other Cities adjacent; but being in their bands would, as a ftrong frontier and fenced being in their names would, as a mong trumber and reacted with their names would be indeed them from entring further into the land, interesting the reaction manner the rained down upon the flying further into the land, interesting the rained down upon the flying for a further land, because the rained down upon the flying further into the land, in the land of the l hereby become traitors to their own common-wealth, and cient to brain and kill them; the which (as some think) was acwere now incorporated into them, and become (as stwere) one companied with another mixacle no lesse wonderfull, in that body.v.s. Fourthly, because if the Ifraelites became owners of Gods providence so ordered and disposed of them, that they body, v.v. routiny, occasion it the attached occasions, | killed only the flying Canaanites, and not any of the Ifraelites, a magazine from whence they might flore themselves at all times withamunition, victuals, and all necessaries for the warr. and might have ready information how all things paffed, be-tace piaces; because the Amortics had many Coronics in overes a more probable, occause the Amortics had many coronics in overest are faid to be killed with the halillones which fell upon the places of Iudea, as appeared. Munh. 31. a. However that give the touch the country adjoyning belonged to the Higher halillones are faid to be killed with the body of the army, then with Gibeon and the country adjoyning belonged to the Higher halillones are failed by the failure of the children of Itael.

V. 6. flack not thy hand from thy fervants ] i.e. Make no delay in this our great extreamity, to relieve and fuccour us a-gainst these mighty forces that make war against us, seeing by covenant we are now become thy fervants, and confequently that dwel in the mountains ] For all those five Cities named v. 5. were scituate in the mountains, and not like Jericho in a

V. 7. So Foshua ascended from Gilgal] Having first (as it is more then probable) asked counfell of God, as appeareth by the following incouragement which he had from God, to go on cheerfully in this expedition, v. 8.

on encertuny in this expedition, v. o.

all the people of war] i.e. not the whole army (for some were left behind to guard the standing Camp at Gilgal) but those who were his best and most expert Souldiers, most valorous and fit for this present service ; whereby it appeareth, that Jo shua and the Israelites observed their oath and covenant faithfully and fincerely, without any equivocations; for he might have pretended that though they had fworn not to flay the Gibeonites themselves, yet they were not bound hereby to fight in their defence against those that made war against them. V. 8. And the Lord said i.e. either immediately by himfelf, or (as it is more probable) being consulted with by Urim and Thummim.

Fear them not ] Though Johua was a most valiant. Generall yet he was not free from humane fears & frailties; for otherwife God doth not use such encouragements in vain, and when there is no need of them. Now this fear might arife either from a fulpition of the Gibeonites faithfulneffe and truth in the present cause for which he undertook this expedition, who were newly reconciled enemies, and but lately in covenant with him, and that upon very hard conditions; or that his own army would macupon very nate a continuous 3 or teat in so win ainly would not couragionfly fight for their prefervation, who lately murmured againft their Princes, because they were not (by reason of their oath) unterly defityoyed. Againft which and the like fears and jealousies, God encourageth him to go on and fight in their defence, where by the way it plainly appeareth, that God was well pleased with the peace which was made with them, for the faving of their lives, feeing he animateth them to their prefervation whom he hath defigned to destruction; as we see in the example of Agag and Benhadad, 1 Sam. 15. 18.

x king x0. 4x.

V. 9. 49/nut therefore came upon them fuddenty ] Though he were undit aftured of victory having Gods promife for it, yet shisdosh not make him to neglect any policy, indutry, diligence or other means conducing thereune 5, but knowing that it is the readiest and surest way to supplant an enemy to set up-on him suddenly and at unawares, when he is secure and un-ou uni moderny ann at unawares, meen lets recure and un-prepared, he doth with all diligence use his means to ferve Gods providence and enjoy the things promified. V. 10. And the Lord diligensfue them Jhe attributeth the glory of the viscoprot the Lord as the chief and principal cause, who used as his instruments and means the sword and valour of Joshua and men of war, as also the hailstones spoken of, v. I I. cast down upon the Canaanites by his own hand. The which though they were special means of their discomfiture, yet the chief cause was Gods sudden affrighting their hearts with fear and aftonifhment, chap. 2. 1 1. 80 5.1.

and [lew them ] To wit, with the fword of the Ifraeand this to the Benjamites.

To Azekah | Scituate between Gibeon and Makkedah. and unto Ma kedah A City which afterwards was in the uttermost confines of the tribe of Judah towards the west, Jos.

V. 11. That the Lord cast down great stones That is, in a miraculous manner he rained down upon the flying Canaasince only the Hyring Landanites, and not any of the Hyridites, though they closely pursued them, and must needs be inter-mingled with them, seeing they slew them in their flightshough it may be said that the Hiraelites fell only upon their reare, but and migre never solve information now an unity parties, or in the most call the most c

V. 12. Then Johns spake i.e. when he was in the heat of the pursuit and execution, and feared that in the ordinary length of the day he should want time to accomplish his work in band, in flaying his flying enemies before they recovered their Cities and strong holds.

to the Lord] i e. firit he addreffeth himself unto God, who to the Lowal see, men are addressed administration Golds who by his almighty power created heaven and earth, the four and moon, and all the heavenly hoft, and by his almight with dence ruleth and ordereth them athis good pleasure; and by fervent and effectually prayer defired God to effect this great miracle; unto which having an answer from God by the secret inflinct of his holy Spirit, that his prayer was heard and his fuit granted, apprehended by a lively faith and firme affiance, he uttered the following words in the prefence of the people, and for the greater emphasis and efficacie (it is likely) lifted up his eyes unto heaven, and pointing to the Sun and Moon laid upon them from God this powerfull command, that they should keep their standing.

in the uslley of Ajalon] Which was a Plain into which men descended from Bethoron, v. 11, and in respect of the small di-Stance between it and Gibeon, is by the Prophet Ifaias, who altrance netween 12 and oliceon, is ny the Proposet 112128, who alludeth to this flury, called the valley of Gibeon, I(2, 28, 21, 28) indifferently belonging to both thete Cities,

V. 13. And the Sun flood flill] And with it the whole frame of heaven, called the primum mobile, or supream sphear, in which are the fixed Stars; for it would have nothing conduced to Joshua's purpose and defire, that the Sun should have stood ftill, and defifted from its own proper motion from the west to the east, which is so flow that it is finished but once in the year ; if the motion of the first sphear, which is so swift that it goeth about once in 24. houres had not Rood fill, feeing in the ordinary courfe of nature it would have carried the Sun away with it, notwithflanding that its own proper motion was contrary to it; now if any shall curiously demand, why so great a miracle as the stopping of the whole heavenly frame, and that long day confifting of fo many extraordinary houres added unto ir, above the ordinary course of nature, which must needs be known generally of all men, should not be recorded in any heathenish histories, the answer hereunto is easie, that there is no record of antiquity or heathenish stories before the Trojan war , which was many hundred years after Joshuah's

Is not this written in the book off-asher, or thousaright]i.e. which was one of the Israelitish Annals, so called either because in that Rory the things acted in those times, were faithfully and max tory use things acced in those times, were training an uprightly recorded; or bessule the actions of Gols people were related in its, who both by Mofes and Ifai are called Jeffurun, i.e. the upright. The which book of Civill annals, and divers others of like nature are loft and perifled, as the book of the wars of the Lord, Numb. 21. 14. if at least that be not the same with this; The books written by Nathan the Prophet, Gad the Seer, Ahijah the Shilonite, Jaddi, Shemaias, Iddo and others, 1 Chro. 29. 29. 2 Sam. 29. 29. 1 Chro. 2. 18. & 2 Chro. 12, 15, 2 Chro. 2, 29. God in the mean time preferring his facred and holy Sciptures, which are fufficient to influte us in the knowledg of Gods will, and to make us wife unto salvation, 1 Tim. 3.16. & 2 Tim. 4.16.
So the Sun flood still in the midst of besven] Which some in-over the control of t as Gibras] i. e. in the country and confines about it. So ch.

1. 1.

1. 2. To Exclusive O which name there were two Cities, the one fell to the loo of the Ephramites, and was given to the Levites, and thin to the Registranties.

think) in respect of length, for they compute Hezechia's day to the peen of thirty two houses, and this day turry in mostes, or at form of the four eight houses, and in this the Sun flood to the find of the four eight houses, and in this the Sun flood fill, in that it went only back or a degrees. But the comparifill, in that it went only back or much in the length of this and all the feater j. i.e. All the people, men, women and the sun flood fill of the people, men, women and the sun flood fill of the sun flood fi to have been of thirty two houres, and this day thirty fix houres, of a man craving the day to be prolonged that they might be avenged on their enemies, as the text it felfe hath

V.15. And Foshus returned] i.e. either resolved to return af ter he had gotten the victory;or this is to be referred to the laft verse, to wit, that he returned when he had performed all things related from this verse to the end of the chapter. For the writer of this book fets forth the flory of the whole warr fuccinctly to this verie, and then more largely and particularly to the end of the chapter; neither was it possible that in this one day, though of double leagth, all things should be done which are afterwards related, and yet alfo Joshua and his whole army should have time enough to march to and fro their aid. from this place to Gilgal, in respect of the great distance between thefe places.

V. 16. But these five Kings sted ] Namely, whilest Joshua pursued the victory and chaled their armies.

and hid them in a cave | Either because they could not in the heat of pursuit reach unto their fenced Cities, or elle thought this cave a place of more fecurity then they, because it was feat Makkedab] i.e. in the Confines and Country adjacent and belonging unto this City, not knowing that the hand of God could there find them, and bring them out to deserved punishment, Amos 9. 2. Pial. 139 8,9,10.

V. 19. And flay you not ] i.e. though thele Kings be fled and hid, let not this make you flacken your speed in pursuing the victory, seeing I will take a course to secure them till the fight to enter into their Cities ] And fo put you to the trouble of hath delivered them into your hand J And therefore do no through floth and negligence lose this opportunity which he now offereth unto you.

V. 21. and all the people ] To wit, which by Joshua's command had purfued the enemy, ver. 19.

V. 22. to the camp] i. e. the military camp of the army at Makkedah, for the standing camp of the whole people remained ftill at Gilgal, whether they returned after the victory was wholy compleated, ver. 43.

V. 23. in peace] Heb. i.e. found and fafe.

V. 33. In peace 1 Heb. 1.6. 10thn ann 1ate.

mone moved bit torgue! 1.6. not to much as a dog barked against them, alluding unto that proverbiall speech, Exod.

11.7. whereby is figurified that they were so upheld by Gods protection in all these great undertakings, that they did not now meet with the least opposition; or if we would take it litterally, the meaning is, that none of their enemies (they being now through this miraculous victory strucken with fear and amazement) durst provoke them with a reproachfull word, and much leffe bear armes against them.

testation against the horrible impieties and outragious wickednesse of these Kings, and the cursed nations under their government, in that he inflicted upon them fuch fearfull punish-ments as their fins justly deferved.

Secondly, that he might make them an example to his people, and to deterre them, especially their kings and magi-frates from imitating their abominations, left they should provoke God (who is no accepter of persons) and cause him in his just displeasure to inflict upon them the like punishments. Thirdly, that he might hereby move his people to be severe ex-ecutioners of his terrible judgements upon these curled nations, and not out of foolish pity, (unto which otherwise they might be inclinable) to shew mercy unto any of those whom he had destinated to utter destruction. Fourthly, that he might hearten and encourage them to fight valiantly Gods battells, being affured that they should in like manner prevail against all the remainder of Gods and their ennemies, if they did not the work of the Lord deceitfully or negligently, Jer. 48. 10. and this end is expressed ver. 25. Lastly, that they might end and conclude their victories in an absolute and elorious triumph, giving the whole praise unto God, who had subdued their enemies and trodden them under their feet, Pfalm.

V. 26. and hanged them on five trees) i.e. Caused them to be flain and hanged by his command. See chap. 8, 29.

V. 27. Mind laid great flores i.e. In perpetuall memory

V. 14. Mad there was no day life that] to wit, (as some of the thing done. See chap. 7.16.

hink) in respect of length, for they compute Hezechia's day

V. 18, took Makkedab] See annotat, on v. 10. Like a chave been of thirty two boures, and this day thirty fix hourse, wife Generall he pursue h his victorie, and taketh advantage children, for the cattle were given unto them for a prey. See ver. 40. & chap. 11.11. V. 29. and all Ifrael with htm] To wit, all that had been with him in this expedition at Gibeon.

unto Libnab] A City scittuate in the Tribe of Judah, chap.14.

42, and given unto the Preliefs, chap. 1, 13, 2.

V. 31, unto Labib) A fitong City in the confines of the Tribe of Judah, Weft-ward, chap. 1, 2, 2, whose was one of those five that made ware against Bloconyer, 5.

V. 32. which took it on the second day To wit, after they had laid siege unto it. For they took it not the first day, as they did divers of the rest, because, (as it may be probably thought) they were hindred by the comming in of Horam to their and, V. 33. Horen king of Gazer] A City scituate in the Tribe of Ephraim Josh. 16.3.10. Others probably think that it was not this Gezer, because being so far remote from Lachish, there was no cause why Horam should venture himself and his people in relieving it, seeing in respect of the distance between them, they could not be in any present danger: But rather that it was that Gazer mentioned, 1 Chron. 14, 16. where David is faid to have flain the Philiftims, which was not far off from Lachifh, and therefore in like danger with them.

V. 34. Folhus paffed unto Eglon In the Tribe of Judah.

chap. 15. 39. Icituate five leagues from Jerusalem South-ward, and three from Emaus. And the king of this City was also one of those five which came against Gibeon. V. 35. on that day ] i.e. The fame day that they encamped againff it.

V. 36. unto Hebron, and they fought against it ] This was an ancient City of Canaan, built feven years before Zoan in Ægypt, Numb. 13. 22. a great and famous City, which had divers others under its dominions, scituate in the Tribe of Judah, chap. 15. 13. and called before Kiriath jearim. Their king also was one of the five which came against Gibeon, and was hanged at the Cave of Makkedah, but as we usually say, Rex non moritur, for no fooner was he dead, but either his heir succeeded him, or the people chose another in his place, who was also slain at this time. But here it may be deman-ded, how it can be said, that Joshua took Hebron and smore it with the edge of the fword; & chap. 11.21, that he cut off the Anakims from the mountaines, from Hebron, and destroyed them utterly with their Cities, when as it is faid afterwards, that Caleb defired Hebron of Joshua for an inheritance, upon condition that he should first conquer it, and drive out the Aration that we income in conquerit, and drive out the A-nakims, the which accordingly he did, as appeareth, chap. 14.
12, 13. & Judg. 1. 9,10. To which I answer, That that is but briefly touched here, & (as it were) in the passage from one City to another, is in the other places more fully enlarged, and the particular circumflances expreffed, namely, that Hebron was taken, and the fons of Anak flain by the Tribe of Juda, conmuch leffe bear armes against them.

V. 24. Play my few plant whe text of stofe Kings ] the which Johns did not in infolmen of lipint, tyrannically influting to ever thefe Kings, in their mitery, ( but no doub' ) by speciall of the army he gave it to Calebas of right belonging unto him; and that upon just cautes and grounds. As so, there has a standard to the standard standard and the standard and albested unto him; a mad that upon just cautes and grounds. As so, there has been standard to the standard and the standard standard and the standard standard and the standard standa the getting of it into his possession. And howsoever it may be further objected, that thefe things were Hone by Caleb after the death of Johua, because Judg. 1. 1. it is faid so: To this I answer, that though the main body of that history relateth things done after Johnes death; yet divers things contained in it were done in his life-time, by way of explication and in-largement of fuch things as are but briefly touched in this book; fee Judg. 2.6,7,8. and fuch are (as I conceive) divers paffages of the first chapter. Others conceive, that Hebron was twice taken, once by Joshua here, the which is more fully inlarged in the 14. and 15. chapters; and again the second time after Jon shua's death, the Anakims and men of this City (being a warlike people) having again beaten cut the Ifraelites and recovered Hebron their ancient habitation. The which they think to be the more probable, because Jes. 15. 14. it is said; tha Caleb did but drive out the fons of Anake, in the booke of --Judges that they were flain. cap. 1. 10.

V. 38. Follow returned] i.e. Leaving the Southern parts, bended his course towards Gilgal.

Debir ] A City in the confines of Judah, butting on the tribe of Simeon, before called Kiriath-Sephar, Judg. 1. 32. five or fix miles beyond Hebron, toward the South. Another of this name was in the Tribe of Gad, beyond Jordan, chap.

V. 40. [mote all the tountrie of the hills &c.] i.e. He fub

Chap, xi.

p. M. dued all that whole region, to that no part was free from ruine | huge multitude as is not eafily to be numbred, dued all that whole region, to that no part was free from ruine | V. c. met together] Or, affembled by appointment at a fet and flaughter.

All that breathed | i.e. All mankind that there inhabited, both men women and children, young and old.

as the Lord God of Ifrael commanded ] And therefore it was not to be imputed unto Joshua or the Ifraelites, as an act of cruelty, that they flew fo many thousands of all fexes, ages and conditions, feeing they had an expresse command from God conditions, items mey mad an expresse command aron God to do it, who being justice it fell, cannot command any thing which is not most just, and not to obey him, by detracting, alte-ring, lessening or heightening any thing which he requireth, is no mercy or pity, but extream wickednesse.

V. 41. From Kadefb-barnes] Which was in the uttermost V. 41. Erom Kassip-Datries I writen was in the uttermobounds of Canaan, Southward, and in the Tribe of Judat. Evenuto Gaza I Which is somewhat more then fix miles distant from Alcalon bending upon the $ea Coast towards the all the Country of Goshen] Not that in Ægypt, but a City sci-tuate in the mountainous places of Judea, of which see chap.

V. 42. at one time] i. e. In one expedition.

Because the Lord God of Ifrael Which is rendred as a reason of these great conquests in so short a time, which otherwise might seem incredible, because the Lord acted with and for them, to whom nothing is impossible, and gave them courage, strength, and good successe in all their enterpri-

V. 43. and all Ifrael with him unto the camp to Gilgal] i. e All the army imployed in this expedition, crowned with victory and loaded with spoiles, returned to their standing camp at Gilgal. And fo be endeth the hiftory of the first feven years after their entranceinto Canaan, as appeareth by the taking Hebron and Debir, of which fee chap, the 14, and 15, and Judg. I.

CHAP. XI.

Verl.1. Jabin King of Hazor ] A City lying in or upon Gali-lee called Galilee of the Gentiles, not far from

Hadheard those things ] To wit, Which are related in the former chapter, namely of the great victories which the Ifrae-lites had obtained against the sive Kings inhabiting the upper part of Canaan Southerly.

That be fent] To wit , unto the Kings which inhabited the north of Canaan, who together were entred into a confederacie to affift one another in the war against their common enecut to affilt one anomer in the war against near common enemy; as appeared thap, 9.1. But being thus combined, why did not these Kings of the north joyn with the southern Kings; that they might have opposed the Israelites with united forces? Surely seeing in all reason and common policy they should have done so, no cause hereof can be rendred, but that the divine providence did over-rule them, and infatuate their counfels, to as they neglected their only wife and lafeft course; that to be might make ready way to his people for a more caffe conquel; a not fuffering them to come out against them in their full and united strength, left they might have been discouraged with their vall multitude and great firength, but one after another, that the former being first subdued, Gods people might be beartened and encouraged by their former victories, and might obtain a more easie conquest, when as their enemies were thus weakened by losing balf their strength; and they also here by gaining time to refresh themselves against the next fight. Now the reason why Jabin rather then any other of the Kings sumthe reason way Javas rather men any outer of the a migstum-moned the relit to this war, nowithflanding that he was fur-ther off from the danger then divers of them, may feem to be this, that his city being greater, and chief among the other o-ver which he reigned, he had some jurisdiction and command

And to the King of Shimron] Which is called Shimron-meron

V. 2. And to the Plaines fouth of Cinneroth ] i.e. The Plaines that lay on the South fide of the country of Cinneroth, mentioned, Deut. 3, 17, by the name of Cinnereth. Afterwards called Tiberias by the lake of Genezareth. Luk. 5.1. also the Sea of Cinnereth, Numb. 34.11. afterwards the Sea of Tiberias, and the Galdean Sea.

rias, and the Galilean Sea.

in the borders of Dor? A city and country afterwards in the ribe of Manafeh, sciuate on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, by Gennezareth on the west.

V. 3. the Hivite under Hermon] Which (as some think) is added to diffinguish them from the Hivites of Gibeon which had made peace with Israel. For this Hermon was an hill on the north of Canaan, inshe land of Mizpeh] A City adjoyning to Gilead. See Gen 31.49. Judg. 10.17.

4. even as the fand that is upon the Sea-[hore] An hyperbolicall expression usuall in the Scriptures, to signific such a

at the waters of Meronal Over which the King of Shimronmeron reigned, where they joyned all their armies into one bo-dy, that so being duly marshalled, they might encounter and freedily fet upon Ifrael.

V. 6. be not afraid because of them] Though Joshua had had much and manifold experience of the truth of Gods promises, and of his gracious affiitance, yet through humane frailty and weakneffe of faith, he was fubject to fear, in respect of the huge multitude that came against him with so many horses and Chariots, and therefore needed to be thus encourato morrow about this time ] Which is added for the further ftrengthening of his faith, feeing not only the conquest, but even the very time of victory is designed.

I will deliver them] And therefore thou needest not fear in respect of thine own weaknesse, or thine enemies number and ftrength, feeing I alone am al-fufficient, who have undertaken to affift you, and promifed you victory, to make good my word

Thou [halt hough their borfes ] to wit, That being made utterly unferviceable, they might not truft in them and their own strength, but might wholy deny themselves and ascribe the whole glory and praise of all their victories unto God alone. See Deut. 17. 16. Judg. 7. 2. 2 Sam. 8. 4. Pfal.

and burn their chariots with fire ] Which is also added for the further strengthening of Joshua's faith, in that the Lord giveth him fuch particular direction before the battle what he should

of the matter of Meron [underly] Notwithstanding that he had Gods infallible promise of victory, yet this made him not negled any prudent or politique meants whereby he might ferve Gods providence for the obtaining of it.

V. 8. and object them unto great 2 iden] So called (as Jolephus conceiveth) from the eldeft fon of Canaan, Gen. 10. 15.

and it is called great Zidon, not comparatively, as though there were a leffer of that name, (for we read of none but this ) but becaule it was truly great, both in respect of the largeness of the circuit, and also the fame and glory of it, for it was a City of great trade and trassique with Nations far and neer, and was much enobled in the repute of all, for the variety of merchandizing commodities, the arrand skill of the inhabitants in all manufactures, and the fairnesse and commodiousnesse of their haven, which made it a fit and fafe harbour for fhips. In which respects it was doubtfull, whether it or the famous City of Tyrus was the Metropolis or mother City of Pheenicia, and the rather, because Tyrus is called by Isaias the daughter of Zidon, Ila. 23.12. This City was scituate on the Sea-coast of the Mediterrancan.

Mi(rephothmaim] A place not far distant from Zidon; wherein were many Calipits wherewith that tract abounded; or,as fome take it, glaffe-ovens, or hot waters or baths.
the valley of Mignebessimand | Scituate under the hill Hermon, in the Tribe of Naphtali. V. 9. And Foshua did unto them as the Lord bad him] Where s commended Joshua's obedience to Gods command, and of all his army to their Generall. V. 10. turned back ] Having gone far beyond this city in the purfuit of his enemies. and took Hagor | Which was the Head ( not of all Canaan , but) of all thole Kingdomes which were subdued in this expe-and mote the King thereof with the [word] i.e. Jabin who either by flight had escaped out of the battle, and being returned was slain in the City when it was facked, or he being kilned was man in the City when it was lacked, or he bring sil-led in the fight, it is to be underflood of a new King that fluc-ceded him in the government. But it may be objected, that Jabin King of Hazor is faid to have tyrannized over the fluclites, Judg. 4.2.3. and therefore he could not be flain here. To which I answer, that this was long after, when for the fins of Godspeeple the Canaanites had recovered their ftrength, re-edified their Cities, and Hazor among the reft, and were under the government of a new King of the fame name, as was usuall in those times and countries.

V. 11. [more all the foules] i. e. All the people, having all the cattel for their prey.

V. 12. as Mojes the fervant of the Lord commanded ] Namely, from God, whereby the Ifraelites are cleared of cruelty, feeing they had from God an expresse command to destroy utterly these cursed Nations. For it is justice to kill those whom he defigneth to be flaughtered, and foolish and impious pity to fpare when he appointeth to kill

V. 12. that flood fill in their ftrength] to wit, That had not their wals and bulwarks yet rafed and difmantled in the fury of war when the Cities were formed, these they still preferved entire for their own use, that they might afterwards owell tions, Plal. 69.27. See smoot on chapig. 14. in them the more fafely and fecurely.

Canazoites, that their chief City was deftroyed, though the Maker were sparso.

Y. 14. and 48 the sports i. e. All faving their Idols which they were commanded to consume with fire chough they were of gold and filver, and not to convert them to their own ale, Dent a s.c.

V. 15. and fo did foffice] i. c. He firitly observed his rule, and did nothing rathly out of patient for what he had not abled in those places. See annot, on chapter so, write expresse warrant from God, nor neglected any thing through 36.

expetite wattrain from Goo, nor neglected any tame turouga fear or floth which He commanded.

V. 16. 30 Johnst 2004 all that land I in this and the next werle, he furnment up all that was yet done by Johns and the Hraelites in the land of Canaan.

and the mountain of Ifrael ] Which is to be understood not of any one particular mountain, but of all the mountaines and mountainous places which fell to the share of Israel, only Juda excepted, which had his own mountains peculiar to himfelf, as appeareth, v. 21.

V. 17. Even from the mount Halak] Or, the smooth or bare mountain, so called because neither graffe, nor herb, nor tree that goth up to Seir ] Which is a mountain of Idumea and lyeth upon the frontiers of Canaan towards the South. unto Bast-Gad] Which is a part of Libanus towards the caft, at the foot of mount Hermon.

V. 18. Follows made was a long time] q. d. Though the war-like expeditions are so briefly related, that they might seem all to have been transacted in a shore space, yet in truth this war continued a long time. I.e. for the space of near seven years, as appearent by the computation of Calebs age. For he was sonty years old when he was sept by Moles to Search the land; and now he was fourefcore and five years old as himfely fpeak-eth, chap. 14. 10. out of which, if we lubftraft thirty eight years, in which they wandered in the wilderneffe after his return from elpying the land, there remaineth feven years. But why did the Lord execute his people in to long and tedions a war, which if he had to pleated, might have been both begun and finished in a few moneths? Lantweer, That though no other reason could be alledged but his own good pleafure it were fufficient, feeing he is infinite in wildome, and knoweth what is bell, and infinite in goodnesse, and will do that which is belt for his own glory and good of his Church and people. But yet divers reafons might be rendered why he was pleased to have this war shus prolonged. First, because in his administrations and dispeniations he usually proceedeth in an ordinary way, according to the nature of fecondary causes, and not by his abso-ture power in a miraculous manner. And so these populous and waslike nations dwelling in flrong and fenerd Cities, could not be conquered but in fome processe of time fuitable to the greatnesse of the work. Secondly, that hereby he might exercife the faith and patience of his people waiting and depending the succession and an agreement of the performance of them was thus delayed. Thirdly, tatrain them up in obedience to all his commands when they had continual need of the coal as commands when they had continual need of his affitness, and daily experience of his juffice in punishing fin, and of his love and goodnesse in supporting and preferring about that fear and serve him. Fourthly, that by this long exercife of armes, he might make his people a warlike nation, and not only valiant to conquer hunalfo skilfull to remin what and not only values to conquersustation estimated retain what they had conjugated, Judge 3: a. Eithy. That hereby they might have more cause to praise and magazine Gods love and goodnell towards them, which more clearly appeared unto them in the difficulty of their conquests. And althy, that the wild Bealts might notinited to upon them for want of people to inhabite the virole land, Deute norm mean or ware openier to inhabite the virole land, Deute norm and the same to the cananites were follows, samely, because the hearts of the Cananites were for the same to the same to the cananites were for the same to the hardened, that they desperately and obstinately resolved to Aghtat out to the last man, and never so much as defired to have any peace with the Uraelites whatloaver came of it.

all other they took in Baule] Whereby is not meant, that they took all the Cities in Canaan, for many remained unfubdued longafter Lofhua's death, and fome even unto Davids time; bun than ail the Cities before mentioned, or all that were taken by Joshua were all wanquished by the sword, and not any of them furrendred by composition, faving the Cities of the Hieines, Seechap 13.2

V. 20. Earle mas of the Lord to harden their hearts] i.e. Either to give them over to the hardnesse of their own hearts, and not to happle and forcen them by the cyle of his spirit, or after ally to harden them to their utter ruine and defruction, as a just punishment of all their former wickednesse and aboming

V. 21. cut off the Anakims ] Anak the fon of Arba was the proper name of a famous Gyant who had three fons, Shefkal. in them the more 1918y an accuracy, the binnt Havoy ] i.e. This only City was burnt by Johna's command, and not through the fury of the Souldiers, as than Ahman, and Talmas, chap 1.7.14. 2018de Aushims, whit their king it to be a fufficient evidence of julk wrath against these posterity also, Numb.13.28. Deut.1.28. and (as some think) it was a name commonly given to other Gyants.

From the manuscines | Where they lived in a favage manner n Caves and Dens, after they were first driven by Joshica and Caleb from Hebron and Debir, ch. 15. 16,15. where doing much mischief and spoyle in the Country adjacent, Joshua 2gain attempteth them, and quite cutteth them off from all the mountains of Ifrael, and utterly destroyed all them that inha-mountains of Judab] In which the Gyants chiefly inhabited ; mountains of Ifrael ] Namely, of all other Tribes faving Ju-

Johna deftrojed them utterly with their Cities | Namely , in this his fecond expedition, for in the former he burnt only Hazor their chief mother City, and referved other Cities for their ownufe to dwell in v. 11. &13. but in this fecond expedition against the Anakims he destroyed their Cities, because being ftrong and defended by valiant and mighty men, they could no otherwise be mastered and taken, unlesse they were dismantled and utterly rained.

.V. 22. only in Gaza, in Gath, and in Afhdod] Which were three Cities of the Philiftims, scituate on the Sea-coast, which were by God given to the Ifraelites, but were not poffeffed by them, because by their sins they had provoked his wrath against them, fo as he would not caft them out before them, but fuffered them to remain to be fnares and traps unto them, fcourges in their fides and thornes in their eyes, as it isch. 23. 13. Numb. 33.55. In which Cities, the posterity of these Gyants remained even unto Davids time; as namely, Goliah of Gath, whom David flew in a fingle duel, 1 Sam. 17. and another of that name with his three brethren, who were flain by Davids ferwants. 2 Sam. 2 8:

V. 23. Foftua took the whole land | i.e. Before mentioned . or, it is to be understood figuratively the whole being put for the greatest part, or all forts of land, Cities and Countries, champion and mountainous places; or that all the whole comtry were to finicken with the terrour of his victories, that they durft not again make any more confederacies against him, or by making any new opposition disturbs his peaceable possel-tion of all the land which he had conquered, but that he might now without any interruption quietly proceed to the distribution on of it among the Tribes.

according to their divisions by their Tribes] $. e. He did not give to every fingular man his part, but affigned to every tribe their portions; or, he gave inheritances to all the Ifraelites, according to their feverall Tribes, in which they were numbred; according to that order and manner related in the following and the land rested from war ] i.e. There were no more hoftile conspiracies to hinder them from peaceable possession of the which they enjoyed.

CHAP. XII.

Veil I. T. Rom the river Arnon unto mount Harmon I Arnon is 2 River or Torrent which divideth the Mozbites from the Amorites on this fide Jordan, Numb. 21, 13. and Hermon a part of Libanus towards the caft, and with thefe two the country was bounded on the out fide of Jordan, extending it felf from the River Arnon, where it fell into the lake Alphale tites, unto mount Hermon.

All the Plaine on the case ] i.e. The champion Country of Mondy, extending it self from Arnon towards the less side of Jordan, and the Arabian mountains on the right hand.

V. 1. and ruled from Arear] Where is let down the bounds of Sihons Kingdome, to wir, that fide of it opposite to the caff, extending from the River Arose, feitune upon the River Arnon, unto the torrent Jaboke, dividing his Kingdome from that of the Ammonites, and from balf Gilead] to wit, the other half lying in the King?

dome of Og, as appeared, 1,7;

V. 3. the fat of Convertil 2ce ct. 21. 2. Dent. 3,27. the State the Plaine Which Champion lyess between the Sea of Tiberias and the dead Sea, and on the East fide belong-eth to both. And it is called the Sea of the Flairs, because it. is in an even and level Country, which before it was defineyed with fire and britailione from heaven, was to pleasant and fruitfull, that it was compared to Agypt, you even to Paradiff it felf, Gen. 13.10.

the falt Sea | So called from the accimumions and falt taft of

Beth-Jeshimoth | Signifying a yast and desolate house or place Counte in this Champion border of Monb , Exech.

Chap. ix.

at. Pean the Such of Temm under Afalots rifight] Or, the farings of Piggsh, or the hil; which feneth forth the South-benders of Theors Kingdome, criteriding it fell from the mouth of Aurona once the borone of the mount Abarin.

of Amon unto the bottome of the mount Abrim.

V. 4. Of Rings of Bifas. I Which was very fruitfull country, excelling in goodly and pleafant paltures.

Permanen of the Green! I Namely, of those (as it is probable) which were thin by the Amunonities, Deut. 2.10, 21, & 3. Electric World William of the Committee of &ch. 15.12.

Affaireb ind a Edrei] By which fome understand that he reigned in the City Edreineer the mountain Assaroth; others thank that hereby is meant two mansion houses or royali

mest trans mar nercoy is meant two manuon noutes or royan Palacts in which Og dwelt.

V. 5. and it is Balach | A City leituate in the utmost bonders belonging to Balan, unto which the border of the Gesharites and the Manchanites adjorate, which were montanious, and pet, fruntfull places which did by emore inward in that Comp.

ad hale Gilead ] For this half was under the dominion of Og, the other half under Sikon. The torrent Jab-bok dividing the land of Gilead between these two Border of the Gefburites] Gefhur was a royall City in the land of Bahna, not far from Damafeus. The daughter of Tal-nasi the King of Gethur, Maacka, was Davids wife, and Abfa-lons mother, a Sam. 3-3. whither he fled after he had murthered Amnon, 1. Sam. 12.37,38.

net only the Sea-Coaft of Canaan, which properly is called Pa-lettine, but the whole land of Canaan bounded by Jordan on the east, and by the Mediterranean Sea on the well and extenme ear, and oy use osconterancean sea on the websand extended from Libanus unto the borders of Edom, which uttermost borders in the length of the land are fignified by the names of those mountains of Baal-Gad, and Halak that goe up to goeth up to mount Seir] The name of a mountain, and of a City frated on it. It is a very high mountain feitnate on the east fide of the land of Hus, which had its name from Efau, who was also called Seir. i. c. Hairy.

their divifions] i.e. To every one his fhare.

V. S. In the mountains and in the valleys] By which enumeration he meaneth all places generally whatfoever.

V. o. beside Beshel] Which is added to distinguish it from

V. 9. bejoke Brace i Which is adone to minimum it have beocker City of that name in the country of the Ammonites against which Jeremie Prophesieth, Jer. 49.3.

V. 13. be King of Geder i Which fell to the possession of the Tripe of Juda, as did also Hormali and Arad, which did

Ive in the utmost South borders,

V. 15. The King of Adullam] A City in the land of Judah L Chron. 11. 15. neer unto which was a cave in which David

V. 17. of Teppah ] So called from the plenty of apples which grew there, and likewife belonged to the Tribe of Ju-Hepber] A City belonging to the tribe of Zebulon.

V. 18. Aphel | Scintate between Taanach, Jefreel and Me-

V. 19. Shimou Meron Samaria is here called Meron be-canfe this was the ancient name of it; & afterwards in Omrie's sime it was called Samaria after the name of Shemer owner of the hill upon which Samaria was built by Omri.

The King of the Nations of Gilgal Not that Gilgal neer Je-ticho, but a famous City of that name in the Country of Ga-lilee, which was also called Galilee, of the nations, or of the Gentiles, Ela.o. t. because many nations by reason of the com-Scientific 1:12,9:1. Declaim many nations by realion of the com-modioulness of the ports and havens there, did refort thinker for trading and servicendrizing. Some think that Tidal mon-tioned, Grange, 1, was King of this place. V. 24. All the Kings thirst and one J.Of which there are here fome named which were not mentioned in the former victorise before related, which the west that not every particular, but soily the general heads of things done are suched upon. Now whereas he here (peaketh of thirty, and one Kings, many of which reigned over divers Towns before their thirt Cities; this evidenceth the riches of this country of Canaan, and the exceeding fruitfulneffe of that foyle, in that being of fo fmall a circuit ( that is, as good Authors compute it, but an hundred and fixty miles in length from Dan to Beerfheba, and only fixty in breadth from Joppe to Jordan) it was fufficient, and that plen-tifully and bountifully to nourith fach a buge multirude of Inand little children.

abitants in these times, and in the dayes of David, above thiraged were not fit to bear armes and allo women, young youths,

CHAP. XIII.

Verf. z. Hon art old and ftricken in years ] He putteth him in mind of his old age and the fhort remainder of his dayes, to halten him on to the dispatching of that work wherein he intended further to imploy him; that is, the dividing of the land already conquered among the tribes, and also to defign by lot to every one, in their proportion, those parts which were not yet subdued, nor should be in his life time, as it they were already conquered there remained yet very much land to be poffeffed. To wie, after the enemies are vanouifhed, which I will, after thou are gone, pofferfe them of according to my promife (if my people keep covenant with me) which I will fill referve unfubdated that in the fican time I may exercise their faith and try their obedience. Neither had the Lord promised that Joshua should obedience. Neither had the Lord promises that young mount conquer the whole land which he had given to his people, but only that he thould bring them into it. Dett. 31. 23. and that he thould divide it for an inheritance unto them, chapter

V. 2. This is the land which yet remaineth To with unconquered, or, not yet subdued.
all the borders of the Philiftinis ] Which lay along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea; and was given to the Hiraclites as a Philiftims, then called Caphtorims, having by force caft out the Hivites, were now possessors of it. See Deut. 2. 23. Amos and all Geffiri ] Scituate in Syria , and bordering on the North fide of Canaan. See 2 Sam. 15. 8. and 3. 3. & chap.

V. 3. From Siber whith is before Agnet A River so called because of its blacknesse, which (as some think) divideth Pa-lestine from Agypt, Num. 34.5. but the Hebrew writers think it to be Nilus, Jer. 2. 18. which is called Sihor or black, because of the muddineffe of the water, alfo the Austes | Or, Hivites ; many of which ( it feemeth ) continued in some part of the Philistims or Caphtorius country, even in Johna's time, after they had expelled the greatest part of their Ancesters, and therefore are here mentioned, because the Philistims had no just title to that land in which they dwelt. Deut. 2. 22:12.

Owent, 15th 1. All the land of the Canasnites | For all the country was:
not wholly subdued by Joshua, but divers parts of it, only so terrified by the prosperous successe of his victorious army, that they not appearing in any hofile opposition, were no hindrance unto him in his division of the lands, and namely Mearan, or the cave that is beside the Sidonians, unto Aphele which is a city that fell to the lot of the tribe of Afher called Aphik, Jud. 1.

to the borders of the Amerites ] By which is fignified that fpace of the Country which lyeth between Aphek and the mount

And the land of the Giblites | So called of Gebal a promontory above Zidon: See Pfal. 83; 7. Ezek. 27. 9; who were a people fingularly skilfull and industrious in artificiall manu-factures, and therefore used by Salomon in the work of the tem-

pley 1 King 5.18.
V. 6: And all the Inhabitants of the bill Countries ] Which though they were conquered by Joshua, yet not wholly extir-pated, but left to be scourges to the fides, and pricks in the eyes of Godspeople, in case of their rebellion against him.

of Godspeople, in cale of their rebellion against him, and I will drive them out | i.e. | I (who am omnipotent and allufficient by my felf alone to do whatfoever I pleafe) do undertake to drive out all these inhabitants which yet remain unconquered, when thou are dead and gone, by fuch hen and means as I shall please to appoint; if my people do not make you the covenant between them and me by their infidelity, rebellion, and disobedience; and to give unto them peaceable poffellion of all that part of the Country which remameth as yet unfubdutd.

only divide thou it ] i.e. The whole land which by out I have promifed to their fore-fathers, both that which is already con-quered, and that also which is as yet unconquered. And this quered, and that allo which is a yet unconquered. And this be doth for the flreaghtening of their faith in this afformation, that they should in due time enjoy it (if they were more by their disbedience wanting to themselves) feeing God had heard given it tuits them by lot, and to provoke them to attempt it. with all valour and refolution when they fhould be called unto it, and not to make any peace with the inhabitants, either out of cowardly fear, or love of their own case.
V. 7. Now therefore divide this i.e. Seeing thou are strick.

en in years and canlt no longer puritie thy Conquest, V. 8. with whom ] i. c. With the half tribe of Manaste last spoken of, who were to have no part in the land of Canan becaufe their portion was already fallen unto them beyond Jor;

the funime of the law contained in the decalogue, or as others, hardneffe of their own hearts, to go on in fuch a way as would (and that more probably) the bleffings and curfes here mentioned, feeing where this writing is enjoyned by Mofes, he reoned, termy where this writing is emploited by Moles, he re-quireth that they should write upon the stones all the words of this Law very plainely, namely, this Law of bleffings and curles, of which he presently speaketh in the next words following Deut 27.8. 12.14.

V. 33. And all Ifrael] To wit, divided into two parts, fix Tribes on the one fide and fix on the other.

food on this fide the ark ] In Deut. 27. 12, 13, it is faid, that one party flood upon mount Gerizim, to pronounce the that one party 1000 upon mount Gerizin, to pronounce the bleflings, and the other to pronounce the curfes upon mount Ebal, but here that half of the Tribes flood over against mount Gerizim, and the other half over against mount Ebal, whereby it appeareth that they flood not upon the top of these mounraines, but upon their affcent neer unto the bottome, that they might be the neerer one to another, and both of them to the ark, which flood in the valley between the mountaines, where they might more conveniently hear the bleffings and curfes pronounced by the Levites, and fo might accordingly give their affent unto them

mount Gerizim and mount Ebal | Both of which mountaines lay in the Tribe of Ephraim, Deut. 11.29.30. Judg.9.7. And therefore being farther up in the country, and in fome di-flance from Ai: It feemeth that either this monument and altar, were erected not prefently as foon as they had facked Ai,but in some space of time afterward, when they had made a farther progresse in conquering the country, although the story of this action be here inserted; or if now it were done to shew their readinesse to execute Gods commands, as soon as they had made their first entrance into the country, Deut.

V. 24. And afterwards li.e. After he had built the altar and offered facrifices uponit, and written the law upon the playfter of the monument.

he read all the words of the law] Not he himself, but one of the Levites by his appointment for fo had Moles expresly commanded, Deut. 27. 14.

V. 35. which foshua read not ] Which he did not cause to v. 35. wolto 1900as read not] Which he did not caule to be read by a Levite, and that according to the manner preferibed by Mofes, that is, with a loud voyce, that all the people standing on both sides might hear him, at least their Princes, lating choose meetings user miny a real men. I have been clief and other fulers and white was it politible that the whole commonalty of the people, confifting of fo many hundred though of the men of men, women, children and frangers, should hear and understand one man reading, at the same time. And this is intimated by those words, before all the congregation of Israel, whereby is meant that the Levite must read with such a loud and audible voyce as that all might hear him, for othe wife his reading would be to no purpole, if what should be read were not heard and understood and the ftrangers ] i e. Not fuch ftrangers as came among them for trade and commerce, but fue as being converted were Profelites, and together with them made profession of Gods true religion, See ver.33.

CHAP. IX.

Verf. t. ON this fide Fordan] i.e. In respect of Moab, to wit, in the land of Canaan where the Israelites now were.

of the great fee ] i. c. The mediterranean, or in all the coast adjoying to that fee. over against Lebanon] Which lyeth in the North part of Ca-heard thereof To wit, of the facking and burning of Jeri-cho and Ai, which were two frontier Cities of Canaan, and of

V. 2. That they gathered themselves | i e. Combined themfelves in a joynt covenant to make war against Joshua and the

Mraelites that had invaded their Country der their jurisdiction, as Chephirah, Beeroth and Kirjath-jearim, v. 17. with whom no peace was to be made, without special warrant from God, or at least speciall conditions peculiar unto them, which were by Gods appointment.

beard what Joshua had done ] The same report came to the other kings, but wrought in them quite contrary effects; in Such a right of the state of th the meangs of their prefervation, and leaving the other to the hardneile of their own hearts, to go on in such a way as would bring them to deftruction, chap. 12. 20. V. 4. They did work willby i.e. Politiquely and prudently, interpact of the matter and substance of their design, but subtilly and craftily in respect of the manner and meanes which they used in the carriage of it, and in both these senses which here used is commonly taken.

As if they had been ambassadones To wit, sent unto Joshua from fome far countrey.

and bound up] i.e. Pieced together, and meaded where they had leaked.

V. 6. We be come from a far country This they pretended. because they had heard that God had forbidden the Tiraelines because they and neart that God had forbidden the Irralities to make any league with these curfed nations, but saving gi-ven them their land for a possession, they should utterly destroy and root them out, and had seen an experiment hereof in the ruine of Jericho and Ai, and now feared that it would fall to be their own lot, if by this meanes they did nor prevent it, as appeareth, ver. 24, namely, by faying that they were inhabitants of countries far remote, with whom it was lawfull for them to make leagues, if they would fubmit themselves to be come tributaries unto them, Deut. 20,11.

V. 7. And the men of Ifrael] To wit, the Elders, Princes and chief men of Ifrael, who affilted Joshua in the counsels of State, and the managing of all weighty affaires that concerned the common-wealth.

and how fhall we make a league with you? | Seeing God hath exprefly forbidden it hath given unto us your land for a pofferfion and inheritance, will not fuffer you to dwell amongit us, but bath commanded us to destroy and root you our, Exod. 22.21, 32,33. & 34. 12. & Deut. 7. 2. V. 8. we are the (cruzats) And not the enemies, as the Ca-

11.3.6 % 27.2.4. and could do it with any conveniency a ferential that they got this coportuality by meanes of that terrour and allocaliment with which God had positified the continuous with thee, for the transfering and ratifying of a terrour and allocaliment with which God had positified the continuous with thee, for the transfering and ratifying of a peace with thee, burst fervants wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with thee burst fervants wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervants wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervants wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervants wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervants wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervants wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the burst fervant wholly fixbuilt cut leves to the peace with the peace with the peace who the peace with the peace with the peace with the peace with the peace which the peace peace with thee, our as revants wholly mount our teres to my pleature, and will willingly accept of any conditions which thou in thy widedome shalt think fit to propound.

V. 9. Example of the name] is Of the glovy and power of the Lord/which we have heard much of, and with great admittation) the weed in his vionderful works and miracles, which may be a motive to perfeade you to contract a firm peace with us, fee-ing we do adore and magnific the fame great and glorious ing we do adore and magnife the lame great and glorious God whom ye free and worship.

and all that he did in ox gpt Which they with much are and skill infift upon, as being things done long fince, and therefore might by Inne, come to their knowledge, though they were strangers and lived in a countrey far remote, and subtilly conceal and paffe by Gods great works done of late in their palfage over Jordan and defroying Jericho and Ai, left their ca-king notice of these, might have discovered them to be neer neighbours and not strangers dwelling a far off, seeing in such a great distance the things so lately done could not as yet have

V. 11. Wherefore our elders And therefore you have the more reason to hearken unto us, seeing we come not on our own accord, nor upon the private motion of fome few of our citizens, but by the command of all our Elders and Governours, and the generall confent of the whole people of our coun-

V. 14. And the men] i.e. The chief rulers and princes who talked with them and heard all their probable discourse. took their victuals ] To wit, into their hands, that they might handle and look upon them, and fee if they were fuch indeed as they reported, and so believed and approved their words, being deceived with the fight of their provisions.

and asked no counsel] Namely, by the high Priest, inquiring of the Lord by Urim and Thummim, as they were commanded. Ex. 28.30. Num. 27.21. 1 Sam. 30. 7, 8. which doth not prove that it they had confulted with God, he would have given unto them this answer, that they should have rejected the fuit of the Gibeonites desiring peace upon their conditions, but is only spoken to task the Princes of the neglect of their duty going on rashly in a businesse of such importance, and not first asking counfell from God.

Hardites that had maded their Council was a city of the Hi-ling of the Hills of th were lawfull or unlawfull. The which is perplexed with to mawere lawful or unawful. The which is perpensed with to the places of Scripcure, that it is not eafily to be resolved. For how could this peace be lawful, being expressly contrary to Gods command. that they flould make no peace or league with them, nor fuffer them to live amongst them, but that they should utterly destroy people minmir, and complain of their Princes for doing of his was sjibe Lord to harde i beir bearts, that they fould came a-that which was julige why dothledning pronounce them accur-gaing! Ifree! in battle, that be might defirey them unterly, and that fed, if they had done nothing faving that which was equall and tea, it mey can oone noming laving max writes was equal and rights And why is it faid, have what they did was extored from them by deceit, implying that they could not lawfully have done what they did, had they not been circumvented by their frende and diffiundiation. On the other fide, if their covenant trande and dummulation. On the other life, it their coverlaint and oath were unlawfull, why did they not break it, especially being drawn from them by deceit, and seeing allo there was an errour in the persons unto whom their oath was made, they Desig drawn from them by decett, and teeing also there was all Lifty, that their covenant and ooth is making and columniary the gerfoos wincowhom their onth was made, they include the control that the control their presented of the control that caough not taing unto which they twate were unlawfull, yet | (though it were coloured by a thew of real to Goods people) yet the religion of their oath tyed them to obleve it, as being his wrath could be no otherwise appealed, when he had continued and once you men but also to Good selecting his cannot in the standard in the past of 3 being a man to do that which is simply unlawfull, neither | years, then by hanging up of 7 of his fons, and so rooting our will it please God to call him to be our furery, to witnesse that we will do that which is finfull and expressy contrary to his revealed will.

For the removing of which difficulties, Laffirm and hope soprove, that this covenant and oath made by Joshua and the Princes unto the Gibeonites, was in the lubstance of it lawfull-though extorted from them by fraude and diffimulation. First, because no condition was expressed in it of preseron. First, Decause no condition was expressed in it of preserving their lands, liberties or goods, and much lesse their superstituous and idolatrous worthip, but onely of their lives, Wherein this peace much differed from that which they might Wherein this peace much differed from that which they might all conditions, upon the observance wherein form might be sometimed and parted. To this Landwer, because it was generally make with other nations which were far ofs. For canding the peace with them upon more easife conditions, the might also observance wherein form might be ranked peace with them upon more easife conditions, the might also between the peace with them upon more easife conditions, the might also be exempted, because God purposing to give up this curfed easife their own religion and superflutions, and not compell them to be exempted, because God purposing to give up this curfed them to be recovered predicting and introace theirs. They might also factor they are the peace of the conditions. And for the conditions the conditions are the conditions the conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions and the conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the conditions. The conditions are the cond them so become prosentes and imprace theres. I may might also fuffer them to enjoy theirhands, their countrey and habitations, their lows and liberties, and to hold with them free-trade and commentee. All which conditions were unlawfull to be made with the inhabitants of these curled countries.

Secondly, because these severe commands of destroying the Cassagies inter not abfoltre ned generall, including all and every fangular perfore without any exception or refuelch had any considerations, (Forther Rababher kindred and family, could not here to be underflood on these conditions, if they full continued and family or the superflood on these conditions, if they full continued and selection of the conditions, and they full continued and selection of the conditions, and would not give place unto them, nor fusfer them to niny their inhesizance which God had given them; if they would not give place unto the conditions of the condition Cantanites were not absolute and generall, including all and rue religion, and to medanger the tiracities to be compared by their allurements, and vill examples; And finally, if they would enjoy their liberries, and live as free-men in the land, and not, full themselves, their land, laws and liber-ties, their goods, lives, and all they had, to live as fervants under the dominion of the liracities; then they were forbedden to make any peace with them, and they were to dethrough a manue any yease with ments, and they were to de-froy and root them out; but contravible it they would accept of their lives and peach, by fubmitting to these conditi-ous, and carefully observing them, then they might have what they defined and fixed for.

Thirdly, these commands of destroying these nations were Teisely, their commands of deltroying dielerations were but politive, huse, which were adwise to be tempered and spadieled with a storall centity, namely, that notwithflanding herrigator of thom, those finoids be fapted and preferred who did fertiface beit; evil waites, and turn unto God by unfained operations and new obediences (in finoid not the Judge of learness and earth execute rightcoat) pulgements. We provide the operation of the control of the those that live in their fin ? Will he leave off to exercise the works of his nature, in the wing mercy to poor penitent finners, to do his work, his firange work, and to bring to pate his act, his firange work, and to bring to pate his act, his firange act in flewing his wrath, as in the valley of Gibe-

on 2 18.28.28.
Fourthly, all Gods promifes and threatnings, though never fo generall in their exprefions, are alwaies to be refirmed and limited, truck the conditions of communing in obedience, and returning from our finnes by unfained repentance, though thefe conditions be often concealed, as plainly appeareth Jer. 18. mere committons we aften consecutous planing appearent feet, in . As what sighout I foul fined conversing a mation and conversing a frigations, esplack up and pull down and to defire it. wer. B. I fiften mation against shown I have pressured, it was feet with I were a fiften mation against shown I have pressured, it was feet with I have been a feet with the I thought to do not not the could thus I thought to do not not the could be a feet of the could be them, &c. The which we fee experimentally verified in the exampleaf the Dinivites, who upon their repentance were freed from that definition which God hath denounced against them by the ministery of Jonas ; and of Rahab and her family in this story.

Fiftly, Reas said chapter the ti. vers. 19.20. that there was not a Goty that made peate with the children of Israel, saving the Hi-wites the Inhabitions of Gibson, all other they took in basell. For gainst Ifrael in battle, that he might destroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour, but that he raight destroy them as the Lord commanded Mofes ; whereby it is plainly implied that if they had not continued in their enmity, but according to the practile of the Gibeonites, had defired and fued for peace, and upon the like conditions, the Ifraelites might lawfully have granted it un-

Laftly, that their covenant and oath in making and confirmnuen a tearum ramme upon the whole land tor the space of 3 years, then by hanging up of 7 of his fons, and so rooting out almost his whole posterity.

Now these reasons being premised and duly considered, the objections may without any great difficulty be answered. For first, if it be objected that this league was unlawfull, because God had devoted all these curled nations to a universall destru-Uon and devoted an inete curren nations to a university activities, and had expectly forbidden his people, any legate with them: To this I answer, that this is not to be understood of all and every singular man, but of all who would not submit themfelves to observe the former conditions.

Dut if then litbe further demanded why this command was condly, because he knew that his people either through cowar-dice and fear, or for floth and love of ease, when they had gotten room enough for their own habitations, would much notine to fit fill, and not to professe the war againt Gods and their estemics; therefore by these general commands be fittreth them up with zeals and courage to fight his battles and execute his defigner. Thirdly, If it be objected that the Ifreelites themselves did thus understand Gods commands, as though he would have none to be spared, and therefore murmured against their Princes for making this league of sparing their lives: To this I answer, That God might well of paring their lives: To this I answer, That God might well tuffer them to remain ignorant in this point, that they might more readily execute his judgements upon these cursed Nations; and it was meast measter to continue in this errour, if God was not pleased to inhighten their minds and discover it anto them. For well might this people faile for want of knowledge in the non-zag of the Church when as the histories when the population of the population of the property and the property of the contract of the property of be untaryed, occasic voin and intention it; antiologic he might at another time have fome conceit that God would spare it upon repentance, because he was a gracious God, mercifull, slow to anger, and ready to

Other objections there are which arise out of the following words in the text, which I shall answer in their due V. 17. Chephirah and Becroth ] Which came after to the lot of the Benjamites. and Kiriuh-jearim] Which fell to the lot of Judah. And in it the Prophet Urijah was borne, who prophesied against Jerusalem, as the Prophet Jeremiah relateth, Jerem. 26.

V. 18. Because the princes of the congregation had swornu mte them] This was the chief reason that restrained them from defroying the Gibeonites, because it care under their cogni-cance, bowlever they had greatly finned had they fain them, though the Princes had not taken this oath, feeing with much cruelty and unmercifulneffe they had violated a law-full course of the feet of the control of the course of the cou much creative and unmercituinite they had violated a saw full coverant (as before I have fleweds,) of which (it feeting th) the common people where wholly ignorant, nurmand a girst the Princet | Namely, because they shall be-ing circumvented with their distinuation) I won to spare their lives, being giorant that this positive law of deliteving the people, was to be tempered and moderated with a moral equity in aring those who were willing to observe all conditions of a lawfull peace: patiently submitting themselves to bear any pa-nishment which their conquerours were pleased to inflish, bemunicat which their consurrours were present defining the cause they had offended in their manner of obtaining its by fraude and deceit, though they did this being supplied with fear of being utterly destroyed, if they did not by this meanes prevent their ruine.

V. 19. webere (worne unto them by the Lord God of Ifeat ] Where they plead their bath, rather than the lawfulnefle of Chap. ix. the covenant unto which they had fwonen (if at leaft them- dent and politique manner, every word having in it its weight. the covenant unto waica mey naa iwonra (it at least timen) contrained principle mainers, every word having in it is weight, felves did righty understand it) because the people were to worke his and the Princes hears to mercy and piv; namety, more apprehensive of this obligation, knowing that it was that what they had done, was not out of love to fraude and horrible impiery to break such a faced oath as was made by the great 'God of street, or the work in the present of the great 'God of street, or the work in the great 'God of street, or the work in the great 'God of street, or see the street of the great 'God of street, or the street of the street of the great 'God of street, or the street of the st the great God of lives, from which they received at the good they enjoyed, and which they pad grow they enjoyed, and which they expected for the heard; of Gods commands and threatnings againft them; sime to come; and that it would much dishonour God, that they acknowledged the Lord to be not only the God and bring a great feandall woon in the distribution of odd, and bring a great feandall woon is true religion, when the of firate, but allo it an elepicial manner Ioshua's God, nations neer and far off, should take notice that they had with much perfidioulnesse and extream cruelty, violated their covenant which they had confirmed with a folemn and facred oath, by fo great and glorious a God as the Lord God of Ifrael.

of tirael.

now therefore we may not touch them.] To wit, because we are bound to save their lives by a solemm oath and lawfull to be kept, sor if it had been unlawfull, it might have been lawfully broken, but they fued for peace before we besieged their City, and have willingly submitted to all our con-

V. 20. This we will do | Namely , upon those conditions expressed, ver. 11. We will fave their lives, but so, that they shall for circumventing us with their fraud, become unto us our perpetuall fervants, which to an ingenuous man is more bitter then death, the which as it will bring upon them deferved punishment for their deceit, fo fingular profit unto us in that we shall by this means have them as slaves under us to do all our druggery, and take off from our felves fuch bafe fer-

Left wrath be upon us ] As it furely would be, if we should violate a lawfull oath.

V. 21. And the Princes faid unto them Namely, to the

w. 21. And the Frinces jan time to them I Namery, to the murmuring people, that they might appeale their anger and quiet their minds, by propounding unto them fuch a way as would both fufficiently punish the fraud, and bring much profit unto all the Congregation] i.e. For the publique service of God to be performed by the whole congregation in the Tabernacle, as Joshua expresseth it, ver. 23. for which purpose they were bound to provide wood and water to be used in their ceremonial) washings, fastings, and daily Sacrifices, ver. 27. unto which service (it is probable ) they were bound not all at once, feeing they were in their habitations feattered over the whole land, but in their turns as the Levites were.

Let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water] i.e. In the meanest condition among the people, which the Scripture ex-presset by this phrase. See Deut. 29.11.

V. 22. And Joshua called them, ] i. c. After he and the Princes had contuited together, and had refolved on this wherefore have ye beguited us ] i.e. Why have ye used fuch fraud and deceit in drawing us to make this covenant with you, and to ratifie it by attefling Gods great and glorious name, and have not rather carried on fuch a work as this with honeft simplicity, and with an upright heart and hand, not intermixing therewith such cunning lyes and dissimula-

V. 23. now therefore ye are curfed ] i.e. because you have not indeavoured to preserve your lives by lawfull meanes, but by lying and dessembling; therefore (in respect of your second lives and the second lives are second lives are second lives are second lives and the second lives are second lives and the second lives are s temporall condition, you have brought upon your felves and your children this heavie curfe of bondage and fervitude. your tanders in searce cure or boundage and revinued in denouncing of which curse he may seeme to relate unto that propheticall curse pronounced by Noah against Cham their great progenitour, that he should be a servant of servants unto his brethren, the which now was verified in his posterity. Gen.9.25. But yet this heavy curse through Gods infinite mercy became in some respects a bleffing to these Gibeonites, feeing by these services (though base in themselves) they had neerer approach unto God in the fervice of the fanctuarie, for the good of their foules, and were in a fort given and confecrated unto God, as the name afterwards given them doth import. For these were (as is thought) those Nethinims of whom we read. 1 Chron 9. 2. and Ezra 2.43. whose office was to at-tend upon the Levites in the service of the sanctuary, who though from the first beginning they were imployed in this service, yet they are said to be appointed by David and the Princes unto it, in respect that they did order and dispole of them in their severall turnes and courses. Ezra.8 20, now if David bimlelf, though a great King, chose rather to be a dorekee-per in the house of his God, then to dwell in the tents of wickedneffe. Pfal.84.10. Then thefe poore Gibeonites had no damage by their base fervices, feeing by them they had this privi-ledge of neere approaches unto God. for the bosse of my God] i.e. the tabernacle now, and the temple afterward; yes for the publique service, of the whole congregation in things appertaining unto God.

V. 24. And they answered Joshua 1 to wit, in a very pru-with all humilitie acknowledge themselves servants unto Joshua , who were ready and willing to obey all his commands

V. 25. we are in thine hand ] i.e. in thy power to dee with us and lay upon us what fervice thou pleafeft, and as it feemeth good unto thee in a common and morall equity;to confidered.

V. 26, And fo did heurto them ] namely according to that his fentence which he had passed upon them. vers.

V. 27. for the Congregation] Not as bond-men to private perlons, but for the use and benefit of all Gods people in the publique service of the Sanctuary.

Even to this day Not only that time wherein this history was written, but even unto perpensity, and in after ages, as appeareth in the words following, in the place which he half chufe. i.c. Either in the Tabernacle now, or in the Temple hereaf-

CHAP. X.

Wen Adont-zedek ] whose name fignish-eth King of righteousnesse; which glorious and specious name he arrogated unto himselfe for his greater honour among the people, although he and his fuccelfors were cruell tyrants, as appeareth. Judg. 1.7. if at least he were his successor and not himself. See annotat: on verse had heard how Joshua had taken Ai ] Where the causes of their confederation and preparations for warre are expressed, and what it was that awakened them out of their lethargie of careleffe fecurity & incogitancie, into which they were fallen by their long wallowing in carnall & finfull delights, namely their their long wallowing in carnal, singul deligits, namely trait imminent & approaching danger. A man might refoaably have thought, that hearing long before how God for their horible and himous fies had given their land to his people, and devo-ted the inhabitants to utter defiruction; how he had made a paffage for them through the red fea, and Iordan, and mi-raculoufly fed them in the wilderneffe, this should have rouzed raculoufly ted them in the windernesses, this should have rouzed them out of their dead sleep, but outward words and works will do nothing, till God bring them home to the heart, as we see in the example of these kings, compared with the contrary practice of the Gibeonites and Hivites.

and were among them ] i.e. either were daily and familiarly conversant with them in their Campe, their office being to hew wood and draw water for the use of the congregation. or rather held communion with them, by fubmitting themfelves to be under their laws, and joyning with them in Gods

V. 2. that they feared I i.e. Adonizedek and the other

V. 2. that they feared 1 to Adonizedek and the other Kings of the Country, and their people with them. V. 3. wherefore Adonizedek Who is named first as the chiefe in this confederacie, because he was most active in the businesse, as being more neerly concerned in it, in regard that he was next unto the danger ; for he was in the middle way between the Ifraelites standing campe in Gilgal and Gibeen, and may also be probably thought to be the chiefe of these Kings, and had in such cases some superiority over the King of Ferufalem] Which is a name compounded of Fereb, That is, will provide, so called by Abraham when God had provided a Ram to be facrificed in the place of Isaac, Gen. 22. 14. and Schalom fignifying peace, q. d. he will provide peace. Which City with the other foure did afterwards belong to the Tribe of Judah, and were feituate on the South fide of it. Hebron twenty two miles from Jerusalem Southerly. Jarmuth, of which name there were two Cities, one here, and the other in the Tribe of Iffachar. Lachis feituated five miles from Kiriah-jearim towards the west. Of which see z King. 18. 14. 2 Chron. 32. 9. and Eglon, called also Adullam, which Rehoboam afterwards re-edifyed and fortified, & Chron. 1: .7. all which Cities were scituate in the mountain nous places belonging to Judah.

V. 4. that we may finite Gibeon ] Unto which they were indu-ced by divers reasons, some whereof are in the text plainly expressed: First, that by destroying them they might deterr and discourage other Cities (as it were) by an exemChap. x.

plarie punishment from imitating them in the like desection. pante pusitinment from initiating tuern in the like detection, becould this City was (as it were) a key of their countrey, which being in the Ifraelites polletion, would open unto them an eafic pallage to the other Cities adjacent; but being in their hands would, as a firong frontier and fenced a magazine from whence they might flore themselves at all times withamunition, victuals, and all necessaries for the warr, and might have ready information how all things passed, being so neer at hand.

V. s. The five kines of the Amorites By which name is meant the whole nation of the Canaanites, both here and in many other places; because the Amorites had many Colonies in divers 1 more probable, because the number flain is divided, and more parts of Canana; and among the reft in these mountainous places of Ludeaas specared Mumb.13. 49. Howstower that Giben and the country adjoyning belonged to the Hi the (word of the children of Israel).

V. 6. [lack not thy hand from thy fervants] i.e. Make no delay in this our great extreamity, to relieve and fuccour us a-gainst these mighty forces that make war against us, seeing by covenant we are now become thy fervants, and confequently under thy protection.

V. 7. So fossua ascended from Gilgal] Having first (as it is more then probable) asked counsell of God, as appeared by the following incouragement which he had from God, to go on cheerfully in this expedition, v. 8.

all the people of mar] i.e. not the whole army (for some were left behind to guard the standing Camp at Gilgal) but those who were his best and most expert Souldiers, most valorous and fit for this present service; whereby it appeareth, that Jothus and the Ifraelites observed their oath and covenant faithfully and fincerely, without any equivocations; for he might beonites themselves, yet they were not bound hereby to fight in their defence against those that made war against them. V. 8. And the Lord [sid] i.e. either immediately by himfelf, or (as it is more probable) being confulted with by Urim

Fear them not ] Though Joshua was a most valiant Generall yet he was not free from humane fears & frailties; for otherwife God doth not use such encouragements in vain, and when there is no need of them. Now this fear might arife either from a suspition of the Gibeonites faithfulnesse and truth in the present cause for which he undertook this expedition, who were newly reconciled enemies, and but lately in covenant with him, and that upon very hard conditions; or that his own army would that upon very hard conditions; or treat his own army wonic not couragiouily fight for their prefervation, who lastly mur-mured against their Princes, because they were not (by reason of their each) uterly deliroyed. Against which and the like fears and jealousses, God encouragesh him to go on and fight in their defence, where by the way it plainly appeareth, that on their defence, where by the way it pianny appearent, that God was well pleafed with the peace which was made with them, for the faving of their lives, feeing he animateth them to fight in their defence. For otherwise he is displeased with their prefervation whom he hath defigned to defiruction; as we see in the example of Agag and Benhadad, 1 Sam. 15, 18.

1 King. 10.42.
V. 9. Fosbua therefore came upon them suddenly ] Though he were most affured of victory having Gods promise for it, yet this doth not make him to neglect any policy, industry, diligence or other means conducing thereunto; but knowing that it is the readiest and surest way to supplant an enemy to set up-on him suddenly and at unawares, when he is secure and unon an indeemy and at unawates, when he is return and un-prepared, he doth with all diligence the this means to ferve Gods providence and enjoy the things promifed. V. 10. And the Lord discomfited them] he attributeth the glory of the victoryto the Lord as the chief and principall cause, who uled as his instruments and means the sword and valour of Joshua and men of war, as also the hailstones spoken of, v. 11. cast down upon the Canaanites by his own hand. The which though they were speciall means of their discomstrure, yet the chief cause was Gods sudden affrighting their hearts with sear and aftonifiment, chap. 2.11. & 5.1.

and flew them ] To wit, with the fword of the Ifrae-

as Gibeon] i. c. in the country and confines about it. So ch

To Betheron ] Of which name there were two Cities, the one fell to the lot of the Ephramites, and was given to the Levites, and this to the Benjamites.

To Azekah | Scituate between Gibeon and Makkedah. and unto Ma' kedah] A City which afterwards was in the uttermoft confines of the tribe of Judah towards the west, Jos.

V. 11. That the Lord caft down great flones ] That is , in a pring in the case with the control of the control of the case of t hereby become traitors to their own common-wealth, and cient to brain and kill them; the which (as fome think) was acwere now incorporated into them, and become (as it were) one companied with another miracle no leffe wonderfull, in that body, v. r. Fourthly, because if the Hraelites became owners of Gods providence to ordered and disposed of them, that they is, they might have a strong place for retreate on all occasions, | killed only the flying Canaanites, and not any of the Hraelites, though they closely purfued them, and must needs be inter-mingled with them seeing they slew them in their flight; though it may be faid that the Ifraelites fell only upon their reare, but the hailstones upon the body of their battill, and those which were formost in the slight; which might be in some good di-flance from the Israelites that pursued them, which is the

V. 12. Then foshua spake] i.e. when he was in the heat of the pursuit and execution, and feared that in the ordinary length of the day he thould want time to accomplish his work in hand, in flaying his flying enemies before they recovered their Cities and strong holds.

to the Lord] i e. firit he addreffeth himfelf unto God, who that dwel in the mountains] For all thole five Cities named by his almighty power created heaven and earth, the sun and v. 5, were situate in the mountains, and not like Jericho in a moun, and all the heavenly host, and by his al-ruling providence ruleth and ordereth them at his good pleasure; and by fervent and effectuall prayer desired God to effect this great miracle: unto which having an answer from God by the secret mirace; onto which naving an aniwer from God by the lecret inflined of his boly Spirit, that his prayer was heard and his fuit granted, apprehended by a lively faith and firme affiance, he uttered the following words in the prefence of the people, and for the greater emphasis and efficacie (it is likely) lifted up his eyes unto heaven, and pointing to the Sun and Moon laid upon them from God this powerfull command, that they should keep their standing in the valley of sijalon] Which was a Plain into which men descended from Bethoron, v. 11, and in respect of the small distance between it and Gibeon, is by the Prophet Ilaias, who alludeth to this story called the valley of Gibeon, Ifa. 28, 21. as indifferently belonging to both these Cities.

V. 13. And the Sun flood fill And with it the whole frame of heaven, called the p. imum mobile, or supream sphear, in which are the fixed Stars; for it would have nothing conduced to Joshua's purpose and defire, that the Sun should have stood ftill, and defifted from its own proper motion from the west to the east, which is so flow that it is finished but once in the year ; if the motion of the first sphear, which is so swift that it goeth about once in 24. houres had not food fill, feeing in the ordinary course of nature it would have carried the Sun away with it, notwithstanding that its own proper motion was contrary to it; now if any shall curiously demand, why so great a miracle as the stopping of the whole heavenly frame, and that long day confilling of fo many extraordinary houres added unto it, above the ordinary course of nature, which must needs be known generally of all men, should not be recorded in any heathenish histories, the answer hereunto is easie, that there is no record of antiquity or heathenish stories before the Trotan war, which was many hundred years after Joshuah's

Is not this written in the book of alphe, or the upright it, e, which was one of the Ifraclistift Annals, to called either becaule in that flory the things acted in those times, were faithfully and uprightly recorded; or becaule the actions of Gods people. were related in it, who both by Moses and Isai are called Jefurun, i.e. the upright. The which book of Civill annals, and divers others of like nature are loft and perithed, as the book of the wars of the Lord, Numb. 21. 14. if at least that be not the same with this; The books written by Nathan the Prophet, Gad the Seer, Abijah the Shilonite, Jaddi, Shemaias, Iddo and others, 1 Chro. 29. 29. 2 Sam. 29. 29. 1 Chro. 2. 18. & 2 Chro. 12. 15. 2 Chro. 2. 29. God in the mean time preferring his facred and holy Scriptures, which are sufficient to instruct us in the knowledg of Gods will, and to make us wife unto salvation, 1 Tim. 3-16. & 2 Tim. 4-16.

So the Sun flood still in the midst of heaven Which some interpret, that it flood over Gibeon at high-noon, others, when it was declining and neer going down, which occasioned Jo-thua to make this prayer, that he might not by the approaching night be hindered in the pursuit of his enemies; and for either coinion there are brought probable arguments. But this point is not much materiall, only this we are to hold, that it enlightned the earth about a whole day, and hasted not to go down untill the people had avenged themselves upon their enements, as their fins juftly deferved.

provoke God (who is no accepter of persons) and cause him in his just displeasure to inflict upon them the like punishments. Thirdly, that he might hereby move his people to be severe executioners of his terrible judgements upon these cursed nati- the 14, and 15, chapters ; and again the second time after Jo ons, and not out of foolish pity, (unto which otherwise they might be inclinable) to shew mercy unto any of those whom he had destinated to utter destruction. Fourthly, that he might hearten and encourage them to fight valiantly Gods battells, being affured that they should in like manner prevail against all the remainder of Gods and their ennemies, if they did not the work of the Lord deceitfully or negligently, Jer. 48. 10. and this end is expressed ver. 25. Lastly, that they might end and conclude their victories in an absolute and glorious triumph, giving the whole praise unto God, who had lubdued their enemies and trodden them under their feet, Pfalm. 110. 2. Mal. 4. 3. V. 26. and hanged them on five trees) i.e. Cauled them to be flain and hanged by his command. See chap. 8. 29. V. 27. And laid great flones] i.e. In perpetuali memory Chap. x. V. 1.4. And there was no day life that] to wit, (as some of the thing done. See chap. 7.16.

V. 1.3. sole Malekedab See annotat. on V. 10. Like a think) in respect of length, for they compute Hezechia's day to have been of thirty two houres, and this day thirty fix houres, or as fome others fourty eight houres, and in this the Sun flood still, in that it went only back ten degrees. But the comparifon here feemeth not to fland fo much in the length of this day above all others, as that at no time God heard the prayer of a man craving the day to be prolonged that they might be avenged on their enemies, as the text it selfe hath

V.15. And fofma returned ] i.e. either refolved to return after he had gotten the victory; or this is to be referred to the last verfe, to wit, that he returned when he had performed all things related from this verse to the end of the chapter. For the writer of this book fets forth the flory of the whole warr fuccincily to this verie, and then more largely and particularly to the end of the chapter; neither was it possible that in this one day, though of double leagth, all things should be done which are afterwards related, and yet also Joshua and his whole army should have time enough to march to and fro from this place to Gilgal, in respect of the great distance between thefe places.

V. 16. But these five Kings sted ] Namely, whilest Joshua pursued the victory and chaled their armies. and hid them in a cave ] Either because they could not in the heat of pursuit reach unto their fenced Cities, or else thought this cave a place of more fecurity then they, because it was seat Makkedah] i.e. in the Confines and Country adjacent and belonging unto this City, not knowing that the hand of God could there find them, and bring them out to deferved punishment, Amos 9. 2. Plal. 139 8,9,10.

V. 19. And stay you not ] i.e. though these Kings be fled and hid, let not this make you stacken your speed in pursuing the victory, seeing I will take a course to secure them till the fight be finished.

to enter into their Cities] And fo put you to the trouble of a hash delivered them into your hand I And therefore do not through floth and negligence lose this opportunity which he now offereth unto you.

V. 21. and all the people ] To wit, which by Joshua's command had purfued the enemy, ver. 19.

V. 21. to the camp] i.e. the military camp of the army at Makkedah, for the standing camp of the whole people remained ftill at Gilgal, whether they returned after the victory was wholy compleated, ver. 43.

V. 23. in peace] Heb. i. e. found and fafe.

none moved his tongue] i. e. not fo much as a dog barked against them, alluding unto that proverbial speech, Exod.

11.7. whereby is figurised that they were so upheld by Gods protection in all these great undertakings, that they did not now meet with the least opposition; or if we would take it litterally, the meaning is, that none of their enemies (they being now through this miraculous victory flrucken with fear and amazement) durft provoke them with a reproachfull word, and much leffe bear armes againft them.

V. 24. pur you feet upon the needs of the [Kings] the which Johna did not in infolency of spirit, tyrannically infulting over the E Kings, in their mifery, (but no doubt) by special inflinit of Gods Spirit, if not by a direct command from him, and that upon just causes and grounds. As first, to shew his detestation against the horrible impieties and outragious wickednesse of these Kings, and the cursed nations under their go- further objected, that these things were done by Caleb after vernment, in that he inflicted upon them such fearfull punish-of this name was in the Tribe of Gad, beyond Jordan, chap. 13. 26.

Secondly, that he might make them an example to his people, and to deterre them, especially their kings and magi-ficates from imitating their abominations, left they should

wife Generall he pursueth his victorie, and taketh advantage upon their suddain fears, following the former great victory, to surprize this City.

and all the soules j.e. All the people, men, women and children, for the cattle were given unto them for a prey. See ver. 40. & chap. 11.11.

V. 29. and all Ifrael with him] To wit, all that had been with him in this expedition at Gibeon. unto Libnab] A City scituate in the Tribe of Judah, chap.14.

42. and given unto the Priests, chap.21.13.
V. 31. un: [Lachish] A strong City in the confines of the V. 31. iii. Lasnio] A irrong City in the contines of the Tribe of Judah, Welt-ward, chapt. 1. 32. whole king was one of thole five that made warr against Gibeon, yer. 5.

V. 32. which took it on the [coond day] To wit, after they had laid fiege unto it. For they took it not the first day, as they did divers of the rest, because, (as it may be probably thought) they were hindred by the comming in of Horam to

V. 33. Horam king of Gazer] A City scituate in the Tribe of Ephraim Josh. 16.3.10. Others probably think that it was not this Gezer, because being so far remote from Lachish, there was no cause why Horam should venture himself and his people in relieving it, feeing in respect of the distance between them, they could not be in any present danger: But rather that it was that Gazer mentioned, 1 Chron. 14. 16. where David is faid to have flain the Philistims, which was not far off

Davids said to nave than me rantimms, which was not say on from Lacilitiand therefore in like danger with them, V. 34. Folius psiled unto Eglon] In the Tribe of Judah, Jap. 15. 39, citizate five leagues from Jetufalem Southward, and three from Emaus. And the king of this City was also one of those five which came against Gibeon.

V. 35. on that day ] i.e. The fame day that they encamped againft it.

V. 36. unto Hebron, and they fought against it This was an ancient City of Canaan, built seven years before Zoan in an ancient city of Canaan, punt feven years before 2000 in Egypt, Numb. 13, 22, a great and famous City, which had divers others under its dominions, feituate in the Tribe of Judah, chap. 15, 13, and called before Kiriath jearim. Their king also was one of the five which came against Gibeon, and washanged at the Cave of Makkedah, but as we usually say, Rex non moritur, for no fooner was he dead, but either his heir fucceeded him, or the people chose another in his place, who was also slain at this time. But here it may be demanded, how it can be said, that Joshua took Hebron and imote ded, now it can be said, that you not not return and move it with the edge of the fwords& chap. 11.21, that be cut off the Anakims from the mountaines, from Hebron, and deffroyed them utterly with their Cities, when as it is faid afterwards, that Caleb defired Hebron of Johna for an inheritance, upon condition that he should first conquer it, and drive out the Anakims, the which accordingly he did, as appearetly, chap. 140 12, 13, & Judg. 1. 9,10. To which I answer, That that is but briefly touched here,& (as it were) in the paffage from one City to another, is in the other places more fully enlarged, and the particular circumstances expressed, namely, that Hebron was taken, and the sons of Anak slain by the Tribe of Juda, conducted by Caleb, who affifted him in this expedition; but here in the generall it is attributed to Joshua, because as Generall of the army he gave it to Caleb as of right belonging unto him. and also by his authority and command allotted unto him a part of his army, namely the Tribe of Judah, to affift him for the getting of it into his possession. And howsoever it may be the death of Joshua, because Judg. 1.1. it is faid so: To this I answer, that though the main body of that history relatest things done after Joshua's death; yet divers things contained in it were done in his life-time, by way of explication and inlargement of fuch things as are but briefly touched in this book, fee Judg. 2.6,7,8. and fuch are (as I conceive) divers paffages of the first chapter. Others conceive, that Hebron was twice taken, once by Joshua here, the which is more fully inlarged in fhua's death, the Anakims and men of this City (being a warlike people) having again beaten out the Ifraelites and recovered Hebron their ancient habitation. The which they think to be the more probable, because Jes. 14. it is said, that Caleb did but drive out the fons of Anake, in the booke of Judges that they were flain cap. 1. 10.
V. 38. Foßna returned] i. e. Leaving the Southern parts) bended his course towards Gilgal.

Delin A City in the confines of Judah, butting on the tribe of Simeon, before called Kiriath-lephar, Judg. 1. 12. five or fix miles beyond Hebron, toward the South. Another

V. 40. [mote all the countrie of the hillsy &c.] i.e. He finb

Chap.xi.

p.XI.

dued all that whole region, so that no part was free from ruine buge multitude as is not easily to be numbred!

V. s. met together] Or, assembled by appointment at a set all that breathed lie. All mankind that there inhabited, both men, women and children, young and old. as the Lord God of Ifrael commanded] And therefore it was not to be imputed unto Joshua or the Israelites, as an act of cruelty, that they flew to many thoulands of all fexes, ages and conditions, feeing they had an expresse command from God conduces, leeing they had an expresse command from God to do it, who being julice it felt, cannot command any thing which is not most juli, and not to obey him, by detracting, alte-ring, leftening or brightning any thing which he requiresth, is no mercy or pity, but extream wickednesse.

V. 41. From Kadefb-barnea ] Which was fathe uttermoft bounds of Canaan, Southward, and in the Tribe of Juda.

Even unto Gaya! Which is somewhat more then fix miles diftant from Afcalon bending upon the Sea Coast towards the all the Country of Golben] Not that in Ægypt, but a City fcituate in the mountainous places of Judea, of which fee chap.

V. 42. at one time] i. e. In one expedition.

Bosaule the Lord God of Ifrael] Which is rendred as a realon of these great conquests in so short a time, which otherwise or trace great conquerts into morta time, which otherwise might feem incredible, because the Lord acted with and for them, to whom nothing is impossible, and gave them cou-rage, strength, and good successe in all their enterpri-

v. 43. and all Ifrael with him unto the camp to Gilgal] i.e. V. 43. and all I fract write them men one camp to Citigat 1 f. c.
All the army imployed in this expedition, crowned with victory and loaded with fpoiles, returned to their flanding camp at Gilgal. And so he endeth the hillory of the first feven years after their entrance into Canana, as appeareth by the taking Hebron and Debir, of which see chap, the 14. and 15. and

CHAP. XI.

Verl.1. Jabin King of Hazor] A City lying in or upon Gali-lee called Galilee of the Gentiles, not far from Kades.

naces.

Had beard those things: I To wit, Which are related in the former chapter, namely of the great victories which the Israelites had obtained against the five Kings inhabiting the upper part of Canaan Southerly.

That be [ent] To wit , unto the Kings which inhabited the north of Canag, who together were entered into a confederacie to a fifth one another in the war against their common energy; as appeared they, p. But being thus combined, why did not their Kings of the north joyn with the fouthern Kings, that they might have opposed the Ifraelites with united forces ? Surely, seeing in all reason and common policy they should have done lo, no cause hereof can be rendred, but that the divine providence did over-rule them, and infatuate their counfels, to as they neglected their only wife and fafeft course; that to he lo as they regleties their only wite and static couries is that to be might rulker easy way to his people for a more easile conquest; not suffering them to come out against them in their full and united floragin, lett they might have been difficuraged with their vall remitted and great through, but one after another, that the former being first flowled. Gods people might be bearened and encouraged by their former videories, and might obtain a mere easie conquest, when as their enemies were thus weakened by losing half their strength; and they also here by gaining time to refresh themselves against the next fight. Now the reason why Jabin rather then any other of the Kings summoned the rest to this war, notwithstanding that he was surthere of from the danger then divers of them, may feem to be this, that his City being greater, and chief among the other o-ver which he reigned, he had some jurisdiction and command over the refl

And to the King of Shimron ] Which is called Shimron-meron.

Chap. 12.40.
V. 2. And to the Plaines fouth of Cinneroth Jie. The Plaines that lay on the South fide of the country of Cinneroth, mentioned, Deut. 2. 17. by the name of Cinnereth. Afterwards called Tiberias by the lake of Genezareth. Luk. 5.1. also the Sea of Cinnereth, Numb. 34.11. afterwards the Sea of Tiberias, and the Galdean Sea.

in the borders of Dor ] A cuy and country afterwards in the tribe of Manaffeh, scituate on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea.by Gennezareth on the welt.

V. 3. the Hivite under Hermon] Which (as some think) is added to diftinguish them from the Hivites of Gibeon which had made peace with Ifrael. For this Hermon was an hill on the north of Canaan.

inthe land of Mizpeb] A City adjoyning to Gilead. See Gen 31.49. Judg. 10.17. V. 4. even as the fand that is upon the Sea-shore] An hyper-bolicall expression usuall in the Scriptures, to fignific such a of war when the Cities were stormed, these they still prefer-at the waters of Meromi Over which the King of Shimronmeron reigned, where they joyned all their armies into one body, that so being duly marshalled, they might encounter and fneedily fet upon Ifrael.

V. 6. be not afraid because of them] Though Joshua had had much and manifold experience of the truth of Gods promises, and of his gracious affiltance, yet through humane frailty and weaknesse of faith, he was subject to fear, in respect of the huge multitude that came against him with so many horses and Chariots, and therefore needed to be thus encoura-

to morrow about this time I Which is added for the further frengthening of his faith, feeing not only the conquest, but even the very time of victory is designed.

I will deliver them] And therefore thou needest not fear in respect of thine own weaknesse, or thine enemies number and strength, seeing I alone am al-sufficient, who have undertaken to affift you, and promifed you victory, to make good my word

Thou that hough their horfes I to wit, That being made utterly unferviceable, they might not trust in them and their own itrength, but might wholy deny themselves and ascribe the whole glory and praise of all their victories unto God a-lone. See Deut. 17.16. Judg. 7. 2. 2 Sam. 8. 4. Pfal.

and burn their chariots with fire] Which is also added for the further strengthening of Joshua's faith, in that the Lord giveth him fuch particular direction before the battle what he should nm man particular direction before the battle what is mount do afterwards, as if already he had gotten the videory.

V. 7. by the matter of Merom [undenly] Notwithstanding that he had Gods infallible promite of victory, yet this made that he had Gods imalibe promise or victory, you have had him not neglect any prudent or politique meanes whereby he might ferve Gods providence for the obtaining of the W. 8. and obsfed them used great Zidon! So called (as Jofephus conceiveth) from the eldelt fon of Canaan, Gen. 10. 15, and it is called great Zidon, not comparatively, as though there were a leffer of that name, (for we read of none but this ) but because it was truly great, both in respect of the largeness and circuit, and also the fame and glory of it, for it was a City of great trade and traffique with Nations far and neer, and was much enobled in the repute of all, for the variety of merchandizing commodities, the art and skill of the inhabitants in all manufactures, and the fairnesse and commodiousnesse of their haven, which made it a fit and fafe harbour for ships. In which respects it was doubtfull, whether it or the famous City of Tyrus was the Metropolis or mother City of Phænicia, and the rather, because Tyrus is called by Ifaias the daughter of Zidon, Ifa. 23.12. This City was scituate on the Sea-coast of the Me-

Mi[rephothmaim] A place not far distant from Zidon; wherein were many faltpits wherewith that tract abounded; or,as in were many laiptis wherewin that tract abounded; or, as fore take it, glaffe-ovens, or hot waters or bath, the valley of Mirgobe edjward.] Scituate under the hill Hermon, in the Tribe of Naphtali.

V. 9. And 4-plase did unto them as the Lord bad him] Where is commended Joshua's obedience to Gods command, and of ll his army to their Generall, V. 10. turned back Having gone far beyond this city in the pursuit of his enemies. and took Hagor] Which was the Head ( not of all Canaan , but) of all those Kingdomes which were subdued in this expe-and finite the King thereof with the fword] i.e. Jabin who either by flight had efcaped out of the battle, and being returned was flain in the City when it was facked, or he being killing the control of the battle, and the control of the being killing the control of the battle, and being the lied was hain in the City when it was tacked, or ne being stilled in the fight, it is to be underflood of a new King that furceded him in the government. But it may be objected, that Jabin King of Hazor is faid to have tyrannized over the Itractive lites, Judg. 4.2,3. and therefore he could not be flain here. To which I answer, that this was long after, when for the fins of Gods people the Canaanites had recovered their ftrength, re-edified their Cities, and Hazor among the rest, and were under the government of a new King of the same name, as was usuall in those times and countries.

V. 11. [more all the foules] i. e. All the people, having all the cattel for their prey. the fervant of the Lord commanded ] Namely, from God, whereby the lirachites are cleared of cruelty, from God, whereby the lirachites are cleared of cruelty, feeing they had from God an express command to destroy feeing they had from Fold they whom utterly these cursed Nations. For it is justice to kill those whom he defigneth to be flaughtered, and foolifh and impious pity to spare when he appointed to kill.

V. 13. that flood fill in their strength] to wit, That had not their wals and bulwarks yet raied and difmantled in the fury be burnt Hazor ] i.e. This only City was burnt by Joshua's command, and not through the fury of the Souldiers, as thinking it to be a sufficient evidence of just wrath, against these Canaanires, that their chief City was deftroyed, though the laffer were tyared.

V. 14. and all the floyle] i. e. All faving their Idols-which they were commanded to confume with free though they were of gold and filver, and not to convert them to their own ufe,

V. 15, and fo did Fofbus] i. e. He firitly observed his rule, and did nothing rafilly out of paffion for what he had not an empresse warrant from God, nor neglected any thing through fear or floth which He commanded.

tent of note which the commission.

V. 16. So Joffma took all that land.] In this and the next verfe, he furnment up all that was yet done by Joffma and the Uraelites in the land of Canaan.

and the mountain of Ifrael Which is to be understood not of any one particular mountain, but of all the mountaines and mountainous places which fell to the fhare of Ifrael, only Juda excepted, which had his own mountains peculiar to himfelf, as appeareth, v. 21.

V. 17. Even from the mount Halak | Or, the Imouth or bare mountain, so called, because neither graffe, nor herb, nor tree grew upon it-that geeth up to Seir] Which is a mountain of Idumea and lyeth upon the frontiers of Canaan towards the South. unto Bast-Gad T Which is a part of Libanus towards the east

at the foot of mount Hermon.

V. 18. Johna made war a long time ] q. d. Though the war-like expeditions are so briefly related, that they might seem all to have been transacted in a short space, yet in truth this war continued a long time. i.e. for the foace of neer feven yeares, as appeareth by the computation of Calebs age. For he was fourty yearsold when he was fent by Moles to fearch the land and now he was fourescore and five years old as himsely speakand now he was four-clore and then years old as humbel pleash, chap, 14,000 out of which, if we further that they are the chapter of the chap could be alledged but his own good pleafure it were fufficient feeing he is infinite in wildome, and knoweth what is beft, and infinite in goodnesse, and will do that which is best for his own glory and good of his Church and people. But yet divers reagon'y and good with the third people. The form might be rendered why he was pleafed to have this war thus prolonged. First, because in his administrations and diepensations he usually proceedeth in an ordinary way, according to the nature of secondary causes, and, not by his absorbed hite power in a miraculous manner. And to thele populou and warlike nations dwelling in ftrong and fenced Cities could not be conquered but in some processe of time suitable to the greatnesse of the work. Secondly, that hereby he might exer-cife the faith and patience of his people waiting and depending upon his power and promifes, even when the performance of them was thus delayed. Thirdly, to train them up in obedi ence to all his commands when they had continual need of his affiftance, and daily experience of his inflice in punishing fin, and of his love and goodnesse in supporting and preserving those that fear and serve him. Fourthly, that by this long exercife of armes, he might make his people a warlike nation, and not only valignt to conquer, but also skilfull to resain what they had conquered, Judg. 3; a. Fiftly, That brashy they might have more cause to yearst and magnific. Gods lowe and goodnesse towards them, which more clearly appeared unto shem in the difficulty of their conquelts. And lattly, that the wild Beafts might not increase upon them for want of people to

V. 19. There was not a Giventum for want of people to V. 19. There was not a Giventum made peace! This is added as a real on to the former verfe, why the war continued follong, namely, because the hearts of the Cananties were so alight it out to the last man, and never so much as defired to have any peace with the Afraelites whatfoever came of it.

all other shey speek in Battle]. Whereby is not meant, that they stook all the Cines in Canzan, for many remained unfuldued lang after Jolhun's death, and some even unto Davida sime; but that all the Cities before mentioned, or all that were taken by Johna were all ranquillied by the fword, and not any of them furrendred by composition, saving the Cities of the Hivites, Seechop. 13.1.

V. 20. For it was of the Lord to harden their hearts \ie. Either to give them over to the hardnesse of their own hearts, and not to supple and somen them by the oyle of his spirit, or actually to harden them to their utter ruine and deffruction . as a just punishment of all their former wickednesse and abomina-

p. Nie ved entire for their own use, that they might afterwards dwell tions, Plak 69.37. See appeal on chapter 15.5.

V. 21. (10 of the chapter) Anak the four of Arba was the cone fastle and securely. proper name of a famous Gyant who had three fent, Shelhai, Abunan, and Talmai, chap. 15.14. called Anakinas, with their pofterity alfo, Numb. 12. 28, Deut. 1. 28, and fas foine think Policetty and interests and its low and has lower unus; it was a name commonly given to other Cyants.

From the mountains! Where they lived in a favage manner in Caves and Dens, after they were first driven by Johns a ped Caleb from Helbron and Dabir, ch. 15, 16,15. where doing much mischief and spoyle in the Country adjacent, Joshua again attempteth them, and quite cutteth them off from all, the mountains of Israel, and utterly destroyed all them that inhabited in those places. See aunor, on chapter to, verle mountains of Fudab | In which the Gyants chiefly inhabited.

ch. 14.12, Numb. 12.22. mountains of Ifraci \ Namely, of all other Tribes faving Jud

Folbus destroyed them utterly with their Cities ] Namely , in this his fecond expedition, for in the former he burnt only Ha-zor their chief mother City, and referred other Cities for their own use to dwell in, y, 11. & 13. but in this second expedition against the Anakims he destroyed their Cities, because being firong and defended by valiant and mighty men, they could no otherwise be maftered and taken unlesse they were dismanted and utterly ruined.

V. 22. only in Gara, in Gath, and in Afbdod | Which were V. 22. ONE IN CARGARY CAPE, and in Alchda! Which years tree Cities of the Philliams, fictuate on the Sea-coals, which were by God given to the firactives, but were not posselfed by their first they had provoked his wrath against them, fo as by would not east them out before them, but lifered them to remain to be fnares and traps unto them, fcourges in their fides and thornes in their eyes, as it isch. 23, 13 Numb. 83.55. In which Cities, the posterity of these Gyants remained even unto Dayids time; as namely, Goliah of Gath, whom Dayid slew in a single duel, a Sam. 17, and another of that name with his three brethren, who were flain by Davids fervants, 2 Sam. 2 I.

fervants, 2 ham. 21.

V. a3. Folus took the whole land] i.e. Before mentioned, or, it is to be underthood figuratively, the whole being put for the greatest part, or all forts of land, Cities and Countries, champion and mountainous places; or that all the whole courcomposition and momentum places; by that an ite whose lovely try were fo firicken with the terrour of his victories; that they durft not again make any more confederacies againft him; so by making any new opposition disturbe his peaceable poster-fion of all the land which he had conquered; but that he might now without any interruption quietly proceed to the distribution of it among the Tribes.

according to their divisions by their Tribes ] i. e. He did met give to every fingular man his part, but affigned to every fribe their portions; or, he gave inheritances to all the Ifraelites, according to their feverall Tribes, in which they were numbred, according to that order and manner related in the following and the land refted from war i e. There were no more hoftile configuraties to hinder them from peaceable pollettion of all which they enjoyed.

CHAP. XII.

Verl t. Tom the river Arnon unto mount Hormon 3 Arnon is a River or Torrent which divideth the Monbies from the Amorites on this fide Jordan, Numb. 21, 43. and Hermon apart of Libanus towards the east, and with these two the country was bounded on the out fide of Jordan, extending it telf from the River Amon, where it fell into the lake Afficial ites, unto mount Hermon.

All the Plains on the east ] i.e. The champion Country of Moab, extending it self from Arnon towards the left fide of Jerdan, and the Arabian mountains on the right hand.
V. 2. and ruled from Arasi] Where is feet down the bounds dod as ration to the former very thythe war comminded in official spiritual production to bound as a ration to the former very thyther war comminded in official spiritual production to the former very the theory of the Cananities were for advanced, that they deferrately and oblimately preloved to man, most abstract placked, sixting the Kingsone from the River Area. that of the Ammonites.

and from balf Gilead ] to wit, the other half lying in the King-

done of Og, as appeareth, w.s.

Y. 3. ste fes of Cimeroth] See ch. 11. 2. Deut. 3.17.

the Sea of the Plaine] Which Champion lyeth between the Sea of Tiberias and the dead Sea, and on the East fide be long that to both. And it is called the Sea of the Plaine, become it is no an even and levell Country, which before it was defitted and with fire and brimflone from beaver, was fo pleasant and fruitfull, that it was compared to Ægype, yes even to Paradile it felf, Gen. 13.10.

the [ale Sea] So called from the acrimonious and falt tall of Beth-feshimuth ] Signifying a vast and desolate house or alace frinate in this Champion border of Monb , Ezech

13 from the Seath of Tenan under Afoliah pifeth] Or, the firming of Prigats, or the bil; which ferent forth the South-henders of Shouts Kingdone, extending it elf from the mouth of Armon unto the hottom of the mount Abarim.

of Amon unro me cortome or me month rossum.

*V.4. Of Engo of Befan.

*Visit of Engo of Sefan.

*Visit of Engo o

& Afternit and at Edrei] By which fome understand that he reigned in the City Edreineer the monnain Afhtaroth; o-thers think that hereby is meant two mantion houles or royall Palaces in which Og dwelt.

V. 5. and in Salah) A City scimate in the utmost borders

y. s. sam an outers] is City kindate in one distinct outers belonging so Balan, same which the border of the Gelharites and the Maschabites adjoyred, which were mountainous, and yet familial places which did bye usore inward in that Coup-

ry.

and bale Giled J For this half was under the dominion of Og, the other half under Sileon. The torrent Jabbolt dividing the land of Gilead between thefe swo

Reales of the Gelharites | Gelhur was a royall City in the land of Baihan, not far from Damafeus. The daughter of Tal-haid of Baihan, not far from Damafeus. The daughter of Tal-haid the King of Grifbur; Makcha, was Dirids wife, and Abfa-hors mother, a Sam.3.3. whither he fled after he had murthered Ammon, 2 Som. 12-37,38.

W. 7. on this fide forden on the weft ] Where he describeth not only the Sea-Coast of Canaan, which properly is called Pa-legine, but the whole land of Canaan bounded by Jordan on the east, and by the Mediterranean Sea on the well, and extenthe cast, and opens into the borders of Edom, which intermolf borders in the length of the land are figurified by the names of those mountains of Bail-Gad; and Halak that goe up to geeth up to mouse Seir] The name of a mountain, and of a City feated on it. It is a very high mountain feituate on the salt fide of the land of Hus, which had its name from Elau, who was this called Sen. i.e. Hairy.

aber divificate] i.e. To every one his fhare. 113: In the manuains and in the valleys By which enumeration he interactical places generally whatforver.

V. 9. before Rether | Which is added to diftinguish it from mother City of that name in the country of the Ammonites, 2-asparer Cryp of the at tame in the country of the Anthonomessa-gainfil which Jertenic Propherithy Jer-49-3.

V. 13. the King of Geder] Which fell to the possession of the Tribe of Juda, as did also Hormali and Arad., which did by in the utmost South borders.

-DEV. TG. The King of Adullant]. A City in the land of Judah

A Chron. 11.15. neer unto which was a cave in which David

Wast, of Tapach ] So called from the plenty of apples

Hober A City belonging to the tribe of Zebulon. V. 18. Aphel | Scituate between Tannach, Jefreel and Me-

N. 19. Shimren Meren | Samaria is here called Meron , be enthethis was the docient name of it; St afterwards in Omrie's f the hill sport which Samaria was built by Omri.

on which was also called Galleen the nations, or of the hilles, which was also called Galleen the nations, or of the name in the Country of Gallee, which was also called Galleen of the nations, or of the mee, when was an called value rect he intons, or ist the frequies file, judectule many natures by realon of the composite field of the poets and haven sitere, did refort thinter to rading and international. Some think that Tidal mentioned, Some again was ting of this place.

July 84. All the Kings thirty and in 104 which there are free again a world what mere nice mentioned in the former without the composition of the state of the composition of the state of the composition of the state of the composition of the former without the composition of the state of of t I want unter an electric process of the process of

Belogies to Stanfair a val before

CHAP. XIII.

Verf. 1. THen are old and firiches in years ] He parteth him in mind of his old age and the fhort remainder of his dayes, to haften him on to the dispatching of that work wherein he intended further to imploy him; that is, the dividing of the land already conquered among the tribes, and also to delign by lot to every one, in their proportion, those parts which were not yet subdued, nor should be in his life time, as if they were already conquere

there remained yet very much land to be possessed. To wit, after the enemies are variouistied, which I will, after thou are gone, possesse them of according to my promise (if my people keep covenant with me) which I will still referve unsubdued that in the ffean time I may exercife their faith and try their obedience. Neither had the Lord promifed that Joshua should conquer the whole land which he had given to his people, but only that he should bring them into it, Deut. 21. 23. and that he should divide it for an inheritance unto them, chapter

V. 2. This is the land which yet remaineth To wit, unconquered, or, not pet fubdued.

all the borders of the Philiftims ] Which lay along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea 3 and was given to the Hracktes as a part of Canaan, unto which of old it belonged, although the Philistims, then called Caphtorims, having by force cast out the Hivites, were now poffeffors of it. See Deut. 2. 22. Amos and all Geffuri ] Scittuate in Syria , and bordering on the North fide of Canaan. See a Sam. 15.8. and 3. 3. & chap.

12. 5. V. 3. From Sibor whith is before Ægypt ] A River to called becaute of its blackneffe, which (as some think) divideth Pa-lestine from Ægypt, Num. 3.4.5. but the Hebrew writers think it to be Nilus, Jer. a. 13. which is called Sibor or black, because of the muddinesse of the water. alfo the Avites | Or. Hivites | many of which / it feemeth )

continued in some part of the Philistims or Caphtorims courtry, even in Joshua's time, after they had expelled the greatest part of their Ancestors, and therefore are here mentioned, because the Philistims had no just title to that land in which they dwelt, Deut. 2.22,23.

V. All the land of the Canaanites | For all the country was not wholly subdued by Joshua, but divers parts of it, only so terrified by the profeerous fuccesse of his victorious army, that they not appearing in any hofile opposition, were no hindrance, unto him in his division of the land, and namely Mearah, or the cave that is beside the Sidonians, unto Aphek which is a ciry that fell to the lot of the tribe of Afher called Aphik, Jud. 1.

to the borders of the Americas] By which is fignified that space of the Country which lyeth between Aphek and the mount

And the land of the Giblites | So called of Gebal a promontory above Zidon. See Pfal. 83, 7, Ezek. 27, 9, who were a people fingularly skilfull and industrious in artificial manu-factures, and therefore used by Salomon in the work of the temple, 1 King 5.18.

V. 6. And all the Inhabitants of the bill Countries ] Which though they were conquered by Joshua, yet not wholly extir-pated, but left to be scourges to the sides, and pricks in the eyes of Godspeople, in case of their rebellion against him.

and I will drive them out ] i.e. I (who am omnipotent and alforficient by my felf alone to do what foever I pleafe.) do underrake to drive out all thefe inhabitants which yet remain unconquered, when thou art dead and gone, by fuch men and means as I thall pleafe to appoint; if my people do not make void the covenant between them and me by their infidelity, rebellion, and disobedience; and to give unto them peaceable possession of all that part of the Country which remaineth as vet unfubdued.

only divide thou it ] i.e. The whole land which by out I have promised to their fore-fathers, both that which is already conquered, and that also which is as yet unconquered. And this be doth for the strengthening of their faith in this assurance, that they should in due time enjoy it (if they were not by their that they include induction (e.g., et acey were and of their disobdence wanting to themselves) feeing God had already given it unto them by lot, and to privoke them to attempt it with all valour and refolution when they should be called unto it, and rot to make any please with the Inhabitating, either each of cowardly fear, or love of their own cafe.

V. 7. Now therefore divide this] i.e. Seeing thou art ftricken in years and canft no longer purfue thy Conquest.

V. 8. with whom | i.e. With the half tribe of Manasse last spoken of, who were to have no part in the land of Canson,becaufe their portion was already fallen unto them beyond JorChap.xiij. even as Moles lie. Even as Moles by Gods appointment gave | tween them, they are faid to belong to them both, fomerimes unto the two Tribes and an half their inheritance beyond Jordan, fo do thou who fucceedest him in government confirme this gift unto them, in the fame manner, and on the like con-

V. o. from Areer which is upon the bank, &c. ] Where the whole region without Jordan given by Moles to the two tribes and an half, is first generally described, from Arnon to Libanon; and then more especially is expressed what portion fell to every tribe. And this Aroer fome think was double, one fcituate on the bank, and the other in the midft of the River, not only because the words here so carry it, but also because the Prophet Ifai fo fpeaketh of it, Ifa. 17.2. The Cities of Aroer are forfaten. Medeball Scituate neer Arnon.

Dibon] A City built by the Gadites in the fourth place wherein the Ifraelites pitched their Camp, and therefore called Dibon Gad, Num. 33.45. by anticipation. These Cities are mentioned by Ifaias, ch. 15.2.

V. 11. of the Gellivites, &c. 7 See annot, on ch. 12. c. which Moles had given to the two tribes and an half, but his Army not proceeding in their invasion to the utmost bounds of those Coasts, these Countries here named, were not as yet conquered, nor the Inhabitants cast out, that the Ifraelites might have them in present possession, as appeareth, vers.

V. 11. For these did Moses smite] Not the Gessuries and Maachathites, nor the remnant of the Gyants, but all the Kingdome of Og in Bashan, whom he slew not long before his death, together with Sihon King of the Amo-

V. 13. expelled not the Geffurites, &cc ] Either because they would not, by being taken up in this fervice, hinder their expedition into the land of Canaan, which was a work of greater weight, or because they had for the present room enough in the Country for their people and Cattle, and therefore might forbear the conquering of these parts till better lei-

but the Geffurites] q. d. But, whatfoever the cause was, ye without doubt, herein they grievously sinned, in that having conquered Canaan, and returned into their Country, they ftill contrary to Gods command even to this day, have suffered them to live amongst them, as thinking that they had Cities and ground fufficient for their use, though they lived with them. And so either for feare or love of ease, disobeying Gods command, this remainder not being cast out, became finares, and pricks, and fcourges for their hurt, as God threat ned, Num.33.35. ch.23.13. Judg. 2.3.
V. 14. hegavenone inheritance | i.e. Moses being so appointed by God, gave no inheritance to Levi, as appeareth in the last verse of this chapter: Namely, he gave unto them no regions or parts of the Country, as to the other Tribes, upon which they might live by tillage and husbandry, but only fome Cities to dwell in, and the Suburbs belonging to them, with some circuit of ground for the feeding of their cattle; because God was to be their portion, and all that remained of the oblations offered unto him by the other tribes, which he affigned unto them as his free gift, for the maintenance of them and the facrifices of the Lord | i.e. All that remained of the facrifices, Num. 18.8. to 23. Deut. 10.9. & 18.2. where by a figure of the part for the whole, we are to understand all other oblations due unto God, as the tythes, first fruits,&c.

V. 15. And Mofes gave ] There he describeth the particular possessions allotted to these Tribes without Jordan, with their feverall bounds belonging to them, which Mofes authorized by God, affigneth unto them, to the end, that every one of thefe Tribes, and all belonging unto them, might know their own, and contenting themselves therewith, might not encroach one upon another.

according to their families] i.e. Affigning (as some think) to every family its portion; or as others, for all and fingular families according to their feveral flocks and kindreds : That is, Mofes and Joshua, by Gods appointment and direction, affigned unto every tribe jufficient portions for all the families belonging to them, but not a particular inheritance for every fingular family; for that work was to be done by the Magistrates and Officers which belonged to every feverall tribe.

V. 16. And their Coast was from Aroer | Most of these Civ. 16. Anather Cost was from Aver I Most of their Ci-ties after mentioned, belonging lately to Sihon King of the A-morites, in former times belonged to the Mosbites; but were by force taken from them by the Amorites, otherwise the Ifraelites could not have possessed them, being prohibited by God, to take from the Moabites any part of their country, Deut.

From Aroer] Which was a city in the borders between the Reubenites and the Gadites, who also built it, as also Dibon and Ataroth, Numb. 32. 34. and lying in the Confines be-the one, and fometimes the other; and in this place it is allotted to Reuben , as the utmost bounds of his inheri-

V 17. Heshbor] Which was a City belonging both to the Reubenites and Gadites; and hence it is said, that the Gadites gave it to the Levites, ch. 21.39. And here it is faid to be in the tribe of Reuben, who also built it, Num. 32.37. Jos. 21.39. and 1 Chron. 6.81. it is faid, that Gad gave it to the Levites, And the reason hereof is this, because lying in the confines of both Tribes, it was promiscuously inhabited by them both, and attributed fometimes to the one, and fometimes to the other.

Bamoth-Baat] Scituate in those mountains by which the river Arnon runneth; and was the place from whence Balaam bleffed Ifrael. Ramoth were high places in which the Gentiles worship-ped their Idols; and in this high place the Idol Baal was worfhipped, which name fignifying a lord, was given to many of their Idols, and here as fome think Saturn, others Jupiter.

Beth baalmeon] Which fignifieth the house or Temple of this Idol Baal, in which he dwelt and was worshipped, Jer. 48. 23. V. 19. in the mount of the valley By which is fignified (as fome think) Abarim, Nebo or Pisgah, a place famous, because Mo-ses body was there buried by God himself; that (as some think) the people might not idolize it, or (as others ) that they might not carry it with them (as Joseph's bones) into Canaan, into which God had faid that he fhould not enter.

V. 20. Beth peor ] Where (as some think) the filthy Idol of the nations, called Priapus, was worthipped.

V. 21. And all the Kingdome of Sibou ] i.e. All that part of his Kingdome that did lye within those bounds before mentioned ; for there was another part of his Kingdome that was given to the tribe of Gad whom Mofes (mote with the Princes of Midian] But not all at the fame time; for these Princes (it feemeth) either as confederates with Sihon, or (as it is more probable) under his ju-rifdiction (seeing they are afterwards faid to be Dukes of Sihons) coming to aid him against the Israelites; upon his defeat and flaughter escaped out of battle and fled into their own country; and there in a fecond expedition appointed by God, they were flain, as appeareth, Num. 21.8.

V. 22. Balaam also the son of Beer the South-sayer] Who is alfo called a Prophet, 2 Pet. 2. 16. because he had the knowledge of the true God, acknowledged that the events of things were disposed and ordered by his providence and appointment, and spoke of many things concerning the state of the people of If-rael and other nations, David, and Christ himself, as a true Prophet, utering divine oracles as from the mouth of God. But here he is called a Sooth-fayer, in respect of his notorious wickednesse, ambition and covetousnesse, and in respect of his ends and aimes in all he did, which were not Gods glory or love of his truth revealed unto him, or of his people whom he bleffed, but his own advancement, and the wages and reward of his divination, according to the manner of wicked Sooth-among them that were flain i.e. The Princes of Midian, for though when he parted with Balac, he purposed to return into his own country to Pethor, which was far remote from Midi- Num. 24. an, yet in his journey he turned afide to Midian, or returned thither back again to receive a reward for his wicked counsell given to the Midianites, by which the Ifraelites were drawn into fin and feverely punished. But some others do very probably think that he was a Midianite by nation and birth; and not an Aramite , though for his greater glory and credit, he boafteth himfelf to be fo, because the Aramites and Chaldeans were in those times most famous for Diviners and Astrologians.

V, 13 was Fordan and the borders thereof ] i.e. Jordan and the Cities bordering upon it were the bounds of the Reubenites inheritance from the west.

V. 24. And Mofes gave unto the Tribe of Gad In this, and the foure verses following, he describeth Gads inheritance, which burdered upon the Reubenites towards the South, on the east upon the Ammonites and the hils of Arabia, on the west upon Jordan, on the North it extended unto Mahanaim beyond

V. 25. And their Coast was Fazer] Which was scituate five miles from Jordan, and fifteen from Helbon, and bounded their country on the South; and in former times belonged to the Moabites, Ifa. 16.9. Jer. 48.32.

and all the Cities of Gilead | i.e. All within the bounds afterwards mentioned; for half Gilead was given to the Tribe of Manafich for an inheritance, v. 30.

and balf the land of the children of Ammon ] To wit, which Sihon had taken from them, for otherwife God had expresly forbidden the Ifraelites to take any thing from the Ammonites, which was in their present ppsession, Deut. 2.19. And hence it was, that Jephthah denyeth that they had taken any thing from them, but from Sihon, Judg. 11.15.

before Rabbab] The chief City of the Ammonites, called DDD

Chap. xiv. also Philadelphia in Syria by Ptolomy Philadelphus,

V. 26. Renab Misperb] i.e. A watch-tower; or an high hill like those on which we set our Becons for discovery, which was a city beyond Jabbok toward the North. And was also called Ramoth in Gilead, chap. 20,8. and was after a city of called Ramoth in Critead, chap. 20, 8. and was after a city of Refuge, given unto the Leviers.

and from Adhensim! Not far from Ramah, sciunate in the untermost angle of Gads inheritance, towards the North-east, neer mount Gilead, fo called from the two hofts of angels appearing there to Jacob, Gen. 32. 2.

Debir] See Annoration chap. 10.38. V. 27 And in the valley] i.e. That iweet and pleafant champion or Plain, lying upon Jordan, and extending to the

she rest of the Kingdome] To distinguish it from the other part towards the South, which the Reubenites possessed, fordan entward] i.e. In the land of Moab.

parame equivers 1.6. In the sand or Moad.

V. 30. dit the Kingdame O(g) See annot on v. 35, and all the rowns of 3-iri. Who was of the tribe Judah on the Enthers fide, and only the grand child of hanafish on the mothers fide, as appeared, 1 Chron. 2. 21,22. Yet being a Manaffire on the mothers fide, he adjoyned himself to that tribe; and therefore is faid to have been the fon of Manafich, Num. 32. 41. who being a valiant man that had a chief hand in conquering these Cities, they were afterwards called by his

N. 31. were pertaining to the children of Machir] Because the children of Machir had taken Gilead, and dispossessed the Amorites that were in it, therefore it was given unto them by Moles, as by right of conquest belonging to them. See Num.

34.39.ch.17.2. even to one half ] For his fix fons had received their inheri-tance on the other fide of Jordan with the nine Tribes, ch. 17.

2. 5. V. 32. In the Plaines of Mosto! Extending from the mouthes of Jordan and Armon, whereby they empty and difcharge themfelves into the dead Sea, along by the Kingdome of Sinon, between Jordan on the welft, and the Arabian mountains on the saft: Which Plaines the Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines the Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines the Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines the Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines the Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines of Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines of Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines of Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines of Mosbites formerly possessing the saft of the Plaines of Mosbites formerly possessing the Pla they were driven out by the Amorites.

V. 33. But unto the Tribe of Levi] See annot. on v. 14.

CHAP. XIV.

Verl. 1. And these are the Countries ] q. d. As we have spo-ken before of the Countries, which Moles by Gods appointment gave to the two Tribes and an half beyond Jordan: So now we are to speak of those which were assigned to the nine tribes and an half in the land of Canaan, according to the time trives and an internal relation of the state of the theretal diffibitions by librid, men were by name defigued to this office by God himself before they entred into Canaan. And first Elizare the high Priefts as chief Governour in the Ifraeliush State, and best understanding Gods lawes by which they were to be governed, and alwayes ready by Urim and Thummim to ask counfell of God in all difficult by term and a nummin to ask counter or God in an afficient cases; and was also herein a type of Christ, by whom only we enter into, and enjoy the heavenly Canaan; and into those severall mansions which he hash there prepared for us, Joh. 14.

V. 2. By lot was their inheritance ] The land was divided by lot, which is wholly at Gods disposing : fire, that they might hereby acknowledg him to be Lord paramont, who bath the whole earth at his disposing, & more especially, that as supream Lord he was owner of this promifed land, from whom, (as having given it to his people) they derived al the right which they had unto it; Secondly, that thereby all murmurings, quarrels and contentions, might be prevented, which otherwife would ne-ceffarily have followed both against their magistrates, if in their dividing it they had not given them their inheritance in fuch a place, or in fuch a proportion as they defired; and amongst the tribes one with another, whileft divers of them would have coveted the same country, and out of pride and self-love, would have thought themselves as worthy of it as any of the rest. Thirdly, that they might be contented with their portion, feeing God only wife had allotted it unto them. And lastly, to make it appear, that the prophecies of Jacob and Moles were from God, seeing the inheritances of the tribes did by lot fall unto them according to their predictions. Now the manner according to which they proceeded, was thus: The whole country was divided into fo many parts as there were tribes to possesse them, yet foas that the bounds of every Province were not fo Canaan, notwithflanding the great strength of their In-precifely limited before the Tribe had drawn the lot, but that habitants and of their Cities, as now it is come to receively influence before the inner had river the roy. One of the received the roy in the people need 1 feet and feet a dered immediately from God by lot, whereby was determined of their enemies.

what Country or Provinc: every tribe should inherit, but the enlarging or lessening of it according to their number, great or fmal, was left to the wisdome and prudence of the high Priest, Joshua and the Elders, whom God had appointed to divide it.

by the band of Mofes] i.e. By his ministerie.
V. 4. For the children of Hojeph were two Tribes] To wit, the blefling of birth-right being devolved to him from Reuben, Tacobs eldeft fon, for his bainous incessuous fin : Which is here added as a reason to thew, that though Levi had no inheritance, the number of the Tribes was not lessend, seeing the posterity of Josephs two sons were either of them reputed a tribe,

Gen. 48.5. 1 Chron. 5.1.
V. 5. And they divided the land ] i.e. Not in prefent actibut in their intention, according to which, they agreed upon an order according to which the whole land should be divided, both der according to which the whole land inouid be divided, both that part which they now possessed that part which they now possessed that allo which was not yet subdued. The like phrase we have, Gen. 37.11. Ex. 12.48.

V. 6. Then the children of Fudah came] i.e. Being of the same tribe with Caleb, they came to affilt him in his fuite, for the obtaining of that inheritance which God had formerly promifed him in the generall, Num. 14.24. Deut. 1.36. And that this was done before the subduing of Hebron, appeareth v. 12. being onne before the moduling of Hebron, appeared v. 12. being compared with chi.o. 36,37 division of the land began, because the Ark was then there, which being the visible signs of Gods presence; it was most fir that so weighty a business; as this dividing of the land was, should be there done in his fight, who affigned unto every tribe their inheritance ; and therefore when the Ark was removed to Shiloh, that which remained to be done in this division was there finished, as appeareth, ch. 18.

And Calebthe son of Jephunneh] Ob. but 1 Chron.2. 18. he said to be the son of Hezron: I answer, that Hezron was Judah's grand child, who descended with him into Ægypt ahove two hundred years before Caleb was fent to fearch the land : and therefore he could not be his immediate father, but grandfather, or great grandfather, who in the Scriptures are called fathers, because their posterity descend from their loyns. Others more probably think, that this Caleb the fonue of Je-phunneh, was not that Caleb the fon of Hezron, mentioned, a Chron, 2,18. But another of that name descended from Kenaz of the tribe of Juda, and is called therefore the Kenezite, of whom mention is made, I Chron. 4. 13, 15. and faid to be the father of Othniel (though not immediately) who was also the younger brother of Caleb, Judg. 1.13.

the younger pronter of Careo, judg. 1.13.

Thou knoweft whe thing 1 i.e. I appeale unto thy felf, who alone knoweft what God faid unto us by Moles after we came from fearching the land, and had faithfully related what we had feen, and what we thought of it, feeing none but thou remainest alive to take notice of it.

the thing that the Lord faid What is meant by this thing here fpoken of, is much controverted. Some think that God for their faithfull dealing in his cause, graciously accepting of their their fundin dearing in his calle, gracionly accepting of merice, did not only promife that they two only finculal furvive all the reft, and enter into the land of Canaan; but that also he would generally advance them to honour and dignity above others; the which Caleb here pleadeth, because by this peciall favour shewed from God unto them two above others, he was in a good capacity to have the grant of any lawfull or reasonable suite. Others think that he meaneth hereby a promise from God of some special parts of the land given unto them, as this of Hebran and the Country adjacent, to Caleb, and Timnath-Serah to Joshua; feeing it is faid, ch. 19.50. that this was given unto Joshua according to the Word

Mofes the man of God] Which words adde much weight to his fuite, feeing the Lord Jehovah who performed all his promifes had spoken it, and Moses his faithfull servant had related it from him , as it were from his owne

V. 7. Fourty yeares old was I] He with others were fent to fpie the land two years after their coming out of Ægypt when he was fourty years old, and after that they wandred in the wildernesse thirty and eight years, Deut. 2,14, and now he saith v. 10, that he was 85 years old, whereby it appeareth, that this was the feventh year after their coming into Canaan, and that they were above fix years in conquering of it. See annot, on ch.

as it was in my heart] i.e. In my relation I concealed no part of the truth, but spake all that of which I was perswaded in my heart. Namely, that God would give unto us the land of Chap.xiiij. but I wholly followed the Lord my God] i.e. Perswaded the [ lot cast upon the Levites ; unto which disposition of God. Capeeple without fear to enter into the land, refting upon Gods leb gave his willing affent (as also the severall Tribes did in promifes and powerfull affiltance. And this approbation God himfelf giveth unto Caleb, Numb. 14, 24. See chap.

9.14. V. 9. And Moles sware on that day To wit, by Gods motion and direction; yea God himself confirmed this grant unto him by his own oath, Numb. 14. 21, 22, 23, 24, that both he and his feed after bim should inherit the promised

The land whereon thy feet have trodden] Which cannot be understood of the whole land of Canaan in generall, (for that wa not given to Caleb and his posterity) but of some speciall part of it, and namely (as it is most probable) of that part of the Country in which Hebron was scituate. For seeing the fainthearted spies that accompanied him, took occasion from the bearton apies tour accompanies min, took occasions from the companies with the companies with the companies with the companies of the contrariation attempting the Conquerf of the Country; and contrariation and eleventh chapters, and because of the distributionage them to fee tupon it, affixing them, that the fixey in the three following chapters, are here repeated to the contrariation of the contrariation they should easily by Gods affiliance vanquish those Gyants, an introduction to the following relation of the difficulties; therefore it is most likely land, for which they had gotten a good opportunity by their ly, that these places should be given unto him and his posteri- present peace and cossation from armes. ty for their inheritance, which (in a fort) he had first conquered by faith; into which through fear and want of faith others durft

V. 10. the Lord buth hept me alive Where he expresseth v. 10. we know a way heps me survey where ne experience another argument to further the obtaining of his futte, taken from Gods mixaculous prefervation of him, not only in a flat of life, when as all the reft of the people of his age, faving himself and Josh 12, perished in the wildernesse, but also in that strength and vigour of body and mind, that he was now at the age of 8; yeares ( when usually nature declineth and groweth weak and feeble) as able to undertake and performe any difficult service, as he was at the age of fourty yeares when mandered in the wildernesses To wit, by Gods speciall command, as a punishment inflicted on them for their rebellion and unbelief, Num. 14.25. & Heb. 3.19.

Moses sent him to espy the land.

V. 11. For war 1 i.e. Not only for counfell and the imployments of a fedentary life, which usually beit fuite with such an age, but for the most hard services and most difficult exploits both to go out and to come in \ A proverbiall speech often used: So Deut, 31.2. Num, 27.17. Which fignifieth an ability to per-forme our duty in any course of life, and here particularly, that he was yet an able Commander, and fit to conquer the Country which he defired, and to subdue the Gyants.

V 12. Give me this mountain | i.e. this mountainous country of Judah, wherein Hebron and Debir are scituate.

whereof the Lord fpake in that day ] Whereby it more plainly appeareth, that he had a particular promile from God, that he would give this place to him and his feed for an inheritance; wherein (as before) he appealeth to Joshua's knowledge; the which promife was made to Caleb on that day, because hearing how the Anakims were there, and that the Cities were great and fenced, he was notwithstanding consident in the assurance of faith, that he fhould overcome all these difficulties and conquer that country.

if to be the Lord will be with me \ The which he fpeaketh not as one doubting his fuccesse in this enterprize, but as one that denying himfelf and his own strength, did rest wholly by faith he could prevaile against all difficulties in this undertaas the Lord hath faid ] i.e. As he hath formerly promifed whereby again it appeareth, that he had from God a spea ciall promife of inheriting this mountainous place, al-though we doe not find this promife related in expresse

V. 13. And Joshua blessed him] i.e. Having granted his request, he prayed God to blesse him with good successe and com-

Hebron for an inheritance ] i.e. The Country and Territoric in which Hebron and Debir were scituate, with the towns and villages belonging to them. For Hebron it felf was a free civites, ch.21.11,12. 1 Chron.6.56. Neither was it given unto him on that condition propounded by him, of driving out the Inhabitants by his proper forces; for Joshua himself and the whole army affished him for the subduing of it, and afterwards gave it unto Caleb, as we fee, ch. 10. 37. whereby it appeareth, that this fuite of Caleb, for the obtaining of Hebron, was propounded unto Joshua before the slaughter of the five Kings, and the conquering of their countries, though we have the generall flory of it in the 10 chapter; unlesse we would rather think, that Hebron, and the Country adjoyning, was first given to Caleb, (even as other Provinces to the severall Tribes by lot;) but afterwards this with other Cities, were by their portions; ) and the rather, because both he and his posterity, with all the rest in that country, should by having Gods Levites living among them, be the better instructed in the knowledge of God, and in all the waves of his true reli-

V. 14. Kiriath-Arba | Or, the City of Arba; So called, either because he built it, or reigned in it, being a great man both in his authority, strength, and stature, yea so reputed amongst the Gvant-like Anakims themselves, and the land had reft from mar | Not at the time when Caleb made this request, for then both Hebron for which he here fueth, and a great part of the land was not yet conquered; bur after that Johna with his Army had subdued it, and given it to Caleb for a possession. The which words are used, ch. 11.

CHAP. XV.

Verf. 1. His then was the lot ] In the former chapter and the first verses he began to speak of the division of Canaan among the nine tribes and an half, but made a digreffion from it, v. 6, upon the occasion of Calebs fuite to have his inheritance (which God himfelf had before in the time of Mofes given unto bim) conferred accordingly upon him, before they came to make the division among the tribes by lot; and now after this was done according to his defire, he returneth to speak of the division by Lot, In which they proceeded (according as the Hebrew writers have it after this manner. First, in the performance of this action, they in a folemn manner, being (as it may be probably thought in respect of the weightiness ing as triany of providing through the update of the weightness of to great a work) duly prepared by falling and prayer, Judg. 20, 26. Act. 1.24. Prefented themselves before the doore of the Tabernacle, in which was the Ark referved as the visible fign of Gods presence, that performing this action (as it were, in Gods fight) their hearts might be affected with more reverence in the doing of it. And there Eleazar the high Prieft, Joffma their chief Governour and Generall, together with their Elders and Magistrates of every Tribe affishing in the action, they had two Urns or pots for this service; and in one of them were put the names of their feverall tribes, and in the other, the names of the feverall Territories, Provinces, or portions of the land, as they had first divided them, according to that notice which they had taken of them by fuch furveyers as they had imployed in that service. And then these severall lots being jumbled and shaken together, they were drawn out of the feverall urnes (by the high Priest, as some think, because he was most impartiall, and might grace the action with greater au-thority) first, the name of the tribe out of the one, and then the name of the portion and inheritance which should be given un-to it out of the other. Some others think, that there was but only one pot or urne, in which were put the lots of the feverall Provinces, and then that every tribe in order, according to their dignity, were to draw them out severally one after another; as first the tribe of Judah, then the tribes of Joseph, and fo in the reft : but the former opinion is more probable, feeing that course of drawing seemeth least partiall, as the nature of a lot requireth, most peaceable, as not liable to strife about queflions of precedencie, and better fuiteth with divers phrases ufed in this lottery, as, that the lot came forth to Simeon, came up to Zebulon, came out to Iffachar, ch. 19. 1, 10, 17. which feemeth to imply that when the lot of their name was first drawn, then the lot of their portion also came forth, that is, was drawn out for them. of the tribe of the children of Judah ] The lot of this tribe came out first by a speciall providence of God, and fell out in the chiefest and richest part of all the land, that hereby the the enterest and recent part of all the land; that neerby the people might take notice of Gods pumpote to prefer them before all the other Tribes. And here we have first described the utmost borders of Judah's inheritance on the South side, in the soure first verse, beginning at that angle or end next unto the east, towards the wildernesse of E-

The wilderneffe of Zin] Not that into which the Ifraelites first entred when they came out of Ægypt, but another on the South fide of the dead Sea. For in the Hebrew they are written with divers letters, the one with Tfade, the other with

V. 2. of the falt Sea ] i. e. The lake of Sodom called the falt Sea, because it is sulphureous and bitumenous. DDD 2

Chap.xv.

Kadelb-barnes ] Which was the utmost borders of the land where the Ifraelites encamped after their comming out of Ægypt.

V. 4. unto the river of Ægypt] i. e. An arme of the River
Nilus running into the Mediterranean Sta; by which description of the South borders belonging to the inheritance of the on of the south borders belonging to the inheritance of the Tribe of Juda, it appeareds, that they beginn at the tumoff parts of the falt Sea, bending towards the South, and thence win-ding towards the weeff, first to the hill Acrabhim, and thence to Kadesh barnea, thence to Ht from and Adar, and lastly winding

V. S. And the east border was the falt Sea] i.e. The lake Alphaltites, that is, their east border was drawn from that utmost end where the South border began, unto that part where Tordan falleth into it.

unto the end of Fordan] To wit, where it falleth into the falt

V. 6. Betherabab] Signifying an house of solitude, taking its name from the solitarinesse of the place where it was scithe flone of Bohan] Set up (as it feemeth) for a monument or remembrance of some things that concerned him, or some notable act done by him there : for the tribe of Reuben had no land on that fide of Jordan.

V. 7. went up towards Debir ] There were two Cities of this name, the one called formerly Kiriath-Sepher which Othniel took, neer Hebron, but this other was fertuate neer Jabbok, not far from Jericho.

not tar trom Jericho.

Gilgal ] Called allo Geliloth, ch. 18. 17. feituate over-againft Adummim, which did lye between Jericho and Jerulalem, a place much haunted with theeves and robbers, to which Christ in the parable, Luk. 10. alludeth.

at Enrogel] Or, the fullers well, which was neer Jerusalem, as appeareth, 1 King 19.49.

appeareum, s. sing. 19.49.
V. 8. the sultry of the former of Himmon Which was neer Jerulalem, a place-of old, very I veet and pleafant, being watered with the brook. Cedron which ran by it, but was afterwards borrily a bulled and profinance with abominable idolarty, the people there offering, with more then barbarous torments, their idditions. people there onering, who more then boarded continuings and children to Molech; in detectation whereof, it was afterwards defiled by the command of good Josiah, and made the com-mon laystall for Carions and all manner of filth, and after that called the valley of flaughter, and a common place of burish for innumerable numbers of those who in Gods wrathfull displeasure perished in their fins, See 2 King. 23. 10. 2 Chron. speasure perined in their has. See 1 Ming. 23, 10, 2 Caron. 28, 3, Jer. 7, 31, 32, 33, & 19, 5. And in the New Teffament by a little change of the letters, it is called Gehenna, and taken for the place of hell torments, Matth. 18. 9. and 23.

unto the South fide of the Jebusite Jerusalem was of old by the Canaonites called Jebus, Judg. 19. 11. after the name of one of Canaans fons, Gen. 10.16 and it was the Metropolis of the Jebusites, which they long possessed, even some part of it in Davids time: why it was afterwards called Jerulalem, See annot. upon ch. 10. 3. And this City it felf belonged to the Tribe of Benjamin, but the Fort of Sion, which flood in some distance from it to the tribe of Juda.

V. 10. unto mount Seir Not that in Edom, but another of that name in the land of Judah.

Bethsbenesh Of which name there were two Cities, one in the Tribe of Islachar, but this in the Tribe of Judah, 2 King, 14. 11. which was given to the Levites, chap. 21.16. 1 Sam.

V. 11. The west border was to the great Sea ] ie. The Mediterranean or mid-land Sea; which wholly determined the borders of the tribe of Judah on the west side, and therefore needed no further description of them.

V. 13. And unto Galeb] See ch. 14.13.
V. 14. And Caleb drove thence] See annot, on ch. 10.36. &

11. 21. V. 15. And be went up thence] This expedition is attributed to Caleb, because though Joshua and the army performed it together with him, as it appeareth, chap. 10,37,38. yet it was done at his fuit and chiefly for his fake, to whom Hebron was given by Gods speciall command to Joshua, as appeareth vers. 13. Of this chapter, and in a great part atchieved by himselfe, with Othniel and others his allies and friends of his Tribe alfifting him. Some think (though not fo probably) that after nung inm. Some think (though not loprobably) that atter it was conquered by Joffun; it was again repotited by the Johna's death. And others conceive, that Caleb infectle properly being affilted by his friends and allies conquered thefe. Sequete bride properly being affilted by his friends and allies conquered thefe. Cates, but that by anticipation its attributed to folian, because Caleb attempted this conquertery Johna's conceilion.

V 3. Maskin crabbim] Or, the going up to Acrabbim, fo | and authority. See the aphotation on chapter 10. verse called from the Scorpions and Snakes which abounded in that | 37.

Kiriath-Sepher] Which fignifieth a City of books or litera-Radele-barnet ] Which was the utmost borders of the land ture; because it was (as is supposed) a place in which was kept of promise; Deut. 1. 20. and was the siteenth station afamous library, in which many notable monuments and ancient records of many things done ever fince the floud were referved; unto which the name Dabir feemeth to relate, as fignifying a fecret place, or a place of fecrets, and facred.
V. 16. And Joshua (aid, he that smiteth] Which he speaketh not out of diffidence in respect of the difficulty of the work. which made him by this promife to call in some other to atchieve it, he himself being a most valiant man, and one who by Gods affiltance had obtained fo many victories, but like 2 noble and magnanimous commander, having himself by his many famous exploits gotten fame and honour enough, he gi-yeth this occasion to some of his fellow-Souldiers to partake with him in the glory of his victories, thereby to animate them in noble actions, and to thun the envie of felf-feeking and vainglory ; but as it was not out of diffidence to atchieve this afti-

on, and much leffe out of cowardice or floth which kept him from attempting it; so we may well think that it was by spe-ciall instinct and direction of Gods Spirit, that he might give unto Othniel this occasion of enobling his virtue and valour in unto Ottonici tais occasion of enobling ais virtue and valour in the fight of the people, whom he intended afterwards, when Caleb was dead, to make their Judge and Deliverer.

to him will I give Achfab my daughter.] In the Scriptures parents are faint to give their daughters in marriage, to thew their authority in disposing of their children, and the Apostle implyeth as much, 1 Cer. 7. 36, 37. but this authority was not absolute to give them to whom they pleased, but it must be with their daughters liking and confent, which in marriage is most effentiall and necessary, Gen. 24. 51. 57. and so it is here to be understood.

V. 17, the brother of Caleb \ Some here by brother underfland kinsman, because usually kinsmen in the Scripture are called brothers; but it cannot be so taken here, as may ap pear, if we compare this place with Judg. 1.12. where he is faid to be his younger brother; which phrase or title is proper to a brother and not to a kiniman. The reason why they thus interpret it, is, because they hold that marriages between brothers and filters children are unlawfull, feeing degrees further remote are forbidden : To which I answer, that the law of remote are rorbideen: 10 which I anlwer, that the law of God, which is the only rule by which we may judge what is lawfull or unlawfull, doth no where forbid fuch marriages, but contrariwife, we read that Zelophehads daughters were by Gods own command married to their fathers brothers some , Num. 36. 10,11. And whereas it is objected, that degrees further off are forbidden, it is not fo in the transverse line of kindred, but only in the right or direct line of fathers, mothers, and the oblique line of uncles and aunts, and so upward and downward, even from Adam to those that now live, because all these are in the nature of parents and children, but in the crosse line it is not

V. 18. when she came to him] To wit, to Othniel her husband, and being to remove from her fathers to her husbands house, the took this opportunity of their parting; when parents hearts are more tender then they usually are when they live together, to perswade her husband to move her father in this fuite, as being (out of her modefty and awfull reverence of her father) loth to do it her felf, and the rather, because he had already out of his fatherly love to her, and his high esteem of aircacy dut of his ratherly love to ner, and his negle elected to his new form law, given unto them a large portion; or as others, (which as I conceive, is more agreeable to that which followeth) the moved her husband to give her leave, that the might make this fuite to her father, which being obtained, the returned to her father, and out of her reverence and respect to him, and coming also as an humble fuiter, she lighted off her Affe before fhe fpake unto him. So Gen. 24.64. 1 Sam. 25.

23. The which Caleb observing, and not knowing the cause of her so sudden return, he asked her what she would have, or what the meant thereby 1, 19, give me a biffing 1 i.e. A gift or boon , with thy father better upon it, Command 1. Whereby the intimateth ? Thus biff gives me a fouth Lind! Whereby the intimateth ? that though fine had received a large portion, yet it was not constituted to the constitution of the constit venient unlesse he would be pleased to make unto it a necessary addition; feeing that which he had given her was a South land, which lying upon the South or noon Sun in those hot Countries, must needs be dry and barren, unlesse also there were fprings to water it.

Give me alfo fprings of water ] i.e. Adde unto my former portion which thou half already given me, fome other land where-which made the grounds in which they were fruitfull, as being levell with them; all which lands Caleb gave unto his daughter, not for a perpetuall inheritance (for having diversions, as appeareth, T Chron.4:15, the law of God did binde him to lee it descend unto them, and would not permit him to alienate i from them, by giving it to his daughter, Num. 27. 8, 9.) but as a dowry and annuity onely for terme of her life; or at most to the year of Jubilee, when it was to return to the male heires if there were any.

V. 20. This is the inheritance He returneth to the description of Judah's inheritance by enumeration of many Cities betion of Judau state rather of commerciation of many Cities be-longing to it, from which he had made a digression upon the occasion of Calebs story, v. 13.

V. 21. Kabzeel A City scituate upon the Coast of Edom

Southward, neer unto the dead Sea. The place where Benajah the fon of Jehojadah was born, 2 Sam. 2 3.20.

V. 22. all the cities are twenty and nine ] There are reckoned up thirty and eight Cities, and how then could there be but twenty and nine ? Some answer that nine of these belonged to the Tribe of Simeon, who had their inheritance out of the Tribe of Judah, chap. 19. 1. And because their inheritances were not yet divided, these belonging to Simeon, are numbred among the Cities of Judah. Others think thele twenty nine onely were walled Cities, and the other nine no Cities, but country townes of some special note adjoyning to them.

V. 36. Fourteen cities and their villager Here also are reckoned fifteen Cities, and therefore either one of them was no City, but some great noted town, or as others conceive, Gederah and Gederothaim are but severall names of one and the same City, and then they all make but fourteen. And they read it thus, Gederah or Gederothaim, as it is also in the margin of our new translation.

V. 41. Beth-dagon] Of which name there were two Cities one in the Tribe of Affer, the other this in the Tribe of Judah.

V. 47. the great fea and the border thereof ] i.e. The shore or fea coast, with all Cities and villages belonging unto it. V. 55. Maon | Scituate in the Southerne part of Canaan, tending towards the East, neer the utmost coast of the dead tenoing towards the East, here the union to the dead feastrom which City the wildernesse adjoyning had its name, in which David hid himself from Saul, x Sam. 32, 25, Ziph] Which City also gave its name to the mountain ad-joyning, which was neer the hill Hachilab, where David hid to it, fell to Benjamins lot, chap. 18.21.

himfelf, being pursued by Saul, 1 Sam, 26.1.
V. 61. In the wildernesse] After the enumeration of those Cities which were scituate in the more fruitfull and usefull lot, but were afterwards added to the Tribe of Ephraim, beplaces of the country, he now mentioneth those which were cause their portion, which is here described, was in respect of feated in the wasts and deferts, which were so barren that their numerous multitude too streight for them, as they comthey were not for tillage, but onely usefull for the feeding of plain in the next chapter.

V. 62. and the city of falt ] So called from the abundance of falt-pits which were in that place.

Scripture, it is faid, that Jebus did belong to the Benjamites | gain they were content to permit these cursed canalites, to as their inheritance, and the same that is here said of Judah, harbour and live amongst them, and therein directly rebelled is spoken of the Benjamites namely, that the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites, but suffered them to Deut. 7.2. Judg. 1.20 It might indeed feem a work of great jamin did not divie our the Jebnítes, but fuffired them to what Armong them, Judg. 1. 2. 1. whence this quellion articht, to which Tribe Jebns belonged, Jecing by this place and divers.

to the control of the Jebns belonged, Jecing by this place and diversible to the control of the place of the longed to the one Tribe, and part to the other, and that it was promitication flowered, what part of it belonged to the one Tribe, and part to the other, and that it was promitication flowered, and that it was promitication from the control of the portion of Judah, and the tower of Sion fomewhat remove from it , with lome of the South parts adjacent belonged to Benjamin; and therefore it is imputed as a great faulthat either for floth, or cowardize, or diffidence and diffidence and the first of the properties of the properties of this powerful affidinance, unto whole Omnipotency belonged to Benjamin; and therefore it is imputed as a great faulthat either for floth, or cowardize, or diffidence and discovered promitical forms the properties of this powerful affidinance, unto whole Omnipotency belonged to Benjamin; and therefore it is imputed as a great faulthat either for floth, or cowardize, or diffidence and diffidence and diffidence and discovered the promitical forms to the difficulty of the properties of the propertie Hauffald Charles for Ioung or Cowardize, or admances and of the first line Gods power and promise, in respect of the firength of their fortifications, they did not joyn together to drive them out, but inferred them fill to live amongst them. Which had daughter, Solomons with, 1 King 9, 10. Where again we have they done and not been wanting to themselves, in neglecting Gods absolute commands, they might have had assurance of good luccesse in their, enterprize, notwithstanding the great the Apochriphal, history, Eldras 14, 22 Seeing these Canaanites through of all their enterprize, but failing in their duty, God were wholly rooted out in Solomous dayes, who lived many would not cast them out before them, but suffered them to re- yeers before Ezuas time. main, to be scourges in their sides, and pricks in their eies, Judg 2.20, 21.

umothis day] i.e. In which this History was written, for though a part of it was taken by Judah, Judg. 1.8. yet it was not wholly conquered till Davids time, 2 Sam. 5. 6. and then it was totally subdued; which is an evidence (by the way) that this hiftory was not written by Ezra, as some have conceived, feeing he lived many years after David, but by some other that lived between Davids dayes and his, who was the writer of this flory.

CHAP. XVI.

Verl. 1. And the lot of the children of Fofebol i.e. Of Ephra-A him, and the half Tribe of Manaileh. Fell from Fordan by Ferichol Judahs inheritance fell on the South of Canaan, and Josephs on the North by a speciall pro-vidence, that these Tribes being the strongest and most valiant of all the reft, might, as a ftrong guard, defend the whole Kingdome on both fides from all invafions of torraign ene-

unto the waters of feriche on the cast | Where first the borders of Josephs inheritance, are described from the East to the West. And here by the waters of Jericho, are meant those waters that flowed from Elifhaes fountain, the bitrerneffe whereof he cured by casting falt into it; and is scituate on the North-east side of Jericho, on the bottome of an hill, which extendeth to Beth-el, and watereth all those fields, by trenches and fluces made into them, 2 King, 2.21.

V. 2. Bab el Where Jacob in his journey flept, and faw, that divine vision, Gen. 28.19. and is twelve miles diffant from Tern (alem.

to Luz] Nor that spoken of, Gen. 28.19. but that mentioned Judg. 1.26.

Archi] The place from whence Hushai came, Davids Counseller, 2 Sam. 16.16.

Attaroib] Eusebius affirmeth, that there were two Cities of this name, one neer Rama, the other a town four miles diftant from Samaria.

V. 4. Manasseb] To wit, half that Tribe which had not its inheritance beyond Jordan, but in the land of Canaan.

took their inheritance] Namely, which fell unto them by common lor, that is, either of them respectively, as their severall inheritances fell unto them by their feverall lots. Or, as others think, having but one lot common to them both, they afterwads divided their inheritances one with another, by a speciall was atvact their internances one with another, by a special and private lot among themfelves.

V. 5. And the border] i.e. The Eafterne bounds of Ephraims inheritance, reached from Ataroth in the Southerne border, to Bethoron on the North fide.

V. 7. and came to Jerisho] i.e. To some of the territories thereof; for the Citie Jerisho it self, and some parts adjoyning

V. 9. And the seperate cities Namely, which did lie within the bounds of the Tribe of Manaffeh, in the first division by

V. 10. And they drave not out the Canaanites ]i e. They did not quite expell them, as God had commanded, but onely made of lair pits which were in that pace.

V. 63. If for the felolities, the imbilitants of ferifalm, the the felolities to imbilitant of ferifalm, the the felolities the imbilitant of felolities of f them to become tributaries unto them ; wherein as they grieanother evidence that Ezra was not the Author of this Story, as fome conceive, being deluded by that counterfeit Efdras in

CHAP. XVII.

He first born of Hoseph] Gen. 41. 12. & 46.20, though by God: decree and Jucobs blessing Ephraim was preferred for Machir] Who was the only fon of Manaffeh, from whom all that tribe defeended Gen. 52. 23. whereof it is, that the company of Machir. Judg. whole tribe of Manasseh beareth the name of Machin, Judg.

[R Coor neutre and Joseph Defore him Gen. 48.14,19.

the first born of Manaffeb] In the Scriptures an only fon is called fometimes the first born, though no other is born after him that is not relatively, but fimply, because he first openeth the nough for our habitation and all the Canasanites th.

though the had no other fons besides him, Mar.1.25.

because he was a man of war] i.e. Therefore he had Gilead and Bafhan allotted unto bim, that is, half of those Countries (for the other half behalf belonged to the Tribe of Reuben. See chap. 13. 25, & Deut. 3. 12. 13.) and so a double portion was due unto him, because he had not only right unto it, as being the first born, Deut. 21. 11, but also because he had conquered it by his fword, Numb. 32.39.49.

V. 2. the reft of the children To wit 'shole who hadno portion on the other fide in the land of Canaan.

by their families ] i.e. The heads of their families, descending from them and bearing their name.

V. 3. But Zelophebai] This flory is more fully related, Numb. 26.33. & 27.1. & 36.2,3. See the Annot, there.
V. 5. And there fell portions to Manafeh ] That is, fix of them to the fix fons, mentioned ver. 2. one of which was Hepher, whose fift part was by Gods command divided amonest

the five daughters of Zelophehad, the grand-children of He the nye daughters of Lecopressay, the grant that the of He-pher, which is all make up the number of ten portions. V. 6. the daughters of Manafield | i.e. Which lineally de-feended from him, but were the daughters of Zelophehad.

V. 9. among the cities of Manaffeh] i.e. The Cities and it felf, though it were on the border of Manaffeh, yet it belonged to the Tribe of Ephraim.

V. 10. toward the [ex] To wit, the Syrian fea.

V. 12. the children of Manaffeb could not drive ] This is to be referred to the times after Joshua's death, as we may see, Judg. 1.27.28. where the fame thing is related. And as I have formerly shewed, the cause why they could not drive them out, was either their cowardize, that they durst not, or their floth because they would not attempt it, or else their rebellion and sinfull disobedience against God, and their want of faith, and diffidence in his promites and power, which moved him in his just displeasure, to professe that he would not drive them out before them, Judg. 2.3. 21. See chap. 16.10.

but the Canaanites would dwell ] i.e. Refolving to dwell fill in their own Cities, they flood upon their own ftrength and defence, and kept them from entring. V. 13. they put the canaanites to tribute] See annotat. on chap. 16.10. V. 14. And the children of Fofeth] ie. Both the two tribes of Ephraim and Joseph, as appeareth vers. 15. 16. 17. Bake unto Joshua Namely, after their inheritance was fallen unto them by Lot, and they were now come to fee and take possession of it; and then perceiving that the bounds and limits of it were too ftreight for their numerous tribes, they make this complaint unto him.

give me but one lot ] They had 2 lots or portions; but their meaning is, that they were fo finall, that they were fcarce fufficient for one of their tribes to inherit, in regard of their multitude, not that Joshua and the rest of the dividers had given unto them too little a circuite of land for them to inhabite, but because the hilly and mountainous places were unfit for habitation, in regard that they were overgrown with woods; and partly because the champion and Plains were inhabited by the Canaanites, who were a warlike people, and had the advantage of their iron chariots.

feeing I em a great people] For in their last numbring these two tribes, were eighty five thousand and two hundred strong,

Numb. 26.34.37. torteth the strength of their argument aginst themselves, namely, that if they were fo numerous, then they had strength sufficient to enlarge their borders, by driving out their enemies, both out of those mountainous places, and out of the champions and Plaines which were allotted unto them for their inheritance; and though the mountaines abounded with wood, and therefore were not arable or habitable, yet having men enough to set upon the work, they might easily cut down those woods, and make those places fit for their use.

in the land of the Perizzites] Who were a favage and wild people, living far from cities, in woods and mountaines, and much given to spoyl and prey.

and of the gyants ] Who dwelt in caves and dens, and like barbarous people lived upon fpoyl and rapine; thefe Joshua perswades the children of Joseph to conquer and expell, that they might inhabit in their country.

mount Ephraim \ So called by anticipation.

and all the Canaanites that dwel in the lands of the valleys have chariots of iron | i. c. Have books like fithes on either fide of the chariot, fallned in their axle-trees, which rufning fuddenly into an army, will cut and (as it were) mowe down all that fland in their way, and two other books bending towards the earth, which did tear those that fell down under them; and therefore having this advantage, they can hardly be vanquished and expelled, Judg 1. 19. & 4 3. Others, by hill, under-fland mount Ephraim, now in their possession, and that the valleys of the Canaanites were in the way to the mountainous woods, unto which they could have no accesse to cut them down and conquer the Perizzites, but by paffing through the valleys where these Canaanites dwelt, that had this advantage of these iron chariots.

V. 17. Thou [halt not have one lot onely] i.e. feeing you are a people that excell in number and firength, ye have no need to complain of having but one lot, and a place too narrow and ftreight for your babitation, for if it be not your own default through floth, cowardize, or diffidence in Gods power and promifes, you may inlarge it when you please. And therefore as there is great reason, that you being a great and numerous people, should have a portion large enough for you to inhabite; fo upon the fame ground, there is as great reason that and fruitfull; and the out goings of it, that is, all the champion Country and Valleyes adjacent unto them shall be thine also; feeing if thou doeft attempt it, God will furely inable thee to drive out the Canaanites, notwithstanding all their ftrength, and the advantage which they have of their iron Chariots, he being almighty and al-fufficient to make good all his promiles, if by faith and affiance thou relyeft upon him.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verf. 1. A Sembled together at Shilob ]i.e. Withdrew them a Celves from their flationary camp at Gilgal, which was in the Confines of the Country, and affembled at Shiloh , which is a City in the Tribe of Ephraim, unto which place they removed the Tabernacle no doubt by Gods speciall appointment, Deut. 12.5. partly out of their respect unto Joshua their ment, Deut. 12-5, partly out of their respect unto Johna their Generall, who was an Ephramite, even as afterwards for the like cause it was removed to Nob (which was therefore (as it is very probable) called the City of the Priests, because they resided there to officiate in the Tabernacle, 1 Sam. 21. 19.) in the tribe of Benjamin, which was in honour of Saul their King who was a Benjamite, and after that to Jerusalem, out of the same respect to David who was of that Tribe of Judah; and partly, that the people might with more conveniency frequent the Tahernacle, the place of Gods publick worthip, as being more neer the heart of the Country then Gilgal, which was feated in the outmost border. And in this place it continued three hundred and fixty years, till for the fins of Ifrael and the Inhabitants there, it was removed, Jer. 7.12.

and the land was subdued before them ] t.e. All that part of the Country which lay neer unto that place. So that they had no impediment to hinder them from proceeding in the divi-fion of that part of Canaan which remained fill undivi-

V. 2. And there remained among the children of Ifrael seven Tribes] For in the division which was begun at Gilgal, onely Judah, Ephraim, and half the Tribe of Manasteh had by lot received their inheritances, and not the feven Tribes that remai-V. 15. If then be a great people] Joshua acknowledgeth ned there; seeing the division at that time proceeded no fur-what they said, namely, that they were a great people; but re-ther, yea was for a long time after intermitted and laid aside, as Joshua plainly implyeth in the next verse; but upon what reason this delay was made it is not evident; only the causes are gueffed at by probable conjectures : As that it was because the people were discontented with the first beginnings of the division, as thinking it partiall, feeing a greater and more fruitfull portion was allotted to Judah then was likely to fall unto any of the rest that remained. Or else because they descreed the division, till they might have a more exact furvey and discoverie of the land, then they could yet have, by reason that a verie of the land, then they could yet have, by reason that a verie of the land undivided was slill in the possession of the enemies, that were not yet cast out. But, as I conceive to be most probable, because they were tyred with a long war and abounded with spoyle, and therefore being weary and wanting nothing, they gave themselves to rest and ease; and wallowing in pleasure and delight, they cared not to have their inheritance allotted to them, left hereby they should be put upon the pains and perill of a new war, which they should be necessitated mount Epimani 3 courants by anotopations.
V. 1.6. The bill k must emply for my 1 q.d. Suppole we should drive them outsyet the bill, that is, these mountainous places being added to all their we produce the mountainous places being added to all their we now possible, will not be large ellipse them. The product in the next works we will be the product the product of the product o to undertake for the getting of it out of the hands of their eneChap. xviii. V. 3. How long stepon flac(2) 4.4. Why do you through floth englest to enter into your inheritances, feing there is no let on Gods part, who as he hath freely given it, to be spower-let on Gods part, who as he hath freely given it, to be spower-let on Gods part, who as he hath freely given it, to be spower-let on Gods approbation of their action, and his provident care full and al-lufficient to enter you into the possibility of the watching over them, seeing this their expedition was not onely thole also whom he hath appointed to divide it unto you by lot, are ready to performe their duty in that behalf. And well might he reprove them for flacknesse, if that be true which expositors conceive to wit, that the first division begun in Gilgal was put off feven years, before they undertook to finift it at Shiloh, for fo the time was as long in the dividing of the land, as it was in Conquering.

V. 4. Give out from among you He doth not himself choose them, but putteth it upon the people to make their own choice, shat he might avoid al suspition of partiality, and preserve them from murmuring against their proceedings and reports, seeing the whole businesse was transacted by those in whom they reposed most confidence.

three men Which words (as some think) have an emphasis, as though he should say, such men as are of masculine courage and vigour; it being a great work which they were to undertake, and full of danger, feeing they were to make this furvey. not onely in such parts of the country as were already subdued. but also in those which were still in the possession of their ene-

For each tribe ] To wit, that the whole bufineffe might be carried on with all indifferencie, and none might have cause to complain of any partiall dealing.

and go through the land ] i.e. Through all and every part of it, whether already conquered, or which is not as yet conque-

and describe it ] To wit, what is the largenesse of every seve rall region and province, and what, and how many are the cities towns and villages in every of them; that fo having a catalogue, or, (as it were) a map of them, they might the better know how afterward juffly to divide them among the feven tribes, according as their feverall, inheritances should by lot fall unto them; and might give equal fhares to every tribe, as they were intension might get expension to every times any minimumber, few or many.

V. # #dadb floid addie in their coaff i #.e.In this new and feeond division of the remainder of the land among the fever nribes, Judah and the house of Joseph shall full retain their inheritances, as they did formerly by lot fall unto them, to wit, the one in the South, the other in the North part of Canaan | West. but not in respect of the circuit and largenesse of their portion ; for according to that first and rude draught, Judahs part was to large, that Simeons inheritance was taken out of it, as was to large, that a mucous innertrance was taken out of it, as we fee chap, 19,9. And fo Jacobs prophecie, in his bleffing of this tribe was verified, that the Simeonites should be divided and scattered in Hrael, Gen. 49, 7.

in their coasts of the North j. i.e. Not in relation to the whole land of Canaan, but to the tribe of Judah onely, V. 6. ye shall therefore describe] i.e. Ye shall take order that it shall be described by these surveyers which you choose, three men out of every tribe.

that I may east lots for you before the Lord our God ] i.e. The the furveyers a more religious care in the performance of their duty, and to move them to use therein all dilligence and faithfulnelle, without any partiallity or refrect of persons, seeing at their returne, they should be called to give an account of all which they had done, in the facred presence and sight of Almighty God.

V. 7. But the Levites See annotat. on chap. 13.14.
V. 8. And the menarofe i.e. With all speed, diligence and courage they undertook and fet upon this difficult and dangerous work, God making them fecure and confident under his protection, and fo fitting them for the work unto which he cal-that I may here cass loss ] i.e. That by cassing loss I may distribute unto every tribe their inheritance, being affished by those, who by Gods appointment are designed to this

V. 9. And the men went] i.e. Using (no doubt) the most prudentiall means they could devise to keep themsolves, when they were in their enemies country, from being discovered, though they placed their chief fafety in Gods protection, who had futucken their enemies with fuch fear and amazement, by his peoples many and miraculous victories, that they lurked in their cites and ftrong holds, little heeding what thefe furveyers did in the parts of the country neer unto them.

and described it by cities] i.e In their book or map, they fet down their severall regions with their limits, their cities, with their scituation and bounds, and the towns and villages belonging to them, with their number and names; leaving the ipeciall division of them among the seven tribes to be determined by lot, by the ministeric of Joshua, Eleazar, and the rest, before the taberpacle.

watching over them, feeing this their expedition was not onely dangerous, but alfo long and tedious, continuing for the space of feven moneths, as Jolephus relateth it.

according to their divisions] i.e. To each of the seven tribes their portion and inheritance.

V. 11. And the lot of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came. up] To wit, out of the urne or veifel into which it had been pur, namely, a double lot; out of one urne the name of Benjamin, and out of the other that portion of land that was allotted unto him. And here we may observe that Benjamin by a speciall providence had a double preheminence above the other fix tribes First, that he had the precedency before them. And fecondly and especially, in that his portion fell next unto the fons of Joseph, who were most neerly allyed unto him; as descending both of them from Rachel the beloved wife, and also on the other fide unto Judah, and so were leated in the richeft and fruitfulleft part of the land, and had in their inhetitance some part of Jerusalem the chief city, in a part whereof (though not in their portion) was the Temple built, the place of Gods holy habitation, according to Moles his prophecy, concerning this tribe, Deut. 33. 12. And of Benjamin, he faid, the beloved of the Lord shall dwell in safety by him, and the Lord shall cover him all the day long, and he shall dwell between his shoulders.

N. 12. And their borders on the North side Here first are described their North borders, trom the East unto the West; which did buttupon the South borders of the tribes of Joseph, and have been before described.

V. 13. from thence towards Luz] Where the description bendeth towards the South, leaving Luz on the right hand. Of which fee chap. 16. 2. which is Beth-el] And neer unto Ai and Bethaven, chap. 7.

Another Beth el was in the tribe of Benjamin.

2. Another between was in the true or prenjamin.

V. 14. Kritath-parin [5] So called by the firstlites, to exiting with the name of their idol god Bail.

V. 15. And the South guarter Here: and in the four vertes following, are deficibed the South borders of the Tribe of Benjamin, extending from the West to the East, which are the fame with the North borders of Judah, faving that they are described in a contrary order, from the East to the

V. 17. and went forth] To wit, from En-Shemes, towards Geliloth] Called also Gilgal, ch. 15.7. flone of Bohan ] See annot, on ch. 15.6. went down to Arabab ] Or, the Plain and Champion coun-

V. 19 North bay ] Or, the tongue of the falt Sea. See ch.

V. 18. and Febufi ] Or, the City of the Jebufites. Whence it is plain, that Jebus or Jerusalem belonged in part to the tribe of Benjamin; though it is tertain also that the Tribe of Tudah as well as of Benjaminhad a part and did inhabit it, And the reason is, because these two tribes were so neerly united tabernacle and the ark contained in it, the visible figures of both in a bond of neighbourhood, and also love and triendship, Gods presence; the which is added to work in the hearts of that they were linked together, as if they had been but one Tribe, and fo enjoyed one with another a community of habitation, and all other priviledges. And thus they continued to the laft, Benjamin still adhering to Judah, when all other Tribes feparated from it.

CHAP. XIX.

Vers. 1. V As within the inheritance of the shildren of fudah] i.e. The whole Tribe of Simeon had by Gods own appointment all their inheritance allowed unto them out of the inheritance formerly alloted unto the tribe of Judah, that Jacobs prophecie might be fulfilled in them, that they should be scattered among the other inbes, Gen. 49. 7. Now the immediate cause or reason of this is expressed, v.9.

V. 2. And they had in their inheritance | The bounds of Simeons portion are not dilineated, as they of the other Tribes were, because being in Judah's lot, they were comprehended within their border and limits which were formerly described; but only certain Cities and Townes that were in their inheritance are named. Of which particularly to speak, it is not necessary, as being a work of more difficulty then of use and

Beer-fheba, or fheba | For it was called by both these names; though but one City, and it fignifieth feven, or a well of feven waters, and plenty of waters, or, the well of the oath; So called upon the occasion of the Covenant made between Abraham and Abimelech, and confirmed by oath, Gen. 21.31,32. Now that both these names do signifie but one and the same City, hereby it appeareth, in that if they had been two, there should have been here fourteen cives inflead of thirteen, ver.6. And befides in a Chro.4.28, where this is related and repeated, try about it was a fruitfull foyl, which falling by lot to After. Sheha is not mentioned.

V. 3. and Balab] Which city is called Bilhah; and Azem, Exemu and Eltolad, Tolad; and Bethul, Bethuel; 1 Chron. 4 29,30. And fuch alterations in names, are frequent in the ferotures and other authors, caused by length of time and other accidents.

V. R. to Baalath-Beer, Ramath | Which two names do. as

V. 8. to Basisti-Deer, Ramain White two traines, us, as fome think, fignific one and the fame city. V. 9. Out of the portion See annot on vert, t. for the part of the children of Judah was too much i.e. Either comparatively, in respect of other tribes, who upon a second furvey were found to have far leffe portions left them for their inheritance then this of Judah; or fimply too much for them, that is, much more then they needed, or could well be imployed for their commedicus habitation, in respect of the number of their tribe, and the largeneffe of the country allotted unto them. And therefore by Gods wife providence, an inheritance for Simeon, as being in number the fewest and least of all the other tribes, was allotted unto them, for the good of them both, that so by their united strength they might guard and defend the country, which was the frontier part of Canaan on the South, against the inroades of forraign enemies, and against the rage and violence of wild beasts, with which it was much infested, by reason of the wildernesse adjoyning unwas must interee, by reason to the winterine assyring in-goit; and also that they might (having a fufficient number of inhabitants) the better, improve their land to the best advan-tage, by tillage and husbandry. V: 10. And the third to same up for the children of Zebulun]

Namely, according to the prophericall predictions of Jacob; and Moles, that their inheritance should be scituate upon the fea coaff.

was unto Sarid] Or hard upon Sarid, where their border begun; now the mount Carmel did lie like a promontory upon the lea coast, where Sarid was placed, which was the South well border of Zebuluns inheritance.

V. 12. of Chifloth-Tabor] This mount Tabor was an high mountain (cituate in the lower Galilee, at the bottome whereof did run the river Kilon, which fawed to Genezareth, and (as some think) was that high mountain, upon which Christ Was transfigured, Mark. 9. 2.

V. 13 Gistab Hepher] Which was the birth place of Jonah.

2 King, 14. 25.

V. 15. and Bethlebem ] Not that in the tribe of Judah, where Christ was borne, but another of that name, in the tribe of Zebulun.

or zeonum.

protive cities with their willages ] i.e. Twelve of them onely belonged to the tribe of Zebulan; for those above that number which are here mentioned, standing upon the frontiers, did belong to other tribes, or elle some of them were the chiefest of those villages here mentioned, which belonged to their

.V. 18. their border was towards Ifrael] Scituate neer unto mount Gilboa, where Saul and all Ifrael had that great defeat, 1 Sam. 31. A place as pleafant and fruitfull as any part of Canaan, which fell for an inheritance to the tribe of Islachar, according to Jacobs and Moles his prophelies, Gen. 49.14

Deut. 33. 18, 19.
and Shunem] Where the Shunamite lived, that so curreously emercained Elisha, and where Abishag Davids virgin-wife and nurie was borne.

V. 21. Engannim] There was another city of this name in the tribe of Judah and another neer Jordan. Yor in divers tribes there were cities of the same name, and were onely differenced by the feverall tribes in which they were, one from another, as Beth-Shemes, Mifpah, &c.

V. 24. And the fift lot came out for the tribe of Alber ] Nothing can be more casuall then lots, yet we may observe here that they were fingularly guided by Gods providence, feeing all things foretold by Jacob, above three hundred and fiftie years past, come here to passe according to his prediction, both in respect of the tribes, and the nature of the places and parts of the country which by lot did fall unto them respectively for their inheritances. For first, the sons of Jacob, which he had by his wives, did receive their inheritances by lot; and among them, first Judah the Law-giver, from whom Christ descen-ded, then the sons of Joseph, who had the double portion, and of Benjamin, both descended from beloved Rachel; then the other five loss of Leah, and after them the fons of the Handmaids in their order. And because the tribe of Gad, the first horne of Zilpah, Leahs hand maid, had already received upon speciall fair his inheritance on the other side of Jordan; the next loccame out for Afher her fecond fon; and laftly, for the two fons of Bilhah, Rachels hand-maid; Dan and Naphtali.

V. 16. And resched to Carnel Westward] i.e. To that part of the mount Carnel, which like a promountry, reaches out

Jacobs propheticall blefting was therein verified, Gen. 49. 20.

Out of Asher bis bread shall be fat, and he shall yelld royall dain-Ifa. 33. 9.8t 35.2. So Moles prophesie was likewife fotfilled, Deut. 33. 14.
V. 27. and goeth to Cabul] Some think it not to be the name of a city, but of a region or country, containing in it twenty cities which Solomon gave to Hiram, 1 King 9 11. and the rather, because he reckoneth here but two and twenty cities, whereas if this were one of the number there should be three and twenty. But it feemeth that this Cabul was not that: for that Cabul was fo first named by Hiram on that occaffon, because it was displeasing and dirty, or therefore di-fipleasing because dirty. Besides that Cabul was not a part of the land of promise (as this here spoken of was) but some place adjoyning to it, for otherwise it had been unlawfull for Solomon to allenate it by giving it to a stranger.

V. 28. And Hebron ] not that in Iucah, but in this tribe of and Kenab] this is the great Kanah lying not fare from Sidon, in Galilee of the Gentiles. The lefter Kanah wes in Zebulons inheritance in the lower Galilee, where Christ wrought his first miracle in turning water into wine. Joh. 2, 1, and where also he cured the son of a certaine noble man who was ficke at Capernaum.

After, which in the original are differenced by divers letters, this with Aijn, that with Cheth.

unto great Zidon] Not so called because there was a lesse, but in relptet of its fame and excellency. See annot, on ch. 17, 8. Now this Zidon was not a part of Canaan, but only bounded it on the North part from the cast unto the west, but yet was given to the tribe of Afher, as appeareth, Judg. 1,

V. 29. and to the firong City Tyre] Which was a Mart city, famous through out the world; and to fortified both by nature and art, that the thought her felf invincible. This bordered on the tribe of Afher to the west, but was not allotted to its inheritance, that we any where read of. Though others think that it belonged to the tribe of Affier by Gods gift, as divers other Countries neer Canaan, but could never be gotten out of the heathens poffession, no not in the time of David and Solomon, 2 Sam. 5. 11. 1 King. 4. 1. as a just punish-ment of Israels sinne, because they did not at first endeavour to cast them out according as God had commanded, being dis-couraged (as it seemeth) by the strength of the City; which as its name Tfor fignifieth .i. a rock, fo it was built upon a rock, and environed with rocks, and the Sea round about.

V. 33. and theout goings thereof were at fordau. The east border of the tribe of Naphthali beginning at Helph went along by the bankes of Jordan, in a large extent as far as the long by the bankes of Jordan, in a large extent as far as the lake of Genezareth, wherein Jacobs prophefic was fulfilled, Gen. 49. 21. Rephtali is an binde let loofe, giving plessfan words; whereby is lignified that the tribe of Naphtali, thould inherita slade and fruitful country, with lweet liberty and freedome; like an Hinde which being out of the danger of toyles and nets, wherewith huntimen in pursuit of their game befet woods and forrelts, do fecurely feed in pleafant pastures, skipping and playing as they are feeding : So the tribe of Naphtali should securely enjoy all these delights, and the rather becaufe being ingenu us in their carriage, they should gain the content by their faire language and pleasing words. And their portion thus falling in a fruitfull foile, Moles prophesie was allo verified, Deur. 33.23.

V. 35. And the fenced cities are Ziddim, &c.] Here are numbred up certain cities dispersed here and there in the tribe of Naphtali, which are not (many of them) elsewhere mentioned in the Scriptures.

Hammath A city scituate in the utmost North-end of Canaan, from whence the length of the land is fometimes described to extend from the entrance of Hamath, to the river of the great Tiberias, which gave its name to the Sea of Galilee.

Ægypt, 1 King. 8. 65. Numb. 13.21.
Cinnereib] Afterwards called Genefareth, and by Herod

V. 41. And the Coast of their inheritance was Zorah ] We shall find that some of these Cities here given to Dan, were first in the number of those which were given to Judah, but all their portion in that first division at Gilgal was not fetled upon them for perpetuall inheritance, but that for the prefent it might be under their protection against the incursions of their common enemies ; and therefore upon the fecond and more exact furvey their portion proving much too large (as bath been faid) not only Simeons inheritance was wholly taken out of it, but for the same reasons before alleadged upon verl. 5, of this Chapter, divers Cities and places belonging to Judah were by this second lot at Shiloe, taken out of that tribe, and given to the tribe of Dan.

Zorub ] The place where afterwards Sampson was borne. into the midland lea. Now this mount Carmel and the counChap. xx. burying place of Manach his father. Judg 16 31.

> daughters of the Philiftims. V. 47. West out too little for them I not because that the inheritance allotted unto them was not large enough if they might have injoyed it, but because for their great and grei-vous sances, and especially their abominable Idolatry, for which they are branded above the other tribes; God luffered their enemies to prevail against them, and to drive them out of the champion country which was the chief part of their out or the committee country which was the enter part of their inheritance, into the mountains, Judg 1, 344 went up to fight against Lessen, and took it? This hapned after Joshua's death, as apper reth, Judg 1.8. where this story is related, and was in the time of the sliraclites Anarchis, verf.r. And as some think, between the death of Joshua verfix. And as some tinns, perween the usan of journal and the time when Othiniel was Judge; whence it appeareth that this Book was not written by Johna, unleffe we will fay that fome particular related in it were afterwards inferted by fome holy man, guided by the fame spirit, that lived in after times. And it is related in this place to reremove a doubt, Namely, how Dan came to inhabite in thefe Northern parts of the land, when as the inheritance which by lot fell unto them was Southerly, neer the tribe of Judah, and this was because, by the Amorites, or Philistims, they were driven out of their inheritance, and were fain to plant themfelves where they could find any room, and that was Leshem, which was in the lot of Naphtali, but at this time under the protection of the Zidonians; though living in such a distance from them, that they were not able to keep them from such a and called Leshem Dan ] To witt, after the name of their Patriarch Dan. This city was scituate at the bottome of mount Lebanon, in the uttermost Nothern border of the land, opposite to Beersheba in the Southern borders, and afterwards called

V. 49. children of Ifrael gave inheritance to folhua] Which was an evidence of their love, in their willing condefeending to his request; and of Joshua's modestie and humility, in that he was pleafed to acknowledge it the peoples gift, whereas it was onely their free affent to the word of the Lord delivered by Mofes, namely, that Joshua and Caleb, for their faithfull service in efpying the land, and giving a true tellimony, contrary to that of all the other spies, should have such parts of the land, when it was conquered, as they defired.

V. 50. even Timmath-Serah in mount Ephraim] Called Timnath Heres, Judg. 2.9. where Joshua was afterwards buried, Judg. 24. 30. In which this most noble Generall may be an example unto all that should succeed him of his rank and condition in all ages, of humility, modestie and temperance; in that, after all his famous exploits in war and peace, for which he might justly have challenged the chief honours and preferments of that conquered kingdome, in which he had been the chief actor and influment; he was fo far from all ambition and covetuouineffe, that he is content with a fmall portion of land in his own tribe, and that not the richest and fruitfullest, but in a mountainous country, fuch as others enjoyed amongst whom he dwelt, and not in a stately pallace and royall citie, adorned with Sumptuous buildings, but in an old ruinous one, which he was faine to build before he could inhabit it. And this mean preferment he did not eagerly and hastily desire, ( much lesse use violence to pull it from others) but was content to be last ferved, not fo much as defiring to have this place of habitation allotted unto him, before the land was divided among the tribes, and every one of them had their lot and inheri-

V. 51. Thefe are the inheritances | This verfe is the conclusion of all which bath been faid concerning the distribution of the land of Canaan, from the fourteenth Chapter hither-

CHAP. XX.

of God by Urim and Thummim.

V. 2. Appoint out for you cities of refuge ] Which might be places of fanctuary, whereunto those that had killed any unwillingly at the next kinfmen of him that was flain, who were the purfuers venge. of bloud, till their cause being heard and known, and their in-nocency appearing, they might be acquitted and freed from danger. And in this case the law provided for the preservation of the innocent, who had not fled the bloud of their neigh-nying place of Manach his father. Judg 16 31. V. 43. Timmathah] where Sampson tooke a wise of the extreamity of grief for the losse of his dear, and beloved kintman, fall upon and flay him in his furie, looking onely upon his own loffe, and not upon his innecency who had brought it upon him against will, nor at the hand of God executing his righteous judgements, though by an unknowing and unwilling influment, whereby the land would have been defiled with bloud, and could not have been cleanfed but by the bloud of him who had in his rage unjustly shed it.

whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses | ic. By his ministery, whom I used as my mouth to reveale my will unto you, Exodus 21.13. Numb. 35.6,11, 14, 15. &c. Deut.

19. 2, 3.

V. 3. unawares and unwillingly] For no place might fe-4. 1 King. 2.31.34 from the avenger of bloud] i.e. From the kindred of the party flain, to whom the executing of just revenge be-

may flee thither] i.e. To that citie of refuge which is next unto the place where the party was flain, or unto that whereunto he may flee with most safetie and convenien-

V. 4. Shall fland at the entring of the gate] Which was usually the place appointed in those dayes for judicature, as being most accessible for all commers, citie and country, forraigners and inhabitants, and most remote and quiet from the bufineffe of the Citie, neither interrupting their trading and commerce, nor yet in the way to be interrupted and (hall declare his cause in the eares of the Elders] i.e. The manner of his fact, and what moved him to flee thither, in the presence and hearing of the Magistrates, that so they might judge whether or no he were fit to be received under their protection, till his cause might be brought to a just triall between his accusers, the witnesses, and himself the defen-

they shall take him into the city] To wit, if at this first hearing it doth probably appear that he is not guilty of murther. See Numb. 35. 22,23. Deut. 19. 4,5. and give him a place that he may dwell among them] Name-

y, both for his own fecurity, and for his fake also that doth pursue him , that the fight of the flayer may not renew his griefe, and exasperate him to a desire of revenge, and that he might have some time to difgest his forrow, and to bring his heart to a just moderation in feeking revenge. V. 5. a venger of blood ] So called, because by vindicating his blood that is flain out of his band that killed him, in taking away his life, for his, he doth in a fort free him from his unjust oppression, and set him as liberty.

unjutt oppretium, and ter mm at merty.

because be more! Hete, because he killed him.

V. c. Andre findlavell in this [this] To wit, injoying his life and liberty, ut his scade were tryed, year though that afterwards he thould be found guilty of murther. For Gode law required that the murtherer should dye, yet by no other meanes than by the hand of the Magistrate in a legall proceeding; or by one of his own blood, that in a fort was thed in his, and hereby provoked in his just anger to take nmill be stand before the Congregation ] i. e. Either that in the City of refuge when the accusers and witnesses are come thither to profecute the cause against him; or else the City next unto the place where the fact was done; that if he were found guilty, the law might be exceuted, or being acquitted and cleared, he might be returned to the City of refuge whence he came, where he was to live as an exile from his own house and Country; and that for these causes : First, that own house and Country, and that for their causes: First, bas by this punishment God night their who who rolibe and excera-ble the fin of murther is in his fight, feeing he would not let the least paperance of it go unpminted. Secondly, because these calculal astract for the most partious dwith some head-leastiffs, carelesselfest, and want of due providence; for which (shough the offendors be freed from expiral punishment, yet) Verl. 1. The Lord alle flate unto follows:

The Lord all flate unto follows:

The Lord all flate unto follows:

The Lord alle flate unto follows:

The Lord alle flate unto follows:

The Lord laftly, for the preventing of a further milchief, when the avenger of blood hath hereby fome satisfaction, and is not by the fight of the party who hath slain his dear kinsman. unawares, by fome casualty, might live in safety from the rage of incensed against him, his heart boyling with desire of re-untill the death of the bigh Priest Because (as some think) the whole Church and Common-wealth, fustaining in his death a greater and more publique loffe, who being in greater for the people and authority, ought to be most dear to the people. bour out of any maliciouline of will, but mercaulinally, all private griefs were to be moderated, and to give way the Lord acting by them as bare inftruments in his hand without their purpose and intention; left the next of kin to him it, that the death of the high Priest was berein a type of our onely high Priest Jesus Christ, who by his precious death | were feated , and where they had made their second division hash wrought a perfect reconciliation between God and us, of the land among the nine tribes and an half-and hash procured the full pardon of all our fins, and perfect The Lard commanded by the hand ] i.e. I liberty from the purfuing wrath of God, and all the enemies of our fatvation. Joh. 8.36.

other shall be in the dates] Which cannot be understood of vesamente dayes when the castle had been heard, the party clear of Godscommand. Neither was it onely a generall control and remitted to the citie of refige. For otherwise the bigh Prield dying between the time of the fact, and hearing of left to the oleafure of the manufacture and lands, and the reft because the start clear desired. engal Priett dying netween the time of the rate, and searing of the case, the purey cleared thould not have lived at all in the citie of religg, but the high Prieté being dead, in whole time the deed was done, he enight have immediately returned to his own home.

V. 7. And they appaired Kedefb in Galilee, &c. ] The plaes appointed for cities of refuge belonged to the Levies, that by the dignize of their calling, all things belonging to this prefeut bufinelle might be carried on with more authorities prefeut bufinelle might be carried on with more authorities. rity, the Levites and Priests being best acquainted with the lawes of God, and therfore most able to judge in these And because they were belt able to suppresse all outrages. and infolencies in those who were transported with palli-on, and to instruct both the flayers, and those that pursued them, in their duties andcarriage towards one another.

ad them, in their duties and arrings to wards one another, is most Neghetal? Their cities were climate upon high mountaines or great Plaines, that being confpicuous they might the more easily be discovered, by those who had octation to flow unon them, and so not indengered by their inquiring the way unto them, if at least the avengers of blead did botly

Pursue them.

In the mountain of Judah] That is, in the mountainous country belonging to Judah, Luk. 1.39.65.

V. 8. And on the other fide forders] There were as many cities appointed for refuge in the two tribes and an half bryond Jordan, as for the nine tribes and an halfe on the other fide in Canaan; because though they were not of fo great a circuit, being much narrower in bredth, yet or 10 great acticult, being much narrower in breads, yet they extended as far in length, and therefore required as much time and labour to get unto them. And they were fo ordered and appointed by Gods especiall providence that they flood in all parts of the land, and for the most part in a like distance one from another; as for example, He-bron in the Southerne parts, Kades in the North, and Sioron in the middle way between them, that for the flayers night have the more conveniencie, and better opportunity to flee unto fome one of them, in what part foever of the land they inhabited.

V. 9. and the stranger] i.e. Either the Profesite living among them, and converted to their religion; or generally all strangers, who upon the occasion of trafick or otherwise did come among them; feeing justice is to be administred to all men without respect of persons.

until he flood before the congregation] i.e. Till his cause were heard in a legall and judicious manner before the Magiltrates and Judges, in the great aliembly of the people, and the found and pronounced guiltleffe.

CHAP. XXI.

Verla. He beads of the fathers of the Levites] i.e. The chief Elders among the families of the Levites, Chron. 6. 45, 62, 63. For Levi the third fonne of Jacob and Leah, had three fonnes, Gerson, Kohath and Merari; Kobath had four, Amram, Izahar, Hebron and nerrari 3. Konzun naza tour, a muram, 1228725, rateoron and Uzziel, Amram begat Azoro, Moles and Miriami, Arron, befides Nadab and Abhu, had two fonnes, Elezzar and Itamura, who fucceeded their Father in the Priefilood, and of them came all the Priefls, both the bigh Priefls and of them came all the Frietts, both the bigh Pricts and all the reft of that order, by Gods own appointment and choice, Numb, 17 5, 8, who were called Aaronites, ed diffinguish them from all the reft of the Levites, Kohathites and Merarites; even as also they were dillinguished ; but here joyne together in a common fuite. And now they came, namely, as foon as they had made an end of divi-ding the land amongst the other tribes, neither was it to any purpole for them to come any fooner, because they were to have their cities and inheritances out of the feverall tribes and portions allotted unto them, which they could not have till their inheritances were fallen unto them. Neither could they put off this their filite any longer, but were to obtain it as from as the cities and lands were by lot fallen to all the tribes, before they had taken posififion of them; in regard of the great and unnecessary trouble which they should have been put to in making way to the Levites by their remove out of their cities and habitations.

V. 2. at Shileb ] Where now the tabernacle and ark

The Lord commanded by the band ] i.e. By the ministrie of Moles, using him as his mouth to declear his mind and will unto the people, according to their own fuite, Exod. 20, where they do not challenge their cities and lands from the peoples gift, but as of due belonging unto them by vertue text to the pleasure of the people, but the number of them is plainly expressed that they should be fourty eight, and the lands and subursts belonging to them, exactly meatured in their exert; besides all other meanes of their maintenance are precifely appointed, as being the portion which God had ap-propriated to amfelf, and allowed unto them as his Ministers who did him fervice; that so they might not stand to the will and devotion of the people, but acknowledge the Lord onely for their benefactor.

V. 3. The children of Ifract] i.e. They readily granted this their fuite, which came thus backed by Gods commandement, and gave unto the Levites these Cities and suburbs. which were in every part thoroughout the land; and as the Cities of refuge given to the Levites, were feated in a like diffance, that the flayers who needed them might more easily flee unto them; so it is most probable, that the rest of the cities belonging to them were so ordered, that they were here and there icituate in every part of the land, and in some fuch proportion of distance one from another, that the ecole with more eafe might refort unto them, for inftruction and direction in the wates of God.

V. 4. and the children of Aaron the preift ] Where the good providence of God is most observable, who so dispoled of the lots, that Aarons posteritie, whole service was most usefull and necessarie in the tabernacle and temple, had their cities and inheritance allotted unto them out of the portions of Juda, Simeon, and Benjamia, which were neerest to the place of their service, that they might were never to the place of the first the peo-ples better content and their owne greatre eafe.

Thirteen clittes I Which were not given unto them for prefent ule, feeing the preside at this time were so sew in number, that one part of any of these Cities was too large for their habitation, but as an inheritance for their politerity that should succeed them, when they were in-concerns that mount acceed mena when they were tar-created to a number futable to their cities. Where-by their errour is confused (in which I confelle my felle formerly was ) that their cities and lands were given the Levines onely for their prefers the and habitation, and not in respect of title and dominion, which still remained unso the tribe to which it was by lot first given. But here it appeareth that the Priests had their cities in their own title and right. though they had no present use of them for habitation. And bofides it appeareth, Levit. 25. 32, that the Levites had power to morgage their interest in their cities and houses, even to the year of Jubilee as men of other tribes had, although they had this priviledge above others, that they might redeem them at their pleature, and the reason is given, because the houses of the Chites of the Levites were their possession, among the children of

V. 5. The rest of the children of Kohath] Which were onely Levites and not Pricits or Agronites.

ten Cities ] Every tribe gave more or fewer Cities , according as their inheritance was great or little, Name V. 6. And the children of Ger[hon] The children of Kohath were preferred before the children of Gershon, though he were the elder brother, because the Aaronites and Priests descended of him, and the Gershonites before the Merarites, because these came of the youngest brother.

came or me youngest orother.

V. 7. with their fuburby] i. e. Gardens, arable land, and passures adjoyning to the Cities, which were one thousand Cubits from the wall of the City round about. Numb.

V. 9. and out of the Tribe of the children of Simeon Judah's and Simeons Cities are here joyned, because Simeons inheritance was taken out of Judah's, and did lye within it. See the 19. 1.

V. to which the children of Aaron being of the family of the Kobathus ] For Aaron came of Kobath and theme-fore the Priefficod remained in that family, though momen of them were Prieffic, but they onely that defoended from Aaron.

V. 11. And they gave them the City of Arbab ] Or, Kiriatharba. See ch. 14. 15. & 15:13.

mbich City is Hebron] The mountain of Hebron was given:

to Caleb, but not the city it felf, even as all the cities of the faverall tribes were generally given to them as their locelly bus: before they were fingularly divided amongst them accoraChap. xxi. ding to their leveral families, the cities which were to be the | But by little and little I will drive them out before thee, untill thou Levies portion were by lot taken out of them. And so here, the be increased, and in their is the land; and in the mean while did country about Hebron was given to Caleb, but not the city it but make use of their enemies to keep out the wild beafts, and felf. Yea, but not only the country and villages about Hebron, to husband and manure the land, which otherwife would have but Debir also neer unto it, which was likewise given unto the Levites, v. 15, and was a ftrong city, walled and fortified, and was given to Caleb, as well as the Country about it; or elfe why did he promife it as a reward of fo difficult a fervice, that be would give to him that should take it, his daughter to wife; they were fit to receive it, he would give them all that remain For why should be invite any to take it, if it were not his, and to ned, if at least by their sin and rebellion, their sloth or cowbe why mobile in three my whater is, it where the instant of the individual is to the individual in the individual trie about these cities, that he should first take the cities themfelves and root out the inhabitants, though the cities were given afterwards to others which were his friends.
V. 12. But the fields of the city To wit, the rest, the fields befides or beyond the two thouland cubites which were to be given to the Levites with the Citie, Numb. 35.5.

V. 13. Thus they gave to the children of Aaron ] The name of these cities given, and of others that follow, are rehearled, Chron. 6. with forme difference of names, Holon is called Hilen Almon Alemeth, and Kibzaim Jokneam, &c. Which alteration was caused by long processe of time, and because some of these cities had divers names.

the children of Aaron | i.e. The Priests of the familie of the Kohathites, of which A aron was their first Progenitour. eut of those two tribes ] Namely, Judah and Simeon, v.9. V. 18. Anathoth | The city where the Prophet Jeremy was Abnow] Alias Alemeth, both names fignifying youth; and it is called Bahurim , which hath the fame fignification, 2 Sam.

V. 20. And the families of the children of Kobath, the Levites] Which were not Priests, as not being descended from Aaron; but were the next of kin in bloud unto him, and therefore have the next place allotted unto them,

V. 21. Sheebem? This city and Hebron, were the two cities of refuge under the Kohathites.

Goger | Sec Judg. 1.29. out of the half tribe of Manasseb] Namely, that half which dwelt in Canaan.

V. 27. the children of Gerfhon] Who was the eldeft fon of V. 27. the children of Gerston Who was the eldest son of which they undertook for the selling of their brethren Levi, and therefore had the next lot to the Kohathites, in whose in Canaan; and that he like a noble Generall, might send familie was the priefthood and therefore bath the priviledge of the other balf tribe of Manas[ch] Namely, which dwelt beyond Golab] This city and Kadesh were the cities of resuge under

V. 24. the children of Merari, the rest of the Leuites \ They are called the reft, because Merari was the youngest brother, Gen. 46.11. and therefore his children here are last num-

V. 36. Biger] Bezer and Ramoth were the cities of refuge among the Merarites and beyond Jordan, chap. 20. 8. chough Bezer here be not fo expressed, as the rest of those cities

V. 41. were fourty eight cities with their fuburbes | Levi was the least of the tribes in number, and yet had 48, cities allotted unto them, which was double and treble to divers tribes, that were far more numerous then they. The reasons whereof are these; First, because the whole number of their cities are reckoned, whereas in other tribes many cities are not mentioned, but those which were chief and principall. Secondly, the cities belonging to other tribes had many other towns & villages belonging to them in which they dwelt, whereas the Levites had none but their cities only, unto which they were confined for their habitations, whereas they of other tribes were at their liliar and speciall services in his sanctuary, and in all the parts of his worthip, than any of the other tribes,

V. 43. And the Lord gave unto Ifrael all the land ] For thou hithe Canaanites at this time possessed many places in that country; yet the Lord, the supream soveraign of heaven and earth, who hath all at his disposing, might be faid to have given them all the land, because he had given them a full right unto it, both by promife and lot, and had already by con-quest possessible them of the greatest part of it; and was ready I will not drive them out before thee in one year, left the land be them, till they were Etled in their inheritance. verl. 27. come defolate and the beafts of the field multiply againft thee; v. 30.

turned into a wildernesse; whom also he had strucken with fuch a fear and aftonishment, that they durft not rife up againft them to diffurbe their peace, or to hinder them from the quiet enjoying of all which they now possessed, and when dued or thought needfull for their present use, and might possesses more when they should defire it, if they did not hinder themselves through their own default.

V. 44. And the Lord gave them reft ] To wit, from wars and let them enjoy all which they had conquered, with peace and tranquillity.

and there flood not a man of all their enemies against them ] ie. They were victorious in all their wars, and no enemy was able to reful them, nor to do them any hurt, namely, of all those who assayled them, or were assaulted by them, whilest Joshua being their generall did lead their army.

V. 45. There failed not ought of any good thing ] i.e. Which the Lord knew to be truly good for them to receive. And amongst the rest, this is to be reputed one, that the Lord would not prefently, and at once, expell all their enemies out of the land of promife. Exodus 2;

CHAP. XXIL

Verf. z. Henl i.e. When God had fulfilled all his promifes, and having subdued their enemies, had given unto his people peace and reit. Folhus called the Reubenites] Namely, to this end that he might disband and dismisse them to go into their own inheritances on the other fide Jordan, they having now performed all their covenants made with Moses, and all the service them away with due praifes and rewards.

V.2. ye have kept all that Mofes ] In which words he giveth them a generall commendation that they had observed all those commands which they had received from God by Moles his ministery: And then more specially he praises them, first opening the praises them of the praises the praise th them as their Generall and commander in chief, like well-difciplin'd fouldiers, and particularly in this, that they had affifted their brethren in all that warr, and had gone armed before

V.2. ye have not left your bretheren thele many daies \ Where iecondly he commendeththem for their duty performed towards their bretheren and first for their faithfullnesse towards them, in that neither feare of danger, nor the paines and labour of fo great a worke, and the difficulties which they met with in their undertakings; could fo discourage them as to cause them to forsake the service, till they did see them victorious over all their enemies; And fecondly, for their constancie in carrying on the work, not for fome small time; but fot many dayes. For, as Expositors doe for the most part agree, they had from their comming over Jordan been imployed in this service for the space of fourteen yeares, Seven yeares in conquering the land, and feven more in the division of it, if at least the things rela-ted were done according to that order here expressed, that is, if the two tribes and an halfe were not fent away till the land berty to dwelin their villages and country houses. And lastly, was divided, and not when they had finished their service in because the Lord (no doubt) would have this tribe provided for the conquest, and before the division, seeing they had no such in a bountifull manner, feeing he himfelf took upon him to be caule as the other tribes to flay fo long from their owne homes their portion, and made choice of them to do him more pecu- where their portion was fallen unto them, and expected no further share in the land of Canaan. Yet this is my owne conjectture which I leave to better judgments ; yet I am the more confirmed in it, because though the two tribes and an halfe made this offer to Moses Num. 32.18, that they would not returne to yet Moles in his answer doth not require this of them . V.20. 21. but only this which they had also undertaken, that they should goe armed before the Lord to warr, untill he had driven out his enemies from before him , and fubdued the land, and to enter them into the possession of that which remained in that that afterwards they should return to thetr owne possession, and time when it should be fittest for them to enjoy it; neither had | be guildesse before the Lord, and before Ifrael vers. 20. the Lord ever promifed to give them the possession of the | 21. And this condition alone they insist upon in their reply, whole land all at once, but by fitting degrees, Exod, 23, 29. and do not mention the other, that they would flay with

EEE a

But howfoever, though they should have stated onely the seven I thisteer to worship God, and offer facrifices, as well as their years fervice of the war it was a most commendable evidence brethren that dwelt within the land of Canaan; feeing this of their fidelity, and constancy toward their brethren, and of would fland as a memoriall, and the meaning of it would by tradition passe to one age after another; that this altar was fee their own truth in keeping their covenant, in that they for fo long a time were content to be deprived of the comfort of their up, when after the wars ended they departed into their own wives, children and families; and the enjoying of their cities, country for no other end and purpole. boufes, goods and inheritances; yea, to hazard them all by V. 12. Anawhen the children of I frael heard it ] And thereleaving them in a country but lately conquered, out of their protection, where they might juftly fear the intodes and dan-gerous attempts of their ditaffected neighbours. but have heps the charge ] Where lastly, he commendeth them for their piery towards God, from which all their other vertues did flow in that they confeientiously observed them all and all ditries arifing from them. (not as most fouldiers, out of vain glory, coverousaesse, or a naturall fortitude and magnanimity, but) out of a religious fear of God, because they looked uson all they did as upon a charge imposed by him.

V. 4. now returne you and get you to your tents, and to the land of your posself, on ] i.e. When you depart from this affembly, go immediately to your tents, and then afterwards to your dwellings in your own inheritances. Others by tents underfrand their houses and homes , but not so probably, for they did nor leave their wives, children and goods, in tents, but in cities and flrong buildings, and besides, this inverteth the order, for they must of necessity sies to the land of their possessions, before they could come to their tents and house.

V. c. But take diligent heed] After he had commended them for what they had well done already, he now admonitheth them (like a most religious generall) to persevere in weldoing, with all diligence and circumspection; namely, to obferve all Gods commandements, and chiefly to love the Lord their God, which is the great commandement from which all true obedience floweth, to walk in all his waies, and not to reft onely in the performance of fome or many duties, and forfakeing all other false gods and idols, to cleave unto and serve him onely, and that not alone in an outward profession, but in in-tegrity with the whole man, in fincerity and simplicity, in spizir and in truth, with a pure heart, a good confcience, and faith

V. 6. So Fosbus bleffed them ] That is, prayed unto God for his bleffing upon them. For men are faid to bleffe men when they wish unto them all happinesse, and pray unto God for them, that he will poure down upon them his bleffings, for texts, task few mit poure unique means a state of the feeting he is the founcain of all goodneftle, from whom every good and perfect gift defeendeth. And they are fail to bliffle food, when as they praise and magnific him as the author and choner of all blefflings received, having nothing eller to returne matto him in little of all his benefits. But God is fail to bleffle us, when as he bestoweth his gifts upon us, and fanctifieth them

V. 8. Divide the Spoil of your enemies with your brethren? Namely, to those that remained at home with their wives, children, goods and cattle, to protect and preferve them from the inrodes of bordering enemies, and did not go out to the war. Whereby is not meant that those who staid at home. should every one of them have as great a part of the spoils as they that went out to war, (for there had been no equallity or justice in this; that they who had borne the brunt, and undergon the danger, and indured the paines, should be no better regon the danger, and indured the plantes, include the note re-warded then the other; year, in this division by poll, they thould have had far kelle, feeing they that stated at home did much exceed them in number.) But onely this is meant, that they that went to war should have one part or moity for their own ale; and give the other part to them who flaied at home, to be divided amongst them. According to Gods command, Numb. 3 1, 27, which being (it seemeth) worne out by time and forgotten David revived and re-established, as a standing law for future times, 1 Sam. 20. 24,25.

V. 9. ante the country of Gilead] i.e. All that country in which Sihon and Og raigned.

according to the word of the Lord by the hand of Mofes] To wit, that after they had goo before their brethren in war, and had forled them in the hand of promile, then they should have leave to returne and enjoy their inheritances on the other fide of Jordan, Numb. 3 2. 20. 22.

V. to. built there ex altar by fordan] i.e. On the borders of Jordan with in the land of Canaan before they paffed over me their own inheritance, they built this great Altar, like that in the tabernacle; but not for the like ufe, for this was not (at they profelle ver.z4.) to be used, as that was, to offer them it facrifices and oblations, but that it might remain as a monument to all fucceding ages, to taking in their belaif, and so for the prefate only fulpended, that they might that howforcer they were divided by the irrer Jordan from make use of Oods patience and long-fulfiring, dureby to be that land of Canana, and hereif of the tritles, yet feety were brought unto him by unfined repentance, who fring fall erue Jfraelites descended from Jacob, and so in the number of in their impenitency did lye under the guilt of their finnes, and Godspeculiar people, who had right and interest in all his pro- therefore when upon the committing of other finnes they pro-upon believed that they intended to offer Sacrifices upon it contrary to Gods expresse commandement, Levic. 17.8. 9. that there should be but one only after for this use, Deut. 12.5, feperfittion, falle worship, and idolarry, they thought themselves bound by Gods commandement to oppose them, and if other meanes would not reclaime them, to make war against them. Deut. 13. 13.

the whole congregation of the children of Ifrael ] i.e. the ten tribes (Levi being numbred with them) and even the halfe tribe of Manafleh it felfe, which were on this fide Jordan. though they were part of the same tribe with the other, and in the negrest bond of consanguinity indeared unto them. yet in zeale to Gods glory, joyned altogether in this quar-

to go up to warre against them ] whereby it appeareth, that they in those times thought that a warre was just and lawfull. against those who were the subverters of Geds true religion, no other meanes would reclaime them ; and if fo, then their zeale was commendable, in that they spared not to ven-tur their lives for Gods glory, and the maintenance of his true religion; hawfoever they cannot be exculed of inconfiderate rashnesse in giving way to ungrounded jealousies.
V. 12, And the children of Israel fent ] i.e. knowing the unfneakable miferies that accompany a civill warre, they labour to reforme such things as were amisse by counfell and advice, before they would take armes and imbrew their bands in one anothers blood. For which as they had good cause to doe it in the generall, fo much more in respect of these their for valiantly and ventured their lives in their cause and quarrell, never leaving them till they faw them quietly fetled in their inheritances, all which obligations though they flighted when Gods glory and the puritie of his religion came in com-petition; yet they did ftrongly binde them to preferre peace and love amongst them, if they might do it on lawfull

Phincasthe fonne of Elesger the Prieft ] as being moft fit and able to prevaile with them in respect of his eminencie in vertue and zeale for Gods glory, fo much approved and applauded in that Heroicke act of Zimrie and Cozbi, whereby Gods wrath was appealed; and in respect of his skill and knowledge in Gods law, which made him able to manage fuch an ambassage.

V. 14. And with him tenne Princes ] Nine for the nine ribes, and one for the halfe tribe of Manaffeh, himfelf being of the tribe of Levie, and some of the high Priest, that so this great and difficult bufineffe might be tranfacted and carried on by a full and joynt counsaile of all, in which there is fafeonly a tun and joynt countaine or an, in waith there is tate-ty, and to the good liking and contentment of all the people, leeing in them reprefentatively they had their voyce and hand. V. 16. Thus faith the whole congregation ] i.e. By us whom hey have fent to reprefent all the reft.

of the Lord ] And are therefore to be hearkned unto, feeing we speak in his cause, and are countenanced by his autho-

what trefpaffe is this ] Where they take it for granted, that they had committed these great fins of apostasie, rebellion and falle worthip, before they had examined the matter; thereby the worning, octore mey had examined me matter; mereby flewing that good men, and otherwife godly and religious, may fometimes paffe falle and uncharitable censures, being transported by rath and inconsiderate zeale.

V. 17. Is the iniquitie of Peor too little for us ] To wit, when our people provoked Gods fierce wrath against them, when our people provoked Golden letter which we are not cleanfed untill this day ] For although the wrath of God was appealed by Phinehas his executing justice upon the two offenders Zimri and Cozbi, fo as for the time he stayed the plague, and would not have them goe on in the mutual slaughter one of another, yet their fin might be said to remain uncleaned untill that very day; first because they ftill did beare the flame and reproach of it amongst all that ever heard of this their abominable wickednesse. Secondly because many of those who were then actors in that great fin ftill remained alive, from whom wrath and vengeance makes, and both in the cabernacle and ark, and might refort world God, to a new vilitation, he would call them to account, Chap. xxij. and punish them both for these & theirformer fins, as appeareth Num.14.20. Yea thirdly, men may truly repent of fome hainous fins committed, and to be freed from the guilt of them and yet remain lyable to temporary punishments as the chadifements of a reconciled father, that God may not be dishonoured, nor religion fcandalized by their impunity, and that they may be made more cautious and fearfull to avoid fin for the time to come. As we see in the example of David, who upon his repentance received pardon, but yet was feverely corrected with tharp afflictions, even to his laft dayes, 2 Sam, 12. 13, 14. & 9. 10,11.

And laftly they were not throughly cleanfed from that finn it respect of the faultinesse and corruption contracted by it which was ever and anon ready to break out, when as they were not reftrained by religious magistrates, as apeareth plainly in the thory of the judges.

V. 18 Rebell to day against the Lord, that to morrow) which words are not to be taken litterally and precifely for that very day or the morrow after, but for fome time neer unto them, as to day i.e. at this time, and to morrow, i.e. in time to come, and that very speedily. So Ela. 22. 13. Chap. 4.6. Mat. 6.30. 1 Cor.

V. 19. If the land of your possession be unclean] i.e. If you have any prejudice against your owne inheritance beyond Jordan, as not being under Gods favour and protection, and that you in the land of Canaan may more certainly injoy it, because the sabernacle, ark and altar, the visible signes of Gods presence, are placed amongst us; then leave your inheritance and come and live with us; whereby they expresse great zeale for gods glory, and much love towards them, and their earnest defire to give them all lawfull content, in that they were willine to let them share with them in their inheritance , though at this time it was ftreight enough for their own ule, feeing much of their country given unto them by lot, was not yet come into their poffession.

But rebell wer againft the Lord By which is implyed, that to the any other fervice then he hath appointed is to rebell againft him, i Sam.15.22.

nor rebell against us | Namely, by separating from our communion and the publick ordinances, thereby bringing Gods heavy judgements both upon your felves and us.

V. 20. Did not Achanthe fon of Zerab] i.e. Of the posterity of Zerab, Jof. 7. 17.18.

or Lettas Join. 7. 17,13.
and wrash fell upon all the Congregation] i.e. If but one mans fin made God angry with the whole army, then how much more shall Gods wrath be incensed against his people, if such a non-public numerous multitude joyn together in such a soule apostasia and Temple.

that man perished not alone in his iniquity | But besides him, his wife, children and familie, and 36. of the Army. V. 21. of the thou[ands of I[rael] For the children of I[rael] were divided into thousands, and had their Colonels or Captains fet over them, Ex 18.21. & Judg. 6.15.

V. 22. The Lord God of Gods Where they appeal unto

God, the fearcher of hearts, to clear themselves from that unjust suspicion which their brethren had conceived against them, & to express how much they abhorred the crime which was laid to their charge, they repeat the words of their appeal with great vehemency, as abominating the very thought of fuch an apoltatie and feparation, as was laid to their charge, yearather that they had built the altar with a quite contrary intention, namely to prevent in time to come fuch a feparation between them and their brethren.

and Ifract he [ball | now] i.e. Howfoever we are now under a black cloud of jealousie, yet in time God will bring the truth to light, and our future carriage and fincerity in Gods fervice. and our firme adhering to his true worship and holy ordinances, holding therein communion with the rest of our brethren in and their Officers, to whom it belonged to see the sentences Canaan, shall clear our innocency, and shew how far we are and judgements of the superiour Magistrates to be duly execufrom being guilty of this Crime whereof we are now fu-

Save se not this day] i.e. If we be guilty of this haynous fin whereof we are suspected, we defire no favour, nor yet any delay in Gods execution of vengeance upon us.

V. 22. Let the Lord himfelf require it | i.e. If we have built this Altar with an intention to offer Sacrifices upon it, or with a purpole of division and separation from the rest of our brethren in godly duties; let the Lord, whom we call upon as a witnesse and Judg, call us to account for it, and inflict upon us deferved punishments.

V. 24. And if we have not rather done it \ Where they fhew hat whereof they were follog field 3 namely, that they had purpolely done it, to this end, that both for the prefent them:

V. 6. Turn us file therefrom to the right band at to the left it selected in gase, might with the it. Keep on in the right path, and decline not from Gods refl of the Tribes in Cansan cleave clofe unto God, and contill law, neither to the right band by adding to it, nor to the left nue a perpetuall communion with them in all the parts of his by detracting from it, Deut. 5.32, & 28.14.

V. 7. Come not amongft these nations ] i.e. Have no acquainfor fear of this thing ] i.s. Of being debarred from the means of Gods publique fervice, and separated from having any Communion with the rest of Gods people

What have jours do with the Lord ] i.e. Why do you claime any interest in the Lord, or in his Tabernacle, Temple, Altar. Sacrifices and publique fervice, feeing you are not of Jacobs posterity, nor any members of Gods true Church, nor born in the land of promile, but in another country which is separated from it by the River Jordana

V. 25. Tebave no part in the Lord ] i.e. You have nothing to do with his inheritance, which belongeth peculiarly to his people and children. See the like expressions, 2 Sam, 20, 1. 1 King. 12. 16. Ezr. 4.2. Neh 2.26.

cease from fearing the Lord] i. e. From continuing in the profession of his true religion, and the sincere practice of

V. 27. that it may be a witneffe ] i.e. A lafting and fignificative monument to tellifie unto fucceeding ages, that we, as well as the other tribes within Jordan, have a true right in the fame Ichovah, and in the means of his publique fervice, &c. and do hold an inseparable communion with his Church and peo-

God forbid that we should rebell against the Lord ] i.e. We unterly deteft and abhor fuch an abomination.

V. 30, it pleased them] i.e. They were fully fatisfied with their pious and just apology, and rejoyced in it.

V. 21. we perceive that the Lord is among us | i.e. By his grace and bleffing, feeing ye are of the fame mind with us, as being guided by the fame spirit, and have cleared your selves from all uspition of rebellion and defection.

Now ye have delivered the children of Ifrael out of the hand of the Lord] i. e. Ye have by delaring your innocency freed us from the fear of Gods heavy judgements, which (had you been guilty of these sins whereof we suspected you, you) would have attached and overwhelmed both you and us.

V. 33. And the children of Ifrael bleffed God] i.e. Gave thanks unto and praised the Lord, for preserving their brethren from the guilt of sin, and themselves from all fear of being lyable with them to deferved punishments.

V. 34. Called the Altar Ed] i.e. A witnesse, which standing on the border of Jordan between the Ifraelites on both fidesof the river, did hold out a joyat testimony from them all, that Jehovah is God, i.e. They acknowledged no other but Jehovah alone to be their God, whom they would worship by no other means then those which he had prescribed in his Word. nor publiquely in any other place, faving in his Tabernacle and

CHAP. XXIII.

V.1. Stricken in age] Heb. Come into dayes; and therefore being now unable to get more of the land by conquelt. he feeketh by counfell to fet the people in a way whereby they might keep what they had gotten, and in time also gain all that yet remained unconquered.

V. 2. And Joshua called for all Ifrael] Not all the people, for that had been impossible for them all to have come and heard him, but for all the chief of them, under whole government all the rest were, and represented the whole body of the Common-wealth, as the elders, that is, the Sanedrim, confifting of feventy two choice men which chiefly managed all the affaires of the Church and Common-wealth; the heads.i.e. the Princes and prime rulers in every tribe; their Judges, i.e. who were not only those who fate in their Courts to heare their causes, and executed judgement between man and man , but all other Magistrates, who in all parts of the land in their seveted, as it is plainly expressed in this very place.

V. 3. because of you i.e. For your takes, that he might fulfill his promises made unto your forefathers, and give unto you their posterity this land for a possession.

V. 4. These nations that remain] To wit, as yet unconquered.

unto the great Sea westward ] i. e. The Mediterranoan

V. 5. And the Lord your God he shall expell them] i.e. Though I die and cannot do it, yet the Lord Jehovah ever liveth to make good all his promifes, and this effectially of giving you this whole land for a possession; if ye will keep covenant with that their intention in building the altar was quite contrary to him and walk in all his wayes, not backfliding from him, nor tance or familiar convertation with them, left by degrees ye fearth. So I King. 2.2. & Heb. 9.27. For all men walk in this become like unto them and learn their manners, as they did, path that leadeth to death.

Numb. 25.12. Pfal. 119. 115. 2 Cor. 7.14. Eph. 5.2 L. Neither makematien of the unne of their Gold Le. Deut. 2.12

Have nothing to doe with them, feeing idolarry is an infectious Have nothing to doe with taxen, teeing undarry is an interctions and catching fonce; and the very naming of idols cauleth mean minds to true upon them, and to think them formething, commany to that of the Apollle, to Con-84, and therefore the Lord would not be called leash but lish; though they figuifie the fame thing, because that name was common to Idols. And David faith shat he would not sake the names of falle Gods into bis Lips, Plat. 16.4. And on the fame reason the Apostie would mor tiave whoredome and uncleans fie to be fo much as named among us, Ephe. 5.3. And as one observeth, the Jews would mot suffer their children to name swine or hogs, left they might have an appetite to eat their flefh.

have an appetite to extend neith.

my conje to freur by them] i.e. Do not provoke the men of these autions to swear by their Idols, to justific their fayings, or configure their promises: Neither let the Judges admit of an early by their Idols, in the tryall of any cause that shall come

V. S. But cleave, or, for if you will cleave ume the Lord your God i a Imbrace bim with faith and love, and adhere unto him as your head and husband with all your heart and foule.

so you have done unto this day 3 i.e. Since under my conduct you came into the land of Canaan. V. 9. For the Lordbub driven out, or, then the Lord will v. 9. For use Local Date street with we not not able to drive sail i.e. Though the nations remaining are fo numerous and throng that ye are not yet able to drive them out, yet if ye will wholly adhere unto the Lord, he will do it hereafter according to his promife.

V. so. euc man of you [hall chafe a thoufand] i. e. He will fo v. so. exc many you pass conjunt 1.e. He will to some you with courage and thrength, and weaken your enemies with fear and fainthearted selfe, that they shall not be able to make any resistance, according to his former gracious promises,

Let 1.6.8. Dett. 3.2.0.8 18.7.

V. s. Tale good beed threfore]

i. e. Be not fecure and care-left, but be watchfull over your leives, and earnell in performing these duties, seeing they so much concern both your premium.

V. 11. Elfe if you in any wife go back] i.e. If you backflide, and apollatizing from your religion, be so far from obeying Gods command for the rooting out of these cursed nations that remain, that ye entertain friendship and familiarity with them, and adhere unto them with your hearts and affections. as a man to hiswife; and making marriages with them, per-forme the duties of holy wedlock with thefe prophiane and cur-fed nations.

V. 13. Know for a certainty ] i.e. Be certainly affured that you thall find God no leffe true in his threatnings to bring all e-vils upon you for this your apostasie and rebellion, as you have hitherto found him true in all his promifes. they [ball be fueres and traps unto you] i.e. They thall catch you with their wiles, and by their baits and allurements they thal entice you to commit both corporall and spirituall whoredom with them. So Num. 25. 1, 2, 18.

and fourges in your fides | Where he alludeth unto that ancient cultome of beating flaves and malefactors upon their fides

Eccluf. 30. 12. & 42.5. whereby is meant, that if they cannot prevaile with their allurements, they will by their vexations should them on in their wicked wayes, and be unto them as whips and fours to hallen their fpeed.

and therees in your eyes ] i.e. They shall be a continuall grie to you, and as vexations as a thorne is to the eye; or as other zhey thall put out your eyes, and to deprive you of the fight and light of your understandings, that not being able to discern the truth, they shall easily misleade you into any way of wicked-

untill re perify from off the good land ] Than which nothing can be more bitter and grievous unto you, to wit, that after al the mileries which we endured in Ægypt and the wildernesse and all the pains and perils which you have fullained in the con-quest of it, and now being but lately come to injoy it, and to easile the sweetnesse and pleasure of it, you should for your fins be justly cast out of it.

V. 14. And hebold this day I am going ] i.e. I am ready in the course of nature to depart out of this life; and therefore feeing I cannot, but a fmall time continue to govern and guide you in the wayes of God, I will do what I am able for you good, by admonifing, counfelling, and exhorting you; and became the words of a dying man are of greatest efficacie and authority, as being spoken out of all his former experience, with most simplicity, without felf-seeking, or similer ends, and are of those that hear him most attentively and carefully observed; cestors which were more remote, as Noah, Shem, seeing they therefore I will bequeath these words unto you as my last will and testament, that you may remember and observe them after Lam gone, 2 Pet 1.12.

the way of all the carib] i. c. Of all men that live upon the and ve know in all war bears? i.e. You know most certain-

V. 14. as all good things are come uponyou] i.c. As you have found in your own experience that God bath not failed in any of his promifes; fo relt affured that you shall find him no lesse true in bringing upon you all theevils which he hath threatned. until you be utterly destroyed from off this good land which he hath given unto you; if you break covenant with him, and leaving his pure fervice, fall into idolatry and rebell against

CHAP. XXIIII.

Verf. 1. A Md Jojoua gathered all the Tribes] See annot, on to Shethern] Which was seituate neer mount Gerazim about fix miles from Samaria. Some think, that by Sheckem we are to understand Shiloe (and so also I sometimes thought as appeareth in my former brief annotations) because Shiloh stood in the Territories of Shechem, where the Tabernacle now was, and it is not unufuall to put the name of the Country for fome chief City therein scituated, as will appear, if we compare yer, 32. with Gen. 33. 18. So Hebron is faid to be given to Caleb, th. 14.14, yet not the City it tell, out the Estation of longing to it, th. 21.13. And fome suppose, that these two Conventions were one and the same, but continued two daies; and so that it was but one speech which Joshua in these two chapters made to the heads of the people. But now it feemeth to me (and others also are of the same mind) that both the places, times of meeting, and speeches, are all feverall, and chiefly, because they are all distinctly expressed in the story, and are therefore not to be altered and confounded, but upon necessary grounds and reasons. Secondly, the copulative [And] which ry grounds an reasons, secondry, the covariance [.m. ] which coupleth the two Chapters, fignified  $M_0^2$ , or, marrower ; i.e. over and above all that which hath been focken and done in the former chapter, they were again called together, and Joffma again did feesk unto them. Thirdly, the fubject of these pieces in their two chapters are divers, and allo the foope of them ; for the former is exhortatory to fincerity, integrity and conflancy in Gods fervice : this perfwafory to renew their covenant with God, which was first contracted with their father Abraham. Fourthly, it is exprelly faid, that they were called to Shechem, and that first, because it was the chief and most noble City belonging to the Ephramites, and therefore the fittell for to entertain such a Congregation of the chiefest and noblest of all the tribes. Secondly, because it was neerest to Joshua, whose ease was to be respected being the Prince of the people, and now very aged and infirme. Thirdly, because Johns thought that place fittest for the renewing of the Covenant between God and the people, where it was first made with Abraham, Gen. 12.6,7. and afterwards renewed in Joshuah's time,ch.8. 30,33. But it is objected, that it is here faid, that they presented themselves before God, i.e. before the ark the visi ble fign of Gods prefence, and v.26, that they were now by the SanGuary of the Lord, where Johua pitched a great flone, and Shiloe, not Sheckern, was the place of the Ark and SanGua-ry: To which it is an inwered, that though Shiloe was their place in ordinary; yet upon such an extraordinary, and solemn occasion, as the contracting of a covenant between God and the people, it was at the pleasure, and in the power of the supream Governour, to remove it upon good grounds and rea-fons, of which we have examples under the government of Eli, Samuel, Saul, and David.

And they presented themselves before God] i.e. Before the tapernacle the fign of Gods presence, that being affected with his awfull majestie, they might performe the action intended and now in hand, with more reverence and spirituall devo-

V. 2. And Joshua [aid unto all the people] i. e. To all the elders, Princes, Judges, and Officers, that they might afterwards relate what he faid to all the people respectively, which were under their government.

under their government.

by Gus of Ifsas] i.e. Who hath not only given unto you your beeing, but allo your wel-beeing in the fruition of insurerable bleftings which he hath heaped upon you his presultar people above all other nations, and therefore ought to be heartened unto, and obeyed by you in all that he speaketh and com-your fathers dwelt] i.e. Abraham, Nachor and Terah, the progenitors of all your Nation, both by the fathers and mothers fide; of whom this is to be understood, and not of their Anon the other fide of the floud | i.e. The River Euphrates, ufually to called by way of eminency and excellency.

and they ferved other Gods i.e. They were all alike große

Chap. xxiiij. you to hear and obey him.

V. 3. From the other fide o' the floud ] i.e. From Charran in Mcfopotamia neer the River Euphrates, where he lived with his victory, and used them only as infiruments to serve his provifather Terab, his brother Nahor, with his Wife, and his nephew | dence. Lot for certain years, and when after the death of Terab, Nahor could not accompany him into the land of Canaan, he himfelf by the conduct of Gods spirit paffed over the River into Canaan with Sarah and Lot, and left his brother in Mesopotamia, and of him descended Bethuel, Laban, and Rebec-

and led him throughout all the land of Canaan] Not only that he might take a view of that land which he had given to him and his posterity for a possession, but also for his present use and comfort; whereby Gods goodnesse towards him is magnified, in that he did not only preserve him in peace and lafety amongst such a wicked people, but also gave him such favour in their eyes, that he found opportunity to inrich himfelf greatly with Gods bleffings.

and multiplyed his [ecd] Not only by giving him a numerous posterity by Hagar and Keturah, whom he passed over, but al-fo that promised seed I (aac, to wit, as heir by special covenant, grace and power by Sarah, in whom all the nations of the earth are bleffed, and from whom all the people of Irael were descen-

V. 4. And I gave unto I face, faceb and E fau] He nameth Efau with Jacob, but though he were the elder brother, and had for the present mount Seir given unto him for an inheritance, when as Jacob lived as a pilgrim and stranger on the earth, and his posterity as bondmen in Ægypt; yet he giveth unto Jacob here the precedence and preheminence before him; to thew, how God loved and chose the one, and hated and reto the whow God loved and choic the one, and nated and the cheet, that they might give unto him the glovy of his free grace, and acknowledg themselves much obliged unto him for it in all love and obedience. For the fame cause I hace is preferred before Ifmael, 1 Chron. 1.28, Abraham before Nahor and Haran, Gen 11. 26. and Shem before Cham and Japhet, Gen. 5.3 2.

V. S. I fent alfo Mofes and Aaron | Namely, to free you out of the milerable bondage of Ægypt by a fitrong hand, when as in humane reason there was not the least hope of delive-

V. 7. he put darkneffe] i.e. A dark cloud between you and the Ægyptians.

the Egyptians.

And your ejes have feet To wit, so many of you as were under twenty years of age when you came out of Egyptia which number were many of the elders and chief Magiltrates, unto whom he now spake, for all the rest dyed in the wildernesse saving Caleb and Jofhua, Num. 14.19.

and you dwelt in the wildernesse a long [eason] Where I out of meer grace and love preferved you miraculously by my providence, feeding you with bread from heaven, and with water out of the rock, keeping your clothes from waxing old, and giving my righteous lawes unto you as a rule of your lives, for your present direction and future happinesse.

V. 8. I brought you into the land of the Amorites] i.e. The Kingdomes of Sihon and Og; and gave them unto you, that is, the two tribes and an half for an inheritance.

V. 9. Then Balac arofe and warred against Ifraet] i.e. He intended & prepared to raife war against Israel, Num. 22.11. though he never (that we read of) actually fought with them, year he contrary appeareth by Jepthe his speech, Judg. 1. 15. So that the intention is taken sometime for the very act, as Joh. 10.

V. 12. and she men of Jerisho funghs againft you] i.e. Both the Magilliares and outler inhabitants of this city prepared to scale by any demure, but to fer an edge on their appetite, & to the Magilliares and outler inhabitants of this city prepared to scale by any demure, but to fer an edge on their appetite, & to quicken and haffen their choice, like that of Bliss, I King. 18. ner, which is a defensive war, though they never came out a-gainst them in battle, and were so altonished with terrour, that full miracle wrought in his name) then serve him; or if Baal ba they durft nor (that we read of) make any warlike refillance | God (who can neither hear nor act any thing at their fuite that when they were entred into the City. Some think that it is call upon him) then force him. And this he don't that they attributed unto them in relation to the other Nations who are might choose more freely, and delighting in their choice might here joyned with them, and did fight against Israel.

V. 12. And I fent the horner before you? To wit, according to my promite, Exod. 23, 28. Deut. 7, 20, whereby either is meant metaphorically such stinging terrors as at their approach, like hornets, did sting and dead their enemies hearts; or literally very hornets indeed, as it is, wild. 12.8. Which not only thew his zeal in glorilying God, by doing him faithful is the more probable, becaute the Lord hath been pleafed to use such contemptible creatures to punish his and the Churches ample of Noah and Lot, who remained just in their generatienemies, as we fee in those Plagues of Ægypt, that he himself may have the whole praise of the victory, and not the arme of lution of Peter, Mat. 26.33,35. Joh. 6.67,68. but also and chiefflefh, or their own fword and bow, as it is plainly expressed in the last words of this verse.

Even the two Kings | To wit, Sihon and Og.

idolaters, Abraham as well as the reft, till God out of an efpe- [ but not with thy fword, nor with thy bow] Which is a provertation ters, normal as men as meret, an about the state of the state o the profession of his religion, and so made a difference between one. So Psil. 44, 2,6. 87, 12, 13. And twantse preparation and there, which tree grace of God may strongly oblige that they had not prevailed against their enemies by their own policy and power only or chiefly, feeing they would have gloried in themselves, flad not God as the principall agent given

> V. 12 and Cities which you built not ] For they destroyed only Hazor, and left the reit for themselves to dwel in, chap. 11. 12. Now how deeply were they obliged to God in love and obedience; for that he not only bleffed their own labours, and gave them power to injuy them, and to eat the fruit of their hands, but also to injoy the labours of their enemies, their cities, vineyards, and olive yards, which they took no pains to build or plant.

of the vineyards | i.e. Of the fruit of the vineyard. So Gen. 3. 1,3. Rev. 2.7.
V. 14. Serve him in fincerity] That is, with a pure heart, without the mixture of hypocrific or will-worthip, and in truth | i.e. In fimplicity without any diffimulation, and with an honest and well meaning spirit, without any false pretences or counterfeit fhewes of godlineffe.

and put away the gods which your fathers [ervedy] i.e. Thars, Nahor, and even Abraham himlest before his calling and con-version, whilest they lived beyond Euphrates in Ur of the Chaldeans; and the Idols which their fathers and fome of themfelves ferved in Ægypt; all which he would have them to put away, that is, for fake and abominate, not that they had itill amongst them the same Idols and Images, as Jacob those which he buried under an oake, Gen. 35.4. but he meaneth any fuch of the like kind, or rather the falle deities représented by them, which they might fecretly worship and not be discovered. But how is it probable that the Israelites should still serve these false gods, of whom he had before given this tellimony, that they had cleaved unto the Lord to that very day, ch. 23.8. and it is [aid v. 31, that the people ferved the Lord all the daies of Joflua, and who were to zealous of Gods pure worship, that they were ready to commence a war against their brethren, for a bare appearance of superstition and will-worship ? To which I answer that he did not direct this spreed, or rather this paffage to it, to the whole body of the people, and much leffe to the elders and magistrates, who at this time would with all feverity have punished such grosse idolatry, but for the sake of fome particular persons amongst them, who were guilty of this fin; and intending to make a covenant between God and them, which should not only respect the time present, but the future alfo, and knowing how prone they were to idolatry when they were left to their own liberty, ftill hanckering after it when as they were restrained, and when they durst not openly commit it for fear of punishment, yet acted in secret these works of darkneffe, as they in the wilderneffe did, Amos f.25, 26. Act, 7.42,43. and as they did after Joshuah's death, which he now feared; and therefore intending to restrain them by covenant from falling into this Idolatry, as a preparation thereunto, he perswadeth some to cast away their Idols, and all of them to a firme resolution never again to fall into this

V. 15. And if it feem evill unto you to ferve the Lord, choose you this day whom you will ferve ] Where he doth not in thus spear king leave them to their choice whether they would ferve God or idols, for being the supream magistrate, he was bound by the law to advance Gods pure worship, and to punish idolatry, but comparing that which is best with that which is worst, the service of God with the service of devils, as it were, light with darkneffe, life and death, hell and heaven, he then leaveth them to their choice, because no man in his right wits could make

21. If the Lord be God, (as you fee it apparent by this powerbe more firme and constant in their covenant; for it much ffrengtheneth the bond, when a man binds himfelf freely and willingly, and makes him much the more unexculable if he do not observe it. So Ruth. 1.8.15.

But as for meand my bouse? In which his resolution, he doth ons that abounded with wickednesse, which was also the resoly like a prudent governour draw them on to imitate him, of whom they had justly to great an opinion for his wisdome and far from us to do fo wickedly. Where, as they fine their refolution not to do it; fosthat it was not grounded upon a prefumprious opinion of their own frength, like Peters; but upon Gods power affifting their weak endeavours.

V. 18. we will ferve the Lord, for beis our God] i.e. We have cholen him to be our God, and none other, and he hath cholen us to be his peculiar people above all the nations of the greffe it by their aportaine and rebellion. earth , and therefore we will wholly devote our felves to his

V. 19. Tecamos ferveibe Lord.] To wit, if you retain your Idolseither in your boules or in your hearts, and mingle falle worship with the true, as v. 23. The which he speaketh, not to discourage and deterre them from Gods service, but seeto discourage and accerte them from Gods service, but ser-mingly pulleth them a little back, that they might go on with more eagernesse and courage; withall minding them of their weaknesse and pronenesse to Idolarry, that they might not sercurely reft on their own ftrength; and that they might not be rath in their undertakings, which is usually accompanied with faint and feeble profecutions: but ferioufly confidering before faint and teeble profectutions; but ferroully confidening before hand what they purpoded and promified, they might be more firme and conflant in their performances. That so hereby he might draw and (as it were) frew them up, to make a more firme coverant with God, to serve him with so much the more courage and ftrong refelution, Forhe is an holy God ] Heb. Elohim Kedoshim, i. e. holy Gods himfelf; from which conjunction of the plurall number with the fingular, fome collect the trinity in unity; and therefore will never indure a prophane people, nor yet will be fatisfied with a bare profession of picty, if it be severed from the power of godlineffe.

he is a jealous God ] And therefore can no more admit of any mixture of true and falle religion, than a jealous husband of a felf between him and a ftranger.

He will not for give your tran[greffions] i.e. So long as you continue in these fins, and do not turn unto him by unseigned re-pentance. Heb, he will not take away your transgressions; which others read, he will not bear, or not fuffer, but will fe-

V 20. If ye for [ake the Lord] Namely, after you have ingaged your felves by covenant to ferve and cleave unto him then he will turne] Not in himfelf, who is unchangeable, but in his actions towards you, ie. after he hath done for you all the good things formerly related, he will do you hurt and con- all his faithfull labour, 2 Tim.4.8, Rev. 14.13. fume you; and that not only for your other fins, but also for your breach of covenant added unto them.

V.21. Nay but we will ferve the Lord ]q.d. All this which you have faid shall not hinder us from entring into covenant with God, for we are fully refolved to ferve the Lord only.

V. 22. And follows [sid] i.e. Concluded and ratified the covenant between God and the people.

you are witnesses against your selves i.e. There shall need no other proof to convince you of rebellion and apoltafie, if you for fake the Lord and serve other Gods, but your own words and covenant, and the testimony of your own consciences. V. 23. now therefore put away ] i.e. Make no delay, but prefently put your covenant in execution.

the strange Gods that are among [t you] i. e. The Idols which fome of you ftill do (though fecretly) retain and worship; and that they so did, appeareth, Amos 5.15,16. Act. 7.42, 43. but especially let them have no place in your hearts and affections.

V. 25. So Johna made a covenant with the people] i.e. As Gods servant and Deputy he renewed and ratified a covenant between God and the people.

and fet them a flatute and an ordinance in Shechem ] i.e. He did and let them a plante and an ordinance in occoming i.e. The titu confirme and ratifie it as a flanding and perpetuall law for them and all their posserity, that they should as Gods peculiar people ferve him only, and utterly renounce all Idols and Idolatry.

V. 26. And Foshua wrote these words] i e. He either wrote them himfelf, or caused some of the Priests to write the words of this covenant, with the whole ftory relating all the circumftances that did concern it, and all thefe paffages between him in the book of the law of God ] To wit, which was written by

V. 16. God forbid that we fould forfake the Lord ] ie. Be it | Moles, and put in the fide of the ark of the covenant, that it might be a witheffe against them, Deut. 3'.25, 26, with this Joshua adjoyned this covenant for the same end and use, that is might be in fafe cultody, and ready to be copied out with the law it felf upon all occasions; that so hereby the people might be made more carefull to observe the law and this covenant, and the better convinced of their fin when they did trans-and took a great from and fet it up there] Namely, that it might ferve for a monument to put them in mind of this folemn covenant renewed and ratified between God and his people, as it was the custome of those dayes, Gen. 28. 18. & 35. 14. & 31.

under an Oake] Which (as some conceive) was the same under which Jacob buried the Idols and Images that were found in his family, Gen. 35.4. which is called the Plaine of the Pillar, that was by the Sauffuary] That is, the Tabernacle and Ark which were on this occasion brought thither for the gracing and folemnizing of this action in renewing the covenant. And neer it, or it may be in the outward court of the Tabernacle, as

t was now pitched.

V. 27. This from fhall be a witnesse untows i.e. It shall serve as a witnesse to convince you of your fin, if you do not keep your covenant, feeing all men will in future ages take notice that it was purpolely erected that it might be a monument and memoriall of it.

For it hith heard all the words] By a figurative speech, sense is emphatically ascribed to a sensel set stone. So Deut. 32. 11. Pfal. 19. 1. Ifa. 1.2. Jer. 22.29. Luk. 19.40. as though be should ay, this stone, when you see it, shall represent to your minds and consciences this covenant which ye have now made, as well as if it could both hear and speak; and if that will not move you, you thall thew your felves more fenfeleffe than the very lone it felf

The words of the Lord ] i.e. Of the covenant between the Lord and you Left you deny the Lord your God | i.e. Fall into Idolatry and

forfake Gods pure worship, contrary to your covenant. V. 19. Foliast be fervant of the Lord dyed This is his Epitaph which immarily comprehendeth all praifes that could be given unto him, feeing in his life and death he approved himself the aithfull fervant of the Lord, living in his fear and dying in his avour, and fo in expectation of the crown of righteoufneffe, which God of his free grace referved for him as the reward of

V. 30. in Timnath Scrath ] Called Timnath-Heres, Judg. 2.9. Some letters being transposed, as you would say, the figure of the Sun. So named (as some think) by the Israelites from the figure of the Eun, which they had placed upon Jofhua's monument in that City, to preferve the memoriall of that great miracle of causing the Sun to stand still at his prayer. But it had its name before Joshua was buried there, and therefore others think, that it had its name from the Idolatry that had been formerly there committed in worshipping the Sun.

V. 32. And the bones of Foseph brought up out of Ægypt] As he had made them to swear at his death, Gen. 50. 25. even as Jacob his father had made him to fwear the like, Gen. 49. 29.

buried they in Shechem] Namely, in a parcell of ground which Jacob on his death bed gave unto Joseph as a special Legacie, and not in the field of Mach-pelab, the common buriall place of Abraham, Sarah. Isaac, Rebeccah, Leah, becaule they usually efired to be buried in their own inheritance. See the appendix unto the annotations upon Genefis.

For one hundred pieces of filver ] Or one hundred lambs. See Annot on Gen. 33.19.

V. 33. which was given him in mount Ephraim] Not within the divition of the land which fell unto him by lot, for the inheritance of the Priests fell unto them by lot out of the tribes of Judah, Simeon and Benjamin, and not out of Ephraim, but by an extraordinary gift, was conferred on the high Priest in Jothua's time, that he might be neer unto him, and thereby the more ready to inquire of God for him upon all occasions, and alfo neer unto Shiloh where the Tabernacle was now feated, where he was to be resident, that he might be at hand to performe unto God the duties of his publique worship.

Burthern Co. L. W. Co. all Co.

ANNO-

ANNOTATIONS

on the Book of Jud G B 5

The ARGUMENT.

His Book of Judges containeth the hiftory of things done in the Common-Wealth of Ifracl, for the flace of I four chundred and ten yeares under government of their Judges, from the beginning of Othaiels rule; who, after the death of Joshua, was their first Judges, unto the beginning of Ell, as may be plainly gathered from Pauls beech, or Sermon at Antioch, Act. 13.19,20. unto which, if the number of fourty years, under the covernment of Eli, related in the foure first chapters of the first Book of Samuel, be added, it will justly amount to that nume ber of 450. years which the Apostle there mentioneth. But then we must not reckon upon that time alone in which the Judges governed, for this amounte th onely to the number of 299 years; but from the first beginning of their government in Othniel, to the end of it in Eli, including the whole time not onely of the Judges, but also of their oppressours; amounting to the number of an hundred and eleven years, which being added to the number of the 399 years of the twelve Judges mentioned in this book, and with them the fourty jears of Elies govern-ment, recorded in the first Book of Samuel; the full number of 450 yeares, which Paul mentioneth, Will sussely be ment, ecorate in the popt, 2000(2) Samuet; the fine number of 13 to expense in an and Shangar 80 years, and and Shangar 80 years, chap 3.30. Deborah and Barak 40 years, chap 5.31. Gideon 40 years, chap 8.28. Abimelech 3 years, chap. 9.22. Tola 23 yeares, chap. 10.2. Jair 22 yeares, chap. 10.3. Jephthah 6 yeares, chap. 22.7. Ibzan 7 yeares, chap. 12.9. Elon 10 yeares, chap. 12. 11. Abdon 8 yeares, chap. 12. 14. Samplon 20 yeares, chap. 16.31. In all, 299 yeares, unto which the 40 yeares of Elibeing added, it amountely to 339 yeares; now adde hereunto the yeares of the oppressours, as they are expressed in the book. Cushan-Rishathaim, who oppressed Ifrael 8 yeares, chap. 3.8. Eglon 18 yeares, chap. 3.14. Jabin 20 yeares, chap. 4.3. Midian 7 yeares, chap. 6.3. Ammon 18 yeares, chap. 10.8. the Phillitines 40 yeares, chap. 13.1. In all, one hundred and eleven, Which being added to the 299 yeares of the twelve Judges, and the 40 yeares of Bis, make up the 450 yeares of which Paul speaketh, Act. 13.19,20. And this I thought good to premise, because it tendeth much to the clearing of the story following in many passages, and sheweth the good agreement between the Apostles account and the chronologie of this fory. Now concerning the Judges mentioned in this Book, we are to take notice, that they were not ordinary Magistrates, but extraordinarily called by God, in times of great extremity, when all things leemed deplorable and desperate, and endowed with heroick gifts of the Spirit, sitting them for those services in Which he was pleafed to imploy them, Which was ufually to fight his Battles, and by vanquishing their enemies. to give his people deliveratice from their grievous oppressions: As also to restore and restisse the Government, when through the peoples insolencies and unrulinesse, all things were brought to disorder and consussion. Neither had these fudges supream and regall power committed unto them; for in all their time God was their King, and kept the jura regalia, or Royall Rights, in his own hand; unto Whom as Supream, they were to appeal in cases of Exo. 18. greatest dissinctly, till in Samuels time they rejected him and his Government, and would have a King of their 15, 19.
own to raign over them, like other Nations; but they were only Gods Lievtenants who were to go out and in before the people at his command, to execute his designs, and at his appointment (when their work was done) to lay Judg. 98. down their Authority and Rule, as We fee in Gideons example. Now these were called Judges, because they 13. were Gods Ministers, appointed by him to execute his righteous judgments, both in subduing, punishing and destroying the wicked enemies of his Church, ; also when his people Were delivered from their tyranny and oppression ons, to administer justice unto them according to his Laws, and preserve unto them Gods true Religion in purity ous, to authority in the thind the more able things and superfittion. And this cripture is called the Book of Indees, because it contained the History of the memorable things also me under their several Governments, and the state of the people of Israel, both in Church and Common Wealth, in their times, which being computed from Joshuà. to Eli, amounteth to three hundred years faving one; they being twelve in number that bore this office. The main Scope of this History is to set forth, and leave to the use of all posteritie, the state and condition of the Church and Common-wealth of Israel, from their first setling in the land of Canaan, to the time of Eli; That all succeeding Ages might learn by their example, to imitate such things in them as are worthy imitation, and shun the contrary: For it discovereth their prosperous successe in all their enterprises, whilest they prosessed and maintained Gods For it discovereth their prosperous juccesses in an inter enterprise; maries top prosperous momentum your Exocasi-verse Religion, and valiantly executed his commands in splining bit Battles, and devising ant their comine; your when out of sloth and love of ease, or cowardly fear, they negletted Gods charge, and suffered them to live amongs 3 who, is when one of flow and we ey cays, or conversaly car, we presence you can a commander must be mediately them; The Lord, as he had thround, can fall them to become fourses and raps must be me fourses to their fidee, 13, and thorn in their eyes, to vex and grieve them, as plainty appeared by this Hiftory: For by converfing to his Munh. thefe carried Nations, they learned their works, as the Manhiff flowleth: They took their Daughters to his their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata, and 50 their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata, and 50 their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata, and 50 their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata, and 50 their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata, and 50 their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata, and 50 their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata, and 50 their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons, and worthipped their gods Baston and Aprovata. ferved their Idols, which were a finare unto them; yea, they facrificed their Sons and Daughters unto devils. Judg. 3.
By which their fearful Apostasic steey sherved their horrible ingratitude unto God, who by such mighty wonders had 6. 8. 2. delivered them out of the Egyptian bondage, subdued their many and mighty enemies, & performed all his gracious 13. Promifes in bringing them into and giving them possession in that good Land of Cattant, which slowed with Milk and Honey: And also their shameful persidions nels in breaking their solemnCovenant with God, into Which, Joshua a little before his death had caused them to enter. By all which their provocations, they fearfully kindled Gods just wrath against them, as the story sheweth; so that he made them unsuccessfull in all their enterprises, delivered them into the hands of spoilers that spoiled them, and fold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they could no longer stand before them; but being subdued, were grievensly oppressed by them. Tude, a Tet in all this just severity, the Lord is mindfull of his Covenant, and doth not utterly reject them as their fins 14, 15. deserved, but in his great mercy and goodnesse, doth thus sharply correct them to bring them to repentance; which FFF mas

ap.1.

Was no footer done, but prefently he raises up updages to deliver them out of the hands if their oppressing commies, and change then of every large to deliver them out of the hands if their oppressing commies, and change then of controlled the state is blood to make the profit of the controlled the contr offear, dare not execute Justice upon offendors; being over-awed with the insolencies of a slift-necked and reoffen, aare not execute impuse upon operaors; out of over the way on a mount in influence of a full-necessa and re-bedding people, or out of favour will not, because that, like their courfer, to being including to their own dispos-tions; Or, through negligene or love of their own eafs, will not trouble, them felves to examine and take notice of any wickednesses, that it may be punished; but as if there were no King in Israel, suffer every one to do that which fermeth good in his own eyes.

The Book of Judges. Concerning these Judges what they were, the nature of their place and calling, and for what end, and the they were instituted; See the Preface or Argument before this Book.

CHAP. L

Verf. 1. On office the damb of Johns 1 i.e. Not in many years affer, for the first Judge of Safe and Judge of Safe and S

the shildren of Ifracl asked the Lord ] The which they did. becaufe the butterfile in hand was of great weight and impor-tance, feeing if they miscarried in their first attempts, it would have been a great discouragement to themselves, and heartening to their enemies, who would have been ready to think , that all their good successe in their former wars, had proceeded from the wildome and valour of their Generall, and proceeded from the wildows and valour of their Veneralls and that be being dread, all their hopes dred with him. Secondly, becault they would ferrely acknowledge the Lord to be their soveraign and ingream Lord and Kings, who retained in his own hand all the regall tights and royalites, and therefore had only the power and psychology to manage the ways, and to ap-leans whom he plealed to be his Livertennis and Deputies. Thirdly, because being infinite in wildome, they knew that he was beft able to direct them, and that there was little hope of prospering in their undertakings, unlesse be did guide and affift them. Lastly, they did it to prevent divisions and emulatithem. Latity, they did it to prevent divigings and elimated ons amongfit the tribes, which might have happened about pre-cedencie, and preferment of one before another, if the Lord himfelf had not appointed and determined it. Therefore be-fore they would conclude any thing in this matter, they asked of the Lord, namely, by the mediation of the high Pricit, con-fulting with his Oracle by Urim and Thummim, according to the law, Num. 27.21. Exod. 28 30. So chap. 20. 18. 1 Sam.

33.9 foul go up for ac! The people after their tedious war, being now learner with eff, and having nijoyed their fill of sale and pleastore; and beginning to find themfelves fomewhat freightned in their intertances, because the Canazanites did thill hold a great part of them in their professions, they begin to thirst and residence of the most professions, they begin to thirst and residence of the most professions, they begin to thirst and residence of the residence of the profession of the pro quire whether or no they should go out to fight against their e-nemies, for this God before had expressy commanded, and Johna, a little before his death, had perfuaded them to under-take it, but which of the tribes should first begin, and be a prefident to all the reft.

against the Canaanites] Which is not to be understood of them second set consensory were to see the consensor settled who were properly and particularly to called, but as comprehending all the curfed nations. For Judah and Simen do by vertue of their Commiffion attempt fifth the fubduing of the Jebusites and Perizzites, and not the Canaanites that lived on

V. 2. And the Lord feid, Judah shall go up ] i.e. Not as a Captain over the other tribes, (for this was not the peoples industy) but shall begin this war against these nations, and so be a president unto all the rest. And by this going up, is either meant the preparing themselves to let upon the work, or because they were to march towards the Northern parts, which were scituate on the higher grounds in the land of Canaan. Now Judah was by God appointed to be first in this expedieion, because it was the most numerous, valiant, table, and active of all the tribes, and God nually chuses the fittest means to ferve his providence, although fomerimes he doth utherwife, to the end, that by the weaknesse of the instruments which he useth, he may have the whole glory, and keep men from boafting. Secondly, Becanle he would honour this kribe above the reft, out of which the Messias was to come, who thousand be king, and by his Scepter should rule all nations, Jews and Gentiles, according to Jacobs Prophecy, Gen. 45. 2. And therefore this title here, at also in the war kgaint the Benjanites, was closen to be first and chief; and so also when they pitched their Camp in the wildernesse; Judah had the precedency, pitching in the first and chiefe place, Numb.

V. 1. And Judah faid to Simeon his brother ] They were brethren, nor only in a generall relation as all the other tribes, but in a more special manner, because they were descended both of the same father and mother, So Absalon and Tamar, a Sam. 13.20. and also because Simeons inheritance was taken out of Judahs lot, and fo intermixed one with another, that they were alfo tyed by this neer bond of neighbour-bood, to joyn together both in their defentive and offentive wars.

DOIN IN THEIR CHEENING MEANS.

Come up with me futo my let ] Before the land was divided, all the tribes were bound to fight altogether against their common enemies. But when every tribe had his own inheritance alentimes. Dut when every tire had an own inferience and hored used him; he was to be at this care and charge that was required for the expelling of those enemies which lived a monght them; and held part of that which belonged unto them in their possession. And for the better inabling of him to performe it, he might call another Tribe unto his affiftance : Yea but they had an expresse promise from 'God, that if they would attempt it they should have good successe, and none of their enemies should be able to stand against them; and what need then was there for Judah to call in Simeon to his ayd? I anfwer, they might lawfully do it, because Gods promises of the iffue and fucceffe did not binder them from ufing all lawfull means for the fulfilling of them; yea rather they were bound to use them as serving his providence to effect and bring them to

V. 4. and they flew of them in Bezek] i. c. In that City fo called, and the Territories belonging to it, which were part of Judahs inheritance, and was that place neer unto Jeru-falem, where Saul mustered his Army when he went to relieve Jabez-Gilead against the Ammonites, I Sam.

11. V. s. And they found Adont-Bezek] i.e. Who was Lord and King of Bezek, as his name fignifich.

V. d. But Adont-Bezek fed] i.e. When he faw his Army difcomfired, and ten thousand of them flain on the place, the remainder of them flying to fave their lives, he likewise fled with them.

and out off his thumbu and great toes In their ordinary way of execution they thould have flain him outright, and not have referved him alive thus mangled, yet though they had (as it feemeth) no intention to let him live, (for they earried him away thus wounded to Jerusalem, and neglecting his cure he there dyed) they thus torrured him, contrary to their usuall manner of dealing with their vanquished enemies, which was not like Barbarians, delighting in cruelty to torture them to death, but to make a quick dispatch in execution, by hanging, or flaying them with the sword: But it seemeth that either they had heard of the like cruelty he exercised upon others, or turey nad meare or the intertrient of executive upon outers, or were eye-wineffes of it; when facking Beack they might find foure of thole militable Kingsthus used and tortured, and when hearts earning at the fight of fo horrid a fpectacle, they might think themselves justly bound by the law of retailation to requite like for like, Exod. 21.24. or if none of thefe, then this came to paffe by a speciall providence of God, secretly in-clining their hearts to instict upon him these unusuall, but yet deferved punishments.

V. 7. sbreefcore and ten Kings ] The which might be very probable in respect of so great a number of Kings vanquished

Chap, i. by him who was a great Souldier, more mighty and powerfull a usit fall be, that what goodingfe the Lord fall do unto us, the lime attempts; if we confider that in those Times and Countries, almost every City had its King to governit; and so it is faid that Johna vanquished 31 Kings in that little Country of Canaan, besides all those who were not subdued by him. Neither is it likely that he had the 70 Kings at once in this subjection and bale flavery, but throughout the whole course of his conquests fome successively after others.

baying their thumbs and great toes out off | Which cruelty he exercifed upon them, not (as fome think) that by making them unlesviceable for the wars, they might not again rife and rebell against him, for which there might be some colour. if he had fet them at liberty to live in their own Countries; but none at all, feeing they were kept still under his power to kill them at his own pleafure; but rather he thus used them out of an innate and more then barbarous cruelty, sporting himselfe in the calamities and miseries of others, or out of pride and vain glory, using them as trophies of his victories ; or by fuch examples to terrifie all other Kings from making any refistance when he invaded their dominions. The like examples we find recorded in our latter stories, as of Saporus King of Persia, who having taken Valerian the Emperour prifuner, used him as his foot-stoole or stirrop to mount up on horseback, and of Tamberlain the Scythian King, who having taken Bajazeth in battle, carried him about in an iron cage as a trophic of his victory, and ufed other Kings to draw his

and they brought him to Fernfalem. That he might be a pub-lique spectacle of Gods heavy and just vengeance upon bar-barous and bloudy tyrants, to deterre others from following his

V. 8. Now the children of Ifraet had fought against Ferufelem, and had taken it] Where he gives a reason why they brought Adonibezek to Jerusalem, because it was now in Judahs possession. For in Joshuah's time he and his army had fought against, and taken it, as some gather from Josh. 10. 42. and 15.62. that is, the Southern part of the City which was fallen to Judah's lot, and was called Jebus, but not that Northern part which was fallen to Benjamins flyare, and called Salem, John 15.8,63, & 18.11,28. and here ver. 21. For this was a double City befiles the Fort or Caffle, (and the force its name is of the duall number) of which one, namely the Southern part was in Judah's lot, and the other, to wit, the Northern part, with the Castle, was in Bentamins.

and fet the City on fire] Heb. Cast the City into the sire. Hipallage for, they cast fire into the City. So Psal. 74.v.7.they have fent thy Sanctuary into the fire, for, they have east fire into the Sanctuary. By which phrase of casting fire into the City, is implyed, that they burnt not all, but only fome part of the City, and left the rest for their habitation. Now upon this occafion of speaking what was done in Joshuah's time, he maketh a digression from the former story in hand, and repeateth what was then done for the winning of this City, and divers other passages respecting the tribe of Judah, which are translated out of that hiftory in the book of Joshua, with explanations in fome particuleas, Josh. 15. 13. to 19. The which digression is continued unto the 17. ver.

V. 9. went down to fight against the Canamites that dwelt in the mountain ] i.e. They descended from Jerusalem, scituate on a mountain, into the valleys and champion country, and then ascended to fight with the Canaanites which dwelt upon other mountaines. For in that mountainous country they must needs descend from one mount, before they could ascend up to

V. 10. And Fudab went against the Canaanites that dwelt at Hebron] To wit, under the conduct of Joshua and Caleb, Josh. 10.36. & 15.13,14. For these things here related to the 17.ver. were done in Joshuah's time, but here in some passages expressed more fully and particularly.

V. 11. And from thence he went ] See this flory and that which followeth to the 17. verse before related, Jeft 15. 15, 16. and the Annot, on that place.

V. 16. And the children of the Kenite Mofes father in law ] i.e. Jethro, who in the Scriptures is called by divers names, as Ho-bab, Revel, and here Kineus, which feemeth to be a patronomick or his firname.

out of the City of Palme-trees] i.e. Jericho, Deut. 34. 3. called from the plenty of Palme-trees that grew in that fruitfull territorie belonging to it, where the posterity of Jethro first feated themselves. For howsoever Jethro himself would not be perswaded to accompany Moses unto Canaan in respect of his great age, and the difficulty of the action of conquering the land, but went back into his own country and there dyed, Ex. 18. 27: yet before his death, he gave in charge to his kindred and posterity, that they should follow the Israelites thither, and there plant themselves, that they might injoy the benefit of the promise made unto him by Moles, Num. 10.32. If then go with dispose of themselves as they shought good.

ghan all his neighbours, tyrannicall, active, and violent in his will wedo unto thee. Or, it may be when God had commanded Moses to destroy the Midianites, that he sent first for Jethro his posterity and kindred to come away to him from them , that they might not be involved in the common destruction. So Saul in like cafe, 1 Sam. 15.6. out of the city] i.e. The Territories, hamlets and villages be-longing to the city, for Jericho it felf was burnt and not re-edified. and therefore no fit place for their habitation.

with the children of Judah unto which the Kenites chiefly adhered, and being at liberty to choose the place of their habitation, Num. 10.32. and dwelling alwaies in tents, which were eafie to remove from place to place; they removed with them into the wildernesse of Judah, or that mountainous country ad-

which lysth in the South of Arail i.e. A certain place called by that name, neer to the land of Canaan, and the country where the Aamalekites lived, whose King and people joyning with the Amalekites, made war against Ifrael, Exod.17 8. Num.21.1,2, where the Kenites dwelt in the time of Saul, till he being appointed by God to destroy Amalek, gave them warning to prevent their destruction, by departing from among them, 1 Sam. 15.6.

among the people i.e. With them of the tribe of Tudah. V. 17. And Judab went with Simeon bis brother ie. To alfift him for the recovering of his inheritance, by driving out the Canaanites, as Simeon in the like kind had formerly affifted flow the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath] Which City was in the dominion of King Arad, Num. 21. 1, 3, and was now Anathematized and devoted to utter destruction, and was herefore called Horma, either because they had bound themfelves to do it by fome prefent yow, if the Lord would deliver it into their hands; or rather, because the Ifraelites had vowed to destroy it utterly, if the Lord would be pleased to deliver the King of Arad and his Army into their hands, which accordingly they then did, and now it being re-edified, they do it again the (econd time.

V. 18. And Fudah took Gaza, &cc. ] These cities sell unto the lot of Judah, Joth. 15. 45, and were in the land of the Philiftims, in all their undertakings in a speciall manner. So Gen. 20, 41. 1 Sam. 18. 14. whereby as it is implyed, that they had all their good fuccesse from God, so they are secretly taxed for their fear and cowardice, feeing they durft not attempt the driving out of the Canaanites from the valleyes, because of their iron Chariots, they having had so great experience of Gods gracious

V. 19. Because they had iron Chariots | See Josh. 17. 16. This was no just cause to deterre them from following their conquest: for they had Gods promile of victory, notwithstanding those iron Chariots, Josh 17.18 But it was only their want of valour, their finfull fear, and want of faith in Gods promifes that hindred them, as also the neglect of Gods commands, who enjoyned them to drive them out, Josh, 23.6.

V. 20. And they gave Hebron unto Caleb ] See the flory of it, Josh. 14.6,7. &c. and the Annot on that place.

V. 21. And the children of Benjamin | See Annot. on Josh.

15.63. dwell with the children of Benjamin in ferufalem] i.e. In their part of the City, and the Callie and Fort, for these remained unconquered till Davids time, 2 Sam. 5.6,7.

V. 22. the house of foleph] i.e. The tribes of Ephraim and went up against Betbel ] i.e. To fight against and take it, because this city belonged to their lot, and was that city which Ja-cob so called, Gen. 28.

was called Lng] i e. A Filbetd nut, so called (as some think) because it resembled a nut in its figure. See Gen. 28.19.

V. 24. Show us the entrance into the city] Not the gate, which might eafily be found without a guide; but it may be was now hut, bolted and blocked up, the enemy approaching neer unto it; but the weakest part of it where it might most easily be affaulted, scaled, and taken.

and we will show thee mercy ] Namely, in faving thy life, with theirs that belong unto thee, and also rewarding thee for this fervice. For though the law commanded generally to put all the Canaanites to death, yet the rigour of it might upon occafion be moderated by a common equity, and the law of nature, which requireth that we should do well to them that have dealt well with us, as we fee in the example of Rahab.

V. 25. But they let go the man, &c. ] i.e. Set them at liberty to

Not those that dwelt in the land of Canaan, who were to be destroyed soon after, but another of that name further off and free from this danger. Others think, that here is meant the Hittites of Canaan, who inhabited on the North fide of mount Ephraim where they permitted him to build and live, for doing and tuits a City] i.e. Being potent and rich, either of himfelf, or by the reward that was given him for his fervice , and accompanied with his family, friends and allies, who were foared for his fake, he built 2 City for his and their habita-

and called the name of it Luz] i.e. Out of his love to his na tive Country where he was born and bred, he called the City he built by the fame name, that the memory of it might not perifh, but might by this means be preferved unto politerity, in which he had his defire, as appeareth by the words following. neither did Manaffeh drive out ] Namely, that part of the tribe that dwelt in Canaan did not, because they could not do it, having disabled themselves by their fins, which had deprived them of Gods affiltance. See John 17 11,12.

V. 27. Beth. Sheam Of which name there were two Cities, one in the lot of Judah, Josh 15. Where the Philistims hung up the bodies of Saul & his fons on the wall of that City, being in their post-stion, though it belonged to Judah; as appeareth, Joh. 15. the other which is here mentioned in the lot of Maand Iblam? Both these places lay neer the mid-land Sea, and in the tribe of Manaffeh, Josh. 17.11.

Tasnach? A royall City neer the hill of Gilboah, Josh. 17 11. whose King Joshua slew, Josh. 12.21.

Megiddo and her townes ] Which was a great and royall City, Jofh. 14. 21. in the lot of Manafieh, Jofh. 17.11. in whole Territories the good King Josiah was flam, 2 King 23:29.

would dwell in that land j i.e. Either by force or composi-

V. 28. they put the Canaanites to tribute] i.e. Either out of cowardice because they durst not, or out of floth and covetuoutnesse because they would not; they made peace with them upon this only condition, that they should pay them tribute, and that when they were become strong, and so able to have driven them out if they had had an heart to do it, which did much aggravate their fin of neglecting Gods worship and expresse command, Exod. 23. 32. Deut.7.2.

V. 29. that dwelt in Gezer] Which was a City given to the Levites, Josh. 21.21. and did lye on the River Gaas neer unto the mid-land Sea, and was one of the Cities in the lot of Ephraim, Josh 16.10. scituate in foure miles distance from Nicopolis, that is, Emauus, which remained in the possession of the Canaanites, till Pharoah King of Ægypt took it, and gave it to his daughter Solomons wife, 1 King. 9.16.

dwelt in Gezer among them] i.e. Not intermingled one with another in the fame city, but in the fame Province or Territories, for the Canaanites alone poffeffed the City till Pharoah killed them and burnt the City, 1 King 9.16.

V. 33. the Inhabitants of Beth-shemelh ] Of which name there were two Cities, one in the lot of Judah, Josh. 15. 10. the other in the tribe of Naphtali.

But he dwelt among the Canaanites ] Not in the fame city or townes, but in the fame Province wherein their cities were intermingled one with another.

the Inhabitants of the land ] i. e. The ancient Inhabitants of the land, and who now also held a great part thereof in present

V. 34. Forced the shildren of Dan into the mountaines ] i.e. Though the children of Dan had at the first prevailed against the Amorites, and possessed themselves of their Country, yet afterwards recruting their army, and getting more strength , they recovered the best part of their country in the valleyes, and forced the Danites into the mountains , where being much freightned, they took occasion to inlarge their possessions, by making that expedition unto Laifh, related in the 18. chapter

V. 35 . But the Amorites would dwell in the mount Heres \ i.e. They were not content to possesse themselves of the fruitfull valleyes, but also took into their possession the mount Heres in Aijalon, as being better (it feemeth) than they which they left to the Danites, and so more streightned them in their habi-yet the hand of Fofeth prevailed ] i. e. Affilling the Danites with their Forces they thus far prevailed, that they became tributaries to the Danites, though they could not recover their pofleftions from them, nor drive their enemies out of their Coun-

V. 26. And the man went into the land of the Hittites] i.e. ( to Akrabbim] Lying Southernly on the falt Sea, and Easternly on mount Seir and the uttermost borders of Canaan towards the South, Josh. 15.2,3. which was a mountainous place called the afcent of Scorpions. But it feemeth to me that he speaketh not here of that Akrabbim or ascent of Scorpions which was in the lot of Judah, but of another of that name, in which the Amorites dwelt, neer unto the tribes of Ephraim and Ma-

CHAP. II.

Verl. r. And an Angel of the Lord ] Some by Angel under-tiand a medlenger lent from God, who was either fome Prophet, or Priest, or both. For Prophets in the Scriptures are sometimes called angels, Hag. 1. 12. and so likewise Gods Priests and Ministers, Mal. 2. 7. 1 Cor. 11. 10. and they think that this angel was such an one, and not an angel fent from heaven, feeing it is faid that he came from Gilgal to Bochim, whereas if he had been fent from heaven, it would have been so expressed, and not as it is here. And some par-ticularly pitchupon Phineas, that he is here understood. Otenarty piccupon renneas, toat ne is acre unacritous. Or thers think, that he was a created angel, who taking upon him an humane shape, hath motions from place to place proper to men, (as here from Gilgal) attributed unto him. But for my own part, I do not approve of either of thefe opinions, but rather think that he was the angel of the Covenant, even the Lord Tefus Chrift, because first, he did not speak, either as an Angel, or a Prophet, in the name of the Lord, but in the person of the Lord himfelf, appropriating the works of the Lord as done by him, namely their deliverance from Ægypt, and bringing them 11. whofe King Johna 16-w, John 12.21.

Dor J A Royall City with large Territories in the tribe of Manafich, wike King was flain by Johna, John 11.2 & 17.

11. 8. 17. 32.

mid Islam Both these places lay neer the mid-land Sea, and foliam Both these powers to Johna at Gigal, John 5.14. and the manafich with the power at to Johna at Gigal, John 5.14. and the manafich with the power at to Johna at Gigal, John 5.14. and the manafich with the power of the most power with them. So the manafich with 6.16. And Manaohs wife, ch. 13.3. But this was Chrift the angel of the covenant, as shall appear hereafter in its due place.

And laftly, because he thus appearing, it is said that they facrificed there, that is, in Bochim, unto the Lord, as also Gedeon and Manaoh didin the like cafe. Whereas it was not lawfull to offer any facrifices faving in the Tabernacle, and upon that one Altar there, or at the apparition of this angel of the Covenant, or onel seace-offerings and gratulatory oblations, but not burnt-offerings, unleffe upon great and extraordinary oc-or until the property of the upon great and extraordinary of caffons they had a fpeciall differnation from God.

cameny from Gilgal to Buchim] Which though it be here related, yet it was done (as likewife all the rest contained in this ftory from this first to the eleventh verse) in the life time of Jo-shua and of the Elders that survived him, but was here inserted to make way for the following history of the Judges, concerning the peoples sins, apostasie and idolarry. Gods severe punishments in delivering them into the bands of their malicious & tyrannous enemies, and his gracious deliverance of them out of their mileries, upon their repentance. And this appeareth, because the sins for which the angel reproved them, were such as they had committed in Joshuah's time, namely, leagues and familiar friendship with the cursed nations, and not demolishing their alters as God had commanded them, though their good Generall Johua had earneftly perswaded them unto it, and used all his endeavours, backed with the authority of his place, to fee it duly executed : But nor fuch as they immediately fell into after the death of him and the Elders that survived him , namely their apostasie and idolatry ; which he surely would have done, had they now been guilty of them, as they were presently afterwards in the time of the Judges. Thirdly, were presently atterwards in the time of the Judges. It in dly, because Gilgal is here mentioned where he first appeared to Johna, 5, 13, and which was formerly the place of their standing camp; from which, it seemeth, they were not all come away, although it appeareth, that the land was now divided by lor, feeing after this meeting they went every man to his inheritance, as it is v. 6. And laftly, because it is expresly faid, that Joshua dismissed the people from this assembly, that the people served the Lord all his dayes, & of the Elders also that survived. him, and then prefently after his departure and fonerall, and the death of the surviving Elders, they for fook the Lord and committed Idolatry with Baalim and Afteroth, ver. 11. 12,

I will never break my covenant with you ] To wit, if you will net break yours with me, by apostasse and Idolatry. V. 2. And you [ball make no league] Exod. 23.33. & 34.15.

Dent. 7.2. & 12.2. why have ye done this? ] q.d. I will not condemn you till I hear what you can fay in your defence. And therefore fland forth and produce any reason, if you can, to justifie these your doings; but I am fure you have not fo much as a colour of any cause for it, being convinced and condemned in your own consciences of your shamefull breach of covenant with your God.

V. 3. as thornes in your fides ] Or, as fourges. See Josh. 23. 13. and the amotations on that place, and Num. 33.55. Chap. ij. and their gods [hall be a fixere unto you] To wit, to intengle in whose land they dwelt, but also of all other nations that you in their idolatry to your perdition. See Exod. 23. 33. & 34.12. Josh.23.13.

V. 4. That the people lift up their voyce and wept 1 i.c. This forces of the angel convincing them of their fin, and threatning them with descrived punishment, did work to effectually upon them, that it brought them to repentance, which they expreffed in their prayers to God, and forrow for their fin, partly arifing out of true contrition and compunction of heart becaule they had offended their good God, and partly out of their fear common name of all their female Godeffes, as Baal of the of having those judgments here threatned inflicted upon

V. c. And they called the name of that place Bothim \ i.e. weepers, fo called by anticipation in the first verse, and here from the event, because the Israelites did weep abundantly in this and they facrificed there unto the Lord ] i e. In the fame place where the angel appeared, as Gideon and Manaoh did; or as fome others would have it in Shiloh neer unto this place where the Tabernacle at this time was.

V. 6. And when Follouth had let go the people? i. c. As they were silembled by his authority, being the supream Magistrate, fo they did not depart to their own places before he had dimiffed them.

V. 7. And the people ferved the Lord all the dayes of Foshuah ] Where the Author prepareth a way for the whole flory of things done in the time of the Judges government; the fum of all is, the fin and defection of the people from God to idolatry, where by kindling Gods wrath against them, they provoked him in his just displeasure to afflict them grievously, by giving them over into the hands and power of their malicious enemies; and then Gods grace and favour towards them, in fending upon their repentance, Judges to deliver them out of all the miferies of their grievous fervitude. And thefe things are fummarily fet down, and in a generall manner from this place to the feventh verse of the third chapter, and afterwards amplified in many particulars to the end of the book. But these words to the 10 verse are repeated out of Joshua, the 24 chapter, and 28 verse, and are here inserted to clear the way to the ensuing flory. See the annotations on that place. in Timnath-Heres] Called Timnath-Serah, Johnson 30, See Annot, on that place.

V. 10. And also all that generation i.c. All the Hiraclites which were of Jouan's age, under twenty yeares old when they came out of Ægypt, and had seen Gods great works in delivering them out of that bondage, in their paffage through the red fea, in the wildernesse, and over Jordan, in their victories over their enemies, and giving the land of Canaan into their

were gathered to their fathers | i.e. Were dead, or in a flate of death, as all their ancestors were.

which knew not the Lord ] To wit, by his miraculous works, of which they were not eie-witnesses their fathers were, nor had any holy impression of them in their hearts by their relation; nor had any effectuall and experimentall knowledge of God in hunfelf, this goodnesse, greatnesse and power, by all petitisions: that they had, heard or feen, fo as it wrought their hearts to faith love and obedience.

V. 11. And the children of Ifrael did evill To wit, in forfaking the true God, and adhering unto idols.

Jaking the true God, and nonering unto 1005.

And [erved Baalin] Baal fignifieth 2 lord, husband, or patron and potector, & in the plural number (as in this place) it was generally used with Idolaters for all their gods; which being many, they used to diftinguish them one from another, being many, they used to distinguish them one from another, by some addition or firname, as Baal-berish, chap. 8.33. Baal-per, Numb. 25.3. Baal-per, Numb. image of a king of Babylon, called Belus or Bel, which Ninus his son and successor after after his death caused to be worfhipped.

V. 12. And they for fook the Lord Either because he re-puteth himself for saken when he is joyned with idols, seeing he puteth himself forsaken when he is joyned with idols, seeing he will be worshipped alone or not at all; or because they were their course, and returning unto God by repentance, he also fo beforted in their idolates, that they did indeed quite for-fake him to follow their idols; herein worfe than those Samaritans, who feared the Lord and ferved also their idols. 2 King. 17. 33. But the former is more probable, feeing the Ifraelites excused their idolatry under this pretence, that they worshipped the true God in these idols, Exod. 3 2. 4. Hos. 2.

which brought them out of the land of Egypt] Under which main benefit all the rest are comprehended; and is here added to aggravate their fin of apoltafie and idolatry, by this their grand ungratitude for so many and great benefits.

and followed other gods ] Or strange gods, i.e. Not the God of their fore-fathers, but of the nations and strangers which lived round about them, which were altogether unknown unto their ancestors, and not onely the Gods of the Cananites dwelt in any of the countries round about them, as the Syrians, Chaldenns, and the reft.

and provoled the Lord to anger ] Which is not spoken in respect of the aff. ction it self (for God is free from all passion) but in reforct of the effect, that is, that they provoked the Lord to punish, which is the effect of a man that is angry.

V. 13. Albraroth] The heathens called this idol Afhtarte which they worshiped in the female fex, and was used for the males, and is therefore also here expressed in the plurall number. But more specially this was the idol of the Sydonians, 1 Kings 11, 5,33, and 2 Kings 23, 13, and of the Philittims, 1 Sam, 31,10, which they worthiped in the form of a sheep. And under this, fome think they worshiped Venus; others, Diana, or the moon

Verf. 14. And he fold them into the hands of their enemies] i. c. He gave them over, as the feller the thing fold into the hands of the buyer. So chap. 4. 2,9. Pfal. 44. 12,13. Ilai. 50. 1. Or, as they use to fell captives taken in war. And this he did, either by casting them out of protection, Pfal. 91. 1. or by giving their enemies occasion to rife against, and affict them. chap.14.4. or taking away their courage and firength, whereby which their milery was much aggravated, in that they were thus fold and given up, not to itrangers that came in as conquerors, for glory or spoil, which out of common humanity might have shewed some mercy, but unto these enemics, who being incented against them by the former wars, breathed nothing but malice and revenge.

Verl. 15. The band of the Lord was against them for cuit]

e. They had no possible means to escape, seeing God himfelt opposed them in all their undertakings, and did cross them in all their enterprifes at home and abroad, and did bring upon them all mischiefs threatened, Levit. 16. and Deut. 28. Vers. 16. Nevertheles the Lord raised up judges] i c. Pitying his people for his own take, he brought them by thefe afflictions to repentance, and then raifed up Judges to deliver them out of the hands of their enemies; and not in an ordinary way, but by the fingular motion of his Spirit; not for a feiled course of government, but for special uses upon extra-ordinary occasions, whom God fitted for this service, and then called them there unto. And this be did, by giving them gifts and graces necessary for their calling, as wildom, magnanimity, courage, fortitude of minde, and strength of body; and then either endowing them with an Heroick fpirit, he called them immediatly to let upon the work, as he did Gideon, Shamgar and Sampson, or else made them so eminent in his gifts and endowments above others, that the people taking notice of them, called them to be their Captains and leaders, an we fee in the example of Jepthe, See ch.3.9,10. & 8.23. & 11.3. And thefe Judges were not continued by succession, that is, as foon as one was dead, another was raifed up to fucceed him in his office, but upon extraordinary occasions, as the state of the people did require it, in respect of their mileries and on-

Verf. 17. And yet they would not hearken to their judges ] i.e. Though they had by them deliverance out of all their miseries, yetticy would no longer retain the purity of Gods true Religion, then they were under their government, and restrained from committing idolatry by their authority; but as foon as they were by their death let loofe to their own liberty, they relapfed into their old courses, and became much worse then they were before.

but they went a whoring after other gods ] i.e. Though they were in covenant with God, and united unto him (as it were in a conjugal bond, yet they brake this bond of wedlock; and like adultereffes defiled themselves with idolatry (as it were) with spiritual adultry.

which their fathers walked in i. e. Their fathers who lived in the days of Joshuahs government, Josh 24.31.

altered his course, from executing judgment to thewing mercy. Sec Gen 6.6

Verl. 19. When the judg was dead, they returned and corrupted themselves ] And this was the continual course which they held with God, and God with them, as appeareth throughout the whole flory of the book of Judges.

and corrupted themselves more then their fathers] i. e. Though their fathers, who lived after the days of Joshua and the Elders, had gone out of the way of their fathers, that lived in their times and corrupted themselves by their apostasse and idolatry; yet thele who were delivered by the Judges, and had made fome thew of repentance and reformation, when the Judges were dead, revolted, and became more abominable idolaters then they were before, or their fathers before them.

ftubborn may ] i.e. In which they stubbornly walked and per-

Verf, 21. I will not benceforth drive out any ] i. c. Although | they attempt to drive out the nations which Joshua left unconquered in the land, it shall be all in vain, seeing I will not give querea in the lane. It mail be all in vain, teeing a with not give them courage and firength to do it, but they finall remain fill to vex them, as their abominable fins have juftly de-ferved, ; which (as all other Gods threatnings) is to be underfervea. ; which as an other Goos threatings is to be inter-flood upon the condition of their continuing in their finnes without repentance, Jer. 18. 7,8. or though they did repent, yet God was fo much diffleated with their idolatry, that he would not cast out this people, and so ease the Israelites of this temporall judgement, so soon as otherwise he would have done, if they had continued constant in his true religion, and not fallen into idolatrie.

Verl. 22. That through them I may prove Ifrael ] i.e. Not that my felf may better know them, who with one fimple act of knowledg, know all things past, present, and to come; but that I may make them better known to themselves, and to all men, and thereby justifi: my righteous judgments, when I cond fin, namely, their interchangeable marriages one with punish them according to their deletts and my former threatenpunits them according to their decision may retire the transportance of the property of the pr Which Joshua left when be died. To wit, that the nations were left unsubdued by Joshua that the Ifraelites mighe hereby be tryed, whether they would continue in Godspure worship, or fall into idolatrie, according to the example of those cursed nations that lived among them.

as their fathers did keep it ] Namely, those who lived in the dayes of Joshua, and the Elders that did survive him.

V. 13. Therefore the Lord left those nations ] To wit, those which are mentioned in the beginning of the following Chap-without driving them out hastily] i.e. Not subduing them to the Israelites presently, though he did it afterwards in the time of David and Solomon, 2 Chron 8.7.

neither delivered be them into the hand of Foshua Not because, though he attempted it he was unable to it, for he prevailed in whatfoever he undertook, and was victorious over all those against whom he fought, but because the Lord did purposely restrain him from going on in his conquests, that hereby he might prove the Ifraclites whether they would ftill adhere unto him in his pure worship, or fall into the idolattie of those

CHAP. III.

Veif. 1. Nom thefe are the nations ] In the 21, verse of the former Chapter, it is said, that the Lord would not cast out before Ifrael tome of the nations that remained, turned unto the Lord from these finnes, to make further triall of them, whether they would continue in faith and obedience, and ftill cleave close unto God in the profession and practice of addeth to the two former another cause or end, why he suffered them still to continue amongst them, namely, to exercise them in martiall discipline.

as had not known the wars of Canada To wit, in the time of Johna, and that to this end, that he might keep the people

V. 2. might know to teach them war ] i.e. That by this continuall exercise of war, they might be able to teach their posterity the use of arms and art of war, that so they might not grow effeminate by pleasure, sloth and ease, nor weak-hearted with peace and reft; and thereby be disabled to refift their enemies in time to come.

V. 2. Namely, the five lards of the Philiftims ] Three of thefe countries over which these lords ruled, to wit, Gaza, Askalon, and Ekron, were formerly subdued in that expedition of Judah and Simeon, chap. 1 18. but were recovered again by the Philiftims (for the finnes of Gods people) with whom they had fled till the dayes of David and Solomon, chap. 15. 11. 1 Sam.

4.2.6.17.

and all the Canaanites] Which is not simply to be underflood of all, taken largely, but strictly of those Canaanites properly fo called, or rather of those alone whose countries and habitations are here expressed.

and the Sidonians | i.e. Those countries belonging to the Sidonians; for the great city Sidon it felf was never in the po-ffellion of the Ifraelites.

that dwelt in mount Lebanon Which is a great mountain on the North fide of the land of Canaan, which abounded with goodly Cedars and Frankinfence, from which it had its name Lebanon, both in the Greek and Hebrew.

from mountain Baal-Heymon | So called from the idol Baal there worthiped. It lay on the east end of mount Lebanon, and northward from Balan, 1 Chron. 5. 23. And mount Hermon on the west end of Lebanon, Deut. 3. 8.9. & 4.48.

nuto the entering in of Hamath] Which is a city on the north fide of the land of Canaan, Numb. 34. 8. afterwards called Antiochia.

V. 4. to prove Ifract] Namely, whether they would cleave unto the Lord in his true worship, or fall away from him by idolatry, See chap. 2.22.

idolatry, See cnap. 2.22.

10 (now) i.e. To make known. So Deut. 8.2.

And the children of ffract dwelt] In this and the two following veries are expressed the Israelites sinners, for which they were given into the hands of their enemies; and first, their fa-miliar conversation and acquaintance with these curled nations in this verfe.

V. 6. And they took their daughters] Which was their feanother, contrary to Gods expresse command, Exod. 34. 16.

V. 7. and forgat the Lord their God and ferved Baalim? Contray to that duty which they owed to their supream Lord and Soveraign, to the many obligements whereby they were bound to Gods fervice above all other nations, and to that Covenant which they had made with him in mount Sinai, and lately renewed and ratified in the dayes of Joshua.

and the groves ] i.e. The idols which they had fet up and worshipped in thick and dark groves, under the goodliest shady trees, which they had confecrated to the honour of their idols, contrary to Gods expresse command, Exod. 34. 13.

V. 8. Therefore the anger of the Lord] i.e. (Like a man that is angry being much abuted and wronged) he refolveth to punish them for these their sins.

and he fold them] See annotat, on chap. 2.14.
of Chu[an-Ri[hathaim] Which is a compounded name, and the latter, as some think a firname to the other; and this was the Ifraelites fieft fervitude, after their comming out of A-

Rings of Mesopotamia ] Heb. Aram-naharaim; or the countrie of Syria, which is scituate between two rivers, Tigris country or systa, wanter strutuse extreen two rivers, 1981s and Euphrates, whence it hathits name, which is allo of the dwall number, that is of the two rivers. In this country Abraham lived with Thare, Nabor and Lot, before the went into the land of Canasai, and afterwards Jacob fojourned there, with Bethuel and Laban, and from thence had his wives.

V. 9. The children of Ifrael cried unto the Lord] i.e. Being brought into great miferies by reason of their servitude, and and the ends also of his so doing, namely, to punish Ifrael for: finding no help from their idols whom they had served, they retheir backfliding and idolatrie; and when thereupon they remercy and forgivenesse.

and the Lord raifed a deliverer] Or a faviour and redeemer, even Othniei, whom when they were fold into the hands of his pure religion; And in the beginning of this Chapter, he fetteth down who these remaining nations were, and withall wherein he (as also the reft of the Judges) was a type of our Saviour Christ, who was sent of God to deliver us out of the hands of all our spirituall enemies.

V. 10. And the Spirit of the Lord came upon him] i.e. The Lord by an extraordinary instinct and motion of his Spirit stirred him up, and called him to undertake this great work, and in the exercile of faith and obedience, seeing they still needed fitted him for it, by endowing himsanth wildome, fortitude Gods affittance against these exemises. and having vanquished him, to govern his people in peace, according to his law, in the profession and practice of his true religion. So ch 6.34 & 11.29.
and his hand prevailed against Cushan-Rishathaim] To wit, for the fubduing of him, and keeping him and his people in fub-

V. 11. And the land had reft ] To wit, from war and fervitude, true religion being restored, and the land slourishing in peace and plenty.

fourty years] Or, to the fourtieth year, reckoning this time from the death of Joshua to Othniels death, as may be gathecontinuall war, fometime the one party, and fometimes the orred from 1 King. 6.1. where are expressed 400 years from the ther prevailing; neither were these enemies wholly vanquicoming of siracle out of the land of Ægipt to the building of coming of the count of the fand of Argynt to the building of Solomons Temple; which if we take the times of the peoples reft and peace, and the times of their opprefilors under their enemies, and of the government of the Judges by whom they earmes, and of the government of the Judges by whom they were delivered, deverally and diffined the one from the other; amount altogether to above 600 years. And if we bring the whole time between their coming out of Egypt to the building of the Temple, to the number of 180 years, as we necellarily must, if we will maintain the Scripture computation to be true, we must not take the times of the peoples oppression under enemies, and of their rest and peace under the Judges severally, but joyn them together in one, and reckon from the death of one Judge to the raifing up of another that succeeded him, and fo beginning with their coming out of Ægypt, there were 40.

Chap. iij. yers under the government of Moles, and from his death to hood, which is time becometh a fecond nature; and sometime the death of Johns and the Elders that survived him, and of affected and attitude dute by practice, as by those complete the complete of the property of the reft, as from Othniel, death to the death of Ehud 80 years, not that he governed fo long, but as here to the eightieth year, including herein the time between the government of thefe including notes that time between the government of take two Judges, whileft the people lived in peace and reft, in the sime of the peoples relapting and living in their fins of apoliance and idolatry, and of Gods forbearance of them, before he inflicted on them deferved punishments, and the time of their inflicted on them cereived punitiments, and the time of their refl and parce under the government of Ebud. Now if it be demanded how it could be faid, that the land reflect in peace, when ded now it comin or raid, that the land retical in peace, want the people lived under the opperfitions of their cruel enemies? To this it is answered, that the feriptures often give the deno-mination of a full number of years, according to the best and greatest parts and under it include the contrary. See Gen. 35. 26. aud Act. 7.14. compared with Gen. 46.27.

V. 12. And the children of Ifrael did evill eggin lie. Notwithflanding the former experience which they had of the ma-nifold miferies which they by the like fina had, brought upon themselves, and Gods great mercy in delivering them out of and the Lord strengthbened Eglon hing of Monb.] To wit, by giving him courage and fortitude, and also willingnesse and resolution to fight against them, and contrariwise by weakning the Eraclites, and making them cowardly and faint-hearted through the guilt of their fin.

because they had done evill i.e. Because they had provoked the Lord to anger by their fhamefull apollatie and idolatry, neuries, as should bring them into a most grievous servitude: For they were their ancient enemies, who alwaies sought their ruine, though they had not provoked them by making war against them; they were enemies to God and his true religion, againtt careful under the control of them thereby to commit idolatey, had brought a fearfull plague upon them) the Ifraelites by Gods command, had made war against them, and therein prevailing, had flaughtered and de-stroyed them. In all which respects, they could look for no mercy at their bands, when as they had got them under their metry as well sensing, support the special state of the sensing of the sensing with the sensing which may be understood, that the Lord, of whom he madely Which may be understood, then to unnish his people, or that last spake, v. 12. gathered them to punish his people, or that Eglon as his instrument did gather them; and that because they were neighbour nations in confederacie with him, and in like enmity against Gods people, Exod. 17. chap. 11. 1 Sam.

and possessed the City of Palme-trees ] i.e. Jericho. Deut. 34 See Annot, on ch. 1.16. For howfoever the city Jeriche 3. See Annot, on ca. 1.10. For nowneever the carry series it felf was burnt and and utterly ruised, yet in the Territories belonging to it, there might remain divers hamlets and villages fit for habitation; or it may be, because it was a place very fruitfull and pleafant, he had seated himself there, and had built some Forts and strong holds neer unto Jericho, to keep in them his Garrisons to over-awe the Ifraelites, and hold them in fubication dwelling neer unto them; and also to fecure the foords and passages over against Jericho into his own Country, funds and parages over against perturbation in some country, not only for continual commerce, but also that he might have fupplies from thence upon all occasions, or a lafe retreat, if at any time he should be over-powred; which was the cause that Ehud, when he was confident of victory, caufed in the first place thele foords to be taken, that fo the Moabites might not eleane by flight, v. 28.

V. 14. Served Eglonthe King of Moab eighteen years] They ferved the King of Melopotamia eight years, and now Eglon eighteen years, because their sinsucreasing, their servitude also was increased. And so afterwards when this would not restrain them from sin, nor keep them in obedience, he made them to ferve Jabin who did mightily oppresse them, chap. 4.3. for the space of twenty years; for when leffer corrections would not prevaile, the Lord laid heavier upon them; and when they abuled his mercy and readinesse to deliver them out of their miferies, when they cryed unto:him, the Lord would not heare them when again they called upon him, but prolonged their afflictions to keep them from prefuming on his mercy and readimelle to forgive for the time to come.

V. 15. A Benjamite ] Or, the fonne of Jemini, whole family belonged to the tribe of Benjamin.

aman left handed Heb. Shut of his right hand, i. e. Not having the like use of it as others have that are right-handed , even as they have not the like use of their left; and this cometh to palfe either from some weaknesse and infirmity of nature, weapons, as those Benjamites, of which we read, chap. 20, 16.

and by him the children of Ifrael sem a present] i. e. Not their ordinary tribute, but a gift of free bounty and homage to gain his favour, these he might not rule with rigour; and with this prefert (by Gods providence). Edud was fent, that hereby he might gain the more free accesse and execute his design without any fulpition.

V. 16. But Ebud made him a dagger which had two edges Namely, that it might the more easily and speedily pierce and make the deeper wound.

of a cubite length] Which was long enough to do the deed, and might with more conveniency be covered under his gar-upon his right thigh] Both because it was most likely that it would not be observed there where a weapon is not usually worn, and that being left-handed he might draw it out with more nimbleneffe.

V. 17. And he brought the prefent unto Eglon | i. c. Though he had many affociates for the gracing of the embaffie, yet he was the man that prefented the gift, to ingratiate him the more with the tyrant, and to gain acceffe when he came a-

and Eglon was a very fat man ] And therefore the more unable to make refiftance, or to avoid the stroke when he was

V. 18. he fent away the people that bare the prefent ] i.e. After that he had accompanied them as far as Gilgal, he fent them homewards, and he himfelf alone returned, that fo he might do the fact with more conveniency, feeing he was the more likely to have accelle without any luspition, when he came alone, than if he had brought many in his company : And that he

but himself, and might slip away with more secretor but himself, and might slip away with more secretor.

V. 19. from the quarties that were by Gilgal) Or the graven images, i.e. either a place where Eglon had set up his idols, the more to vex the children of strate, or to allure them to imbrace his idolatrie, or the quarrie out of which they dig-

Thave a fearet errand to thee] Which Eglon understood should be delivered by word of mouth, but Ehud meant it of an handy act to be executed on him by commission from who faid heep filence] i e. If it be a fecret from God, then hold thy peace till the company be departed that are about me. and then privately acquaint me with it. Others think that he spake this to his attendants, commanding them to withdraw till Ehud had delivered his fecret message.

V. 20. And he was fitting in a [miner parlour] Heb. 2 parlour of cooling; wherein usually in those hot countries they did refreth themselves, as we in our banqueting houses.

which he had for himfelf alone ] i.e. Into which he went when he defired to be private, and therefore now more fit for the hearing of a sccret errand.

I have a meffige from God unto thee ] And therefore to be hearkned unto with more reverence and attention: Which he fpeaketh to amufe and amaze him, that he might be leffe ne quescent or smuse and marke inner, marke lingar de l'este lecdfull in attending to that zétion which Ebud intended, and be supécous of bis [est] j.k. He was (though an heather-nith king), o much affected with the name of 600, that though he were corpulent and tunweildy, he rofe out of his fear, and are-verently flood upon his feet to hear his message, and thereby gave unto Elind the fitter opportunity of giving him that more tall wound.

V. 25. and thruft it into his bellie ] For which he had a speciall commission from God, who had raised him up to deliver his people, verf. 1 :. and therefore is no prefident warranting any to murther Princes, although they be hereticks, idolaters and tyrants.

| nonzers and tyrants.
| V. 22. And the haft also were fw] i.e. The wound was so deep and large that the haft followed the blade.
| and the fat closed upon it ] That is, both on the blade and haft alfo.

and the dire came out ] Or it came out of the fundament, e. notout of the wound which was closed up, but out of the common pattage, as it utually doth in, or a lutte after the pangs of death, when nature hath loft its retentive faculty.

V. 23. Then Ebud went forth through the porth] f.s. He paffed by the kings fervants, that attended there, with a comer (and that most ordinarily) from an ill custome in child- poled countenance, and not over-haltie gate, as one not guilty of fuch a fact, nor in the least measure to be suspected of it, being in this extreamity of dauger supported with an undaunted courage and good conscience, which bare him witnesse that he had done nothing but what God commanded, and therefore he was fafe under his protection.

and thut the doores Which having (as it is probable) fpring-lock, locked in the shutting; for otherwise it is not likely, that he could have locked the doores and carried away the babile. V. 24. Surely be coverab bis feet] i.e. He doth his eafements, which the Hebrews modefily expresse by this parales 15 am. 24.3 because fitting down, the feet were covered with the upper garment, which used to be long, after the fashion of those countries. Some others think, that he lay down to fleep in his fummer room, (as his fervants fuppofed) and on that occasion covered bis feet, as Boaz did, Ruth, 3.7. which might be the cause that they hasted not to come in for fear of awakening him ; which opinion hath in this respect the more and place of delight, than the other did.

V. 25. And they taried till they were assumed ] ie Now beginning to fear because he was so long before he opened the door, that fome evill had befallen him; and that this might be imputed unto them as a fault, and neglect of their lord, they were ashamed of their long staying and not looking after therefore they took a key ] It being usuall in kings houses, to have divers keys for the fame door.

V. 26. and escaped unto Seirath] Neer unto mount E phraim, not far from the place where Egion was flain.

V. 27, and the children of Ifrael. Not all the children of Ifrael, but as many of them as could be gathered together about mount Ephraim and the places adjoyning.

V. 28. and took the foords of Fordan towards Moab] To wit, that the Moabites which were in Canaan, might not escape into their own country, and they which were in the land of Moab, might not palle over Jordan to aid them which were is and suffered not a man to passe over Because the Israelites were a great and well ordered body to make good the place were a great and well ordered body to make good the place, and the Moabites a featered and routed army in flight.

V. 30. and the land had reft four fore years 1 i.e. Unto the eightieth year; reckoning this time from the death of Othniel, and fo taking into the account the time of their defection after and to taking into the account the time of their detection after his death, when they had no Judge over them, wherein they profipered in their apolitife, and the eighteen years in which they were oppreffed by the Moabites. See annotat, on the 11. verfe-

V. 31. And after him was Shamgar the [on of Anath] Concerning this Shamgar the feriputer speakest very lattle. For either the state of th dayes, that they which knew him, knew also his tribe and familie. Neither doth it clearly shew whether he were one of the Judges or no, or if he were, how long he held this place of tary jungers a mojor 1 ne were, now tong are next unspace or [Jungen spins in 1931 time] you continuent, but no orly that he liveceded Ebud, and delivered a [Jungen spins in 1931 time] young whose office was powered and determine causes, from the Philillium when they invaded the land, nor don't retake any more acts of his or videories obtained by of code people for their deliverance, but as a Prophetic from the contraction of the properties though this onely is mentioned, as being of all the reft most famous, if not miraculous.

Which flew of the Philistims fix hundred men with an oxe goade Or, as the vulgar latine bath it, with the coulter or share of a plow but the belt reading is, as we have it, with a goade. Which fome think a weak means to atchieve fuch a conquest, and therefore suppose that many of the country people joyned with him, though he was their Captain and Commander, and so hety, that bordering upon fach enemies, and at this time not in their power, above were in fine tribe of Benjamin, and not of their power, above were foldenderly provided of better waspons; and it is not falt to go from, the literall words of the text, i. 3, 1, 1, 1 for this was in the tribe of Benjamin, at that Ran and the source were well and ungo unded beingledures. And therefore feeling when God is with us, one is fufficient to chaic a thouland, and the weakest weapons frong enough, when be puts strength into it; I see no reason why we may no reason who we may no reason where the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason when the reason we may not the reason when the reason when the reason when the into it; I fee no reason why we may not take the very letter of the text, and think that Shamgar himfelf alone, might as well the text, and mink that Shamgar imment arone; might are flay fix bunded Philiffins with an oxe goad, as Sampion a thoutand with the jaw bone of an affe. And to this I the rather incline, because this here is recorded as a fixinge and mirroulous victorie, whereas there should be no such wonder; if he being affifted with many others had atchieved it.

CHAP. IIIL

Verl. 1. And the children of Israel again did coill in the fight miseries which they in their own experience had found, that their sins had brought upon them, and the great mercy of God in their deliverance upon their repentance; yet no fooner was key, without some suspition if any saw him. Others think, Ebud dead, but they returned to their vomite, and sinned more that he file out fecretly, none clyping him, which made them think that he was fill with their lord; but this is not fo promade of shangar, who was between Ehud and Barak, because of his thorrtime, and the few things done in his dayes, which tended onely to a preventing offuch miferies and fervitude which the Philislims were ready to bring them into, and not to any perfect deliverance out of them, into the hand of Fabin king of Canaan] We read of another Jabin king of Hazor; which was the head of those kingdomes in the North of Canaan, Joth, tr. 10. and their king the chief in the confederacie of those kings in the war against Irael, whom a defleting bins, which opinion hash in this respect the more the consecurate of those kings in the war against lifetile, when be robability, not eachy because it was the collome for do in John was not the lifety, and burnst. It is city to the ground, their hor counties, as we fee in the example of litholitesh and David, but because this better furthed with a fundment parlour, and place of delight, than the other did.

V. 2. And the Lord [old them] See the annotat. on the chap a. verf. 14.

And this Jabin was his fonce, on Nephew, who fucceeding and place of delight, than the other did.

And this Jabin was his fonce, on Nephew, who fucceeding him, gathered fitengths and re-built Plazor, and making war againt life and the place of the control of the production into a grievous fervitude.

into a grievous tervitude. king of Canasa ] i.e. Either that part of the land properly fo called, or of all the North part of the whole country, be-cause his city was chief and the head of all the rest, Joshua which dwels in Harosheth of the Gentiles] Which was a vast woody strong place, whither the relicks of the conquered nations reforted to inhabite there, as being most fafe and defensible against the Itraelites, And this (as the Hebrews report) being of a large and ample circuit, the inhabitants built in it di-

ing of a large and ample circuit, be immatiants built in it deverse cities and fitning caffle;

V. 3. And the children of I fract cryed unto the Lord] No doubt they cryed long before this time that the Lord gave them deliverance, in the fend of their gives miferies and opprefitous, but not with their hearts, like those, Hof. 7: 14. and therefore the Lord did not hear and deliver them; but now joyning with their cries, faith and unfained repentance, the I ord heareth and fendeth deliverance.

For he had nine chundred bariots of iron] i.e. which had fastned in their axie-trees, on either side iron books like sithes, which cut in sunder all that stood in their way, and two inter, which cut in funder all that flood in their way, and two other hooks bending towards the ground, which did teat shofe that fell down under them. See John 17.16.

and trentile sports bengithing sperified the children of Ifast I is, Not onely as a conquertour, but also as a malicious enemy, out of bitter and shape twenge, because they had formerly call his people out of their individual content in the children of Ifast I have an adverted you mind and burnt Hazer his royal cities. The there is the children of the chi haynous fins had utterly rejected them.

V. 4. And Deboraha Prophetesse, the wife of Lapidoth, see judged I [rael at that time] Not governing chiefly and properly him, although it is very probable, that there were divers more | felling and directing the people that came unto her in hard and difficult causes, revealing unto them the will of God by the spirit of Prophecie. And of her, who was of the weaker sex, God makes choyce to effect this great work of the peoples deliverance, to manifest his power in the weaknesse of the means, that he alone might have the whole glory of it.

palme-tree of Deborah | So called because the dwelt there.

Between Ramah and Bethel in mount Ephraim] i. e. Upon the edge or utmost border of mount Ephraim. For Ramah and Bethel neer this place, were in the tribe of Benjamin, and not of by reason of oppression, sometimes also for judgement in some difficult cases, the being a Prophetesse.

V. 6. And fbe fent and called Barak] Namely, in the authority of a Propheteffe (ummoning him in the name of God; from whom the had speciall direction so to do, as appeareth by the words following in this verfe.

out of Kedefb-Naphtali] So called, to diftinguish it from o. ther places of that name, as Kedesh in the tribe of Iffachar, Chap.iiij. Merom and the lake of Genefareth. John 19, 23, 27, and 20. for thee and give thee the victory. See v. 6, ch. 5, 20, 2, 3 mm. 7. & 21. 23. which was a city of refuge and belonged to the Prieffs Iofh. 20.7.

first not the Lord God of Ifrael commanded > 7 By this interrogation the inforceth an affirmation ( as is usuall with the Hebrewes) as though the should have said, the Lord hath affuredly commanded thee. So vers. 14. and chap. 6. 14.

draw towards mount Tabor.] A mountain scituate in the numost border of the tribe of Issachar, and between Issachar and Naphtali, hard by Nazareth on the East fide, and neer the West border of the tribe of Zabulon by the river Kishon. See chap. 5, 21. Pfal. 83, 9. On this mountain our Saviour Christ was transsigured, Mark. 9, 2.

And take thee ten thousand men ] Which command doth not firifily tie him to this number, nor to these tribes alone, for there came in to their affiftance voluntarily of divers other tribes, as of Ephraim, Benjamin, Manaffeh and Iffachar, other tribes, as of Eparam, benjamin, Mananen and Inatual, and the reft which withdrew are reproved, chap. 5. 14. 15. and Meroz is curfed for neutrality, verf. 23. But thefe tribes more especially are called in to this service; First, because being neer at hand, they were in greatest readinesse to be fuddenly raifed. And fecondly, because they were more interreffed in this warr, feeing they were under greater op-preffion than the other tribes, especially Naphtali, unto which Hazor and Hazaroth belonged; and unto this might be added, that Barak being of this tribe and in good effeem, they would be more willing to give him affiftance.

Verf. 7. And I will draw to thee _____Sifera ] Not by any force or outward compulsion, but by inclining his heart to make war against thee. So Cant. 1, vers. 3. Joh. 6. vers.

with his chariots and multitude] For as Josephus relateth it, he had in this army ten thousand horse and 300000.

Vers. 8. if thou wilt go with me, then I will go ] whereby he doth not show that he had no faith to believe her message from God, (for the Apollie commendeth him with other worthies for his faith, Heb. 11. 32.) but onely that his faith was affaulted with doubting, and needed this help for its confirmation. And fecondly, he would have her to accompany him in this fervice, that being a prophereffe the might on all occasi-ons counfell and direct him, and also pray unto God for a bleffing upon his endcavours.

blefting upon his endeavours.

V. 9. [half not be for thine honour] i.e. Because thou doft that hereby discover thy diffidence and doubting; thou shalt not figure, have that honour, and praise that is due to a Generall for obtaining fo great a victoric, but a poor weak woman shall share with thee in the glorie of it; because thou wouldest not out his hasty flight on his feet. of thy fear and weaknesse in faith, go out to battle according to Gods command, unlesse supported by a woman. Yea, but God had promifed, veril. v. that he would deliver Sifera into Baraks hand, if he would go out to fight against him; and how then was this promife verified, when as Jael kill'd him > I answer. sleep, that slie might fer upon her intended worke. And there is a twofold kind of delivering, one when he and his army were delivered by victory, another when as his person and life verse 25. as a special act of her wisedome and polliwere delivered to death; and Barak should bave had the ho- cie. nour of both, had it not been for his diffidence, but for want of faith and affiance, he was deprived of the latter, howfoever he ing neer unto mount Tabor, whither he was commanded firong enough for her intended ufe.

to go.

with ten thou[and men at bir feet] i.e. Who matched after in him as their Generall in due order, and as it were trending in Church and people, which had been cruelly opperfied by this fleps. The like Hebrailine we have, Essol. 11. 8.1, this tyrant, but was now by God deligated to defluction;

King. 20.12.
V. 11. Now Heber the Kenite] This digression is made to shew the reason why Jack the wife of Heber, came to dwell in the land of Naphtali, and there did this exploit, feeing the Kenites dwelt in the lot of Judah ; namely , because he had for some causes , not expressed in the Scripture, fevered himfelf from the rest of the Kenites, and here pitched his tent in the tribe of Naphtali.

V. 13: mother tiver (Fifthers) Which first ariseth out of the hils of Tabor, Hermon and Gilboa; and afterwards dividing it fell into two parts, one of them unneth into the midland fea, the other into the lake Genefareth.

V. 14. 119] i.e. Presently set upon the work, and sear not to emer into the battle in respect of the great strength and multitude of thy enemies. the Lord hath delivered Sifera] i. e. He will as certainly deliver him into thy hand, as if it were already done. See Annot.

. Chron. 6. 72. and Kedefn in Judah , Joffn. 19. 23. and | Is not the Lord gone out before thee? | i.o. Moff certainly the

V. 15. And the Lord discomfitted Sifera i.e. Howsoever he used Barak and the army of the Israelites as means and instruments to ferve his providence in the obtaining of this victory vet the Lord himfelf was the chief agent and principall cause that effected it, Prov. 21. 31. partly by taking away the courage and strength of the enemy, and possessing away the con-fear and astonishment; and contrariers, by putting courear and attonument; and contrativité, by pitting cou-rage and fortuide into the hearts of hispopole; and allo (as Jofephus relatetà it) by fighting against the Cananites from heaven, fending into their faces an impetuous simone of hayle, as in Joshuabs time, Josh. 20. 11. and in Samuels, I Sam. th. 7. v. 10. unto which Deborsh alidetile, chapter, 4.

V. 16. And there was not a man left ] i.e. In the field to make any refiftance, but were all routed, Icattered, and flaughtered. Pial.14.3. & 53.3. Rom.3.12. V. 17. For there was peace between Fabin — and Heber 7 i. e.

No open hostility, Heber standing in a neutrality ( in respect of martial undertakings) between Jabin and the Ifraelites, although he joyned with Gods people in the profession and practice of the true religion, whereby he enjoyed peace with both. but not with the Canaanites by oath and covenant, for then Jaels act had been faulty,

V. 18. Turn in my Lord, fear not ] Seeing I will paffe my promife to hide and fecure thee from them that purfue thee; by which fair words the deludeth him , intending nothing leffe , but rather his utter ruine , as the fequel fhewerb. And therefore howfoever her cause was good in the matter of it, in that the lought to destroy an enemy to God and his Church, who was already profcribed and deftinated to death, and not out of any felf-end and respect, ( for he and the were in peace together ) yet the in the manner failed, carrying on her defign with lying and treathery. In which regard, the same may be said of her, that we say of the Ægyptian Midwives, and Rahab, that God accepted her work, and bleffed her for it; and of his own free grace pardoned her fin and failings in the carriage of it.

She covered him with a maule ] Pretending herein her love and care, that hereby she might hide him from those that and care, that hereby he might have non from those that pursued him, if any happened to come into the tent, or be-ing in a great heat, to keep him from catching cold; but intending hereby to bring him the sooner to fall asseep, that with more conveniency she might execute her de-

V. 19. for I am thirfly To wit, through grief and vexation of heart, and heat, faintneffe and wearineffe, by reason of

and she opened a bottle of milk ] i. c. Either because it was next at hand, or to shew unto him the greater respect, or as fitter for him to drink than cold water being in a great heat; but in her own intention to bring him the fooner aat this Deborah seemeth to ayme in her fong, chapter s.

V. 20. thou fhalt fay no] This he requireth, but the prudently giveth no promise unto it.

faith and amance, ne was separate a name.

N. 21. Then fail Hebers wife took a name of necessary to the former.

V. 10. And Bardy called zebulum and Naphalito Kelefoll long pin pointed with iron, utele to fallen the cords of the Which was a tity of Naphali, where Barak was borne, unto which he called them and there muftered his army, as be-

And fmote the nayle into his temples | This act proceeded from inspired in an extraordinary manner and measure by his spirit, seeing she is so highly commended for it by the Holy Ghost, and pronounced blessed above women, chapter 5.

24. V. 22. Fael came our to meet him! Namely, to congratulate his victory, and to bring unto him the good newes of Sifera his death by her hand, who if he had lived and escaped, might have renewed his strength, and raised a new war against Gods

People.

V. 22. And God fubdued on that day Habin ] i.e. By the flaughter of his army , the delfroying of his chariots and horfe , and the death of his Generall , that he was now fo fare from having any power to oppreffe Godspeople, that he was not able to defend it hindle against them. V. 24. And the hand of the children of I fract professed I. Heb. going went and was heard, i.e. Prevailed to long until finall destruction.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. Then ] i.e. After this great victorie obtained they sung praises unto God, who was the chief author of it, As Moles and Miriam did, when they saw the Ægyptians drowned in the red fea.

Sang Deborah and Bara( ) She as a Propheresse composed the song, and being also a chief agent and instrument used by God in the obtaining of this victorie, the breaketh out into

people.

when the people willingly effered themselves] Whereby is chiefly understood the two tribes of Zebuhan and Naphtali, chapter 4, 10, and 5, 18, but with them also the other tribes that came in to affift them in the day of battle, as Ephraim, Manaffeh, Iffachar, verf. 14. 15. though Zebulun and Naphtali first appeared, comming in as volunteers at the found of the trumper, Barak having no authority to preffe them to the fervice.

no authority to prehe them to the terrice.

V. 3. Hear Oh je kings, give eare Oh jetprinces! In a rapture of joy postically expertised, the calletta in kings to be her auditors, and spectators of Gods works of wonder, which he had done for his people, in avenging them on their mighty enemies, that they might learn not to glory in their own flrength, feeing it is God alone that giveth the victorie, neingus, iceing it is God alone that given the victorie, nor pretiuming on their own power, ale cruelty and pride in their opprefilors, feeing there is one mightier than they, who can give deliverance unto the opprefied, even when they are helplesse and hopelesse, Ecclesiast.

V. 4. Lord when thou wentell out of Seir ] i.e. When the Edomites denying thy people passage through their country, thou didit cause them to fetch a compasse about it, and going before them in a cloudie pillar, didft lead them in a long circuit into the land of promife, after they had the dudy of the state of the st tical expression, or those nations inhabiting that part of the earth, i.e. both Edomites, Amorites and Canaanites trembled for fear of the Ifraelites neer approach. See Deut. 2.

25. and Josh 5. 1. The beaveus dropped] i.e. With extraordinarie showers and florms, Pfal.68.2.

V. c. The mountains melted ] By these poeticall and hyperbolicall expressions is shewed, how the nations were affrighted and amazed, when God shewed visible fignes of his power, in protecting his people as they travailed towards the land of promise. So Plal. 68. 15,1628cc.

even that Sinai] i.e. Even as mount Smai had formerly done, when God gave and proclaimed his law. Others conceive, that these words are to be understood of those thunterve, tract mete words are to be understood of mote fulli-ders, lightmings, earthquakes and tempests, whereby God manifested his glory and Majestic, at the giving of the law upon mount Sinai, because then also he is said to have come from Seir , Deur. 33. 2. and the shaking of Sinai is trom seir, 1 eur. 33, 2, and the shaking of sinal is here also expressed, veri, 5, and so also Pal. 86, 7.8. But leaving every man to his choyce, and submitting my self to better judgements, I still rather incline to the former interpretation, because the former wonders were far more remote than these last, which were but of late 3 and beingstill fresh in the peoples memories, were fit to make the deeper impression. Secondly, because this dread, fear and tremimpression. secondly, because this dream, rear and the bling which fell upon the nations, was before prophetical of and promifed, that it should be, not at the giving of the law, which was done long before, but when they took their journey towards Canaan, and had paffed they took their journey towards Canaian, and Bad pally and have power towards their files and juridication, and were the river. Amon. Deut. 2. 34, 55. Thirdly, because we read at the giving of the Lawr, of much freely pour common people, who dust not ravell in the high-mack and darknetic, but of no stormer, dropping of the cloudes and raiming. But effectally, this moveth me robbers, may now feeting the contraction to be of this mind, because this going out of Suir, camnot be meant of Simil in this place, seeing God is never and the contraction of the seeing God is never that the contraction of the seeing God is never that the contraction of the seeing God is never that the contraction of the seeing God is never that the contraction of the seeing God is never the seeing God is never that the seed and the seeing God is never that the seed and the seed a the to have come out or sina, and the next words for lower is the state of arming mater ] i.e. They who welllowing do expound the former, and plainly five with a fairing the and indangered when they went out of their chies what place God went, namely, then the marchaelf sea of the field of Edon, then the card trembled, &c.

(4)

untill they had brought him and his people to an utter and | V. 6. In the dates of Shangar ] i.e. Though he had begun a great deliverance out of the hands of the Philiftims. by a wonderfull victorie, wherein he had at one time flaine fix hundred of them with his own hands; And tiante in hundred of them with its own hunds 3 and though Jack, who living at the fame time, was accepted of God for her great zeal in feeking the good of the pople, and freeing them (all the might) from cruel opperfilions, the which now the hath more clearly manifefled , in putting her felf upon that great and dangerous work of killing Silera their chief enemy, yet in the vones, Gods people remained under the great oppressions of their enemies, so as it was not safe to travell in the high-Stoof multe obtaining of mis victories, the orranem out most of mear tensines, to east was not just to traven in the agend Gods prairies by finging it, being composed to the glovy of Gods prairies by finging it, being composed to the glovy of Gods prairies that given this victory, and Barak joyned with the common of the grant of Efai. 22. 1. Lam. 1.4.

V. 2. priise the Lord, for the exenging of lifual ] i.e. For V. 2. priise the Lord, for the exencing his unit judgements in the defination of Sitera and executing his unit judgements in the defination of Sitera and executing his unit judgements in the defination of Sitera and executing his unit judgements in the defination of Sitera and the summary, and subduming the Canazanites and their king Jabin. In the summary and subduming the Canazanites and their king Jabin. In the summary and subduming the Canazanites and their king Jabin. In the summary of the s ed by-pathes, that the enemies might not discover them , and to forlake the beaten roades, that they might escape rob-

> V. 7. the inhabitants of the villeges ceased ] i.e. Unwalled townes lay wast and forsaken, because the Country people not daring to dwell in them , as being undefensible against enemies, were constrained for the safeguard of their lives and goods, to retire themselves into their walled cities and places of itreme untill that I Deborah arofe, that I arofe a mother in Ifrael] i.e. Till I as a governesse and a Prophetesse, teaching them Gods will, and with no leffe care feeking their good, and tendering them in their mileries, than a loving mother her dear children, have encouraged to this war, which hath freed them out of all

V. 8. They chose new gods ] i.e. Because by their shamefull aposlasse they fell away som God and his pure worship, and committed idolatry with the heathen Idols; therefore he raifed against them on every side these cruell enemies, and plagued them with all these miseries of war, chapter 2. 10.

and 4. 1. then was war in the gates ] i. e. It extended with the mileries of it, not only to their villages and unwalled townes, but even to their cities and places of their chiefest strength; and their very gates, the place of their going out and coming in for commerce, and of their judicature, were not free from the enemies in-roades, fo as there was no exercise of trading, or the

was there a fhield or fhear feen ] Either because their enemies subduing them had quite disarmed them of all their weaoons and ammunition, 1 Sam. 13.19, 22. or elfe had brought them into such a flavish fear, that not one among fourty thoufand of Ifrael durst be known to have them. And this is more probable, as being implyed in the text; for it is not faid, that they had not shield or spear, but that they were not seen among them. Levit. 26.26.

V. 9. My beart is towards the Governours of Ifrael] i.e. From my heart I honour and love the governours and heads of the tribes, who offered themselves to be Captains and Leaders in this war, by their example encouraging the common

V. 10. Speak ye that ride on white affer] i. e. Such as were fat and faire, bright, flick and fining, and upon which Princes and Governous used in those dayes to ride, as an enfigu of and Governous used in taole dayes to ride, as an enigh of their honour, flate and powers; let fuch bleffe the Lord, and speak of his great acts. See chap. 10.4. & 12.14.

Je that fit in judgement and wall, by the was it. Ye that are chief Magistrates and Judges among the people, and ye also of the common fort who usually walk on foot about your businesse, and travail in the high-waies, do you all joyn together in praising the Lord for this great deliverance, by which you have recovered all your priviledges. So that your water you have recovered an your priviledges. So that your Princes, who were abased by Jabins tyranny, may now again ride in bonour, your Judges and Magistrates, who had all their power and authority in executing justice and judgement taken from them, are now restored to their places, and have power to execute their office and jurifdiction, and Chap v. (a commodity scarce, and yet most necessarie in those hot and Captains and souldiers, but even series and schollers are scarce as a scarce and schollers and schollers are scarce as a scarce and schollers and schollers are schollers and schollers are schollers and schollers are schollers and schollers are schollers and schollers and schollers are schollers are schollers are schollers. ding themselves about those places, assaulted them when they came out to draw water with hidious out cries, and fearfull alarams, took them prisoners and brought them into flavery; or if they filled before they could come fo neer, that their arrowes at them, wounded and killed them; fo as they could not come to draw without imminent danger, from which they are now wholly fecured by this victoric.

there they (half rehearfe the righteous acts of the Lord 1 To wit, in avenging his people on their enemies, and delivering them from their oppressions.

of his villages in Ifraei] Which were in most danger, because least defensible, but now by this victory safe for habitation.

then solution the people of the Lord go down to the gates] i.e.
They shall now enjoy free liberty to go out and in by the gates of their cities sall forts of people, both citizens and they
of the country may have free commerce one with another, and now come without danger, to their markets and courts of inflice, whereas before this victory there was war in the very

V. 12. Amake amake Deborah] In a Rhetorical elegancie of speech, she stirreth all others to praise and thanksgiving, and beginneth with her felf, rowfing up her own spirit, that she might be a president and example for their imitation; like a cock who awaketh himself by clapping his wings, before by his crowing he awaketh others.

Lead thy captivity captive] ie. Lead them captive that kept thee and thy people in captivity, Plalm. 68. 18. that is, after thy victory lead them in triumph; neither doth that hinder, that the people of Ifrael where bound by Gods law to kill all of these cursed nations which they libdued, feeing after their triumphing over them, they might put them to death, as appeareth in the example of the five kings of Canaan thus used by Joshua, Toth. 10. 24. 26.

V. 13. Then be made bim that remaineth have dominion over the nobles ] i.e. The Lord made the remainder of the children of Ifraell, refcued by this victorie out of the tyranny of the Canaanites, to have now dominion over the Lord made me bave dominion 7 ie. Me Deborah though of the weaker fex , he hath made to have dominion over the mightie , and by my counfell and incouragement to subdue great Princes and Comman-

V. 14. out of Ephraim ] Here Deborah beginneth to relate how the feverall tribes acquitted themselves in this expedition, praising or blameing them according to their merit or demerit.

was there a root of them against Amelek? ] Some take this root to be Deborah, a Ephramite, and dwelling upon mount Ephraim, Chapter 4. 5. the root and first mover in this expedition against the Canaanites, and the Amalekites, the antient enemies of Israell, who joyned with them and gave them their affiftance in this war. Ohad engaged themselves in this present warr, and amongst the reft, the Ephramites who are tearmed a root, because Deborah dwelling among them, they by her coun-fel and infligation, had an hand in the first beginnings of after thee Benjamin ]. Which fomel understand as an apostrophe unto the Lord, as though the meaning were, Benjamin, Oh Lord, came next after Ephraim, to affift thy armies in this warr ; ... Others ( as is more probable ) this it as spoken to those of Ephraim, who came out in 40. Deut 3, 11, 13, Josh. 13,24,25,31, they stayed at home this expedition and were followed by Benjamin as their under the same pretences, and because they lived beyond prefident.

out of Machir came governours] i.e. The Manaffites defeending from Machir, the first borne of Manasseh, Josh. 17. 1. which must be understood of that half of the tribe which dwelt within Canaan, and not of that beyond Jordan, in the land of Gilead , for they are afterwards reproved for deferting Gods people in this warr, verse came down governours ] i.e. Prime men, who where either chief Magistrates in their own country, and therefore very praife-worthy for bazarding themselves in such a dangerous expedition; or else such as were fit for the place of Captains and Commanders, and therefore men most necessarie at such a time and for such a fervice.

and they out of Zebulon that bandle the pen of the writer ] s.e. Not onely luch as by their profession were fit to be with the rest in taking up armes to fight Gods battles, and help their brethren.

V. 15. And the Princes of Islachar were with Deborahl i.e. Agreed with her to give her their assistance when they were required. even Islacharl i.e. Not onely the Princes, but also a great part of the tribe, together with Barak, who was

he was fent on fost into the valley] i.e. Being so com-manded by God he lef the mount Tabor, a place of frength and advantage; and went down on foot into the valley, that is, he with his army being all foot-men, were very willing to take any paines in this fervice, and were content to fight with the Canaanites in a place of great disadvantage, in respect of their iron chariots and horse-men, which were in the vallyes of greatest use.

For the divisions of Reuben there were great thoughts of heart ] Or in the divisions of Reuben. If we take the words according to the former reading, then the meaning is, that there were great reasonings among the other tribes that favoured the cause, and much muttering and murmuring against Reuben, in that being a rich and powerfull tribe, they should defert their brethren, and with them the cause of God, either for love of eafe or cowardly fear : Or if we take them in the latter reading, then the meaning is, that they had these reasonings and disputes one with another, one party holding that they ought not to defert their brethren, and with them the cause of God and his true religion, and the other, them the Caulée of Vood and his true trulgion, and the court, which were the Hronger and more prevalent, what they ought chiefly, and in the first place to provide for their own peace and latery, which they could not doe, firthey engaged them-felves in this war: They, being weary of this gireous ferruitude under this cruel yrant, shought that they should, take this opportunity of freeing themselves out of its but the maintained that herein they should must deleperate dariger in rifing against a mighty and potent tyrant, unto whom also they had submitted themselves as tributaries and affol they had informed utermerves as tributaries and vaffols; feeing if they miscarried in the action they, should be utterly lost and tuined; and therefore it were better to forbeare, till they did see the issue, and in the meane time to enjoy their eafe, with their wealth and pleasures in peace and fasety, and not unnecessarily run themselves into such desperate dangers. Others think that they did desert the cause out of the pride of their hearts, because they would not follow the conduct of a

V. 16. Why abodeft thou among the scepfolds ] i.e. Why diddest thou. O Reuben, defert thy brethren, and stay at home under fo poor and bale a pretence of tending thy flocks, because thou art fo rich in them and aboundest in cattle, Num. 32. 11. 25. which must be carefully looked unto, to preferve them from miscarriage ?

to hear the bleatings of thy flocks ] Where he upbraideth them for being more affected with hearing the bleatings of their theep then with the out-cryes, grones, and complaints of their thers (but with leffe probability) take it to be Joshua poor breihren under Jabins eruel tyranny, and therefore chose an Ephramite, who subdued Amalek, Exodus 17. 13. For the Authors scope here is not to commend Joshua, vous oppression, than by assisting in this war against the 194 for that which was done to long agoe, but thole who rant to hazard the losse of all, if he prevailed; which argue their covetousneffe and basenesse of spirit, in that, under fo poor and fordid a pretence, they did defert the cause of Gods people, which was of such weight and concern-for the divisions of Reuben ] See Annotations on verle

V. 17. Gilead abode beyond Jordan ] i. e. The tribe of Gad and the other half tribe of Manasseh, unto whom, (together with Reuben) Gilead was given by Moles, Numb. 32. 22, Jordan, and were not yet opprefied by Jabin, nor like to be, unleffe they provoked him by Joyning with their brethten in this war against him, which they might forbear, to do under a fair pretence, that they were separated from them by the River, and in such a distance, that they could not come time enough to their affiftance.

why did Dan remain in the ships Dans inheritance did lye in the West border of the land of Canaan, and did extend to the midland-fea, having Japho or Joppa in their lot, an haven town upon the Mediterranean, from whence they traded in merchandize with other countries, which fo wholly took them up (as they pretended) that they had no leafure to affift their brethren. But one of the Rabbins affirmeth this to be the true cause which made them hold back, because out of cowardize and fear they durft not affilt them, against to powerful a tyrant, but rather thought of fleeing away by fea, having field a tyrant, but rather thought of fleeing away by fea, having field Offing of shipping, if he should prevail against their brethren, neither in somer or succeeding ages s which stemeth to me though hereby they did willfully banish themselves out of the to be one effect of this curse, that the very name and memory-promised land, and the place of Gods prefence, where they all die is wholly extinct and blotted out. So Prov. 20 a New to the state of the state of enjoyed his holy ordinances. Afber enerinued on the fea [hore] For the inheritances both of Dan and Afher lay for the most part on the sea coast, Josh. 19. 24. 26. 40. & 46. and fo pretended the like excuses to defert and abode in his breaches or creeks ] Either from thence to follow his marchandize, or under pretence of his necessary staying at home to mend those breaches, which the sea by breaking in with fea floods had made, left neglecting to do it timely, they should be enlarged, and so their country in dan-

V. 18. in the high places of the field] i.e. Descending from mount Tabor, whither God had lent him to begin the war, into fervice they hazarded themselves in the cause of God, and for the good his people, though never fo dangerous through the great difadvantage of the plain champion, that was more fir for Sifera his horse and chariots, than for their soot army, chau. 4. 10.14.

V. 19. The kings came and fought ] i.e. Jabin and his confederate kings of Canaan, or their Generalls and Captaines under their command.

oer their comminant in Taxasab by the waters of Megiddo]. These two were rivers in the tribe of Manasifeh, which had two cities adjoyning to them called by their names, John. 19. 19. For Jabins arm was so hugely was and aumerous, that it siled all the champion was to bugely wait and aumerous, that it liked all the Champion egintry, and therefore though it is faid, that this battle was fought neer Tabor and the river Kilhon, chap. 4. 6.9. Pfal. 83. 9. and here in Tanach by the waters of Megiddo; both these may well stand. seeing these places were neer one another though in divers tribes, and so the battle might begin in one place, and through the retreat or flight of the enemy might

They took no gain of money] i.e. They voluntarily came to affift Jabin in this fervice, not expecting from him any pay, but meerly out of malice towards Gods people, from whole o-verthrow they looked for much spoil, though they utterly failed in their hopes, for they got nothing by the bargain, but loft all they had and themselves also.

They fought from beaven] i.e. The moteors from heaven, as wind, thunder and hail (as it were) confpired to work their raine, as it was in Joshua's and Samuels time, Joshuo. 1 Sam. And fo here, as Josephus in the fift book of his antiquities relateth, there fell in the time of this battle, an hideous fforme of rain and hail, blown by the winds into the faces of the Camannites, whereby more of them perifhed than by the fword of the Brasilies. Or it may be that they were terrified with the noise of an approaching army from heaven, as the Philiftims in Davids time, 2 Sam, 5.24. and the Syrians in Jehorams taign, & King. 7. 6. the starrs in their courses fought against gisoral i.e. They in their thations, like Souldiers ranged in a battle, as the work of food, with their inflatners rating their flormer and horrible temperls, configured allogether with earthly creatures, to work the tutine of Sifers and Wastuny. By which kind of Speeches and Interview of the Company of the Company of the and Interview of the Company of the Company of the Company Hindlites, burverbards Load himfell, both from heaven and earth, by all manner of means and creatures, did fight against as by reason of the mightie storme of rain and hail, being suddenly rifen to a great height, they were drowned in it, feeking er and providence. milieir flight to paffe over it, or swelling over its banks, did V. 6. have they n earrie and freep away all the dead bodies that were flain in the battle.

One foulthes high tresten down strength] In which apostrophe to her foul, the excised her self to glory in the Lord, who had heard her prayer, and given her rictory and triumph over her proud enemies, who gloryed in their own ftrength.

N. 22. Then were the borfe boofs broken by means of abeir

Third they could not fland fill upon the ground, yet they be-came unferviceable, and could not but the litaclites, by rea-Ton that through their pride and Romack they brake their thoofs, and foundred their feet in that hot, hard and flony ground with their powings and praunifyings. Others take it that they break their hoofs in their headlong and furious polling away in their flight, to fave their lives; and fo the vulpar latine expressed it.

V. 13. Curfe je Merse ] What this Meroz was no man can determine, feeing there is no mention to be found of it, 109.13. but it is apparant that it was fome city heer the place where this battle was fought, which being of confiderable firength, and able to affift their brethren in this war, were called in to give their affiftance, but refused to do it, and rather chose to stand in a cold neutrallity, out of base and cowardly chole to mand in a com neutrality, our or nate and cowardly fear in respect of the power of their pussiant enemy; which was an hainous fin, for the weaker Gods people were, the more need they had of their assistance, and their insidelity and difruft the greater, in that they refused to belp the Lord, that is, Gods people, for he him felf being omnipotent, needed not their help and was able also to protect his fervants, and them also, if they would have given them their affiftance. And hence it is that whereas other tribes are onely reproved for holding back, Meroz is curied with a bitter curie; and that it might not feem to have proceeded from passion and spleen, it is added that it was backed by divine authority and pronounced by the command of an angel, even the angel of the covenant, Jefus Christ, who is most zealous in the cause of his Church. See hap. 6. 11. & 2,1.

V. 24. Bleffed above women foult fael be] i.e. She shall be praised and magnified for this heroick act, in killing Sifera, among all that shall hear of it, and God shall multiply his bleffings upon her above others, as a gracious reward of this in the tent ] i.e. By which is meant, either that God would in the tent 1.6. By which is meant, either that you would multiply his blefflings upon her in her tent, that is, in all do-medicall affaires, or that the dwelling in a tent, as all the Kenites did, should be bleffed above all the reft.

V. 25. fbe brought butter in a lordly difh] i.e. Either cream n which the butter is, or elfe, after the had given him milk to to drink, the gave him alfo butter to eat; all which kindneffe the ufed to make him to reft the more fecure under her pro-in a lordly difb] i.e. In a rich and fair bowl, befitting a man of his honour and dignity, or elfe, fo large as that he might

V. 26. and with the hammer the finete Sifera Heb. She hammered him, that is, with the hammer the ftroke the navle through his temples.

V. 17. At her feet he bowed, he fell] In which words are rhetorically expressed the postures and motions of a man that hath received a monall wound; not that every particular hash received a mortall wound; not that every particular could be find of Stora in the very lenter, for facing fiftened unto the earth with a pin driven through his temples, should not rife, and bow, and fall; intellation in the pangs of death, in referêt of the fubblance, did formething fultable to all theft, and shart is; that he lay profileze at Judis feer, having the convilions of death upon him the storage of the stor

the convinions or deate upon mm.

V. 28. The mobile of silvaria Here we have another the toricall and figurative amplification befitting a pocifical hymneor fong, whereby is supposed, how it was likely that silvaria mother and her Ladies behaved the melives in their words and actions, upon this occasion of his not present coming; that is, the looked out of a window expecting his approach , the cryeth out when she could not diffeover him, as one impatient of this delay, and reasoneth with her felf and her Ladies, what or this actay, an actionism with her seri and the influence, what the cause might be why he stayed to long. And then is show-ed what was tikely to be spoken by, her Ladies or her felf, to quiet their minds and remove these fears, which was the hopes where the state of prifes upon fenfuall grounds without any respect to Godspow-

V. 6. have they not feed ] i.e. They have furely feed and obtained the victory, and therefore cannot come to foon, be-cause they multibase some sime allowed them to divide the ncelle-work of both fides] i.e. Both fides alike, and of equal

V. 31. be as the Sum when he goeth forth ] i.e. As the Sun 2. Then me the brift bright by means of abert who the trible in 1904 and brightness and from the morning planting 1/2. Though they had many goodly hories fo deal or high noon, therein increased, more and more; so let them and pumpered, that for mere wommonstelle and greamfied of their love their lost increase deally in 1904 hoppings. The standard pumpered, there is no mere wommonstelle and greamfied of their love their lost increase deally in 1904 hoppings. The standard pumpered, the standard pumpered, the standard pumpered, the standard pumpered is not the lost increase deally in 1904 hoppings. The standard pumpered is not the lost increase deally in 1904 hoppings.

18. Plal 37.6: 2 ham 23.4.

And the land had reft fourty yeares | i.e. Unto the fourtieth year, reckoning the time from Ehuds death, or from those eighty years mentioned, chap 3.40. See Annotations on chap-3. 84.

CHAP. VI.

Verf. 1. A Md the chikinen of tifuel did coill inchesight of the

Chap.vi. fure by their fins, but chiefly by their Idolatry, which was that | cry unto the Lord for pardon and help. eminent evill for which they were reproved, verse 10, and for which God inflicted upon them this prefent judgement.

and the Lord delivered them From which expression and some others that follow, fome gather, that neither they were fallen into fo deep a degree of apostasse and idolatry, as themselves formerly and their fathers before them; nor that they were so feverely punished as in times past. For it is not faid, as before, that God fold them as flaves and bond-men to the Midianites, but only that he delivered them; i.e. fo withdrew his protection and affiliance, as that they prevailed against them and pillaged their Country. Neither did he fuffer them to lye under these oppressions for the space of eighteen or twenty years, as before, but only for feven yeares. And for their fine, it is not faid that they added unto their former wickednelle, and corrupted themlelves more then their fathers, at it is chap. 1.9, but fimply, that they did evill only.

imo the band of the Midian | The great ancedor of this people was Midian the fon of Abraham by Keturah, Gen. 15. 2. who gave name to a City and Country scituate beyond Arahia towards the South, neer the red Sea. And likewise his posterity after him were called Midianites. Here Zipporah Moles wife was porn, and the Kenites that descended from Jethro. And this (as fome think) is the Country from whence those whom we call Gypsies, do come. In those dayes they dwels in Tents and lived upon the spoile upon other nations, removing themselves, their wives, children, families and cattle, from country to country, as it best liked them. Against these the Israelites made war and destroyed many of them, when as they laboured to supplant them with their wiles: and now it feemeth, having gotten ftrength, they make that their quarrell of leeking revenge.

V. 2. and because of the Midianites ] i.e. For fear of being furprized and plundered by them.

that children of I fract made them dens which are in the mountains

&c.] i.e. Places, partly for fecrecy to hide themselves and their goods from the Midianites, and partly for defence, if they hap-pened to be discovered by them. Which Dens and Caves re-mained unto Sauls and Davids time; and (as it is very likely) long after, V. 2. the Midianites came up, and the Amalekites, and the chil dren of the east ] i.e. Not the Midianites alone, but also the Amalekites, who were of Efaus posterity, Gen. 36. 12. and al-wayes malicious enemies to the Israelites, and with them also ways materious ejemes to the tracents, and who there are the children of the Eaff, that is, the Arabians who lived Eaftering in reference to Canann, ch. 8.10, 11. Job 1.3. [18,13, 20.31] thefe in a joynt confederacie, configured together to make yearly in-foades into the land of Canaan, bringing with them their wives, families and cattle, before their corne was ripened, partly, that they might live upon the spoile as long as it lasted, or they lifted; and partly out of malice towards the Ifraelites, spoiling all which they could not spend, and carrying away their sheep, oxen, and affes, that the Israelites might have no fullenance to live upon when they were gone.

V. 4. till thou cometo Gaza] Lying in the utmost borders of the land of Canaan Weitward, neer the Mediterranean Sea; whereby is noted, that they walled the whole Country, seven from the saft on which they bordered, and made their entrance to the very borders on the west side.

V. 5. and they came as grafhoppers ] By which hyperbolical expression he noteth their multinude, their Army confisting o an aundred and thirty five thousand able fighting men, besides women and children, and the common ralcality that followed the camp, as appeareth, chap. 8.10. and withall, the horrible Spoyle which they made in the country freing like grashoppers they fell upon every place, and where they came devoured all. and left nothing behind them.

(without number] Heb. i.e. So many, that they were hardly to be numbred. So chap. 7.12. whereas a fmall company is expressed by the contrary phrase, that they are men of number.

See Gen. 24.20.

Visi And the children of Ifrael cryed unto the Lord ] i.e. When all the means in which they had trusted did faile them and their dens and caves could not protect them, then feeing their folly they fought unto the Lord their only rock and refuge, and returning unto him by true repgatance, they cry unto bin for help and Heliverance.

V. 8. the Lord fent a Prophet] Heb. A man, a Prophet; before he would give them deliverance, he fitteth them for it better he would give shirm deliverance, he bitteds them for it; by ufing the Minitery of a Problet to bring them to repen-tance. And Be is faid to have been a man, a Problet, that it might not be thought that he was an Appl find they are Angels in the Scripture called Problets, though Problets are called Angels, Malas, 2, 1. And it may poobably be thought, that this Problets was fent unnot been before they cycle to the Lord, ferring the most them. feeing the wordsrozy be read in the more than perfect tenfe, as well as in the perfect tenfe; thus, the Lord had fent a Pro- he should use for the archieving of it, and the further strengthen-

I brought you up out of Egyp! This he first mindeth them of, as being the prime and principall benefit upon which depenof, as being use prime and principall benefit upon which depen-ded all the rett following.

V. 9. and out of the band of all that opprefled you ] i. e. Not only the Egyptians, but allo all thole nations which raifed war against them in the wildernesse, as the Amalekites, Arad; and the Canaanites, with the Midianites, and drove them out from before you i. e. The Amorites and Canaanites, and gave their land unto you for a poffession.

V. 10. Feare not the gods of the Amerites ] i.e. Do not worthip and ferve them, out of an opinion that they are able to do you hurt, feeing they are but tooks and flones, who are able to do nothing against those who serving me only, are under my protection.

. 11. And there came an Angel of the Lord] i.e. The Angel of the Covenant, the Lord Christ the eternall Son of God. For he is called Jehovah, ver. 14. and the Lord, ver. 16. unto whom Gideon built an altar, which is peculiar to God, verse 24. So chap. 2.1. Gen. 18.17. & 48.16. who of old used to take upon him the shape of a man, to typise his Incarnation; and here appearing unto Gideon as a man, he also resembleth a man in his postures and actions. For as a weary travailer he cometh with his staffe in his band, and reposeth himself under a tree to reft him.

in Ophrah 1 There were two Ophrahs, one in the tribe of Boyona | Incre were two Operans, one in the time of Benjamin, John 8. 13; and this in the tribe of Manifieh, foolible discipling i.e. Of the family of Abiczer, and of the tribe of Manifieh, John 17. 2. So below 7. 34.35. thingked wheat by the wine-profic. Which was under or neer unto the oake where the Angel fate, in an unufuall and fecret place for fuch a purpose, that he might not be discovered; where appeareth the simplicity and humility of those that lived in those times, in that men of special note (such as Gideon was, as being the fon of a chief Magistrate, and had many servants at his command, v. 27.) thought it no disparagement to work with their own hands, and imploy themselves in honest labours.

"to bide it from the Midianites"] Heb. To cause it to flee, to wit; out of the Midianites sight that they might not find it:
To which end he made choice of this secret place, and did not bear out the corn from the eares in the ordinary manner, by using oxen to tread it out, which would have been more subject to fight, but beating it out with a staffe, as being the more fecret way whereby he might conceale it.
V. 12. The Lord is with thee] An ancient forme of faluta-tion, whereby is figuified and wished Gods presence to affist us in all our labours and endeavours, and to protect us from all evill and danger. So Boaz to the reapers, Ruth 2. 4. and the Angel to the bleffed Virgin, Luk. 1.28. and is here used to encourage Gedeon to undertake with confidence this great and difficult work which he was now to perswade him unto.

thou mighty man of valour] Which is spoken not so much in respect of that fortitude that was naturally in him, as of that courage and valour wherewith the Lord would now endow him, that he might fit him for fo great a work.

him, that he migant them for to great a work.

V. 13. If the Lord be with us, why then is all this befallen urlie, why hat he exported us to all these missines and forfaken us in them; which is the usuall complaint of Gods dearns, children, in their extream affishions, and the cause of all their children in their extream affishions, and the cause of all their expostulations, Pfal. 13. 1. & 22. 1. & 77. 2, 3. & 88. 7, 14. lcr. 12.1.2.

where be all his miracles] As if he should say, we have heard much speech of the wonders he formerly did in the deliverances of our forefathers; but our felves in this our miferable condition can have no experience of them, or that he remainsth the fame to us that he was formerly to them.

V. 14. And the Lord looked upon him]i.e. Not in an ordinary manner, but virtually and efficaciously, as he did upon Peter, Luk. 22. 61. by his Spirit speaking powerfully to his heart the fame, things which he uttered to his care.

Go in this thy might] Which I now give thee, and with it my promile to affilt thee in this great work which thou are now to undertake atmy command : namely, the deliverance of my people out of the hands of the Midianites.

have not I fent thee] i. e. I have affuredly called thee to this great work, and therefore pretend no difficulties or difcouragements, feeing I am al-fufficient to give unto thee fuch wildome and power as may inable thee to effect it.

V. 15. O my Lord wherewith [hall I fave I frael] Thefe words proceeded not from a totall want of faith, but from weaknefle in it; for Gideon is one of those great worthies, whose faith is commended by the Apostle, Heb. 11. 32. nor meerly out of distrust in God, as though he would not performe what he had promifed, but as of a man apprehentive of his own weakpeffe, defiring direction how to carry on the work, and what means pher unto them, namely, to exhore them to repentance, and to ling of his faith in the affirmance of good succeffe. So J.uh. 1.24 behold behold, my family & poore | Heb. my thousand is the mea- | then afterwards the manner how it was to be done. neft. i.e. as I am weak in my felf, fo also in my friends and

V. 16. thou [halt fmite the Midjanites as one man] i. c. As eafily as if thou hadft to do but with one man, and not with a great army. V. 17. then shew me a figne that thou talkeft with me] To wit that thou art fent of God thus to fpeak unto me, whereby I may be the better inabled to undertake this dangerous expedition with good conscience, as being called unto it by God, and with refolution and courage, being affured of good fuccesse by his affiftance.

V. 18. and bring forth my prefent Or, meat-offering. For the word may fignific both, and so is diversly taken in divers places, but cannot here be understood in the latter sense, as piaces, but cannot here be understood in the latter lenie, as appeared by the things here prefented; namely, a boyled Kid, and the borth in which it was fod, which were not to be used in meat-offerings, and no mention made of the far, flower or oyle required unto them, Lev. 6. 12. 15, but rather of some food and re-past fit to be presented to a weary travailer; namely, such as Abraham and Lot used when they entertained the Angels, Gen. 18. and 19. For thinking him to be only a man or Prophet, he defireth to give him fuch entertainment as was fit for a travailer, namely, by fetting meat before him, as Abraham, Io, and Manaoh in like cale did, Judg. 13.15.

V. 19. And presented it ] Namely, as a dinner prepared for his re-past, and not for a scrifice, seeing here is no mention made of divers things necessarily required to a facri-

V. 20. And poure out the broth ] To wit, upon the flesh and cakes; which he required, that the miracle which he intended might appear to be the greater; for the more the flesh and cakes were moystened with the broth, the lesse apt they were to be confumed with the fire. So Elias, 1 King. 18.33.
V. 21. And there arose fire out of the rock and consumed the flefb] And so that which Gideon intended for a feast, was by the Angel miraculoufly turned into a kind of burnt offering, that thereby Gideons faith might be confirmed in this affurance, that the service unto which God called him, should be accepted and have good fuccesse, 1 King. 18. 38. 2 Chron.

7. 1. V. 22. And when he perseived that he was an Angel ] i. e. B the miraculous ascending of fire out of the rock, and confuming the things laid upon it, and the sudden vanishing of the Angel

Gideon faid, Alas, O Lord God ] The causes of these affright Gideon faid, Alas, O Lord God 1 he causes or these aurogat-ments when God gave visible figns of his presence, were partly the guilt of fin and mans corruption, IIa.6. 5, partly. Gods pur-rity and glorious Majesty, which maketh the Angels them-felves to cover their faces, verife 2. Job 15, 18, 16, and partly Gods fpeech to Mofes, Exod. 33.10. There shall no man seeme and live. And for these reasons Gideon and Manach were so affrighted, because they had seen the Lord, that they cry out through the weaknesse of their faith, as though they should have presently dyed, and thought it a wonder, if having seen the face of God, their lives were preserved, Gen. 32.30. Deut. 5. 24. But howfoever in this ftate of mortality man cannot live and fee God in his glory, Majesty, and infinite perfections; yet he may fee him in the face of a Mediatour, the Angel of the Covenant Jefus Christ, by whom we have accesse unto God, and are accepted of him, Eph. 1. 6. Rom. 5. 2 Eph. 2.18. & 3.12. And thus these Saints of old faw God, and yet lived.

V. 23. And the Lord faid unto bim] Namely, the fame

v. 23. ezna ure Lora fain univ um jivameiy, tue lame night after he was thus affrighted. peace be unto thee, fear not ji.e. Life, health, and all happi-neffe, all which, the Hebrewes usually expresse by this

V. 24. Then Gideon built an altar there] Namely, upon the top of the rock, by Gods speciall command, as appeareth verin the Tabernacle.

and called it Fehovah-Shalom, i. e. The Lord [end peace] This altar Gideon built, and dedicated it to Christ himself, the Angel of the Covenant, that had appeared unto him, which he calleth Jehovah-Shalom, because he is our peace and Prince of peace, Ifa. 9.6. and the author and giver of all our peace, Ifa. 53. 1. Luk. 2. 14. Heb. 7.2. John 14.27. & 16. 33. Act. 20. and fear of death, and comforted him by promifing that he and tear of death, and contorted nim by promining that he should live, ver. 13. And thirdly, because he had affured him of deliverance, and peace to him and his people, by their victory over the Midianites. Now this is said, that Gideon built au altar, by anticiparion , for he did not build it before first God had commanded him the night following the apparition, ver. 26. when as God gave him divers other directions for the whole carriage of the enluing businesse; for it is usuall in the Scriptures, first to propound a thing in the grosse sum, and then atterwards the manner now it was to be done.

V. 25. Take thy fathers young bullock, even the second bullock, Or, and the second bullock] And it so, then two were commanded to be sacrificed; but in the text mention is mide but of one, therefore the first reading is thought to be the bet-

but of one, therefore the first reading is thought to be the bet-ter. Now it is not apparent why he was called the fecond; only men diverfly gueffe at it; as, because either it flood du-ally in the fecond place in the stall, or at the plow or cart, or was prepared and fatted, that it might be facrificed to Baal; for that it was destinated to that use, and not for Joah his privare fervice, but for the publique use in the peoples idolatrous worship, seemeth the more probable, in that they complain of it as a facrilegious act committed by Gideon, because having pulled down Baals altar, he had facrificed this bullock on the latar which himself had bulle, v. 28.30.

of (even yeares old) bred the fame year in which the Midianites began their tyranny; which it may be, was cholen the ranny should have an end.

and throw down the alter of Beal that thy father hath ] i.e. Standing in his ground as in an eminent place, he being a chief Magistrate. and cut down the grove that is by it ] Dedicated to idolatry , beginning thy calling with the rooting out of Idolatry and re-floring of Gods true worship; that so thou maift go on against the Midianites with confidence, courage, and hope of victory, when thou halt begun a reformation in religion, and suppressed idolarry and superstition, which were the causes that moved God to give them up to their tyranny.

V. 26. And build an altar umo the Lord ] First, idolatry must be abolified before Gods true worflip could be fet up, because they cannot fland together, seeing there is no concord between Christ and Belial, between the Temple of God and Idols, 2 Cor. 6:15,16. and if we will ferve God, the fervice of Baal must be first rejected, 1 King. 18.21.

And build an altar unto the Lord thy God upon the top of this rock] On which God had shewed that great miracle in causing fire to ascend out of it, thereby consecrating it to himself in a speciall manner for this service, i.e. to honour and praise him for delivering Gideon from those frights in which he was for for delivering ordeon from those rights in which he was for fear of death, and for promiting his people deliverance from the tyranny of the Midianites; and also to pray unto him, to make good his premise, and to speed and perfect this great in the ordered place ] Or, in an orderly manner. i. c. either in the place of the rock, which was before appointed to be the place on which the flesh, cakes, and broth were to be laid by the Angel, as fittelt for this service, or that he was to build it, as was commanded by the law, that is, of earth or unhewen flones, fitted for the Sacrifice in an orderly manner, by laying the wood upon it, and the Sacrifice upon the wood, that it might be burned thereon.

and offer a burnt [acrifice ] This office was proper to the Priests; yet in a case extraordinary, Gideon, who was no Priest, did lawfully offer it, having Gods special command with the wood of the grove ] To wit, which grew neer Baals altar, and was now cut down. For the Patriarchs of old, and he heathens in imitation of them, had fuch high places, groves, and shady places, both for privacie, that they might not be inand thady places, both for privacie, that they might not be in-retrupted by any worldly diffractions, and allo to make them more intent in their devotions, being affected with a kind of awfull fear by this shady solitarinesse.

awtun tear by the tingy tollitatinetie.

V. 27. Then Giden took ten men of his feroants] i.e. He executed Gods command in a prudentiall manner, taking so many of his fervants for the quicker dispatch, because it was to be done in that one night before the morning, making choyce of fuch as were (like himfelt) affected with a deteflation of the idolatry of those times ; which showeth that he was a man who was of a more than ordinary ranke, feeing he had fo many fer-vants to attend his commands. But yet because both the city and also his fathers houshold were so corrupted with the Idolatry of those times, in a provident fear and care to avoid danger and tumults, he doth fecretly in the night what God had commanded him, that he might not be hindered whileft he was doing of it; neither did he act this work in the night, that he might not be known who had done it, feeing that could not possibly be long concealed, which had so many hands in the acting of it. the acting of it.

V. 30. Then the men of the City [ald unto Jodfh, I ring out thy fon that he may dye] With a joynt vote they complain to Joath (as being their Magiltrate) of his fon, and would by no other means be latisfied than by his death, because the injury he had done concerned the publique flate, the Idol of Baal, the altar, the grove, and the bullock belonging in common to the whole people and city, howfoever they were in the cuftody of Jeath, as being chief amongst them: Whence it appeareth, that noChap.vi. thing can feem unreasonable to men transported with an ido- have a more fure triall of this experiment, in coming to the thing can term userionapue to men transportea wiri an usor-latrous rage, save lee in the example of the Ephefians about their goldoffe Diana; and in their men here, who in their blind zeal to Baal, will have the life of Gloton before they vould hear what he could fay for himfelf, and require that the father should give up his own fon to their rage and violence, having herein no more respect to Joash, though a Magistrate or chief man amongst them, than if he had been of an ordinary and common rank.

V. 3x. And foafb faid will ye plead for Baat In which words (as fome think) he prudently endeavoureth to from them in this uprore and commotion (as the town-clark the Epheliaus, Act. 19.) by telling them that if there were a fault committed, it did not belong unto them to punish the offendors, being private men, but to the Magistrate who were to judge of it.

bethat will plead for him, let him dye for it! Namely, in this tumultuous way which dissurbeth the common peace.

he that will plead for him, let him be put to death! Joash himfelf had been a worshiper of Baal, but now it seemeth his mind was changed by hearing from his fon (as it may be probably thought) that God had appeared unto him in that wonderfull manner before related, and had commanded him to do all that which he had done a or elfe his naturall affection exceeding his idolatrous zeal, maketh him thus to plead for his fon to pre-whileft it is yet morning ] i.e. Presently and without any further delay.

if be be a God, let him plead for himfelf ] i. e. If he hath fuch divine power as you imagine, he is able to maintain his own unto him; but if not, then he is not worthy to be defended by you, who is unable to defend either you or himself.
V. 32. Therefore on that day be called him ferubbaal] i. c.

V. 3. Interfere on total asy we caucat him genubbats [1, c. 1 my own joath called his fon Gideon by the name of Jerubbaal For fiftength. Jerubbaal fignifieth, let Baal plead for himfelf, 2 Sam. 11, 21.

he is called Jerubbescheth. See the Annotation on that cording a

V. 33. and went over ] To wit, Jordan; for they came our of the cast to invade Canaan. See ch. 7.24.

of the cart to invace canaan. See Ca. 7.2.4.
and pitched in the valley of Ferguel | There were two of this name, one in Judah, Joth. 15. 56. this upon the borders of Hischar and Manalith, Joth. 17. 16. & 19. 18. on the other fide of mount of Giboa, and ending at the City of Jezzel weftward, where the Kings of Ifrael had a royall Pallace, I King.

V. 34. But the Spirit of the Lord came upon Gideon] And as it were, clothed him with wildome, zeal, and fortitude, and so fitted him for this work. So I Chron. 11. 18. 2 Chron.

Abiezer] i.e. The Abiezeites, which were the posterity of Abiezer, and Gideon himself of this family; in which respect they were the more ready to follow him, being of his kindred and allies, and now convinced that God had called Gideon to this great work, though formerly they were fo zealous for Baal, that Gideen feared to let them know his intention to odelroy his altar, left they should hinder him, v. 27.

V. 35. And be seem messeggers throughout all Manasseb ] The one half dwelling beyond Jordan, and the other on the side of and to Afber, Zebulon, and Naphtali] Which three tribes lay together, and were neerest to him.

and they came up to meet them ] To wit, Gideon with the Abiez rites and Manaffites.

V. 36. And Gideon said unto God] i. e. By fervent prayer defired him to give unto him another fign; unto which God gave him no verball answer, but hearkened to his suite in a reall and effectuall manner.

reall and effectuall manner if jubou will ease [faet] by my band] He defireth more fignes, not out of infidelity to tempt God, but in all humility, being fentible of his own weakcelle, he deferth thefe helps for the further confirmation of his faith, concerning his calling from God to this work, and the good iffige and fuecelle of it. For though the apolle commendeth him for his faith, Heb. 11, 32, when the state of the control of the state of the control of t yethe did notattain to that height and strength of it all at once, but by degrees as he was by this means more and more confirmed by God; and in the mean time needed all these helps to support him in all his weaknesse and wants, and to strengthen him against all his diffidence and doubtings. Some think that he required these last figns, not so much for himself, as for those who followed him in this expedition; and if we say that it was both for them and himself also, I think we come neerest to the

V. 37. and it be dry on all the earth befide] i. e. On all the floore round about the fleece, no dew falling upon it, but on

V. 38. for he rose up early on the morrow] i. e. As one longing to see a return of his prayers, and also because he might place where the fleece was fpread, before the Sun was rilen which otherwife might have drawn up this morning dew, Hol.

and wringed out of the fleece a bowle of water ] Which quantity made the fign more wonderfull feeing in a naturall course fo much dew could not fall in the small compasse of a sleece of

CHAP. VII.

Verf. 1. A Nd pitched befide the Well of Harod ] i.e. The Well Aof terrour; fo called either from the feare which feized on the two and twenty thouland of the Ifraelites, v. 3. or on the Midianites routed and flain by Gideon, which encamped on the other fide, ch. 6.3 3. This Well lay upon the borders of Manaffeh. by the hill of Ottoreh] i.e. One of the hils of Gilboah, fo called from the featonable raines which used to fall there, 2 Sam.

in the valley To wit, of Jezreel. See ch. 6.33.

V. 2. The people that are with thee are too many The whole army of the liraelites confifted but of two and thirty thousand men, and the army of the Midianites were at least an hundred thirty and five thousand, and yet though they were above four thirty and he troullains, and yet trough may be the too en, the Lord faith they were too many for him to give the victory unto them, and the fame is faid when the number was absend to ten theuland, yet, 4 and the traffon here is given, because otherwise the [fracilites would have boalted, that they had gotten the victory by their own valour and fifeneth, and cause, and to right and revenge the wrongs that are offered fo robbed God of the glory which was due to him alone. So prone men are upon any good fuccesse to glory in themselves, rather than in the Lord from whom they have it.

my own hand bath [aved me ] i. e. My own valour and

V. 3. Whosever is fearfull and afraid, let him return ] According as the law had provided in this case, Deut. 20. 8, lest by the example of those who were cowardly and fearfull, those in their own disposition valiant, might grow faint-hearted, as it is usuall in wars and battles.

from mount Gilead] Or, towards mount Gilead beyond Jordan (3st deword may figuile) whence the half timbe of Manafich came, chap. 6.35. and which did lye over against Gideons camp. Others think, that there were two mounts of this name, on beyond Jordan, frequently mentioned in the Scripture, the other in the tribe of Manafich within Jordan, schildren, the other in the tribe of Manditch within Jordan, neer the valley of Jezreel, where the Midianites now lay a which (if there were any fuch Gilead) is likely to be here meant, feeing Ifraelites of all forts and tribes might depart from this place, where they were now encamped all together, but not so probable, that all these two and twenty thousand departed to Gilead beyond Jordan, seeing the most of this number that departed were of those tribes that dwelled within Jordan in the land of Canaan.

and depart early from mount Gilead] i e Betimes and with all speed, as the word signifieth; that so they might not be discovered by the Midianites and indangered by their purfuit; nor the weaknesse of the Army appear, which still remained with and there returned of the people twenty and two thousand ] Who though before they were willing to fight for their liberty, and to be delivered from their grievous oppressions, yet now seeing the mighty army of the Midianites, and the paucitie and weaknefle of their party, were grown fearfull and faint-hear-

V. 4. And the Lord faid umo Gideon] i.e. Either by a vifion or apparition of an Angel in a humane shape. bring them down to the water] i e. Either fome water running at the bottome of the hill, or (as some think ) to the Well Harod, mentioned for this cause in the first verse.

and I will try thera ] Or, purge and purific them as mettals are tryed by the fire and separated from their droffe. i.e. I will give thee a fign whereby thou maift try them, that fo the fearful and faint-hearted may be severed from those valiants whom I have fitted for this fervice.

V. s. Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth ] i.e. Who bending his body a little, taketh up water in the hollow of his hand, and so putting his mouth to it, catcheth or sucketh it up in some small quantitie, as a dog lappeth, he shall be set apart to go with thee.
likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink] i.e.

Who first falleth down upon his knees, and then prostrating himself flat, putteth his mouth into the water, and so drinketh as an ox or theep, even to his fill, he shall be of those that must depart, as unfit for this service. Now if this were not only a meer fign (which God ordered at his pleasure to sever these men, but had some reality and reason in it self in respect of mens different dispositions) then we may guesse it to be this;

Chao, vii. that the falling flat to drink, and putting the mouth to the water, argued either faintnesse and wearinesse, or floth and greedineste of appetite which could not leave till it had drunk its fill; the other more temperance, being contented with a little, and more strength, courage, and cagemelle in profecufall again as foon as they have relieved their prefent necesfi-

V. 8. So the people ] i. c. The three hundred chofen sook victuals] i.e. So much as was needfull for fuch a number, and for fuch an expedition.

and their trumpers | i.e. So many trumpers, as that every man might have one, that is, three hundred in all, which they had some of their own, and the rest from them that were difmiffed.

be [eut] i.e. Gidcon. inthe valley ] To wit, of Jezteel, on the other fide of the

V. o. For I bave delivered it into thy band ] i. e. Thou fhall be as certain of victory, as if already thou hadft obtained

V. 10. But if thou fear to go down, go thou with Phurah] i.e If thou fearest to go down to fight against the Midianites, in regard that thy number is io small, and they so many and regard that thy number is 10 main, and they 10 many and mighty, then first go down privatly unto the hoft, where thou that hear fomething which shall confirme thy faith, and streng-then both thy hands and heart for the undertaking of such an enterprise: where the Lord knowing our humane frailty and faint-heartednesse, of his own free largesse, without Gideons fuite, offers unto him another halp for the ftrengthening go thou with Phurah thy fervant] i e. If thou art afraid to go alone for fear of the Scouts and watch, take thy fervant with thee, who though he be not able to protect thee, yet may be fome comfort by bearing thee company.

V. 11. thy bands [ball be strengthened] i.e. Thou shalt further be incouraged to fight against them.
unto the out fide of the armed men, or ranks by five ] i.e. To the first Sentinels of the hoft.

V. 12. Like grashoppers ] See Annot. on chap. 6.5. and their Carnels ] These nations abounded with Carnels especially the Midianites, Isa. 60.6. which they brought hither, that they might feed and fat them in Canaan, make use of them whilest they were here for carrying of burthens, espeor users where they were nere for carrying or ourmens, espe-cially their tents when they flitted from place to place, and for carrying away all the spoyles which they took from the Ifrae-lites, when as they left Canaan and returned back into their

as the faud by the Sea fide for multitude] An hyperbolicall ex pression of a great multitude, suall with the Hebrews. So Ifa.

48.19. Gen. 22.17.

V. 13. And loe a cake of barley bread tumbled into the host The analogie and fimilitude observable in this dream standeth thus a that, as it were a great miracle if fo poor a thing as a barley loafe rolling down upon a well-pitched tent, should overturn and ruine it; as it appeared unto him in his dream : So it was no leffe wonderfull that fuch a contemptible man as Gideon, held lately under such vassallage that he durst not show his head, with a small handfull of despised sugitives gathered together, should rout and ruine such a buge Army of the Midianites; yet as he faw the one done in his dream, fo the other represented by it should as surely come to

V. 15. when Gideon heard this ---- he worshipped ] i.e. He praifed God for confirming him thus in his calling, and prayed unto him for prosperous successe according to this omen and good fign.

V. 16. He divided the three hundred men into three Compa nies To wit, that they might furround the Camp in feverall places, as if they were environed with a great Army.

and be put a trumpet in every mans band | As though be had whole Troop or Regiment accompanying or following with empty pitchers, and lamps within the pitchers] Namely to keep them from blowing out by the winde and weather, and from being feen of the enemy till they had occasion to discover

V. 17. Look on me and do likewife | i.e. Expest not any verball directions which cannot be given on a sudden all at once, and in such a distance one from another, but let my example ferve for your direction.

V. 18. and fay, the [word of the Lord and of Gidcon] ie. Of the Lord as principall agent, and of Gideon as his inftrument; where he afcribeth the whole glory of the victory unto the Lord, but withall, would have his own name used, because he perceived by the interpretation of the dream, that his very name was grown terrible to the enemy.

V. 19 in the beginning of the middle watch] i. c. At midnight when the watches used to be changed; and of this time he made choice, because then the Army were soundest on fleen, and therefore most subject to fear and amazement, when as they thus were fuddenly awaked.

V 20. And the three Companies blew the trumpets | Thereby making flew that's great Army were come, ready to furprize them being unprepared.

and brake the pitchers ] To wit, one against another, that they might terrifie their enemies by the fudden noyle of this breaking and clashing.

and held the lamps in their left hands | That they might affright them with these many lights suddenly appearing, seeing they might well think that there was a great Army come upon them, that needed the guidance of fo many lights, hearing with all that loud cry founding in their ears, the fword of the Lord and

V. 21. And they flood every man in his place To finew that the Lord only foughethe battle and got the victory, Exod. 14. 12. 2 Chron. 20.17. And fecondly, to make the Midianites think that they flood there to give light to that Army which ame with them to enter upon and furprize their camp

V. 12. and the Lord fit every mans sword against bis fekow ] mazement, being frighted out of their dead fleep, that they knew not what they did, nor could differn friends from ene-mies, but militaking the one for the other, they flew their friends instead of their foes. The like to this is related, a Sam.

14.15,20. 2 Chron. 20.23.
and the boft fled to Beth-fhittab] i.e. Out of the Plain where they lay encamped towards Jordan, neer unto which, on Canaan fide, this City and the rest here named were sci-

V. 23. And the men of Ifrael gathered themselves together i.e. Hearing of this defeat and routing of the Midianitish army, they came prefently in to affift Gideon in the pursuite, as they easily might, being fo lately disbanded, and as yet but in their return to their own Country, or at leaft but newly come home, and therefore still armed and in readinesse to fight.

And Gideon fent meffengers throughout all mount Ephraim ]
Not only to have their affiltance for the compleating of the victory but also out of his humility and modesty, that they might Thare with him in the honour of the day, not being willing to ingroffe the glory of the victory to himself alone.

V. 24. And take before them the waters unto Beth-barab 1 Which lying neer unto Jordan, but fhort of it, the Midianites must needs passe before they came unto it; and here (it may be) Oreb and Zeeb were taken in their flight, and many o thers with them. Others think that here is meant the foords and paffages of the River Jordan, even to Beth-barah; unto which I rather incline, because we do not read of any such great rivers neer Jordan, that should binder their passage. ome think this Beth-barah to be that Bethabarah mentioned, Joh. 1.28. But that feemeth to be on this fide Jordan, and this is faid to be beyond it.

V. 25. and they took two Princes of the Midianites. Oreb and Zeeb] Pfal.83.11. Ifa, 10.26. Which names thew the nature and disposition of these tyrants, the one fignifying a waster or destroyer, the other a Woolf.

and they flew Oreb on the rock Oreb, and Zeeb] Places fo called in after times upon this occasion, and lying at the East end of mount Ephraim neer Jordan.

and brought the heads of Ored and Zeeb to Gidcon] Which must not be understood, that they brought them unto him present-ly as soon as they had slain them, but afterwards when Gideon was paffed over to purlue the remainder of the Midianites, that were fled over with Zebah and Zalmunna, chap. 8. 4. But it feemeth to me, that both here and in the beginning of the next chapter to verse 4, there is some transposition in the order of the flory, as it is here expressed, which was done (it may be) to this end, that the acts of the Ephramites might be continued without any interruption.

Some do wittily and profitably allegorize on this victory, as rypifying Christ conquel over in and Sathan, with all other our spiritual enemies For which they have good warrant, seeing the Prophe Hai himself prophe-ying of Christs victory over them, doth elegantly and largely allude unto it, IIa 9, from werfe 1, to the 6. In both these victories, there are divers refemblances one with another. The Midinanites in respect of their multitude and malice resemble the many and malicious enemies of our falvation; Christ like Gideon overcoming and triumphing over them; The broken pitchers resembling the breaking of his body with the sorrowes of death and his crucifying on the Crosse, Ifa. 53.5. Heb. 2.14. The shining of the lamps when the pitchers were broken , the The finning of the lamps when the pictures were broken, the glory of his God-head glorioully finning forth (after he was broken by death) in his refurrection, Rom. 1.4. Now the benefit of this victory by Christs death and refurrection is com-

veved unto us by the light of the Golpel which is hid in pitch | gers in fuch diffresse; and secondly, because they were in the veyed unto us by the night of the Corpet maters and the Ministers of the pursuite of the common enemy, and therefore a work of justice Word lifting up their voyces like trumpets, proclaim this war to firenginen their hands in fuch a defien. against our spiritual enemies, and put into our hands the sword of the Spirit, the word of God, whereby we put all our enemies to flight and obtain the victory, Eph. 6.17. 1 Cor. 10. 4. Their crying out the fword of the Lord, our fervent prayers unto God, by whose strength alone we do prevaile; and their Randing full in their places, our waiting and expecting falvation from God, acknowledging that we have no firength in our felves to refift and overcome fo many and mighty encmies, but that all our might and hope of prevailing is from the Lord, that he alone may have all the glory of his own work; according to that, 2 Cor. 4-7. But we have this treasure in earthen veffels, that the excellency of the power may be of God and not

CHAP. VIII.

Vers. 1. And the men of Ephraim said wate him] i. e. When they brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb unto Gideon on the other side of Jordan, and some think before he had vanquished and flain Zebah and Zalmunna with their army, because he doth not mention that victory, which would have made him equall with the Ephramites in killing thefe two in a proud, fcornfull and contemptuous manner. Kings, and much superiour to them in his former victories, and so exposed him to greater envie : But then if they had come unto him beyond Jordan, and their anger were appealed by his humble speech, it is more than probable that they would have accompanied him in this expedition (which they did not;) feeing their quarrel was because they were not called to affilt why haft thou ferved us thus ] Heb. what thing is this that thou haft done unto us ? They were not contented with his victory , by which they had equall benefit with the reft of their brethren, in being delivered by this means from the tyranny of the Midianites, because they were not sharers with him in the glory of it : The which their pride and ambition, did arife partly from the greatnesse and power of their tribe, and partly from that priority and precedencie that they had above Manafich in Jacobs bleffing, and also in their encamping in the wildernesse, where the tribe of Manasseh was marshalled under the standard of Ephraim, Numb. chap. 2. ver. 18. 20. unto which might be added the honour that they assumed to themfelves, for having Joshu; the famous Generall of the Ifraelites. descended from their tribe, and for his sake the priviledg of the Tabernacle and ark feated at Shiloh, which was in their inheritance; and finally, the good fucceffe they had in stopping and flaying the Midianites with their two Kings when they fought a paffige over Jordan: And this made them emulate the tribe of Manasich, of which Gideon was, as unworthy to be preferred before them, by having the chief honour of that expedition, even as afterwards they proudly quarrelled with Jepthe upon the fame ground.

V. 2. what have I now done in comparison of you] He appealeth their wrath with an humble and meek answer, Prov.

17. 1. & 25.15.

Is not the gleanings of the grapes of Ephraim ] i.e. Is not as not toe gleanings to be the graphet of Esparain J. F. E. S not you rich gleanings to be better effectived than our poor vintage: In which allegory he compareth the fight and the function into a vintage, his own victory affifted by the Abenezities, his allies and triends, to the first gathering of the grapes, at leaft in the Ephramites efteem, and their flaughtering of the Midianites in their flight to the gleanings after the vintage, and preferreth this before the other, because it was acted by their own valour, whereas he and his friends were only lookers on whilest they massacred and killed one another; and because also the Ephramites had taken their two Kings and flain them which had escaped out of their hands : And withall, by the very naming of the actors in this expedition, Ephraim and Abiezer, he feemeth to magnifie and extol them as a great and famous tribe, and to abale and vilific his own party, as fpringing out of the poor family of Aben-ezer, chap.

V. 4. yet pursuing them ] i. c. Zeba and Zalmunna with 15000 of their army that were fled and had gotten over Jordan towards their own country.

V. 5. And be faid to the men of Succeth] Not that Succoth in the land of Ægypt, Exod. chap. 12. ver. 37. Numb. chap. 33. ver. 5. but another of that name which lay at the River Jabbok neer Jordan, fo called because Jacob coming homewards from Laban built his booths there, Gen. 33: 17. which City was in the tribe of Gad beyond Jordan, Josh. chapter 13.

of Penuel, their punishment was alike capital with theirs, with them he taught the men of Succash Or, be threshed, or,

For they be faint | He inforceth his request by two strong arguments; first, becaule he and his followers were faint and weary, and therefore it was a work of mercy to relieve them more wit, or experimentall knowledg for the time to

V. 6. And the Princes of Statonh faid ] i. c. They refused to relieve them, partly because they law such weaknesse and wearinesse in Gideons sew men, and such number and firength in the army of their enemies : and partly because they feared that they would after they had recruited their army return again, and revenge themselves upon them for relieving their enemics

Ave the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thy hands \ As though they should have faid, are they already in thy power as thy prifoners, before thou half got the victory, that we fhould refrect three as victor, and not rather fear their revenge for relieving their feeble enemies ? And thus they incente Gideon by rejecting his request with a contemptuous fcorn. V. 7. I will teave your field with the thornes of the wilderneffe

i.e. I will revenge this foule form and proud contempt which you have put upon me with extream, yet just feverity, because you well deferve it, feeing you refule to relieve my faint and wearied followers fighting in a common cause against Gods enemies, and herein grievously fin against God, the Common-wealth, my felf, and all my followers, your brethren, and that in favour of their tyrannous enemies, and do all this teare | Heb. threih.

of the whitelernife; i.e. Lying between Succoth and Penuel, at the brook Jabbok. Gen. 31. 3, 22,30. called also the wildernesse of Mahanaim, as lying neer unto it, 25 Amn. 1,27, 25. The which wildernesse abounded with thorns and briars; And this threatning he denounced against them, being confident, through Gods affiftance, of prevailing against his enemies, as if already he had obtained the victory.

V. 8. And he went up thence to Penuel ] A City in the tribe of Gad, neer the brook Jabbok, fo called by Jacob, because there he faw God and wrestled with him, Generated a King.

and the men of Penucl answered him as the men of Succosblice. Denyed his request with like foorn and contempt; and this they the rather did prefuming on the firength of their tower, which caused Gideon to threaten the pulling of it down when he returned with victory.

V. q. when I come again in peace] i.e. Safe and victorious. V.10. were in Karker ] A City beyond Jordan towards the east.
an 120000 men ] To wit, those which were flain before. that drew the fword ] i, e. Able men for fervice in war. So

h. 10.15,17,25,46. 2 Sam. 24.9. 2 King. 3.26. V. 11. of them that dwelt in tents] i. e. The Arabians, who were called by the Grecians Scenitze from hence, that is, tentdwellers.

Nobahl A city in the tribe of Manaffeh, Num. 2.42. Fogbebah] A city in the tribe of Gad, Num. 32.35. both thele cities beyond Jordan eastward. for the holt was (ecure ] Not feeing themselves pursued by the fraelites, nor fearing it, feeing they were now come fo far on the way towards their own country

V. 12. and discomsited] Heb. terrified. i.e. Coming upon them on the fuddain, they were frighted, routed, and put to flight, and fo flaughtered and utterly ruined.

V. 13. before the Sun was up] Whereby is implyed, that he came upon them in the night, as he had done before, and to being awakened out of their dead fleep, they were frighted and amazed, fo as they could not fland in their own defences which could not have fo fucceeded, if he had attempted them in the day, which would have discovered the weaknesse of Gideons army and their own ftrength.

V. 14. And he described unto him the Princes of Succorb Heb. writ. i.e. He gave to Gideon their names in writing, who were chiefly guilty of the offence committed; because in so weighty a matter he would not trust to his memory, lest he might haply have punished the innocent with the guilty.

V. 15. behold Zebah and Zalmunna] q.d. I have purposely referved them alive, and have here brought them unto you to convince you of your confidence in the arm of flein, and your diffidence in God, as though he had not been able to have deli-vered them into my hand in respect of their strength and my

V. 16. And he took the Elders of the city and thorns] Whereby is meant, that he tortured them to death with thefe thorns and briars, either by causing them to be cast naked, and so trampled upon, or dragged them amongst them, or to be scourged with them till they dyed. For being equally in the guilt with the men bemade to know, i.e. By making these Princes and Elders in them being their brethren; yea though they had been firanChap.viii.

nous and offensive against God and their brethren. ous and offensive against God and their bremen.
V. 17. and stew the men of the City] i.e. The Princes and
V. 17. and stew the men of the City] i.e. The Add to them in
V. 27. And Gideon made in Eshod thereof] Which was Elders who were chiefly guilty of the fault, as he did to them in

V. 18. what manner of men were they whom ye flew at Tabor?] When they flew thefe men is not plainly expressed, whether it was done in this expedition, or in some of their former invafiors and in-roades, but the former is more likely, feeing them, one a rich garment peculiar to the high Priest, made though Gideon thought that his brethren were flain, yet heu of blew, purple, fearlet, and twined linner, cunningly deflood not the manner and circumflance of their death; or wroughe and imbroydered with gold, in which was a breathelse hearing that they had flain divers of the Ifraclites in those plate befer with precious stones, into which was put the Urim and upon their description findeth that they were his bre-

at Tabor ] See Chap. 4 6.

at Tabor | See Chap. 4.6.

As thou art fo were they | q.d. They were like thee, and both thou and they like the children of a King, that is, goodly and Majesticall persons: And this they said (as it is like) to humour him and get favour. V. 19. if you had faved them alive, I would not flay you] i.e. If you had been mercifull to them, you should have found mercy from me, and I would have faved your lives, if when they fell into your hands, you had laved them: For had they done fo, it was lawfull for Gideon to have pardoned them, not being Canaanites though they were enemies; but now he could not, seeing by the law of God he was bound being next of blood unto them, and alfo a Magistrate, to punish them with death that had murthered his brethrer with himself in the honour of the victory. So Josh. 10. 24.

But the youth drew not his sword ] Not out of neglect of his fathers command, but meerly out of fear, being but a youth.

V. 21. Rife thou and fall upon zel This they define for two reason; first, that they might dye nobly, by the hand of one like themselves, and not by a boy in an ignominious manner; and fecondly, for a more quick dispatch, which could not be done by the weaker hand of a boy, who would have hagled them with many blowes, and fo put them to more torment, whereas a man of itrength striking them, would quickly rid them out of and took away the ornaments that were on their Camels necks, or ornaments like the moon] i.e. They riding in those Countries upon their Camels, as we do upon horses, which according to upon their cameis, as we do upon nories, which according to the dignity of those that rode upon them, were adorned with chains and jewels, he feized upon these as a lawfull prize taken in war, and as an ensign or memoriall of his victo-

V. 12. rule thou over us] Namely, as a King that hath foversign and supream power, and leaveth it successively to his children and posterity.

V. 23. And Gideon faid, I will not rule over you] i. e. I will not take unto me the place and power of a King over Gods people, nor intaile it to my children after me, but the regall rights shall fill (for me) remain in Gods handstillhe shall be pleafed to change the government and fet a King over you, and according to his promife choose one for you, Deut. 17. 14, 15. whereby it appeareth, that the Judges in this book were not absolute Lords and Kings over the people, but extraordinarily railed for the defence and deliverance of them when they were opprefied by their enemies, and to govern them as Gods Vice-gerents (they fill retaining their liberties intire) according to the prefeript rule of Gods Law: And this made Gideon to reject their offer, because it trenched upon Gods royall preregative, feeing their accepting him for their King was to reject God for raigning over them, as it is plain, 1 Sam. chap. 8 ver. 6, 7, & 12. 12. See Annotation on chap. 2.

v. 16.
V. 24. give me every man the care rings of his prey] i. e. The golden ornaments of his prey, whether they were worn in the care or on the fore-head, for the Hebrew word is used for both. See Gen. 24.22,47. & 35.4. neither doth he defire all, but that every man should give him one of those which he had gotten for his prey, as the Hebrew text hath it. because they were Ismaclites ] The Midianites and Israelites were fo intermingled one with another, both in their habitation, and also in their conversation and intercourse of dealing and trading, that their names are promifeuously used, as if they were both but one nation. See Gen. 37. 25,28,36. and these frequently used to weare these golden ear-rings; which is natural children, and not sons by adoption.

V. 31. And his Consubine i.e. His wife though in an inseken as a prey.

V. 26. And the weight was - a thousand and seven on habite only to be used in divine worthin, being a vest-ment that covered the shoulders and compassed the breast, like a fhort firair coat without fleeves, put utmost upon the garelfe hearing that they had Han divers of the Irracines in those place outer with precious somes, into water way put the Urin bolds and cares of mount. Taken, where they had hid them-felves, th. 5.1. and milling his bectiren, and not knowing where they had not the sowing where they might not be in the number of those who were flain, might him the like figure of fine limens, such not not by the there they might not be in the number of those who were flain, might have like the property of the limens, and they not not be such as the he pitteth them to describe what manner of men they were, Priefts, but the Levites, and others also in solemn divine fervice; as we fee in the example of Samuel, who was only a Levice, and David of another tribe. See I Sam, chap. 2. 18. & chap. 17. ver. 16. and 2 Sam. 6. 14. of the former fort was this rich Ephod which Gideon caufed to be made and and put it in his City, even in Ophrah] That is, the City in which himself was born, and dwelt; namely, that it might he a monument or memoriall of this great victory and deliverance by it; which if it were in his intention erected to Gods glory, it was the more excusable, but not so, if he intended thereby to perpetuate his own fame : But howfoever. tended thereby to perpetuate his own tame: But howhover, it is mentioned as an afperfion cast upon the glory of his former acts, whether we consider the thing done, or the event and issue of it: For first, an Ephod was no fit monument to reprefent such a victory and deliverance, but rather a stone or pillar erected to this end, I Sam. 7. 12. Secondly, nat mad murmered mis betteren.

V. 20. And he fail to fisher bit first born up and flay them ]

This he did to better him against Gods enemies, and toprolish he did to better him against Gods enemies, and toproceed against them with all severity, and also to make him share and the use of the high Priest: And it may be that, of his own head, having no warrant from God, he fet it up in his own City, that he might by fome Priest inquire of God in a place that was fo neer unto him; as Jonathan the young Levite did, chap. 18. ver. 5, 6. not confidering that this was a priviledge belonging unto the high Priest alone, and peculiar and proper to Aarons Ephod and breft-plate, in which was put the Urim and Thummim : Thirdly, because it was a scandall turm and Information: Infrary, because it was a teandalt given by Gideon to this people to draw them to superfittion and idolatty, unto which they were naturally so much ad-dicted: In the event also his great fault, and failing appeareth, in that it proved a means to draw the people to groffe idolatry. And secondly, in that it was a cause which moved God in his juft displeasure to make it a snare to Gideon and his whole family, both in respect of sin in their superstitutes using of it, and also of punishment, seeing it was the cause of ruoting out all his posterity.

rooting out all his politerity.

and all Ifrael went thinter a whoring after it ] i. e. After the death of Gideon they did grolly abule it to will-morfhip fuperflittion, and idolatry, and that either by reforting unto it to inquire of it in all their doubts and difficulties concerning Gods will, or by using it as the place where they offered Sacrifices, at least peace and meat-offerings; or being taken with the glory and beauty of it, they used to fall down before it and worship it; and in processe of time growing worse and worse, they abufed it to thegroffest idolatry in the worship of Baal, v. 33. See went a whoring after it ] See Annot, on ch. 2.17.

Levit. 17.7. & 10.5.

V. 18. So that they lifted up their heads no mere] i. e. They no more recovered such thrength, as that they were able to invade and vex the Ifraelites in their land.

And the country was in quietnesse fourty year ] i. e. The Inhabitants of the country injoyed peace and prosperity, and were not disturbed and disquieted with the noyse of war, as the clamors of Souldiers, the founding of the trumpets and alarms of war, the clashing of arms and weapons, the shouts of the victors, and the hydeous out cries of the vanquish-

Fourty years] i. e. Unto the fourtieth year, reckoning the time from the death of Barak the former Judge , to the death of Gideon. See the Annotation on chapter 3. ver. 11. or being computed from those fourty yeares mentioned, chapter 5.

V. 29. went and dwelt in his own boufe] i.e. He reigned not as King, v. 23. nor yet led altogether a private life, but (though fomewhat retired) as a Judge he maintained Gods true worfhip, defended the laws and liberties of the people, and did all good fervice to the Common-wealth, v. 28. & 33. See Annot.

on v. 23. & ch. 2.16.
V. 30. of his body begetten] Heb. going out of his thigh. See
Gen. 46. 26. which is added to shew that they were his own

rior degree, married unto him when he had another wife be-fore, who was mistresse of the family, and it seemeth advanced

Chap. ix. to this honor out of a mean condition, having been his maid-fervant, as Zilpah and Bilhah were to Laban, and married to is, he made choice of his mothers kindred, allies, and friends, that was in Shechem] i.e. That was born in that City, and (as it feemeth) still lived in it among her kindred, even after the was Gideons Concubine. A City scituate upon an hill in Ephraim neer Samaria. See Gen. 12.6. & 33. 18. John

20. 7. whose name he called Abimelech] i.e. A Kingly father, the uwhole name he called Ainmaton J. A. A tangay ratter, the united the Philifline Kings, which as four conceive, his the common vote of the whole people, communicate your reasonations can of pride and ambition perfavaded Gideon to loss by which they may be perfavaded to further me in my fuite, give; which in the event proved to be a fad omen and a fatall name to all his family; and here comes in as an introduction to the following flory of Abimelech his usurpation and tyranny, to the utter ruine of Gideons familie.

with health, strength, riches, and honors, and the rest of Gods blessings, which make the life truly vitall and to be desi-

V. 23. and made Baal-berith their god] Signifying the lord of the covenant, which was the Idol of the Shechemites, fo called ( it may be) when making choice of him to be their Idol-God, they did enter into covenant with him to do him fervice, and to by adhering to him they brake their covenant with God, and profitured themfelves to commit fipitizall whoredome governed by one in a free Monarchie or that in Seit an with this 1dol, the which the Lord had fo often and earneftly forbidden, and so leverely punished.

V. 34. remembred not the Lord their God] Neither his good-neffe in multiplying his bleffings upon them, nor his just judg-ments in punishing their former fins, especially their apostalic and idolatry, nor his mercies in giving them deliverance out of their oppressions, when they turned unto him by true repentance: But either polluted his pure worship by worshiping God in Idols, or by joyning them together with him; of which he is impatient, as not induring any corrivals; or finally they were fo beforted with their idolarry, that they forgot the only true God altogether, and adhered unto and worshiped Idols only, and wholly neglected Gods fervice.

V. 35. Neither shewed they kindnesse to the house of Ferubbaal i.e. They did not requite his love with love, nor shewed themfelves gratefull unto him according to his deferts, in feeking the good and welfare of his posterity.

CHAP. IX.

Vers. 1. A. N.d Abimelech the son of Ferubbaal went to She-them] In the former chapters we have seen the heavy hand of God upon his people, punishing them for their apostatic and idolarie, by raising up against them both for-raign nations, and also the Canaanites which lived among them; by whole cruelties and oppressions they were grievously afflicted, and his mercy and goodnesse towards them in fending deliverance upon their repentance : And now again after the death of Gideon, returning to their former wickednesse, he punisheth them with a civil war, wherein they murther and puninized usern with a Civil war, wherein they mutther and maffacre one another, imbruing their hands in the blood of their brethren, and fheathing their fwords in their bowels. And to this end be giveth up Abimelech to be ruled with an evill spirit of ambition, whereby he thirsted after Soveraigntie, and to attain unto regall power, which was offered to his noble father for his well-deferring of the Common-wealth; but by him modefly refused: And to this end presently aster his fathers death and funerals, he goeth to Shechem, the City in which he was born, to promote his project and de-fign; having no hope to compasse and effect it by staying in his fathers familie among his many brethren, the meanest and youngest of them having a better title unto it than himfelf: Although neither he nor they had any right to regall power, feeing the Lord had established the prefent government, in which he ruled himself, and kept all the royall rights in his own hand; unto whom they were to refort in all cases and causes of moment in which there was difficultie, and were therein to be ordered by the judgment of Urim and Thummim, and in ordinary matters more plain and of leffe weight, by those Judges whom (when he pleased) he extraor-dinarily raised up and furnished with wisdome and fortitude, of administer pulse and instituted with whoome and notitudes, to administer pulse and judgments, to protect them from their enemies, and to give deliverance when for their fins they groaned under their oppressions. Which government was to continue till the Lord himself was pleased to change it; and when he thought fit to place a King over them, he retained the power in his own hands, to choose one according to his own mind, and not to leave it to the peoples choyce, and much leffe to permit any out of their own ambitions to affect and aspire unto this Soveraigntie.

in whom (as being strangers unto them) his own brethren, the fons of his father, had no interest, to further his plot, and advifeth with them what might be the likelieft meanes to further him in his defigne of attaining unto the Kingdome.

. V. 2. Speak I pray you in the cares of all the men in Shechem ]
i.e. Seeing this buffneffe is not to be carried on by a few, but by unto all, one as well as another whether is it better for you, either that all the fons of Ferubbaal. which are threefeore and ten perfons, flould reigne over you, or that one ] Where hee fecretly and cunningly implies ; that to the unter rulue of Gideons familie.

V. 3.2. dyel in a good old age] i.e. Lived out his time allotted unto him in the courte of nature, and not cut off by an immaare and unnatural death; as also a prosperous life accompanied we and unnatural death; as also a prosperous life accompanied which though he resulted to accept, chapter 8, verse 23, yet in all reason they ought to have their desire. Secondly , he falsly and slanderously intimateth, that the threescore and ten fons of Gideon would not let that motion fall, but would aspire unto this royall Soveraigntie, and divide the Kingdome amongst them, whereas the contrary isplainly implyed in Jothams parable, that should it be offered unto them they would all refuse it: And then upon these salie suppositions; ny Lords , lye under fuch a multiplyed tyrannie, groan under their oppressions, and hazard the Kingdome to be rent and ruined by civill wars, out of their mutuall jealousies one of another, whilest they fought to preserve their own states from the intrusions of an ambitious neighbour, or were themselves ready to increach upon them.

Remember also that I am your bone and your flesh ] Which is poken iometimes of a whole nation who have descended from the fame grand and common parent, as Ifrael from Jacob. So Chro. 11.1. fometimes of the fame City in which oftentimes brethren and kindred co-inhabited, as I think, here it is to be understood; sometimes of kindred who were of the same blood. So Laban and Jacob, Gen. 29.14. David and Amafact Sam. 19. 13. and thus many of the Shechemites were of Abimelech his fielh and bone : And this argument he ufeth to perfwade them to make him their King, feeing they might have much honour and many priviledges above others, who had a King to rule over them, who was knit unto them in fo neer relation; where whilefthe feeketh to wind himfelf into their affection for his own ends, he discovereth his corruption, partiality, and unfitnesse to be a King, who ought to govern and execute justice and udgment equally to all men without respect of persons or re-

V. 3. And their hearts inclined to follow Abimelesh] i.e. To choose him before any other to be their King, because he was their kinfmah.

V. 4. And they gave him threefcore and ten pieces of filver] See Annot, on Gen. 10. 16.

out of the house of Baal berith | i. e The idolatrous temple of this Idol which flood upon an high hill neer Shechem; which treasure was referved there, either because it was raised out of oblations to the Idol, or because it was the Cities treasury. For in some places they did in those and after ages, make their Idel temples their treasure house, as the Romanes did the temple of Saturn. Where it is observable, that the monies which were confecrated to idolatrous uses, and raised by the same means, through Gods providence became the instrument, to bring upon them the punishment of their sin, by imbroyling them in a civill war, which caused their utter wherewith Abimelech bired vain and light persons] i.c. A desperate, beggerly, and rascally crew, sons of Belias who had no fear of God; seeing none but they were fit to execute such a barbarous and bloody defign, and fuch an horrid maffacre as he intended, So 2 Chron.13.7.

V. S. flew his bretheren--being threefeere and ten perfons He nameth the whole number defigned to the flaughter though one of them, namely Jotham, escaped : And this is usual in the Scripture. So Gen. 42. 13. Num. 14. 32.33. 1 Cor. 15.5.

upon one flone They were not killed in feverall places where they tound them, but having attached them, they brought them out publiquely to execution in the same place; which formality fleweth that Abimelech caused it to be done under some pretence of Justice, because they had conspired together to commit some notorious wicked fact, tending to the ruine of the whole State.

V. 6. And all the mon of Shechern gathered together] i. e. They and all their friends whom they could perswade to joyn with them out of other tribes; neither is it likely that they durft prefume of themfelves to make a King without the confent of ma-ИНН a

Gods Word, he having appropriated this choyce unto hinsfelf, Deut. 17.14.15.
and all the houle of Millo | Whereby fome understand some fmall City adjoyning to Shechem; others, the strong hold spoimall City adjoyning to Success ; others are triong not speken of, verse 20.46. 49. tied for the town house, where the Elders and full Countel met together, to debate of and order the affaires of the State, being guarded with a garrison for their better fecurity in those troublesome times.

and made Abimelech King] Whereby I conceive, that how foever their intention was that he should reign over all Israel yet being but one City, though backed with many friends they durit not attempt it at the first, but choie him onely for their own King to rule over that City and the parts lying about it: for the reason moving them to hearken to his suite of chufing him King, reached no further, I am your bone and your field, and Jotham faith, that they had made him King over the men of Shechem, because he was their brother, verse 18. But afterwards observing that all Ifrael were weary of the prefent government, and deficing a King, were willing to accept of him, especially having thus far proceeded and gathered daily more frength to crush and quell all that should oppose him he usurped the title of being King over the whole nations, and took upon him to reign over all the reft of the tribes, whereof it is that he is faid to have reigned three years over Ifrael, by the Plain of the Pillar, or by the oak of the Pillar ] i. c. In that field neer Shechem, where Joshua erected the great stone under an oake, it being the custome of those times to annoynt their Kings in some famous noted place by reason of some tree meir angs in tome rancus norce place by resion or tome tree or fountain, or flone erecked for a monument, for the more folemnity of the action. See John 42.6,27.

V. 7. in the top of mount Gertlem! White was neer Shechem, and over against it mount Eball, Deut. t. 1.29, 30. and it feemeth the Sichemites were affembled at the bottome of it, to inaugurate their new chofen King, and because speaking aloud he might from thence best be heard, and make an elcape lift up his voyce, and cryed and faid unto them] To wit, by divine infpiration, or the spirit of prophecy, as the event

Hearken unto me ye men of Shech:m] Namely, who am fent of God to convince you of your hainous fin, in committing these horrible murthers and massacres, that so you may repent of them, and avert Gods heavy judgments which hang over your heads.

that God may bearken unto you ] To wit, when you call and ery unto him in the time of your affliction and diffresse, which he will not do if you go on in your fins, flutting your ears and hardening your hearts, when by his messenger he giveth you warning, that you may turn unto him by unfained repen-

V. 8. The trees went forth on a time to annoint a King] He ufeth a parable that he might more effectually convince them of their folly and fins, feeing they might unpartially judge of it when as it was not directly charged upon them, but was fhadowed under this vaile. So Nathan dealt with David, and our Saviour Christ often with the Jews, the Priests, Scribes and Pharifees. In this parable he first taxeth the Ifraelites generally, and more especially the Shechemites, for their being weary of Gods government, and defiroufacife to be under the rule of a King. Secondly, he fetteth forth the modesty and piety of his father, who did not accept of it when it was offe-red unto him; and of himfelf and his brethren, who refted contented with their condition, and did never ambitiously affeft or afpire unto this Kingly Soveraignty. Thirdly, the pride and ambition of Abimelech, who (though he were wicked and worthlesse (in thirsted after it, that he made way unto it, through a field of bloud. And lastly, the manifold miseries and mischiess which both he and the Shechemites would bring upon them in the close and epilogue of this wofull trage

And they faid to the cleve tree ] Where by the olive, and th rest of the fruitfull and usefull trees here named, are meant both the Judges who tuled in former times, and also Gideon and his 70, logs who never affected, but utterly refused this kingly government.

V. 9. wherewith by me they bosons God and man i.e. By the oyle which comets from me God is honoured, feeing oyle is the control of the c used in his service, which tendeth to his honour, both in oblations and facrifices; and for the nourifhing of the lamps and lights in the Sanctuary. And, men, also are honoured by it, feeing it is used in the annointing of Kings, Priests, and Pro phets; and is profitable unto all forts and conditions, both for meat and medicine, food, face, and feature, Pfal. 104. verfe

V. 11. [bould I leave my [weetneffe and good fruit ] Implying ny others, especially seeing it was an act expresly contrary to | that when men leave their private places and callings wherein they are fruitfull and ferviceable to God and men, and ambitiously aff. & high preferments and and Soveraignty, they usually grow fruitleffe and barren in all grace and good-

> V. 12. which cheeresh God and man Not that God ufeth wine as man doth, to cheer him by drinking of it; but because wine also was used in Sacrifices and oblations, in which God delighted, as being duties of his fervice. But man is cheered by it when it is temperately used, as being a fingular means to renew and refresh his spirits, especially when as they fink with forrow, or droop under the pressure of any great calamity. Pfal. 104.14. Prov. 21.6.

V. 14. Then [aid all the trees to the bramble] i c. A bafe. worthleffe and fruitleffe thrub, good for nothing but to stop gaps, and to keep men and beafts from entring into the pleafant fields with their pricks, and afterwards to be burned, and with their blaze to kindle a fire. By which he meaneth all proud and ambitious men, and particularly Abimelech, who was bafe in his birth, vitious and wicked in his life, barren in all grace and goodnesse, and tyrannicall and cruel in his disoostion and nature: And by the trees the Ifraelites and Shechemires who offered to make him their King.

come and put your truft under my [hadow] i. c. Reft and rely wholly upon me for thelter, fafety, and protection. Which pecious thews tyrants make when they fue and feek after preferment and Soveraignty, yet do nothing leffe when they have attained unto it; Like a bramble which promifeth shelter to the filly theep that cometh under it in a florme, but feratcheth off his wool and teareth his skin, when defiring to be at his liberty he would go from under it. Or, like a Rider which defiring to back a wilde skittish horse, clappeth and stroaketh him at his getting up, but spurreth and galleth him when he sindeth himself sure in the saddle. And such anyone was this Joh, 8.32. of which mountain Jotham made choyce . because | cruel tyrant Abimelech, and also Nebuchadnezer, Dan. chap.

V. 15. and devoure the Cedars of Lebanon] i.e. The most illustrious nobles, and chiefest Elders and Magistrates, when they stand in his way, and refuse to be the instruments of his tyrannie and cruelty, which are compared to the Cedars of Libanon, because they were the goodliest and tallest in all those

V. 16. New therefore] In these words he unfoldeth and applyeth the Parable. if you have dealt well with Ferubbaal] i.e. If you have gratefully requited him for all the benefits received from him. with his house] i.e. With his fons and posterity.

V. 17. adventured bis life far ] Heb, cast his life. i.e. Neglected and despited his life for the common good. So chap. 12.

V. 18. because be is your brother | i. c. Not because he was the fon of Jerubbaal, or for any goodnesse in himself which might make him worthy of such an honour, but meerly out of felf-love, because he is of your kindred and alliance.

V. 19 then rejoyce you in Abimelech] i.e. As in a King juftly elected, and live happily and joyfully with your King, and let him have all joy and content in you, as in his lawfull and loyall subjects. The which he wisherth, not as thinking such happineffe would befall them, for he knew that they had done wickedly in all their proceedings, but by way of ironie, and reproach.

V. 20. Let fire come out from Abimelech To wit, that curfed bramble fit for nothing but to be burnt and to burn others, that let a wicked spirit of diffention, hatred, and revenge poffeife them and carry them on to ruine and deftroy one ano-

V. 21. And Fotham ran away and fled, and went] This variety of words expressing the same thing, implyeth his great haste to Beer ] Which fome think to be a town in the tribe of Ephraim; others (and that more probably) in the tribe of Simeon, as being in a greater diffance from Shechem, and fo further out of the reach, and (it may be) out of the power and government of Abimelech, and think it to be that Baalath Beer mentioned. Tofh 12.8.

when Abimelech had reigned streeyears] To wit, as a uturping tyrant, and not as a Judge delivering them from their enemies, or exercifing judgment and justice among them, or doing any other good to the Common-wealth, then when he leafbthought of it, as supposing that he was securely setled in his government, God began to execute upon him the curse threatned by Totham; and to make him an example of that common maxime, that there is no tyranny of long continuance.

V. 23. Then God fent an evill thirts between Abimelech and the men of Shechem ] i.e. Either faran himfelf, the chief author of all disorders and divisions, in a common-wealth, as and discord; not by infusing into them these singlest correspond

Chap,ix. ons, but as a jult Judge quantiting their former wickednesses, become bundaren and flaver, you were best to feek out forme especially that borrid masser of Gideons lons, he gave them of the progeny of the noble, and ancient slowle of this city, and for not their own visit affections and the devirts tentations, to be in or validiage, you let leve to fach a bale and new upitar as up to their own vile affections and the devils tentations, to be hurried on in these wicked courses to their own mutuall ruine.

and after destruction, I King. 12.31.22.

And the men of Shechem dealt treatherously with Abimelech]i.e. They brake their covenant with him, and rebelling against him shook off the yoak of his government.

V. 24. That the truelty done | i.e. The just revenge of that cruelty.

And their bloud be laid upon Abimelech] i.e. The guile and punishment of their bloud unjustly shed. Sb. I Sam. 1. 16. 1 King. 2. 31,32. &c. unto which though they had not the least refrect in their muzuall murthers, yet it fo came to palle by a just and overuling hand of Gods providence punishing them for their fin.

and the men of Sheebem fet liers in wate for him] i.e. Refolving to rebell and to cast him off from being any longer their King, they laid a plot by way of ambush to surprize his person, if he hapned to come that way weakly attended.

and they robbed all that came along But chie fly those whom they knew to be of Abimelech his party, hereby to weaken or revenge themselves upon them for their masters sake, or if others with them, then to supply their present wants whilest they lay there in waite.

And it was sold Abimelesh] To wit, that the Shechemites had rebelled and had laid this ambush to surprize him; whereupon he prepares for war, and fends some of his army into those parts, which restrained the Shechemites from going out of their city to gather their vintage, till Gaal came in to their af-

V. 26. And Gaal the fon of Ebed | Who this Gaal was appeareth not not in the scriptures, but it feemeth that he was fome famous Commander, feeing the Shechemites put fuch confidence in him, that they make choyce of him to be Generall of their forces.

and he with his brethren ? That is, his kindred and allies, came in to their affiftance, with an intention (as is probable) after that he had overcome and cast out Abimelech, to take the government upon himfelf.

V. 27. They went out into the fields and gathered their vineyards] Namely, to thew how much, out of their confidence in Gaal, they flighted Abimelech; whom before they fo much feared, that they durft not for him and his forces go out of the and made merry ] Or fung fongs, as they used to do in the time of vistage, Ilai. 16. 10. Jer. 25. 30. Pial. 4.7. and went into the house of their god] i.e. Their idol Baalberith, namely, to praise him for delivering them from the yoak of Abimelech, and to offer facrifice, and feast in his remple as it was the custome of those times. and curfed Abimelech i e. In their merrie mood they reviled and railed against Abimelech, wishing unto him all mis-chiefs and milfortunes. V. 28. Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem] i c. How base is he and unworthy his place of Soveraignty, and how unfit is it that fo ancient and famous a city as Shechem flould be enflaved under his tyranny > Others think that this is not Spoken of the city Shechem, but of Shechem the son of Hamor, who in Jacobs time was governour of it, Gen. 34. and make this to be the meaning: What have we to do either with the one or the other, feeing neither can lay any just title or claim unto it > Nor Sheckern or any of his pofterity, feeing they are cast out, and their inheritance given to Gods people; nor Abimelech, who hath got the foveraignty by his own tyranverned by no other than its own Magistrates. Is not he the fon of Jerubbaal ? ] i.e. His fon by a concubine, who had leffe title unto it than any of the rest of his fons that came of his wives. And though Jerubbaal was worthily efteemed for his worthy acts, yet what is this to Abimelech, feeing he refused to be king when it was offered unto him. And yet his very name Jerubbaal may make his memory of lesse emy and usurpation, which in it felf is a free city, and to be gofteem, who being but a mean private man, got his name by that act of his in destroying the altar of your God, whom you now worthip and ferve with unanimous confent. and Zebul bie officer ? ] Whom he in his absence bath constituted as his Deputy. And this he speaketh to upbraid them of their base servitude, seeing they had not onely enslayed themfelves to Abimelech the fon of a concubine, but alfo to Zebul his fervant, and fo to any other whom he in his proud humor should be pleased to set over them: Of which he purposely venture the fight for very shame, and not dastardly to return

Abimelech, And thus perswading them to make choyce of fome one of Hamors progenie, some think that he pointed at himself, whom he pretended to be descended of him. Others (more probably) thus, if ye will needs ferve, then choose fuch as will not tyrannically rule over you like Abimelech, but in a fatherly manner as Hamor did of old.

V. 14, And would to God this people were under my hand] i.e. Under my fole government, whereby it appeareth that how/oever many adhered to Gaal, as having great confidence in him, yet there were others that cleaved full to Abimelech. and were content to submit unto Zebul as his officer.

then would I remove Abimelech | i.e. I would quickly difpatch him out of the way, and not fuffer him any longer to be king over you.

and he faid to Abimelesh increase thy army That is, in a bold, bragging and thrafonicall manner, he speaketh unto him being ablent; make thy felf as ftrong as thou canft with all thy allies and friends, and then come out and fight with me. for hereby my victorie over thee shall be but so much the more

V. 10. And when Zebul heard the words of Gaal ] To wit, whereby he reproached his lord, and also difgraced him who was his officer and Leiverenant, howfoever he had made before fome femblance and thew that he would not croffe the Shechemites in their courses against Abimelech, yet now he was indure him, but falleth (though lecretly) to practife against

V. 31. And he fent meffengers to Abimelech privily ] Hebr. craftily, or to Tormah. To wit, left being discovered to be wholly for Abimelech, the Shechemites should rife up against him, and either kill him, or wholly cast him out of his place of government; and also that they not knowing of it, Abimelech might come upon them fuddenly and finde them unprovided.

orto Tormab] Some conceive it to be the name of a citie, which verf. 41. is called Arumah, where Abimelech

N. 32. Now therefore up by night] To wit, that thy comming may not be discovered; and lay secretly an ambush against the Shechemites, that they may fall into it in the morning, when forme of thy company appearing they shall fet upon them, and they roaking their retreat, as though they were not able to maintain the fight, shall draw them into the amand the people that is with thee ] i.e. Stay not to gather more forces, but come with those that thou half already with thee, feeing they will be fufficient to execute this defign.

V. 33. do to them as thou [balt finde occasion] Heb. 2s thine hand finall finde, that is, as thou flialt get opportunity in fighting against Gaal and those that shall come out of the city with him. See the like phrases, having the like fignification, Levit,

V. 34, and they laied wait against Shechem in four companies] Namely, that the Shechemites might be drawn out of the city; when as but one of these companies appeared to their veiw, and being come out to fight with this one, might fall into the ambufbments that were laied by the other three;

V. 35. and the people that were with him] That is, one of the four companies V. 26. And when Gaal fam the people he faid to Zebul ] Who came in his company counterfeiting himfelf to be of his partie, that he might encourage him to go opt and fight, and fo fall into the hands of the liers in waits

Thou feeft the foadow of the mountainer as if they were men} In which words he jeereth and derideth him, as though his fight fo failed him, that he could put no difference between mountains and men, or rather that he was fo faint-hearted, that he was affraid of very shadowes.

V. 37. by the middle of the land 1 Heb. Navill, a metapho-ricall speech borrowed from the resemblance; for is the navil standeth out above the bellie, so the mountains above the ground about them.

V. 38. Then (aid Z ebul unto him, where is now thy mouth; ] i.e. Thy former great brags and boaftings when thou faweft no enemy; as if he had faid, is thy courage to foon quaited, that thy heart fainteth and faileth thee before thou comeft to light? And with these scorns and reproaches he putteth him on to adinto the city, and there stand on his own defence.

might cold him our of his place of government, and, make choyee offsim to tule in his place. So government, and, make choyee offsim to tule in his place. Sorro be from of father of she sheet of sheet of sheet of the sheet of sh

V. 40 and be flet before bim and many were overshrown i.e. More were flain in their flight than in the fight, feeing they purfued them to the very gates of the City, and flaughtered them all the

V. 41. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah] A City neer Shechem Southerly a whither Abimelech after this victory against Gaal retired him felf with his army, either to refreth themfelves after their fight, or to get fame better opportunity of fur-priling Shechem.

And Zebal thrust out Gast and his brethren i.e. Taking the and Lebul strugt our Gall and his brothers.] 1.6. Taking tue for use nor use always and the state of the his dectar, which had wrough the imm out of the his beauts of the people, because they thought either that it had beauts of the people, because they thought either that it had beauts of the people, because they thought either that it had beauts of the people had been supported by the people infufficiencie to act the part of an able Generall, to be the cause harply revenged, both upon him and them, according to the of their great defeate, they having made choyce of a new Com- propheticall curfe denounced by Jotham verf. 20. mander in whom they had more confidence, and recruited manner in whom they had more confidence, and recruited their army, go out again: again! A bimelech to revenge upon him their former loffe, and if it were possible, to drive him out of the country, that they might not still be indangered by has? ving so malitious an enemy so neer a neighbour.

V. 43. And be took the people and divided them into three companies ] Appointing two of them to fight with them which fallied out of the citie, and keeping the third with him felf, he lay in ambush neer the gates of the city, that when their chief ffrength were iffued out, he might affault and furprize it, being but weakly guarded or at least might keep them within from going out to second those who were engaged in the fight, and them that were without in the field from making any retreat if they were put to the worfe.

and stood in the entering of the gate of the city] That he might flay them that were estaped by flight out of the battle, thinking to secure their lives by getting into the city.

V. 45. and beat down the city and sowed to with salt lie. Did not only wholly demolish the wals without and the buildings within, but also in token that he had designed it to an utter and perpetual desolation, he sowed it with salt. For this ceremonie was used by conquerours, being highly provoked by the reproaches and infolencies of their cnemies, not onely to demon.

In their cities, but also to fow them with falt, in fign of an utinto their cities, but and to low taem with large, in figure in the trevallation and perpetual defolation. I for falls is taken to be both a caufe and fign of barrenneffe, as appeareth Deut.20.

23: Pfal. 107.3334. Zeph.29. Although(as I have heard) there are fome kind of foyles, even in our own land, of that nature, that they use to manure them with falt, as if it were nature, that they ufe to manure them with falt, as if it were with dung or marke, and by septemen find that it makesh them fruufull. But it had the quite contrary opperation, in hole hot and drie countries, making the earth more hot and drie; and therefore Abim-lech ufeth it as a fign of barrenneffe and uttendeloition. Although berein he failed of his end, feeting afterwards it was re-built by Jereboam, it King, 12.55, and inhabited, apoperache, 2 Chron. 10.1: Jerea. 15.55.

V. 46. they entrel size an hold of the buyle of the god of Berlin Child of the buyle of the god of Berlin Child of the form Ball-berlin, verf. 4, wither they went from the tower of Shechem, for better feening against the lower and race of Abimched, truffing both in pele thrength of power and rage of Abintelech, trusting both in the strength of the hold, and allo the religion of the place, using it as their fanctuary in this excreamity of danger. Which hold is probably thought to be the same with the house of Millo, unto whom Jothams propheticall curse extended, as joyning with Abimelech in that horrid conspiracy against Gideons fons: And the strongest and most impregnable fort, both by parture and art, neer unto Shechem. Like the Romane Capitoll, in which was the temple of Jupiter, and of fuch strength that it was able to hold our against the enemy, when all the city was taken. Even as allo the temple was the firongest hold, into which they reforted, when as Jerusalem was beseiged by Titus Velpafian.

V. 48. gatehim up to mount Salmon Which lay Westward from Shechem, towards Jordan; on it were store of trees, and fnow that feldome melted, Pfal. 68.14.

what you have feen me do, make haft and do as I have done! This he did, knowing that Princes examples are more prevalent with the people than their Commands.
V. 49. died alfo] i.e. Were all burned and destroyed, as well they in the facred fort, as they in the tower. V. 50. Then went Abimelech to Thebez] Which was in the territory of Shechem, between the mounts of Samaria and Gilbox, and scituate on the North of Shechem, yerf, 20, the place where Elias was borne. V. c1. and fout it to them] i.e. Made fast the gates with locks, holts and hare.

and fought againft is ] i.e. Beseiged and affaulted it. V. 13. And a certain woman cast a peece of a milstone? so the top of the tower to beat off the affailants.

V. sa. That men fav not of me . A woman flew bim ] And thus his wicked life was attended with as bad a death : wherein with a fouldier-like bravery he took care for his credit, but none for his foul, and yet all in vain, for by this means wherehe shought to fmother it. it was but the more divulged. 2 Sam. 11. 21. ...

V. 55. the men of Ifract ] To wit, which followed Abimelech in this expedition.

V. 56. Thus God rendred the wickedneffe of Abimelech which he did unto his father ] Namely, in murthering all his fons, and

V. 42. And it cameto paffe on the morrow ] i.e. After they God, so barbarously ungratefull towards him, for all his welhad thrust out Gazl and his brethren, as thinking him and his deserving: which abominable wrongs and outrages God

CHAP. X.

Verf. I. THere arofe to defend Ifrael Tola ] Some think that he was not (like the other Judges) called extraordinarily by God, but that after the death of Abimelech he was by the people chosen to be their Governour, because there is no mention made of any enemies that oppressed them, out of whose hands he should deliver them. From whence they gather, that throughout all his time they lived in peace. But feeing it is faid, verf. 2. that he judged Ifrael, and all thefe ludges were called extraordinarily of God to deliver them when they were under oppressions, and being delivered to go-vern them in peace, to abolish idolatry, and to restore Gods pure worship y I conceive that he had the like calling from: God with other of the Judges, though not immediately, as Gideon by personall appearance, yet by inward instinct, and the collation of heroicall gifts, as courage and fortitude, wifedome, year, and the reft; Neither doth it follow that they had no cnemies, from which Tola delivered them, because none are mentioned, feeing there might be enemies and oppressions, though not lo notorious and vexatious as in former times. And though there had been none fuch, yet the people in thefe times needed a Judge to reduce them to the former govern-ment, which was suppressed by Abimelech his tyranny, to abolish idolatrie, which much raigned and increased in his licentious, prophane and Anarchicall Monarchy, to restore religion, and Gods worlhip to its native purity and perfection, and vindicate the feat of judgement from arbitrarie injustice and to defend Ifrael ] Heb. fave or deliver, i.e. To preferve them in their peace, liberties, and the purity of Gods worship against all that did oppose them.

And he dwelt in Shamir] A town of Islacher bordering on Ephraim. There was an other of that nime in the tribe of Ephraim. There was suppose that the time in the true of judah, John 1,48, or floppose that this Shamir was in mount Ephraim, as it is in the letter of the text, yet Tola, though of another tribe, might inhabit there being a Judge, for more conveniencies as being neer the heart of the land, and not far from the tabernacle. Though I incline rather to the fermer exposition feeing it is expressely faid, that he was also buried in Shamir, which strongly implyeth, that it was in his own tribe, and bordering onely on mount Ephraim, feeing it was the custome of those times to be buried in their own interitance.

V. 3. And after him arofe Fair a Gileadite] i.e. Dwelling in Gilead, in the tribe of Manaffeh beyond Jordan, Josh. 17.1. 5. Numb. 32.39. Gen. 31.48. who was not that Jair of whom 5. Numb. 32. 39. 36n. 31.40. won was not earl jair of wanted in mention is made, Numb. 33. 41. & Deut. 31.4. though he carrieth the fame name, and alfo got and possefied towns or villages of the fame name, Havoth-Jair, for that Jair lived above three hundred years before this here mentioned, and he had but twenty three cities or villages, as it is 1 Chro. 2, 22, and this mans fone had thirty, increased to this number fince the death of the other, either by themfelves, their father, or grand-father, from whom this Jair being descended, both he and his inheritance kept fill their old names.

V. 4. And he had thirty fons, which rede on thirty affe-colts] This is added to flew that he was a man of great wealth and worth, and that his fons were of an honourable condition, feeing this kind of riding on affe-colts was a token of their digniwhich are called Hawib-Jair ] Or the villages of Jair, fo called by Jair the fon of Manaffeh, Numb. 31.41. Deut. 3. 14. and continued by this Judge in the same name.

V. 5. and was buried in Camon] A city belonging to Manaffeh, in the land of Bafhan, lying North from mount Gi-

V. 6. And ferved Baalim and Africroth] Thefe are specially Which (with the like materials) they had purposely carried up named above the rest, because they were the chief and most common idols. See annotat. on chap. 2.13.

Chap.x. and the gods of Sprial This is added to taxe the Ifraelites of | need; their idols being no waves able to fend them delives their abominable idolatrie, who were not fatisfied by committing spiritual whoredome with one or two idols, of this or that people, but gave themselves up to commit this unsatiable uncleaneffe, with all the idols of every nation that lived about them. So Ezek. 16.25,26. &c.

the gods of Sidon] i.e. Afharte, See chap. 2.13.
and the gods of Moab] i.e. Chemoth, 1 King. 11.32.

the gods of the children of Ammon] i.e Milchom, or Molech. 1 King. 11.5. 33. and Chemoth, chap. 11.24. of the Philitims] i.e. Dagon, 1 Sam. 5. 2. and Athtaroth.

See chap. 2.13.
and for feels the Lord, and ferved not him | ic. They fo wholly gave themselves up to idolatry, that they not onely joyned idels with God in his fervice, or ferved him in idols, like their fore-fathers, but also utterly renounced Gods service, and gave themselves wholly up to the worship of idols.

V. 7. And the anger of the Lord was hot ] ie. He refolved to punish them severely for their fins, like a man provoked to wrath and difpleafure.

and he fold them ] See annotat. On chap. 2.14.
V. 8. And that year they wexed and oppressed, or crushed the children of Ifrael ] i.e. As fome think, in that year wherein they fell from the true worship of God to this idolatrie they vexed them, and fo from that time to the end of eighteen years. Others reckon these eighteen years from the death of Jair, but this cannot fland with that chronologie of four hundred eighthis cannot trans with that caronologic orbit minutes eightic years, from their comming out of Ægypt to the building of the temple, mentioned, I King, 6.1. Others read it thus, They wered them that year, i.e. The eighteenth, or the laft year of the eighteen. But this is as far thort of the time of the of the eignteen. Dut this is as far funct on the time of the place chronologic, as the other above it. But the right fence of the place (as I take it) is this, that the Phillitims and Ammonites, wexed those two tribes and an half, that lay without Jordan, for the space of eighteen years, with their inrodes and incursions into their country, walking and spoyling all that came in their way ; the greatest part of which time they lived under Jair's government, though still by his prudence and prowesse they government, though Itili by his prudence and prowene ney were beaten out again, but now in that year wherein Jair died, growing more bold and prefumptious upon the death of their Judge, they extend their vallations and eppreffions, and make them more general and universal, not contenting themselves with spoyls of those two tribes and an half without Jordan, but entring also upon the land of Canaan, as the tribes of Judah, Benjamin and Ephraim, as is expressed in the next which is Gilead ] The land of the Amorites in former times, which is a region adjoyning to mount Gilead on both fides of the hill, and a very fruitfull foyl, fit for the breeding and feed-the bill, and a very truttuil to y, int of the orecoming and recuing of cattle, which had divers cities in it.

V. 10. And the children of I first orgat amount Lord] No doubt they often eyed unto the Lord before, being So long time under fuch giveous opperfilors, but he regarded them not, becalle their payers were not joyned with true repentance, feeing they thil continued in their groffe idolative, but nance, iceing they this continued in their grolle idolaties, but now they repent, not onely of their fins in general, but allo of their speciall and bosome sins, namely, their neglect of Gods worthip and serving of idols, and humbly confesse it with dereflarion.

V. 11. And the Lord [aid] i.e. Either the Lord Christ appearing in an humane shape, as before chap. 2.1. & 5. 13. and 6. 23. or by fome created Angel, or fome Prophet fent with this meffage; or finally by his oracle, related unto them by the high Priest and from the children of Ammon Divers of these delive rances here expressed, we do not finde related before in this holy hiltory, whereby it appeareth that this people received at if he abhorred and for fook his parents fin, and ferved God in Mes another an utroos up personal time and the position are here reorded.

V. 12. And the Mainiter did opprofit yau] i.e. Assome read

Glidd does not be more than the mainiter did opprofit yau] i.e. Assome read

Glidd does not be maintered and his profit yau i.e. Assome read

Glidd does not be maintered and his read to be some the maintered and his read to be some the maintered and his read to be some the maintered and the position of the position of the maintered and the m Gods hands many more favours and bleffings, than are here re

it the inhabitants of the land, to wit, Canaan, Others un- name, derstand bereby the inhabitants of a city called Maon,upon the South of Judah, Joth. 15.55. to which the wildernesse of Maon adjoyned, t Sam. 23.25. From whence the Canaanites which did inhabit it, and did in the time of Chusan-Rishathaim(it may be)afflict and oppresse the Israelites, were called

V. 12. Wherefore I will deliver you no more] This threatning was not absolute, as the sequel sheweth, but condition nall,namely, if they did not repent, that is, forlake their idolatry, and imbrace Gods pure worship, unto which he provoketh and quickneth them by this threatning. So Jerem. 18.

7. 8. V. 14. Go and cry unto the gods which you have cholen] This is no reall command, for the holy and righteous God and the sease of t

32. 37, (8. and thus Elias derideth Baals prieffs, a King. 18.

V. 15. do thou unto us robatfocuer feemeth good unto thee] That is punish us hereafter as thou pleafelf, if we do not perfift in thy true and pure worthip, and utterly renounce our idolarry and all our false gods, onely make triall of us for this once, by giving us deliverance out of the hands of our ene-

V. 16. And his feel was grieved] Heb. shortned, con-tracted, or straitned. For as the heart is dilated and enlarged with joy fo it is contracted and ftraitned with grief; not that God can properly be faid to joy or grieve who in his fimple and perfect nature is free from all humane passions, but by a figurative speech it is ascribed unto him, when he acteth after the manner of men, who usually grieve for those that are in calamity and misery, before out of their pity and compassion they give them help and deliverance, that fo we may the better conceive of his dealing with us.

V. 17. and encamped in Gilead ] Which they now chalenged, that it belonged unto them as their arcient inhericountry.

and encamped in Mizpeb] There were many other places of this name, the Hebrew word fignifying an high-place, convenient to let watches or watch-towers upon it, both to fee and to be feen a far off like our Beacons feated on the top of high hills; As Mizpeh in Judah, Josh, 15,36, and in Benjamin, Josh, 18, 26, and Mizpeh of the Moabites, 1 Sam, 12, 3. But this did lye upon mount Gilead, chap. 11.19. Gen. 31.49.

what man is he that will begin to fight ? li.e. Who will undertake to be our leader in this expedition against Ammon; and for his better incouragement, he shall ever after be our General, Judge and Governour, chap. 11.8.9. and when none would accept of it, as thinking the fervice dangerous and delperate, they refolve hereupon to fend unto Jephthah, as being of known valour and a skilful Commander. And this is here fpoken as an introduction to the following storie in the next

CHAP. XI.

Vers. 1. Ow Jephhab the Gileadite] See annotat. on chap. his fathers name was fo, hut because he was borne in Gilead, but of what tribe he was it appeareth not, though it be very probable that he was of Manasseh, seeing the greatest part of that country was in their possession, and the old Gilead, the fon of Machit, Joh. 17. 1.3.

was a mighty man of valour | Both in respect of his yertue and fortitude of mird, and also his strength of body, whereby he was inabled to atchieve noble acts, and to endure those hard labours that are incident to a warlike profession.

and he was the son of an harlot ] Heb. A woman an harlot.
Bastards by the law of God were forbidden to come into the congregation unto the tenth generation, Deut. 23.2. which is not generally to be taken, as though they were not to be permitted to be present in the affemblies met together for Gods publick worfing, but that they should not be admitted to any publick office, either facred or civil, though they were the ba-Stards of Priests or Princes. But this case of present necessity dispensed with the firittnesse and rigour of this law, the end and equity whereof was to shew how much God abhorred whoredome and uncleannesse, that the people might avoid it, and not to inflict a punishment upon the person thus begotten,

V. 2. And shey thrust out Jephthab] Namely, from having any part, not onely in their fathers inheritance, in which by the law he had no right, but also in his goods for his present maintenance, in which he might have lawfully shared. And maintenance, in which ne might have lawrony thated. And this he counted as a wrong done unto him, and that not afted in a violent courfe by his brethren alone, but also in a legall way, being countenanced and affished by their Elders and Magistrates, as he chargeth them, vers. 7.

V. 3. and dwelt in the land of Tob] A part of a country lying along mount Gilead, nor far from the Ammonites, at the entrance of Arabia the defart, 2 Sam. 10.6.8. Some think Tob to be the proper name of a man, who was the owner of

of that country.

And there were gathered vain men to Jephibab] i.e. Idle fel-

and were our white bins | Namely, as their Captain in military expeditions, to fetch in prey and boory on which they might here, wanning other means; and it is likely from the Amanites: and that with likely do directly, the discouraging was affured that the tought in a just quarrel, the incouraging monites: and that with likely do directly, that there was affured that the tought in a just quarrel, the incouraging of the control of the co General, having already approved himfelf in thefe wars against

V. 5. The Elders of Gilead went to fetch Jephthab] i e. Either by Gods speciall command, or some extraordinarie inflinct,or in a case of present necessity, as before, vers. 1. for otherwise a bastard might not bear any publick office, Deut.

V. 7. and expel me out of my fathers house Ji.e. Gave fentence against me at the suit of my brethren, that I should be expelled.

and why are you come unto me now ] q. d. You never made me any amends for the wrong you then did me, nor would do it yet out of any respect of justice, or love towards me, but out of meer necessity, becaute you are in distresse, and no body else of meer necessity, because you are in interest, and no body she will run the danger to help you out of it.

V. 8. shortfore we turn again unto thee now.] As though they should have faid, we cannot deny, but that thou dost juilty accufe us of our unjust proceeding against thee, but let that be cute us of our unjuit proceeding a gainst tree, but let that be forgotten, feeing we are now come to make the amends. For by this turning again, they do not mean that they had been with him before about this businesse, but that they repented of their former actions of unkindnesse, and now returned unto him with their hearts and affections.

and be our head over all the inhabitants of Gilead] For at the first he was chosen to be their General onely, though afterwards baving so well acquitted and approved himself in this warlike expedition, he was chosen to be Judge over all Israel, chap.

V. 9. Shall I beyon bead ? ] i.e. Not onely your General in this service, but also your Judge, and chief Magistrate over all your country for ever after, or as long as I live. The which he doth not speak as a man that ambitiously thirsted after foversignty and rule; but out of meer equity and honesty, to wit, that having adventured his life in such a desperate and dangerous fervice, he might be fure of that just reward, which, not out of his feeking, but, of their own free accord they had

V. 10. the Lord be witnesse between us ] Heb. be the hearer herween us. i.e. We call God as a witnesse, who is present every where, and heares all our discourse, and is a just Judge to punish us if we do not keep our covenant with thee, that we will be unto thee as good as our words, and make thee our

Will be unto the case good as one words, and make the bead in time to come, as well as now.

V. 11. and rephthab uttered all his words before the Lord in Mir pebl i.e. Which had paffed between him and the Elder of Gilead, in the land of Tob.

before the Lord in Mizfeh] i.e. In a folemn and religious manner, as in Gods presence, before the whole affembly of the people encamped in Mizpeh, chap. 10. 17. he repeated the covenants agreed upon between them, that hereby they might be the more strictly bound to observe and keep them.

tue more tracts; bound to observe and keep toem.

V.12. And Jephish fent melfenger unto the king, &c. ] i.e.

Proceeded according to the law of God, of arms and nat ons, which require first to feek peace upon lawfull conditions, before the proclaiming of a just war, and it his cannot be obtained, then to proclaim it before they made an entrance into it; as in the Weft, Deut. 2.36.

V. 22. So now the Lord God of I [rad] This he alledgeth as ir was the custome of the ancient Romanes, and before them, the practile of Jephthah in this place, Deut. 20.10.11.

what half thouto do with me? ] i. e. What just cause of war haft thou against me, and of invading my country? Speaking this in the name of all the people, as being their Generall. See the like expressions, 2 Sam. 16.10.

nerall. See the like expressions, 2 Sam. 16.10.

come against me to fight in my land li.e. The land which is now under my protection, being intrutted unto me by the general consent of the people, who have chosen me to be their Cap-

V. 13. because Israel took away my land when they came up out of Egypt This was a falle claime, feeing he had no right to the land he challengetb, for it belonged first, for the most part, to the Moabites, and some of it to the Ammonites, but was won from them by the Amorites, in whole positesion it was by right of conquest; and so gotten out of their hands by the Iiraelites, and in their poffession for a long time, not onely by the same right, but also by Gods free donation, the lord of the whole earth, who hath therefore power to dispose of it according to his good pleasure. See Numb. 21.24,25,26.29. &c.

Deut. 1.19.37. & 3.11. Joh. 13.25.

my tand ] Speaking in the name both of the children of Ammon and Moab, over which, it seemeth, he at this time raigned from Arnon even unto Jabbek, and unto Fordan] i.e. That track that lyeth upon these rivers, from mount Gilead Eastward unto Jordan Westward.

V. 1 5. Ifrael took not away the land of Moab ] Jephthah laveth open the untruth of the king of Ammons plea, and the weth that open the untrum orace sing or ammons pressure newert that the Ifraelites, at their coming out of Ægypt, did not meddle with the Moabites or their land, God having expressly foibid-den it, Deut. 2.9. and so likewise of the Ammonites, vers.

19. V. 16. and came to Kadesh] Which was also called Zim, to difference it from Kadesh-barnea, Numb.13. 26. & 20. 14. &

33.36. V. 17. Then Ifrael sent messengers unto the king of Edom ] Numb. 20.14. where Jephthah relateth these passages which before had hapned, to show how fairly the Israelites had carried themselves to all the nations round about them, when they travailed towards the land of Canaan, and had offered no wrong to any of them.

and Israel abode in Kades i.e. They quietly bare this un-kindnesse and injurie, and did not seek to revenge themselves upon the Moabites, and Ammonites, by any violent course, or taking up of arms against them.

V. 18. Then they went along through the wilderne Te, and compaffed ] i.e. They put themselves to a tedious and troublesome jorney, by compassing about their country, that so they might enter into the promised lands rather then they would give them the least cause of offence.

and pitched on the other fide of Arnon] Which lay upon the borders of Moab, but were fo far off from invading their country, that they would not make any entrance, fo much as within the very border of it, Numb. 21. 13. & 22. 24.36.

V. 19. And Ifrael fent meffengers unto Sihon ] i. e. When they could not prevail, either with Edom or Moab, for the obtaining of a pailage into Canaan, they in a fair course affaied

King of the Amorites] So called, not because he was King of all the Amorites, for there were many on both fides of Jordan that were not under his dominion, but because all those over whom he ruled, were Amorites.

unto my place] i.e. The land of Canaan which God hath given me for an inheritance : For unto this only they pretended, and by this right, and therefore lay no claim to Sihons country which lay without Canaan, but in a peaceable manner fend ambaffadors unto him, defiring only a paffage through his land.

V. 20. but Sihon gathered all bis people together ] i.e. Not v. 20. out summ gameres an un popie regener 1 s.c. Not onely denied them passage, but also in an holtile manner came out against them, the lifacilities not provoking him so this war by any injurie which they had offered unto him or his peo-

V. 21. So Ifrael possessed all the land of the Amorites ] To wit, having vanquished them in a lawfull war, they had just title unto it by law of arms, as being gotten by conquelt.
V. 22. And they possessed all the coasts of the Amorites] i.e.

All that region which now the Ammonites unjustly challenge, as belonging to them, ver. 13. or all the country within these coasts, as Arnon in the South, Jabbok in the North, the wilderneffe, that is, the defart of Arabia, in the Eaft, and Jordan another argument, that they had right to this land, because God, the owner and Lord of the whole earth, had given it unto them, and that not only in an absolute way of interest and right, but by giving them victory over them in a lawfull war,

Deut.2.30,31,33.
V. 24. Wilt not thou possesse that which Chemosh thy God So he calleth him, not because he was a God in truth, but only in their opinion: And so he was the God or Idol of the Moabites, Numb. 21. 29. 1King 11. 7. Jer. 48. 13. over whom it seemeth that the King of Ammon now reigned; in which respect Chemosh is here said to be his God: For otherwise Molech or Milchom was the chief Idol of the Ammonites, 1

King. 11. 7,33. & 2 King. 23.13.
giveshibee to possess. The Lord had given unto the children of Moab their land for a possession, and had driven out the enemies from before them, as also the land of the Zamzummims to the children of Ammon; the which their victories they afcribed to their idols, and poffessed their land as their gift, Deut. 2.9, 10, 19, 20.

So whom sover the Lord our God shall drive out ] i.e. As thou so mormover the Lora our own pain arrive out 1 .1. As thou thinkeft thou may ft juffly poffeste all that which thy Idol Chemosh (a thou failly conceives) bath given thee, so much more, may we lawfully possessed all that Jehovah, the continue God, hath given untous.

V. 24. Art thou any thing better than Balak ] i.e. Haft thou better right to this land, or more power and policy to maintain Chap, xi. it than Balak, who never yet made any such claim unto it? | soever it was most likely that an humane creature should come it that branch, who never yet made any usen claim unto it? [dever it was most likely that an humane creature should come, and this he useful has another readon to wince their right to the job to meet him; yet it had been possible that a done land, the come the possible that a come is a land to the possible that a come of the possible that a land is a land in the possible that the possibl

Did be ever strive against Israel ? ] i.e. Though he hired Balaam to curie Israel, and it that had succeeded, would have raifed war againft them, thinking (though falley) that daughter for a burnt-offering, or whether the war hey intended to invade his own country, yet when the Ifraelite that conquered the country of the Amorites, and were ginity. And furely it cannot be denyed, but that the parties felted in its plate july politicing, he never went about to rece

Numb. 21. 24.26. & 22. 2. Deur. 23. 4.
V. 26. Whilest Israel dwelt in Heshbon] He reckoneth v. 26. Would state the temporal He recessions up some chief places of the country, which the Ifraelites after they had conquered it did peaceably possesses, and by them understanded all the rest, as namely, Hesthoon, the Metropolis of the land of Moab, in which Sihon dwelt, as being his chief city : And Aroer, another city towards the Eaft of this three hundred years] The time in a just computation, tak-ing it from Judge to Judge, came not to so much by above thirty years, but this is usuall in the scriptures, speaking of a round fum, not to respect odd numbers, more or lesse. And of this custome lephthal here maketh use, because it was for his advantage to fpeak of the longest time, when he pleadeth prescription.

why then did ye not recover them within that time ] i.e. If ye had any fuch right to these towns and country as ye now pretend; why did ye not all this time challenge and plead your right, but fuffer the Ifraelites quietly to enjoy them, never making any

V. 27. Wherefore I have not finned against thee ] o wit, by unjust detaining thy cities and land from thee, feeing I have a just title unto them, by a lawful conquest, by Gods donation, and a legal prescription allowed of among all nations.

but thou deest me wrong to war against me To wit, by picking but their aself me wrong to war against me; I o without premise against me an unjust quarrel, that thou mailet by rating war against me cast me out of my lawful possession. The Lord the judge, bejudge] i.e. Shew himself a righteous Judge in determining this quarrel between us, by propering. the innocent and giving them victorie, and punishing them that offer the wrong, by bringing them to utter ruine and de-

V. 29. Then the spirit of the Lord came upon Jephihah ] i.e. The spirit of prudence and fortitude. See Annotat on chap.

He passed To wit, with all his army. and Manaffehl i.e. Bathan, in which half the tribe of Ma-naffeh inhabited.

V. 20. And Feshthah vowed a vow 7 i.e. Before he undertook the execution of his delign, he made a folemn vow to God, of that hereby he might move him to profipe him in his expedit.

I do datary 3, but ever a gainst the light of nature, a foldarry 3, but ever a gainst the light of nature, a foldarry 3, but every heathers, furing fome for the contraction of the contracti Commanders, when they undertook warlike enterprizes against their enemies, and was the practice of Gods people, when they were to fight against Arad, Numbers

what soever cometh out of the doors of my bouse to meet me] This is a preplexed and confused vow, altogether unlimited to thing vowed seemed good; but afterwards proveth evill, any fubiect, faving that it scemeth to imply that he inrended some reasonable creature, which propounded to its felf this end of coming forth, namely, to meet

Shall surely be the Lords, and I will offer it up for a burntoffering. Or thus, or I will offer it up for a burnt-offering.
Which yow seemeth to consist of two branches: The first generall , that he would confecrate and devote it to the Lord howfoever; the fecond more speciall, intimating the nature of the subject, and the manner of devoting it, namely, that if it were fit for facrifice, as clean beafts and the turtle dove or young pigeon, then he would offer it up for a bunt-offering. Or if his intention was to limit his yow to a humane creature (as is supposed) then his meaning was, that it should be the Lords, that is, devoted and confectated to his fervice, but not in the way of a burntoffering, which was abominable to God, but to be fet apart and sequestred from the world, in a speciall manner to performe unto him more spirituall and religious fervice. For if his meaning by these words, shall surely be the Lords, were, that it should be facrificed for a burntoffering, then the branches of this vow should be both one and the fame, and there should be no difference between

But take this vow in what fence we will, yet we must needs confesse, (asit is here propounded ) that it is very confused and perplexed, rash and unconsiderate. For how-he devoted unto Gods fervice.

But from hence there hath arifen a main and grand queflion amongst the learned; whether Jephthah offered his Ambrose and Augustine, &cc. with divers learned and godly men amongst our late writers; of the later we have divers of the later Rabbins, and many judicious Divines above all exceptions.

It were therefore well worthy our paines if thereby we could add fome light to the deciding of this intricate and difficult question.

To which purpole I will a little more largely infift upon it than will well fland with the brevity of our intended Annotations; and for the better clearing of the point in controversie, I will first premise some propositions, as po-sulars and necessary requisites, grounded on equity and charity, which being granted will much tend to the clearing of the question.

The first is, that we do not involve Jephthah in an higher and deeper degree of finne, than the feripture doth evidently and clearly charge upon him, nor aggravate his faults and and creary charge upon him; not aggravate its fauther flaglings by our ungrounded furmiles, and uncharitable fulpitions. And this (I fuppole) will amount to no more than to render him faulty in making a raft and inconfiderate vow, ariling from blinde ignorance and fuperflutious devotion; and as much blame-worthy for keeping and per-

Secondly, that we willingly entertaine all advantages which the text will afford us, to clear him for having committed fuch an about up, to clear min for naving committee fuch an aboutinable wickendeffe as is laid to his charge; feeing the Holy Ghoft bath been plasted fo much to ho-nour him, as to inroll him awongft his greateft wor-thies, and to etternize his name for his exemplary faith, Heb. 11. 22.

Which being granted (as I cannot excuse him for his making and keeping a rash and inconfiderate vow, though the best men have their failings, and there is, not one who livest and since the nor, so ) I cannot but acquite him of that horrid act, in offering his daughter for a whole burnet.

offering, and that upon these reasons.

First, because this had been such an 'abominable wickedneffe, as was not onely condemned with all deteftation in the word of God, as the most beinous and transcendent kinde humanity and natural affection.

Secondly, though he should have made such a wicked vow vet when he faw the refult of it, he was no way bound to keep it, feeing it was quite contrary to his intention:
For vowes binde onely to that which is good, and if the they do not binde; but as it was a fin to make them, fo it is a greater fin to keep them, the one proceeding from rafh-nesse, the other done upon mature deliberation: Again, God in his law had plainly expressed upon what conditions he would dispense with such yowes, and how the thing he would disperie with fuch vowes, and how the thing word might be redeemed, and a what rates, Levit. ch. 37-vor. 34. And whereast is answered, that Jephthuh by profession a soulding, and mouth ring among the leathers, was ignorant of this law: I Freply, though he were, see he had time enough, between the making and executing of his vow, to have informed himself, if not by his own reading, yearst safe, by a sking council of the Priefs, which it is not any test probable that he would negled it when it contains the probability of the property of the probability of the probability of the property of the probability of the property of the probability of t not any way proposate that ne would neglect it, when it con-ermed him so neer as the preservation of the life of his only childe and deared daughter: And whereas it is surther ob-jected, that in that law of redemption a thing devoted, which should be devoted of men, could not be redeemed, but must be put to death, Levit. ch. 27. ver. 28, 29. And this was the cause which might bring Jephthah into his errour : To this it is answered , that the things devoted here spoken of, were only fuch as were anathematized and accurled for execrable wickedneife, and therefore devoted to utter deftruction, as in the case of Jericho and the spoiles of it, and the Amalekites, 1 Sam. 15. And this concerned not Jephtha's daughter, who was (as it appeareth) an innocent and pious

Thirdly, there is nothing clearly expressed in the text which may make us conclude, that be either yowed to facrifice his | and that the barren womb was eftermed as a great curle, and daughter as aburnt offering, or performed his vow in this fence, feeing the word may be taken not onely conjunctively and I will offer, but also disjunctively, or I will offer it up, as it is (though not fo frequently) ufed in divers other places, as Gen. 26. 11. Exodus 1. 10. and chap. 21. 15. and fo it may here be thus read; if it be fuch a thing as may lawfully be offered, then I will offer it for a burnt offering , but if not, it fail howfoever be confecrated unto God. But by the law not onely humane facrifices were forbidden as abominable not onely numane jacrinces were formann as adominable unto God, but all tinings that were unclean, Levit. 27. 11, 12.13. Deut. 13. 31. Ilai. 63. 3. And if ever the word is to taken, then furely charity it felf bindeth us to take it fo in this prace.

Laftly, it was not in Jephthah's power to offer up his daughter as a burnt-offering, unleffe he could involve others also in the same wickednesse; for he could not thus offer her up himselfe , seeing it belonged onely to the oner ner up numere, teening to etonigen onerly to the Prieft to offer facifices, and what probability is there in this, that he could perfunde the Priefls to joyn with him in fuch an horitd action? A gain, what legal power had he to kill an innocent, or to take away the life of his dearest daughter, without any offence by her commit-ted against God or man? Or though it should (though ted against God or man't or tutought in income (university of fallely) be (upposed that he might do it, having a right to dispose of the daughter at his pleasure, yet how could he have done it, if another had come out to meet him, over whom he had no such colour of right, as suppose his wife, or the wife of one in his familie ? Or doing it, how could be be excused of wilful murther?

But it is objected that if we should understand his vow to be a devoting of his daughter to Gods fervice, in a state of perpetuall virginity, it would much counte-nance Monasticall vows of a single life, for which we nance Monatticall vows of a ingle lite; for white we finde no warrant in feripute; eather by precept or pre-fident, before or after the dayes of Jephthah; yea, the cleane contrary in Samuel, who though he were divorte to Gods fervice; yet was married and had wife and children. And this I conceive hath been the chief training that the literature of the conceive hath bean the chief training that the literature of the conceive hath bean the chief training that the literature of the conceive hath bean the chief training that the conceive hath bean the chief training that the conceive hath bean the chief training that the conceive hather than the chief training that the conceive hather than the chief training that the chief training training that the chief training the chief training that the that Jephthah's vow is to be understood, rather of a that jephinan's yow is to be undertrood, rather of a burnt offering, than of devoting his daughter to Gods fervice in a flate of virginity. But why may they not as well feare, if we take it in their fence, that it might be abused as a president to countenance humane facrifices; which were far more frequent than the other. Though in truth there is no better ground from hence to countein trust tere is no better ground from active to counter-mance this rather than that; For feeing there is neither precept nor prefident for this vow of virginity, in a monafi-callite, in the feripture, this example of Jephthab can be but a poor and landy foundation to build it upon, who lived in fach times of superstition and ignorance, and was himself infected with this contagion. In which respect it may be well thought, that his example is much fitter to ferve as a fea-mark to make us to keep off from falling upon these rocks and sands, than to

Other reasons and objections might be added, but seeing we shall have occasion to consider of them in the latter part of this chapter, I will refer them to be fpoken of in their due place.

this chapter, will refer them to be posted of its near due place.

V. 32. And be finest them from Afrec? I Jying by the brook
Armon, Deut. 3. 13. which was in the tribe of Reuben, Jofh. 13.

16. where ! Epothsh began to invade the land of Armon.

10. 20thmaitb] Which lyeth beyond Arnon Eastward, and is a town in the borders of Ammon neer Rabbah. the plain of the vineyards ] Or Abel, which is a city in the country of the Ammonites, famous for vineyards and excellent

V. 34. bis daughter came out to meet him with simbrels and dances. To wit, being accompanied with many other virgins which did acteur her, so the custome of those times was for wante and access need, as the carroine or those times was for women and maids, after great victories to fing longs of tri-tumph, Exod. 19, 20, Judg. 5, 1. 1 Sam. 18,6. But though many came out with her, yet his vow reached not to any of them, but only to one of his own familie, befide her be had neither fon nor daughter] Or, he had not of his own, either fon or daughter. Heb. of himself. The which is added as a reason why he made fish great lamentations.

V. 35, when he saw be results clother] i.e. In fign of his great former and thirtee grieficas was the custome of those times, and in those countries. See Gen. 37, 29. Numb. 14, 6, 2 Sam.

2.2.28 13.19. Job.s. 20.
Then half brought me very low i.e. I am not so much exalted by may great victory, as bumbled and depressed with this sad and unexpected accident, whereby I am become unterly hopelesse of sanctification actions action of the same of the same that all hope was cut off from Jephthah, the chief Magistrate in the Common-wealth, from living in his posterity, we cannot but confesse that he had great cause of bitter griet. See Gen. 20.22. 1 Sam. 1.6. Luk. 1.21.

For I have overed my mouth unto the Lord \ Heb. i.e. I have made a vow, as this phrase signifieth in the scripture.

and I cannot go back ] i.e. I dare not break my vow , not knowing in those dayes of ignorance and superstition, that the law of God gave him liberty in this case to have redeemed his daughter with fifty shekels of silver, Levit. 27. v. 4.

V. 36. And she said unto him Namely, in all probability, when he had first acquainted her with the nature and substance do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy mouth i. c. According to thy yow; and feeing thou haft confectated me as holy to the Lord to live a Virgin and as a Nazarite all my dayes, I willingly agree unto it, and ratific thy vowes, devoting my felf wholly unto God. So Anna, Luke 2. 36. See I Cor. 7. 34. 36, 37. Neither can we probably think, that Jephthah (commended for his faith, Heb. 11. 32.) should offer his daughter for a burnt-offering, seeing it is much more o-dious to God, than to offer unto him Swines-blood, or a dogs head, Ifa. 63.3. and was expresly forbidden as most abominable, Deut, 12.31. and feeing God requireth in the law, that the first-born children which were his, Exod. 13. 22. & 23. 29. should not be offered but redeemed, Numb. 18.15. Exod.

13. 13. V. 27. Let me alone two moneths] Why (fay some) doth she defire two moneths, if at the end of them fhe was not to be offered but to live in the flare of virginity, feeing still living the had time enough to do it afterwards? I answer, because this lamentation was then most seasonable, when she was first defigned and adjudged unto this condition, and was now ready to enter into it.

that I may go up and down upon the mountains ] As being foli-tary places, and therefore the fitter for mourning, and the expressions of her grief in her bitter and passionate lamentations for this great affliction laid upon her, which did cut off all hope of having any posterity.

and bewaile my virginity] Whereby I shall be deprived of posterity : And here note, that the speaketh not of bewailing her approaching death, or being facrificed, but her virginity, upon the former reasons.

V. 39. who did unto her according to his vow] i.e. Did not v. 39. who are unto per according to me own 1.2. Die not redeem her according to the law, but did confecrate her unto the Lord, as a virgin to ferve him in a fingle life, x Cor. 7.3 2. and she knew no man 1 He doth not say, and she was offered and lock/lean homal He doth not lay, and he was onered for a burn-offering, but that the knew no man, i.e. lived a virgin, as her father had vowed and the affented.

And it was aculfoned Or, an ordinance, went yearly like, from year to year.

to lament the daughter of Fepthab | Or, as the word may fignific, to talk with her, that is, they did yearly go to vilite her four dayes in a year, that they might commune and difcourfe with her, comfort and cheer her in this her folitary condition. See ch. 5.11. where the fame Hebrew word is used to fignifie fpeaking or relating

CHAP. XIL

Verf. 1. And the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together]
Heb. were calked. 1.e. Being moved with vain-glory, and envying Jephtha's and the Gileadites victory and good successes, as formerly they had done Gideons, and both on the fame ground, because they were Manastites, whom they emulated, and disdained that they should in any thing be preferred section and unusured that they mean an any timing or preferred before them, they in a tumulituous way being imaged, aftemble themselves together, to quarrell and make war against them, whereas if they had not been wholly transported with those victous and hellish suries of pride and envis, they should with all thankfulnefic have congratulated their victory, whereby they as well as others were delivered from the grievous oppressions of a common enemy.

and went northward? i.e. After they had passed over Jordan. they marched with their army into Gilead, which was on the North of Ephraim where Jephthah lived.

wherefore passedft then over to fight ] i. e. Wast not content to menune paljedf sheu wort to figor 1 s. e. Walf not content to drive the Annoniese out of your country, but all odd this wake their land, without making us acquainted with it; which was us allly quarte, had it been true, feeing herein they had been the more beholding unto them, in doing the work themselves & dring them the bloom, and freeing them from the danger of it: But they backed their infolencie & ungratitude with a left of the Torkhath Pulley, then the but he also a she of the all also are 2. Jephthab telleth them that he had at the first called them unto their affiffance, and had they come, they might have accom-

V. 2. I and my people were at firife ] i.e. The quarrel was

Chap.xij. chiefly between the Ammonites and us, and not between you they are thought worthy to be mentioned as Judges, because chasty between ute. Ammonies and us; and not detween you! they are thought worthy to be inentioned as Judges, because there and the on, and yet out off my replicit you, as being our betternand the opinion that. I had of your valour, which was in the act for notedition to, it called you into our aid, but you in the act for notedition to, it called you into our aid, but you in the act for notedition to, it called you into our aid, but you in the act for notedition to, it called you into our aid, but you in the act for notedition to, it called you into our aid, but you in the act for notedition to, it called you into our aid, but you in the purity of Coglet true religion. helped us not, either out of your neglect, or elfe your fear to run the fame hazard with us.

V. 2. I put my life into my bands Heb. in my palm. An Hebraifm. i.e. I exposed my life to great danger of death. A metaphor borrowed from one that carrieth a precious jewel in his open hand which is easily fnatched away, or a glaffe that is apt to fall out of it, and to be broken. So I Sam. 19. 5. & 20. aptro tail out of it, and to be broken. So I sam. 19. 5. 82 10.

I. Job 13. 14. Pfalling-109. And fo Josham expounds this metaphor, chap, 117. My faither fought for you, and adventured bit life far, 60%. Neither faid I ephthah in this scneep but life into his hands to lay it down, or deliver it up to the Amlerica has been supported by the control of the same to the family of the same to the sa monites, but onely by fighting with them upon great difadvanrage, in respect of his small army and their great multitude, to put it upon the hazard of a dangerous war.

and the Lord delivered them into my bands ] i.e. Confirmed my calling, by crowning my attempts with victory; and why then do you, having no ground or reason for it, quarrel against my proceedings, which God himfelf hath thus approved by giving unto me such good successe.

V. 4. Then Jephthab gathered together] i.e. When no perfwafions would move them to lay down their unjust quarrel, he prepareth to fland in his own defence. But why did not Jephthah's speech prevail with them as well as Gideons ? furely it was not because it was lesse prevalent in it felf, or not backed with as firong reason; but partly because Gideons was more meek and humble, and so better pleased their proud humour, and partly because they had some glory of that proud adminut, and party occasing they had only good of that victorie, in the taking of the two kings, Zeeb and Oreb, and in respect of that, had the chief honour of the dayby Gideon alcribed unto them, Prov. 15. 1. and chap. 25.

Te Gilcadites are fugitives of Ephraim ] i.e. The refuse and four of these two tribes, Ephraim and Manasseh, and so a mungrill generation out of the mixture of both, and therefore cast out of the land of Canaan, as unworthy the priviledge of dwelling there, and to fain to have your habitation upon the passages of Jordan, just between these two tribes, and in no efteem with either of them. And in this regard ye ought not to have undertaken a matter of fuch impor-

gard ye ouggenfort out a undertaken a matter of tieth impor-tance as this war was, without our knowledge, you being fo bafe, and we so noble and superiour unto you. V. y. And the Gilteddies took the paliges of footdam i.e. After the Ephramites, being entred their country, were be-aren in battle, and wholly routed and put to slight, they took these passages to hinder them from escoping into their own countrie, as the Ephramites before had done on the other fide Jordan, to Zeeb and Oreb. chap. 7. 24.

Let me go over ] i.e. Pretending that they were passengers of some other tribe, that were going that way about their bu-

If he faid nay ] To chape the danger, and fave his life. V. 6. Then faid they unto him ] i.e. That they might put him upon the triall, and discover whether he were an Ephramite or no, by his proper dialect and manner of pronounciation.

Say now Shibboleth] Which fignifieth a stream, foord, or water-course, and so was a word fit for the present occasion when they were to pale over the foords of Jur-and he faid Sibboleth] Speaking upon the fudden according to the dialect of his own country, unto which they were To accustomed and habituated that they could not pronounce it otherwise; especially not knowing what they intended in putting them upon this triall. And thus it is with other nations, as the French and Irifh at this day, who in most words cannot pronounce the afperate letter. But this was but an hard triall, especially upon life and death, seeing an innocent that had the infirmitie of hisping or stuttering, might so have peri-

V. 8. And after Ibsan of Bethelem] There were two cities of this name, one in the tribe of Judah, called Bethelem Judah ; another on the North borders of Zebulon, Josh. 19.15. which it feemeth is meant here.

V. 9. Thirtie daughters whom he [ent abroad] Namely; out of his own family, and bestowed them upon husbands in other and too! thirty daughters from abroad for his fons] Namely, to be their wives, and to to live with them in their fathers familie, for the husband being his wives head, the is to follow him, and not the husband the wife.

And he judged Ifrael feven years] Who it feemeth (as also the two other Judges following) living in peaceable times, and doing nothing of special note, in the time of their government against forraign enemies, nothing is recorded of them; onely and was buried in Affalon] Where the Moon flood fill at the prayer of Johna. See Johno. 12. in the country of Zebulon Which is added to diffinguish it from other cities of the fame name, as that in the tribe of Danchap, 1.25, and foine others, as that I Chron. 6.69.& 8.12. & 2 Chron. 11. 10.& 28.18.

a Pirathonite | Pirathon was a city Westward from Samaria and Shechem, where Benajah Davids worthy was borne, and was scituate upon an high hill, called the mount of the Ates, either because they had lived there in former times;

o, as fome think, lived still there even to Sauls time, Their own land in which they lived lay without the borders of Canaan South East, over against Ægypt, at the red sea by the defart of Havilah, as we may fee by comparing 2 Sam. 15. 7. with Exod. 17.8. But it feemeth that formerly fome of that nation dwelt in Ephraim, either before they were destroyed by Saul, or at least had dwelt there before the conquest of Canaan, and so the mount still retained their name.

CHAP. XIII.

Verf. 1. Al the children of I [rael did evill again] Heb. added to commit. i.e. Apoltatized from Gods pure worthip and fell to idolatry. See annotation chap. 2. 11. & 2. 7. & 4. 1. & 6. 1. & 10.6

into the hands of the Philistims ] To wit, to be subdued, vexed and oppressed by them.

Fortie years ] Which cannot be computed by themselves, when as there was no Judge, for fo it will not stand with that computation, King. 6.1. for fo those four hundred and eighty would come to five hundred at least; neither can they be meant of Sampsons time, for he judged Israel onely twenty years, chap. 15.20. And therefore twenty years must be taken out of the time of other Judges; and as some think, from theirs that went before, and then the account must reach to the fifth year of Ibzan; or as others, to the time of those that followed Sampson, as Eli and Samuel. For which their opinion they have these grounds; First, these over numbers are alwaies computed under the following Judges, who delivered the people from their troubles and oppressions. Secondly, because it must needs be that the Ifraelites fin, for which they were delivered into the hands of the Philiftims forty years, was after the daies of Abdon, leeing it is so plainly faid in the text, that after the death of Abdon the children of I rael did evill again. Thirdly, because it appeareth not that under these three last Judges the people sell into idolaty, but lived in peace, and were not delivered into the hands of their enemies, whereof it is that there is no mention made of any war in their times, nor of their victories, or deliverances of the people. And lastly, because it is manifest that the Hraelites were under the opprefions of the Philiftims, a great part of the time wherein Eli judged Ifrael, even till after his death Samuel succeeded him, 1 Sam.7. 9, 10,11,12.

V. 2. A certain man of Zorah ] A city lying on the Welt fide of that hill which parteth Judah and Dan, Josh. 15. 33. & 14.41. in whose fields or territorie adjoyning, it feemeth Managh dwelled, and not in the city it felf, vers. 25. and chap of the familie of the Danites ] i.e. Of the tribe. So Amos 2.

1. Jer. 1.15. & 8.3. & 10.25. Mich. 2.3.
of the Danites ] Who bordering upon the land of the Philiftims were most subject to their incursions and oppressions, and therefore the Lord raiseth up a Judge out of this tribe to defend their Country, and to quell their enemies ; which he did with such courage and successe, that some think Jacob had respect to his victories in his blessing, Gen.

And the angel of the Lord appeared ] Some think that he was a created angel, because he would not have Manaoh sacrifice unto him, but to the Lord, verf. 16. which reason is not good. because he saith this to Manaoh, not because he was not God, but because he conceived that he was but a meer man. And To our Saviour Christ taxeth the man for calling him good, because there is none good but God, Matt. 19. 17. speaking according to his opinion of him who thought him to be but a meer man. But it is very probable he was the Angel of the covenant, the eternall Word of his Father, who usually in those times appeared to others, as to Joshua and Gideon, in an humane shape, for he is afterwards called Elohim by Manaoh, and his wife calleth him Jehovah, verf. 23. and himfelf faith that his name was fecret or wonderful, which is one of the names or titles which is given to our Lord Christ, Ilai. 9. 6.

See annotat on chap. 6.11. V. 3. Behold now thou art barren] i.e. Unfruitful and un fit to bear or conceive a childe in course of nature, but thori that have a fon by vertue of Gods promife and covenant.

Chap.xiv.

V. 4. And ease not any unclean thing ] i.e. Not onely unclean meats forbidden to all by the law, Levic, 11. but even wine and strong drink, and all things that come of the grape, moift or drie, from the kernels even to the huske, forbidden to the Nazarites. Numb. 6. 2,3, &c. By which was fignified their renouncing of all carnal, fenfual pleasures, and worldly delights; that they might wholly devote themselves to the ser-vice of God. And these meats and drinks were forbidden to Sampsons mother, both when the was with child of him, and gave him fuck, because all that time he had his nourishmen from her, and God had called him even from his conception trom her, and God Bad Called unit even from his conception to be a Nazarite unto him, unto whom fuch meats and drinking were unlawful. By which is implyed, that he himfelf much more should abstain from them when he came to feed on his own diet, feeing they were inhibited to his mother onely for his fake.

V. 5. And no rayour shall come on his head ] Numb, 6.5 g Sam. 1.11. And this was done that their haire, which was alwaies in their fight, might continually put them in mind, that they were confecrated to Gods fervice, and therfore must not do any thing unbefeeming their calling; and also that hereby they any thing undercenting their causing 3 and allo that hereby they were mortifyed to the world, and contemned all earthly delicacies, and thefore neglected the trimming and tricking of their bodies, that they might wholly intend Gods spiritual services.

Forthe child [hall be a Nazarite] The word fignifieth one feparate that is, fuch an one as is feparated from worldly and earthly things, that he may in a speciall manner be consecrated and devoted to Gods service. And the name Pharisee is of the fame fignification, though not given them of God, but in pride and hypocrific arrogated to themselves. Now the Nazarite was thus devoted and confectated, either perpetually from the beginning of his life to his death, or onely for a time. The former fort were fet apart, either immediately by God himfelf, as Sampson in this place, and John the Baptist; or immediately by the parents, as Samuel. The other were confecrated by their own speciall vow, and that onely for a time, as some moneths or years, at their own choyce; of which those laws concerning Nazarites, Numb. 6 are chiefly to be understood. And in both these we may observe the legal ceremonies required to their confecration, and outward carriage in their calling, and a moral equity confifting in this, that in a foecial manner they did dedicate themselves to Gods service; and this did perpetually binde them to all due observance, even to the end of life. Now Sampson was a Nazarite by Gods special defignation and command, that he might begin to fave his peo-ple; wherein he was above all Nazarites a fingular type of fanctified, even from the womb and in the wombe, Luk.1.35. Heb. 7.16. Secondly, the end why he was thus fet apart and deflored, was that he might fave and deliver his prople out of the hands of all their enemies, Matth. 1. 21. Thirdly, in that he performed (like Sampson) this work of falvation, in his own personal strength alone, without the help and affishance of any other, Ifai. 63: 1,2,3. Yea, as Sampson prevailed apromife, and so Christ also was the fun of promise, conceived and what thy name is. in a supernatural and miraculous manner by the Holy Ghost: and also in his death: For as Sampson flew more of his ene-mies at his death, than he had done in all his life time: So and be fall begin to deliver Ifrael] For he did onely begin this deliverance, feeing the Philiftims did oppresse and Lord it over the Ifraelites all his life, and it was continued by Saul, and not perfected before Davids time.

V. 6. a man of God] i.e. An holy Prophet fent of God. For thus do the feriptures usually honour Gods Prophets and meffengers with this title, John 14.6. 1 Sam. 3.27. 1 King. 13. 1. &c. 1 Tim.6.1.

and his countenance--was very terrible | i.e. Glorious majestical, and fearful to frail mankind.

V. 8. and teach as what we shall do unto the child ] As though he should have said, he bath already shewed us what my write shall do whilest she is with child, but our humble defire is, that he will again appear unto us, to infruct us more fully and perfectly, how we shall order the child when he is borne.

V. 10. And the moman made hafte and ran] i.e. Knowing how earnestly her husband had desired and prayed, that the Angel, or Prophet should come again to give them surther in-that this shame was supernatural and miraculous, like that of studion how they should carrie themselves towards the child Elias that came down from heaven, or of Gideon which acole

V. 12. Now let thy words come to paffe | This is a prayer of fairh laving hold on the former promites.

v. 14. All that I commanded her let ber observe I i.e. Let her abstain from all those things which I forbade her, whilest she is with child and giveth suck, and take the like care in his education, that he much more may refrain from the use of them, Nazarite, unto whom in his law all these things are forbidden. and therefore what hath been inhibited unto her, he must also abstain from, seeing they are all interdicted to her, not for her own, but for his lake. See Numb. 6. 3,4,5.

V. 15. until we have made ready a kid for thee] Heb. before thee. Maraoh thinking him to be a man of God, or a Prophet, defireth to thew his due respect unto him, by giving him entertainment and feafting of him ; the which he utterly refu feth; not because Angels appearing in humane shapes, did not sometimes eat, for we see the contrarie in those that appeared to Abraham: but because he would raise up his thoughts higher, and discover himself more plainly, that he was not a meer man, he moveth him, that if he would needs be at this cost and charge, he should bestow it in such a way as would be more acceptable to God and profitable for himfelf, namely, by offering this kid for a facrifice to God, to shew his thankfulneffe for fo great a benefit, as he had promifed unto him in gi-ying him a fon. And this he doth to this end, that he might take occasion hereby to show himself, that he was not a meer man, but the Angel of the covenant, that had appeared unto him, by afcending up to heaven in the flame of the facrifice and for the further confirmation of Manach's faith in the affurance of Gods promife.

V. 16. I will not eat of thy bread \ i.e. Not of any of thy meat which thou shalt provide for me. For so bread in the feripture usually fignifieth all manner of food fit for mans nourithment. So 2 King. 6. 32, 23. Matth. 6.11.

Thou must offer is unso the Lord But how could Manach do this, feeing he was no Prieft, unto whom onely it appertained to offer facrifices ? I answer, because the Lord commanded him to do it, who might dispence with his own law.

Secondly, it may be demanded, how it was lawful for Manaoh to build an altar for facrifice, feeing the law appointed that there should be but one onely altar, erected for this use > I apfwer, one onely was commanded in ordinary, but in extraordinary cases there might others be erected, as when God gave a foecial command for it, either by vision, as to Gideon, chap, 6.26, or by visible apparition, as here, or by a propheti-cal instinct of his spirit, as in Elias, 1 King. 18.30. Some think that that command of offering upon one altar took not full effect, whilest the ark of God was in the tabernacle in a Christ, and that in many respects, for he was called, sealed, and stitting condition from place to place, till it was settled in Solemons temple at Jerusalem, grounding their opinion on Deut. 1. 13. Take head to thy felf that thou offer not thy hurst offering in every place that thou feef, but in the place which the Lord thy God shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burns offering. See annotation chap. 21 4.

V. 17. that when thy (spings are some to paffe we may do thee honour) i.e. That we, and others unto whom we shall relate it, of any other, 1816-5; 1,1-3; 1 Ce3, as sampton prevaied a power j.e., 1 nat we, and others throw short we find little start grainth his nearnies (in a manner) without amon to weepons; a do the chronic, y acknowledging thee a true Prophet to Charle by his own might, as it was foretold, Hold. 1-7. And find the prophet of the charles of was above the courte of nature, by vertue of Gods power and cannot do unlesse we know what thou art, where thou dwelless,

> V. 18. why afkeft thou thus after my name, seeing it is secret or wonderfull. For the Hebrew word signifieth both, and may fo here be taken : It is fecret, and therefore is not curiously to be pried into, nor inquired after, Deut. 29. 29. and wonder-ful that is so far above the reach and comprehension of humane understanding, that it is rather to be adored than searched in-to: And this is truly verified of the angel of the covenant the > Lord Christ, whose name and nature, as he is God, is fecret , wonderful and incomprehensible; and therefore he is so entituled, Ifa. 9.6. But not fo well of any created angel : And therefore he telleth Manach, that his name and nature were not curiously to be inquired after, seeing he was not thus to be known but only (and that according to our model) and shallow capacity) by his word and works; and fo he revealed himfelf unto him in his wonderfull actions which he did prefendy after unto the Lord | Namely, as the Lord had directed him, ver.

V. 19. So Manach took a Kid ] See Annotation on verıć.

V. 20. when the flame went up towards heaven] Some think reaction now more insula carrie themselves towards the child. Elius that came down from fleavieth, or of. Usedon when the appeared unto the road again, the made all possible freed to acquain the rhusband thing is faid of fire or wood prepared by Manach for the wink is, that he shimless in shift of the wood in the company of the wink is, that he shimless might come and speak with him a - jece. Others think (mad lippose more probably) that is was ordinary fire and wood from which this flame afcended and not miraculoufly arising out of the rock, because if it had heen a miracle it would have been noted to be lo. as in the cafe of Gideon, feeing miracles are not flighted over and fmotherof Gueen, recing miracles are not lighted over and finother-ed in filence. Secondly, becaule Manaob and his wife being affected and affrighted with fuch a miraculous fight, would have fallen upon their face, as they afterwards did. Thirdly, hereby they would have discovered the man to be an angel of God, whom they thought to be a Prophet, which they did not till they faw him afcending in the flame.

The Angel of the Lord ascended in the flame ] i. e. The great angel of the covenant, who aftending up into heaven carrieth with him our prayers, our fervices and facrifices, and putting them into the golden vials or cenfors, full of the odours of his meries and obedience, prefenteth them unto God, unto whom they are acceptable being thus perfumed, Rev. 5, 8. And this also evinceth, that he was not a created angel, but our Lord Christ the angel of the covenant.

and fell on their faces to the ground ] Being affrighted and examinated with the fight of this miracle, and affected with the fense of their own frailty and mortality.

V. 21. Manaob knew that he was an angel of the Lord 7 i.e. The eternall word, and angel of the covenant, which he cals Elohim, or God, and his wife Jehovah. v. 22,22.

V. 22. we Shall surely dye because we have seen God ] See Annotation on chap. 6. 22. Deut. chap. 5. v. 26. Exod. chap.

35. 10.

V. 23. If the Lord were pleased to kill us ] She useth three arguments to comfort her husband, and to strengthen his faith in this affurance, that they fhould not die as he feared : First, because God had accepted their sacrifice, as appeared both by his commanding them to offer it, (and he requireth nothing but that which is pleasing unto him; ) and also by his ascending in the flame of it, to carry it up to heaven with him, that he might present it unto God. Secondly, if he had purposed to kill them, them fuch a miraculous fign of his gracious favour, as the he had no reason to think of it. ascending up in their fight in the flame of their facrifice. I hirdly, he would not have promifed them, that before they dyed, they should have a fon who should begin to save I frael; nor have given them directions how they should order themselves and the child when he was born : All which must needs have been falle and frivolous, if he had not intended that they should live to do and execute what he had commanded and given them in charge.

V. 24 And the Lord bleffed bim] i.e. Indued him with an heroick fpirit, invincible valour, and miraculous ftrength, with all other gifts and graces befitting his calling.
V. 25. And the spirit of the Lerd began to move him] i.e. To inspire into him magnanimous thoughts, and to indue him with miraculous strength of body, thereby inciting him to attempt and execute wonderfull, and more than humane acts, only fit for him that was fo called, and to be fuch a deliverer of

In the camp of Dan | Neer unto Hebron , which place had its name either from that expedition of the Danites when they went to surprize Laish, chap, 18.11,12, and if so, then it is a manifest proof, that those things recorded in that story, were done before the dayes of Sampson, though related afterwards in the 18. chapter. See Annot, on chap. 17.v. 1. or elfe it was fo called, because the Danites at this present had their standing camp, to preferve their country from the in-roades and vaftations of the Philiftims, where Samplon in his youth had occafion to fliew his ffrength and valour.

. Zorab] See verfe z Estraol] Which lay in the tribe of Dan, We lward towards the great Sea.

CHAP. XIV.

Verf.x. And Sampson went down to Timnath] Which was a City first allotted to the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15. 57. and their inheritance which fell unto them in the first division proving too large for any one tribe, a good part was taken out of it, and this Timnath amongst the rest, and was by lot given to the tribe of Dan, Joh. 19. 43. But they not being able (it seemeth) to drive out the inhabitants, the Philiflims, they lived there still (as it is very probable) untill & long after Sampsons time. This City did lye upon the confines of Judah, Dan, and Ephraim, westward from Zorah, towards the Mediterranean Sea, Gen. 28.12, Josh. 18. 10, 57. 2 Chro. 28. 18. unto this City Sampson went; for though the Israe-lites and Philistims had oftentimes war one with another, yet now the Philiftims having gotten the better of them, and brought them into subjection, upon the condition of their paying of tribute or otherwile, they now lived in peace one with another, and married and traded together. So that therefore would revenge themselves upon them, if they saw Samplon might with safety go down to Timnath, though it that they had any hand in Sampsons actions against them. See were inhabited by the Philiftims,

V. 2. now therefore get ber for me to wife | i.e. Because I dare not take a wife without your confent who are my parents, though I much like and love her, therefore I pray you let it fland with your liking, and use your best indeavours to procure her for me; whereby it appeareth, that even in those dayes, which were times of ignorance and much prophaneneffe, yet even by the light of nature, and the dim light of the law, their consciences were convinced of this truth, that children ought not to marry without the confent of their parents, Geg. 11, 21.

88. 44. 3. 36.34,35.
V. 3. Is there never a woman among the daughters of thy bre-thren] Which is not to be taken litterally and precifely, for fo it had been unlawfull for him to have married his brothers daughter or neece, but as it is commonly used by the Hiebrews for one of the fame kindred : As though they had faid; thou haft choice enough, and art no wayes necessitated to marry a Philiftim, for thou mailt marry one of thy kindred and allies. or if there were none of them, yet one of the same tribe, or if also there were none here to be found, thou shouldest rather choose any that pleaseth thee among all the people of Ifrael, then feek a wife among firangers, the meireumeised Philistims The ground of their reason was, because God had straigly forbidden his people to make marriages with these cursed nations of which the Philistims were a part, Deut. 7.3. Exod. 34.16. And if it were unlawfull generally for the Ifraelites thus to marry, than how more un-befeeming him who was devoted to Gods fervice in a speciall manner, (as being a Nazarites) from which she, being an Heathen and Infidel, would withdraw him, 1 Cor. 7. 31. 2 Cor.

6.14. Now they call them uncircumcifed by way of fcorn and reproach, because such were slighted and vilified with the people of Ifrael, 1 Sam. 14.6. & 17. 26, 36. Gen. 34. 24. And this is added that they might the more ftroughy diffwade him from this march, freing if he had any respect either to the law he would not have respected them so much, as to shew unto of God, or his own honour and reputation amongst his people,

Get me ber for the pleafeth me well Heb. She is right in mi eyer i.e. I am much in love with her, and fo like her perfon, that I have fet my heart and affection upon her ; wherein as nature had its work fo there concurred a fecres operation of Gods spirit, carrying him on, for the effecting of what he intended should come to passe.

V. 4. But his father and mother knew not that it was of the Lord that he fought an occasion] In which words it is very doubtfull whether they be spoken of the Lord, that he sought an occafion to revenge the wrongs which the Philiftims had offered unto his people, and therefore in his wife providence inclined Samplons heart to take this occasion against them, to fall at enmity with them upon a just cause, that out of their private quarrell, he might proceed to publique and hoffile actions, fuitable to his calling: But then the fpeech feemeth improper, that the Lord should seek an occasion, by this means of revenge, feeing he might juffly punish them at his own pleafure, either himfelt, or how, and by whom he would: And therefore others (and that very probable) understand it to be spoken of Sampson, that he fought this occasion against the Philistims. to avenge the cause of Gods people upon them : For though in respect of the publique, there was cause enough to do it, seeing the Philistims possessed a great part of that inheritance which God had given unto his people, out of which they were straitly charged to cast them out and dispossesse them, and not only fo, but also had made war against them, subdued, and held them under their subjection, yet this was no plea for Sampson in his private and personals way of taking revenge they having, in respect of the publique, concluded a peace be tween them, unleffe he had fome just cause and quarrell to revenge himfelf, and the people of God together, upon the occalion of fome great wrong offered unto him in refpect of his own and particular interest: But against this exposition, there own and particular interest: Dut against this exponent, outer is also a scruple to be removed, namely, if it were his end and aime to seek an occasion of revenging the cause of Gods peo-ple in this personall and private way, how it can be faid that he ple in this perional and private way, now it can be laid that he defired to marry her out of his great love and liking of her per-fon, ver. 3, and that he pleafed him well, v. y. especially con-lidering that he not only laid fo, but also evidenced the truth of his love in his carriage towards her, till the had justly incenfed him to anger, by betraying his fecret to her country-ment o his great prejudice; and also afterwards by returning unto her, intending to prefent her with a Kid when this wrong was digested, and his wrath appealed, chap. 15. 1.

for at that time the Philiftims had dominion over Ifeael] This

s added as a reason why Sampson lought a private occasion to be avenged on the Philiftims; namely, because he would take the whole blame upon himfelf, and not exasperate them against his whole nation, feeing they had dominion over them , and chap. 19.9,10,11,11.

changed their minds, and yeelded to his defires, either being perswaded by some reasons that he had given them, as that periwaded by tome reatons that he had given them, as that whathe did was of the Lord, he being moved thereunto by fome fecter tevelation, or fome special inflinet of his spirit; or elie being moved by their natural affection to please and give him content, though the thing he defired were contrary to their min content, though the thing he delited were contrary to their own judgment and liking.

and behold a young Lian roared again[t him] To wit, being gone aside from his father and mother (as is implyed ver. 8.) upon fome occasion not expressed; this Lion meeting him, as the original hath it, roared as they ule to do after their

V. 6. And the fpirit of the Lord came mightily upon him] i. e. Inspired him in an extraordinary and supernatural manner with courage and firength, that by this effay he might confirm him in his calling (as it befell David in the like cafe, t Sam. 17. num in ais caning (as it bereil David in the like cale, i Sam. 17, 34.) and to incourage him to take up enmity againft the Phi-lithins, trufting upon Gods power affilting him, and that he might have matter supplyed for his riddle, which proved the occasion and cause of their quarrel.

and be rent him as he would have rent a Kid] i.e. He did teare in pieces this fierce strong Lion with as little difficulty, as if he had been a tender weak Kid that was not able to make any re-

nance.

and be had nobling in his hand ] i. e. Neither weapon nor flaffe, but did it only with his bare hands, wherein Sampson was a notable type of Christ vanquishing and triumphing over Satan that roaring Lion, 1 Pet. 5.8. Heb. 14. by fole virtue of his own power.

but he told not his father and mother what he had done Because he would not have them speak of this heroick aft manifesting his strength and courage among the Philistims at Timnath, which might tend to his prejudice, by filling them with jealoufies and fears.

V. 7. And he went down] Namely, to Timnath, being accompanied with his father and mother.

and talked with the woman ] Concluding on the marriage between them, and the time when it should be solemnized.

V. 8. And after a time be returned to take ber] To wit , accompanied with hie father, v. 9. to folemnize the marriage the which they had formerly concluded and agreed upon, and beturned afide to see the carkase Namely, out of the common way into the place where he had fl in the Lion. and behold there was a swarme of bees, and honey in the carkafe Which came to passe by the speciall providence of God, acting this in a supernaturall way: For it was never known among naturalists, that bees should breed in the carkase of a Lion, but only of an oxe or bullock, or though they should, yet it cannot be imagined, that in an ordinary and naturall way the carkale riddle. shou'd be consumed, the bees bred, and the honey made in so fhort a time as we can reasonably think was between the con-cluding of the marriage and the solemnizing of it.

V. 9. But he told them not ] Neither where he had the hov. 9. Dan ne was neem or strettner where ne that the ab-ney, nor of the killing of the Lion, partly becaule he would not have it reported among the Philiftims, and partly that keeping it fecret, it might be the subject of his riddle,

V. 10. Sobis father went down ] To wit, as the chief of his company, but with him, his mother and the chief of his and Sampson made there a feast ] That is, a wedding feast lafting feven dayes, as young men (or their parents for them) used to do in those times when they married wives, Gen.

V. 11. And it came to passe, when they saw him, that they brought thirty companions to be with him] i. e. When in a special manner they observed him, his person, stature, strength, counmanner they observed sims in specially feature, therigh, conference, posture, and carriage; in all which he was very remarkable, they brought thirty companions, which they did in outward shew and resemblance to bonour him; but indeed to have an eye over him, and to provide for their own fafety whatfocver should happen: And this I think to be the most profoever should happen: And this I think to be the most pro-bable exposition, and so it is approved by the most; For it is expressly faid, that when they saw him, they chose thirty com-panions; and though they had seen him before and were nor afraid, that is to be understood of his wives father, family, and fome speciall friends, who saw him when he came as a suiter, and not of all these guests which were come to the marriage and though they had all feen him before and were not afraid of him, yet it doth not follow but that now they might, looking then upon him in a flight and ordinary manner, but now obferving him more ferionfly and advifedly: And though the text make no mention of any thing extraordinary and remarkable in Samplons person which might cause fear in the beholders, yet it followeth not that therefore no fuch thing was observable in him, sceing the Scriptures do not mention

V. c. and bis fasher and mother to Timmath] i.e. Having now [ every particular; and though he afted his famous exploits when the Spirit of God came upon him and inabled him thereunto, yet I make little doubt, but he had both naturall flature unto, yet i make little doubt, but ne nad oom naturall stature and strength very observable above the most mens, neither doth the principall cause take away the inferior causes and means by which it usually worketh: And whereas it may be means by which it ulually worked: And whereas it may be faid that Sampfon purpolely kept fectet his killing of the Lion, left the Philifims thould be afraid of him, (ceing his fitength and courage; this fitrongly argueth, that they had him in jealousie, and were apt to fear him, feeing he was so carefull to conceale it from them : And though they knew it not by his killing the Lion, yet they might fufpect it when they observed his person and carriage, and did also (as it is very probable ) hear of some famous exploits done by him, when the spirit moyed him at times, in the camp of Dan, chap. 13. 25. Befides, it is not likely that though he should have bride-men to grace his wedding, they should attend him in so great a number: neither was it indeed for Sampsons honour to have such a train. for then they should have been chosen by himself of his own people and familiar friends, and not put upon him by ftrangers and reconciled enemies.

V. 12. And Sampson said unto them, I will now put forth a riddle unto you] i.e. A dark speech in which something syeth hidden under the literall fense, that is to be found out by the wit of the heaters, which is a pleasant and innocent exercise of the wit, fit for feafls to keep the guests from worse imploy-ments, Ezek. 17. 2. And this, it seemeth, was usuall in those times, and therefore thought fit by Sampson to be propounded to his companions, that under this colourable flew of custome he might feek an occasion of having a just quarrel against them: and therefore furely he took them not for his friends that came to honour his wedding, but as an ill-affected guard that came within the feven dayes of the feast ] Which was the usuall time appointed for the keeping of marriage Feafts, Gen. chap. 29.

then I will give you ] To wit, as a reward of your wit and induthie.

thirty (beets ] Or, (birts. That is, fine linnen clothes, which in those East Countries they used for fundry purposes, both by day and night; of this we read, Math. 27.59. Mark 14.51. So here the same is used in the Greek.

thirty changes of garments] i.e. Upper veilments which they often changed by putting them on and off, according to their occasions, as we do our cloakes or gowns.

V. 13. ye shall give me thirty sheets ] i.e. By way of penaltic for your dulnesse and ignorance; and so the condition was on and they faid unto him, put forth thy riddle] As though they should say, we accept of thy wager, therefore propound thy

V. 14. out of the eater i. e. Which lives by prey, and deyoures all, and is food for none, came forth nourithment fit to preferve the life of others; and out of the strong, that is, the strongest of beasts that live by prey, came forth that which is most sweet ; which severall branches signifie the same things, to wit, the Lion and honey, but it may be were in the riddle purposely repeated, that they might distract and disturb their mind and judgment in finding out the meaning, whileft they imagined that they were feverall things.

and they could not in three dayes expound the riddle] i.e. They tired their wits in vain for the three first dayes of the feast to find out the meaning; and from thence they began to work with Sampsons wife, to the seventh day, by inticements, but not prevailing with her, or rather the not prevailing with her husband, on the feventh day they provoke the uttermost of her endeavours by terrours and threats, which though (being fo terrible) they meant not to execute, seeing she gave them not the least cause of offence, when she did her best to satisfie their defire, yet they used it as a spur to put her on to use the utmost of her power and skill, that she might prevaile with her husband.

V. 15. And it came to passe on the seventh day ] i.e. When the last houre approached in which they must make known the meaning of the riddle, or elfe lofe their wager.

that he may declare unto us the riddle] i. e. That making it known to thee, thou mayit declare the meaning of it unto have ye called us to take that we have ] Heb. to poffeffe us, or to impoverishus. i.e. Have you, your father and friends under colour of love invited us to your feaft, that you may make a prey of us to our undoing? Though the share of every particular man in this loffe came but to a fhirt and an upper garment, yet they account themselves utterly undone, and in the mean time (fo partial) they were and full of felf-love) they regarded not Samplons cale, who was to lofe thirty for their one, if he had miscarried in his wager.

V. 16. Behold I bave not told it to my father and mother] i. e.

Whom I ought most to reverence, and of whose piety and according to the custome of those times and Countries; unto saithfulnesse have had long experience; and should I reveale which, as some think, John Daputit alludeth; Joh. chap. 3. it unto thee; although being my wife, thou art in a neerer rethee, and have small knowledg of thy fidelity and secre-

Chap. xiv.

V. 17. And five wept before bim feven dayes] Or, unto the feventh day, or the rest of the seven dayes, that is, from the discover unto her the meaning of the riddle, which was the fourth day of the Fealt, for three dayes they exercised their own wits to find it out, and when they faw that they could own miss to must to out, and when they law that they could not do it, they come unto her, craving her help, and it came to paffe on the fewenth day that he told her, because she lay fore upon him] i.e. He was so vexed and overburthened with her importunity and tears, that he could no longer indure and bear it : And thus he who was able by his valour and firength to rent a fierce Lion, as if he had been a tender Kid, and to subdue and flay thousands of his enemies, was vanquished with the tears and importunity of a woman; which theweth that the most martiall men may be, and often are, venercous and uxorious and [betold the riddle] i.e. The meaning of the riddle, to fome of Sampfons thirty companions.

And the men of the City | i. e. Sampfons companions which were chosen out of the City to accompany him at the marriage

V. 18. what is [weeter than honey] They do not fay, that by the eater and the fitrong, is understood a Lion, and by meat and [weetnesse was signified honey, but only in sew words ex-prefic the meaning.

If ye had not plowed with my beyfer] i.e. If my wife had not unfaithfully discovered my lecter, being perswaded hereunto unrandom of incorrect only feeting, one greatwaten arrestion from a boundarie; from the Zindjinst, towing 1.40 from 4 by your fiebelty, or certified with your threats, you had never displayed to the cause of the country of the feeting the plough turns it up; where he taxeth both his wives perfi-dioulneffe, and (as fome think) her lightneffe and over much familiarity with them, (in which respect he resembleth her to a young, wanton and untamed heyser) and withall, their fraud and want of wit.

V. 19. And the Spirit of the Lord came upon him ] See Annot. on v. 6 and be went down to Athelen] A City lying in the borders of Dan, belonging to Judah and Simeon, chap.,1.18. But now poffessed by the Philistims, whose Inhabitants Sampson slew: This City was one of the sive chief and metropolitan Cities of the Philiftims, 1 Sam.6.17. Amos 1.8. which was in fuch a great distance from Timnath, that we can give no reason why he went fo far to do this exploit, but only this, that the Spirit of God which inspired him to do it, did allo by its secret motion having a fire-brand in the middle, lest being frighted with the

do, not only because they were of those cursed nations which God long before had sentenced to death and destruction, but also because he was called now of God to be a Judge, to deliver his people, and to avenge them on their enemies, and the Spirit of God came upon him and excited him to act and sook their style] i.e. Stript them of their apparrell when they were dead: But how could Sampson do this feeing he was a Nazarite, unto whom it was unlawfull to touch a dead body ? Numb. 6. 6. I answer, he might lawfully do it being inspired and acted by the Spirit of God, who when he pleaseth may dispence with his own law: But further, that law that inhibiteth the touching of a dead body, may seem to have been peculiar to such Nazarines as were so by yow only for a time, and not concerning such as were called by God to continue so for the whole tearm of life, of which kind Sampson was, because the other might easily do it for a time, but not these for their whole life , and if they were defiled, there were means appointed for their cleanfing, Numb. 6. 9, xo. but not fo for perpetuall Nazarites: And hereof it is, that it Sampfons confecration we find mention of meats, wines, and firong drinks, and also that no razor should come upon his head, but nothing spoken of touching the dead, and his anger was kindled ] i. e. Both against his thirty compartions, and also against his wife, because she had shewed far greater love to them than unto him, feeing the had rather that he alone thould bear the whole loffe, than that every one of them should bear a little; and this he expressed by a temporary feparation from her, though he intended not (as appeareth by the fequel) a full and finall divorce.

V. 20., But Sampfons wife was given] That is, in marriage,

CHAP, XV.

Verf. 1. The time of wheat barveft | Which in that hot country was in April and May, of which mention was made, because this time gave opportunity to Sampson of burning their corn, which being ripe and dry, was partly standing, and partly cut down in the fheaf and fhock.

Sampfon vifited bis wife with a Kid] i. c. Went to vifite her with a defire and purpose to be reconciled unto her, having now digested his former wrong; and to this end, carrying a Kid with him as a testimony of his love, that they might with their friends in her fathers family feast together.

And be faid I will go in to my wife ] i. c. He faid fo within himfelf, or being come to the house, professed so much to her father, that he would go into his wives chamber a for in those dayes the women had their chambers peculiar to themselves. Gén. 24.67.

V. 2. I verily thought Heb. Saying, I faid, that is, I faid in my heart and certainly concluded. So Gen. 20, 11. Exod. 2.

14. PGL 94.18.

that then hadft unterly hated ber ] To wit, because thou wentest away from her in wrath and displeasure, chap. 14.

is not her younger fifter fairer] Heb. better. take her] Heb. let her be thine. and so to please Sampson. he offereth unto him an incestuous match, which he accepteth not, Levil. 13.

V. 3. Now [ball I be more blamelesse then the Philistims] Or, now [ball I be blamelesse from the Philistims, though I do them a displeasare. To wit, because by this wrong they have given me

Which will not feem a matter of fo great difficulty, as fome may imagine, if we confider that the land of Canaan aboundmay imagine, it we connect that the land of Canaan abound-ed with them, Cant. 8, 17, Nch. 4, 2, Plal. 63, 10. Lam. 5, 18, the which he might take in nets and Gares, both by his own indultry, and the help of others, efpecially feeing the work which he had in hand was infined into him by Gods Spirit; who by his previdence could eafily supply what was wanting in outward means in himself or others, being the supream Lord of all the creatures, and bath them at his command. Gen. ch. 6. ver. 20. P[al. 50. 11. Exod. 8. 5, 16. & 10. 12. Numb.

and took fire-brands | Or, torches.

and turned taile to taile and put a fire-brand in the midft i.e. He fastened them the one to the other by the tailes with cords, fire they should have run into their holes, which they would and flew thirty men of them. ] Which was lawfull for him to have done, had they not been thus hampered, rather them into the fields; whereas now thunning the fire at their tailes. they tugged one another into the fields, and lo fet on fire both the francing corn, and that also which being cut down was in the theate and thock : In all which we are not fo much to look upon these things with the eye of reason in a naturall way, and fo to describe the manner how it was acted, as to Gods providence, who at his pleasure ordered and disposed of all as was most fit for the effecting of his will: Otherwise is were hard to conceive, though they burnt up the dry corn, how they could also burn their vinewards and olives.

V. 6. And the Philiftims faid who bath done this ] i. e. The Philistims of other Cities, whose corn was burnt up, and not of Timnath; as appeareth by the aniwer to their oue-

And the Philistims came up and burnt her and her father with fire] As having by their unjust dealing been the causes and oc-casions of all their losses, he by his giving her to another, who was Sampsons wife, and she for giving her consent, and her treachery to her busband : Where it is very observable, that the brought upon her felf and her fathers house that mifery and mischief from which the thought to preserve her self by her wicked discovery of her husbands secret, ch.14.15. according to that, Prov. 22.8. He that loweth iniquity shall reap vanity, and Hof. 8. 7. and that Prov. 10. 24. the fear of the wicked shall come upon him.

V. 7. though ye have done this yet I will be avenged of you ] i.e. Though you may feem to have done me apleafure in revenging my just quarrell, yet feeing you have done it with a wicked mind, and in an unjust and tumultuous manner, having refpect herein only to your own loffes, this shall not ferve your turn , but for all this I will not defid till I be throughly avenged. to one of his companions. As one of the thirty Phillitims, of the companions of the fome other just occasion of further revenge, in which speech own quartel, but as a Judge of Ifrael, called and ap-pointed of God to deliver his people from their opprefitions, and to average them on their enemies; otherwise their bis recolou-tions could not have been lawfull, feeing the nation of the Philiftims had not given unto him in particular any just

V. 8. and be smote them bip and thigh with a great slaughter ] A proverbiall expression figuifying the mortall wounding of their bodies in all places where his blowes light, or the totall ruine of all their ftrength and abilities: Such phrases Souldiers now have, as pel mel and cap a pee. See Deut. 28.35. The Lord shall smite thee in the kneer and in the legs with a fore botch anta jour junte toce in the queet assum in the tegy with a jore botth that cannot be healed, from the fole of thy foot, to the top of thy head. So Isa, 9, 14. The Lord shall cut off from Israel head and taile, branch and rush.

And he went down To wit, from Timnath.

And dwelt in the top of the rock Etam Etam was a City scituate on the South of the mount Judah upon a ftrong and high rock neer unto the brook Etam, and belonged to the tribe of Simeon, whose inheritance was mingled with Judahs, Josh. 19.

1. whether for safety he retired himself, that he might not suddenly be surprized by the Philistims, who in all likelihood would seek to revenge themselves upon him, after he had thus flaughtered many of their nation.

V. 9. Then the Philiftims went up and pitched in Judah] And that for these causes; first, because that Sampson when they went to furprize him, was come to Etam, which was in that part of their lot which belonged to Simeon; and fecondly, becaule intending to invade and let upon lirael, they first entred in average and the upon lirael, they first entred the country which was necrell unto them, as appeared in the dark of the property of the liraely being the property of the liraely o by conniving at it, and not apprehending and punishing him for it: And so imagining that they would rise in his defence, they raifed a great Army against them, making his private act to be a cause of a publique quarrel between both the whole na-

in Lebi] i.e. A jaw-bone, which was a place in the utmost Coast of the Philistims country, and bordering upon Judah, and here called Lehi by anticipation, for Sampson afterwards and nere caused Lent by anticipation, for samplion atterwards gave it this name upon the occasion of that flaughter which had made with the jaw-bone of an affe, v.17.

V. 10. Why are ye come against m? ] As it they should have faid, we have given you no cause to make war against us, seeing we live in subjection to you, and pay our tribute, and observe all covenants of peace made between us.

and they answered, to binde Sampson are we come up] i. e. We will have nothing to do with you, but only with Sampson who hath greatly wronged us, unlesse by protecting him, you make his offence to be yours, and fo draw upon your felves our just and to do to him as be hath done to us ] i. s. Proceeding in a common course of justice and equity, to put him to death who hath slaughtered so many of us; and therefore deliver him into our hands, that hereby it may appear that you are not guilty of his fault, and we will depart and no further trouble

V. 11, what is this that thou haft done unto us] i.e. In what a labyrinth of troubles and dangers hast thou involved us, by incenting the Philiftims against us who are under their sub-

V. 12. we are come down to binde thee] i. e. Though we N. 1. we are come down to ornar lovel 1. 6. 1001g We have no quarrel againft thee for any thing done by thee in refigered of our felves, more then this, that thou half incenfed the Phillifthms againft us, who are able to dous mitchief; yet we much binde and deliver thee into their hands, to give them gardiaction, appeale their wrath, and turn away their Army from

Smear unto me that you will not fall upon me] He doth not ex-possiblate with them as he justly might, nor upbraid them with their cowardice and faint-heartednesse, not daring to joyn with him whom God had called to be their judge and deliverer, with nim whom God had called to be used judge and therefore, nor with their base treachery in betraying him into the bands of their common enemies, but only defireth to be secured, that they themselves would do him no mischief, less if they refused to do this, he might thereby have just cause to turn his strength against them in a way of just revenge, and stand it out in his own defence; where he sheweth his great love towards them, and care of their safety as well as his own, seeing he was solicitous to prevent any hurt which might befall them, either from give them fatisfaction, then that they should be indangered to their revenge if they refuled it.

V. 13. but surely we will not kill thee The which their affe-veration (it is very likely) they ratified with an oath, as he reveration (it is very likely) they rathed with an oath, as he required, to give the better fatisfaction, and to make him the more willingly fubmit to be bound by them.

and they bound him with two new cords] Which were therefore the stronger and more hardly broken; wherein Sampson was a type of Christ, who was bound by the Jews, and delivered up to death by the hands of the Gentiles, Mat, chap. 17.

and brought him up from the rock] i.e. To Lehi where the Philiftims were encamped, that fo they might clear themselves unto them whom they feared, by laying all the blame upon Samp-fon, and so exposed him to extream danger to free themselves. V. 14. the Philiftims founted against him] To wit, for joy, because their chief enemy was fallen into their hands, and the Spirit of the Lord] i.e. The spirit of strength, courage, and earnest defire to fight. and the cords - became as flax; or as threds made of flax, that are burnt or fcorched with fire] i.e. Were as easily broken by his unresistable strength as threds of burnt or singed

V. 15. And he found a new jaw-bone of an affe] i.e. Which had not been long dead, and was therefore the itronger and

V. 16. with the jaw-bone of an affe heaps upon heaps ] Heb. an heap, two heaps. i. e. By this weak means and contemptible instrument, through Gods almighty power and affistance, I bave slain a thousand of his, and his peoples enemies, and laid

V. 17. and called that place Ramath-Lehi 7 i. e. The lifting

John, 15. where it is faid, that a great part of the Phultums of the property was in the loc that belonged to Judah.

and first at brendfers! Implying they were a great Army that came against lifaed in this expedition, as thinking that they all were partners with Sampfoin that offence which he had given them, either by fetting him on and counciling him and counciling him and counciling him that the property of to doit, or abetting and countenancing him in it, or at least might humble him, and keep him from being proud of so great a victory archieved by himself alone; and thus God usually dealeth with his servants whom he hath used as his instruments in some great and glorious imployments, knowing how prone we are to fall into this odious sin of pride, if his grace, by fuch means as thefe, do not restrain and humble us.

and called on the Lord ] i. c. Being destitute of all other help in such a place where there was no hope of finding any water, he fleeth unto God as al-sufficient, craving relief from him in this preat extreamity.

thou haft given this great deliverance | Where he ascribeth the whole victory unto God, and giveth him all the glory of it; and withall, maketh it a ground to strengthen his faith in this assurance, that God would hear his prayer; for he that had done the greater in giving him fuch a glorious victory, would not deny him the leffe, that is, either take away his thirst, or give him some meanes to quench it.

to thy servant] i.e. Who in all this fight have been but thy inftrument to performe that fervice which thou wouldest have done, the which I have faithfully afted and performed, though to the extream perill of my life; and therefore contracting such a calamity upon me in such an imployment, and by my faithful walking in my calling, I cannot but hope that thou wilt relieve and retreft me.

and new flatl I dye for thirst, and fall into the hands of the uncircumcifed] As if he should have faid, certainly I shall not, or surely I can by no means believe it, seeing this would blast and black all the glory of the former action, and spoile God of the Diack all the glory of the former action, and ipole God. of the honour of it due unto him, feeing they would be ready to fay, it was not his power that gave the victory, for then he would now have been as able to keep Sauphon from perifiting by thirft, or through faintneffe to fall into the power of his enemies. See Heb. ch. 11. ver 32. 1 Sam. 17. 26, 36. 2 Sam.

V. 19. But God clave a hollow place] i.e. An hollow place in figure like a morter. Seethe fame word used, Prov. 27.22.
that was in the jaw Or. Lebi. That is, not in the jaw-bone it felf, but in the place called Lehi or jaw-bone on this occasion, wherein this spring did arise.

and when he had drunk his spirit came again] i. e. His vitall spirits which were wasted and spent with labour, hear, and bis spirit came again] Which was ready to depart, and so he to die, by reason of his thirst.

and be revived ] i.e. Being thus refreshed, he became lively ; ftrong, and vigorous.

wherefore he called the name thereof ] i.e. Not of the jaw-bone, but of the foring in Lehi. En bakkore] i.e. The Well of him that called or cried, in memoriall of Gods great mercy, and to testifie his thankfulneffe, both for giving him fo great a victory over his enemies, and also for reviving him when as he was ready to dye with Chap. xvi. thirst, by his miraculous raising up of this spring to refresh his pressed in the text, as her acquaintance and compliance with the fainting [pirits.

which is in Lehiumothis day ] i.e. The time when this flory was written, which was many years after these things were asked: And therefore the spring of water was not in the iaw-bone, which every paffenger that faw it might carry away. and would furely have done it especially in those hor countries. in which they had fo much need of a fountain of water : but in the place called Lehi upon this occasion.

the piace caused lean upon that occasion.

V. 20. And be judged I [rate] i.e. He revenged their wrongs upon the Phillitims, and so in some degree gave them deliverance, though he did not quite and fully free them from their tyranny.

In the dayes of the Philistims] i.e. When they held the Israelites in fubiection, and tyrannized over them.

CHAP. XVI.

Verl. 1. Then Samplen ] i. e. Soon after he had gotten this great victory, he went down to Gaza. i.e. One of the greatest and most famous Cities of the Phillittims, lying in that part of the Country towards the Mediterranean Sea, which was allotted to Simeon and Judah, Chapter 1. ver. 18, the which he could not do without great danger . having lately flaughtered fuch a multitude of the Philiftims: but it feemeth that some weighty occasion drawing him thi-ther, which is not here expressed, he resolved to go thither fecretly, relying on his fecrecie, or on his courage and frength, if he happened to be discovered, or else he did it out of his contempt of his enemies, who (as he had found by experience) were not able to stand in his

and law there an harlot] He went not to Gaza purposely to fee this harlor (as fome have conceited) but being come thither, and accidently feeing her, he was inveigled with her beauty; and loving, or rather lufting after her, he com-mitted uncleannesse and follie with her, Gen. 16. 2. and 38.

V. 2. they compassed him in ] i.c. As some think, they invironed the house where he lodged, in some distance, that they might not be discovered; or as others, hearing that he was might not be discovered; or as others, nearing suar ne was fecretly come to the City, and not knowing where he harboured; they fee a strong watch at the City gate, through which he was to return, that they might suddenly kill through which he was to rectum, that they might made my shi him before he was aware, as he was going out, which lay quiet and filent all night; left he hearing any noyfe or tu-mult, might grow sufficious that he was discovered and betraved:

trayen.

V. 3. And Sampfon lay till midnight and arofe] i.e. Having fatisfied his luft, he thinketh of providing for his fafety, and suspecting that the next dayes light might different him, he rifulpetting that the next dayes ngar migar anicover unit, ne re-feth at midnight, and prepareth to be gone.

and took the doores of the gate of the City] i.e. Finding the gate to be locked, barred; and bolted, to prevent his cicape, he pulled up the two posts, upon which it hanged, and carried all away, both gate and bar upon his shoulders; the watch-men (as is most probable) being all run away affrighted with his sudden approach in that dead season of the night: Wherein Sampson was a type of Christ, who rising again after he had vanquished fin, and Satan, death, and hell, maugre all oppofitions and means used to prevent it, did strike the Souldiers the Philistims, appointed for a watch with sear and assonishment, and did go and preserved. away in triumph, carrying with him the trophics of his victory,

And carryed them up to the top of an hill that is before Hebron] i.e. Not to the hill it self adjoyning to Hebron, which was above twenty miles from Gaza; for it is not probable, that he would carry such a burthen so far, no reason appearing that should induce him to it; but to an hill that lay eastward from Gaza, from whence one might fee Hebron, seated upon another hill right over against it.

N. 4. And is came to passe a stream that he loved a woman ]
i. e. Having doused and drenched his soul in the deep pit of fin and uncleannesse, Prov. 22. 14, and 23. 27. contrary to the profession of a true strate, and much more of a pure and again seign a falle cause, because he had not the patience holy Nazarite, instead of rising out of it by unfained repento induce the vexation of her importunity, though stie tance, he finketh deeper and deeper into this whirl-poole, and relapleth again into the same sin.

in the valley of the best of sorek. Which is called the grape-valley, from the abundance of the best grapes growing there: Some read it, by the brook Sorek, which runneth along by the valley of Ethoca, where these grapes grew, Deut. th. 1.14. And some think that these are both one, Numbar.

23,24.

whosename was Dalitah] Who was like the other at Gaza, a Philiftine harlot, as plainly appeareth by all circumstances ex- Loom.

Lords of the Philistims, and her hiding of the Philistims in her house, that (as these Lords agents and officers) were appointed to apprehend Sampson.

V. 5. And faid unto her, entice him] i.e. Use all the art and skill which they commonly have that are of thy profession, which may allure him to discover unto thee this great secret, in what part of his body, or other qualification his firength chiefly that we may binde him to afflist him ] Or, humble him. They do not fay that we may kill him, left it might fee me harfh and cruel to a woman that had entertained him for her paramore, and professed so much love unto him, but that they might afflict and correct him for all the wrongs that he had done unto their nation, and fo to tame and humble the baughtinesse of his spirit; whereas in truth their intention was not to have him killed, because his bare and sole death could not satisfie their rage and malice, unlesse they did first triumph over him in his miferies, and torment him worfe then death with their infolencies and indignities.

and we will give thee every one of us eleven hundred pieces of filver] Which if every one of the five Lords of the Philiftims agreed to give, amounted to fifteen hundred pieces, which came to above a thouland thirty and five pounds, if by these pieces we understand the shekel at the value of two shillings fix pence; which great sum offered to a woman of her base condition, shewed how much they thought it did concern them, and how earneflly they defired to have it at-

V. 6. tell me I pray thee wherein thy great strength tyeib] It is not to be doubted, but she used all her art and skill to make and prepare a way for her fuite, and that the did not bluntly propound it, alluring him with all fignes of her love; that she might free him from all suspition of treachery, magnifying his heroick acts, and wondring at his more than humane ftrength , whereby he atchieved them , and then desiring for her own fatisfaction, to know wherein his great defining for ner own latisfaction, to know wherein his great frength did lye, with many promises, and (it may be) confirmed with oaths (which are most common with those of her profession) that she would keep it to her self as a great

V. 7. If they binde me with feven green withs ] Heb. moift. er with new cords. The which he faith, hoping that this would fatisfie her without making any triall of it; or at least for the prefent, to free himself from being vexed and pressed with her importunity, to discover that secret which he was purposed to conceale

V. 8. which had not been dryed] Which would have made them brittle, but were throng and tough, and so hard to be

V. 9. Now there were men lying in wait] i.e. Ready to apprehend him, if the experiment proved true, but otherwise durft not appear for fear of Sampson, the Philistims be upon thee ] Are at hand ready to surprize thee, if thou doft not prevent it by flanding in thine own defence : All which was done unto him in a way of sport and wanton dalliance, or when the had caused him to fleep on her lap, as v. 19. but the former is much more probable , feeing it is not likely that the could binde him fall with hard withs, and not awake him.

So his strength was not known] i.e. Neither to her, nor to the Philiftims, neither whence it came, nor how it was retained

V. 10. And Dalilah faid unto Sampson, behold thou hast mocked me ] To wit, at some other time afterwards, when she found him in a good mood beeing bewitched with her flatteries and allurements , for it would not stand with her policie, to attempt it prefently after her former failing and defeat, left the thould worke in his head fome sufpition that the did it out of treachery, or fome intention of

V. 11. And he said unto her, if they binde me fast with new ropes ] Wherein Sampson discovereth his great weaknesse in that having had experience that the would put what he faid upon triall whether it were true or no, he would again feign a false cause, because he had not the patience gave him just cause to suspect her evill intention towards that were never occupied | Heb. wherewith work had not been done. Namely, to wear and weaken them.

aunt. Namely, to wear and weaken them.

V. 13. If their weetig the feven ledge of my bead with the web ] That is, if thou doft part the hayre of my head into feven locks, or if thou doft take them as they are already so divided, yerse nineteen, and weaving them with the web , dost winde them both about the beam of the

Chap, xvi.

might not turn or move.

and west away with the pin, web, and beam ] Upon which his haire was woven and wound, and carryed all away with

V. 15. when thine heart is not with me] i. e. When as thou bearest no true affection towards me , but only makest a fnew of love, in outward profession, to ferve thy owne

V. 16. So that bis foule was vexed unto death ] i.e. Grievoully distracted, on the one side, being extreamly loth to discover a secret which did so neerly concern him, on the other being no leffe loth to deny her any thing upon whom he fo impotently doted, especially being so pressed with her daily importunity, and his life fo imbittered, that having no rest nor comfort, he chose rather to dye then to live.

that be sold ber all bis heart] Thereby discovering mans frailty and weaknesse when he is left to himself and his own corrupt heart, especially to his base lusts of uncleannesse and carnall concupifcence : For here we fee Samplon, one of Gods great Worthies, commended for his faith, and inobled by his glorious victories, who with his hands, rent a roaring and ravening Lion, as if he had been a Kid, and flaughtered and avening Lion, as it he had been a kid, and inaughtered and couted a great Army of his enemies, now become to imporent; being vanquifhed by his prevailing lufts, that he is vered, even to the death, by the importunity of a filthy halot; and not able to keep from her fuch a fecret, the concealing whereof concerned him no leffe then hi

V. 17. That he told her all his heart ] Though he had thric experience that the intended to betray him unto death, yet his doting affection to blinded him, that he could not beware, but discovered unto her all that was in his heart, concerning this great fecret, though it tended to his utter ruine: And thus did God justly give him up to fall into the following miferies,

If I be forcen then my firength will go from me] Not because his strength lay in his hayre, for it was Gods free gift of grace, conferred upon him particularly, and not upon any other Nazarite, that he should be of such invincible strength, that none of Gods enemies could fland before him; but because being a Nazarite, he was, by Gods expresse command, injoynoeing a svazarie, ne was, by Cous express command, in order ed not to cut his hayre, chap. 13. 5. Numb. 6.5. the which he transgressing and breaking his yow, God withdrew from him his Spirit of strength and courage, and left him to his own humane frailty: And this is noted to be the true, real, and mo-rall cause of his weaknesse, that the Lord was departed from him, v. 20. of which the preferving of his hayre was but a fhadow and ceremony.

V. 18. And when Delila faw that be had told her all his heart ] Namely, by his countenance, gefture, speech, and serious carriage of himself in all his relation.

Come up this once] ie. Though divers times before you have Come up 10% once; 3 c. 1 nougo afters times netore you have loft your labour and come in valus, because being my self de-luded by Sampson, I have deluded you; yet if you please to come but this once again, you shall not faile of having your should be made more cold and flack in her executing their

V. 19. And the caufed bim to thave off He might with more speed have suddenly dispatched him, by cutting his throat; but this she had not in her commission, or if she had, yet perhaps tust ine nad not in mer communion, orit ine nao, yetpernaps ine would have been loht to do it, in relpect of that love and dalliance which had been between them, he having not given her any cause of diffate: And befides, the Philifitiae Lords defired not his prefent death, but by putting out his eyes, to make him fure enough for doing them any fur-ther burt, and to keep him in prison to do their drudgery, mer nurt, and to keep nim in priton to do their druggery, and when they pleafed, to make them sport; they in the mean time deriding, insuling, and triumphing over him: But chiefly, this preferving of his life came of God, who inclined their hearts unto it, that he living till his haire were grown again, and in this time by his repentance renewing his covenant, and so recovering his strength, might at his death destroy more of them then he had done in his whole the (even locks of his bead] Into which all his hayre was divided and playred, that he might the more easily cast it behind him upon his shoulders, and keep it from fluttering over his face, and fo hinder his fight.

and she began to afflitt bim] i.e. To vex and trouble him, by

V. 1.4. And the influenced is with the piral i.e. Having done the fludden rouzing him out of his fleep, logging, thrulling, all this according to bampfons appointment, the for more furc- and calling upon him, as before; yea, and it is like before the ty failtened the beam with a pin, that when Sampfon role it did this the bound him, as the had formerly done, which bonds, could not have known that his strength was gone from him, nor durst have called in the Philistims that waited to apprehend

V. 20. and faid I will goe ] i.e. Thought within him-and flake my felfe ] That is, rouze up my felfe and foirits, and put off drowlineffe, that I may go about my imploy-

And he wift not that the Lord was departed from him] To wit. Ana or wip, nos nos tree tora was arguirea prontinii] 10 wit, becaule upon his fudden awaking, he oblerved not either his binding, or thaving; or that the Lord had deprived him of that fupernatural! Itength (whereof his bayer was a ceremonial fign and figure) which he had continued unto him fo long as he had continued in obedience and kept his

V. 21. Butthe Philiftims took him ] When God leaves us, our enemies take us, and have power over us, to use us at their pleasure, we not being able to make any resistance in our own Breneth and put out his eyes and brought him down to Gaza] Wherein the Philiftims had their ends, and God his, unto which he made theirs subservient : For the Phillitims in a revengefull way put out bis eyes, to make him milerable, and his life uncomfortable, and to fecure themselves from all fear his life unconnorrable, and to lectire members from an rear of danger to come unto them by him in future times; and carryed him a long through the Country, that the people all the way night flock about him, gaze upon him, and inful to yer him; and to Gaza rather then any other place, not only because being one of their chief Cities, there was in it the greatest concourse of people, to mock and abuse him, but also generic concourts or people, to more and aouse min, not ailo because they might there triumph over him in his mifery, where he had formerly difhonoured them, by carrying away the gates and posts of their City: But Gods end in all this was to bring blinds Samplon to a fight of his sin, that he might was cooring distance Samptoin to a night of his spot mark the might bis former uncleannesse, and his relapsing now again into the fame sin.

If the shows then my strength will go from me Not because I see the possibility of the possibility o cing and gazing on a filthy harlot; and Gaza muft be the place where he must suffer punishment, imprisonment, and even death it felf, where he first acted his fin of unclean-nelle.

and be did grinde in their prifon bouse? Being a great worthy he is made a drudg and slave, and was not suffered to eat his bread before he had carned it by this slavish fervice, 1sa.

V. 22. Howbeit the bayre of his head began to grow ] And with it his strength, whereof it was a sign; Sampson in the mean time reconciling himself unto God by unfained repentance, renewing his vow which he had broken, and fo recovering his former state of a Nazarite, from which he had fallen, and above that, the love and favour of God, whom by his fins he had displeased.

after he was shaven Or, as when he was shaven. i.e. It began to grow towards that length it was of when he was shaven, which sheweth that he continued some good time before they called him out to make them sport at Dagons feast, and why they deferred fo long, after they had furprized Samplon, and rough many in our come). As the many fines are y way may are read only many or and the read a unprize sampled and be reached y. y. y. to grait their foll for delivering their not their hands, we have thick they now brought, left fullpeting their payment, the port guelle perhaps this feat was anniver fary in remembers. brance of fo great a benefit, and this the fecond year wherein

t was celebrated. V. 23. a great facrifice unto Dagon their god] i. e. An Idol of the Philiftims which lived on the Sea-Coafts, and there-fore had a Sea-Idol which they worshiped: He had his name from the Hebrew word Dag, fignifying a fifth, because he was portrayed like a fifth from his middle downward, and his upper part like a man, I Sam. 5.4. and fuch Idols other heathen worshiped, as gods of the Sea, to wit, Neptune, Leuceuthea, and Triton.

V. 24. who flew many of us ] Heb. multiplyed our

V. 25. when their hearts were merry] Heb. when their heart was good, i.e. frolick and of good cheer. So ch. 18, 20, & 19.6. Ruth 3.7. 2 Sam. 13.28.

that be may make us fort ] To wit, passively, that he may be the fusice of our mutth, and give us aft occasion of feori and laughter; wherein also Sampion was a type of our Sa-viour Christ, whom his enemies made the subject of their fcorn and malice, Marth. chapter 26. verse 67, 68. and ch.

And he made them fort ] Heb. made sport before them. i.e. He became the subject of their sport, as before, and gave them Chap. xvii. occasion of laughter, either by unwillingly committing some following chapters were done: But most of the learned expo-errours and militakes being blind, or willingly to blind them stores, upon evident grounds, do agree, that they happened not by these shewes, that they might not discover his main inten-and they [et him between the pillars] To wit, as in a place where he might be best seen by the Princes and people met toge-whereupon the house standerb] i. e. The Temple of Dagon, wherein thefe idolaters kept their feafts, as the manner was.

See ch. 0.27. V. 26. that I may lean upon them | Pretending wearineffe, either by his grinding in the mill, or his long standing there to make them sport, or his sudden and speedy comming to that

V. 27. and there were upon the roof above three thousand tries.

V. 28. and strengthen me only this once ] And this prayer God heard, as being the prayer of faith, Heb. ch. 11. ver.

Remember me I pray thee and strengthen me] Whereby it is evident, that he relyed not upon his haire now newly grown, nor on his own firength, but only on that firength which he expefted to receive from God, for the afting and executing of his intended work. that I may at once be avenged \ Wherein he doth not feek, as a private person, to take vengeance out of Gods hand, to whom alone it belongeth, Rom. ch. 12. 19. but being a publique person and a Judge, he desireth that according to his voftrument, under God, of executing vengeance upon Gods and the Churches enemies.

for my two eyer] Not so much for doing me a private wrong, in respect of my person, as because they have thereby disabled me to fight in Gods quarrel, for the deliverance of his people: The which his prayer was made by the extraordinary infline of Gods Spirit, according to his will; as hereby it appeareth, in that God heard this prayer of faith, and accordingly gave him supernaturall strength to act this great and miraculous work, according to his defire, which o-therwife he would not have done if he had alked amisse, to fatisfie his luft in a way of private revenge. Tam. ch. A.

V. 20. Let me dre with the Philistims \ Which is no warrant or ground to encourage or countenance felf-murtherers, feeing what Sampson here did, was done by an extraordinary motion and inftinct of Gods Spirit, neither was it the primarie motion and intime. Or Godes open ye better was rule primarie and principal end at which he spread to till himilif, but the death and definction of Gods and his Churches enemies, unto which he was called and confectated as publique perfon, and a Judge, though his own death did follow as a necellary confequent; the which he contemned in comparison of the o ther ; and out of the fervency of his zeal, devoted himfelf to glorifie God, and give deliverance to his people, in doing of this fervice; nor was this a despairing speech of one impatient, in respect of his miscries, to live any longer, but of a faithfull man humbling himfelf even to the death, that he might do God fervice; and that not in an ordinary way, but by an extraordinary motion of Gods Spirit, inspiring him and luggefting unto him this prayer; wherein Sampson was a type of our Lord Chrift, who humbled himfelf to the death, that he might fave and deliver his people out of the hands of all their Spirituall enemics, Phil. 2.6. So the dead which he flew at his death were more \ Wherein al-To he was a type of Christ, who by his death overcame death. and him that had the power of death, the Devill, with all the power of hell, Heb. 2.14.

V. 31. Then his brethren -- came down and took him? The Philiftims condescending thereunto, either being overruled by God, who bath the hearts of all men in his hand Prov. 16.1. or being affected, for the prefent, by this commor calamity; or because they were so weakened by the death and lofe of their Princes, principall Commanders, and chief of their Chivalrie, and chiefelt of their people, that they thought it not fit to provoke the Israelites by denying their request, grounded on humanity and common honesty and civility and putting them off with an harsh answer: And here again we have some typicall resemblance of Christs body, begged of Pilate, and buried by Joseph, Matth. chap. 27. ver. 57.

between Zorah and Estituol] See ch.13.2. and he judged Israel twenty yeares ] See chapter 15. ver.

CHAP. XVII.

Verl. 1. And there was a man It is not certainly known and agreed upon, when the things in this and the in Joshuahs time, nor in the dayes of the Elects that did forvive him, for all that time Ifrael lerved the Lord, Josh. 24. 31; of in these times are the tractierved the Lord, Join. 24, 31; and did not commit that grosse idelately, that they were guilty of in these times, as appeareth in this chapter; and much lesse that these things related, were done after the death of Samplon, but some hundred of years before, and soon after the death of Joshua and the Elders that lived with him and survived him, which it may be was not long after; who being all dead, foon after they fell from God and his true worship, corrupted his after they ren from Gou and its true worning, corrupted its pure religion, and fet up groffe idolatry, as appeareth, ch.z. tr. And in these times, not long after the death of Johns & the El-ders, were these things done which are related in this and the following chapters, and not after the death of Samplon: For Jonathan the Levite here spoken of, and afterwards the Danices Prieft, ch. 18. 20. was the fon of Gershon, Mofes fon, Exodi 2. 22. who was born unto him before he went into Ægypt out of Midian, which was three hundred and eighty years before Sampson dyed; and the following flory of the Levites wife, and the war with the Benjamites, (which happened after this here related, as appeareth, ch. 19.1.) were all done when Phineas the grand-fon of Aaron was high Prieft, ch. 20, 28, who was at mans estate when he killed Zimri and Cosbi, before Ifrael entred into the land of Canaan, and executed the office of the high Priest, presently after Elezzar his father, who dyed about the same time that Joshua did, Josh. 24.33, and therefore could not out-live Sampson, unlesse we would say that he lived to the age of above three hundred years : And therefore thefe five chapters containing thefe flories, were annexed to the end of this book, not because the things related in them were done after Sampsons death, but for this cause, that the history of the Judges might be continued without any interrupti-

V. 2. The eleven hundred [hekels of filver] See Gen. chap.

23. V. 15.
which weretaken] i.e. Were stollen from thee.
about which thou cursess. Imprecaying mischief and missortune, death and destruction against them who had stollen them away, if they repented not of what they had done, and fo reftored them again unto her.

and spakest of also in my eares] i.e. In my hearing, wherewith being affrighted, as thinking it a dreadfull thing to lye under a mothers curfe, I now come to acknowledg my fault, that receiving from thee pardon and thy bleffings, I may be freed from the curfe, and the fear of it.

Bleffed be thou of the Lord my fon] In her paffion fhe overthooteth her felf in two extreams, curfing before, at randome, the knew not whom, and now knowing that it was her lon, pronouncing a bleffing, not fo much as touching upon his fin a-eainst God, nor in the least manner reproving him for it: As though the thould have faid. I do not only free thee from the though me mound nave not, no not comy need them to careft, but turns into minto a beling.

V. 3. I had wholly dedicated the filter muot the Lord ] i.e. Unto behovah the only true God. So they cloaked their groffic idolary under the filter wo Gods fevice, though he had so often forbidden and condemned it in his law; whereby it appeareth, that there were two kinds of idolatry; one among the Heathens, whereby they worshipped strange and falle gods; the other among the Ifraelites, whereby ner, contrary to the prescript rule of his word, under the name of heathenith Idols and Images, or fome other way according to their own invention and wils, as the golden calle, Exodi chapter 32. verfe 5. and Baal , Hofea chapter 2. verle 16. and fuch was the Idolatry of Teroboam, and of Micahs mother in this place : And generally it is observed, that when an Image or Idol is mentioned, and not appropriated by name to fome heathen god, there it is to be underflood, that the true God was represented by it.

from my hand] i, c. To be bestowed by me upon my son and his son for religious uses, v. 5. to make a graven image and a motten image ] Many Expositors think that she did not intend to make two images, one molten, and another graven, but only one Image, which was first cast in a mold, and then graven with tooles, and beautified by the art of the workman; and that because of the small quantity of filver defigned for this use, which was not enough to make two feverall Images; but it is apparent that they were two feverall Images, by that which is faid, chap. 18. graven Image, and the Ephod, and the Teraphim, and the molten Image.

now therefore I will reftore it unto thee] Namely, the right and interest in it, for it was still in his possession, as though she fhould have faid, feeing it was devoted for thy use, there is no need that thou shouldest bring it unto me, but keep is still thy quiet his conscience, as thinking thereby to be more free from and his mother tooke two hundred (hekels of filver] It is not likely that having devoted an eleven hundred shekels unto the Lord in her superflitious way , that she would alienate nine hundred shekels to other common uses, but rather that she or the eternall salvation of their own souls. laid out the whole (um in this fervice, as making and fitting an nate out the whole tun in this tervice, as making and netting an house for Idol-gods, and filling it with them when it was prepared, and in making a rich Ephod and Teraphim, and all other furniture necessary for this idolatrous service.

V. s. and made an Ephoal To wit, fuch a rich Ephod as Gideon had made, in resemblance of that belonging to the high Prieft, used in the Tabernacle, chap. 8. 17. and not a linnen Ephod uled by the Levites; and with it all other garments fitting the Pricit in his religious service.

and Teraphim] Which was an image made like unto a man, ting it in the bed in Davids room, that by refembling him it might deceive those whom Saul sent to fetch him, I Sam. 19. 14. And such were those Idols which Rachel Role from her father, Gen 21.24. and those which Josiah with other abominations put away, 2 King. 23. 24. And by these Idols they divined, and made use of them as Oracles, to resolve their doubts, as we fee in the example of the King of Babylon, Ezek.
21. 21 So Zach. 10. 2. The idols (er Teraphim) have spoken vanity, and the diviners have feen a lye, and have told faife dreames.

and confectated one of his fons] Heb. filled the hand. A forme of foeech taken from the confectation of Aaron and his fons by Moles, to the Priefls office, with legal ceremonies, and putting into their bands the far and shoulder of the ram, the loafe of bread and oyled cake, for an off-ring before the Lord at their confectation, Exod. 29, 22, 23,24. So Jeroboam, 1 King.

13. 33. who became his Priest Though neither of Aarons linage nor tribe; all which he did, as a groffe idolater, exprefly contrary | Micahs house to dwell with him. to the law of God.

V. 6. In those dayes there was no King in Ifrael | So ch. 18. 1. & 21.25. that is, no Judge nor supream Magistrate, and so been his own childe; and to in some fort supplied what was [Ring] is taken, Gen. 36.31. Deut. 33.5. neither can the word be here taken in its proper fense, seeing so, the Israelites had never a King to this day, nor untill the time of Saul; but nan never a ning to this soy; nor tuma use tunior a suit; out it on in respect can spoun.

only that they had in their times of all confusion, in Judge or fusican Magificate to keep the people in awe and order, or to his fon. ver.5; either causing him to lay down his cling, and eithain them from doing what they lift which argued, that this give a result of the properties of the propertie man and any other guide to lead min, but in some name and contact my a trace that you have been represented to corrupt nature, which is prone to all fin and wickedneffe. And or else affociating and joyning them together in the Prieft-withall. it involves that Michab his course in all this he did hood: And this was not much leffe unlawfull then the other, was naught and wicked; to which end it is here brought, feeing if there had been a good Judge or Magifrate, he would have refrained him from this wickednesse and superflitious idolatry, in which he now went on without conthat which was right in his own eyes \ Not that which wa right in Gods eyes, but what himfelf fancied to be right.

V. 7. And there was a young man out of Bethlehem Judah ] So called, to diffinguish it from another Bethlehem that was in

So caused, to dissinguistic trois amount of the tribe of Zabuvon, John, 19,15, of the family of Fudab). There could no Levite be properly faid to be of the family of Judah, feeing the ferribes were diffined one from another; but this is poken, either (as fome think) because his mother was of the tribe of Judah, though his father were a Levite, and so he might be said to be of that family in respect of her, especially if the were an inheritrix, like Zelopheads daughters; his father for her sake sojourning there; or as others think (because the Scripture useth not to ftile men after their mothers family) he is faid to be of the family of Judah, because he was born, bred, and sojourned in Bethlebem Judah, though it were none of the Levites Cities, but only had his habitation there, where he might find best entertainment, the Levites in these times being for want of means and maintenance, put to shift for themselves, as the Levite did in this place, and afterwards in Laifh.

1. 8. And the man departed out of the City from Bethlehem Fudab] Being necefficated, it feems, for want of maintenance: For idolatry being fet up in the Church, and Anarchy accompanied with all confusion and diforder in the Common-wealth; Religion being corrupted, the service of God, sacrifices and fore they had not at this time an inheritance, &c. they had not oblations were neglected, the Priefls and Levites defpifed, & all | an inheritance large enough for their numerous tribe, as apmeans and maintenance being withheld from them, they were peareth, John 19.47, and the Amorites also had driven them enforced to leave the Tabernacle and their own Cries where out of a part of that which they had gotten, being fallen to formerly they had lived, and to wander into other parts of the their lot, ch. 1.34. And by this it appeareth, that the things land where they might finde a livelihood: And this was the here related were not done after the death of Sampson, seeing case of the Priests and Levites in Nehemiahs time, Nehem. 13. 10,11. And no better condition are we likely to be in in thefe | feek for their inheritance, which by lot was fallen unto them

V. 4. jet berestored the money unto bit mother] i.e. Though dayes, if for want of government Gods pure wor ship be negshe pressed him to keep it, yet he would needs restore it, to lected, and Sects, errours and herefies be tolerated, and his Minifters despised, and their means and maintenance withheld. which are allotted and allowed unto them by the law of God and the land, and they left without protection, to the will and and the land, and they are replaced to for the most part ayme only at their private profit, without any respect to Gods service.

to the house of Micah as he journeyed] Heb. in making his way. Not with a purpole at first to reside there, but to take up his lodging for a night.

V. 10. Dwell with me, and be unto me a father and a Prieft 7 Or, a father, in being a Prieft. For though he were younger and I will give thee ten fletels of filver by the yeare, and a fuite of appared, or a double fuite] Heb. an order of garments, and thy vistuals. He offers to entertain him at a poor rate, and for base as appeareth, in that Michal made use of one of them, by put- allowance, not out of the scannesse of his estate, but the nenuriousnesse of his mind, and the vile esteem that he had of his calling and condition: For he that had an eleven hundred thekels to beflow upon his Idols and Idol-fervice, could hardly afford ten shekels to the Levite for his maintenance; only he maketh up this defect by good cheap titles and complements, magern up this derect by good seedap titles and completioners, calling him father, and acknowledging him for his Prieft: Herein juft like the practice of many people in thefe dayes, who carring to abound in superfluous expences, are only strain-handed and hearted towards their faithfull Ministers, efteemng that only loft which is drawn from them towards their maintenance; only they feed and fatten them with titles, cap and complements, but allow them no means of comfortable Subsistance, for their encouragement in the duties of their calling, herein using them as they do their Parrats, which they keep hungry, that they make them talk.

So the Levitewent in ] i.e. Though his conditions upon which he offered to entertain him were bale, yet being necessitated and pinched with want, he accepteth of them, and goeth into

V. 11. and the young man was unto him as one of his fons lie. He tendred, cherished, and made much of him, as if he had wanting in wages by his kind usage and loving entertainments and fo now he that was a father in respect of office, is used as a fon in refpect of his youth.

feeing it was not permitted by Gods law to a Levite to exe-cute the Priefls office, which only belonged to the fons of

V. 13. Then faid Micab, Now I know that the Lord will do ne good Thus he bleffeth himfelf in his blinde devotion and Superflition, which wholly tended to groffe idolatry, though indeed it exposed him to Gods wrath and vengeance, as afterwards it appeareth.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verf. IN these dayes] i.e. Soon after the death of Joshuah, before God raised up Judges extraordinarily to deliver and govern his people.

ver and govern his people.

There was no King in Ifrael] See chap. 17.6. & 21. 25. and this is prefixed as a reason why the Danites were put to provide an inheritance for themselves, whereas whilest the whole people were under any government, the tribes assisted one another in driving out the Canaanites, and getting possession of that inheritance which by lot was fallen unto them, Numb.

32.21. Jefth 22.23. Judg. 1.3.

For unto that day all their inheritance had not fallen unto them ] i. c. Though they had their full inheritance fallen unto them by lot, and so they had a right unto it from Gods donation and free gift, yet because of their fins, as their apostasie, idolatry, and diffidence in God, who had promifed his affiftance in drie ving out the nations before them, they had not yet gotten the possession of a great part of it, which was the case of the other tribes, but of the Danites above the reft : And thereit is not probable, that fo p otent a tribe, as the Danites, were to Chap.xviij. and for a place of habitation to dwell in, above two bundred ferved punishments, yea, were fo far from punishing them acears after they had been in the land of Canaan, though now cording to their demerits, that they would not formuch as difthey were not utterly destitute, having some place in the mountains, Zorah and Estaol, to dwell in, but yet far too scant and frait for their great multitude, which maketh them here to use means to inlarge themselves.

means to marge tuennerves.

V. 2. Sens of their family] i.e. of their tribe, men of valour] Heb. fons of valour, go [earch the land] i.e. Of their enemies that belonged to their lot and was not yet subdued, to find out a place most convenient for their habitation , and which might with leffe pains and danger be won and conquered.

from Zorah and Estato!] See ch. 13.1,25. they lodged there] i.e. In that place where Micah had an house, and not far from it.

and not far from it.

V. 3. they knew the voice of the young man the Levite] i.e. Either they knew it particularly and personally, by reason of former acquaintance which some of the Spies might have with him, whilest he sojourned in Bethlehem Judah, their tribes lying neer one another, or by his pronunciation, they perceived that he was not an Ephramite, but of Judah, as it is usuall for men of the fame country-dwelling in feverall parts of it remote one from another, to have different dialects and manner of fpeaking, whereby they may be diffinguished one from another, as the Ephramites from the Gilcadites, ch. 12.6, and the Galileans from those that dwelt at Jerusalem, Mar. ch. 14 who brought thee bither ] To wit, From Bethichem Judah thou being a Levice, and not an Ephramite.

what makeft thou in this place | Seeing thou hast no Leviticall administrations or imployments here, being so far remote from the Tabernacle. and what haft thou here] i. e. What means of fubfiftance of maintenance is here by Micah allowed unto thee?

V. 4. Thus and thus dealeth Micah with me] i.e. Upon these and these conditions hath he entertained me, and thus and thus kindly he hash used me. and I am his Priest] i.e. Having fet up an houle for the exercile of his religion, and filled it with gods and images of di-vers kinds, he hath bired me to officiate in it as a Prieft.

V. 5. And they faid unto him, aske counsel we pray thee of God That is, hearing that he was a Pricit, and that he had in his chappel divers images representing God, with an Ephod, and all prieffly requifites, and above all the reft, a Teraphim. by which they divined, and which as an Oracle did fore-tell things to come, they defired him to inquire concerning the fucceffe of their enterprize and expedition.

V. 6. And the Priest [aid unto them] To wit, after he had himself feigned it to humour them in their course, and so to draw from them the better reward.

go in peace] i.e. You shall dispatch your bufinesse with fafety, and profper in it, without running into much difficulty and before the Lord is your way wherein you go ] i.e. The eies of the Lord watch over you for good, and to favour, direct and prosper you in your journey. And thus he abuseth Gods holy name to countenance his idolatrous courses, Psalm. 32. 18. & 34.15. Deut.11.12.

V. 7. Then the five men departed and came to Laiff] i.e. Being filled with confidence and courage by his prediction, they fet forward on their journey, and came to Laith, which was also called Leihem, Josh. 19.47. and afterwards Dan, verf. 29.

which belonged to Dans lot, Josh, 1948.

and faw the people that dwelt therein, how they dwelt careless,

i.e. That they were quiet and secure (in their opinion) from all danger of furprize, ver.28. after the manner of the Zidonians ] i.e. Using their customes and laws, having (it may be) fome dependance upon them, eitherby way of subjection, or elfe in respect of some league that was contracted between them. And so being confident of their was contracted overent mem. And to being contended of their aid and affillance, and fearing no danger, they initized them in their fecurity. And as they lived in all pleasure, plenty and profperity, not fearing any enemy that might diffush their peace, in respect of the feituation of their country and the thereight of their city, both by fea and land z, io was it with these and there was no Magistrate] Heb. possessour or heir of reftraint] i.e. Either none at all, or none hereditary and perpetuall, to reftrain them from any wickednesse, or to punish them for committing it, but fuch as were chosen by themselves, and during their own pleasure from year to year, who did let them live as they lift, for fear of displeasing them, who had power in their hands, by most voyces, to turn them out of their places. And foall things became lawful, and nothing that pleafed them accounted different.

grace and discountenance their vices and faults.

and they were far from the Zidonians ] Who did lye far West remote from them, and therefore could not on a fudden fend them any aids to keep them from being furprized, if any enemy attempted it, though they were the onely people upon whom they depended.

And they had no bufinesse with any man i.e. They were so rich, and had such plenty of all manner of provisions within themfelves, that they had no commerce with any other ; and fo fecure in their own strength, and their Zidonian confederates, that they cared not to be in league with any of their neighbours, that they might have their aid upon any occasion, bur lived of themfelves pleafantly and fecurely.

V. 8. And they came to their brethren To wit, the Danites which were of their tribe; that is, having as fpics feen and obferved the country and the manners of the people, they returned to give an account of all that they had done, to those that what [ayye;] i.e. Now you are returned, give us an account of your journey, that is, whether you have found any convenient place for us to inhabite in, and what hope there is of ob-

V. 9. And they faid, arife, that we may go up against them?
As though they should have said, we have found out such a place, and such people which do inhabite it, that there need not much discourse about it, but rather that we fall upon action for the land is very good, pleafant and fruitful, and to be conquered and gotten with little danger.

and are ye fill? ] Do not ipend time in multiplying words, and in replying to our relation, but take the prefent opportuni-ty, and out of band fet upon the conqueft.

Be not flathful to go, and to enter and possesses be not flathful to go, and to enter and possesses the fair opportunity, for there is no more to do, but to go and possesse the land, feing you are likely to finde but small and weak opposition. and little danger or paines in subduing of it. But yet for your better incouragement, and to remove all cause of fear, know this that followeth.

V. 10. when ye go, ye shall come unto a people secure ] And therefore may easily be take by a sudden surprise, when approaending no danger, they are altogether unprovided of all to a large land ] And therefore fit to be a place of habitation for your numerous tribe.

for God hath given it into your hands ] As appeareth, not onely by his oracle which we received of him in our journey, from Vo. 6. Mai the Frield, flat the second a very section of the Priefls, but allo as we feel it in part already verified free, or at leaft made them believe that he inquired, and then in the event, God directing us to a people that are fecure and carelesse, having no means to make resistance.

a place where there is no want ] i.e. Which aboundeth with all pleafures and profits, and with fuch plenty and profperity, that nothing is wanting that can be defired.

V. 11. And there went from thence—fix hundred men]
Which were chosen out of the whole tribe, as fittest and ableft in respect of their valour and fortitude, for such an expe-

V. 12. And they went up and pitched in Kiriah-jearim ]Or, Kiriah-baal, Joh. 15. 60. i.e. Not in the city it felf, which probably would not have admitted fuch an army of firangers, but without the walls, neer unto it, So Jofh. 10. 10. Which city was feituate upon a hill, on the borders of Judah and Dan, Northward, and called the city of woods, and was one of those four cities of the Hitties, with which Johna and the Princes contracted for their lives, and afterwards fell to the lot of Judah. Josh. 9.17. & 15. 9.
wherefore they called that place Mahanch-Dan, unto this day i.e.

The camp, or leaguer of Dan. Where afterwards Manaoh the father of Sampson dwelt,ch. 13.2,25. whereby it appeareth that the things related in this chapter, were long before the birth of Sampson.
behold it is behinde Kiriath-jearim] i.e. On the West fide; for as the East with the Hebrews, is called the fore-part, for the West the hinde-part. So John 1.4. & 13.5. And therefore they pitched nor in the ciry it self, but on the West side of it.

V. 13. and came unso the busse of Micab] i.e. Neer unto it; namely, to that village where Micah dwelt. V. 14. Then answered the five men] i.e. They began to speak and to propound that which followeth, to the rest of their company. For fo this phrase is usually taken in the scriptures;

So 1 Sam. 14.28. Ezr. 10. 2. Matth. 11,25. Act. 5.8. do you know? ] i.e. We would have you to know, to wit, that in the houles, that is, one of these houses, there is an Ephod and Teraphim, of which in our journey we made specie all use, by inquiring what successe we should have; and had an nem accounted difhoness.

so put them to stame | By inflicting upon the offenders de- may be very useful for us, for the time to come, if we take along with us all these things, and with them the Priest allo. Now therefore confider what you have to do ] i.e. Whether you will carrie them with you, to make that use of them which we formerly have done, or leave them behinde you.

V. 15. And they turned thitherward] i.e. Having resolved to make a purchase of these things, they declined out of the direct way of their journey towards the house of the Levite, that is fome part of Micah his house, neer unto the chappel, allotted unto the Levite, for his more convenient lodging.

and faluted him Heb. asked him of peace i.e. Of his wel-fare and prosperity, and how it fared with him in that his place and imployment. V. 16. [food by the entring of the gate] Waiting for the com-ming forth of the five men, that were gone into the house, to ming torth of the first merit that were gone into the hours of know what fuccesse they had in their enterprize, and to second them, if sinding opposition they needed their assistance.

V. 17. and came in thinker] i.e. Entred into the idolchappel, where the Ephod and images were, and took them all and the prieft flood at the entring of the gate] i.e. Being, as it is likely, drawn thither by the five spies, to falute their brethren that flood without, whileft they in the mean while went in to

V. 18. And these men went into Micabs bouse ] i.e. The five Spies went into that part of Michah's house which was fet apart for idolatrous service, whilest the Levite was without the gate faluting and talking with the Danites.

and fetched the carved images ] Wherein they greatly finned, in thatbeing private men, they stole and took away that which was another mans, and that with an evil intention, not doing it out of batred of his idolatry, but rather out of love to it, purposing to fer up these idols and idolatrous service in their own tribe.

then faid the prieft unto them, What do ye ? ] i.e. What do you mean to take away these things that are Michah's, and belong not unto you.

V. 19. Lay thy hand upon thy mouth ] i.e. Refrain from

V. 19. Laj 10) mana inpon 10) monary j. Kentani mekening any thing againtfour proceedings. The like expression we have, Job. 21. ( & 2.9. 9. & 40.4. Mich. 7.16. and be unto ur a father and a Prieft jie. ( We will highly honout thee, as if thou were our natural father that begat us. In fuch great elteem were men of that function in former times, how basely seever they are slighted in our dayes.

Is it better for thee to be a Priest ? See.] As who should say, we perfivade thee to nothing, but what is most for thine own good and great advancement, both in respect of honour and

V. 20. And the Priefts heart was glad] As respecting onely his own preferment, and in the mean while ungratefully forgetting all Michah's former kindnesse. and went in the middest of the people ] Namely, for his greater fafety, if either any comies should meet them and set upon them in their march, or if Micah pursuing them to recover his loffes, should affault them in the rear.

V. 21. and put the little ones, and the cattell, and the carriace before them ] Out of their confidence of an easie conquest, they do not march forward as men preparing for a dangerous war, but as removing to fettle themselves in some new plantation, taking their wives and children, their cattell and carraiages along with them, and these they placed in the fore-rank, as more fuspecting Michah's pursuit, than any incounter of enemies be-

V. 22. that were in the houses] i.e. In the village where Micah dwelt.

V. 13. What aileth thee, that thou comeft with fuch a compamy? Heb. that thou art gathered together. Here armed might infultest over feeble right, and theeves complain on true men, for demanding their own goods. So these Danites having spoyled Micah, complain of him and his company, as troublefome people, who with their clamours and out-cries, disquieted and hindred them in their march.

V. 24. and what have I more ? ] i e. What have you left me worth the having, in comparison of my images and priest, which you have unjustly taken away.

V. 25. Let not thy voyce be heard among us ] Thy clamours and reproachful language.

Left angry fellowes run upon thee] Heb. bitter of foul. i.e. Embirrered and incenfed with furie, by thy clamours and proand thoulofe thy life] Which are more precious than thy idols and prieft, though thou valueft them more than the reft

17. unto a people that were quiet and feture ] See. v.10.

it, without (at least) the great flaughter of their own men. fceing the people being put to the worfe in the firects , would run into their houses, and there fight it out in their own de-

V. 28. And there was no deliverer, because it was far from Zidon To wit, Eaftward, bard by mount Lebanon, and therefore they could have no help from thence in this fudden furprize, though there, as it feemeth, was their chiefeft hope. See Annotat, on ver. 7.

and it was in the valley that Igeth by Beth-rebole | Which was a region or part of Syria-Trachonitis, which is called Syria-Beth-rechob, and Syria-Rechob, 2 Sam. 10. 6. 8. In which was a city of that name, bordering upon the utmost North-part of the land, neer unto Hamath, Numb. 13.21. which fell to Afhers lot, Jofh. 19. a8. and was defigued to be one of the Levites cities, John 21.31. but never conquered by the Afterites, chap. 1. 31. for the Syrians did possesse it in Davids time. 2 Sam., 10.6.8.

2 3am. 10.0.0. V. 29. And they called the name of the city Dan] i.e. In an honourable remembrance of the Patriark Dan, their great-grand-father, or the father of their tribe, Gen. 30.6. and also that it might be a memorial to posterity, that though they lived in the utmost borders of the country, and in a place so far remote from the rest of the Israclites, yet they were of them, and a part of one of their tribes. V. 30. And the children of Dan fet up the graven image ] Ha-ing an high efteem of it, with the rest of the idols, and also of the Prieft because of the prediction of their good and prosperous fuccesse in their expedition against Laish, which came to passe according to their own defire. And Jonathan the fon of Gershom] Moses son. See Annotate

n chap, $7.1.& 7

untill the day of the captivity] What captivity is here meant is very doubtfull and much controverted, whether that, when the Braelites had that great defeat by the Philiftims, when the Ark was taken and carried away (as it were) captive out of the land; and with it (no doubt) a great many of the Ifraelites taken prisoners in that battle; or that great captivity when the ten tribes were carried away by Shalmanazer King of Assyria: For either of which opinions, there are divers strong reasons, and no leffe ftrong objections against them: And therefore fome Expositors have found out a third meaning between both of those, namely, that this captivity is not to be understood either of the Ark, or of Shalmanazar, but of a third, namely, of the particular captivity of the tribe of Dan, that happened between the two other, though not mentioned in the Scriptures, as many other things are not which yet were done : But I fee no necessity that may drive us to this shift, seeing this captivity may very probably be meant of that which was at the taking and carrying away of the Ark, and many of the Ifraelites raken with it as prisoners at that time : For whereas it is obected against it, that there is no mention in the Scriptures of any more captivities than that of the ten tribes by Shalmanazer, and the other of Judah by Nebuchadnezar; it may answered, that no more is there any mention in the Scriptures of this cap-tivity of the tribe of Dan, but only imagined by them that make this objection; and then again it may be faid, that though these were the two great captivities, that hindereth not, but that there might be a third leffer than they: And that this was it, appeareth, Pfal. 78.60.61. where it is called a captivity. So e forfook the Tabernacle of Shiloh, the tent which he placed among them, and delivered his strength into captivity, and his glory into the enemies hand, 61: He gave his people alfounts the sword, Ge. and 66. He smote his enemies in the binder parts. to wit, with Emerods after they had carryed away the Ark, and kept it in their country: In all which he alludeth to that great defeat which the Philifilms gave the Ifraelites, I Sam. 4.10,11. Again in the next verse the continuance of this image and idolatrous worthip, fet up by the Danites, which is limited to that time onely in which the house of God was in Shiloh, and that was not till the captivity by Salmanafer, but onely to the captivity of the ark by the Philliflims, and foon after this, it was brought to Kiriah-jearim, and never after returned to Shiloh. Furthermore, there is no probability that these idols and idola-trous service and priesshood, should continue after that time of reformation by Samuel, when as the people returned unto God, and put away all their idols, as appeareth, 1 Sam. 7. 3.4. or though it should be imagined that they should have continued at Dau, his power not extending to this remote place, which was in the utmost borders of the land; yet what shadow of reason is there, that they should not be taken away by David, a man according to Gods own heart, who was fo zealous and harms the rose time were queen an a tenure 1 oce 1.10.

And harms the right with first 1 by went to feek out a city or place fit for habitation, of which they shoot in great need 3 and effective first and the right of the short of the right of the results of specially regions to long a time, and reither wanted with recoming to line in an one they harm tifter. And this was power to effect that a point work? For whereast it admered, and the results are results of the right of the done, cither out of the heat and fury of war, which, for the time | that though a publick reformation were brought in, in the it lasted, made them to forget or neglect their own conveniency | dayes of Samuel and David, yet this idol-ferrice might be rein preferving it : or elfe because they could no otherwise take | tained, and secretly acted by many of that tribe, even to the Chap.xix. dayes of Jeroboam, and fo continued to the captivity by Shal- his anger being appealed, and his affection inclining towards manazer, this is little to the purpole; for the question is not her, he goeth to reconcile himself unto her, though the were what might be done by some of that tribe secretly, for this the peccant party. might have continued even to the second captivity, as well as the first, if at least any of the Danites remained in the land; but how long this chapp: l of idols, and idolatrous priesshood and fervice was publickely continued and maintained by that eribe, and that was onely for that time whileft the house of God remained in Shiloh, and that was no longer, but till the ark was carried away captive by the Philiftims. Moreover, it is most probable, that this book of Judges was written by Samuel, or at least by some other that lived in his or Davids dayes, and not by Ezra, as fome have dreamed, having no other ground for their opinion, but the dotage of the Apochryphal Eldras, as I have plainly evinced by divers passages of this book, before observed. And therefore this captivity cannot be that of Shalmanazer, which happened to long time after the dayes of him that wrote this ftory; unlesse we will say, he did it by a prophetical spirit, which is never to be observed in a pen-man of any biftorical feripture, without fome intimation or notice given of it. And besides, if he had written this by way of prophecy, he would have done it in a prophetical, and not in an historical manner, and would not have said, that Jonathan his fons were the priefts," but that they should be the priests to the time of the captivity by Shalmanazer.

V. 31. 4ll the time that the bouse of God was in Shiloh ]

Which is to be limited to the time after the image was set up, and not to be understood of the whole time of the being of the tabernacle in Shiloh, feeing it was placed there in Johna's time, long before this graven image was erected, John 18.1.

CHAP. XIX.

Verf. 1. And it came to passe in those dayer] i.e. Soon after the death of Joshua, and the Elders that did survive him in the time of Caleb, and before Othnicl was Judge. as appeareth verf. 11 compared with chap. 1.verf.7.

when there was no king in Ifrael] i.e. No Judge nor supream when here was no king in 1/1841 J.E. No Judge nor inpream Magilitate, to refitrain the people from any vice, or to punish fin. Which is here prefixed before the following history, as a reason why the Levites wise committed whoredome, and the wife a concubine; for there were two forts of concubines, one fort who were not wives nor contracted in marriage, whose fons had by law no right to inherit with the brethren of the lawful wives, as we fee in Jephthahs cafe, chap. 11. 2. The other who were contracted to their husbands, but not in a folemn manner, as the first and chief wives were, mothers and mistresses of the family, such as Jacobs two maides, who were taken to his wives, and flared with their children in their fathers inheritance; which in the scriptures are called sometimes wives and fometimes concubines. And fo this woman here is called a wife a concubing to diffinguish her, both from a harlot. and also from a lawful wife, who was mother of the family and the onely true wife, both by Gods first institution, Gen. 2. 18, 24. Mal. 2. 15. Mattb. 19. 4.5. And alfo by his law, Levit.

81.8.1. Cor.7.1 use of Beblichem Judab] So called to difference it from another city of the lame name which belonged to the tribe of Zebulon, John 19.15. Now it was lawful for him to take a write from thence, though the were a Levite, because onely maids that were heirs to their fathers inheritance, were refrained from marrying out of their own tribe, that their inheri-tances might not go from it, and all others left to the liberty of their own choice, Numb. 36.8.

V. 2. And his concubine played the whore against him ] Which the could not have done, it the had been onely a harlot-concubine, and not his wife. But being fo, the finned against him, that is, against her faith and promise plighted and made unto him, the committed whoredome with others. For though fuch concubines, as the, were no waies equal to the lawful wife, dah, Joth 15.

and fo contenanced her in her fin.

moneths. Heb. dayes four moneths.

to fleah friendly unto her Heb. To her heart, i.e. Words of love, peace and comfort, to allure and draw on her officition towards him, So Hof. 2.14. And thus Shichem spake to Dinah, Gen. 34.3. and Joseph to his brethren, Gen. 50.

baving his fervant with him and a couple of affer] i.e. One to carrie their provisions for their journey, and the other to ease himself and his wife, if the would return with him. he rejoyced to meet him] As hoping that he was come to be reconciled to his wife, being his daughter.

V. 4. and he abode with him three dayes i.e. Of his own you luntary accord, to rejoyce together in their reconcilement, and two dayes more unwillingly, being over borne with the importunity of his father in law. So they did eat and drink ] i.e. They featled and rejoyced together, to testifie that they were reconciled, and that all differences were accorded between them. Exod. 22.6. V. 5. when they arose early | i.e. They of the family.

that he arofe up lie. The Levite alfo.

comfort thy heart with a morfel of bread | i.e. Refreih and firengthen thy felf for thy journey with a little food; or, as we fay, break thy falf before thou fetteff out, So Gen. 18.5. 1 King. 13.7.8. And with this kinde entertainment the father detaineth him, that by their longer flay, their renewed love might be the more increased and confirmed, like things glewed together, which are strengthened by time and continuance.

V. 8. and they tarried till afternoon. Heb. till the day de-

V. 9. the day draweth] Heb. is weak.
the day groweth to an end] Heb. is the pitching time of the day. e. Towards evening, and therefore it is a time more fit to take up ones lodging, than to begin a journey. home | Heb. to thy tent.

V. 10. And came over against febus] (which is Jerusalem ) Vo. 10. Anna came over again; years (which is Jerulatem)

So called afterwards, but now plebus; being a City of the Jebus, is often a City of the Jebus, is often and the expeling of the Jebustes: If at leaft, the people of Judah were not for their fins again beaten our by the Jebustics after they reason why the Levices wire committee wnortenous; and use produced the second of the s them, ch.1.8. yet the other part which belonged to Benjamin, was fill possessed by the Jebusices, seeing it is said, that the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites, but they dwelled together, v. 21. But neither is this likely, that it was fo at this time, feeing the Levite might have then gone to that part of Jerusalem which was in the possession of Judah, or to that part which belonged to the Benjamites, if it were neerer to him, and lodged with some of them, they dwelling there to-gether with the Jebusites, as well as have gone further, when it gether with the Jeountes, as wen as have gone intruct, when it was foliate, to lodge at Gibeah, neither would be have called it Jeous, or the City of a firanger, if the better part of it were possessed by the children of Judah, and the other half in a great part by the children of Benjamin.

V. 11. this City of the Jebufites ] Who were of the posterity of Canaan. See Gen. 10.16.

V. 12. the City of a stranger, that is not of the children of Ifrael] i.e. A curfed nation, and estranged from God and his people, which he would not have said, if the greatest part of it, at this time had been in the polls flion of Judah and Benja-

V. 13. in Gibeah or in Ramab.] These two Cities were neer Jebus Northward, scituate on hils in the way to mount Ebraim, whither the Levite travailed ; the one ver, 18. namely Gibeah, somewhat neerer; the other, to wit, Ramath, a little further off, that is, four miles from Jebus: Some think, that there were two Cities called Gibeah, in the tribe of Benjamin; one scituate on a mountain, the other in a Plain. See ch. 20.21. There was also another Gibeah in the tribe of Ju-

V. 14. Gibeah which belongeth to Benjamin | Which is added re were they contracted, though not fo formmly, and thereby very contracted, See Gen. 22.4. Xing. 13.7.

contracted. See Gen. 22.4. Xing. 13.7.

cand west surp, from hin] To writ, cither out of ther dilke, or fear of receiving punithment when her husband had diffcovered fear of receiving punithment when her husband had diffcovered fear whoredome, or at least because there were continual jarrs; between them about it. rather with Gods people, then with strangers and heathers, and his servants to be condemned, or at least suspected faulty; And was there four whole monethi] Or, an year and four as favouring of floth and defire of eafe; and yet in the event; the Levites counsel and course proveth pernicious to himself, V. 3. And her busband arofe and went after her] i.e. When his wife, and many thousands of his people; God so disposing V. 3. And her bushand arole and went after her j.e. when it will an over-ruling providence, which may teach us not to the neglected to after means whereby the might be reconciled, of it by an over-ruling providence, which may teach us not to will be reconciled.

trust in our own wisedome, but in all our enterprises to crave Gods direction, Prov. 16. 9. & 19. 21. & 20. 24. Jer. 10.

For there was no man that took shem into his house] i.e. Either because they would not being wicked and inhumane; or because they durst not, seeing they knew that the inhabitants were so abominably wicked that they would assault their hou-(es to finde out strangers, whom they might abuse in exercising upon them them their filthy lufts. V. 16. there came anold man from bis work out of the field] Where are given two reasons, why this old man entertained them, rather than any other of the city; One was because he was an honest man, who lived by his painful labour, though he were old, whereas the rest of the city were idle and luxurious; The other because he was also of mount Ephraim, and onely fojourned in Gibeah; and therefore had more compassion of them in their distressed condition than others, because they belonged to the fame country, whereas the Eenjamites were of

V. 18. I am now going to the house of God ] Which at this time was at Shiloh in mount Ephraim, whither he intended to go first, that he might do service unto God as being a Levite, and then afterwards to passe on in his journey till he came to his own house.

and there is no man that receiveth me ] i.e. Who will be in treated to give me lodging upon any conditions.
V. 19. Tet there is both straw and provender—want of any thing ] As though he should say, they have no rea-fon to refuse us, seeing we have all things with us of our own, needful for our journey, and would put them to no other charge or trouble, but onely to lodge us.

V. 20. Let all thy wants be upon me ] i.e. Take no further care, either for thy lodging or provision, seeing I will take all the care upon my self to provide all necessaries, both for thee and all that belong unto thee.

onely lodge not in the [freet ] q.d. This onely I defire that thou wilt not so much wrong thy felf and thy wife, as to lye in the open street. And thus the good old man, out of his humanity and love to hospitality, maketh it his suit to the Levite, that he might entertain him, who before fued unto others to be entertained, and was rejected.

V. 21. thej was bed their feet] Which was one of the rites of holpitality in those hot countries. See Gen. 18.4. & 19.

- Sam. 11 8. V. 22. certain fons of Belial] i.e. Most flagitious men, and notoriously and desperately wicked; stigmatized villaines, and even incarnate devils. Men without yoke, as the word fignifieth, who will not submit to be governed by religion, reason, or the very principles of nature, or by the laws of God or man. Like unto the devil himself, who is also called by this name, 2 Cor 6. 15. in which respect they maybe fitly called his chil-bring out the man—that we may know bim] A modest expression of their filthy lust, according to the scripture phrase, Gen. 10.5.8 4.1.

V. 22. nay my brethren] Where he feeketh to take them off by this meek and loving compellation, and then by telling them that their intended action was both wicked and foolish.

So 2 Sam. 13. 12. 13. Gen. 34. 7. Prov. 7.7.

Seeing this man is come into my boule! To wit, that he may be fafe under my protection according to the laws of hospitahity. So Gen. 10.8.

V. 24. Bebold here is my daughter a maiden, and his concubine Where this good old man is upon the fudden fo transported with his care to observe the laws of hospitality, that he finfully offereth to profittute his own innocent daughter, and the Levites wife to their wicked luft, to be abused by them. For though it be lawful in evils of punishment to choose the leffe, that we may avoid the greater, for so respectively, the leffer evil is good; yet in the evils of sin we must choose neither, no not the least to avoid the greatest; seeing the lightest and most venial fin is greater, if we be actors in it, and make it our own by choyce, than the most abominable wickednesse in which we are but meer patients, and the bare subjects of other and humble ye them] i.e. Abule them at your pleasure, but data immote yearden 1.2. Abute treem at your peatures out abute nor my quest by making him the subject of so base a villany and unnatural fishthineste. And this was very commendable in him, that he thus highly prized the laws of hospitality, but the means to be coadenned as sinful, seeing we may not down that good may come thereof, Rom. 3.8. nor act the least evil our selves, that we may prevent the greatest in o-

V. 25. So the man | That is, the Levite not daring himfelf to come out unto them for feare of being abused by them, required the old man to do it; fo reverencing the laws of hospitality, that he thought it unreasonable to prostitute his hosts daughter to be abuted for his fake.

and they know her] The old man offered his daughter to be abufed, as well as this concubine; but this object of their flithy and brutish lust being presented unto them, they suddenly catch at it, and fo forget the other. Which came to paffe by a just and over-ruling providence of God, which caused them to forget the innocent virgin, that the might be preferved. and to fuffer the concubine to be abused, for a deserved punishment of her former filthinesse and unfaithfulnesse.

V. 26. and fell down at the door ] i.e. Either dead, or rea-

till it was light | i.e. She came and fell down in the dawning of the day, and there lay dead till it was clear light or V. 27. And her lord rofe up] i.e. Her husband ; fo called for honours fake, which the Apostle commendeth in Sarah,

t Pet. 3.6. and opened the doors of the house \ To fee, it is likely, what was become of his wife, that they might go on their journey, and haften away from that wicked city. and behold the woman his concubine was fallen down ] Namely. flark dead at the door, the Lord having called her to account for her former wickednesse, and by a just law of requital, pu-nished her in the felf-same kinde as she had sinned, though the matter were taken up between her and her husband, and they reconciled one to the other, Heb. 13.4.

and her hands were upon the threshold In her fall catching hold at it, in the pangs of death.

V. 28. And be laid up, les us be going] i.e. Supposing that the was come too late in the night to be let in, and there fallen fleep,he feeketh to awaken her.

then the man took her up ] i.e. The Levice discerning by her speechlesnesse that she was stark dead, as also by making other experiments upon her, being affured that it was so, he took her up to carry her away with him, upon another defign that came into his mind.

V. 29. And divided her together with her bones into twelve pieces and fent her into all the Coafts of Ifree! Because there was no other way to bring these wicked variets to suffer deserved punishment for their abominable wickednesse, thus he appealeth and addreffeth himfelf to the whole nation, and fendeth her piece-meale, flesh and bones unto every of the twelve tribes apart, the Levites of his own tribe being difperfed among them, that by fuch an horrid spectacle, he might incense their wrath, and raife up their spirits to take the sharper revenge upon the actors of so foul and abominable a fact; because the heart is more affected by a visible spectacle presented to the ye, than by the bare report of it related unto the ear : The of the dead ought to have their due honour and respect, Deut. 11.22. yet it is excufable in this Levite, feeing he acted it for an higher defign, which did not fo much difhonour the dead body , as benefit those that were living , by bringing these children of Belial to deserved punishment, and not suffering these pests to poyson the ayr with their breath, and by their indempnity to bring Gods (earfull judgments upon the whole land : And thus it is lawfull for Physicians and Chirurgions to anatomize a dead body, that by fearthing into the fecrets of nature, they may get more skill to prevent or cure the difeafes of the living.

V. 30. And it was fo that all that faw it ] i.e. Chiefly all the Elders and Magistrates of every tribe, and with them all other of the people; who feeing these pieces of the dead body, and hearing the whole matter related by the messengers that brought them, and all the feverall passages of this lamentable tragedie, generally concluded, that there was never such an horrid villanie done or seen, either in their own times, or in the dayes of their ancestors, ever fince the time of their com-ming out of Ægypt, confider it, and take vavice and speak your minds].e. What course is to be taken, and of the best means which may be used to bring these desperate offendors to deserved punishments, lest we be uilty of their fin by not executing justice, and make the whole land lyable to Gods wrath.

CHAP. XX.

Hen all the children of Ifraci] i e. A great part of the whole body of the people out of every tribe, which had heard of this abominable fact by the relation of the there. Neither and the many provent an greater in the there. Neither and the concubine, to profilitute them to be abufed by thefe wicked, greateful and please and the concubine, to profilitute them to be abufed by the wicked greateful and all pleases and pleases and pleases and pleases. So Generally Additional Profiles and Officers. So Generally Additional Profiles and Officers. So Generally Additional Profiles and Officers.

1.5. nor can this be underflood of the whole nation, which far thall perform this fervice, that is, who shall make provision for exceeded in number 400000 men, as appeareth by their first the camp, and who shall go to sight. numbring in the wildernesse, Numb. 1. 46,47. and that in Davids time, 2 Sam. 24.9. neither is it probable, that going Davids time, 2 2am. 24.9. neither 1st probable, that going our they left their Country and Cities naked and defitute or inhabitants to defend them againft bordering enemies, and to manage all their domesticall affaires, seeing these that went out were not to return till this war was ended, v.8. And much leffe probable it is that this should be understood only of the elders and officers, feeing they could not possibly amount to so great a number as 400000, men; and therefore it is meant of all their chief men of war, together with their Elders, officers, Captains and Commanders, fit to be called out for such a service. eathered together as one man lie. With unanimous confent they went out upon this expedition, with such speed and readinefs, as if one man alone had undertaken the business. So v. 8. From Dan to Beer sheba with the land of Gilead \ i.e. From all the utmost borders of the land. For it was bounded with Dan on the North, 1 King. 4.25. Beerfheba in the tribe of Judah towards the Philiftims, Gen. 21.33, 34. on the South, Gilead on the East, beyond Jordan, and the Mediterranean sea on the

anto the Lord in Migteb | Not because the tabernacle was there. for at this time it was in Shiloh, but they are faid to meet before the Lord, because they came thither to act this weighty bufinels, as in Gods prefence, and withall to worthip, pray and ask counfel of the Lord at Shiloh, which was neer Mizpeh on the in Mizzeh] A place in the borders of Benjamin, Joh. 18.26.

And theriore fit for this prefent occasion, which was also often used for such general assemblies, as lying in the heart of the land, and so commodious for such meetings, ch.1. 11. 1 Sam. 7.
5. & 10. 17. 2 King. 25. 22. Some think, that there was here fome Synagogue or place of publick worship, 1 Machab. 3. 46. Though facrifices and the ceremonial worthip were limited to the tabernacle, which was now at Shiloh.

V. 2. And the chief of all the people | Or, the corners of all the pople. 1c. The chief princes gathered out of all the corners of the land, or the corners themselves, as the Hebrew hath it, which calleth the chief princes corners, (as some think) because as to their advice, either out of their pride, because they scorned that the other tribes should meddle with theirs in their gothe fabrick of the common-wealth. So I Sam. 14.38. Ifai. 19. 14. Zeph. 3. 5.

400000. foot-men] For in the armies of the Ifraelites none

quoto to journal for in the atmits of the Irraditts none fought on horfe-back, or in Chariots, but on foot only. that drew footal See chap, 8. verf. to.

V. 3. Then faid the children of Ifrael To wit, unto the Levite. How was this withchangle? i.e. Tell us the manner how this horrible wickednesse was acted, and all the circumstances of it. V. 4. And the Levite] Heb. the man, the Levite.

the bushand of the woman] Which theweth that the woman was not his harlot, but contracted unto him as his wife, though not as the chief wife, the mother and mistresse of the family in a folemn manner. See chap. 10, 2,

V. 5. thought to have flain me] i.e. Either by abusing me as they did my wafe, which, for modefly sake, he doth not expresse in plain terms; or they indeed resolved to kill me, if I would not yeeld to profiture my body to their abominable lufts, which to do, I should have thought much worse than death it felf. And this his acculation and complaint, it is likely, he con-firmed by producing his old hoft and fervant as his witnesses, Deut. 17.6.

V. 6. they have commisted lendueffe and folly i.e. Such an horrible and worse than brutish wickednesse, as ought not to go unpunished. See ch. 19.23

V. 7. Behold ye are all children of Ifrael | i.e. Whom this hoarible fact concerns, as well as me, seeing you are the people of God, who are straitly bound by his command to punish such outragious wickednesse, and so to put away evil from Ifrael, which if you do not, the guilt thereof will lye upon the land,

verf. 13.
V. 8. we will not any of us go to his tent ] So resolute they were in the fervency of their zeal to fee this matchlesse villany feverely punished, that they make a folemn vow not to make any delay in feeing it done, if at least the Benjamites themselves would not fee justice executed upon the offenders; which if they refused to do, they would also make war against them, as the Abettors of the Gibeanites villany. And here it is probable that they vowed and ratified their yow with an oath, that if any of the Benjamites should escape the sword and remain alive, they would not (after they had destroyed all their women and maids, together with their children) give any of their daughters in marriage unto them. And withall, that they would put to the fword the men of any town or city which had the precedency in the war, but did not by humble and heartie not affilted them in this war, both which are mentioned in the not anited that me may be to me that are met chapter verf. 1.5.

V. 9. we will go my lot so againft it] i.e. To decide all controverties and to prevent all differences and emulations, which might otherwise happen, the lot shall decide the matter who

V. 10. And we will take ton men of an bundred | That is, in the whole, 40000. out of 400000.

to fetch vistuall for the people] i.e. To victual the camp. V. 11. Init together as one man] Heb. fellowes, i.e. Joyning together both heart and hand to affift one another in this

V. 12. And the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin i.e. So careful they were not to raile a civil war. and to fied bloud, that they used all lawful meanes to prevent it; and therefore before they would further ingage themselves, they fend these meffengers, as embaffadours of peace, if they would punish the offenders, or as Heraulds to proclaime war, if they refused , because that war is not just that is begun before it be proclaimed, and propositions of peace tendeed to prevent initiately be accepted. So Deut. 20. 10.11, what wice entitle is this that is done among you] They do not inquire what the fin was, for that they knew already, but expostulate with them concerning the heynousnesse of it, the which they aggravate by this interrogation, as though they had faid, how horrible and abominable is this wickednesse which hath been committed among you ?

V. 12. Now therefore deliver us the men, the children of Beliall ] i.e. Keep them not under your protection, but give them up to justice; that as they have been examples unto others, to incourage them in such a matchlesse villany, so they may be deterred from committing the like fin by their exemplary punishment.
the children of Belial] See. chap, 19. 22.

and put away evil from Ifrael | i.e. Both the evil of fin. cur-

ting off the offenders by the Iword of justice, and preferving others from being infected by their wicked example, and also the evil of punishment, seeing the guilt of their fin will lye upon the land, and draw down upon it Gods heavy judgements, if iuffice be not executed.

but the children of Benjamin would not hearken to the voice of their brethren] i.e. Though as brethren they perswaded them; out of love, to do that which tended to their own good, as well vernment, or out of felf-confidence prefuming on their own firength and skilfull proweffe in martiall affaires -: or be-: cause God giving them up to the hardnesse of their own hearts, they would not hearken to their brotherly admonitions, because he was purposed to destroy them, I Sam. chap.

V. 1a. But the children of Benjamin gathered themfelves together ] i.e. Being resolved to stand it out, they make a generall muster of their whole tribe at Gibeah. that they might be ready to protect them, if any attempt should be made against them by the other tribes; shewing herein their heat and eagerneffe to fight in their defence , though they know them to be so notoriously wicked: And so made themselves accessaries, abetters, and guilty of their horrible

V. 15. That drew the [word] t.e Fit and able men to do fervice in the war. See ch.8 . o.

V. 16. 700 diesen mentefe-handed | See ch. 2.15.

every one could fling stones at an haires breadth, and not misse ] An hyperbolicall expression, whereby is signified, that they were fo exceedingly skilfull in flinging stones, that they would commonly hit a fmall mark.

V. 18. went up to the house of God, and asked counsel of God ] Before they would undertake fuch a weighty bufiness they confult with God, and do not rafhly rufh upon it, but first defire to be directed by him.

which of us shall go first to the battle? They do not inquire whether they should fight or no; but being full of confidence in respect of the justnesse of their cause, and also their great number and ftrength, they ftrive for precedencie, and the honour of the day, prefuming already of victory before the fight, and to feek to God only for the determining of this difference between them, that there might be no contentions and emulations about it.

V. 21. And destroyed down to the ground of the Israelites that day 2200 men] The which heavie judgement God executed upon them (though they fought in a just cause and quarrel against wicked and gracelesse men, sighting in the defence of those who had deserved utter ruine and destruction for their abominable wickednesse) to punish and correct the pride and felf-confidence of his people which herein appeared, in that they fought unto God only to know who fhould have prayer crave his affiftance and bleffing upon their indeavours. Secondly, because they were generally guilty of many great and heynous fins, and especially of idolatry and backsiding from God, of which they had not repented, nor made their peace with

Chap xxi.

Chap. xx. tamen vectory, they would nave gloriest and trainspace in their own policy and firength, and not afciribed the glory to God. And ladity, to each them and all others, not to judge of the juffice of the earlie by the every, feeing these things happen to all allike, Eccl. 5, 3, the wicked oftentimes thriving and profall alike, Eccl. 9. 1. 1. the wicked oftentimes thriving and profied period in their (in, and the goddy and righteous being opportful unto the Benjamure, and to centrain a fight with them, who gives the me, though their cause be muck the better; as we fee in which the standard of the s of their enemies, yet not in respect of himself, who alwaies infliceth upon them deserved punishments for their fins, or at least fatherly chassificements to bring them to repentance, or to prevent fin when they are ready to fall into it. And on the other fide, he fuffers the wicked to profper and flourish in their fin for a time, that he may bring them to the greater deftructi on in the end, as the Benjamites in this place. the men of I frael encouraged themselves] i.e. Attributing their defeat to some outward accidents, which now by experience they had learned to prevent, they take new heart unto them, hoping of good successe in respect of their great ftrength and number that fill remained.

in the place where they put themselves in array the first day] Which is noted (as it seemeth) to imply, that it was a place of disadvantage, in respect of the multitude of the Israelitish army, and the small number of the Benjamites.

V. 23. And the children of Iffael went up and wept before the Lord Where it is to be observed, that their great defeat wrought in them fome reformation of their former errors and omissions, but not such an one as was sufficient to fit them for a victory; for they wept before the Lord, but not fo much ( as it feemeth) for their fin as for their fmart and loffe, nor humbled themselves by fasting and prayer. And again they asked counthemselves by rating and prayer. And again they asked coun-fel of the Lord whether they should the second time go to battel against the children of Benjamin their brother; but did and to counterfeit a slight. not inquire what should be the successe of their enterprize, nor humbly acknowledg that they did rely upon him alone for vi-ctory, having no self-conceit of their own strength; nor craved by hearty prayer his affiltance, withour which there was no hope of prevailing against their enemies.

on prevaining against their entities, as it feemeds) of their facceffe, becauft; they raifed war against their brother; that is, a tribe of their own people, and not looking to their fin, which was the chief caule of their defeat.

and the Lord faid, Goup againft him ] i.e. He answered them according to their inquirie, but gave them no encouragement by promiting victory.

V. 25. All these drew the [word] i.e. Were valiant men and skilful, and able to manage their weapons.

V. 26. and came unto the boufe of God and wept] Not as they did before, but in a folemn and ferious manner, not fo much be-and before, but in a lotemn and terious manner, not to much be-wailing their loffe, as their fins which were the cause of it. and fate there before the Loral i.e. According to the poslure of mourners, Lam. 1.1. & Pfil. 1374. or (as others take it) they abode there, humbling themselves before God, with true contrition and compunction of heart from morning to night, in the true fight and fenfe of their fins, 2 Sam.7.18.

and fasted] i.e. Did not performe the duty of humiliation and jupica J.E. Due not performe the tury of amountain ind rependance flightly, owerly and formally, as they had done before, but in a through and ferious manner.

and offered burn-offerings] To wit, for the explation of their fines, in which the whole Incrifice was confumed and offered and peace offerings before the Lord ] In which part of the facri fice was offered to the Lord, part of it belonged to the priefls, and part to him that offered the facrifice. And this they did to make their peace and attonement, and to teftifie their faith and affurance of victorie, having sought God in a right manner. V. 27. And the children of Ifrael enquired of the Lord ] To wit, by the high prift, after the judgement of Urim and Thummim, Numb. 27.11.

fer the ark of the covenant was there ] i.e. In the tabernacle, in those daies in Shiloh, which was neer unto Gibeah.
V. 28. And Phinebas the son of Eleazar-food before it in thoje dayes] That is, ministred before the Lord in the office of the high prieft. So Deut. 10. 8. & 18.5. By which it is evident that thele things here realated, were not done after the death of Sampson, but soon after Joshua's time, seeing it he had con-tinued till after the death of Sampson, be should have been now about 380, years of age, supposing that he were 30, years old when he killed Zimrie and Cosbie, into which age none attained fince the flood, who did not live before it. See ch. 17. 1.

Go up, for to morrow I will deliver them into thy band ] Before Goo bad them go up, but gave them no promife of their good facceffe, but now they have his word for it, and are thereby affured of obtaining victory.

V. 29. And Ifrael fet lyers in wait round about Gibeah] So John 8, 4.i.e. they fet a fecret ambush neer unto the city, to take

God by ferious humiliation and turning from their wicked it when all the people were drawn out to fight in the battell, waies. Thirdly, because if they had at fifth prevailed and ob-and having surprised it, and set from part of it on fire, then to tained victory, they would have gloried and triumphed in their liste out and to fall upon the rear of the Gibconites army. So titue out and to tain upon the rear of the Groontes army. So that it appeareth by this relation (though it be intricate & much perplexed) that the lifectites u'ed this itratagem to divide their army into 3. parts one was this that were laied in ambuth; the fecond was a party drawn out of the army to prefent themfelves (and were to fain a flight) when they made a stand, and had drawn them far enough out of the city, and brought them within the reach of this referve. In the two former battels when they relyed upon their own strength and number, and had from God no promise of victory, they were so bold and consident that they neglected their firatagems of war, as thinking that there was no need of them. And now that they had a promife of victory from God, which could not fail, they think no providence or policy too much ; which plainly sheweth what a wide difference there is between vain prefumption, grounded on our own strength and natural abilities, and true faith relying upon Gods word and promifes. For prefumption is bold and confident upon weak and falfe grounds, & thinketh furely to attain to its ends, though all means be neglected, that may advance and further them; but true faith, when it hath Gods word to build upon, is no lesse careful to use all lawful means, than if there were no promise, because it knoweth, that ordinarily God appointeth that the means and end should go together, and therefore, that it is a tempting of God (when we have a pro-mile) to neglect the means, which are subservient to his providence, Act. 27.31.
V. 30. And the children of Ifrael went up] To wit, that part of the army which were appointed to fight with the Benjamites, and to counterrere a nigor.

V. 31. went out against the people si.e. Against that partie of the sine little Army that was drawn out to fight against them.
in the bigh-water Or, in the crosse-wates leading to divers

the boufe of God ] Or, Betbel. i.e. Either to Shiloh where the tabernacle was now placed, or the City Bethel scituate on the borders of Benjamin and Ephraim, formerly called Luz.

borders of Benjamin and Ephraim, formerly cause 1422, and the other to Gibeab in the field? So called (as it feemeth) to diffinguish it from the other Cibeab on the hill, against which the Israelites now fought, v.23,30, See ch.10,13, Joshuk.24,28. both which cities lay neer together in the tribe of Benjamin.
V. 32. unto the high wayer] i.e. Where their great referve,

v. 52. Mars note they wayed J. E. Where their great receive, confiling of the main body of the Army, incamped.
V. 33. And all the men of Ifrael J. e. The main body of their army, which lay encamped neer the high-waies, role up and put themselves in array, no fecond those who had diffembled a flight, and now made a fland.

at Baal tamar ] Lying on the west of Gibeah, where they had placed themselves to receive the Benjamites when they pursued the Mraelites in their flight.

and the lyers in wait ] i.e. Those who lay in ambush in the medows neer the city to furprize it, when the Benjamites were drawn out to battle. V. 34. And there came against Gibeah 10000 chosen men] i.e The lyers in wait that lay in ambush to surprize the city, which when they had done, they pur themselves between the city and the Benjamites Army, that there might be left unto them no place of retreat.

and the battle was fore] Namely, to the Benjamites, who were thin bernmed in on all fides, before and behinde, though for the present they apprhended not their danger till they saw the flame alcend out of the City and the objection of I first dispress of the Benjamites that day account of I mis was the whole number of all that were flain, see that they are the same of the Benjamites that day
account of I mis was the whole number of all that were flain, the same of the same of the same of the Benjamites that day account of the same of which afterwards are more particularly specified, namely 18000 in the battle, v. 44. 5000 which they gleaned in the high-wates, when as the army was flaughtred, routed, & put to flight, v.45. and 2000 which they purfued unto Gidom and flew there. Befides which, there remaineth 100 to make up the number of 16700, fpoken of v. 25. which are not here expressed but were (it may feem very probable) flain in the two former battles.

V.36. For the men of Ifrael gave place ] Having in a general manner related the Benjamites defeat and the Itraelites victorie, he doth now in the following verfes describe the manner and circumstances of it.

V.37. the men of Ifrael gave place] i.e. Fainedly fled.
and the lyers in waits drew themselves along] Or, made along found with the trumpets, To wit, out of the places where they had lyers in ambush.

V. 38, there was appointed a fign] Namely , between the lyers in wait, and that part of the army which were in the fight, that they flould make a fland, and turn upon the enemy, when they saw the slame alcending out of the City.

V. 40. the Benjamites looked behinde them] Namely, being amazed to fee the fleeing Ifraelites upon a fudden to make a stand and turning upon them to renew the fight, they stood at a gaze, and fo looking back they perceived that their city was taken and fet on fire, and fo that evil was come upon them, being on all fides invironed by their enemies, and no place left unto them for a safe rerteat; and therefore that they were all utterly loft without any hope of escaping.

V. 41. the way of the wildernesses i.e. That leadeth to the the battle overtook them ] i.e. The main battle, or the chief strength of the Army, which for this purpose had placed them-Celves ar Baal-ramar and them which came out of the Gities \ i.e. That part of the Army which had lyen in ambush, and were now come out to charge them in the rear. they deftroyed in the middeft of them] i.e. Having enclosed them round about on every fide, they flew them.

V. 43. with ease Or, from Menuchah.

V. 44. Min case | Or, from Menutian.
V. 44. And there fell | To wir, in the battel.
V. 45. mno the rock Rimmor | i.e. A city lying upon a rock between Bethel and Gibeah, on the South-welt of Benjamia. and they gleaned ] i.e. They flew here and there as they could meet with them, cutting them clean off, as the ears of corne are gleaned after the harvest, or the grapes after the vintage.

and pursued hard after them ] As it were close at the heel, not giving them any scope rest or respite.

V. A6. So that all that fell that day of Benjamin were 25000. men] Where he expresseth only the grand and round number, leaving out the hundred, mentioned v. 25, as it is usual in the Scripture. See a Sam. 5.5. And also the remainder of the 26700. mentioned v. 15. which were flain at other times. See the note on chap. 1 1. ver. 26.

V. 48. and the men of Ifrael turned again ie. Not fatisfied with the flaughter of the men of Gibeah, and all other the Benjamites that came to fight in their defence, they fall upon all other cities of that tribe, because they likewise had fent aids to this war, and flew man, woman and child, and the very beafts, the which they did(as some think,) because for their abominable wickednesse in protecting those that had committed this horrible crime, they had anathematiz'd and devoted them to utter destruction, which was the case of Jericho and Hazor, and of others who did fet up idolatry in the land, Deut. 13.15.16. But this cannot probably be thought to be the caufe, feeing if all had been devoted to a total ruine; they neither would nor could upon fecond thoughts have spared the 6 o, at Rimmon, nor yet afterwards have repented of what they had done. And therefore it is rather to be thought, that what they did, it was out of the heat and fury of war, unto which they were incenfed and enraged, not only by the Benjamites horrible wickednesse, in patronizing and protecting such a shamelesse villany, but because they had suffered in a just cause so great a flaughther of 40000, of their men.

CHAP. XXI.

V.1. Now the men of Ifrael had fworn in Mizzehl To wit, when the whole people entred into a folemn covenant there, that they would make war against the Benjamites, if they would not let justice proceed against the men of Gibeah.

There shall not any of us give his daughter unto Benjamin to wife? ie. Shall hold no communion with any of that tribe, especially in point of marriage, but they shal be unto us as Gentiles and Heathens, which oath implyeth two things, first, a supposal that fome of the Benjamites might out-live the war, escaping by flight or otherwise; and secondly, that it might so come to passe, that there would not so many of the women and semale sex escape the fword, as might be a number sufficient to be wives unto the men that flould remain: For otherwife, if they had women enough of their own tribe furriving, they flould not have needed to have their want of wives supplyed from other tribes, seeing they might have enough of their own, with which they might marry;and withall, it plainly expresseth a full determination, confirmed by a folemn oath, that, if those that survived of the men were brought to this exigent and extreamity, that is, if they wanted wives, and had none of their own to make a fupply, that they would not any of them give their daughters unto them in marriage: Howbeit it is very like that in this rash and inconsiderate oath, which in fudden paffion and displeasure they made one with another, that they did not fo much as think of these things, nor of divers other mischiefs and inconveniencies which things, nor of divers other mitteners and inconveniences which they mult necessarily united by observing its as that, contrary to Gods revealed will, it would extinguish and quite root out one of the 12, tribes of litrael, and make void Jacobs prophetical bleffing in this respect; for if these that survived had no wives to increase posterity, this tribe could continue no longer than they lived : For if they had none of their own, nor could have they lived: For if they had none of their own, nor come nat-any from other tribes, then either they mult live fingle and not any from other tribes, then either they mult live fingle and not marry at all, or at leaft, mult of needing marry with heathers marry at all, or at leaft, mult of needing marry with heathers LLL a And their posterity. But as the oath it felf was rash and inconsiderate, fo the performance & execution of it was most barbarous and bloody, feeing in their heat and fury they fought to destroy the whole tribe, not only the men that came out in battle against them, but those also that afterwards they found in their Cities, among which, it may well be prefumed, there were many that were not accessary to the foul fact of the men of Gibeat, 8; not them alone, but even the women, virgins, and little children, who were altogether innocent; neither did any escape their bloody rage, except the 600 men which fled unto the rockP.im-mon, and by Gods special providence were there preserved against their wils . All which out-rage was disguised under the colour of a religious oath, which they had taken out of their blinde zeal and funerstitions ignorance

And all the people came to the bonfe of God] i.e. being now in their cold blood, and having learned by lamentable experience in what straits they were, and into what a labyrinth of mileries and mischiefs they had brought themselves, being necessitated cither to violate their solemn oath,or to dismember their body politick, by cutting off one of their tribes, they affemble themfelves at the house of God in Shiloh (where the tabernacle now was, and in the ark, the vilible fign of Gods prefence) to advite one with another, but principally to conful and ask counfel of God, how they might winde themselves out of these difficulties, in which they had involved themselves by their raffic neffe and rage, whereof they now feriously repented, and to finde out fome way whereby they might preferve this tribe nade out tome way warreby they might preferve this tribe from utter extingation, by providing them wives; and withall might not make themfelves guilty of the violation of their oath. Now all this difficulty did arise from their groffe ignorance in those dark times; for they had no other cause to perplex themfelves about their oath, but to ftop the out-cry of a superflitious conscience, seeing their oath being wicked, & not binding them to do that which now they acknowledged to be evil and unlawful, they were not bound at all to keep it, but having unlawfully made it, they might (when they knew it) lawfully break it or made it, they might where they stown by January was a type celle they should make themselves guilty of a double sin, and the latter greater than the former; the one rashly to take such an oath the other advisedly to keep it, when it appeared to be finful. But thus when men fwarve from the rule of Gods word, they run out of one wickednesse into another, and using their shifts and shuffles to extricate themselves, they fink into this whir-pool of wickednesse deeper and deeper. Yet in these dark and superflitious times they had thus much light remaining, that it was unlawful for children to marry without the consent of their parents, feeing otherwise this scruple might have been removed; for though they could not give their confent by reason of their oath, yet their daughters, if they so pleased, might have married without it, and it is probable, that many of them would have done it, because hereby they might have made themselves mistresses of such inheritances as, being very great, were to be divided among fo few, feeing none of the other tribes might share with them.

V. 3. why is this come to passe in Israel? Which is not propounded as a question to be resolved, but as an expossulation or complaint of their present conditition which was to be pityor compaint of their present conduttion which was to be pity-ed, like that Is 6:17 O Lord, why haft thou made us to erre from thy waies, and hardued our beart from thy fear? As if they had said, how comes it to passe (O Lord) that thou hast thus given us up to be fo transported by our rage and passion, as to do such things, as tend fo much to thy diffeonour and our own difcomfort, namely, the cutting off one of our tribes, and the cauteleffe fhedding of fo much innocent blood,

V. 4. And built there an altar] Which (as fome conceive) was erected for a memorial to testifie their thankfulnesse for was erected for a memorial to telline their thanktulnelle for their victory, because it was unlawful to have any more altars than one only for facrifices, Joth, 2211. But to erect an altar for this use of thankfgiving for their victory, was not futable to the present occasion, they now coming as mourners to lament the evil fruits that came of it, namely, the destruction of one of their tribes. And besides, this conceit is plainly consuted in the very next words, which expresse the use for which it was erected,namely,to offer upon it burnt-offerings and peace offerings. And therfore the better to clear this point, we are to know, that God appointed but one altar in ordinary lufe for facrifices, as there was also to be but one tabernacle, and one temple, as types of our onely Saviour Jefus Chrift, Heb. 13.10,11. And therefore the two tribes and an half were thought to have finned when they built another for this ordinary ufe, Jofh. 2 2. Er. But upon extraordinary and necessary occasions, God allowed his people to build more than one altar in number, though they were all one in kinde, both in respect of matter and forme, fpecially when it was done by holy men, and of prophetical fpirits, and without danger of idolatry; yet with this difference, that the one was to be fixed and permanent, the other to fland only fo long as the necessarie occasion continued. And thus we read Tabernacle by Gods special command, Deur. 27. 8. Now other virgins which were in that city besides these four hunthe occasion of fetting up this altar, where they were so neer the dred. other in the Tabernacle, was the fame with that of Solomons; namely, because there were so many Sacrifices to be offered by that great affembly, that one altar was not sufficient for

V. 5. For they had made a great oath] So called in respect both of the great multitude by whom it was generally taken and the great folemnity observed in the taking of it, and it ters. may be alfo, because there was some such great and bitter execration added to ratific and confirme it, as was added to the other outh of nor giving their daughters to be wives to the oracromotion group, then the analysis to be write to the Benjimites, vert. 18.

concenting him that came not op) Which cannot be underflood of every particular perion, for fo the whole land though have been left empire and open to all interfloors of bordering ententies, but of every city and town, which did not fend fome to affift in this expedition.

to the Lord to Mizpeh] See chap. 20.1.
be shall surely be put to death] The which outh was in it self lawful, and the punishment just which was threatned against the offenders, for it was a lawful war, proclaimed, for the inflicting of deserved punishment upon the gricvous offenders; and seeing at this time there was no Judge or supream Magifrate to punish fin, the government was now in the body of the people and common-wealth. In which they might juftly baving the power in their hands, make ordinances, and punish their and greffors. And particularly al those who in a common cause con-cerning the publick good, had not given their affiltance when it was required, and lo, as much as in them lay, did betray the common wealth; and also by their neutrality they shewed, that they favoured the cause of the offenders, seeing they would not give affiftance to bring them to condigne punishment. Besides, they by their example raught others to contemn publick edicts, and fo did weaken authority and government of the common-wealth, and introduce a pernicious Anarchie.

V. 6. For Benjamia their brother] All the Itraclites were brethren, because they were in covenant with God their Father, and likewile were all descended from Israel, who was their common father, and were all called after his name.

there is one tribe cut off ] i.e. In danger to be cut off, if Some present course be not taken to preserve it. Others read it thus, should we this day cut off a tribe of Ifrael?

V. 7. wives for them that remain ] That is, the fix hundred men, that so by them the tribe may be preserved from perithing.

V. 8. There came none to the camp from Jabez Gilead] A city lying beyond Jordan towards the East, in the tribe of Macity lying beyond Jordan towards the East, in the tribe of Macity lying beyond Jordan towards the Complareth; which was afternaffeh and neer unto the lake Genefareth; which was afterwards befeiged by the Ammonites and refcued by Saul,

V. 10. with the women and children They had a just cause, but spoiled it in the handling, doing execution in a most cruel and unjust manner upon the women and innocent children. For they were not summoned to this service, nor was it so much as expected from them that they should come to the affembly, having no abilities in them to affift in the caufe, and yet thefe innocents muft fare no better then the offenders; Neither was inaocents must are no octret then the originales. Neither was this ourrage committed in the heat of war, but when they found no refiliance, and after they had lately offended in the fame kind against the Benjamites, yea, and that in the very time when they law their fin and mourned for it Neither will this excule their bloody fact, that the Midianitish women were shin of solemnizing it, in dancing and reveiling, which should racue neur nouvey ract, trate me menantum women were talin of nontumezing it, in taking an extraining with the by Moles command, as well as the men, feeing they were longless guilty than thefe, in that fin which was the cause of facrifices, and fuch like religious exercises. But feeing characteristics are the second of facrifices, and fuch like religious exercises. But feeing characteristics are the second of facrifices and fuch like religious exercises. no sene gamey to an user, in that in which was the calle of the war, Numb. 31. 16. nor that they were, as exercible, devoced to defirudion, like Jericho and the inhabitants of it, for then they could not lawfully have referred the four hundred virgins to be wives for the Benjamites.

sefful utterly defirey every male ] Leaft (as fome conceive) when they came to age, they should revenge the death of their parents for which (me thinks) there was but little cause of sear feeing it was not likely, that the children of one city should take revenge of the whole nation, whose common cause this was ; and therefore (for ought I know) this may go in among the other acts of their unjuffice and cruelty, Ezek. 18, 20. Neither will it excuse their fact, that Moles commanded the like excution to be done upon the male children of the Midiapites ; seeing they were professed enemies to Gods people, and nuce, jeeing usey were protested enemies to Good seepers, and interfore he knought it jult and fit, to abate and weaken their firength by cutting off their posterity, Numbo 31.17.

and every woman that hath lies by man 1 Heb. knoweth the lying by man. Referving onely virgins for the Ben-four hundred young virgins] Heb. young women virgins, Which were marriagable brought them to the camp] i.e. Having killed all the other

And another was fer upon mount Eball, befides that in the | women that had lien by man, and (it is likely) with them many to Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan ] For Jabez-Gilead properly was not in the land of Canaan, lying beyond Jordan, but that land onely which did lye within it.

V. 14. and they gave them wives ---- of the women of Fabet Gilead ] Supposing that herein they had not violated their oath, because they had not given them their own daugh-and yet so they sufficed them not ] Heb, found they nothing for them. i.e. They were notenough to fit the number of the Benjamites to have every man his wife, and fo to fatisfie their defire. The like phrase is used, Numb. 1 1.23. Josh. 7, 16.

V. 15. And the people repented them for Benjamin | i.e. Both because they had in the heat and fury of war, flain their brebecause they had in the heat and tury of war, flam their bre-thren with lo great allaughter; and also more especially, because they had killed so many of their virgins, that there were not enough left for the men that remained, and they knew not now how to help it, by making a supply of those that were wanting, because that the Lord had made a breach] i.e. Because he had fo ordered it by his providence, that for the just punishment of their fin, fuch a fearful destruction should be brought upon them, by the hands of the other tribes, as the executioners of them, by the hands of the other tribs, a sthe executioners of his righteous judgments, whereby the body of their politic and flate had received a dangerous maine, by having one of its members very new cut of flown it.

V. 16. for writes for them that remain it.

V. 19. there may be an inheritance for them that be ejisted of V. 19. there may be an inheritance for them that be ejisted of Benjamin] i.e. Benjamin must be preserved to have the twelfth portion in the inheritance of Jacob, in the time of Johna, allotted unto them, feeing it is unlawful to alienate any part of it to another tribe. And therfore it being fo large, and they fo few in number to inherit it, there is the more need, that all of them should have wives to multiply their tribe, that they may enjoy their inheritance.

V. 18. Howbeit we may not give them wives, for the children of Israelhave sworn It was a rash and unlawfull oath, which did not binde them to that which was evill, only it was a bond to a blinde and superflitious conscience : For they must either give them wives, or they must marry strangers, which was ex-presly contrary to Gods law, unlesse they became Proselytes, or elle the tribe must necessarily be extirpated for want of poste[aying, carfed be he] i.e. They backed their oath with a bitter imprecation or execration, withing fome great mitchief or evill to befall him that did violate and break it.

V. 19. Behold, there is a feaft of the Lord in Shiloh. What this feaft was Expositors diversly conjecture. Some think that it was a civil or town-feaft, kept yearly at Shiloh, and that the It was a civil or town-teath, kept yearly at onion, and that the rather, because they used as a part of the solemning of it, dancing, piping, or whiftling, as the word may indifferently signific, I King 1.40, Plal.87.7. Others think that it was a religious feast, which is very probable, because it is called a feast of the Lord, and was also kept at Shiloh, where the Tabernacle now was placed; and that it was most likely to be the feast of Tabernacles : neither could it be the feaft of the Paffcover, because that was in the beginning of the Spring before their vines bore their leaves, or yeelded any conveniency for these lyers in wait, to hide themselves behind them in the vineyards: Howforver, though it were a feast of the lord, yet they suppose that it was much abused and prophaned, seeing they spent the time ty binds us to take things which are doubtfull in the belt fenfe; and feeing dancing and musick were in the times under the and feeing dancing and mutick were in the times under the law, ufed as a part of their feaflivall foleminities, to exprefie their joy, and rejoyeing in praifing of God for his special favors, as we fee in the examples of Miriam, Deborah, Barack, and David, I see no reason why we should not judge this dancing and musick here mentioned, to have been of this nature, a religious act, and religiously performed in their due time and place, and fo not hindring Gods publique fervice in the Sanctuarie : And to this I rather incline, because it is noted, that this dancing by them used, was fober and modest, and acted only by the Virgins among themselves, and not like the mixt dancing of our dayes between men and women, which in all ages of the Church, bath been censured and condemned as wanton and lascivious, Exod. 15.20. E.11.34.1 Sam. 18.26. & 2 Sam. 6.14.

V. 21. and catch you every man his wife] They were not allowed to take any more than every man his wife, which sheweth, that though polygamy was practifed by fome, yet it was not approved in those times: And yet there was then more than ordinary cause for the allowing of it to these Benjamites, to increase and multiply their tribe which was now teduced to fuch a fmall number, and to build up their cities now

Chap.i. mined, and to replenify their inheritances, that did now almost | brethren, that you may free us from that faultineffe and pulllye waste and destitute of Inhabitants : Now whereas the Elders in a common counfell do not only allow this violent rape. at the Benjamites fuite, but also plot and contrive it for them this fheweth (if at leaft they had not some speciall dispensation this sheweth (if at least they had not some speciall dispendation from God in respect of the present necessity, to give this coun-fel and direction) the great ignorance and superstition of those times, in that they dispended rather with the violent rape of wives without confent either of parents or parties, than gainft your wils; and therefore you are free from the breach of they would give them their daughters, and thereby violate a rafh and unlawfull oath : Though indeed they did not hereby make themselves lesse guilty and faulty, but added, to their perjury, the fin of rape fraud, and deceit, feeing they might much them odious to the parents of the virgins, and fo leffe able to better have given them their daughters, acknowledging their pacific and appeale them. fin in making fuch a rash oath, and repenting of it, then under the priviledg of their power and authority, to appoint and allow them to take them themselves: But all this they did to evidence of truth and right reason.

V. 22. be favourable unto them ] Or, gratifie us in them. for our fakes | i.e. Out of the love that you bear unto us your | 6, & 18.1. & 19.1.

which otherwife will lye upon us; feeing we have brought this necessity upon them, by destroying their women, wives, and virgins, and not referving a sufficient number for them in the war against Jabez Gilead.

For ye did not give them at this time] i.e. You did not volunarily give your daughters unto them, but they by force have taken them away without your knowledg or confent, yea ayour oath : And so indeed they were, but not they innocent who used this plea, seeing they had contrived and appointed this rape: But this they conceal, which would but have made

V. 24. And the children of Ifrael departed thence at that time every man to his tribe] i.e. They went in Troops to the tribe of low them to take them themselves: But all this they did to which they were; and coming thither, they paned company, so flence the cry of a superstitious conscience, which usually is and went severally to their families from which they were Conner fatisfied by idle conceits of mens own brains, then by the descended, and then particularly every man to his own

V. 25. In those dayes there was no King in Ifrael ] Sec ch. 17.

alouide alouale alouale alouale alouale in alouale alouale alouale alouale alouale alouale alouale alouale alouale

ANNOTATIONS

on the Book of Ruth.

The Argument.

THis Scripture is intituled, The Book of Ruth, because she is the chief subject of this Story, and her Person and Part principally acted in it. The main scope at which it aimeth, is to continue and declare the Genealogie of our Saviour Christ; and that he descended of Boaz a Jew, and of Ruth a Moabitish Gentile, to hew that he should bring Salvation to all of every Nation, and that there should be no difference or respect Act. 10. of persons between one and another; but in every Nation, he that seareth God and worketh righteous-3435. neffe, should be accepted o fhim. For the bringing of this to paffe, there are many paffages of Gods providence worthy observation, which are the sum and substance of this whole History: First, a Famine is sent by God mpor the whole Land of Hracl, as it is likely in the time of that greeous oppression made the Tyramy of the Midiantics; who spating and massing all the Country so many years together, brought this i mms, Which enspired Ellimentech and Naomi with their trop long, Malton and Chillon, to see for spirit some one to the Land. Moab; Where sojourning a long time, they took unto them wives of the daughters of Moab, because (as it is probable) they could get none of their own Countrey and Tribe: There Elimelech and both his fores die, and Naomi deprived of the comfort of her busband and sons, hearing that God had visited his people with plenty, resolveth to return: and when Ruth could not be perswaded to leave her, as dearly loving her Person and Religion, the accompanieth her into her Countrey. There they live in a poor condition; and to relieve their mants, Ruth is fain to glean after the Reapers : and not knowing What field to make choice of, the is by Gods providence directed to follow Boat his fervants; upon which occasion, he taking notice of her, her singular vertue, and vidirected to follow Book in servants, input mound weapon, we make a way in symmetry in the following the mouther hashing growth by degrees into further adjustantance; till a laft, concluding the match, they were married together, and bleffed with a fon called Obed, who was one of the Progenitors of J.E.Su. Mac. 1.5. CHRIST. And thus, through Gods wife providence, Ruth's poverty is made a step and passage to her highest preferment, not only to her marriage With rich Boaz, but also to be a great Grand-mother to the Saviour of the World; even as formerly Joseph, by his imprisonment, became Governour of Egypt, and a preserver of his Father and all his family.

CHAP. I.

one to gudges ruled ] Heb. in the day of inging rad, man.
i.e. When the ladges were extraord dirarily raided by God in fich times as less this people were in Gome great diltreffer for their fins, too deliver them from their less than the control of the chemies, to reflore his religion corrupted by them to its puriign ifieth the house of bread, and was given to this city in reay, and to govern his people in righteous field and peace. See | specified of the great plenty of food that was in it by reason of the the Preface before the Book of Judges : Now of which of the Judges this is here to be meant, it is uncertain. Some of the feth God to punish the fins of the people, it is easie with him learned, by comparing the end of this book with Matth. 1. 5. to bring a famine into this house of bread, Deut. 28, 23, 24, do probably conjecture, that the things related in this ftory, were done in the dayes of Deborah and Barak, others refer them to the times of other of the Judges, and among these most probably to the dayes of Gideon, when there was a great famine in the land, by reason of the oppressions of the Midianites, who by their in-roads spoiled all the Country: But feeing there is no certainty hereof in respect of the great variety of opinions, and no fure ground for any of them, it is best to be filent when the Holy Ghost speaketh nor, and to strike failes, and cast anchor when the spirit bloweth not, lest by the contrary blafts of mens conceits, we fall upon the rocks of er-there was a famine in the land ] i. c. In the land of Canaan. See Judg. 6.4,6.

of Bethlehem-Fudah | So called to diffinguish it from another Bethlehem in the tribe of Zabulon, Jofh. 19 .: 5. The name fertility of the country round about it : And yet when it plea-Pfal. 107.34.

to fojourn in the Country of Moab ] i. e. To live there for a time as flyangers, because there was plenty of bread, to relieve himfelf and his family.

of Moab | Lying eaftward from Canaan beyond Jordan, being much champion and full of Plaines, V. 2. And the name of the man ] Or, of this man, was Elimelech, Signifying God my King, and the name of his wife Naomi, that is, sweet and pleasant, or my sweet and pleasant, Epbrathites of Bethlehem Judah ] i. e. Born at Bethlehem Judah, which formerly was called Ephrath, and the Country adjoyning to it, Gen. 35.19. or in the region of Ephrath, in which Bethlehem was scituate. So Micha 5. 2. Matth. 2. 6. to diffinguish them from those of the tribe of Ephraim , who were likewife called Ephrathites, 1 King, 11, 26.

V. 3. Namies bushand dyed, and she was left. To wit, 2 Widow in a thrange and beathenish country; which grievous affliction it pleafed God to fend upon her to exercise her faith and patience. V. 4. The name of the one was Orpah] Which was Chilions and the name of the other Rub] i.e. The wife of Mahlon. See ch. 4.10. Some think that thele Ifraelites finned in marrying wives of an idolatrous nation, Ezr. 6.1. Nehem. 13.23. But it was lawfull to marry fuch, if they were converted to the true religion, as it may be these were, at least Ruth. v. 16. & ch. 2.12. or if they were not at the first time of their marriage, yet it was more excusable in them than in the Ifraelites that lived in their own country, feeing they were necessitated to have these or none, there being none with them of their own nation in this Country, in which they had lived for a long time, and in this Country. In which they hold continue there: But how foetwer this came to paffe by Gods special providence, who would have Ruth, as alo Raba, types of the calling of the Gentiles, feeing he would have Christ to defend of them, who was to be the Saviour both of Jews and Gentiles. Yea, to de-feendof Rabab an barlot, and of Pharez, begotten incelluously in an high degree, to typifie that he should save sinners of all sorts, and that his blood should wash away all sins, and even those of the deepest die, Ifa. 1.18.

V. 5. and the woman was left of her two fons and her husband]
i.e. In a most desolate and disconsolate condition, herest of her chiefest and choicest friends, and so left (as we say) to the wide world : In all which afflictions God supported her, and left her as a pattern of faith and patience to all fucceeding

V. 6. how the Lord had wifited his people ] i.e. In mercy and bounty had looked upon them in their penury and want, and had fent again plenty into the land: For thus this phrase is used, to fignifie Gods fulfilling his Word, either in his promises of to ugnine Gods tulning nis word, either in his promites of good, or his threanings of evill. S.c. Gen. 21. 1, Luk. 1.68. Job 3.1.5. Jer. 1.4.10. in giving them bread] i.e. Necessary food; and had ceased the

V. 7. and they went on the way to return ] i.e. Naomie accompanied with her two daughters in-law; for the only could be faid to return, who had formerly dwelt in Judah, and not they who had never been there before. So in the former verse. And thus also we are to understand it, ver. 10. and ch.

Go and return each to her mothers honfe] This she might speak either feriously, because the out of her love towards them was loth to bring them into an afflicted condition, by living with ber, who was now brought to extream poverty; or because she would try the truth and constancy of their affection towards ber : And the bids them return to their mothers houses, either because their fathers were dead, or because the mothers had a more speciall interest in respect of habitation or tender affection, than the fathers; or the speaketh comparatively, the more firongly to perswade them, as though she should have faid, you have better reason to return to your own mothers , than to go on with me to a place where you are but strangers, who am only a mother in law, lincked unto you in the bond of alliance, which is now broken off and diffolved by the death of your husbands, and not of blood and confaaguinity.

as you have dealt with the dead ] i.e. With your two husbands . my sons, whilest they and you lived together.
V. 9. The Lord grant that you may finderest i.e. A setled abode, with all comfort and content, in the house of those who are to be your husbands. Soch. 3.1. then fhe kiffed them ] The usuall ceremony between friends, both in those, and in our own dayes, when they take their leave one of another. See Gen. 19. v. 11. V. 10. Surely we will return with thee] i. e. In thy returning to thy people, we will accompany thee, and fare with them as thou

V. 11. are there any more fons in my womb, that they may be your busbands According to the law, Deut. 25. 5,6. which required that the brother dying without iffue, his widow should not marry to a stranger , but his brother should take her to wife, and should raise up feed to his deccased brother, to inherit his inheritance, that his name might not be put out of they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working the work of the with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the working they will be a supplied to the working the working they will be a supplied to the working the working they will be a supplied to the working the working they will be a supplied to the working they will be a supplied to the working they will be a supplied to the working the working the working they will be a supplied to the working the acquainted, either by Naomi, or by their husbands. So Gen. dition, (for the word here uled, is of the forminine gender) is 38. 11,14.

V. 12. Turn again my daughters ] i.e. You who were my fons wives, and to my daughters-in-law, but as neer and dear unto me, in respect of my tender affection and your own worth and deferts, as if you were my own naturall daugh-

if I should have an husband ] Or, if I were with an bus-

V. 13. would ye tarry for them] Heb. bope. Where the interrogation hath the force of a ftrong denial, as though the had faid, certainly you would not hope, or fray for them to be your husbands, when they were grown to mature age.

for it grieveth me much for your fakes ]i.e. Your departure from me is more grievous to me then to your felves. Heb, is much me is more graevous to me then to your leives, racus is much more bitter to me than unto you, being out of hope of having the comfort of an husband or children, as you may; or, I am more grieved for these afflictions that have befallen us for your fakes, then for mine own; because I am better acquainted with them by reason of my age and experience, and so more able to bear them than you; and yet I indure them with pa-tience because the Lord hath sent them; or I have, much bitterneffe, because I have this heavy, yet necessary cause, of parting with you whom I fo love, and who fo love me.

that the band of the Lord is gone out againft me] i.e. That God hath inflicted on me this sharp correction, to whose pleasure, neverthelesse, I do willingly submit, as you also eught to

V. 14. and Orpab kiffed her mother ] Taking a finall farewell of her.

But Ruth clave unto her | i.e. Would by no means be perfwaded to leave her, and return with her fifter.

1 waaca to leave ner, and return with her fifter. V. 15. her gods] i.e. Chemoth, and the Mozbitish Idols whom she served. See Judg. 11.14. return than after thy fifter in law.] Though no doubt she was much affected and troubled to think of the miseries unto which Ruth would be exposed, by living with her, a poor desolate disconsolate widdow; yet it cannot reasonably be imagined. that Naomi, being a vertuous and religious matrone, should to far forget her felf, as cordially to periwade her dear daughter in law, proufly devoted to the fervice of the only true God, to return into her idolatrons Country, and there to ferve Idols, or at least, expose her self to the danger of being tainted and corrupted with their idolatry; and contrary to Moses choice, to neglect the great recompence of that reward in heaven, that the might than afflictions with the people of God, and imbrace this present world, and the pleasures of sin, which last but for a feafon, Heb. 11.25. And therefore no question the speaks this, not with an intention to perswade her to follow Orpahs example, (yearather the makes it odious unto her, by telling her that the was gone back to her idolatrous people, and to worship their gods) but she doth it to try her faith, and her love to the true religion, and also to her felf. So Josh. chap.

V. 16. Intreat me not to leave thee ] Or, be not againft me. Heb. do crosse, and in an hossile manner oppole me. i.e. Cease any further to diffwade me from going with thee: For fo this phrase is used, 1 Sam. 22. 17. and 2 Sam. 1. 15. and Exed. 5. 2.

Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God ] Here she sheweth her true conversion from idolatry, to the worship of the true God, and from her fociety with idolaters, to the communion of Gods people.

V. 17. the Lord do so to me and more also Which was a form V. 1.7. the Lord do fo to me discovering who would be done on the commonly used in the disayes, and wong after, both among Gods people, and heathens also, 1 Sam. 3.17. & 25.22. 2 Sam. 3. 9.35. 1 King. 2.23. & 19.3. In which they imprecated some great will to be fall them, if they did otherwise them they fad at: The which evill is suppressed and kept to themment uny sense: 1 nor wind events insperience and kept to utermi-felves, being for fearfull that they were loth for much as to name it; or elfe left to Gods just judgment, to be inflicted as the pleafed; as though fine had faid, the Lord thus and thus punish me, year, multiply his plagues and judgments upon me, according to my demerits, as himfelf pleafeth, if I intend otherwife then I fay and profesie.

if ought but death part thee and me ] Or, certainly death only

V. 18. that fhe was fledfastly minded ] Heb. strengthened her felf.

V. 19. that all the City was moved about them ] When they heard and were eye-witnesses of her great affliction; in that going out from them in a good estate, accompanied with her husband and two fons, the was now returned in a poor condition, without husband or childe, and only a young diffressed widdow hanging upon her.

and they faid is this Naomi?] i.e. When all flocked about her to gaze upon her, as taking pity and compassion on her misery, they with great wonderment cryed out, and especially the woChap.ij. this Naomi 2 as if they had faid, could one think, that had | i.e. Who accompanied Naomi in her return. So chao.

known her in her prosperity, that this poor creature, whom we 7. 10. now behold, were the same woman?

V. 20. Call me not Naomi | That is , pleafant and delectcall me Marab 7 i. c. Bitter.

For the Almighty bath dealt very bitterly with mel To wit, in depriving me of my husband and my two fons, and bringing me into a poor and afflicted condition: The which she doth fpeak (as we may probably think, in respect of her pity and patience) not in a way of murmuring against God (though Gods dearest children in their extream afflictions too often break out into impatiency and passion, as we see in Jobs example) but rather as one sensible of Gods heavy hand lying upon her, and bemoaning her felf in this fad condition. bemoaning her left in this 1 d condition.

V. 2.1. I went out full, and the Lord bath brought me home agein empty.] i.e. When I left the Country, I was in a full and defirable condition, having an husband, two fons, and fufficient means to maintain me in a ftrange Country, where there was plenty to be had for my money, though I could not with any conveniency continue in my own country, by reason of the great dearth and famine : But now at my returning home, I am deprived of all these comforts, and exposed to want and why call you me N somi?] Where the interrogation hath in it the force of a strong distination, as though she had said, call me not (I befeech you) by a name fo unfuitable to my condition, which doth but put me in mind of my former happinesse and which doth but put me in mind of my former happing and prefent milery, and fo tendeth to aggravate my grief. feing the Lord bath relified againf me] i.e. Declared his just displeasure, and convinced me of my fins, by laying on me thele dipleature, and convinced me or my int, op 124mg on me tates hap affilictions; they being the ordinary evidences of Gods displeasure for the fins of his people. So Job 10.17. & 13.16.8 in 6.8 Mal. 3, 5. Jam. 5.3. And this phrase is metaphoricall, borrowed from advertaires in fuits of Law, who impleading the defendant or guilty person, do bring witnesses to testific against him, that he may be condemned and brought to punishment; as appeareth, by comparing this place with Deut. ch. 19. 16: V. 22. So Naomi returned and Ruth. See v.7.10.

v. 22. 30 Namu resurreca ana Kasto, 3 oce v.7. 10. in the beginning of barley-barveft.] Which in Canaan used to be in the moneth Nisan, with us, answering to part of March and part of April, Levit. 23. 10. And this is here added, as an Introduction to the flory in the next chapter.

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. And Naomi had a kinfman of ber husbands] i. e. Neer unto him in blood and confanguinity. See Prov. 7. 4. & ch. 3. 2. of the family of Elimelech] Naomies husband. Some think his Nephew, being the fon of Salmon, Elimelech his bro-

V. 2. and glean ears of corn] Which by the law was permitted to the poor and strangers (and Ruth had both these qualifications) to be gathered for their relief after the reapers, Lev.

19.9. & 23.12. & Deut. 24.19,20.
in whose fight I shall find grace] i.e. Who will so much favour me, as togive me leave; whereby the expresseth her modelty and humility, in that the would not make use of that benefit allowed by the law, without the leave and liking of the owners. So v. 7. if at leaft, the same law which gave this liberty to the poor to enjoy this benefit, did not allow the owners to make choice of what poor they pleased; and so consequently did require of them, that they should not gather or glean, unthat together in the the good will of the owner.

V. 3. And her hap was to light on a part of the field belonging so Bost Heb. her hap happened, i.e. Not purposely intending it, as being utterly ignorant that it belonged to Boaz; yet it happened that the light upon that field rather than any other, and making fuit to the over-feer of the reapers, that the might glean after them, obtained her desire, v. 7. But though this were hap in respect of Ruth, yet it was thus ordered by the fecret working of Gods providence, to make way for her marriage to Boaz, Luk. 10. 3 1.

unto Boar | Called Booz, Matth. 1.5.

V. 4. And behold] An adverb of attention, fliring men up to observe carefully some notable passage of Gods provi-

the Lord be with you ] i. e. Bleffe and profper you, and your

the Lord blesse thee] i.e Multiply his blessings upon thee. V. 5. whole damosel is this?] Observing by her habite that the was not a virgin who was an ordinary inhabitant of the City, but a strange woman, who either was or had been married, he demandeth what she was, and to whom she did be-

V. 6. It is the Moabitish Damosel, that came back with Nasmi]

7. 10.
V. 7. And see [aid] Namely to me that is, she did not boldly prelie upon us, but first did modestly ask me leave, until now that she earned a little in the bouse.

and continued even from the morning till now ] i.e. She hath ever fince the came, diligently followed her bufinefic, till the extream heat of the day hath enforced her, together with the reft of the labourers, to retire her felf.

that she tarried a little in the house ] i.e. In the tent appointed for this purpole, either for shade in the heat, or for a little rest and repole, the better to fit her felf to take pains in the remainder of the day.

V. 8. hearest thou not my daughter] Which is a kind interrogation sweetned with loving humanity, as though he had faid, I know thou hearest me, but I desire that thou shouldest heedfully observe my words, and make use of that kind offer which go not to glean in another field] i.e. Take no surther care, nor trouble thy felf to find out another field to glean in, but continue here still to the end of harvest.

I shall tender unto thee, Gen. 13.9.

but abide fast by my maidens Both for company sake and protection, as being of thy own fex, and under the guard of the men that labour with them in the field : Now these maidens were not gleaners, as Ruth was; but either reapers, or fuch as gathered up the corn, and bound it into sheaves, seeing the gleanings belonged not to the owners, but to the poor and strangers, Lev. 19.9. & 23.22. Deut. 24.10.
V. 9. have not I charged the young men] That is, I have certainly and earneftly charged them. See Judg. 4.6.

that they [hall not touch thee] i.e. Not do thee any wrong in word or deed, Pfal. 105.15. when thou art lathirft go unto the veffels | That were filled with water for the ule of the reapers, which was a great kindnesse in that dry country, where the weather was bot, especially in time of barvest, water very scant, and they thirsty with heat and la-or narvest, water very team, and mey turnly with fleet and an bour, Gen. 26.18,19.

V. 10. Then fire fell on her face, and howed her felf to the ground JOT, towards the ground, as the Hebrew word properly fignifieth, which kind of civill adorations are often mentioned in the Scriptures, Gen. 18.2. & 33. 3.& 42.6. 1 Sam. 25.23.

why have I found grace in thy eyes] Which is not fo much an interrogation, as a speech of admiration; as if the had faid, what a wonder is this, that I being a stranger should finde so much favour from thee! Or, what cause hath moved thee thus to respect me who have deserved no such things at thy that thou fhouldft tate knowledg of me] That is, respect and favour me, as if I were one of thy familiar acquaintance, friends, or kindred.

V. 11. It hash been fully showed me all that thou hast done to the mother in law i.e. How taithfull and loving thou hast been to her, and how piously thou hast carried and demeaned thy felf towards her in her old age.

V. 12. The Lord recompense thy work ] i.e. Thy labour of love, and all the care and pains which thou haft taken in miniftring unto her.

and a full reward be given unto thee] i.e. Let God bountifully. like himfelf, reward out of his free grace, thy love and faith, by which thou haft been moved to leave thy country and all thy friends, and to trust in him, of which all my kindnesse is but a fmall truft.

under whose wings thou art come to trust ] Or, because thou halt come hither to fhade thy felt under his wings. That is, befait come must to induct up ten uncer in wings. Inc. 1904-cause leaving thy own idolatrous country, and adjoyning thy self to Gods Church and people, thou hast trusted only in his providence, and committed thy self to live under his procedion, as the poor, filly, and shiftlesse chicken under the wings of its dam, by which it is sheltred and cherished. So Pfal. 17. 8.

8 91.4. % 36. 7. % 61.4. % 17.1. Matth. 23.37.
V. 13. Let me find favour in thy fight] i.e. Though I be unworthy of the lealt respect which thou haft already shewed me, yet seeing thou art pleased to extend it, out of thy meer grace and goodnesse, continue (I humbly intreat thee) this the and afflicted condition, and haft spoken friendly, or, to the heart of thine hand-maid, that is, curteously and kindly. So

Gen. 34.3. Judg. 19.3.

though I be not like unto one of thy hand-maids I That is, more mean and leffe worthy to be respected than they, 1Sam?

V. 14. At meale time comethou hither, and eat of the bread] His observance of her vertues increaseth his love, and his love her allowance: Before v. 9. he giveth her leave to drink out of his veffels, and now allo to eat of his food and provi-

and dip thy morfell in the vineger ] Or, a kind of fauce made with vineger, wherewith in those countries they that were affliced with heat . were much refreshed. Plinius lib. 22.

chap. 1.

and [be sate besides the reapers] Out of modesty and humility
she did not take, to the full, the benefit which Boaz offered, namely, to eat with the reapers at their table, what she plea-fed, and to dip her bread in their fauce, but fitteth besides them to receive what they could spare, or were pleased to give her, and so maketh her self lesse than their sellow, whom God afterwards advanced to be their mistreffe. So Abigail, I Sam,

25. 43. Luk.1.52. and be reached ber parched corn] i.e. Observing her modesty, he took care to provide for her himself with his own hands, and reached unto her parched corn, which was an usuall food in those countries. See 1 Sam. 17. 17. & 25. 18. 2 Sam.

And fee did eas, and was sufficed and left] Which she reserved and carried home to her poor mother-in-law, v. 18, and this is added to imply Boaz his bounty in providing fo liberally for his fervants and labourers ; and Ruths care and love, which in her own fulneffe, did make her think of her puor mothers wants, and having this opportunity to supply them.

V. 15. Les ber glean among the sheaves, and reproach her not Heb. fhame her not. that is, do not forbid or rebuke her ( and fo make her ashamed, being a modest woman) though she gathereth among the sheaves.

thereth among the theaves.

V. 16. and fo leave them that she may glean them] i.e. That fo she may live by her honest labour, and be encouraged to take pains when she finds and feels the fruit and benefit of

V. 17. and it was about an Ephah of barley ] i.e. Almost one of our bushels. See Exod. 16.36.
V. 18. and she brought forth ] To wit, out of her scrip or

V. 19. that did take knowledg of thee? See v. 14.
V. 20. to the living? i.e. To me and thee.

and to the dead ] i.e. To my husband, and thy father in law; to my fon and thy husband. To both which he hath shewed kindneffe, by honouring their memory, and doing good to us for their fakes, in respect of that kindred that was between him

The man is neer of kin unto us, one of our neer kinfmen] Heb. one that bath right to redcem. That is, one who, according to the law, hath right to redeem lands alienated, fold, or morgaged, and also persons who have fold themselves, Lev. 25:26,47,48. which right belonged to the neerest kinfman, who also ought to marry the widow of his kiniman that is dead, having no iffue to raife up feed unto him that might enjoy his inheritance, and continue his name in Ifrael, Deut. 25.5,6,7. Lev. 25. 25, 26. Mar. 12. 19. the which is thy cafe.

20. MIAT.13.19. the WHICH IS to YEAR.

V. 21. He faid unto me also As though the had faid, he did not only, for the prefent, thus curteoully entertain and use me, but also charged me that I should continue with him to the end of harvest, and go to no other.

that they meet thee not in any other field] Or, fall upon thee. i.e. That others that meet with thee in their fields, do not use thee discourteously and abuse thee, as being a stranger; or, lest Some of Boaz his servants should meet her in another field, and telling it to their mafter, he should take it discourteously, that he having given thee a charge to glean in his field to the end of harvest, thou shouldst leave him, and go to others, and so reject his courtesse and kindnesse.

CHAP. III.

Verf. 1. Shall I not feek reft for thee Jie. Shall I not do my best endeavour to provide for thee a good husband, with whom thou maift live in peace and plenty, and no longer be exposed to poverty and misery, labour, grief, widow-hood, and want of children, which disquiet thy mind; seeing there is now such a fair opportunity offered, if I do not by negligence let it slip: Surely I will not delay to do it, seeing Gods law and my love to thee, and thine to me, bindeth me unto

V. 2. Is not Bosq of our kindred?] i.e. Know affuredly, that he is our neer kiniman, to whom the right of redemption belongeth. See ch. 2.20.

with whose maidens thou wast. ] i. c. When thou didst glean in his fi-ld. ch. 2.22.23.

behold he winnoweth barley That is, observe carefully, that God by his providence, offereth unto thee a fair opportunity of accomplishing thy defire, by coming better acquainted with thee upon this occasion, having a convenient time and fit place

V. 3. wash thy self therefore and annoint thee] i. e. Make thy felf as amiable as thou canit, that thou mailt find favour in his fight, and not only cleanle thy skin from all spots with water, but annoint thy face with oyle, to make thy countenance more cheerfull, as was the manner of those countries, Pfal, 104, 15. and redeem the land. 2 Sam. 14.2. Mat. 6.17.

and our thy rayment upon thee \ i.e. Thy best cloashs. and get thee down to the floore] i.e. As I conceive, not in the spen field, where themselves and their corn should be exposed to all weathers, but in their barns, where they had, as we also have our barn-floores, for threshing, and winnowing; in which also they seasted in time of harvest, and afterwards laid them down to take their reft, as they could best severally fit themselves with convenient places. unto the man] i.e. Boaz, till after his eating and drinking he be gone to his lodging.

V. 4. and thou (balt go in, and uncover his feet] Or, lift up the cloathes that are on his feet.

and lay thee down | Naomi being a vertuous and good woman, her intention, no doubt, was good in this her counfel; and the thing which the laboured to effect was likewife lawfull and juft, namely to have her daughter-in-law married to her husbands next kindred, that he might raite up feed to him, which might continue his name in Ifrael, and enjoy his inheritance. See Annot, on ch. 2. v. 20. But yet the means (at leaft feemingly and under fevere cenfure) were somewhat immodest, and not altogether free from scandall and the danger of ill report: Yet Naomi may thus far be excused, that being confident of the honesty and innocencie both of Boaz and Ruth, and knowing by much experience the piety and gravity of bim, accompanied with old age, together with the fobriety and chaffity of her daughter-in-law, the knew that there was no reall cause which might discourage her in this course, which she thought would be most effectuall to draw on this match: Seeing withall, the avoided, as much as might be, giving scandall to others, or raising an ill report upon themselves, by using that privacie and secrecie which the place and time of night at-

And he will tell thee what thou [halt do] As if he had faid, I shall not need to give thee any further direction, for Boaz himfelf is lo wife, honeft, and religious, that he will instruct thee in the courfe that is to be taken for the confummating this marriage

counte that is to be taken for the confidmmating this marriage between you, according to the law of God.

V. 5. And [he faid auto her] i.e. Ruth answered her mother, that she would in all these things follow her coun-

ell. V. 7. And when Boat had caten and drunk] i.e. Liberally, according to their manner in the time of harvest and vintage. Pfal.4.7. Ifai.g. 3. & 16.9.10.

and his heart was merry] Heb. was made good. i.e. Frolick

V. 8. turned himself | Or, took hold on, or, tossed his body to and fro like one in fear.

to and fromke one in rear.

V. 9. foread therefore thy skirt over thine hand-maid] A prover hiall speech, signifying the taking of one into protection, as vertoal specers inguisying the taking to one into protection; as the hen her chickens und riher wings. See the 2.12, as if the had faid, receive me into thy protection, by taking me to be thy wife, that according to Gods law thou maift do the duty of a kiniman, and raise seed to my deceased husband, for the continuance of his name and inheritance in his posterity. See ch. 2.12. Gen. 20. 16. Ezek. 16. 8. Deut. 22. 30. By which places, it feemeth, that it was a custome in those dayes to use this ceremony of casting the skirt of their garment over those whom they received into protection.

whom they received into protection.

for thou art a neer kinfmar] Or, one to whom the right of redemption belongeth. Seech. 2. 20.

V. 10. For thou haft flowed more kindusfie in the latter end ]

Heb. thou hast made good thy latter kindnesse above the former. i.e. Thou haft fhewed love to thy deceafed husband, both whileft he lived with thee, and also fince his death, in leaving thy native country and friends to accompany thy poor afflicted mother for his fake, and haft indured much hardnesse in living with her; yet thy present act of chaste love, in preserring me an old man before young men, who are more fuitable to thy age, as being more vigorous and and personable; and that out of love to him that is gone, to preferve unto him his name and inheritance in his pofferity; this exceedeth all the

in as much as thou followedft not young men whether poor or rich] i.e. Men of like age to thy felf, neither here, nor in thy own Country, but haft left them and come into Canaan, and being come, half not chosen a man of thine own age, but such an one as may be sittest to preserve thy husbands name in his own

V. 11. And now my daughter fear not ] i.e. That thou shouldst faile of thy defire and hope.

I will do to thee all that thou requireft ] i.e. As much as in me lyeth, I will fatisfie thy request, according to Gods law, in procuring for thee such an husband and redeemer as it requireth. See ch.2.20.

rein. See Cit. 2. 20.

all the City of my people i.e. All the people in this City.

V. 12. Howbest there is a kinfman nearer then I] And therefore ought by the law to be preferred before me, to marry thee

Chap.iiij. V. 12. Ifhe will perform unto thee the part of a kinfman To [ Cannot do it without indangering thereby great inconveniwit, in taking thee to wife, and raifing feed to him that is deceafed , to preferve his name and race. See Chap. 2. ver.

hefore one could know one another ! i.e. Before break of day, whileft it was fo dark, that one could no fee anothers face. let it not be known that a woman came into the floor To avoid Scandal and an ill report, which he probably thought, might be raifed, if it were divulged; that io he might hereby keep a good conscience before God, and a good name before men, A.C. 24.

16. Rom. 12. 17. 2 Cor. 8. 21.
V. 15. Bring the wail of Or, sheet, or, apron, or, safeguard.
V. 16. 11 ho art thou my daughter of The ugh she might differn by her flature, habit, voice, and burthen, that the was a young woman, and fo called her daughter, yet being dark, file could not cleerly and certainly fee, and know, that the was Ruth her not cleerly and certainty ice, and know, that the was Kuth bert.

Aughter, and therefore demandate the fray who few wax.

V. 18. Then Be list, Sit fill my daughter]. Relf in this with the can all foliogs, and for worldy ends, he different with his sidely-in already alone, and as yet crouse they list from or in his man-list.

er, but quietly expect what tifue God will give unto it. In the | 6,7 mean time, abide with me in the house, that thou mailt not be out of the way, but ready to attend upon all occasions which I have as next kiniman, I renounce and resign it unto shall be offered.

CHAP, IV.

Verl. 1. Then Boat went up to the gate, and fate him down]
The place used among the ancients for their afin hand.

cording to his expectation, in this very time when as it was

which was now in hand. Ho, [uch an one] The Hebrews use here two words , Peloni, Almoni, which have no proper fignification, but feem to note as we use to say, ho, such an one, or, hear you Sir. So I Sam. 21. 2. & 2 King. 6. 8. not that Boaz did not know his name, first institution. or (it may be) did not call him by it, but because the pen-man of this Scripture was pleafed not to mention it, as being little to his purpole; or, perhap, because he thought the man not worthy to be named or remembred, that would not continue the name of his deceased kinsiman, by marrying his widow, and raising up seed unto him, as God had commanded, Deut. 22.

4, 6. V. 2. And he took ten men of the Elders | To wit, that hearing the cause, they might be judges between them, and also witnesses of their proceedings.

V. 3. Naomi — [elletb a parcell of land] To wit, which belonged to our brother Elimelech, or our kinfman, and was made over to Naomi for a dowrie or joynture for term of life, and then to descend unto Mablon as his inheritance, and he whole managing of the business. neing dead, to come unto Kuth, on the lame conditions, as being Mahlons wife, and widow's which is now upon fale for the maintenance of them both being in poverty. The redeeming of which land, belonged to the next kindinan, who had right utaff. being dead, to come unto Ruth, on the fame conditions, as unto it after the death of the widows ; but fo, as he was alio to marry the widow. But this Boaz concealeth, and foundeth his minde by this ambiguous speech, before he would speak of

V. 4. I thought to advertise thee ] - Heb. I faid, I will reveal in thy ear. That is , I resolved with my self to acquaint | dulently thrust upon him. thee with it, and to render unto thee, the first offer of re-deeming the land, as being the neerest kinsman, Levit. 25.

buy it before the inhabitants ] That is, in a legal manner, that they may be witnesses of it.

sell me that I may know ] To wit, what I have to do, and how to proceed, feeing after thee I am the next kinfman.

V. 5. What day thou buyeft the field of the bind of Naomi, thou must buy it also of Ruth To wit, because they both have a right unto it, as being the widows of Elimelech, and Mahlon, to whom the inheritance appertained whilest they lived; and the fame law which giveth right to the next kinlman to re-deem the land, requireth also of him, that he should marry the widow of the deceased, and to raise up feed to him, if he dyed childless, to continue his name in Israel, and to enjoy his inberitance.

V. 6. And the hinfman faid, I cannot redeem it for my felf] i.e.

left I mayr mine own inheritance | For if he were a fing'e man, then if he should marry Ruth, and have iffue only one childe, then this bearing his kinimans name deceafed, and inheriting his land, he should want an heir (to bear his own name) begotten by himfelf, which was Ounns cafe. Gen. chap. 28. 8. and now Mahlons; or if he were a widower. (which is more probable) and had already div. is children and should have likewise divers more by Ruth, who was a young woman, then he thould impair his inheritance for his fermer children, by having it divided among to many, especially confidering that Ruth was but a poor widow, and not able to bring any addition to his estate; whereas by mar ving one that was rich, he might improve it to the great advantage

Redeem thou my right to thy felf | That is, my right which

V. 7. Now this was the manner in former time in Ifrael concerning redceming] That is , Thele were the ceremonies that were used in redeeming, buying and felling, purchasing and alienation of lands, to ratifie their bargains in a legal man-er, which in these times had some retemblance to that law femblies, judicature, and contracts, where he fate down, waiting of redeeming, mentioned Deut, 25, 18, 29. But with divers for the neerell kinfiman, as the likelieft place to fee him, when differences. For there, the widow refued by the next kinfinan, he was going out about his business, or at his return home, and complained to the Elders, of the wrong off red her; but here, alfo that he might there have the affiltance of the Elders of the Ruth maketh no fuch complaint. There, the woman pulled City, to hear, examine, and judge of the cause which he had now off his shooe, but here, the man pulled off his own shooe himfelf, and gave it to his neighbour the redeemer; there, the and behold the kinsman of whom he spake (namely to Ruth) spit in his face to his disgrace : But here is no to h matter, came by Which is observed, as a remarkable passage of Gods but only he delivereth his shooe to the redeemer; whereby providence, that the man whom he waited for, came by, ac- was figuified, that whereas formerly he had right to go in and out upon that land, whileft he lawfully poffeffed it; now most scasonable, for the speedy determining of the business be wholly disclaimed that right, and would no longer tread upon it, but only by way of fufferance from the owner, unto whom it was made over, Pfal. 60. 8. So that here the Cere-monies used, did chirfly respect the alternation of the land: fuch a person, whose name they knew not, or had forgotten; and those that respected the person of Ruth, were either omitted, or elfe transacted with much alteration from the a man plucked off his shooe] i. e. Who did alienate any thing from himfelf. and gave is to his neighbour] To wit, the redcomer to whom

t was alienated, and yielded over. and this was a testimony in Ifrael ] i. e. Was entred upon record, that the reacemer thould ever hold his right to the thing redcemed, and he that had yielded it over, thould never again challenge it, at least till the year of Jubilee.

V. 8. Sole drew off his those? Here is no mention of the ceremony of reproach, which was to be done to the kinfman for his refulal of Roth, to wit, forting in his face, Dout. 25. 29. which was here either omitted or remitted, as bei gout of ule, or beraufe Ruth was not prefent, having referred to Bo z the

V. 10 And from the gate of his place ] That is, from

V. 11. The Lord make the woman that is come into thy boufe like Rathel and like Leab ] Who leaving their Country, and following Jacob, as now Ruth hath done, lived comfortably his minds by this amongsious speech, before ne woman spears of tomorning Jacon, as now Asia had done, need children, multi-his merrying with Rush, because lists would need fairly follow upon the other, (feeing he was bound to accept, or reject both, in the accepted or rejected either. for whom he had ferved, whereas the other was by Laban frau-and do thou worthily in Ethratah ] Or, get thee riches, or, porter. Or, make thee grow mighty and full of riches; which, in this marriage with Ruth, thou half wholly neglected, that thou mightelf yield obedience to the law of God. So Pfalm and be famous ] Heb. proclaim thy name. By having a numerous posterity to continue thy name, and to make thee famous and renowned.

in Bethlebem] Which is all one with Ephratah. See chap.

V. 12. And let thine house That is , thy family and postebe like the house of Pharez] Who though his mother was a stranger, and not of Jacobs lineage, ( here in also like unto Ruth) yet had a numerous and honourable posterity, wherein we heartily with and pray, that thou may It have the like hono rable posterity in the same tribe. MMM

أعلاهها والكلككي

Chap.i.

whom Tanan here into Ifalab | Gen. 28. 10. who wise the See Grif. 45.11. 1 daß 47.12. 1 King 18.4. Phl. 57.14. progenitour of Bonz, and the of Chrift, by lineral defector; in botter sente therefore from 1 de. Then many form. See which words is discovered, what was the chief cause why the Holy Ghost would have this story of Ruth written and prefer-Hoty Choir would have this noty or Auth white shall prive ved in the Canon of holy Scriptures, to with, that the fitth of Gods promife might appear concerning the Meflish, that he fhould come forth out of the tribe of Judah, as was prophefied, Gen. 49. 10. And that his defern (according to the flesh) miete be here related and recorded unto David, as it was afterwards from David to Christ, by the two Evangelists , Math.

2. & Luk. 3.
of the feed which the Lord [ball give thee ] i.e. Of the fon.
Where observe, that the word, seed, is spoken of an only son,

V. 14. Ald when he wens in unio her] A modest phrase, signifying his companying with her, as his wife. See Gen. 6.4.
V. 14. Blessed he the Lord which hat het left ther] Heb.

canfed to ceafe unto thee.

without a kinfman] Or, a redeemer.
that his name may be famous in Ifrael] i. c. The name of this that we same may be grosses in ifree1 j.e., I me mane or time by the same may be grosses in ifree1 j.e., I me mane or time by the same for the pions Redeterme, who bath related to feet of the same for the same for

V. 15. And be fhall be unto thee a reftorer of thy life] i.e. He and a nourifber of thy old age] Heb. to nourifb thy grey baires. of the body politique.

Gen. 4. 15. 1 Sam. 1. 5. V. 16. And laid it in ber bosome] i. c. Did tenderly love and

V. 10. Annuals of the Chericht fervice unto Naomi ; (unto whom therefore he is faid to be born ) the one to raile up the name of her fon Mahlon decesfed, & to caufe it to live in him; feeing, though he was begotten by Bozz, yet he was to bear the name of Mahlons fonctor which purpose he was raised up to him, the other, that he should serve, i.e. help, comfort, and cherish her, in her old age, in hope whereof, they defired that this name should be given him. See v. re.

or, they defired that this name thould be given him. See 1.17,
V. 18. Now belief artibe generation of "Downey" i.e. The poflerity that delegated of him. according to their genealogie.

Phore begin statum of "Down A. Matth. 1.3.
V. 10. begit Salmen Or. Salmah.
V. 11. And Bong bego Doed Though Obed was, in fome respect, the son of hishlion, because he was the seed raised unto

Obed, which was the leed raised up to abston, it commands and finite in Iffred, and to redeem it from being builted in forgetfulnets.

V. 1. And be faul be unto the a reflorer of the life if it. He is accelerated from Carlif came in the field, without any refhall comfort and revive thee, refibring thee (as it were) to a gard of this legal fon this, ordained for the preferring of inhemet life. See Plal. 19.8. & 31.3. Lam. 1.11.

Part of when the whole whole when the whole when the whole when the whole when the whole whole when the whole whol ANNOTATIONS

On the first Book of Samue L. Otherwise called The first Book of the KINGS.

The ARGUMENT.

His Book was entituled with the name of Samuel, not that he was the Author of it but because the first eight Chapters chiefly reflect him, and the things done under his Government, and was ( as the Hebrews think ) written by one of his Disciples, a son of the Prophets; who, in honor of his Mufter, calleth it by his name. And it is of Ithamar the second son of Aaron, and high Priest; but how he came to this Office, wither then Eleazars posteririty, who was the first born, the Scripture mentioneth not : Only we may probably guess, that, being one of the Indges, he was in an extraordinary manner called immediately by God rothis Place and Government. Concernsughim, we find sphat, shough himself were a goldy man, yet (grace no going in himseines) his two four himself were a goldy man, yet (grace no going in himseines) his two four, bloom and l'hinchas, were wicke, even in their office, and about the holy things, in which God chiefly will be homoured; with which, being highly displeased, he punishes them with unimely death, and their father with them, as accessory to their fing because being both a Father and a Judg, he rested only in a milde reproof and did not severely punish them according to their demerits. After his death, Samuel judged Ilrael, who, before he was born, was designed of God to this Office, and devoted by his mother to this service, being the son of her destres, prayers, and praises. He being an holy Prophet, purgeth the Church from Idolatry, restoreth Religion to its purity, prospereth in all his undertakings, and by some Victories, doth in part, deliver Gods people ont of the hands of their exemies. But his sons, not walking in his water, cause discontent, and occasion the people to reject his Government, and to desire a King: wherewish the Lord being diffleafed, because, in Samuel his Deputy, they rejetted himself, their Supream Sovereign and would not flay the time, when according to his promile he would fet a King over them; he gave them (as the Prophet speaketh) a King in wrath, even Saul, who at sirst and at the best, was a notable Hyperties star. the first times of his Reign, used by God for the good of his Church, as an instrument of deliverance unto it, by obtaining some famous Victories over its enemies: But when, for his disobedience he was by God rejected and deposed and David designed to his place, then he sheweth himself a wicked Rebel, and bloody Tyrant, who obstinately relifteth Gods revealed Will, holdeth ftill the Scepter by violence and ftrong hand, rageth against David with all subtilty and fury, and oftentimes attempteth his death, notwithstanding that he was in his own conscience convinced of his innocency. And seeing his malice could not reach to God himself, he extendeth it as far as he could, laying his bloody hands upon his Priests; and because the high Priest alone, in his innocency and simplicity, had relieved David, he causeth him, and all the rest of the Priests, even eighty and five persons, to be cruelly murthered, yea, with them, their wives, children, suchlings, and even their Oxen, Asses, and Sheep, with more then barbarous and beaftly cruelty. Finally, in this Book are related Davids prievous Perfecutions, mot only by Saul, but also by its courty Sycophant; Flatteres, Slanderes; faffe Friends, and professed for the track of the humb-ling bim bereby, before he whild adviance him to the surveiumess flating sinty, and laying (as it were) a deep Founda-tion, where he intended to raise the statelieft Building. In all which his sufferingt, David, Affected with Odd Grace and Spiris, seweth fuch Faths, Patience, Piety, Affence in God, Elumitity, Constanty, undersomy other Graces, that is made exemplary therein to all fucceding Ages and Perfons. Lafty is this Story is recorded the execution of Godt righteons Judgment upon Saul and his wicked Courtiers and Servants, with many other of this finful Nation, by the Sword of the Philistines, whereby he make the Way for the accompillising of his promife to David, in causing him to reign over his People Israel.

CHAP. L

Verl. t. Cont

Owthere was a certain man of Ramathaim-Zophim] That is, of that Ra-mah which was divided into two ci-ties, or the fame City into two parts, which coposite the industriant upon two sings many source—or enter previously standard and to shared taken from the conterty and being fetures on high falls, on which they had not to the industriant of the from the conterty and being fetures on high falls, on which they had not to the indeed and industrial to the industriant of the many of watch. Towers, they might from them have a view and propect the continuous of the many of the continuous cont

Zoobim That is, of the Zophites inhabiting the land of Zuph, ch. 9.5. which Country perhaps had its name from this thanks-offerings, and peace-offerings; for in the two other phai, r Chr. 6. 26.

an Ephrathite] Not in respect of his linage and kindred, for he was a Levite descended from Rohath, unto whose family he was a levite detection total county, and o'woofe rammy time Camp, Levit. 1, 9, 64, 11. But in the peace olitering, according to the tribe of lephraim were allotted, Jofh. 21. the tac only often invariant, and the rummy, was to burnt 20, and of the politerity of Korah, that archivebel, 2 Chr. 6.12. with fire, and 10 offered unto the Lord, Levit. 3, 33 and the toften where few oversign of Gods grace, which cauded Elkanothew the Gods and the Christian was the Christian of the Christian Christian of the Christia called an Ephrathite, because he had his birth, education, and lowed by Yoos law is or in the first initiation. Odd make of the washing the word of the common that the might feek a gold (feed, Mal. 2.15, and 16, Match. 19.8. But God was pleafed in the time principle of the law, when the Church was confined to that one nation of first, if not to colerate this plurality of wives, yet a telal, it do there is many a feet of the law, when the Church was confined to that one nation of first, if not to colerate this plurality of wives, yet a telal, it do the man has because it is in fair, that he gave preferred to the minute of the man has been depicted to the man has been depicted to the man has brought in the objection of the man has been depicted to the man have the objection of the man has been depicted to the man have been depicted to the man has brought and to all the first of the man has been depicted to the man has been depicted to the man have been depi between lews and Gentiles; this mist and dark fog of ignorance was dispelled by the cleer Sun-shine of the Gospel, and marriage restored to its sitt institution.

the name of the one was Hannah] Who was the first and chief wife, and mother of the Family, and Peninnah a fecondary which in thole dayes they effeemed a great affliction. See Judg.

to the law, all the males were bound to do thrice in the year at their three great feasts, the Passover, Pentecoft and Tabernaeles, Exod. 23. 17. & 34. 23. Deut. 16. 16. But he being a Levite, went up oftner to do the fervice of the Sanctuary. The yearly fealt here meant, was that folemn fealt of the Palsover. when not only the men, but their wives also, accompanying bound fo to do, (for then Hannah should have sinned, in staying at home to wean her fon) but out of their piety and devotion to joyn with their husbands in this duty of Gods fer-year of Joshua, and had there remained ever fince, Joshua, and the two fons of Eli ] Namely, who at this time was the Judge of Israel, and next succeeded Sampson, and judged Israel and his posterity; yet at this time this succession was interrupted, and the Priesthood settled upon Eli , who was of the posterity of Ithamar, Aarons second fon, and as it seemeth, by Gods own appointment, ch. 2. 30. whether it were because Eli was Judge of Israel, or for some great fin commited by some of Eleazars posterity, or any other cause nor revealed, which we know not, nor need curiously enquire after it , seeing God hath concealed it. But this appeareth, that to minister before the Lord in the time of Aaron , Numb. 3. 4. 1 Chr. 24. 2. and likewise their fons after them in the time of David, v. 3. till Abimelech, of the posterity of Itha-mar,was according to Gods prediction for the fin of Eli and his fons, and his own fiding with Adonijah, cast out of the high Priests office, and Zadok put in his place by Solomon, whereby it was again restored to the succession of Eleazar, Aarons eldeft fon.

Hophni and Phinchas the Priefts of the Lord were there] Namely to do the fervice of the Sanctuary under Eli their father who ties, or the saline city interverse and the saline city interverse as the Hebrew annual implyethymich was then high Prieft. And this is here added, to flow, that is so the debut of plural number. The though thele were graceless men, even in the very execution which two parts were scituate upon two high hills, which be- of their prieftly office; yet this did not hinder Elkanah from over all the Country adjoyning, as the names given unto them the weaker for did flumble at it, and were brought thereby to abhor the offerings of the Lord, ch. 2. 17.

V. 4. And when the time was that Elhanah offered ] To wit. Zuph, which was Elkanahs progenitor, who is also called Zo- forts of facrifices, nothing was referred for those that offered them, to feast upon, seeing in the whole burnt-offering all was confumed; and the fin-offering was also to be burnt without the Camp, Levit. 1. 9. & 4. 12. But in the peace-offcrings, mily, and friends, the widow, fatherlefs, and poor, and whom habitation in mount Ephraim; the Levites being by Gods good elfe he plealed; to rejoyce before the Lord with cheerfulnels. providence feattered throughout all the other tribes, that they and to render unto him thanks and praife for all his benefits. might instruct Gods prople in the true knowledg of him and For seeing this sacrifice was to be all eaten in the same day, might indicated the proposition of the continuous proposition and performs the statement of the statement of to wink at it ( for causes best known to himself, but not re- their portion; but rather to express his greater love to Hannah. vealed to us) as an humane frailty; of which Gods Saints and in that having provided for them, being many, every one veiled to us) as a button training of winter Outs States and I in that naving provided for mem, being many, every one describ fervasta took on notices, and a fine, being blinded and letter thank, in an ordinary manner and proportion, every one over-born by the long too continued cult control of those times and lerved for her a worthy, or double portion as a Abraham, or countries. But at the coming of Chiff, bleach the Church was identify with his beloved last, and his order children. Gen. to be inlarged, and the partition wall was to be broken down And Joseph with Benjamin and the reft of his brethren. Gen,

V. 5. But unto Hannah he gave a worthy portion Not a portion given with a forrowful countenance, as some read it grieving because the was barren, and he had no children of hers to bestow portions upon, as well as the rest, but a worwife or Concubine, whom it feemeth, Elkanah took to thy or honourable portion, or as the Hebrew phrafe hath it, Hannah, because being barren, she had born him no children, a gift of the face, seeing men use to look upon great and worthy gifts with a cheerfull countenance ; whereby is meant, white in those cayses are presented a great anaction. See Jong Worten great the first the first > for he loved Hannah] i. e. in a fingular manner, and above Peninnah. So Gen. 29. 30.

> but the Lord had shut up her womb That is, made her bar-ren, and restrained her from conceiving and bearing children. Sce Gen. 16.2. & 20. 18, even as contrariwile, it is their husbands, went up to this feait, though not as absolutely he alone that maketh fruitful, Pfalm 120, 2, 2, 3, 112, 9, &

V. 6. And her Adversary] To wit, Peninnah, who ma-ligned her as her corrival. So Gen. 29.30. Levit. 18.18. also provoked her sore] Heb. angred her. That is, added to to facrifice to the Lord of hofts in Shilob] That is, in the Ta- her affliction of barrennels, the vexation of her bitter, spiteful, bernacle, which was feated in the City Shilob, the feventh and clamorous words, updraining her with barrennels, as if it were a curse, and an evidence of Gods anger for her fins.

for to make her fret ] That is, to vex and grieve her, which shewed Gods displeasure and dislike of Polygamie, which feeing he punisheth it, (as many other waies so especially) with 40. years, ch. 4.18. and was high Priest alfo. For though in the this great inconvenience and mischief, that there are many jarrs right line it should have succeeded in Eleazars posterity, as be-ing Aarons eldest son, and so have descended to Phinebas with another, which the husband is often forced to compose with much trouble and vexation; as we fee in the example of Sarah and Hagar, Rachel and Leab, and Hannah and Peninnah, in this place.

V. 7. And as be did fol i.e. As Elkanah did thus express his love to Hannah, when he went yearly to the house of God with his family, so Peninnah persisted from time to time, to vex, her, by her provocations, which made Elkanah the more ready and willing to cheer and comfort her, by giving her a worthy porboth Eleazar and Ithzmar were joyned in the Priests office, tion, both because he loved her, and also much pitted her, in respect of those vexations which she suffered by Peninnah's fpitcfull upbraidings,

V. 8. Hannab wby weepeft thou > ] Eklanah knew the MMM 2

Chap. i.

cause of her weeping, but speaketh this to comfort her, be was not a vowed thing ; he was thus already devoted, as being case it much troubled him to fee her mourn in a time when a Levite, and needed not again to be thus vowed; but hereby the ought to have rejoyced, namely, at this feast, unto which she intendeth to confectate him unto God, in an extraordinary they came to rejoyce before the Lord, and to praise him with cheerfulness for all his benefits, as God in his law had required; and therefore he doth not enquire after the caule, but rather what reason the had so to do, and by this enquiry, maketh way unto that comfort which he intended to give her.

why eateft thou not ] i. c. What renfon haft thou not to cat feeing it is a time appointed by God for holy feafting? am not I better to thee then ten fonit ] i.e. Haft thou not more and better cause of comfort and contentment in me alone, who love thee fo dearly, then thou couldft have in the injoyment of

V. 9. So Hanabrose up after they had eaten in Shiloe ] i.e.
After Elkanah and the relt of his family had seasted together; for as it may feem, Hannah ber felf had not eaten with them. Partly, because her grief was so great, that it took away all appetite to her meat, and partly because her conscience witnesled unto her, that it was unlawful to participate in this holy feast in a condition of grief and mourning, feeing the Law of God required, that all that did eat of it should do it with cheerteat in a condition or girer and mounting, seeing (oc.law or) apparerus, or, 7.10. Aguin, in worked hint to incre frikthefs God required, that all that did earl of it frikthefs to with cheer; the ordinary Levitses were bound unto, namely, that he findly fullers and rejoycing, Deut. 11.7. Levit. 10. 19. And this be a Nazarite, and so abstin from wine and strong drink, with earled her to torbear chinking (a a afterward in tend lets) all the content with our frong drink. Although others think that by the strict wine or frong drink. Although others think that by the strict wine or frong drink. Although others think that by the strict wine or frong drink. Although others think that by the earnest perswasion of her husband, she had eaten a little, which, her yow was to be understood, not absolutely, but with to supply the necessity of nature, although the had not com- conditions, cautions, and qualifications, namely if the childe, municated in the plenty of the feaft.

was encompassed by some frame of building to preserve it from age; and if her busband pleased to ratific her yow, as heafter being burt by the weather, for otherwise the Tabernacle made | did, and se made her yow to become his own, v. 28. only she by Moles, had neither gates nor posts, but only an hanging vowed, that she would do her best, and all that in her lay, to or curtain in the entry of it, Exod. 28. 36. and fo chap. 3. 15. it is faid, that Samuel opened the doors of the house of the Lord; whereas the Tabernacle it felf bad no doors, but only vailes and whereas the I abernatic it let Bad no doors, out only raise and curtains; which maketh their opinion probable, who think her felf in many words, which was not that vain repetition of from any hurt or annoyance.

fometimes called the Temple, chap. 3. 3. 3 Sam. 22. 7. as proceeding from faith and ferrencie, never giveth over, till the the temple is sometime called the tabernacle, Jer. 10.20. Lam fuire be granted, Jam. 5. 16. 4. 2.6. because they were both alike consecrated to Gods publique fervice.

V. 10. And the was in bitterness of soul Heb. bitter in soul i. e. In great forrow and grief, which is called the fouls bitterness or anguish. So Job 6. 11. & 10. 1. Is . 38. 15. Lam.

and praved unto the Lord | In her affliction the addreffeth her felf by prayer unto the Lord, the God of all confolation, and doth not feek to eafe ber gricf with iports and merriments, and rather, because the was newly rifen from a fealt. much less in contending with Peninnah, rendring reproach for make it void, Numb. 30. 8. Namely in respect of my barren-nels, and reproach arising from it.

sabernacle, Eli fate to order things belonging to Gods publique commeft fober. fervice, to observe them who presented themselves to perform lerrice, to obleve them who presented intensitives to perform the body duties; and that people implication that the properties of the dood with much methods and multimesting until this day upon allocassisms to be instructed and staisfed in their questing and and until the properties to be instructed and staisfed in their questing and unjust reproof, telling into that there was no likelihood as and adoubts, both in things exerminal, judicial, and moral, judicial for the staining the properties of the staining the properties of the staining that there was no likelihood to the staining that there was no likelihood to the staining that th by him who was the high Priest, and was to ask counsell of God her; for the was one that was afflicted in minde, and therefore by man was presented as the state of the property of the prope and fendeth us deliverance, Pfal. 50. 15.

as a rememor me, mar, mo jurges or use on man man j. One cannot occure or my unrown nears. Now this he captelled by definition by definition of the finite property or members of proget, because all things, an inparts, of pouring out the foul, because fine had campeled the all times, a reprefer before him, in his fair, he year, the property of the heart unto the Load, as he rend finishfull after the maner oft one, God is hid to forget us, when he lead able friends, to war and help hers, and nor flightly just in the least of the property of the capter of the man in the capter of the capter of the man in the capter of the capte doth not relieve us in afflictions, and to remember us when a full and earnest manner, emptying, and (as it were) unbowbe sendeth help and deliverance. And here the repetition of elling her self, and not leaving any iccret, or least crany of her the same things, (remember and not forget) is not vain and heart, undiscovered. So Pfal. 62. 8. & 142. 2. Superfluous; but this frequency in words argued the carnestness and vehemency of her prayer, like that, Joh. 1. 20. And confefthen I will give him unto the Lord all the dayes of his life ] In which vow, the doth not devote him unto the Lord, for the or- 13.13. pary; and therefore her fon, whom the beggeth of the Lord, grant thy fuit. So King 5. 19.

manner, and with more ftrictness than the law required. And that is, that he should begin his service of the tabernacle in his childe hood, that he might be the better influcted in the know-ledg of Gods law, and be acquainted with all the parts, paffages. and means of Divine worthip, from his tender youth, that fo in his age he might keep the closer to it, Prov. 22. 6. whereas the ordinary Levites were not to begin their publique fervice before the age of thirty, or five and twenty. And that he fhould continue his service all his dayes, whereas they were taken off continue his letvice all his dayes, whereas they were taken off and releafed from the ferrice of the Sanfuary, when they came to the age of fifty, Nam. 4. 3. 28. 2.5. neither did this row tye Samuel to this continual and perpetual refidence in the tablernacle, if it thould pleafe God to take him off from it, by fome speciall dispensation, as it feemeth he did, when he called him to be a Judg over Ifrael, in which calling, he was to perform the duties belonging to it, and to go his Circuits from one City to another, to administer justice unto the people, as apparreth, ch. 7. 16. Again, the vowed him to more fricinels being born, should prove fit to be vowed, as having no legal Now Elithe Prieft fate upon a feat by a post ] From whence defects, but of perfect shape in all his limbs and lineaments, fome gather, not improbably, that the Tabernacle at this time and giving his consent to be of this profession when he came to perform lawfully all that the promifed.

V. 12. as she continued praying ] Hab, multiplyed to pray.

i, e. Being instant and importunate in her fuit, did express is no efficacie, but only a multiplying of words, with a vain of the Temple of the Lord | i. c. Of the Tabernacle, which is opinion to be the rather heard; but that effectual prayer which

> Eli marked ber mouth | i.e. observed that the floud mumbling with her lips, making, it may be, ftrange faces, and using fome unfitting gestures, not well suiting with gravity and so-briety; as it is usual with those that are of a troubled and asflifted fpirit.

> V. 13. Therefore Eli thought that fbe bad been drunken] i.e. feeing this incomposedness in her countenance and carriage, he uncharitably paffeth his centure, that the was drunk, and the

V. 14. How long wilt thou be drunk, put away thy wine from much less in contenancy wine Yennana, renormy express of v. 14. **raw wong wine sour contrast, pin and you wine free procech.

V. 11. **And five word 4 wow! Either upon the condition of the hubbands approbation, or elie baving already obtained, officers of the pin and t 12. 2. For otherwise it was in his power to disannul and drunken? Do not any longer thus carry thy self as a drunken woman; or at least, if thou hast no power in this case thou art efs, and reproach arting from it.

If this will indeed look on my flittining! And in this temple or for this behave the fift better; then get thee, for the prefers, our

for this holy place, till having fleps, thou come out of thy drumbernack where the air was or rather in the Course of the tabernacle where the atk was, or rather in the Court of the kennels, and again recovering the use of thy former wits, be-

V. 1c. No my Lord, I am a woman of a ferrowful fbirit ] Thus nd sendeth us deliverance, Plal. 50. 15.

but have powed out my seal before the Lord 1 i.e. The caractle and remainder me, and not serger thise bant-maid ] God cannot desires of my sorrowful heart. Now this is expressed by this

V. 16. Count not thine hand-maid for a daughter of Belial] That is, one desperately wicked, who hath shaken off the yoke of the law, and bath given over her felf to alllewdness and licenbut wilt give unto thine hand-maid a manichilde] That is, who tiousness; or one that is unprofitable and good for nothing, dein respect of his sex, may be in a capacity of being consecrated thitute of Gods scar, and a very flave of Satan. And such as unto thee for thy publique service.

The second of this sex, may be in a capacity of being consecrated one this gracious woman effected a drunken person, as indeed they are no better. See Annot. on Judg. 19, 22, and Deut.

dinary fervice of the Sanctuary; for properly a vow is of a V. 17. Go is peace] i.e. Compole thy foul with patience, to thing required in a ftrick manner, and higher degree then ordi: wait quietly and contentedly upon God, who will undoubtedly nature years a pract grant theethy perition Oct, will grant thee, either speaking as a Peopler, that her suite should be granted, or as the high Priest, praying that she might enjoy her defire. anithe Gol of Tiftael grain theethy perition ] Oct, will grant | thenfome, unlefs there were a nurlery belonging to the taber-

V. 18. Let thine hand maid finde grace in the fight ] i.e. As thou half already comforted and cheered my heare with the prediction or prayer, fo continue thy favour towards me, by continuing the pravers for me. and the woman went away and was no more fad 1 i. e. By a lively faith, being affured that God had heard both her own prayers, and also the high Priefts in her behalf , she cast all her care upon the Lord; and wholly relying upon his promifes and of fome special promife made by God, before or after the conprovidence, the departed with inward joy, and gave no further way to forrow and fadnels, Ecclef, q. 7

V. 19. And they rofe up early in the morning and worshipped before the Lord That is, before they did it forth on their journey homewards, they presented themselves before God in therabernacle, to do him religious fervice, and to pray for prosperous success in their journey, and in all other their affairs, berein leaving to posterity a good president for their imitation.

and came to their boufe to Ramab ] Which , in the first verse, is called Ramathaim Zophim.

and the Lord remembred ber ] That is, her prayer, by granting it, and making her fruitful, that before was barren. Sec

Gen. 21. 1. V. 20. When the time was come about, after Hannah had conceived In which words there is a transposition of the order, for they are thus to be understood, after Hannah had conceived, when the time was come about, in which women usually go with childe, from the conception to the birth, the bare a fon. The like forms of speaking we have in other places of Scripture, Exod. 14. 21. He made the fea dry land, and the waters, were divided; that is, He divided the waters, and so made the Sea dry land, Ifa. 64.5. Others understand the words according to that order in which they are in the text; after fome time was paffed from that day, that the had the comfort of Gods hearing her prayer, and had companied with her husband, the concerved; and not presently fafter she had lyen with him; which God did for the tryal and exercise of her faith; when as for a time, he deferred the performance of his promife in hearing her and called his name Samuel ] That is, asked of God; of which giving unto him this name, her felf giveth the reason, Because I have asked him of the Lord. Now this name she gave him for her own fingular and continual comfort, when as by this rithme the was dayly put in minde of this great bleffing, of bearing a fon, after the had been fo long barren; and efpecially, when the icmembred by what means the came by him namely, as a boon granted of God, to her fervent and effectual prayer. And then again, to rentember her felf, her husband and fon, of their duty; them, in bringing him up in the fear and nurture of the Lord, that according to their vow, he might be dedicated and devoted to Gods fervice in his fanctuary; and the childe, that hereby he might be put in minde, to live, and demean himfelf, according to that pious and frickt course of a Nazarite, unto which his parents had devoted him, having begged him of God to this end. V. 21. And the man Elkanah and all his boufe, went up to offer unto the Lord the yearly facrifice and his vow ] That is, befides the yearly and ordinary facrifice, fome other oblation which he had vowed, namely, a facrifice of thankfgiving for the birth of his

V. 22. But Hannah went not up] Wherein fhe finned not, in that the stayed at home to perform a moral duty in nursing her childe, and neglected a ceremonial duty, which the law did not require of her. For whereas there might be two causes of her going up, the one, that after the dayes of her purification were accomplished, she might present him, being her fist borne, before the Lord, and pay the five shekels, appointed by God, as the price of redemption, Numb. 18.15, 16. This was required of all the other tribes of Ifrael, and was therefore obferved by the Virgin Mary, Luk. 1. 2. 22. 23. who was of the tribe of Judah. But this did not concern Hannah, who, with her husband, were of the tribe of Levie, which were confectated to God,in lieu of all the first borne, and norlike the other tribes to be redeemed. The other cause might be of her going up, the appearing of all before God, at their three folemn teafts, and in this neither was Hannah concerned, feeing this law be longed only to the men of Ifrael, and not the women; howfoever their wives, when they had no necessary cause to keep them at home, out of their pious devotion accompanied their husbands to these holy seasts, Deut. 16.16. Exod. 23.17.

and there abide for ever | See the Note on ver. 11. V. 23. Tarry untill thou have weated him Or, educated him fo long till he be fit to minister before the in the Lord sanctuary, as some think; or at least, till he be fit to live there without a nurle; feeing before that rime he would have been but bur-

nacle which we no where read of onle the Lord establish his word] To wit, that which he hath promifed concerning our fon, and hath in part performed; which must be understood, either of Elies words to Hannah. whether, prayer or prophecie, ver. 17, or, of that real answer which God had given, as the return of her prayers, in giving her a fon : in which the craved a fon, whom the might confecrate unto God, in the first way of a Nazarite; and he defireth that he might by Gods grace and Holy Spirit, be fitted and enabled for such a fervice s or elle we must understand it ception or birth of the childe, either to him or his mothers which we do not finde revealed in the scriptures, and gave her son such until the meaned him Which was (as it is probable, in respect of the custom of those times) after he was For the purposed not to bring him, before he was fit to appear before the Lord to do him fervice in the tabernacie, and that he should there abide for ever; feeing it was the scope of her vow,not fimply, or fo much, to devote a fon unto God, as with respect to this end, that he might do him service, which he could not perform in his tender infancy. The which accordingly Samuel is faid to have done, and to have ministered before the Lord, foon after his coming, chap. 2. 11. Again, he being her onely fon, the fon of her vowes, and of her defires, it is very likely, that the would not wean him, and fo put him from her, till he was of some age, to shift for himself among strangers, being also before that time unable to do God fervice in the fanctuary. An example of the like we have in Abraham and Sarah, who weaned uot their beloved Ifaac, till he was of fome more than ordinary years for a weanling; feeing it is faid, that at the time when they made a feast for his weaning, Ifmael was observed to mock at Isac, which the Apostle calls a persecution, Gal. 4.29. and this was not likely to be done, before the childe was of some pretty age.

V. 24. And when she bad weared him, she took him up with her]

Namely to Shilob, there to prefent him unto the Lord, accor-

with three bullocks | There is mention but of one bullock that was flain and offer'd. It may be the other two were given to Eli, or to be at his his disposing, as a testimony of their love and thankfulness, for his favour by them already received, and desired in the behalf of their young fon. Or it may be, that onely one was facrificed when the childe was first presented and admitted, and the other two afterwards at other times by way of peace-offerings , to feast the Priests , Levites , and other and one ethah of flower] Which is about ten pottles, or as fome think, fifteen pottles, neer the measure of our bushel, and conteined ten Omers, Exo. 26.16. which was brought, that according to the law it might be offered with the bullocks, Numb. 15.9. And a bottle of wine which they likewife used, for meat and drink and peace-offerings, Levit. 22, 10. Numb. 15, 5,7.

10. & 18. 12. & 28.7.
V. 26. Oh my Lord as thy foul liveth 7 i.e. As fure as thou art alive, I am the woman, &c. Or, fo certainly as I defire that thou maiest long live.

V. 28. Therefore alfo I have lent him to the Lord | Or, returned him, whom I have obtained by petition, to the Lord; that is, I have dedicated him to his fervice.

he shall be lent ] Or, he whom I have obtained by petition hall be returned : that is, as he was freely given; to he shall be freely devoted to Gods fervice all his dayes.

And he worshipped the Lord there ] i.e. Either (as some think) Eli praised God who had graciously heard his prayers, in the behalf of Hannah, in granting unto her a fou, or for working her heart, in lieu of thankfulnefs, to devote him unto God. for his service; or else (which is more probable) Elkanah hearing Hannahs speech unto Eli, and affenting unto it, did worship the Lord, and praise him, for giving them a son, and hearts also willingly to devote him to Gods service, from whom they had received him; and also prayed unto him for his gracious acceptance of their gift, and for a bleffing upon him, both for the prefent and the time to come; that he would fanctifie him by his Spirit, and enable him in an holy manner to perform that religious service, unto which they had devoted him, that so God might have the glory, and both they and their fon, might have the comfort of this their action.

CHAP. IL

Verf. 1. And Hannah prayed and faid, ] i.e. Rendred unto God praifes and thanklgiving, as for all his bleffings, fo especially for his gracious deliverance of her out of that affliction of barrenness, and making her a joyful mother of a fon. And these praises are here called prayers, because thankigiving is a part of prayer; and whileft we praise God for benefits received, we move God to continue his tayour, and ano innoceasy; a not teeing the vanity of their profess longs to multiply his bleffings fill upon us. Although we may probably think, that the that printed God for giving her a fon, did allo pray unto him for the continuance of his his and well-ber allo pray unto him for the continuance of his his and well-ber and flooped their mouther, and exalted me in his favour, when allo pray unto him for the continuance of his life and well-being and the fitting him for that ferrice, unto which he was deling and the fitting him for that ferrice, unto which he was delined and evered, hounds a special do so the special continuation of the special continuation o fes, feeing the now onely intended to compole an hymn of which they think that he taketh no notice; and accordingly, as the highlying; yet (no doubt) the was frequent and ferver at injuteous Judg, he critistate to all, according to their in them a tother times. Now inthis her long of praifes, the works, whether they be good or evil. Or, by him enterprizes that God had been to her, particularly, in his unrecy, power and goodness; to declare what he was in himself, and towards to the content, the state of the content of the con ple, and what allo he was to his proud entimits. Anio yet all the state of the might bring it to pais.

Chap, ii.

as that in all these generals, she full, for the most part, reflecteth v. 4. The bower of the mighty are broken. That is, God deupon berown particular, fecretly intending to apply all she faith, to her felf, and her own condition.

my oracle reported in 1852 Line 3 V., courteen, respect and 1852 and the control may be a ment, more ten top question for joy, that it, doubt not only inwardly and fercetly rejoye, but there it is joy by external everything, in words and pofferity, in which the trulling, did wound her with her redictions, as boalting and florying, leaping and dancing. P.Lim.

24.2. & 4.4.5. at hough the had tide, by bear which was deprefied and dejected in the time of my barrennels, doth now triumph, and is exalted above measure, in the apprehension of Gods favour and goodness, in giving me a fon.

my born is exalted in the Lord] That is, my glory, beauty and through. A metaphor taken from horn'd beafts, whole comeline is, ftrength, and frolick jollity appeareth chiefly in their hornes. As if the had faid, I that formerly drooped, and hung down my head in my affliction, when my enemies triumphed over me, am now vigorous in my spirit, and have gotten frength to defend my self against all their insolencies and indignities; yet not from any power that is in me, but from the Lord, who is my strength, and the horn of my falvation, Pfalm. $9 17. 18 2. & 112. 9. & 92.10.

ms mouth & enlarged over my enemics] Whereas in the time of

for his goodness towards me; but also to stop the mouth of my adversary, seeing the bath now no more cause to insult over me. Or, if out of her insolence and impudence she open th her grateful, Or, if out of her infolence and imputence the open in act mouth wide against me, (like those, Plalm. 35.21) I shall, in as ample manner, enlarge my self in Gods praises, and have matter enough to stop her mouth, whilest I declare how good and gracious the Lord hath been unto me, and how much I re-

V. 2. There is none boly as the Lord ] For he is effenti lly holy in his Nature and Beeing, whereas the most creatures have their holiness in them, as a quality. He is originally and independently holy, and the fountain from which onely forings all holyness in the creatures; but their holyness is by participafor there is none befide thee] That is, no God, holy as thou art ; nor the holyeft men like thee ; for thy holyness is infinite in all perfection, but their holyness imperfect, and ful of blots

neither is their any rock like our God] That is, he is our onely frength, to support us in all our troubles, and to deliver us out of them; our fure refting place, upon which, if by faith and confidence we reft, we shall be secured from all storms of trouble, and from all billowes of tentations; and our onely forrefled and relyed, when her infu'ting adverfaries threatned to fink and drown her; and her onely place of refuge, unto which the did flee, to be secured from all their malice and infolency, Deut. 31. 4 17. Pfal. 18.2.31.

V. 3. Talk no more fo exceeding proudly] That is, let not Peminnab, or any other adversary infult over me with their proud to their diminution and difgrace.

Botther diminution and augrace.

For the Lord & a God of knowledg! Heb. of knowledger.

That is, infinite in knowledg, knowing all things, and from whom nothing is hid. And therefore he hath taken notice of my adverfaries pride and petulancy, and of my fimplicity for benefits received, we move God to continue his favour, and and innocency; and feeing the vanity of their proud brags feateth all the machinations and war-like preparations of wicmy beart rejojetth in the Lord ] Or, exulteth, leapeth and ked men, wherein they put all their truft. In which metaphor nax urrough reconents and weakness are not able to wait, but are ready to flumble at any thing that lyeth in their way, are fo firengthred with his might, that they are able to leap over, and over-come all difficulties, even above the power of nature, as it fareth with me in my cafe.

they that were full have bired out themselves for bread] i.e. They that were rich, and fared sumptuously and delicately. are now brought to that poverty, penury, and want of necessaries, that to relieve their extream wants, of food and clothing, they are constrained to work like bired servants, for a poor living, Luk. 1.53. Lamen. 5.6. And this was that judgement fins of his fons, v. 36.
and they that were bungry ceased ] To wit, to be still hungry, my mounts nemerged over my enemies] Whereas in the time of my barrenness, shurth one speak, or open my mouth, when I heard the reproaches of my infuling adverfup Yeninnab, but heard the reproaches of my infuling adverfup Yeninnab, but was fain to be fitten, and ber all with patience, having nothing shurth of the shurt was rain to be incutain over an with patience, naving nothing to the first the most observed with a numerous potential to answer; now by Gods giving me a long as my heart is did not all, or the most of them; and the relights the that and the potential only not make the process of the proces pride, arrogancy and unthankfulnels, and contrariwise had be-flowed that bleffing upon Hannah, who was humble and

So that the barren hath born feven That is, many children; for fo the feptinary number is often taken, as being a number of fulnels and perfection ; So Ilai.4.1. Deut. 28.7.

and the that hath many children is waved feeble] That is, either and gracious the Lord hath been unto me, and now much aregrowen his fall-witting a that is, in this benefit whereby the Lord hath faved me from the reproach of my adverlary; a that Lord hath faved me from the reproach of my adverlary; a that
V. 1. There is none boy as the Lord | For he is effective |
V. 1. There is none boy as the Lord | For he is offential |
Not in his Nature and Beering, whereas the most creatures |
Not make the lord | For he is offential |
Not make the lord |
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present
Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of Present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of Present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of Present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of Present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Grind of Present Hannahapplyet to the reld, who Daving the Company the C that the should be the mother of many more children, as ap-peared in the event; God giving her, besides Samuel, two sons, and two daughters, ver. 21.

V. 6. The Lord killeth and maketh alive] That is, God by his almighty power disposeth of men by his all-ruling providence, according to his own good pleafure, and bringeth them into several and contrary estates and conditions, as in his wifdome be thinketh beft; and that, whether we understand lit of divers men, of which he exalteth fome, and caffeth down olvers men, of which he exaften foller, and carten down others into miferies and afflictions, or elle, of the fame man, whose condition he often changeth; sometimes advancing him to great prosperity, and sometimes deprefing him into the depth of milery. And this is the fum and substance of this and trouble, and from all billowes of tentations; and our onely for-terfa and from gold, to protted and defend us from the malice and rage of all our enemies. And thus the Lord was Hannabs cock; that is, be the frenged, that upplied her when the was ready to fink in the time of her trouble; the rock on which the reflect and relayed, when her intit wing advertisary interacted to the reflect and relayed, when her intit wing advertisary interacted to which we have examples in the Shunamites fon, 2 King.4.35. waten we naverxampies in the Saunamites 100, 2 Atol. 4.35.
Jainu's daughter, Mark 5. 42. the poor widows 100, 3
Luk. chapter 7. 12. Lazarus, Joh. 11. 44. & Dorcas, Act. 9.
40. or else we may better understand it, of desperate, dangerous, and extream miseries and afflictions, whereby men are sinash, or any other adverfary infult over me with their proud gerous, and extream miteries and amicross, and anticulous, and the properties of the control life to posterity when she was barren, and fo in her conceir in the depth of mifery, and now revived, when God had made her fruitful, and the mother of a fon.

be bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up] Which words have the fame lance with the former : For the grave fignifieth Notes upon Deut. 13.13. Judg 19.22. And ch. 1.16. 1 King. properly the flate of the dead, corrupting and rotting in the at. to. grave; or elfe, it is taken metaphorically, for a flate of deep and deforrate milery and affliction, out of which there is no more hope of recovery, then of railing a dead man out of his grave In which condition Hannah thought her feif to be, when the was daily subject to the reproaches of her Advertary, for her barrenneis. So David, in many places, Pill. 16. 10. & 18. 5. 82 116. 2. & 130. 1. or elfe it is taken far the flare of those that are in spiritual desertions, and in their own apprehension, forfaken of God. And so David, Pial. 22.1, and our bleffed Saviour himself for a time, when he bore our fias upon the crofs, Math. 27-46. or finally, it fignifieth, the flate of the dam-and lifterb up the begger from the dunghill] i. c. He raileth men from the molt abject and base conducton, to a frate of glory and eminency, from beggery to Soveraignty; and from the dunghill to the throne, Pfal. 113.7.

for the pillars of the earth are the Lords ] i. e. Gad is the Lord of the whole earth, from the one pole to the other, and by his fole command ( though it hangeth in the ayr) he hath firmly fore communes ( though transgets in the ayr) he hash himly founded it upon the Center, a sift it were upon pillax, fo as it cannot be moved, and hath made it the Center of the whole world; the whole frame thereof being carried sound about it, Job 38, 4, 4. Fila. 104, 2, 5. St. 102, 2, 5.

V. 9. He mill kept by fars of bit Sainsi ) Or, thousand on a community of the saint of the s benigne, i. e. gracious and merciful, like their heavinly Father, Matth. 5. 44, 45. that is, all their affections, counfels, 9. & Jer. 10. 23.

the wicked fall be filent in darkness That is, affighted and aftonified in their miferies and calamities, Ecclef. 5.17. Zeph. 1. 15. and to confounded with fhame, that they fhall not mutter or have a word to lay, though now in their pride and arlence of the wicked in the grave, when as they shall be cut off lence of the wicked in the grave, when as they man become of from the land of the living, Plat. 94. 17. For by frength fold no man presult ] That is, by his own frength, but only by the power of God a and therefore when he prevaleth in any of his enterprizes, he is not to ar-rogate the praise to himself, but to ascribe it wholly unto the

V. 10. The adverfarles of the Lord shall be broken in pieces ]
That is, those that oppose his holy and faithful ones; for those that are their enemies, are Gods alfo, by fpecial covenant, Zach, 2.8. Gen. 12.3. Now whereas it is faid, that they fhall be broken in pieces, that is, utterly descated and overhrown, like to relate, ch. 7.10.

out of beaven shall be thunder upon them ] That is, Gods suddain and unexpected vengeance, shall destroy and take them away; as the Egyptians which were drowned in the red fea, and the hundred and five thousand of Senacheribs host, slain by the Angel in one night.

The Lord shall judg the ends of the earth | That is, He shall bring the whole world unto judgement, so as none shall escape; A sh according to the law, but they must have it raw, that they which as it may be meant of all the world in its feveral parts, to especially of that univerful judgement, at Christs second coming, of whom Hannah here prophesieth, as by the wo ds following more plainly appeareth.

And he [hall give firength to hik Kings] That is, typically to David, Solomon, and the rest of the good Kings, whom he made victorious over all their enemies; But principally to bis fon Christ, who had all power, in heaven and earth, committed unto him, Matth. 28. 18. and obtained victory over all his encmies, Iuk. 1.79. Pfal. 148. 14.

and exist the born of ble annoisted ] That is, the Messias Jesus Christ, of whom the here prophesieth; and of whom David and Solomon were types, and in that sence may also be here understood.

V. 11. And the childe did minister unto the Lord before Eli by Priff 1. And coronac and manufar mass me have a copie with the Priff 1. e. According to Elies direction, be performed furth fervices in the cabernacle, as, in respect of his sender years, he was able to execute. For though, as a Levite, he might not enter upon these fervices, before he was trenty fire. years of age, yet, as a Nizarite, he had some special dispensation, being devoted and confectated upto God from his mo.

V. 12. Now the four of Eli, were the four of Belist | See the a.1. to. The know not the Lord ] i.e. Though by their education, under a godly father, they had a speculative knowledge of God and his law, yet they they had no practical, plyiminal, efficacious and faving knowledge of faith, cashing them to believe what they known, on in rieffect of their calling and wife, were soll powerfully and profitably to teach others, or to wroke their tearts to the lowe and fear of God, or to bring forth the fruits earts to the lowe and fear of God, or to bring forth the fruits. of obedience in their lives and converfations. And in this respect, they are faid not to have known him at all, Rom. 1. 28. Tit 1. 16. 1 Joh. 2.4. Jer. 9.3.

And the Priefts cuften with the people was 1 i.e. A wicked cols, with. 27-00- or interpret spatial contract cases and in self-contracts, Feld. 9.1. The trained september 19-10 and in self-contract to Color of the V. 8. He railed september 19-10 and a thicking. Plai. 13.2.7. Job 36. 11. Luk. Interpret 19-10 and a thicking. Plai. 13.2.7. Job 36. 11. Luk.

that when any man offered [acrifice] i.e. Brought a facifice to be offered by the Pricits.

V. 13. Whileft the flesh was infecthing They were fo given to their appetite, that they would not flay till the fl. fn was fooden. according to the law, and then take that part which belonged unto them ; but before God was ferved, they ferved their own with a flesh book] See Exed. 27.3.

all that the flesh-book brought up, the Priest took for himself! Here was their fecond fin and militarriage, namely, the fin of injuffice and rapine, in taking away by violence the peoples right, and converting it to their own use. For God had allowed unto them, as their portion, the right shoulder, the breit and cheeks, with the tongue; which parts, (as fome think) were ther, Marth. 5-44-45, that is, all their affections, councils, allowed them, to put them in minde of their duty; that is, to endeavours, and actions, Pfal. 150, 107. Ecclefiel, 27, and devote unto Gods fervice, their tongue in praising him and will bath direct and protect them in all their wayes, Prov. 16. [teaching his people; the brell, the feat of the heart, which God, above all other parts, requireth in his worfhip; the right shoulder, which is (as it were) the arm and hand of the facrifices to fignificathat they must ferve God with the hand, as well as with the tongue; and joyn with their doftring, an holy life and conversation, to gain the more authority unto it, and to organicie his yar full of bragging and boothing. So Josephin A aders their profession by their actions, and performing all Jer. 8.14. [Matth. 23.12. Others understand it, of the faportion which God had allowed them; but out of their covetoulness, greediness, and intemperance, incroached upon that which was due to others, and catched all that came to hand.

See Annotat. on ch. 1.4.
So they did in Shilob, unto all the Ifraclites that came thisker Which is added, as a double aggravation of their fins First, that they committed this wrong and rapine in Shiloh, where the tabernacle was feated, and fo in God prefence, in a special manner, And fecondly, that they did not thus offend against fome few, but even against the whole people of God, which came to worthin there.

V. 15. And before they burnt the fat] Their fin was their broken in pieces, that is, utterly decated and overhorown, like V. 15. statl course top was 100 pag. I want in wes used an earthen welfel, which being broken can never be pieced together; this may be propheterally underflood of those overhorows which they had from Gods pecker in fourne times; and wards, as the liver, caul, and kidnes was burned, they exaded particularly, of that overthrow which was given them soon after, in Samuels time; a unto which the words following feem the state of the st Lord, as acknowledging that they had their portion from him, as his free gift, but prophanely feized upon it, as their own due,Lev. 7.34. & 9.21.
Give me flesto roft for the priest ] Here is their fourth, fin of daintiness and wantonness, taxed; by which they onely cared to please their palate and appetite, and neglected Gods commandement. For they would not be contented to eat fod might cook it, to pleafe their licorous tafte.

V. 16. to burn the fat presently ] i.e. In the first place so offer it unto the Lord, as being his due, according to the law, and then take as much as thy foul defreth] Not regarding their own profit, but onely defiring that God might be ferved a right, according to his law.

Levit. 3. 3. 4.

and if not, I will take by force] Which was their fift fin about Gods (acrifice, that they had no regard to law or juffice, but acted what they pleafed with rapine and violence a not staying to receive their due from him that offered the facrifice, but taking what they lift, and both when, and how they plea-

V. 17. Wherefore the fin of the young men was very great he-fore the Lord ] That is, though they flighted all this they did, as tricks of youth, and acted them all, as demonstrations of their as tricks of youth, and acced them anys demonstrations of their power and priviledg; yet they were heinous fins in Gods fight. First, because they were presumptions, and committed with an high hand against him, Secondly, because they tended much to his dishonour, in the prophaning of his worship, and abuse of his ordinances. Thirdly, because they were evil examples to Gods people; and by their practice, led them into all prophanels and Atheilm, whom they ought to have infruited in the knowledg of Gods Iaw, and the wates of goatheris, in te-fpect of their place and calling; or elfel by causing them to labbor Gods Iarrifices, and utterly to nepted his working and fervice, when as they faw it prophased by their abominable implicites, law, together with the peace, or thanks-offering, or the fleihof onely carrieth it on in general tearms, of evil dealings, as loat the facrificed beaft.

Chap.ij.

per only to the high Priest; of which, see Exod. 28. 4.6. The other of linnen, for inferiour Priefts and Levices, which others also might use in Gods service, 2 Sam.6.14. See the Note on

V. 19. Moreover, his mother made him a little coat] As a token of her love and care over him, though he were ablent from her, and consecrated to Gods service, having also therein(it may be) another end, namely, to give fome thing towards his maintenance, he being unable, in respect of his tender age, which he asked. That is, in flead of the fon dedicated to God, who was obtained by prayer.

V. 21. And the Lord vifited Hannah ] That is, according to Elies bleffing made her a fruitful mother of many child en ; which is added to flew, how efficacious the prayers of Gods faithful Ministers are ; for no fooner had Eliprayed, and bleffed them, but presently he saw a return of his prayers, in their fruit-fulnes, whom he had prayed for.

And the childe Samuel grew before the Lord To wit, in flature, wisedom, and all grace and goodness. So Luke 1. 18.

& 2.57. Vom Eli was very old ] Which is added, either to or, rather to extenuate it, feeing he was fovery old, that he is finer turn from his fin by unfained repentance, and laying or, ratter to extensive a, seeing in was rovery one to place in past interest continuous and by manner rependence, and rying could not by converfing with his fons, himfelf takenotice of hold upon Chriff by a lively faith, bath him, by his mediation, to tabematel Heb. affembled by troops. Which is here brought in ciliation; and cauled them allot to be abhorred by others. See as another part of their abominable wickedness, whereby they highly dishonoured God, in that being his Priests, they gave themselves over to such outragious folly and filthiness; defiled and diffraced themselves in doing such abominations, as were fo unfultable to their high and holy calling; and grievously offended the people of God, either encouraging them by their lewd example to commit the like villanies 3 (feeing like priefts, like peoples) or to abbor their profession, and the very worthip of God intelf, for their sakes; because they being so notorioully wicked, were in respect of their place, chief actors in it. Now what women these were whom they thus abused, it is hard to fay; some think, they were such, as out of their devotion, reforted to the fanctuary, for the performance of religious duties, as fasting, prayer, and the like; as we read, that Annah was fuch an one, Luk. 2.37. And if fo, then their impiety was the more abominable, in their abusing and entiting them to filthinels, who had confecrated themselves to Gods service. Others suppose, that they were women which frequented the Others suppose, that they were women which requested the door of the tabemacle, to perform fome meetlary fervices belonging unto it, as walning, feouring, fpinning, and the like, and there to receive influencions and directions from the Priests and Levites, for the doing of that which should be required of them, Exod. 38.8. And others imagin that they were women, who after their child-bearing came to be purified, and to offer their gitts, according as the law had in this cafe provided, Levit. 12. 6. But we need not to be very curious in gravate the fin of Elies fon, who being under the tuition and enquiring which of these they were, or whether not all these, government of the same man, and enjoying the same means of one with another, feeing it is not likely, that they were very good education, were yet never the better for it, which should curious in making their choyce, but were ready to take any move all parents and governours to use their best endeavors to opportunity to fatisfie their luft, when it was, at any time, or by bring up those under them in the nurture and fear of God, yet any persons, presented unto them. The which their sin was much aggravated, in that they had wives of their own, to preferve them from these strange lusts, as appeareth, ch. 4.19. V. 23. And he said unto them, Why do ye such things ] Eli, being not onely a father, but also a chief Magistrate and Judg, could have done no less, then to have sharply reproved them; come user time to his media to user many reporter means participated them with all feverity, by calling them out of the priests officer, which they had fo financiefly, prophaged a or For whereas there were two forts of men thus imployed, one they remain the priests officer, which they had fo financiefly, prophaged a or in the knowledg of Gods law, and the waies of godlines, in re- otherwise punishing them for their adultery, according to the negoties.

see offering of the Lord Or, the gift of the Lord, that is, the unto them their hunted fins, in their kindes; the very naming git which was to be offered unto the Lord, according to the whereof might have affected them with terror and thame; but any further to displease them, by ripping up their festred fores to the bottom, that they might be cured.

by all this people That is, who dwelt at Shiloh, or that come thither to offer facrifice; all which take notice of your mifcarriages, and have reported them to me.

V. 24. Nay my fons, it is no good report that I hear ] He should have faid, wicked wretches that you are, and utterly unworthy to be called the fons of a religious parent, rather 2 graceless and digenerous off-fpring, and ions of Belial ; I hear of your horrid rillanies and abominable wickedness, for which you deserve the hatred of God and men. But he minceth the matter, and doth not fo much as give it the title of an evil fame, but saly that it was not a good report, that he heard of his maintenance, he being unable, in respect of his tender age, to metric by his ferrice in the taberrange.

V. 10. And El hoffer Elegand as the mife] To wirt, in the name and place of the Lord, as being his high Pricet; and therefore, they appraised his miletary principles of the Lord, as pepared his metric property of the Elegand Pricet.

Full and brench of it, as appeared his methods and the control of th

Heb. the gods shall judge bim. That is, the Magistrates who are called Gods, Exod. 21. 6. Plalm, 82. 1. 6. The meaning is, if one man bath trespassed against another, the Magistrate may take; up the controversie between them, by executing jullice, and causing the delinquent to make fatisfaction unto the partie whom he bath offended, and trespassed against.

Hie If a man fin against the Lord | That is, immediately, prefinaptuoully, and with an high hand, against knowledg and confrience, who can mediate? to work a reconciliation betwin finful man and this supream Majesty; seeing the fin is committed against the Judg himself, unto whom no latisfaction canbe made by meer mortal man, to compose the difference, V. 22. (1988 at 1988 and 1988)

And the first of providing and correcting the fin of consecution of the providing and correcting the fin of consecution and peace between them; unless his form more flustryly and feverely, as became his old age; junded to produce reconciliation and peace between them; unless his form the providing the pro count not by converting was also sons, minuted as brought unto work his peace. But especially, what means of reconci inton their flus, in their ill administration, but as it was brought unto their fins, in their ill administration, our asis was orongen unto him by the reports and complaints of others or, if the did, yet in reflect of this very old age, they did not much regard in reflect of this very old age, they did not much regard the reports, being men grown, married, and fathers of chil-dren. and how they lay with the women that affembled as the door of the | phaned thefe factifices, which were the onely means of recon-

Notwithstanding they bearkened not to the voice of their father. because the Lord would flay them] i.e. Because their fin was fo abominable and heinous in it felf, and fo fearfully aggravated by divers circumstances, as being committed by such persons, of such an high and holy calling, against fo many and great means and mercies, as they enjoyed, and against their knowledg, and the testimony of their own consciences, willingly and wifully, rebellioufly and prefumptuoufly, the Lord was refolved not to pals by and pardon it, nor that it should be purged by facrifice nor offering, for ever; therefore as a righteous Judg, he willingly fuffered them to go on in their fin, and gave them over to the hardness of their hearts, to add iniquity unto iniquity, P(al. 69. 27. justly punishing one fin with another, and with-drawing his grace, whereby they might have been restrained or brought to repentance, because he was purposed to destroy them for their abominable wickedness, whereof it came to pass, that being thus left to themselves, they became deaf to their fathers admonitions and reproofs, 2 Chr. 25. 16.

V. 26. And the childe Samuel grew on and was in favour, Sc. ] .e. As he daily grew in years, so in grace and godliness, whereby he became acceptable both to God and men, which is here inserted, to magnifie Gods free grace and goodness, in that he was not corrupted by the wicked base example of his Elders and superiors, with whom he lived and conversed; and to agnot to rest herein as sufficient, but continually to implore Gods blessing, and the affishance of his holy Spirit; without which, all their labours will be spent in vain, Pfal. 127. I.

V. 27. And there came a man of Ged unto Eli] That is, a Prophet raifed by God extraordinarily for this fervice , who in a special manner is entituled, a man of God, because he was his ordinary in the common work of the Ministry; the other, others more probably (as appeareth by the co-herence of this extraordinary, indued with a prophetical spirit; this man of with that which followeth) do understand it of future times; God was of this latter kinde, 2 Pet. 1, 21. 1 Tim. 6. 11. namely that Eli should see it, not with his own eyes, but that 27 m. 3. 17. Now who this man of God was, is not mentihis politerity, to their great grief, should behold these fearful oned in the Scripture; and therefore we ought not curiously to predictions verified; to wit, inquire after it.

Irhamar Eli was descended.

he deal with him by way of exposulation, the more powerfully high prices office, and put Zadok in his room, I King, 1, 26. to convince him of his fin and unthankfulnels; as though he 27. For this is ufual in the Scripture, to fpeak that of the Father had faid , are all my special favours to thy fathers family above which is not sulfilled in him, but in his posterity; (as we see in others, come to this, that thou, and thy fons should thus ungratefully abuse them.

all the offerings made by fire] i. e. All that remained of those offerings, when the fat of the inwards was burnt with fire Levit. 6. 17. Deut. 18. 1.

V. 19. Wherefore do ye kick at my [acrifice ] Why do ye, like your feet, by your prophane administration, whereby you have chiefest plenty and dignity. allo made them contemptible to the people; where the fin of Elihis sons, is charged upon him, because, having power in remain in the office of the priest-bood. his hand , he did not reftram and punifh them , Deut. 32.

the Haugater of the Publithus, and maltacre by Saul, and unatable thea me, not punishing them for their flas, not curving the through the presence of the Publithus, and maltacre by Solumon.

The property of the prictile of the presence of the property of the process of the prictile of rather then me, not punishing them for their fins, nor turning them out of the priests office, which they have so shamefully longed to me, with other parts also that were due unto the peo-well, according to your high place and calling. And therefore, the reft likerife, according on my prediction, shall come to passe, feeing you have broken covenant with me, by your prophine. at first made to Aaron and his family, Exod. 28.43, & 19. 9. that his whole feed should enjoy, the priviledg of the Priestcerned Elies posterity, who for the horrible impieties commit- execution of his priestly office. ed by his fons, were in a great part quite cut off, and the reft reduced to a low and mean condition, ch. 28.18.

but now the Lord faith, Be it far from me ] To wit, that accorand your felves.

they that honor me, I will honor ] i. e. They that give glory to my holy Name, by worshipping me aright, and advancing the means of my pure service before my people, I will make them also to be held in honourable esteem in their fight; but they that dishonor me, by causing my service and sacrifices to be despised, as you have done, I will bring them, by such punishments as I will inflict upon them, into contempt and reproach.

V. 31. I will cut off thine arm ] i. e. Thy chief strength. So Job 22.9. Pfal. 37. 17. namely by taking away thy two fons, who are the strength of their parents, especially in their old age.
and the arm of thy fathers bonse i.e. By cutting off thy polte-

rity, which was done by Saul, who caufed 85 of the Lords priefts to be flain at one time, Abiather only escaping by flight, and only true high Prictl, in the faithful execution of his office, for also by putting our Abiathar, and the reft that remained, from ever, i.e. as long as he lived. executing their prieftly function; in which, not only their hoexecuting interprietity function; in winter, not conjugate no-nour and dignity, bur also all their power and authority among the people consisted, which was done by Solomon many years after; and therefore it is not faid, that it should be prefently executed, but expressed in the future.

Behold, the dayes come, &c. there shall not be an old man in thine boufe] i.e. They shall be all cut off in their youth, and not live to reverend and old age, as Hopbni and Phinehas leaving two young fons, Ichabod, and Abitub, behinde them, ch. 14.3. and afterwards the 85 of his posterity flain by Saul. Some un derstand it, that there should not be an elder in his posterity that is, one indued with wildome and counfel, fit to fit in their Sauedrim, or to execute any publick office of Magistracic.

V. 32. And thou fhalt fee an enemy in my habitation ] Or, the affliction of the Tabernacle, for all the wealth which God would have | 9. Ila. 13.12. given Ifract] Where by enemy, some understand the Philistims captive, and so deprived the tabernacle of it for the space of not commonly known; as concerning their peculiar instruction feven moneths, which hapned fuon after, in Elies dayes. But I an enemy in Gods habitation] i. e. another high Prieft and Prieft-hood fubstituted in my temple, in thine and their room; dist plainly appears the boule of thy father] That is, to Aaron, the first Founder of thy house and prict bood, from whose son which thy posterity shall envie and hate as enemies, because, as rivals, they shall enjoy the honour and power. The which was V. 28. And did I chuse bim out of all the tribes ] Thus doth accomplished by Solomon, who thrust out Abiathar from the Jacobs bleffing, Gen. 27. 27. 29. And the promife made to David, which was accomplished in Christ, 2 Sam. 7. 16.) because their posterity are in their loynes.

in all the wealth which God shall give I frael i.e. In all the riches and prosperity which God shall give Ifrael in the dayes of Solomon, when as the Kingdom was in its greatest glory, probruit beafts, contemn and (as it were) trample them under sperity, and riches; and so auswerably, the priest-hood in the

V. 33. And the man of thine] i.e. Of thy posterity, which shall which I shall not cut off from mine altar] i.e. Who shall out live the slaughter of the Philiftims, and massacre by Saul, and shall them out of the priefts office, which they nave to minimize by popularity to would be unto thee futch a worful object of grief and forrow to thine heart, that it would make thee to weep out and to do the.

To make your felver far with the chiefif of all the offerlage] i.e., but concerning each early case the chiefif of all the offerlage] i.e., but concenting your leves with your own portion, you have to consider it: Buyer, though thou thy left finll not live unto facilities of the offerings, that be live to the control of the process of the control of the control of the process of the control of the process of the control o the confuming of their fouls with grief and vexation.

V. 34. And this shall be a fign unto thee, that shall come upon thy ple, and all this, to pleafe and pamper your own bellies.

V. 34. And this fall be a fign was thee, that fluid come upon thy

V. 3. I fald indeed, that the board, and the board of thy father

V. 3. I fould indeed, that the land are the compensation of the compensati blified in the prieft-hood; but this promite was only conditio-nal, and not ablolute, i. e. (o long as you carried your felves the death of thy two fons, wherby thou mayft be affured, that all and wicked courses, I am no longer tyed to make good this dok descended from Eleazar, 1 Cbr. 29.22. Who was faithful to promise; Now, we do not read of any such promise which God, and also to his kings, David, and Solomon, unto whom he made either to Eli, or Ithamar, his father; and therefore it is cleaved, according to Gods Will revealed, and announted him most likely, that here is meant that general promise, which was king, when as Abiathar was in Adonitabs conspiracy; for which he was deposed from the Priest-bood, & Zadok put in his place.

that shall do according to that which it in my heart ] i. e. Both in hood; which promife is now, in part, reverfed, as much as con- annointing him king, whom I have cholen, and in his faithful and I will build him a [ure house] i. c. By multiplying his iffue, and continuing both him and his posterity in the office of the high prieft, and by caufing them to live in an happy and profpeour now not not to the first primary law with an according to this promite you should want be for me for ever, in the execution of the Prieffs office, feeing you have shamefully broom to the Prieffs office, feeing you have shamefully broom to the principal of t and Ifa. 22. 23.

and be shall walk beforemine annointed for ever \ i.e. Shall perform fuch fervices as belong to the high prieft; that is, asking Counfel of God, offering lacrifices, praying for him, and in-flructing him out of Gods Law, as occasion should be offered; which duties, Zadok and his fons did perform to Solomon and his Successors, unto the Babylonish captivity, Ezek. 44.15. and from thence (it is very probable) neer unto the coming of Christ; of whose everlasting priest-hood this being but at pe, was to give place, and to be abolished as a shadow, when the anti-type and fubstance was exhibited, who should continue in the true Pricit bood for ever : In the mean time, Zadok might be faid to walk before, not only Solomon, but also Christ, the every one that is left in thy boufe, shall come and crouch to birn for a piece of filver] i. e. To Zadok and his posterity, as it was fulfiled, 1 King. 2. 26. Ezek. 44. 13. 14, 15, &c. Neither could Abiathars fmall means maintain himself and his samily, after he was deposed, without having some help and relief from the provisions of the Tabernacle and Temple.

CHAP. III.

Verf. 1. A Nd the childe Samuel ministred unto the Lord before and the word of the Lord was precious ] To wit, the Word of extraordinary prophecie; i.e. there were very few Prophets, to whom it was revealed in this extraordinary manner; by reason whereof, it was very precious; because it was very rare, Pfal. 74.

there was no open vision] i e. Howfoever there were (though who giving a great defeat to the Ifraelites, did take the Ark very few) lome visions to particular men in secret, which were there were any fuch visions, they were not cleer and open, but to obfcure and dark, that they were of little ufe, because they were not understood. And this was inflicted upon them in thefe rimes as an heavy judgment of God for their neglect and contempt of his pure worthin and fervice, Amos 8. 12. And is here inferted in the honor of Samuel, feeing in him God was pleased to renew this gift of prophecy, which was intermitted and decayed. Whereof it is, that elle-where in the Scriptures, Samuel is spoken of as the first of the Prophets, 2 Chr. 36.18.

Act. 3.24. Heb. 11.32. not because God had given unto him this gift of prophety before any other; for Noah, Abraham, Kaac, Jacob, and Moles, were prophets, as well as he; but be-cause there being an intermission of it between him and them, it was in him renewed and reflored,

V. 2. And it came to pals at that time | To wit, when the word of the Lord was fo rare and precious.

when Eli was lated down in his place ] i.e. in that lodging which belonged unto him, as high Priest, neer unto the court of the Tabernacle, where he was laid down to take his reft.

and his eyes began to wax dim, that be could not fee] i.e. Not fo cleerly, as in former times, ch. 4. 15. which was also the case of Ifaacand Jacob, Gen. 27.1. & 48.8, 10.

V. 3. Ande're the lamp of God went out in the Templel i.e. The light of the feven lamps in the golden candleftick, which was appointed for the use of the Tabernacle, and was placed in Base and contemptible, by their wicked profiles, and not only the middle of the Temple, in the holy place, without the vail themselves, but also Gods service and facrifices that they admiof the teftimony, where the altar of incenfe, the golden table, niftred, which the people abhorred, because of their wickedness, upon which the fhew-bread flood, was placed, Levit. 24.2. Exo. 25. 23. 31. which was to burn from evening to morning; and therefore was watched all night, that it might be supplyed with oyl, Exod. 27. 20, 21. 8: 10, 7,8. Levit. 24. 3. 2 Chr. 13. 11. Which he ought, in punishing their fin, in respect of that aunight, and not much before the morning, when the light of the a Judge, according to the heinculnels of that wickednels comlamns went out.

and Samuel was laid down to fleep | To wit, in the lodgings of the Levites, and in that, amongst them, which was neerest to the lodging of the high priest, because his effice being in a special manner to minister unto him, he was to be within the of the oath, in which something is concealed, as if he had baid, hearing of his call, that he might come to do him service early let me not live, or, let me never becounted true, if it shall ever was revealed by vision, or voice, and speech, as the words folwas revealed to be freed from death external. See ch.2.25.

unto him.

V. 14. And Samuel — opened the doors of the house In the

V. 8. And Eli perceived that the Lord had called the childe?

forely have addrettied himsels to him that i passe, and not have run unto Ell; but now it its falls, that he not only called, as before, but allo came and food, which makes it to be very pro-bable, that God him (or an angel, at lealt, as the food him (or an angel, at lealt, as ). fent from him) in some visible shape, as the Angel of the Lord is faid to have flood in the way of Balaams Afs, Num. 22.22,26. and the is faid to have feen him in a visible shape, v. 23.

grees, for my terms noteron 1.6. accentate, and is reasy to 1 known to him who was term? Concerned in 15 to know to obby; the doth not my (preak for a skil had raughthin, but [earli, and loth to doit, breathe he was unwilling to be the only, fock; and the caule of this omiffion, is probably thought mefflenger of fuch fad tydings, which would exceilingly give to be, that he was to deeply affected and nanzed with Gods to be that the was not of copy affected and nanzed with Gods to learn of his Tutor and Governous, whom the fod early loved; glorious voice and preferee, that he forgot, in part, what was or left he should be taxed of pride and function, for administration of the control of th taught him, as it is not unufual with men for ode, when lower the control of the with his Majefty and authority.

flaughter of the 85 Priefts, and the abdication and depoing of Edged as Samuels frailty and weaknets, feeing he was bound Eli his posterity from the executing of the Priests office, which to deliver Gods Word and Messee, without any disputes or should be so hideous and horrible, that the ears that heard it carnal reasonings.

on and direction, as to Manaoh and his wife, Judg. 13. yet | should tingle; and this is a phrase vied in Scripture, to signific on and direction, as to season and an arrange of the publique Ministry of prophets was very rare and lacet, and luch a great horror and affornimment upon the bearing of fome hardly any one fuch was known openly to the people; or if terrible accident, as shall weaken and debilitate the very single. and the organs and influments of hearing, like a fudden clap of thunder, or the report of a Cannon going off neer the ear. So King. 21, 12. Jer. 19.3. the which we fee foon after executed in the lamentable example of Eli himfelf, and the wife of Phinchas, and was (no d ubt) in after-times, when the judgments denounced, were inflicted on Elies posterity.

which I have speken To wit, by the man of God. See ch. 2, 27.

V. 12. when I begin, I will make an end] i.e. I will not dally or delay, nor de filt from perfecting the work of my just vengeance threatned, when I have once begun it; and therefore by feeing the beginning, they may affuredly conclude and expect the ending.

V. 12. For I have told him that I will judge his house for ever I

That is, I will punish it untill it be utterly ruined. So Gen. 1.

for the iniquity which he knoweth] To wit, not only by the reports and complaints of all the people, ch.2,23. but allo by the Prophet which I fept unto him, v. 29, whereby his fin is much aggravated, in that, baving made known unto bim all their wickedness, he had not hitherto taken any course to restrain them from committing it, by inflicting upon them deferred punishments.

because his sons have made themselves vile Or . accur ed. i.e.

and be reffraired them not ] Heb. frowned not upon them. i.e. He was fo far from restraining them, by using that severity mitted by them, that he did not fo much as discourage, them in it , by frowning upon them, 1 King. 1.6.

I have (worn to the honse of Eli, that the iniquity of Elies bouse

full not be purged | Or, if it fhall be purged, Which is the form bearing of us can, wat are might come to do imm tervice early are me not use, or, see me never becaused title, it is made ver and late, the which Samuel accordingly performed with all displaces, as appeareth by the text.

V. 7. Now Samuel did in a set have the Lord | Or, thus did |
Samuel before be knew the Lord, and before the word of the Lord | their borrid wicks duels, he would withdraw his grace from was revealed unto him] i.e. Though Samuel knew the Lo d in them, and leave them to them fil es, to go on in their wickedan ordinary manner, as other pious men did know him, yet be ness without repentance, to their utter and endless perdition; knew him not in an extraordinary manner, peculiar to the prophets, whereby the Will of God concerning things to come, posterity, should not be prevented or averted by any facrifices or oblations; though upon unfeigned repentance, they might wildernels the Tabernacle had no doors, but only curtains, that By his often coming to him upon his militakes, he plainly perit might the more cash y be removed from place to place; but crived that it was the Lord who had called him, and confenow it was fixed in Shiloh, it feemeth, that it was inclosed and centremate where now must make them, and conter- power was taked in Solvon telement, that it was included and centrement which has a firewards related, feared about with a fold and firm building, which had doors was undoubtedly fent unto him from God; of which, other, belonging to it, and within which, were the lodging of the wife, he might have been doubtful and fulpitous, the high hard. Politics and Levites, advaying to the Talerande; which doors ly to be believed against himself, that the Lord would reveal his in their office were opened and shur by the Levites, and so now V. 10. And the Lord came and flood, and called as at other lord configuration. Before the only called, and Samuel heard the voice, and favorable the other lord came and appeared and floods to this configuration. The configuration of the con time?] Before he only called, and Samuel heard the voice, and far improper the continuous of the conti vealed by this vision. i. e. Though he knew that he ought not to conceal it, feeing it was a matter of great importance, which God had purposely revealed unto him, that he might make Beak, for thy [ervant heareth] i.e. attendeth, and is ready to it known to him who was chiefly concerned in it; yet he was fended with him, for relating unto him fuch an unpleating V. 11. I will do a thing in Ifreed, at which hash the care of every ruth, being fo much his Superior, in that he was his aged one that beareth full tingle! Whereby are meant, all those beary Tutor, the high prieft, and fupream Judge of all the people, judgements which were afterwards inflicted, as the defeate of the Head of the prieft, and fupream Judge of all the people. Headlies, the taking of the ark 5 the death of Elies fons; the fed out of him by Elies carnett adjuration, much be acknowledged by the prieft, and the additional made dense food libed of a Samuelet fairward was facilities. Gains he was bound

V. 16. Then Elicalled Samuel] That is , knowing that by event, according to his predictions, and the relation following wifion God had appeared unto him, he could not rest till be had in the chapter, especially in that fearful defeat and saughter of told him the fum and fubitance of it.

V. 17. What is the thing that the Lord bath faid unto thee? I pray thee hide is not from me | Being to laceiy and through y con-vinced of his own and his fons hemous fins, and terrified with try was a part of the land of Canan, which God had given to Gods heavy judgments denounced against them by the man the Israelites, and fell unto the lot of Judab, who fore showing of God lent unto him; and now knowing that God by vision the time of casting them our proported by God at their first enhad appeared unto Samuel, out of the guilt of conference, he trance into the land, were not able, by reafon of their fins of suspecteth and searcth, that the things revealed in that vision apostosic and idolatry, to do it afterward, though they attemptdid chiefly concern aim and his fons; and his heart mifgave ed it; upon which occasion there was continual war between him, that it would prove fonc fid prediction of their ruine and them, in which, fometimes the one, and fometime the other him, that it would prove found to preaction or user time of the control to the co der the penalty of a fearful curfe.

V. 18. And he faid, It is the Lord] i. c. It is, Jehovah, the Creator and Governour of all things, who justly threatnesh i who is only wife, and knoweth what is best, and fictely to be done, for his own glory and our good; and though he bath ablo are power over the creatures, to do with them what he plea'eth, yet he is so infinitely good in himself, and gracious to all that depend upon him, and fubmit to his holy Will, that nothing shall befal them but what he wil turn to their present and everialiting good: And therefore howfoever these judgments be very heavy, which he hath denounced against me and my boule; yet I bave no just cause to murmur against him, but must patiently bear what he shall be pleased to inflict.

who know not what i good for me, but what he pleafeth, who being infinitely wile, knoweth better then I, how to dispute of them the stone of help.

me for his nown placy, and my everlasting good. So David, and the Philistims pitted in Appel Or, besides Apple, Which 15.26. Plal. 39.9. And Hezekiah, Ilau 39.8. And our bleffed Saviour him elf. Math. 26.39. whereby it appeareth, that though Eli had his great failings, and defervedly fuffered for his grievous fins, yet he was dear unto God, as being his faithful childe and lervant, who repented of his fins, judged himfelf and with all mecknoss and humility, denyed his own will, and fread. patiently submitted himself and all his, to the good pleasure of Almighty God.

V. 19. And Samuel grew and the Lord was with him ] i.e. He grew both in ftature and ffrength, from chile-houd and youth, unto ripe age; and alfo in grace and goodness, being in favour both with God and man; and the Lord was with him in a fpecial and extraordinary manner, favouring, and multiplying bis rook in hand, Gen. 29.2,21.

and did let none of his words fall to the ground ] A metaphor borrowed from things, which by falling perith, as glass, or water fpilt on the ground; for words cannot properly be faid thus to fall : And hereby is meant, that what he spoke or prophevain, and of no effect.

V 20 And all I (racl from Dan to Beer fliebs ) i.e. All the people of Ifrael inhabiting the whole land, from one end of it to delivered by firength into captivity and his glory into the enemies the other: Northward from Dan, and Southward to Beershaba. hand. 62. He gave his people over alfo to the swerd Ge 64. Their See Judg. 10. 1, 2.

knew that Samuel was offablifhed to be a Prophet of the Lord ]Or, by him, that the Lord had effectually called and fent him to exe-cute this prophetical office, and had firmly fieled him in it, by why God should deliver them into the hands of their enemies, making good his own word in his mouth, and bringing all things topals, according to his prediction, D:ur. 18. 22.

V. 21. And the Lord appeared again in Shiloh ] i.e. After the long intermission and cofficion of prophetical visions, whereby the Word of the Lord was become rare and precious, the Lord renewed this gift of prophecie, by appearing in Shiloh unto Sa-muel, let us fetch the ark of the Covenant of the Lord Where, after by the word of the Lory | To wit, which was revealed to Samuel by dreams and prophetical visions, (which before his time, were become for are and precious) that he might reveal his (fo called, because the two tables of the law containing the co-Word and Will unto the people. So th.4.1. Others bereby un-derstand(and very probably) the eternal word of the Lord Jelus thinking, that the absence of it in the time of battle, was the Christ, the effential word and wisdom of his Father, Joh. 1. 1. cause of their defeat; whereby they showed that they put more by whom the Lord revealed his Word and Will unto Samuel, in prophetical visions. So a Sam. 2. 21.

pentance, but also when they repented not, was verified in the cious unto him, to be taken and carried captive, and to be

them by the Philiftims.

How If set went out seasing the Philiftims to battle 7 The cause bute, which they (being grown to fome more ft ength, by rearene penalty of a team of the control of Ruth, and more alfo] See the Annotation on Ruth, lon of the great flaughters which Samplin had made of their v. 17. ders at his death, and also increasing in it, by reason of the peace, which ever fince that time they enjoyed.) now refuling to thefe heavy judgments against me and my family, for our fins, payand the Philiftims invading their country, the fire lites raife an army in their own defence, and come out against them to battle; God by his wife providence inclining their hearts unto it, that hereby he might execute his heavy judgments upon the people, and especially upon Eli and his fons, according to the prediction by the man of God and Samuel.

and pitched beside Eben-ezer ] i.e. The stone of help, which was fer up by Samuel between Mizpeh and Shen, upon the occasion of a victory of the Ifraelites against the Philistims, ch. 7. 11. And therefore is fo called here by anticipation, because it was the name of it, not when the Ifraclites encamped here . let him do what feemeth bing good ] i.e. Not what I think beft, but afterwards, when this flory was written : For otherwife at this time, it might rather be called the flone of flaughter.

> was a City belonging to the tribe of Judah called allo Aphekah. and bordering upon the land of the Philiftims, I fh. 15 53 not in the city it felf, but in the country adjoyning unto it, v. 1. There was another city of this name, in the tribe of After. Jofh. 19.30. V. 2. And when they joyned battle] Heb. when the battle was

V. 3. Wherefore bath the Lord fmitten us to day before the Philiftims? They thought that there was some great and extraordinary caufe, why the Lord, who ordereth the fucces of all battles at his pleasure, should give over his own people to be slaugh-tered by the uncircumcifed Philistims, but they could not guess what it might be, not thinking on, or laying to heart, the great wickedness and heinous sins that reigned amongst both the graces in him, and bleffing and prospering him in all that he Priests and people, as the prophanation of Gods facrifices and fervice by abominable innovations, rapine, and facriledg; and hereupon the contempt and neglect of Gods werthin and holy ordinances; the whoredome of their chief Pricft, imitated (no doubt) by the people con upted by their lewd example; together with their fameful idolatry in those times, which atterfied, came to pais, and proved true in the event, and nothing wards Samuel in a good part reformed, ch. 7.3. at which also the Pfalmift pointerh, 'peaking of thefe times, Pfal. 78. 58.
They moved him to calculic by their graven images, 600. 61. He Priefts fell by the fword, &c. In which fins they continued without repentance notwithstanding that God had fent his Propher, faithful t.e. knew by the accomplishment of all things spoken and Samuel after him, to fore warn them of these judgments the uncircumcifed Philiftims, as thinking that they fliould be born out in all their wickednels, only because they were the seed of Abraham and Istael, making a bare profession of religion, (though in their lives they denyed the power thereof) and had the tabernacle and ark, the legal ceremonics and facrifices, the long debate, at last they conclude, not consulting with God, fence, then in his promifes apprehended by faith.

that when it cometh among us, it may fave us out of the bands of CHAP. IV.

Veri.1. A Ni the word of Samuel came to all Ifrael Or, tennels? They had a frong opinion, that the being of the ark in the camp, would be very efficients for their good fine which God had revealed unto him, concerning the heavy judgments of God denounced spatial like and had the same to the control of God denounced spatial like and had the same to the control of God denounced spatial like and his famely god and their remains, the case it was a figure of Code preferred, who is fair to drawing his hands; it was read to the people for their hences fin., came unto them, for a fine to the control of the farmed and the fine which the world (fifter his uncleanable) are comply preached unto them by Samuel, to bring the fair as the first world came in the control preached unto them by Samuel, to bring the fair as the first world came in the same of control preached and the first his two first his two takes and control carries to prophaned and abused by their unhallowed hands, when as 1 28, 64, according to the prediction of the Prophet, than prophaned and abufed by their untailiowed names, many heads of the control of the Again, they had found by experience of former times, that they had most prevailed against their enemies when they had she ark of God amongst them, as at the siege of Jericho, and chat expedition against the Midianites, Numb. 31.6. and that shey did not protper in their wars, when it was ablent; as Num. 14. 44, 45. which likewise was the cause why in after simes shey used to carry the ark with them into the field, when shey went out to fight against their enemies, as appeareth, ch. 14.18, & 2 Sam. 11. 11. And this maje them to truft in the visible presence of the Ark, more then in the gracious presence and affiliance of God, of which they could not juffly conceive any hope, to long as they continued in their fins without of she Lord of bofts ] i. e. Supream General and Commander of all Armies, both of Angels in heaven, and men upon the earth; and hath an Almighty power in his hand, to order and dispote of all marrial affairs, giving victory to whom he

the Ark and covering with their wings the mercy feat, that men might not prie into Gods screets. From whence, he 2. Pfal. 80. 2. & op. 1.

lies, and then in the Camp, to which they brought, and did of it, there accompany it, Numb. 4. 15. which was so ordered by V.

V. 6, And they understood] Namely, by their scouts and V. 10 Hand bound or eccho of their (hour spies.

N. 7, Mud the Philistims were afraid, for they faid, God is come into the camp] i.e. The God of Ifrael (who is so strong in a faith them, and to fisht against us so as now battles) is come to affilt them, and to fight against us, so as now we have not men to resift , but even God himself , Exod. when he reported that the ark of God was taken, he fell into woe unto us, for there hath ust been fuch a thing heretofore \ Heb. refterday or the third day. That is, they have never uled, hither-impioully of the only true God after their own idolatrous maner, who worthipped many gods or idols.

20. & 14. 17.

V. 9. That ye be not fervants unto the Hebrews, as they bave kert 19 par Judg. 13. 1. This they add, to animate and en-of eternity, notwithflanding this temporal judgment, by a courage one another to fight it out couragiously to the last man; sudden and unnatural death, might be happy and blessed, seenuous natures, worfe then death it felf. But how much more many evidences, in the flory, of his piety and integrity. when they are conftrained, as flaves, to ferve their enemies ; and yet worft of all, when they are enflaved to fuch enemies, who having been flaves to them, have fuffered many indigni-ties and hard ufage, feeing they will be fure to revenge them-felves on them, when they are fallen into their hands.

V. 10. Fled every manto bis tent] i.e. To his own dwelling. So 2 Chr. 13. 2. 1 King. 13, 6.

there fell of Ifrael thirty thousand foot-men ] For the Armies of the Ifraelites confilled only of footmen, they not using in their battles, horfes, or chariots, because the Lord would not team occurs notices, or country, occasic the Lord would not have them to deribe the glory of their victories to their own firength, but to himself alone, from whom they had obtained them. See John 11, 6, 9, Pfal, 20, 7, and the Ark was raken 3 of Pfal, 78, 65.

in those dayes, to express their grief, that did even rent their hearts in the time of their mourning, and their forrow for fin, whereby they acknowledged, that they were unworthy to bave any clothes to cover their nakedness, or to keep them from the injuries of the weather and with earth upon his beat] Whereby they acknowledged! that they were worthy of death, and that they deferred by their fin, to be as far under the earth, as they were above it. So Jacob, Gen. 37. 34. 2 Sam. 1. 2. See the place, and the Annotation upon it.

V. 12. Elisate upon a seat by the way fide, watching That is: expecting news from the Camp, and the iffue of the expedition

For bis beart trembled for the Ark of God] i. e. Partly out of his guilt and fear, in respect of those sad messages which were fent unto bim from God, by the man of God and Samuel, and lent unto him from God, by the man or God and samuel; and partly out of his zeal for Gods glory, and the good of the peo-ple, which made him thus fearful, left the ark, the holy fign of Gods presence, should fall into the bands of the uncircumeocascini, Job. 25.3.

of Gods presence, should fall into the bands of the uncircumciN. a. white dwelleth between the Cherubins ] Which were of Gods presence, should fall into the bands of the uncircumcifed Phillistims, to be prophaned and abused by them; and in images repreferiting Angels, having the faces of men, and the mean time, Gods own people should be deprived of the mings, and by Gods own appointment, made and placed over comfort of it.

and all the City cryed out ] i.e. lamented for that great defeat, and the taking of the ark.

V. 14. And the man came in baffily and told Eli] In a rafh afterwards, when he was, by the way of Urim and Thummim, and peffinate manner be reported all this fad news at once, consulted by the high Priest, in weighty and difficult cases, Exo. and not by degrees, one thing after another, that by the flow-25. 22. Numb. 7. 8. & 9. 9. See 2 King. 19. 15. 2 Sam. 6. nels of the relation, the former grief and lofs bei ig formewhat difgefted, he might be the better prepared to hear of another . and the two fons of Eli Hophni and Phinches were there ] i.e. which was the cause that it made such a sudden at d violent im-First at the Tabernacle, to fetch the Ark out of the holy of ho- pression into his heart, that he quite sunk under the weight

V. 15. and his eyes were dim that he could not fee Heb, flood. Gods faccial providence, that when the day was loft, and the Or, were so set in his head, that is, wanting natural moyslure, and people routed and put to flight, or killed on the place, they vivacity of spirits, he could not move and turn them about. See alfoattending the ark, (and it may be, defending it against the ch. ? 2. And this was the cause, why sitting on a feat by the Philiffirm) might be flain, according to that prediction of the way fide, he faw not the man as he paffed by him, and to was una quainted with his fad tydings, till in some general man-V. s. So that the earth rang again ] To wit, with the re-er, he took notice of it by the cries and clamours of the peo-

V. 17. Hophni and Phinehas are dead ] i. e. Are flain in the battle.

V. 18. When he made mention of the Ark of God] He endured with some patience to hear of the slaughter of so many thousands of the Army, and the death of both his sons; but fuch an extesse of grief, that quite broke his heart, and so caufed him to fink down into a deadly fwoon be fell from the feat backward by the fide of the gate | i e. Either to, to bring the Ark into the field , which being their chief the gate of the City, where he caused a feat to be fet up, on purthrough, they repole in it all their confidence, as appearett by pole for him to fit on, whileft he waited to hear the news; or, their great flout, as though already they triumphed in victo- the gate of the Tabernacle, where he was accustomed to fit. ch. 1. 9. if at least, it were fo neer the way fide from the camp, V. 8. out of the bands of the emighty Gods Where they spake that it was fit for this use. But the former feemeth to me the more likely.

and his neck brake, and he dyed ] This was an heavy (though yee thefe ere the goes that sease the a Egyptians with all the plagues a temporal) judgment; but howsoever most just from God, and in the wilderness. Or, near the wilderness. For these plagues in a way of recaliation and requited; that Eli, who being same. were inflicted on them in the land of Egypt, and not in the nithed of his fin, would not amend it, by bowing the fiff neck of Wilderneft ie felf; but yet because the greatest plague, which his rebellious fons, with severe punishments, should thus have was the confummation of all the reft, was the drowning of all his own neck broken; both because, being an indulgent father, their holt in the red Sea, which bordered on the Wilderness of he had not by severe discipline, restrained his sons in their loole Etham, upon which their dead carkafes were cast up, therefore and leved courses in due time, whilest being young, there was they name this last, as being the close of all the 18th. Exod. 13. hope, Prov. 19. 18. and also because, being suprem Magistrate, he had not cut them off when they were become de-sperately wicked : Nevertheless, his spiritual state, in respect of eternity, notwithstanding this temporal judgment, by a Seeing fervirude is a base condition, and to liberal and inge- ing (excepting these failings, in respect of his sons ) there are > for he was an old man and heavy] Where the inferior and inftrumental causes of his fall and death, are related, namely, that being blinde, corpulent, and unwieldy, he was not able to thift for himself; yet though he had been young and active, it would not have prevented it, his heart being broken by the former fad and sudden relation, and he fallen into a deadly fwoond.

V. 19. neer to be delivered ] Or, to ery out. fbe bored ber felf and travelled ] As it is usual with women when their pains, and throwes of childe-bearing, come upon them, as they did now upon her, by hearing upon a fudden, this

V. 20. fear not, for thou haft born a fon Which was a fineular comfort in it felf, for a woman in her cafe, to make ber for-Y. 11. Hopbui and Phinches were flais ] Heb. dyed. So Pla get her former forrows, Joh. 16. 11. but as this gave no commuch less to this woman, who was in a far fadder condition, Ifrael, and the vanity and impotency of their idol; who could in respect of the great overthrow of Gods people, the death of her husband and father, but especially the taking away of the Ark, which made fuch a deep impressi on of grief in her heart. that the flighted this ordinary comfort as not worth the regard-

V. 21. And the named the childe Ichabad 1 i.e. Where is the glory; or, there is no gloty, feeing the ark, which was the glomy of Ifrael, (as being a fign of Gods prefence and protection) was carried away captive by the uncircumcifed Philiftims and vin this refued it is called the glory of the Lord, Pfal. 78. 61. So Pfal.24.8 wherein this pious woman showed her love to God, and her zeal to his pure religion , feeing , in comparison of them, the regarded nor either tather or husband, or the fruit of her womb, her only fon.

V. 22. And for faid, the glory is departed from Ifrael ] That is, by repeating the fame words, the more fully expressed the greatness of her grief; wherein, as file shewed her zeal for Gods gloty, so not without some failing and staggering in her fuith, feeling Gods prefence was not fo infeparably tred to the arke the visible fign thereof, that it mult needs fail when it wastaken away; yet it followed not, that the Church and Kingdom of Ilrael must needs come to ruine, feeing they were not grounded upon the prefence of the Ark, but upon Go is Promiles, that they should continue to the coming of the Messas, when as the partition wall being broken down between Jews and Gentiles, they should become one Kingdom and myftical body under Christ their King and Head; upon built her faith, and not upon the visible presence of the fall.

CHAP. V.

Verf. 1. [Rom Eben-Ezer] See chap. 4. 19 unto Albada] Which was one of the five chiefelt Cities of the Philiftims, which is also called Azotus; So Eufebins: Afhdod, which lyeth in the lot of the tribe of Judah, which and is at this day, a famous Town of Paleftine, Act. 8.40.

V. 2. When the Philistims took the Ark of God , they brought to into the house of Dagon | That is, into the Temple of their idol Dagon, which was portrayed under a monftrous and antick figure; the upper pare representing a man, and the nether pare, from the navell downward, like a fish. See the Annot, on Judg.

and fer it by Dagen] i.e. Either as a trophee of their victory, to be seen of all the people that came to worship their idol, that to be lefen at all the people that Cartie to him, by whose people and the property of the prop or, as others think, (but not fo probably) having an high effects immutable ordinance. of it. and the efficacie and vertue of its prefence, as appeareth, thap. 4. 2, 8. they fet it up in the most honourable place, even neer unto their idol.

Vert. z. And when they of Afbdod; ] That ie, the priefts of Dagons temple, rofe very early, as the text hath it, to fee how ir fired with the ark, and their idol.

Dagen was faln upon bis face to the earth.] When the Ifraeltinuing in their fins, the Lord caused it to be carried away capnumbling over them, and the ark alls, as being their captive, bim of his glory; and fo put them to a perpetual reproach, as the the Lord magnifying his power and glory, by vanquishing their Plalmist expresses it. Plalmist expresses it. Plalmist expresses it. idol , even in his own temple, caufeth him to fall down flat on his fare before his ark. For he is jealous of his glory, and adzamectume; so the coarty time took was not more note to man and convertee; which is implyed as it elementally by the deady incompetition with him; z Cot. 6.14, 15. Thus, when true: defluction mentioned in the eleventh verifs; which it say, Religions is fet up after it hath been long furprefied, and (as cleaped, and died not, they were finitent with the Emerods, dwirel; depitived by its ensembles; flugrifiction and idoletry. And belifts thefer perfonal punithments, their converty also will fall down flat before it; and when Jefus Chrift, the eternal world() all heathenish oracles and diabolical delusions at Delphos, and elfe where, coaled.

Verle 4. Behold, Dagon was fall upon his face to the ground, There his fielt fall they did fer him up again, and (in all likelihood) concealing it from the people, they used their beff enwete convinced of the true caule, and could not attribute it to arry accident, as otherwife they would have done. And therefore they plainly acknowledg it, yerl. 7. Which might have ing, that it was the cause of all their milery, because have fort to Rachel at the birth of Benjamin, Gen. 35, 17, 18. So | made them to fee the omnipotence of the onely true God of nor keep himfelf from falling, nor rife again till they fet him up; and fo to have cleaved to the one, and for faken the other. if at leaft there had been any vertue in miracles, to perfuade, in themselves a sindeed there is not, when as the Spirit of God worketh not with them.

and the head of Dagon, and both the talms of his hands were cut off ] The head being the feat of wildom, and the hands the instruments of working; the Lord by causing them to be cue off would figure to those that did worthin him : that there was in him, neither wildom to rule and direct, nor power to act and execute ; nor, as the prophet Ifaiah speaketh, any ability to forestel things to come, or to do either good or evil,

Ifai.q1. 22,23.
upon the threshold ] God by his providence caused the head and hands of Dagon to be cut off upon the threshold, by which all, even the very meaneft of the people did enter into the idol temple, treading and trampling upon it with their feet, to thew, unto all that came in, the baleness of the idol which they came to worthip, which could not keep himfelf from being ruined upon such a contemptible place; and to deter them from profituting; and postrating themselves before fuch a base and impotent idol, as could not keep himself from falling, nor rife again when he was faln.

onely the stump of Dagon was lest to him. ] Heb. onely Dagon was left, That is, the filhy part was chiefly left, from the middle downward; for though fome other parts remained, as the arms, fhoulders and breft; yet they were diffnembred from which promifes, as upon a firm foundation, the ought to have the head and hands , and battered and broken with the Vers. 5. Therefore, neither the priests of ragon, nor any that come into Dagons house, tred on the threshold.] The which they forbore to do, out of their superstitious devotion, as thinking the threshold holy, because Dagons head and hands had torched it; and so initead of giving glory to God, by whose al-mighty power their idol was deltroyed, they do the more dishonor him , by adding to their idolatry a further degree of blinde superffition; or elfe, they did it out of the abhorrency is now called Azotus; in which were left Giants, called Anaks, of it, as being the caufe or means, whereby their beloved idol was ruined and defaced; even as a men will abhor to touc's that fword, by which his dearest friend bath been killed and flaughtered. But yet, whatfoever they intended, God in his providence, used their superflition as a means to perpetuate the memory of this famous miracle, in causing Dagon to (all before the Ark, to his own glory, and the shame of idols and idolary; which otherwise, in all likelihood, would have been quickly forgotten.

the threshold of Dagon, That is, of Dagons temple.

Verf.6. But the hand of the Lord was heavy upon them of Albdod,] That is, be vifited them with an heavy and grievous punishment; and because they would not lay to heart that judgment executed upon their idol, but continued fill in their idolatry and blinde superfittion, and would not return the Ark of the God of Ifrael to its own place, he took vengeance upon them in their own persons, and inflicted that heavy ites grorred in the ork, as their chief strength, yet still con- and grievous plague of Emerods in their hinder and fecret parts; (vexing them with fuch a difeafe, as was not onely paintive: And now when there was no hope, their enemies tri- [ul, but also ignominious in the cure.) because they robbed and he destroyed them, ] Which (as I take it) is to be underflood in the g neral, That he confumed them with divers mormirs of no corrivals: If he be prefent in his ark, Dagon mult tal punifituments, which are afterwards more particularly ex-falls, and as nature admirs not two funs in the firmanents, nor prefit d; as the Emerods which were deadly unto them, acmonarchical policy, of two kings in the common-wealth, at the companied with fome other grievous difease, no less dangerous fame time: So the oaely true God will not fiffer idols to fland and deferate; which is implyed (as it feemeth) by that deadly was deftroyed with mice, whereby they were indangered to Word, and Wildom of his Father, of whom the Ark was a destruction by a grievous familie: Of which particular, mentype; was incarnate; (and as the onely true light thined in the tion is made, thap. 6. 5. Now, of this difeafe of the Emerods, there are two forts; the one having outward knobs and fwelings, which may more easily be come at and cured; the other, fecret and inward in the gur, called with us blinde piles, because they cannot be feen; which as they are most painful, fo also more hardly cured, it being not casse to apply any medeavors to fallen him fure in his place, to prevent the like dan-dictive unto them. And of this fore, were those here spoken of, as is most properly implyed by this phrase, of similing them in the fecret parts, vert. 9. Which was (no doubt) very grievous, the fecret parts, vert. 9. Which was (no doubt) very grievous, when as God purposely did fet it on.

Verl. 7. The Ark of God [ball not abide with us, ] As fulpectnor their city before it was placed among them. for his hand is fore upon see, and upon Dagon our god,] That is, upon us, by inflicting upon us their painful and mortal difeases, and on the idol, by breaking it in pieces. By which punishments, by way of retaliation and requital, returning like for like. God bringeth them (had they not been stark blinde) to a fight of their lins ; for as they had dishonored God, by carrying away captive his Ark, and flaughtered his people, by an unlawful war ; fo the Lord gained glory to himlelf, by inflicting heavy punifirments , both upon their idol and the miclves, bripging upon them shame and consusion : Where observe by the way, how there and momentary are both the joyes of the wicked, and the calamities of Gods people. The Philishims wicked, and the catanities of Ood people. In evaluation large the catanities of the catanities of the catanities of the catanities and included with much pride, both over them, and God bimidel; but now they are called to the tryenging hand of God lyeth beavy upon them, and their idol; whereby way is made to return the Ark to the consult and direction. What plad we do so the extre be to the conformable additionated of the conformable and their control and direction. What plad we do so the extre of the conformable additionated to the conformable and their conformable chief strength; and therefore they labored, by all means, to heartles in the absence of ic. and remove their plagues.

And after him it was again taken by Hazael, a Kng. 12. 12.

And after him it was again taken by Hazael, a Kng. 12. 12.

And unton his vir, by common confient, the site is carried a hoping that the charge of the place, would alter the effect, or at least, literby they would make trial, whether thefe heavy purishments before the Alladence, by having the ark prefent with them, or, by fome other unknown accident. For head they certainly known the state of the place of the place of the place, to with the and of lifeel, find it not empty; thatis, a window state of the place of the place, to with the and of lifeel, find it not empty; that is with the ark to have a state of the place of the place, would be a state of the place of they certainly known, that the ark had been the cause, the lords of Gath would never have yielded, that it should be brought to their city. So ready are men to vanish in their idle conceits, when in their calamities they leave God, our onely they and tout, and have not his Spirit to guide and direct

V. g. And the band of the Lord was against the city, with a very great destruction ] The which the ark, in its own nature, very getta adjustation 1 In e which the aris, in its own nature; interestances i riests, was were creative and an and a bleffling with it, to the fourfer of Obed-edom, and all he bad, and it field the worthing of the course of place, but carry it about from city to city, as it were in a pa-

V. 10. Therefore they fent the ark of God to Ekron Which was also one of the five principal cities of the Philiftims, and in By which offering they acknowledged, that these plagues of the division of the land, sell to Judahs lot, Josh. 15.35. See Judg 1 18. & 3. 3.

the Ekronies cried out 7 As fearing, by the coming of the Verf. 11. Send away the Ark of the God of Ifrael, This was the counsel of the Ekronites, to all the lords of the Philistims, to put off from themselves the present danger ; but (as it feemeth) they were fo loath to part with the Ark, that they did not imbrace and follow it , but would needs put the matter to be cleared by making further experiments; and therefore they De clared wy maning future roberthinds; some uterview to very considered to the first find it from factor to Gazza, and Affikalon, two others of their in the figure of first, if the first which will be supported to the first of the first of the first which will be supported to the first that could be sardly be repreferred without the portraying of all offirments the fame, Libe 6. Antiquity. Wherein sattly had those fereign and underring parts, the blogled of them, to which also amineten incrames, 10.0-6.4miquit. Waterina study and into reterral an uneemip parts, see tuppet, or the their ends and appress, for Gob lad bits; a namely, both simenass, they were affixed, which could not be without the differency of to bring, as univerfal) judgment upon the whole country, and their their, and that to their mortal ententies, who would take to make them, all alike, to distill deeply of the cup of his jectafion threby to form and refride them.

that it flay us not, and our people. ] That is, both the lords, who (it feemeth) thus complained, and the people also who were under their government.

fome other; mortal difease, besides the Emerods, of which for your presumptuous sin, in medling with his holy ark. So many died; and they who eleaped the one, were plagued with Jolh.7.19. Joh.9.24.

evils bad not befaln other cities, whither the Ark came not, the other; and both joyning together, cauled that deadly defruction, fooken of verf. 11.

itruction, spoken of verl. 11.

and the cry of the city went up to beaven.] Which is an hyper-bolical expression of that great and grievous lamentation, which was made by the inhabitants of the city.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 1. A Nathe Ark of the Lord was in the country of the Philiftims (even months. ] They hoped in continuance of time, that their plagues would have ceased, and then they were resolved to have kept the Ark in captivity

VerC 2. And the Philiftims called for their priests and diviners,] That is, though they were idolaters; yet they had even by the light of nature; fuch an high efteem of their priess and diviners, that they would do nothing of any importance, with-

What (hall we do to the Ark of the Lord ? ] Though in their former confulrations they had much debate. Whether they his prefence and protection.

V. 8. What shall me do with the ark of the God of Israel? | fhould fend back the ark or no, and some were against it, as They are very loath to part with the ark, not out of any leve not thinking that the captiving of the ark among them, was the which they bore unto it, but because they thought, the Islanties, cause of their plague, because if the God of sloue and to high-who were their enemies, reposed init their confidence, as their | 1/2 esteemed it, he would never have fuffered it to be carried away captive ; yet after, by much experience, being convinced with-hold it from them, because they were more valuant and that the continuous of transport them, are caused to courgious when they enjoyed it, and more timorous and all their calamities they generally conclude and resolve to fend it back, and therefore they do not here deliberate what to do with it, but what was to be done to it when they did re-Let the ark of the God of I frat be carried about to Gath ] do with it, but what was to be done to it when they did re Which was another of the five wincipal cities, neer unto the ark captive, and your ill usige of it, whileft it hath been in your cultody, not giving unto it that honour and respect that is due unto it; therefore you must labour to appeale him, in way of fatisfaction, by a trelpals-offering, for your fins. And thus, though God feemed to be much dishonoured by their captiving of his ark, yet he fo disposeth of it by his wife providence, that he gaine h thereby much glory to his Name; in that he caufeth thefe idolatrous Priefts, who were enemies unto him and his generand pompous shew, and did not give unto it that honour that is, upon the sending of this offering it shall be known, it that was due unto it.

ye be healed, (as it is very likely you will) that it was his hand and they had Emerads in their ferres pares ] i. e. Inwardly in upon you for your fing or, if you be not, then, that it came not their guts, which were so extream, that they could have no ease | from the God of Israel, but by chance, or, some hidden natural cause. So ver. 9.

V. 4. They answered, five golden emerods, and five golden mice of Ifrael, for their fin, in captiving and difhonouring his holy Jodg 1 16. & 3.3.

The Exposure price of all 1 As feering, by the coming of the ark, left they fixed between the like plagues inflicted on them, wherewish their meighbour-cities were defluyed.

The price of the Priefs, by the fuggefition of the 1st fly m and our project. This was spoken in a passionnet devit, that God thereby might rather be dishonoured then glomanner, by their Princes and Magiltrates; not because they rified; yet God in his wisedom so disposed of it, that it much thought, that they had purpolely brought the ark unto tended to his glory. For by this means, the fin and shame of them with such an intention, but that it would prove so in the the Philishims, who were Gods enemies, were had in perpetual memory amongst his people, to whose hands these came, to the glory of God, who had thus punified them, with fuch an igno-minious difease in their fecret parts, for flaughtring his people, and leading captive, and prophaning his holy ark. for one plague was on you all Heb. them. i.e. Both Lords

V. s. Wherefore ye fhall make images of your Emrods ] That is, and images of your Mice, that mar the land ] i.e. The fruits of your land, by eating up and spoyling your corn.

and je finall give glory to the God of I [rael] Namely, by restoring his ark, as you have dishonoured him by captiving and Vers. 12. And the men that died not, were smitten with the prophaning it; and whilest also, by this offering ye shall comEmerods, Whereby it seemeth, that they were punished with sees the truth, and acknowledg, that he both justly punished you auf from off your gods] Which is expressed in the planal number, the fixteenth day of our March, after the feath of the Passower, either because the disperse, executed upon Dagon, did allo be—which began the fourteenth of their moneth Abbiand continual field their other follows the day of your gottess, and to God execu-led year on a system of the growth of the gro ted indgment upon all the gods of Egypt, Exod. 12, 12. Numb. 33.4. Or elfe, because this difficult writer to have an holy Convocation, they were to bring a sheat, Dagon, tended to the differace of all their other idols seeing or handful of the first truits unto the Priests, that my aught they were no more able then he, to preferve, either themselves, wave it before the Lord, who accepting of it, did fanctific unto after you have fuffered fuch great and grievous punishments; after you have intered in the great was green on your mental of the great in that country, being lower in the herein refembling Pharroh and the Egyptians, who held the lame faston, the barley continued in the carth, before it was prople in cruel bondage, notwithstanding that Gods hand was ripe, but fix moneths, and the wheat feven moneths. So that to be any upon them; till at last going on in their sin, their whole the whole barvest, from the beginning to the ending, last: darany was drowned in the red sea, and therefore if you would bout the space of two moneths, and somewhat more. And by avoid the like heavy judgment, do not imitate them in their this computation, it appeareth that the ark was taken in the be-

V. 7. Now therefore make a new east ] To wit, which hath was seven moneths in the land of the Philitims, ver. 1.

never yet been ptophaned by being put to any common use, and saw the ark ] To wit, either as it was sent uncov that hereby you may fliew, how much you honour and reve- the Philliflims or uncovered by themselves, which was contrary rence the Ark, though formerly you have abused and prophaned to the law, Num. 4.5.20. it. So 2 Sam.6.3.

and take two mileh kine, on which there hath come no yoke] The and bring their calves home from them ] And this was done to after which they naturally longed, and yet to go forward, and

V. 8. And put the jewels of gold ] That is, the golden Emerods and Mice, which they dent for a trefpass-offering. in a coffer by the fide thereof ] Because they durft not prefume to open the ark, and put them into it. V. 9. And see, if it goeth up by the way of his own coast to Beth-shemesh, then he hath done unto us this great evil ] As it they had God. faid, by this experiment we shall plainly discern, whether the God of Ifrael bath inflicted these plagues upon us, or no. For this Beth-shemesh was a city belonging to the Pricsts, Josh. 21.

16. and scituate upon the confines of Judah, in whose lot it 10. and cutture upon the country of the Philipian towards Erron, in the way to Shithsh, and therfore it lithing towards Erron, in the way to Shithsh, and therfore it lithing towards Erron, in the way to Shithsh, and therfore it was the lines by an infinitely which God had put into them, ald carry for the lines by an infinitely which God had put into them, ald carry for the lines by an infinitely which God had put into them, ald carry for the lines by an infinitely which God had put into the land, ald carry for the lines by an infinitely which God had put into the land. it thither-wards, which was the proper place where the ark had | them. flood, it was a plain evidence, that they were guided thither by a supernatural providence. There was another city of this name, in the tribe of Iffachar, John 10.22.

V. 12. And the kine took the straight way, to the way of Beth-[bemelb] i.e. They went flraight to the city of the Priefts, as though they had purpolely been fent thither by God, to deliver the ark into their hands, unto whole care it belonged.

to go on with the cart, in which the ark was, by a superious and divine providence and turned not afide to the right hand, or to the left ] i.e. They went not into any crois or by-wayes that lay by their pal- times, but called fo now, upon the prefent occasion of the great

And the lords of the Philistims went after them] Namely, to observe the iffue of this experiment, and then they returned home, but never the better; for though (no doubt) they won-gin their harveit; for the day after the feventh, in which they or those who served him, from ruine and destruction, by the just them the rest of the harvest, Levit. 23.8, 9,10,11. Now this or thole who ferves a man, from rune and defination, by the pair tends of the almigney Cod.

1. Wherefore the day to the the tends of the almigney Cod.

1. Wherefore the day to the the the tends of the the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul, and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul, and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun, and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun and latted to the feath of Poul and the the wheethavel begun and the poul and the barley and wheat in that country, being fowen in the ginning of November, or the latter end of October , feeing it and fam the ark | To wit, either as it was fent uncovered by

V. 14. And they clave the wood of the eart ] To wit, the Le-vitical Priests, who were ready at hand to execute their office, which they were to do, not oned upon the fame ground 5 but because they dwelt at Beth chmeth, a city of the tribe of also to make the experiment more clear & evident, to convince | Judah, which was given to the priests, John 15.10. & 11.16. them, that what was done proceeded from God, as being above But how could it be lawful for the Privite to offer facrifices the ordinary course of nature; for whereas, if they had made here, seeing they were onely to be offered in the tabernacie. use of old kine, accustomed to the yoke, and to travel in the and upon that one altar there? I answer, that they were recommon rode, it had not been fo strange, if without a guide strained to that place aloue, in ordinary facrifices, but not in they had gone forward in their usual way; but that young extraordinary cases; for the high places were not altogether heyfers, untamed and untrayned, flould quietly bear the yoke, prohibited, whileft the tabernacle was in a fleeting condition, and never offer to go out of that way, which they before had and the Lord had not yet chosen a certain and feded place for not used to travel, it must needs be thought a great wonder selpe- his service. And besides, at this time, they had the ark with cially if that were true, that Josephus reporteth in the 6. Book them, the visible signs of Go's presence, and therefore might of his Antiquities, that being fee in a place where three wayes lawfully offer facrifice before it, and the Lords Priefts allo, to met, they chose that which led to Beth-shemesh, and left the whom this se vice belonged. See the Annotat, on the one and twentieth of Judges, ver 4.

and offering the kine a barnt-offering to the Lord | The which make a further experiment, which if it fell out accordingly, did oblation was contrary to the law, which commanded that onely encrease the wonder; for if they had fuffered their calves to males should be offered in facrifice, Levit. 1. 3.10. & 22. 19. with a fud len paffion of joy, that they did not, for the prefent, never defire to return back usto them, it could not be thought think or confider of it; or rather, it may be thought, that in mech le them a remarked, feeling their natural inflitted of love introduced their states of their natural inflitted of love introduced their years on consequent to the control their years of their providence. The providence of the providence is a pre-rame three driving providence. The providence is a pre-rame three providences. The providence is a pre-rame three providences. reason, namely, that these kine, which had been imployed in this fervice, of carrying the ark in that cart which they drew, and by a fecret inflinct, bad performed it in a wonderful manner, and above the course of nature, should never afer this be put to common and prophane uses, but confecrated wholly unto

V. 15. And the Levites took down the ark ] i.e. The Priefts, which were of the cribe of Levie, who dwelled in Beth-shemesh, which was one of the civies given to the Priefts. For they who were Levites, onely might carry the ark upon their fhoulders.

V. 18. Both of fenced cities, and of country villages 7 The whole Country of the Philiftims was divided into fiv. parr, or Dukedomes, and were respectively under the government of five Lords, who every one in their feveral divisions had a prin-cipal City belonging unto them, with divers inferior Townes and Villages with their territories. And because these plagues of Emerods and mice were inflicted generally upon every of lowing at they went; That is, by a natural infilince, lowing after their calves which they had left behinde them; but yet went still forward in their way to Beth-shemesh, being moved every of them; the charge whereof was born (it is likely) both by the cities and the country villages.

even to the great flone of Abel] Which is mentioned, v. 1 5. and is here named Abel, that is, mourning, not in former mourning of the people, for that lamentable flughter which God had made among them. So v. 19. Gen. 50. 1

V. 19. And he (more the men of Beth-fbemefb. because they hal looked into the Ark of the Lord ] It was unlawful for the peoabout district one deteries for enough (in onus) they worm the deed, ver. 13 are this firinging flight, yer they represent ont of their finas; but fill continued in their islolarry, and in their mainty and barted of Godspeople. there may not their continued in their towarty, and in user many and harder of Gods people.

V. 13. And they of Bath-flourife were reging their when therefore the many of the their country began in the latter for the wealth of the left of Continued in May, to the feal of Pentecoli, when the committee department is not the Beth finencies, the continued of April, and continued in May, to the feal of Pentecoli, the continued of the Beth finencies, the For it was there after their barley-harvel, which began about uncovered by the Philiftims, that they flood flaring and gaChap, vii.

Chap.vij.

zing upon it, without due fear and reverence. Befides which prophelying and government, had made fome reformation, and fin committed in common, by the wholemultitude, there were turned many from their idolatry to Gods true worfhip; But many fo prefumptuous, (neither can we, with any probability many to pretumptions, (netter can we, with any probability imagin that fo many thou[inds as dyed, could do it in one day) that they opened the ark, and, out of their curiofity, pryed into it, to fee whether the Philiftims, whileft it was in their cuffody, had put any thing into it, or taken any thing out of even he mote of the people fifty thousand and threescore and ten that was no great City, but of all the Country that were now neer unto it; which lying upon the frontiers of the Philiftims and Judea, had ftrong garrifons in them, to defend them from the invafious and incursions of their enemies; and not only they, but many others, who hearing of the return of the ark, did upon this occasion flock thither; and therefore it is said in but that he imore, even of the people, fifty thouland, and threefcore and ten men.

V. 20. Who is able to fland before this boly Lord God ? ] In-V. 20. Wook able to frank before the Boyl 1074 Goa's 1 in-flead of humbling themselves before God, by unseigned repentance for their sims, they make bitter com-plaints of Gods severity and rigour, and bewail their loss, adviling amongst themselves, how they may be rid of the ark, as thinking it to be the caule of all their mifery. So David, 2 Sam. 6.8,9. and the Gaderens, Mat. 8.54.

V. 21. Come ye down, and fetch it up to you] Pretending (it may be) that it was no fafe place for the Ark, feeing it did lye too neer the Philiftims ; but chiefly (in all likelyhood) intending their own lafety; that they might not by the prefence of the Ark, run again into the lik danger.

CHAP. VII.

Verf. 1. A Nd the men of Kiriath jearim came ] Which was a city in the tribe of Judah, Josh, 15.9. formerly called Kiriath-Baal, verf. 60, & ch. 18, 14. And the men of this City, beeing fent unto by the Beth-shemites, to fetch the Ark, they now come for it, with all readiness and cheerfulness; for though they had heard of the great flaughter of the Beth-shemites, this did not discourage them, because they did not impute it to the Arks coming thither, but to their irreverentulage of it, the which fin they were resolved, carefully to avoid. But when the Ark was returned out of the Philiffims country, why was it not carried back to Shiloh, whence it came, elyecially, feeing the tabernacle ftill remained there? I answer, because the Lord, in his just displeasure, abhorred Shiloh, for the abominable prophanation of his fervice, and the horrible wickedness that was afted there; yea, fet up and established; then also the Lord compleated this proand for this cause forfook his tabernacle of Shilob, the tent which Plalm. 78.60. And the Prophet Jermiah clearly implyeth it, Jer. 7.12.14. And therefore would not suffer his holy Ark, to return unto fuch an unholy place, but did seperate it from his tabernacle there; and fo they continued divided the one from the other, for ever after ; and David prepared a new tent for it, 1 Chro.15.1. & 16.1.

and fetchs up the Ark of the Lord] i.e. Not they themselves, for they were not a city of Priests, neither did they live among them; and none other, but those of their tribe and order, might touch the Ark; but the Priests of Beth-shemesh, being appoinged for this fervice, the men of Kiriath-jearin, to thew their willingnels, did come to accompany them.

And brought it to the bouse of Aminidab] who was a Levite, and as Josephus reporteth, a man eminent for his integrity.

in the bill | i.e. A very high place in the city, and therefore the more fit for fuch a facred use, whereof it is, that when David went to ferch the Ark from thence, to his own house, who went to retain the Mr. from the case, to his sown home, he is faid to have gone up unto it, I Chro. 13.6.

and fantified Eliazer bis fon ] i.e. Confectated him to this holy fervice, iby such legal ceremonies as were required unto to keep the Ark of the Lord ] i. e. Not to cover or uncover it, for he being not Priest, but onely a Levite, might not touch it meanes which were to be used, to deliver themselves from the himself; and therefore his office and charge was onely to at-tend it, to keep clean the place where it flood, and to preferve V. 6. And drew mater, and source it out before the Loral it from being prophaned and abused by any other.

forty years, for there it was placed foon after (that is, feven or deep humiliation, in the fenfe of their mifery, namely, that they eight moneths after) the death of Eli; and it remained there, were in a loft and desperate condition, (like water spilt upon till David, in the feventh year of his reign, fetch'd it from the greand, while cannot be taken up gain) unleis the thenes 3 and after the death of Eli, Samuel and Saul ruled over Lord, in sucrey, by his Almighty power flow in the large transport of th years here fooken of, must needs be meant, a part onely, of But seeing we read not of any such ceremony in the Law, nor those forty and odd yeers, in which it remained at Klriath- that it was used in former and future times , I rather take it to jearim, namely, those first twenty years, in which Samuel, after be an hyperbolical expression, whereby is fignified, the great

still there were many, who repented not of their fins, but joyned with God in their fuperflitious fervice, of Baal and Athraned with Goo in their imperiations letyice, or Dana and Anna-roth; yet now these twenty years being expired, they having throughly smarred for their idolary, by the grievous oppres-sions of the Philistims; and Samuel also, by his preaching, laying both their fin and punishment to their hearts, the whole people generally refolve upon a through reformation, and unanimous confent; they renounce their idols and idolatry, and embrace the pure and fincere worship of the onely true and all the house of Ifrael lamented after the Lord ] That is they forrowing and gricving under the grievous oppressions of the Philistims, who, from the time of their victory, had laved did upon this occasion flock thither; and therefore it is faid in the text, not only that God more the men of Beth-themeth, them out of their cities, and dwelled in them, as is implied, ver. 14. And now repenting of their fins, and unfainedly bewailing them, as the fountain of all their calamities; they return upto the Lord, and cry and call unto him, for help and deliverance.

V. 3. And Samuel fpake unto all the boule of Ifraei] That is, unto all the Elders and chief Rulers, that reforted unto him; or, to all the people, when he went about in his circuit, to execute the office of a Judge and Prophet.

if ye veturn unto the Lord with all your bearts | That is devoting hem wholly to his fervice and not dividing them between him and idols, a King. 18.21. and a King. 17.33.

and ut away the strange gods] Heb. the gods of the strangers.

That is, the idols of the strangers, or, of the heathens, and forraign neighbour-Nations round about you; feeing thefe idols are also itrangers unto you, and you have nothing to do with them, being entred into covenant with Jehovah, the onely true God, that he shall be your God, and you his people,

John. 24.14.23.

And Asharoth from among you] See Judg. 2.13.

prepare your hearts unto the Lord] That is, devote your selves sholly to his fervice alone, and utterly abandon all your idols, and idolarrous worthin.

and he will deliver you out of the hands of the Philistims ] Though, upon Samuels exhortation, they generally refolved to forfake all their idols ; yetthey did it not with a perfect heart but many reliques of idolatry and superstition remained fill among them; and therefore answerably the Lord did, but in part, perform this promife, that is, onely gave them some be-ginnings of deliverances by Samuel and Saul; but when, in Davids reign, there was a full reformation, idolatry being wholly abolifhed, and the pure worship, of the onely true God, mife, and gave the Ifraelites full deliverance; not onely by freebe placed among f men, as the Plaimitt, plainty, expressed it, ing them from their oppressions and servitude, but by giving his Plaim. 78.60. And the Prophet Jermiah clearly implyesh it, people many glorious victories, he made them lords over them, and brought these their enemies under tribute.

V. 4. Then the children of Ifrael did put away Baal and Asha-roth] See Judg. 2.11. The one of the idols being of the Masculine, and the other of the Feminine Gender, hereby is meant, that they put away all their heathen idols, of both fexes, and of all conditions.

and ferve the Lord onely] Namely, as his law required,

Deut, 6.13. & 10. 20. Mar. 4 10. Luk. 4.8. V. 5. And Samuel [aid, Gather all I [rael to Mizpeth] Concerning this place, Mizpeth, See Annotat. on Judg. 20. ver. 1. Which was most convenient for such an Assembly, lying in the heart of the land, that the whole body of the people, meeting together, they might universally renew their Covenant with God, which they had formerly to shamefully broken; and joyning together, in a found and folemn humiliation, by fafting and prayer, might implore mercy and forgiveness, for all their fins past, with the return of Gods former favour, and help, and deliverance for the present, and time to come. And to the end alfo, that after, by thefe religious exercifes they had reconciled themselves upto God, and made their peace with him, they might confult one with another, of the best course and

Which some interpret to have been a ceremony, belonging to V. 2. the time was long; for it was twenty years The full Legal purification; whereby was fignified the washing away aime of the Arks continuance at Kiriath-jearim, was above of their fins. Others to have been an exaression of their the death of Eli, judged the people; and by his preaching, plenty of tears, which in this day of their humiliation they thed for their fins, fireaming out abundantly from the Fountain of muel judged Ifrael alone, v. 13. or rather; that after theff 119 36. and by Job, ch. 18.20. and by Jeremiah, Jer. 9.1. and new the fight, and revenge their quartel for their former de-Lam. 2.11,18. Les tears run down like a river day and night. and poured it out before the Lord \ Whereby is not meant, that they did it before the ark, the fign of Gods prefence, feeing that was now at Kiriath-jearim, but that they thus humbled themfelves by mourning, fasting, and prayer, in the fight of God, who is alwaies present with his people, when they are thus asfembled and met together, Math 18.10.

and Samuel judged the people of I fract in Mi peb] i. c. He did and 3 amust jung as to reported junes in an iron june j. 1.e. re and ginning or saws region, easy that divers nor an irong gar-not only exercife the dury of a levite; or Propher to reach and links in their kerping, chap. 1.e. 3, and 13.3, which either direct them: But from this time forward, he took upon him the office of a Judg; to which God now milled him. And by keep the likelites from invading their Country, or inprized his wife government, good example, and holy admonition , them again after the defeat. and exhortations, he convinced them of their fins, and brought them to repentance, Ezek. 20.4. & 22.2. & 23.36. V. 2. And when the Philistims heard that the children of Il-rael were gathered together] Tyrants that oppreis the people fuspitious of their meetings and assemblies, lest they should plot and contrive fome means to free them from their yoke of taking it to be a fign of some commotion and rebellion, they raise their forces, and come to subdue them.

and when the children of Israel heard it, they were asraid] Namely, in respect of their warlike preparations, and great arpeh, to pray, and not to fight. V. 8. Ceafe not to cry unto the Lord our God 7 Heb. be not fore be inftant with the Lord in our behalf, and with our 40, years, Act 13, 20,21. fighting, joyn thy effectual prayers. So Mofes, Exod. chap.

V. 9. And Samuel took a suckling lamb and offered it for a upon the fame warrant, he offered a burnt-offering in that place on an altar of his own creeting, and not on the altar in fully done in other places upon extraordinary occasions, befetled. See the note upon chap. 6, 14. & on Judg. chap. 21.

and Samuel cryed unto the Lord, and the Lord heard bim] Heb. answered, i. e. Gave unto him a defired return of his prayers, by granting his fuite; the like example we have in Moles, Exo.

V. 10. But the Lord thundered with a great thunder, &c.] According to Hannahs prophecy, ch. 2. 10. See Josh. 10. 10. Judg. 4. 15. & 5. 10. and they were [mitten before Ifraet] Who did not idly flack and negle & their own endeavors, though they faw that the Lord from heaven fought for them. Sec Josh. 10.10. and the note upon the place. V. 11. Untill they came under Beth Car ] The name of a rock, where (perhaps) the Philiftims had a Fort and garrifon; unto which, making their retreat, the Ifraclites were hindred from profecuting their victory any further, the which in the next verse is called Shen. See ch. 14.4 V. 12. And Samuel took a ftone and fet it up] Namely , as a monument of their victory, and thankfulness unto God for his between Miggeh and Shen Which was a great rock, or promontory overagainft Mizpeh, God in his providence fo difpo-fing of it, that they should in the very same place, set up a a prophie of their victory; where before, the Israelites were flaughtered, and the ark taken captive, chap. 4. t. and they called the name of it Eben Eger] That is, the flone

V. 13. And they earne up more into the coaft of Ifrael] They came divers times after this in an holfile manner with great armies, both in the time of Samuel, Saul, and David, as appeareth, ch. 13 1.5. & 17. 1. 2 Sam. 5.17,22. And therefore this must be meant, either that they came no more whilest Sa-between instituted print; scellifying thereby, their unfegged repentance, and their full recolution, that they would

of their feattered Troops, which if they had gathered and ralnever again return to their former superstitions and idolary, lied into their ranks in due order, recruiting their Army, by but devote themselves wholly to Gods service. And such like calling in some new forces from those parts of their country expressions we read of, made by David, Pfal. 6.6.8: 42.3, and neer at hand, and so have returned upon the Israelites, to refeat , yet they were fo much difheartned by their late overthrow, which was principally caufed by an immediate hand of God fighting against them, that they durst no more at this time adventure to do it.

V. 14. And the Gittes which the Philiftims had taken from Ifrael were reftored] i. e. Were taken by force, or yeelded by composition. Howbeit it plainly appeareth, that in the beginning of Sauls reign, they had divers Fores and ftrong garand there was peace between Ifrael and the Ammonites 7 Than a ceffation from open war, between the Ifraelites and the Philitims, and the relt of the Canasnites; both which are here comprehended, under the name of Ammonites; the which are under their government, are alwayes jealous and which is in this place mentioned, as the fruit of their late.

V. 15. And Samuel judged Ifrael all the dayes of his life ? tyranny. And thus the Philiftims here, lording it over the For though Saul, after he was made King, bad the Supream Ingelites at this time, took notice of this their affembly; and power in his band, yet Samuel, as long as he lived, exercised the jurisdiction of a Judge, which God had called him unto, as appeareth by his killing of Agag, whom Saul had fpared, ch. 15. 32, 33. and alfo, as a propher, be directed bim in his government, admonished him of his duty, and repromy which they had raifed; and in regard of their own un- ved him when he transgressed and did amis, chap. 15.1,2. & prepareducis, seeing they were by Samuel affembled in Miz-replaceducis, seeing they were by Samuel affembled in Miz-neb, to pray, and not to fight. 15. 28. and anounted David king in his stead, ch. 16. 13. filent from us from crying. 1.0. Seeing we are weak, and unable And finally, fometimes they joyned together (as it were in to make any refulance against so many and mighty enemies, the same commission) in the government, as in making war the same commission) in the government, as in making war and have no other confidence but in God alone the Lord of against Nahaih the Ammonite, and relieving Jabez-Gilead hofts, who only giveth victory; and feeing his help is no other- when it was be fieged, ch. 11.7. And in this regard, the years wife to be hoped for, or obtained, but by fervent prayer, there- of both their governments are joyned in the fame account of

V. 16. And be went from year to rear in circuit | Namely . as Judge, to hear and determine the causes of the people, and as a prophet, to teach and direct them. Neither was Samuel burnt-offering i.e. He either caused it to be offered by a bound by his yow of N zarite, whereby he was devoted to the Pricish, aimself, no being of that order, or did it as a prophet fevere of the Sandauxy, to continue his relifence there; be-immediately infinited by God, and warranted to dort, by fee caule, for the fin of the Priest and people, the Lord had fort and disperiation, as Elias allo did, 1 King; 28, 30,31. and [skee the Tabermack, and withdrawn from the Ark, whith was the visible fign of his presence; as appeareth, Pfal. 78.60 61. Jer. 7. 12, 14. And alfo, because the Lord himself had the Tabernacle. Though others think, that it might be law- taken him off from that Levitical service, and called him to another imployment, namely, to be an holy propher, and a fore the Temple was built, and the altar there crected and Judge over his people; in the execution of which fervice, he could not be confined to a certain and fetled place, to Beihel] i e. Either the City properly called Bethel, which was in the tribe of Benjamin, John 18, 13, or taken appellatively here for the house of God, which was now in Kiriathjearim. And this is the more probable, that Samuel went early in his circuit thither, in respect of the great number of the people which flocked thither, by reason that the ark was fetled there. And thus Bethel is frequently taken, as ch. 3.

15. & 10. 3. Judg. 20. 18.

4rd Gilgal Which at the first entring of the Mraelites into the land of Canaan was not a City, but a place neer Jericho, where they encamped and were circumcifed, from whence it: was called Gilgal's but now it feemeth, Jericho being ruined; and devoted to destruction, a city was there built, or at least, place of habitation, which was firfor Samuels purpole, as being convenient for the people to refort unto it.

and Miggeb | See the notes on Judges 20, v. 3. and his return was to Ramah, or, Rama-thaim, where his dwelling house was, ch. 1. 1. and there be judged Ifrael | i.e. There was his most ordinary place of Judicature, whither he used to return, after he had done help and affiltance, by which alone, they had obtained his Circuits in other Cities.

and there be built in altar unte the Lord ] See Annotation loc. Judg. 21.4. & on v. 9.

CHAP VILL

Verlit. And it came to pass when Samuel was old] i.e. San!

And it came to pass when Samuel was old] i.e. San! nor able to go his Judiciary circuit (as he was accustomed) unto the uttermoft parts of them, to administer justice uato allahe;

be made bis fons Julges over Ifrael] Wherein (as some think) 000 though

Chap.viii.

V. 6. But the thing diffleafed Samuel Heb. was evil in the shough he were a good and holy man, he in divers refrects offended : First because he did not consult with God about it before he did it, at least, for any thing that appeareth in the text. Secondly, because he did it in an ordinary way by himself, whereas the calling of a Judge was extraordinary, and immediately from God, when the necessity of the flate required it, Thirdly, because he had not a precedent from any of the former Judges, to subne na not a precedent from any or the former Judges, to lub-fittute his lons in his place of government; yea, the clean con-trary in Gideon, who unterly refuted it when the people did of-fer it, Judg. 8. 2.3. Fourthly, because he made them chief Judges, from whom there was no appeal, if they paffed an unjult fen-tence, though they were luch as he could have little affurance of their integrity; for otherwife, the Elders and people would not thus have complained, if being wronged by them, they might have been righted and relieved elfe-where. And finally, because hearing from the Elders, of their ill and corrupt courses the regal rights in his own hand. and carriages, he did not take from them their office of Judiand Samuel prayed unto the Lord] To wit, for direction from cature, when he had power in his hand to do it. The which his failings were hereby aggravated in that he had the example of Eli ranning were actroy aggravates, in case as and the example old in fresh in memory, who was giveoudly punished for his indusence to his sons, not using just severity in punishing their faults. V. 2. The name of his first born was feel [2 Called also Value, I Chr. 6.28. % Joel, in the fame ch. v. 33. For so it is usual in the Scripture, to give two names to the fame man and the fame place. And this Joel, though a corrupt father, was the parent of a godly, gracious fon that is of Heman often mentioned in the scriptures, as a chief mafter of the fingers; and was also the pen-man of the 88 Pfalm, 1 King. 4.31. I Chr. 6.3. & 25.1.

They were Judges in Beerfieba | Some think, that here is an Ellipsis or a figurative suppression of the contrary extream, which was Dan, in the North of Canaan, or Beersheba in the South: the which defect is to be supplyed from Judg. 20.1, and fo that the meaning should be, that Samuels fons went in their circuit all over the land, to judg the people. But feeing Samuel himfelf dwelled at Ramah, which was in the North part of the nimiter awered at Ramae, water was in an evotus part of the Country, and had not put off from himfelf, the calling of a Judg to his fons, but uled them only as his fublitures and Deputies to affith him in his old age, in judging the people, it is molt likely, that he himfelf did full perform his office of Judicature at Ramah, where he dwelt, and in all that part of the Country round about it, and appointed his sons to exercise this authority by him delegated unto them in the Southern parts of the land, because they were so far remote from him, that by reason of age and weakness, he could not travel unto them; and because Beersheba was in the utmost border of that part of the land, they had their dwelling there, (as Samuel in Ramah) and judged Ifrael in all that part of the country neer unto them. The which city was the fitter for the relidence of the Judges, because, bordering upon the Polisitims Territories, they might be ready from 31dd por a then 2100 between the faculty bold did upon all occasions, to defend the country from their attempts of the fact the Message of the state of the st and invafions.

V. z. Andbis sons walked not in bis wages ] To wit, in executing the office of an upright Judg, of which they had him as their pattern and prefident, to go before and guide them.

but surned after lucre | Where they are charged with three fins, our intract after interpty water charge with interest into one of them being the cause of the other; as coverousness the cause of their taking bribes, and bribing the cause of their perverting judgment, Exod. 18.21. Deu. 16. 19.

V. 5. Beheld, bou.art. old, and thy son walk not in thy wayes]

These were the reasons whereby they pressed him to hearken to their fuite of making them a King; namely, his own debi-lity to execute his office, by reason of his age; and his sens intquity, in (werving from his fleps; but there were other reasons that chiefly moved them, which they conceal, being ashamed to discover them; as first, their innovation and defice of change, which made them weary of Gods government, and willing to thake off his yoke, thought were above all others, most easie and profitable. Secondly, their foolish affectation of the gowernment of other nations round about them though their condition were far unlike : for the beathens had no other whom they acknowledged as their Supream, but whom themselves did choose; but the Ifraelites were in covenant with God, as being their Lord and King, and they his people and subjects; who were protected and preferred by him; and governed by his laws, v. 20. Thirdly, their fear of Nahath the king of the Ammonites, his preparations to make war against them, which caused them to desire a King and Captain to go before them, as truffing more in his conduct, then in the Lord of hoffs, who had given unto them fo many and miraculous victories against their mighty enemies, v. 20. & ch. 12. 12.

now mike is a king ] Though they were flifly refolved to have king, yet the better to colour the matter, they would not prefunde to choose him themselves, but were content; according to the law, that he should be their King, when the Lord their God frould choose, Deut. 17. 14;15. And therefore they have recourse to Salinuel, as being God prophet, that he might confult with God, and so from him inform them whom they should choose. God, and to from him inform them whom they should choose. I brought them up out of Egypt, ever, unto this day, by mutrb judg m J i. k. To till over us with segat authority, and as muring and rebelling both against one and thems, and by their our General, to go out with our Army.

eree of Samuel; Not only, because hereby they shewed their grofs ingratitude towards him, unto whom they were fo much beholden, by divefting and deposing him from his place of government, by which they had reaped so many and singular benefits, both in their Ectlesiastical and Civil estate: but much more, because they grievously sinned against God himself, in refuling to be under his government any longer, who was their king, and whole Lievtenant he was. For though kings be fo also in their kinde, having all their power from God; yet they exercise this power in their own name, according to their own will and pleature, and by their own laws, whereas the Judges will an please of the beautiful of the control of t

God what to do, and how to demean himself in this difficult and dangerous bufiness; and withal, mediating on the peoples schalf, by earnest prayer, for pardon of their fin

V. 7. hearken umo the voice of the people in all that they fay umo thee | Namely, in this matter of having a king as if he had faid for they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected ma, that I

Sould not reign over them ] i.e. Not fo much thee, who art but my Minister; as my felf, who being their Supream Lord and King, do tule by thee, as my Deputy. The like phrase & manner of speaking, is usual in many other places of Scripture; a Mar. 9.12 & 10.20. & 12.7. ch. 15.22. Act. 5.4. where the defire or having a king, is not fimply condemued, as unlawful; neither is this poken, as though the Lord did not reign where there is let up Monorchical government; for it is Gods ordinance, and kings have their power and authority from him, according to that; have their power and authority from him, according to mat, Prov. 2.15, 16. By me high redge, and prince decrepiphics &c. and they are his Deputies and Lievernants, by whom, se utiesh, In which regard, the people miget nave lawfully defited a king, if they had doneit with upright heartes, on lawful grounds, to good and warrantable endage in right manner, and in due time. For the Lord had promifed, that when they were feeled in the land of Canaan, he would (when he thought good) fee a king over them, out of whose loyns the Messiah should comes and alto the weth how he would have him qualified, and what he required of him Deut. 17. 17,18. 3che had promifed unto Abraham, that kings should come out of him, Gen. 17.6. & Jacob, in his prophetical bleffing, faith, That the Scotter shoul not depart felf, as a type of Christ, faith, Pial. 2.6. Ter bave I fet my King upon my boly bill of Zion. And therefore this is not simply condemned in the people as a fin in it felf, to defire a king; but because they did it with an ill minde, affecting innovation, as being weary of Gods government which he had established, till himfelf pleafed to change it, and in a prepofterous and tumulruous manner before he had given any intimation of his pleafure; and to a wrong and evil end, that they might be like to the heathen nations; & out of their confidence in a King, as able to protect them, and their diffidence in God, as inlufficient to defend them, in his own way, unlefs he would be directed in a course of their prescribing; and finally, because they would not wait upon him for the accomplishment of his word in his own due time, but with all importunity prefs him to do it at their own pleafure. And yet the Lord, for all this, (who is able to bring good out of evil, and to use mens wicked purposes and pring good out of cvil, and to use mens wicked purposes and polyle and of practities, as means to bring to pais his own just and holy ends) was pleafed to make use of this their prepeterous defire, of having a king, as a means to accomplish his word and promifes though at first, he gave them fitch a king in his wrath, as brought upon them the juit punishment of their fin, See ch. 12, v. 1. and the note upon it.

that I (hould not reign over thew ] i. e. Keeping fill in mine own hands the regal rights, requiring what governoss and government I am pleased to appoint. And this, the Lord used as A reason to comfort Samuel, and to make him to bear their contumacious ingraritude with pathence, feeing if he himfelf, was content to endure it, who was Supream Lord and King, both of him and them; (though it were offered him in a far higher, degree, ) then there was great caule, why he much more thould meckly fuffer it without any regrets or grief, who was but his deputy and servant, and to much interior unto him in all refamile purpole, Joh. 13. 16. Math. 10. 24. 25.

V. 8. According to all the methy which they have done J. To wit, unto Moles, and others before thee, ever fince the day that groß iddatry, forfakting mr, and ferring flangig gods; fo answhich your king flall'bring good you, ye stall ery unto the that they do fill but continues chief old woar. The which the Lord for help and deliverance; he will not regard your peryenging twos no strange thing which had betallen him, but that which had betale content happed to other of his fastful straining which had betale to other of his staked lifety wants; and therefore it was to be born with parience, steing the your objects. May be use smill had a fast god of the state of the straining.

1. On Notwithstanding all thy diffusions, we thank im in our continues the state of the state o vants, and energorie revas to be porn wind patteries, items [1-e. Accordance and of the port of the was common oft, and one personal re to his alone, it the port of the personal results of the personal personal results of the personal results of

V. 9. Yes protoft foleanly unto then Or , notwithftanding whon show half colemnly protested against them, then thou shall shew, Sec. 1.6. To this end, acquain them with the milreirs and pompous and glorious Monarchy, inflead of that mean govern-milchiefs which they will inevitably bring upon themselves, by having a King, that hereby they may be deterred and discou- and glory in the eyes of the world. raged from profecuting their fuite, or at leaft, that they be left without excuse, when by their obstinate partisting in their cording to his own laws, in time of peace, purpofes they have wilfully brought themselves into remediless and show them the minner of the King ] i. e. Not what they ought to do in right, but what they use to do in fact, and bow they commonly demean themselves in their governments | Gods Special Favourite , in these tumultuous diffempers and quite contrary to Gods law, and also the positive and fundaddiffractions, he addresses the minest unto God by prayer, deficing mental laws of their own Kingdomes, Deut. 17. 15, 16, 17. See disc ctions from him, what he would have him to do further ch. 10. 26. Neither doth he here fet down the office and duty of a true Monarch, who is the father of his Country, and glory, and the good of the Common-wealth. feeketh the good of the Common-wealth, more then his own private profic, but what their manners are when they degene- ing no reasons nor warnings, will prevail with them, let them private proces, out work quest minners act when they degenerate into training traini whom the Lord was purposed to ser over them in his wrath, to their suite, and so definished the assembly, to depart for the Hof. 13. 11: For were it lawful for Kings, by vertue of their present, to their own homes, in the mean while, he reserveth place; to do all those things fet down in the verses sollowing, to bimfelf some time before the election of their King, wherein 18. The prince fall not take of the peoples inheritance by oppression, to choice of their King. thruft them out of their poffeffion, &c. So Ezek. 45.7.

V. 1 .. He will tale your fort and appoint them for himfelf | i.e. V. 11. He was trace your year and appears tozen for numerij 1 se. According to his own plasfure, whether you like it, or no. For otherwise, Kings have a Soveraign power and legal right over mens children, goods, and lands, if they exercise it in a lawful manner i.e. for the promoting of the publick good of the Commanner Letter the promoting of the public good of the County is thought to have had two lons; the one cauco acin, the outer home, which add is their own anticefully fetrice (as kings) both in the time of prace and war, for the with the conferror the Spatters of when they cindral lawfully deny it. But they must uncle, the task thinks that there was but one Ners, sails uncle to the strate these was but one Ners, sails uncle to the state of the strategy of the sail of the strategy of the sail of enjoy their regal priviledges by vertue of law, and not by unlimited prerogative, or, according to their own will and luft; not here expressed, but only his tribe, as it he had faid, Aphiah neither must they oppress their subjects, by laying upon them unnecessary burthens, knowing that they have a supream Lord above them, the King of kings, who respecteth not the person of pinces, unto whom, one day, they must give their sections.

So shart hits Seripute doth not vertaracturing to rule how they

V. 2. ** *d* their gying man and 2 good parts, both in telpect of hits perion, and the feature of this body, which was tall and prohits perion, and the feature of this body, which was tall and prohits perion, and the feature of this body, which was tall and pro-19, which as wildout any order or two controls or, when they abuse which was indued with moral vertues, and especially fortitude, the things thus taken, to their pleafure, to ferve their luils, or to and courage, befitting a king; and therefore fit to be advanced beflow them on their friends, and tavourites, not imploying to fuch an high dignity, and more likely to be honoured of his them for the good and benefit of the Common-wealth; or flubjects, when he was fet over them; and to this purpofe, these finally, when as they use the persons of their subjects, without praises are here given him. their liking and confent, as flives, and put them to fervile offices, and base drudgery, not beseeming iree-born subjects. places, though they were honorable and profit ible to kings fa- to ride upon them, Judg. 10.4. & 12.14. and Kifh (as Jufephus ving them nothing for their pains, or not allowing them confi-his Smiths, Carpenters, and Chariot-makers, and that, by com- (cribed) they paffed out of the one into the other, to and fro, pullion, not giving them for their pains fufficient recompence. V. 13. He will take your daughters] i. c. Forcibly to do his work, whether you will, or no; or not allowing them any wa-which of right belongers to your Levites, or another tenth after theirs is paid.

vish condition, you shall be compelled to do all his base detidgery, not reaping thereby any recompense or reward.

V. 18. And ye faelf sry out in that day ______ int the Lord will to prevent his grief.

mer bear you ] s.c. when groaning under the grievous oppretti-ver the chief grounds of their defiring a king, and why they were fo firm in their refolution ; and first, their proud and ambitious affection to be like the heathen nations, in fetting up a and that our King may judg 13] i. e. Rule and govern us ac-and go out before its and fight our battles ] i. c. Be our Geneall in our wars; of which we have now special need, feeing Nahash the King of the Ammonites is coming against us.

V. 21. And be rehearfed them in the cars of the Lord ] i.e. As about this weighty business, which did so much concern his

V. 22. Hearken to their voice, and make them a King] ie. ieepace, to commune congretation in the veries following, to miniet none time before the election of their King, wherein their blird is been on fin in Alab to take away Nabaths vine-yard, especially offering to give for it a considerable price, whereby, this weighty action might be fielded, and six is filling at. But we see the contrary plainly expersised, Ex. 8.4.6.6 councie of God, and pray unto him for his direction, in the

CHAP. IX.

Verf. 1. Our there was a man of Benjamin whose name was Kish ] i.e. A Benjamite, or, of the tribe of Benjamin. the fon of Abiel ] Who is called Ner, 1 Ghr 8.3.8: 9.39. who s thought to have had two fons; the one called Kish, the other a Benjamite] Or, the fon of a man of Jewini. Whose name is was the fon of a certain man, who was of the tribe of Benjamin. a mighty man of power] i.e. Either in respect of his person, rowels, and so titude, or else in respect of his substance and

V. 3. And the affes of Kifb, Sauls father, were loft | Affesin Afs, and bale drudgery, not beliening irec-born subjects.

Gyria and Canaan were in great efterm and use, because having two horses, but what they had from other Countries, they used from the countries, they used parties, wought only west mustows our protections to dailings are conflicted, who employed them, yet not no from who were to protected bring greated eligible in them, and being very considered bad many excellent ones of his kinde. And this was the only defigure, nor pleading to the people where they are quartered and why following it may be people of the choicelt being fitting days of the choicelt being fitting the days of the choicelt being fitting fitting days of the choicelt being fitting days of the fendeth his fon and fervant to feck them; which hapned by Gods and be will fer them to eare bis ground, and to reap bis barveft] forcial providence, (who to fiew bis power, often ufeth small i.e. He will prefethem to do his works of all kindes, either gi- and wesk means, to effect great matters) that hereby Saul might be brought to Samuel, and by him an oyated king over Ifrael.

derable and valuable wag; s.

and to make inframeur of near ] i.e. He will make them tribe of Benjamin; and therefore in their fearch (as it is here deaccording as they hapned to hear any tydings of them. and paffed through the land of Shalifhal i.e. A Plain, or cham-

ion country in the tribe of Benjamin, which is also called Basis ges for their work; and fo it is to be understood in all the reft | Shalisha, 2 King. 4.42. which also lay in the tribe of Benjamin, at followich.

At followich.

At 1, 2 and 2, 42, which will be the start of your feel 1 i.e. Either that whitely mas act, following shift, by Jordan, not far from Gills in the following the start of right belongera to your Levites, or another cental affecting the following thin the thefere was observed. John 2 12, though the following t and when they were come to the land of Zuph] Which was in V. 17. and ye foul be his forecuts] i.e. Lose the liberty and the land of Ephrain, wherein Ramah-Zophaim was, where priviledg of free-born Isracines and living in a service and six-

V. 5. Lest my Father leave caring for the affer, and take thoughs for us ] Where he sheweth his pious love to his father, in his care and he is an bonourable man] i.e. Who is much honoured and effeemed of the people, for his fingular skill in revealing fecrets, and fore-feeting, and fore-relling things to come. See ch. 2, 27.

Chap.ix.

John 14. 6. Judg. 13. 6.

all that be faith furely content to pafs ] i.e. All that he fore-tel-

eth by a prophetical Spirit.

baraduentime besin from 116 out way that we full go ] i. c. Of the bell courfe that can be taken by us to finde our affes; for which end we have taken all this travail : or if they be defperately loft without hope of recovery, he will tell us that alforthat then we may return, and not lofe any more labour. Now, though this were far below the calling of a propher, and man of God, to exercise his gift of prophecie about luch a base and contemptible subject, as inquiring of God about affes, which was to be imployed about fpiritual, high and heavenly things ; or such civil things, at least, as were weighty, and imported the good of the Common-wealth; yet God and his Prophets fromed and condescended to such trivial and common things , which better frited with the condition of Wizards and Southfayers, to keep his people from leaving him, and reforcing to them : and fuch was the enquiring after things loft, as in this place, and the recovery of those that were fick or wounded, as appeareth in Jeroboams childe, 1 King. 14.3. and of Abaziah, appeareth in jerocoams cause, 2 ning, 14.3. and of Abaziah, 2 King, 1.3. Again, the Lord was pleased to be enquired of about these ordinary and common things, and to give an answer by his Prophets for their satisfaction that resorted to them, because his people should not think, that he had less care of them, in their private necessary occasions, then the heathen idols, who being consulted with, did by the ministry of Satan, speaking in their oracles, return them answers, though oftentime were frivolous and ambiguous. And finally, that by having experience of the truth of their prophecies in such ordinary things . as were fubject to their fenfes, they might be the better brought to believe them in things supernatural, and above the reach of their own reason, Joh. 3. 12. If I bave sold you earibly things, and ye believe not; how firstly e believe, if I tell you of heavenly things?

V. 7. If wego, what feall we bring the man ? ] Not that he thought like a Sooth faver, he would do nothing without hire, which was the fin of Balanm, 2 Pet, 2. 15. And the falle prowhere, Micah, a. er. But he demandeth here what Prefent they should bring him; according to the common custome of which the people met to rejoyce before the Lord, and to praise thole times, which was to bring unto the Prophet some Prefent, not as the wages of his Divination, but as a civil and homorable gratuity, to teffifie their due relpect and fchankfulnefs unto bim, So 1 King, 14. 2,3. 2 King.4.42. & 8.8. Judg. 12.

for the bread is spent in our vessels] i.e. In our Scrips, Wallets, or Baskets; where, by bread, he meaneth their viaticum, or provisions, which they carried with them in their journey; of which, if any flore had been full remaining, that had been worth the presenting, they would have given some part of it to the prophet; for luch a Present Jeroboams wife carried to Attijah, 1 King . 4.3. and the good Shunamite with fuch provision entertained Elisha, a King. 4.8. and the man that came from Baal-Shalitha, brought him likewife bread, v. 42. or, as others think, he wieth it as a reason way they should not go to the man of God, but rather return homeward, beeause all their provision was frent, and they had neither meat nor money left to reheve them in their journey, if they flould make this flav.

V. 8. I brue here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver] Heb. there is found in my hand. That is, in my custody, or, in myparfe, appece of the value of 7. d. eb. the whole shekel amounting to half mounce of filver, or 2 s. 6 d. of our money, a poor Prefere to give a Prophet, whom he ftileth, aman of Ged, and an honourable person; but yet, worthy the acceptand an commune person; our yet, worthy the acceptance, when it was prefented, as a free gift, only, to reflife their thankfulness; effectally, when ( like the poor widows two mitrs) it was all their fubflancethat now remained.

befere-time in Iftaet, when a man went to enquire of God] i.e. Such was the piety of men in former times, that when they would ask countel of God, they would address themselves to his Prophers, who, by special revelation, were acquainted with Gods Will, Noon, 12. 6. & 14. 4. and from him, did reveal it unto his people. So Rebeccah, Gen. 25, 22.

come and let us go to the See ] So called, because they forefaw things to come, and because the Lord was fren of them in visions and dreums, Num. 12. 6.

for be that he wore called a Propher, was before time called a Seef ] Not that they ceased to be so called in Samuels time, as well as of old ; But they are the words of him who wrote this flory, added by way of parenticity, to cleer the thing to those who lived in his dayes, when the word, Seer, was out of ufe ,

V. G. There is in this City a man of God ] Which title they I book was not written by Samuel himfelf, but by one of his give in those times to the prophets, to shew in what high and hosourable estemn the men had them.

mafter, calleth it by his name.
V. 10. Then Saul faid to his fervant, Well faid ] Heb. thy word is good. His fervant being directed by the feeret motion of Gods Spirit, to give this councel, that what he had determined, might come to pass; Saul hearkeneth to his advice:which may teach us, not fo much to respect the person from whom the dvice cometh, as upon what realon and ground it is given. So (o they went to the City where the man of God was] i.e. To Ramab, where Samuel dwelt.

V. 11. And they went up the bill to the city Heb. in the afcent of the city. Which was not in the City it felf, but in the way and entrance into it, where they met the maids that came out

Is the Seer here? ] i.e. Is the prophet now at home at his houfe in the City 2 for though they knew that he dwelt there, v. 6. yet in respect of his many businesses abroad, as being judge, they doubted whether he were now at home, or

V. 12. be is. Behold, he is before you 7 Not meaning, that he was fo going before them, as that he was now in fight at that time; for they were now without the City, and he within: but that he was in the city neer hand, fo that they might, if they made bafte, foon, and eafily fee him. See v. 13.
for became to day to the city] Whence forme gather, that this City was not Ramah, the place of Samuels habitation, but some other City, whither he now came on this occasion. But this followeth not ; for though this City were Ramah, and he dwelt here, yet having been out of Town upon his occasions, they might fiely fay, that he came to day to the City, i.e. home, to his dwelling house. See v. 5,6.

for stere is a facrifice of the people to day ] Or , a feaft. i.e. A peace-offering, or, facrifice of thankelgiving; after which, followed a feast, made of the remainders of the facrifice. For it was lawful for holy prophets, immediately inspired, to offer fa-crifices, especially peace-offerings, and facrifices of thankefgivings, in extraordinary occasions, upon altars erected in other places, besides the Tabernacle, 1 Sam. 7.9. & 16.5. especially at this time, when as the ark, which was the visible figa of Gods presence, and (as it were) the soul of the Tabernacle, was not resident in it. But it seemeth, that this here spoken of, was rather a feaft after the offering, than a facrifice, at white the people their to rejoyce evolute the John State Section to the him for his bleffings, Gen. 31. 56. a King, 19. 21. Sec the note on ch. 7. 9. and on Judg. 21. 4. And this feaft (it feemeth) was made purposely by Samuel, and ghefts invited unto it, because God baving revealed to him, that he would fend him thither, the next day, whom he would have to be their King, he defired to give him, when he came, honourable entertainment, by making him a folemn feaft.

in the high place The City it felf was scituate on an hill, feeing they are faid to afcend to come to it; and this place where they facrificed and feafted, was the bigheft part of the City, which in those times, and long after, the people our of their devotion, thought fittelf for fuch religious uses, as being neereft heaven, and furtheft and freeft from worldly diffractions, and difturbances; which places were in use to the building of the Temple; and after that, ftrictly forbidden, I King, cap.

V. 13. Before he go up to the bigh place to eat] i. c. To feaft, and not to offer facrifice; or, first to facrifice, and then to for the people will not eat untill be come ] For it was a commendable custome among the Ifraelites, to blefs God, i.e. to acknowledg his bounty and goodness, and to crave his bleffing, before their meat, and to give thanks after, and he that bleffed the table, did also divide and distribute the meat; the which was practifed by Christ himself at his last Supper, Math. 26.26.

was practiced by Christ similer at this size copper, restaut and at Emaus, Luk. 24.30. Deut. 8.10. it Tim.4.4.

now therefore get you up] i.e. Make haste (if you define to see him) before he six down; for otherwise, you will hardly do because he doth blefs the facrifice] i. e. The meat referved after the offering, for the priests and people, to surnish their feath. See ch. 1.4. Or, as others think) the meat provided for the feast, without a facrifice.

V. 14. Samuel came out against them] To wit, out of his own house, into the threets of the city, being directed by God

V. 15. Now the Lord had told Samuel in bis ear, a day before Santcame] Here he rendreth the reason of Samuels coming forth to meet Saul, and also of his providing this feast, namely, to entertain Saul, that he might anoint him King.

told samuel in his ear Heb revealed the ear of Samuel. To withy removing the covering wherewith it was vailed by which phrafe and propher came into its place. By which it feemeth, that this is figuified, that by the feerer infoiration of his Spirit, he had revealed to Samuel (as a friend doth a feeree by whit pering in the nobilitie of this tribe, in birth and parentage; for foit was eare of another) that he would the next day fend him a man of fuperious to all the reft, faving the tribe of Joleph, being det the tribe of Benjamin, whom he would have him to anount; feended from Jacobs beloved Rachel, bis onely true wife; but i.o. I will, by the fecret inflinct and motion of my Spirit, cause fewell friends to be for them in the election. Now this he the man, whom I thall fend, is of the tribe of Benjamin.

that he may fave my people out of the bands of the Philiftims Who though they had received such a great defeat by the ifnot free, as often as they got any opportunity to do them any not tree, a sortem as they got any opportunity to do ment any middless; and uver now again-ready, avaing mate a confederacy vito the Ammonities, to ratie a new war against against them, that joining together, they might invoke their country at the fame time, as appearence, the last time and time fame time, as appearence, the last time and time fame time, as appearence, the last time and time fame time, as appearence, the last time and time fame time, as appearence, the last time and time fame time, as appearence, the last time and time fame time.

that be may fave my people one of the bands of the Philiftins] For overthrow; yet becaute he gave them divers defeats, and fo power, v. 1. So Gideon, Judg 6.15. blunted their rage, and abated their firength, that they could not as formerly they had done, keep them under as their ferto have faved them, though their deliverance was not compleat, but only begun, and the perfecting of it referred till Davids reign.

For I bave looked upon my people ] God had formerly looked upon them, for he feeth all things at once, with one perfect act of feeing. But he speaketh after the manner of men; and to be is laid to look norming, when beholding them with the eye of pity and compation in their mileries and affl ftions, he cometh to give them into my deliverance.

beene e their ory is come uneo me] i. c. Either (as forne think) their clamour in calling tora King to be their Captain, or rather, their cry and companies under their grievous oppressions, which moved the Lord to pity them in their miseries. For fo the Lord contenterh not himfelf with his former predictions, and descriptions, but pointeth out the man, when he cometh into his fight. And this the Lord spake unto Similel by secret in-Spiration, or Spirit of prophecie. So ch. 16. 8. 12.

this fime [hall reign over my people] Heb. restrain. i.o. By his authority and government shall restrain them from loose liberty and licentious wickedness.

the gate. i. e. Being entred by the gate into the City, as it is 100 gairs. 1.c. Denig entrea by the gate into the City, and not far from Samuels boulg, out of which he came to meet them. Others understand it, of the gate of Samuels house, out of which he came to meet them. of which he came, and unto which Saul was come to inquire after him

V. 19 go up before me unto the high place ] i. e. Do thou and thy lervant go to the place where we have appointed to keep a feast, for I am resolved to entertain you for my and I will tell thee all that it in thine heart ] i.e. Not only concerning thy fathers all's, for which thou half taken this journey, but allo all other tising, which then defireft to know, which do more highly and neerly concern thee,

V. 20, See not thy minde ourbem, for they are found ] i.e. Take no further care for them, nor let them by troubling thy minde with anxious care, make time the more unwilling to flay with me, only for this one night longer, feeing they are already by and particular to all liked know him not; but for muto this time it had been type for thee fines.— I invited the measures is this; auto whom shall the general define people] Whereby it appeareth that it was not any parc of the thall be out the unings definable in Threel, that is, the choiceft and bed things from me in the ct, but thine, as the 8.1.12.

V. 2.1. March To Radiophia, of the multiple of the triber of King over Ifrael. And this the Lord told Samuel before-hand; in respect of its smalnes in number; for Sul thinking (it may that when he came, according to his prediction, he might be be) that the Kingdom should be conferred on one by election this was a re-cum, according to his prediction, ne insection by distribution and their general votes, conceiveth, that there ch.20. 12:13. 2 Sam. 7, 27. Job. 33. 16. flai. 22. 14. and was no probability he should carry it, seeing every tribe would 48.8. be for forme one of their own; and mercare matters, and is all likely bood, V. 16. I will fend thee a man out of the tribe of Benjamili leads fail, muft needs have foreth voyces, and in all likely bood, for them in the election. Now this be 19. A vising our extern immercan monton or my spirits came reversal transactions to use the control of the monton unator these, though thingelf know not offit; and fight rarely, becambe this tribs, not long before, were almost that thou maidle not mittake another man for him, know that all flain in the quarted about the Levites wife, Judg. 20. therefore could not yet be multiplied to any great number; nor, as it feemed, long after, feeing in respect of their paucity, joyning themselves to the tribe of Judah, though they were raclities, that they du if not again invide their country, to long two, yet utually they were accounted but one, and called the as Sanutel alone julged the people, ch. 7. 13. Yet before that tribe of Judah. For fo Ahijah faith to Jeroboam, that he should time they had grievoully oppressed, 7.15. See they were have ten tribes; and Rehobosam but one, 1 King, 11. 32. And afterwards, when the ten tribes made that great febilm and re-

that be may fave my people one of the bands of the Philiftins J For \ \text{tribe of Benjamins (or, ex bealt had bin before they were deflroy-though they had not in all Sauls time a full deliverance from | cd in that great flaughter ] it femeth his family was fewelf in the Paillitims, but the war continued to the very day of his number, being compared with others; howfoever he could not death, when allo both he and his people received a green speak so of his fathers house, seeing he was a mighty man of

V. 22. And Samuel sook Saul, and his fervant - and made not a formerly they had done, keep teem indee as their ter-vatus and flowers but certified it out with them in an equal bil-lance of war, functiones do one party prevailing, and fone-times the order s, therefore he might be faid, in tome degree, them fit in the thiefoft place ] So humble was Samuel and free from envy and emulation, that he bent all his thoughts to honour him whom God intended to honour ; and therefore giveth place and precedency, not onely to Saul himfelf, but also to his fathers fervant, in honourable respect to him, whom he atten-

V. 23. Bring the portion that I gauethee] Whereby it appeareth, that God having told him, the day, before, of Sauls coming, Samuel had prepared this feaft to give him entertainment. And because it was the custom of those times, to provide and fet before every one of their guelts, their own peculiar difh or mels; as it was his purpole to make Saul his chief guelt, Io he provided for him the chiefest piece of meats and appointing the Cook to fet it up for this ufe, he now calleth unto him for it, the next words before early the face, fulled to edith, Exo.

3.9.

V. 17. Bebilt the min whom I fact arms thee of 1 That. Same alm give be the better affired than be was not fullken. Priest, Levit. 7.32.33. And this being, in those times, counted the chiefest joynt, was allowed to the Priest as his portion, and for the fame cause was fer apare by Samuel, for his entertainment of Saul : Or, it may be, that it was not fuch a feaft 2part that remained of the peace-offering, but as a special dish prepared before, and fet apart by the cook at Samuels appointment ; for if it had been that which remained of the factifice, V, 18. Then Saul drem veer to Samuel in the gate Or, within it could not be fer apare before it were finished, see chapte.

V. 24. And that which was upon it, ] That is, either some other peece adhering unto it, as the neck, (for the breft alfo belonged to the Prieft, Levit 7. 31.) or rather some other meat that was laid upon it, or fome fance to make it more aceptable to fuch an honorable perfon. Where, in a word, observe by the way, The fobriery and temperance of those times, being compared with the profuse gluttony, and gormandizing that is used in our days: Seeing then one joynt of meat, was thought good emertainment, when they intended to thew their honorable respect to one that was designed to be their King; whereas now endless varieties of dithes and delicacies are at our tables, excused as not costly, or dainty enough, to entertain our equals.

B. hold, that which is left, fat it before thee and cat. ] Not that which is left after others have done eating ; (for it is more then probable, That as he was preferred to the chiefeft place, fo he was nurvered, out enner that values see as a remander of the charge of t was firit ferved,) but either that which is left as a remainder of all life at on having a King to rule over them, in reyal peace-offering, but provided the day before, or at leaftearly in the morning, when he invited his guests, whereby he inti-tum the of fichers bouter Orders read it, Whofe mates unto Saul, that God had revealed unto him his coming the day before he came, or elle he could not have referred for bed thingurine are in the chart chine, as ch. S. 1.2.

V. 2.

Man Line, of the million of the triber of Start [144]. That is, fonce Leaned this feaft to be prefront? The which he speaketh turn in respect of the bosons and speaketh to the present of the chine.

Chap. x.

V, 25. Samuelcommuned with Saul upon the top of the boufe ] | 19.16. Secondly Priefts, as Aaron and his fons, Exod. 20. 22. That is, his own hou'e, where, after he was come from the feast, he entertained and lodged him. Others think, that when all the guelts were come down into the city, from the house, where they feated, Samuel took Saul to the top of the house (which in those countries were flat-roofed, and fit to walk upon, like our leads and terrales, Deut. 27. 8. that there they might commune together about the affaires of the Kingdom, as being a place of fecrecy and out of hearing, and therefore the fitter to debate in of these weighty affairs, which they defired, as yet, to be kept secret; as appeareth by their choice of this place; their early rifing in the morning to consult before their parting; and their fending away, before them, the fervant, when they communed about his election, and other Regal affairs; and thereupon intended to anount him King. The which fecrecy was uted, that it might not be thought, when he was cholen King, that there was before any collusion or plotting between them, but that it might plainly appear, that he was immediately cholen by God. V. 16. Samuel called Saul to the top of the house | Namely, his own bou e, where Saul was lodged, unto which he had called and to idolaters killed their idols, 1 King. 19. 18. Hol.13. 2. him the day before, and not the house where they had feasted. And thither he called him again, that he might privat ly talke and titute r ne caused num again, matter might privat by raise with him about his calling to be King, and might halflen him on his jumers, as he before had promited him, v. 25.

Bid the [cruant pais on before] i. o. To wit, that he may not bear us conferring on these weighty affairs, nor fee me anoym-

But fland thou fill awhile, that I may fbem thee the word of God] To wit, that thou maieft with more reverence hear Gods message and divine Oracles, concerning thy calling to thy kingly office, and the fignes to confirm thy faith, in the to thee.

CHAP, X.

Verl. 1. Hen Samuel took To wit, by Gods appointment, who fent Samuel to anoint Saul to be King ever his people, as he telleth him, ch. 15.1.

a vial of cyl] Which was used in this ceremonial anounting, red to fi and qualific the person anywared by the Spirit, unto continue in the amount, the contribution of the person anywared by the Spirit, unto contenting his Kingdom, should likewise certainty come to that place and tunction, unto which God caled him, the place and tunction, unto which God caled him, the place and tunction, unto which accordingly betel Sayl, as is noted, ver. 6. and 5. And | ture upon it, notwiths landing all difficulties that he should fecondly, that God had fer him apart, and advanced him above meer with in his way; feeing he was affured, that God, who others in authority and eminency, in that place whereunto he was all luffi tent to protect and bear him out, had called him was called ; in which oyl bath fome refemblance, which mix-th unto it. not with watrish liquors, but separateth it self from them, and floteth above them. Now it is questioned, among Expositors, motern above them. Now the squett one, among asymmetry purches was in me way to epartum, that any action what kinde of cyl this way, where with Kings were an emported, whether common cyl, or the holy cyl of the moterary, appointment of the common cyl, or the holy cyl of the moterary, appointment of the cyl ted by God, for the confectation of the Prieffs. And it is in the border of Ben, amin; because these two tribes bordered thought, that Saul was anothed with ordinary oyl, (as alfo upon-and were intermigled one with nother.

Jebu) which Sanu! brought with him in a wist, from his at Zelzab] An unknown place now, feeing own house; and that David and Solumon, with other Kings fucceeding them, were anounted with the boly oyl of the fanctuary. But this is not probable, feeing this oyl was appropriated to Aaron and his fons, and firstly torbidden unto all others, to nation and unsigns, and ittitus formouth unto an onersy under that great penalty, of being cut off from Gody people, Exod, 30:3,33-33. And befides, Sawu anowined David in great feer cited as being in danger of holing his lite, if it fit under come to Sau's knowledg, as it engly might, if he had fetched it from the landuary, and acquainted the Prietls with it. And the fecond time, that he was anounted King over Judah, a Sam. 2.4. the cabernacle and the cyl in it, was under the power and dominion of Isbotheth, Davids enemy; and therefore could not be had from thence for this use, to anount him King, who was his corrival and competitour. Neither have we any intimation in the scripture that it was other then ordinary oyl. For whereas it is laid, Pfal. 89. 20. that God with bit boly oyl had anorated him; This is not understood of the oyl, in respect of its substance and composition but onely in regard of that sacred use, unto which it was imployed. And whereas it is alleadged that Zadok anoynted Solomon with oyl taken cut of the tabernacle, i King. 1. 29. Hence it follows not, that it was that holy cyl, appropriated to the Priests, seeing there was in the tabernacle much other cyl, destinated to other uses. David and Solomon are faid to have been anounted with oyl, congained in an born, but Saul and Jehu in a vial; which difference (as some think) was made, to fignific the stability and durablenels of the one, and fragility and fhort duration of the other; feeing this was held in a brittle vial of glassor earth, but that in an horn, which is firong and durable, and able to endure many a fall or knock. and poured it upon his head | There were three forts of men, that were confecrated and fet apart to their feveral functions, by anoynting with oyl; as firth, Prophets, So Elitha, 1 King, these ments offerhim this Present, by way of homage, due to

32. And thirdly, Kings, as in this place, and elsewhere; who were all of them types of our Lord Christ, confectated and fer apart by God his father to be our Prophet, Priest, and King; and therefore when he, who was the Anti-type, was exhibited, these ceremonial anountings ought to cease, as being of no more use vea, in this respect are unlawful, because, they that use them, do hereby deny that Christ, shadowed by them, is yet comein the and hiffed him ] Which ceremony, in those dayes, and long after, was diverfly uled; As first, to testifie their mutual love, and the union and communion of their minds and hearts, Gen. 48.10. & 27.26. Exed 18.7. Ruth 1.9. Secondly, to congratulate them, who by God were newly advanced to fome great honour and dignity, as here, and Gen.41.40. Thirdly, by way of commendation and approbation, joyned with a kinde of ravishing delight, Prov. 24.76. Fourthly, of falutation and kinde entertainment, Luk. 7. 45. Fiftly, to testifie their homage and fubjection yie'ded out of reverence and love, Gen. 41.40. And laftly, by way of adoration and religious worthip; and Christians their bleffed Saviour, Pfal. 2.12. Now Samuel kissed Saul in divers of these respects, as, namely, to testifie his to tellisse his willing homage and subjection.

is it not because the Lord bath anomated thee? ] As if he had faid, have I not used all these ceremonies, to give thee affurance that God hath chosen thee to be King over his people ? that is, I have furely done it to this end. Where he mindeth him of two things; Fuft, that God was the chief Author of his high advancement; and that himself was onely his Minister, to do that which he appointed, hereby to move him to give unto God affurance of this divine vocation, and the duties that belong the whole glory and praife. And secondly, that it was Gods people or inheritance, over whom he should reign, to make him the more careful, to govern them with wilcdom and in righteoufness, 1 King. 3. 9. Ezod. 19.5. Deut. 9. 26. and

V. 2. When thou are departed from me ] Here and in the verses following, Samuel by a prophetical Spirit, giveth unto Saul, certain figns which should occurr in his return, that when he faw them accordingly happen, he fhould thereby have his to fignifi: the collition of grits and graces, (which were requi-

by Rachels [epulchre, in the border of Benjamin] Rachels fepulchre was in the way to Ephrath, that is, Bethlehem, and as at Zelgeh] An unknown place now, feeing it is not elfewhere mentioned, and fignificib a fair, or pleafant fhade.

And thou Shalt come to the Plain of Tabor ] Or, to the Oak of Tabor. For the word fignifieth both a Plain , and an Oak, lying at the bottome of that mountain ( and in the tribe of Iffachar, Josh. 19.22.) upon which Christ was transfigured, main. 17. 1.

geing up to God to Beshel] i.e. Either the place properly fo called, Gen. 18. 19. where Jacob faw his vision; in which was an altar for facrifice, and was a place of prayer and Divine worship, unto which the people resorted; or appellatively, the house of God, and that, either at bilob where the Tabernacle was, or Kiriath-jearim, where the ork was now placed, whither these three men went to offer facrifice.

carrying a bottle of wine] Which they used in their facrifices of thankelgivings and drink-offerings, Levit. 23.13.

and give thee two loaves of bread which thou flatt receive] But how could they give, or Saul lawfully receive that which they had devoted upto God as a facrifice, to be offered unto him? Some think, that they had in their fore other bread for their ule, out of which they gave thefe two loaves; but fpeaking of three leaves which they carried with them, and then adding, that they gave Saul two, it feemeth, that he doth mean two of those three. Others think, that though these loaves were devoted to God, yet they might lawfully give them to Saul, being hungry, and his provision spent, ch. 9. 7. because it was a work of mercy, to relieve his necessity, which God preferreth before facrifice, Hol. 6. c. But feeing he came fo lately from Samuel, it is not probable, that he would fend him away fo flenderly provided for his journey, that he should already want bread, when is he had travailed, as yet, but; few miles from him. And therefore, I rather think, that God intending it to Saul, as 2 fign that he fhould be King, did fecretly by his Spirit, more their king, though themselves, for the present, had no such sthou shalt fore tel things to come, Numb. 21.24. knowledg of him. The which, famuch the more sended to the flrengthening of Sauls faith, the main end at which God and Samuel aymed, when as they, upon no acquaintance, or other cause, offered him this Prefent, but only as they were moved in a strange manner by Gods Spirit, and it was in them not only lawful, but also a pious duty, to hearken and yield un-

V. g. After that, thou fhalt come to the hill of God] By which, fome understand the high hill in Kiriath-jeavim, where the ark was placed in the house of Aminadab. But this is not likely, that the ark of God flould be removed for fafety, from Bethfhemeth, to a place which was fo neer a ftrong garrifon of the Philliftims, fering the people were daily to refort thither, for religious fervices And therefore by the hilof God, here we are to underst and the high place of Gibeah, which is called Gibeah of Benjamin; neer unto which was the Philistims garrison, chop. 12.2. Whence also Sauls Father, Kifh, and his Uncle, who afterwards met him, with other of his kindred and friends, had their habitation. And Josephus calleth it the town of Gabbethes. And it was called the hill of God, either because the Lord there had done, in former times, some memorable act, which gave unto it its name ; or, because there was there some place confecrated to religious uses, where there was a Colledg of Prophets, confectited to Gods fervice; who might dwel in in fafety, neer a garriton of the Philitims, feeing in those dayes, fuch religious men were priviledged to dwell neer thee, in all thy undertakings, todo him fervice in thy kingly their enemies, without hurt or danger, and thou shale meet a company of prophets coming down from the bigo place] Namely, of Gibean, the place of Sauls habitation, cannot be understood of Sauls present going to Gilgal, as soon as where there was a School of Prophets. For there were in the Land of Ifrael divers Schools, or Colledges of the Prophets; to pals; for before this he went to Mizpeth, and was there the which were of two forts, as first, the Elders or chief, who where endued with the gift of prophecy, properly (o called) and and lived fometime in a private condition, ch. 11.4, 5. After were governours, and (as it were) Fathers over the reft; be which, hearing of the befreging of Jabez-Gilead, by Nahala cause by instruction and example, they did (as it were) spiritually beget them; and educate and train them up, in holy and religious exercifes, as praying, reading, meditating, studying, and interpreting the Scriptures, and Law of God, staging of Pfalms and fpiritual longs; using therewith instruments of Musick; holy conferences one with another; that they being thus trained up, in doctrine and holiness of life, might be fitted thereby afterwards to instruct the people. The most of which (as it may probably be thought) were of the Levies and Pricits progeny, thus educated for the fervice of the fanctuand truth progeny, thus contacted for the spring or the standard and the contact and the conta call them to be extraordinary Prophets, endued with that spe- fing; which was either done, because Samuel might be hincial gift of prophecie, whereby they did fore-fee and fore-tell things to come. Though this was not common to them all, nor appropriated to them alone, feeing it came not by instruction and education, but by Gods free dispensation; the wife, he was to be established in the Kingdom. And of this winde bloweth where it lifteth, as we see in the example of the second coming to Gilgal, which was above two years after those who this parting of Saul from Samuel, Chapter 13, verse 1, 2. lived in these Colledges, were the younger fort of findents, un- must this place needs be meant ; for in the first going to reder the government and tuition of the Elder, inffructed by them in the knowledg of the Scriptures, trained up in religious exeresses, upon whom also it pleased God (when he thought this solemnity of the Kings Inauguration , and there good) to confer the extraord nary gift of prophecy, as appeareth they continued together till all was finished, as appeare a King 1.25. Now of these Colledges, there were divers in eth, Chapter 11. ver. 14,15. and chapter 12. verse 2, 2, &c. Ifrael, one here, another at Bethel, a third at Jericho, a King. 2. 3. 5. a fourth at Naioth in Ramah, over which Samuel was Prefident and Father, ch. 19, 20.

with a pfulterie, and a sabres, and a pipe, and a barp] The which they used to play upon, when by singing of Plains and spiritual of great straits and dangers namely, that he should, on such oc-longs, they praised God, to raise up their spirits, and to make cassons, go to Gilgal, and there attend Samuel seven dayes, to them more cheerful in religious duties; and it may be alfo, confult with him about them; and because he might be in when they prophefied, as we fee in the example of Elifha, who when his minde was fad and heavy, in that great diffres of Guds people, and diffempered and exasperated with the pre-fence of Jehoram, an idolatrous King, called for Musick to raise up his dul and drooping spirit, and to bring his minde into such andjuly temper and frame, as might make him more fit to exarising temper and traine, assuight make an more it to ex-ercife his gift of prophelying, a King, 3.15. And, for these ulessivere these holy men set apart by David, as Heman, Asaph, Jedutaum, and their sons, for the sevice of the fanctuary, who were endued with prophetical spirits; and joyned middlek with their prophelying, and giving thanks, finging praifes unto the Lord, as plainly appeareth, 1 Chron. 25.

1, 2, 3, 6. Antibe Spirit of the Lord will come upon thee] i.e. Both the fpirit of wildom, magnanimity, courage, and other qualifications, befitting thee, for thy kingly calling; and also the pirit of prophecy, enabling thee to joyn with them in spirimal longs, and finging Gods praifes; though thou half not his meeting with the Prophets, and his own prophelying, and been taught and trained up invitele foritual exercises; and allo his being turned into another man, he doth speak more fully, and thou fhalt be turned inte anether man ] That is, not in res fpc& of perion, form and fubitance, but of properties, gifts and parts; namely, both in respect of the present gift of prophe-lying, and of the spirit of wisedom, valour and government. which shall be inspired, to fit thee for the calling of a King, so as thou shalt not, as formerly, like a meer rustick, according to thy education, fet thy minde and heart upon thy cattle and hulbandry, but upon fuch things as belong to a King for the government of his Kingdom, in peace and war. In all which there was but a civil, and nor a fanctifying change, of faving grace and holyness, as appeareth by his fearful defection into outragious wickedness afterwards,

V. 7. Do thou as oscation thall ferve thee for God is with theel A a if he had faid, I cannot give thee particular rules to direct thee in all the future actions and proceedings, in respect of the intervening of various accidents; but as occasion shall be offered, make use of thine own prudence, wher with God wil endue thee, ro do that which shall appear to be best, both for the wel-governing of thy people in time of peace, and the making military preparations against Gods enemics, and the right ordering of all things in the time of war, when the Lord calleth thee to figur his battels. In all which proceed with a couragious and undaunted fpirit, seeing the Lord will not only enable thee with gifts, to direct thee in all thy waies, and to overcome all difficulties, but will also be prefent with thee, to affift and protect

V. 8. And thou shalt go down before me to Gilgal ] Which he parted with Samuel, nor yet after he faw the figns given come which, hearing of the belieging of Jabez-Gilead, by Nahalh King of the Ammonites, and the hard conditions he tendred unto them, he made war against them, and wholly vanquished them. Which being done, Samuel summoneth the people to make their appearance at Gilgal, there to renew the Kingdom, which they did, and there made Saul King, and offered facrifices and peace-offerings before the Lord, and greatly rejoyced in their King, ch. 11. 14, 15. And therefore (for ought i can conceive) there must be two goings of Saul to Gilgal; the first appointed to renew the Kingdom; the other, to make preparations of war against the Philistims, which being a weighty dred from coming fooner by fome necessary occasion; or ra-ther, for the trial of Sauls faith and obedience to God, in weiting his appointed time; upon which condition, and not othernew the Kingdom, Saul waited not for Samuel feven dayes, but they and all the people went thither to perform Some understand this going to Gilgal, by Samuels appoint-ment, not to be limited to either of these two goings, but to be a general direction to Saul, what he should do, when any weighty affairs of the Kingdom hapned, especially in the time places far remote, therefore he should there attend him seven dayes, that he might have time to come to frim. But we read of no fuch matter done any other time; Neither is it like, that Simuel fivoild, in his old age, and when Sail reigned, be for far diffant, that he should need seven dayes for his coming V. 9. God gave bim another beart ] i.e. Wrought in him fensible change, by infusing into him heroick gifts and Kingly abilities, and taking him off from his former thoughts and defires, about private and country affairs, and endowing him with heroical gifts and parts, fit for a king, and the government of a kingdom.

and all those figns came to pass that day There are four figns given, but he doth not infilt on every particular, (for nothing is faid of the two first) but only speakerh of them generally, than they all came to pais; which was sufficient, in relation to the end for which they were given, yet of the two last, namely, the extraordinary gift of prophecie, (for the time) whereby as being of greater concernment, and more pertinent to Sauls person and condition.

Chap. x.

V. 10. Behold, a company of prophets met bim ] i. e. Both Ark, to finde out who should be their king, V. 12. Concerning the prophets themselvers, and their sons, that is, their discipling the prophets themselvers, who gave themselvers to Divine inducts and V. 18. I have brought ny fiscal com of Egypt,] See Judg. 2.1. V. 18. I have brought ny fiscal com of Egypt,] See Judg. 2.1. exercifes and the Spirit of God came upon bim] i.e. The Spirit of pro-phecy, inabling him to speak of Divine matters above his natural abilities, or his former education and imployments.

ral abilities, or in somer caucitation and improjunctus, and be proportied] See v. 6. and the note upon it.

V. 11. When all that knew him before-time] i. e. All his acquaintance, kindred, and friends, the Inhabitants of Gibeah, among thom he dwelt, and who had formerly known his person, parts, and breeding, and how unsuitable they were to his prefeat carriage and condition; they were amazed to fee this fudden and great change, and questioned one with another, what should be the cause of it.

Is Saul also among the prophets? ] As who should say, it is so ftrange, that it may justly be wondred at, that Saul should not only be conforted in fuch an equipage, but also that he should on the fudden be furnished with fuch gifts and abilities , as to perform these Divincexercises, in praising God and prophely-ing, as well as those who had imployed themselves to these Modles, and have had the help and benefit of education, and in an orderly proceeding, by cashing lots, it may be known the institution and example of their Fathers and Tutors, the whom God will make choyee of, to be your king. So Joshua

V. 12. But who is their father ? ] When they faw Saul prophefying among the prophets, they wondred at it, and asked one of another what he did there, and how it came to passe that he who was of a far different calling and profession, and never had any education in the School of the Prophets, should now on a fudden come to prophefie; Unto whom one of the fame place, who, it feemeth, was wifer then the reft, (and as oy assing amount question. Dut wou is their states? I had it so the father of those other Prophets; as though the finculd have faid; wonder not at this, seeing all these, whom ye hear and fee prophesic, have not these gifts by partimony, but from God, who is a free agent, and inspireth whom he pleaseth; and the who is a free agent, and infpireth whom ne pleature; one the feature of lipits, who by infpiration bath conferred the feature of lipits, who by infpiration bath conferred the feature gifts on them, is alike able at his pleafure to insufe the fame gifts of the humble concert which he had of himself, in respect of the humble concert which he had of himself, in respect of the humble concert which he had of himself, in respect of the humble concert which he had of himself, in respect of therefore it became a proverb ] i, e. An ulual and common verb unto them. Is Saul alfo among the prophets ? And thus they wondred at Paul, who of a Perfecutor, became a Preacher of wonderd at Faul, who of a Pericutor, became a Presenter of each cannot to apple, and the control of the Golpel, Act, p.21. And at the other Apollles, when Gods immediate and free chopses they faw their gifts, and knew that they were illiterate, and of the control of the grant and period by the present grant and the control of the control of the grant g mean birth and low condition, Act. 2, 7,8, and 4. 13. Yea, (asit is very likely) also a Synagogue and place for divine | ment. worship, whereof it is called Gibcah of God, v.s. whither Saul went to praife God, for his high advancement, and to pray for his further direction in his weighty bufinels, and for his protection and bleffing upon his indeavours.

V. 14. And Sauls uncle faid unto him ] That is, (as it is pro-bable) Ner the father of Abaer, meeting him either in this place of religious service, whether he also went to do his de-votion; or else, as he was coming down from it into the city, he inquired after his journey ; and it may be the more curroufly; because seeing this strange change in him, he might think that some wonderful accident had befaln him in the way, which had been the cause of it.

and when we faw that they were no where. That is, not in any place, whither he went to feek them.

V. 16. But of the matter of the kingdom, whereof Samuel spake, be told bim not. T Either out of modefty, because if he did not beleeve it, he would think him proud and ambitious; or, if he thought it would prove fo, because Samuel the Lords prophet had told him it, left it might expose him to his uncles envy, when he heard that he should be advanced so far above him; or finally, because Samuel had hitherto carried it on, as a great fecret, and upon good grounds, he did not think fit to discover it before the due time.

V. 17. And Samuel called the people together unto the Lord.] That is, to make their appearance before the Lord, that he might declare unto and convince them of their fin, in asking a king; and also to thew Gods sentence therein, and to proceed to the election of him, See Judg. 11. 11. and 20. 1. to the election of all 1, See Jung 11, 11, and 20. It to the Ark to be brought, and the high prieft to come with Urim and Thummim, to ask council of God; and by casting lots before the and 6.8. with the note upon it. And here he telleth them of his former mercies; and especially, that main and chief of all, their deliverance out of the Egyptian bondage, to aggravate theirfin in asking a king, and thereby flaking off Gods govern-and out of the band of all kingdoms.] That is, the Canaanites, and out of the hand of all king aoms.] Inat is, the Canaanites, Moabites, Midianites, and the Philiftims.

V. 19. And ye bave this day rejected your God.] That is, you fill continue in your former tebellion, by asking a king; and fo rejecting Gods government. See chap. 8. 7. and the note and we have faid unto him, That is, unto me; who being his propher, and fent on his message, do represent his person, cha. 8. 19. and 12.12.

Nay, but fet a king over us, ] That is, after all my diffwafions, and all that I could either do or fay, ye have wilfully perfifted in asking a king.

present your selves before the Lord by your tribes, ] To wit, that and by your thousands, ] The tribes of Ifrael were divided into thoulands, as appeareth Mich. 1.2. See Josh. 22. 14,21. Num. 10. 26. Deut 32.17. ch.23. 23.

the tribe of Benjamin was taken: ] That is, by casting lots, as Tofhuz caufed them to do: where first the tribe, then the family, then the boushold of that family; and lastly, the person of that houshold was taken. And so here the tribe of Benjamin, then fome probably think, the father of thole Prophets) and were the the family of Metri, then the hothfold of Kifth; and Jaffly, the yasking another question. But who is their father? That is, person of Saul was taken. See the maner of cashing lots in the note on Josh. 14.2.

Therefore they inquired of the Lord. ] Either by Urim and Thummim, or by Samuel; who by prayer, as an holy prophet, defired God to fhew what was become of him.

the meaners of his condition; and of his infufficiency of gifts sortique is seame a prostra 1 s.e. An usual ann common the uncants of also conditions 3 and or ass insulintence you guits above all expectations, especially when the was railed and trade-und apparts, com anage the great affaints of the kingdom, which with most of eminent parts and gifts, in find the place and end to emission the common the prostration of emission that the common wealth was 10 uncleted. Charp 3: the difference of the common wealth was 10 uncleted. Charp 3: the difference of the common wealth was 10 uncleted. Charp 3: the difference of the common wealth was 10 uncleted. Charp 3: the state of the common wealth was 10 uncleted. Charp 4: the state of the common wealth was 10 uncleted the common wealth wa And also out of prudence, that he might hereby make it appear, he did not ambitiously affect the kingdom, nor use indirect means to afpire unto it, but was called thereunto by

V. 25. And Samuel told the people the maner of the kingdom,] To wit, not as it is commonly practifed, chap. 8.9, 10. but as it ought to be in a lawful and free monarchy, appointed by God himfelf, according to the fundamental laws of the kingdom; teaching what duties the king ought to perform in the governteaching what duties the king ought to perform in the govern-ment of his people, and the people in their subjection and obadience to their king; according to that description of a king, set down by Moles, Deut. 17. 14, 15, 16, 17. Ezek. 45. 9, 10, and 46.16. Rom. 13.1. 1 Tim. 2.2.

and wrote it in a book ! Which is not now extant. before the Lord.] That is, in the tabernacle, where also were referved the standards of just weights and measures; or it may be (at this time, when the Ark and tabernacle were feparated) before the Ark; that it might be read continually, to put them in minde of their mutual duties.

V. 26. And Saul alfo went bome to Gibeah, ] Where for a time he lived privately, chap. 11.5. by reason of the discourage-ments and oppositions which he found at his election, by wicked men that despited him, waiting till God gave him some oppor-tunity of shewing himself a King, rather by his actions, then by his words.

And there went with bim a band of men Who attended upon him as a voluntary guard, both to secure his person from any attempts of those wicked men that despised him, and to do him' honour as their King, as thinking it unfit, in respect of his roy-all estate unto which God had called him, he should return home baving none to attend him.

whole hearts God tonebed That is, inclined by his Spirit, to yield willing obedience to their new King.
V.27 But the children of Belial [aid] See Judg. 29. 22 and the Note upon it. Which name is fitly applyed unto them here,

Chap.xi. because they thook off the yoke, and were unwilling to sub-mit to Sauls government; where it is well worthy our observation, that though the Lord was much displaced a with the people for asking a King, yet when one was set over God, in presenting time a time for their deliverance, as though with the people for asking a King , yet when one was let over them by his own choice and appointment, he was much as they despised him , and were unwilling to submit to his government, and therefore flileth them, fons of Belial, i. c. men most flagitious and desperately wicked.

men montrigutious sind deliperately wicked, defijied bim! To wit, because, in respect of his mean con-dition, they thought him unworthy to be their king, and having but little power, unable to deliver them from their enemies.

sellife their fealty and allegiance. So 2 Chr. 27.5. Math. 2.1 1. But he held bie peace Or, he was as shough he had been deaf. i.e. Prudently confidering that it was no fit time to take notice in all probability, have furprized and supplanted them. of their unworthy dealing with him, before he was fetled in his kingdom, left it might cause sedition and rebellion , he rather thought to win them by lenity and forbearance.

CHAP. XI.

Verl. 1. Aen Nahafb the Ammonite came up ] Of whole preparations of war against them the Israelites having formerly heard, and being terrified with it, they defire a King, to go out before them as their General, that they might be fayed out of his hand, ch. 8. 20, compared with ch. 12. 12. and now after they had elected their king, according as they feared, becometh up to invade their country, and to befiege one of their Cities. And this he did, out of the innate batted one of their Cities. And this he did, out of the innate hatred which the Ammonites had againft the Israelites, which they fixed at their coming out of Egypt, in not relieving them, and in hiring Balaam to curse them; for which they were exagainst them, for that great defeat and overthrow which they of good fuccels and certain victory; and the rather, because the fluce, all the men of their City were put to the floord, because driven by others, as he came from following his kingly sports they being called, came not out to assist the army of the Israe- and recreations; which is the conceit of some Expositors. lites against the Benjamites, Judg. 31. and therefore alfo, in this respect, the more unlikely to be rescued and relieved by the rest of the tribes, because of the old quarrel, and all themen of Jabes fail unto Nabash, make a covenant be used for the relieving of their diffressed the with us, and we will serve thee Which was expressly against Gods minately spend their time in weeping and mourning. commands, who had given them a first charge, that they should not make any covenant, or have any communion with them. and how much more, to receive them as their lords, to rule over them; and all this, our of a base and cowardly sear, and vid. ch. 16, 13, or an heroical spirit of courage and strength, set diffilent distrust in God, not with standing all his gracious promifes, that he would protect them, and give them victory over all their enemies, if they would ferve and cleave unto him, ing such dishonorable and insolent conditions. Deut. 20. 1,3,4. &t 23.3,4.

V. 2. On this condition will I make a covenant, that I may thrust able condition of faving their lives, which was far worfe than death it felf, seeing it would (if yeelded unto) have enthralled death it felf, seeing it would (if yeelded unto) have entiralled his people abused and oppressed by a proud tyrant, his anger is them in perpetual flavery; seeing thereby, they should for ever kindled, which being the wherstone of true fortitude, maketh have been difabled from taking up arms, to free themselves out him resolute to take revenge. So Moses, Numb. 12.3. compared of this fervitude; for carrying their shields on their left arms, their eye on that fide, was thereby covered, and hindred from feeing with it before them; and fo their right eye being put out, fent them, Sc. | Following beroin (as if feemeth) the Levice as his they became little better then blinde. But his main end herein, was to bring a perpetual reproach, not only upon them, who should for ever wear in the fight of all men this badge and mark of differace, but also upon all Ifrzel, as being a base people, who would for fear of death, yeeld to any ignominious condi-tions; and howfoever they professed, that they served an Almighty God, that was able to deliver them from all their ene- iffiment. mies; yet when it came to the trial, they had no confidence in him in their extremities : and this,it feemeth, was a course that raelites at an advantage, to bring shame and reproach upon v. 12. Sthat if they would not follow their King whom they dethem, ar appeareth in the case of Davids Ambassadors, sent PPP it must be then, or never; whereas he was al-sufficient, to do it when, and by what means he pleafed.

we will come out to thee | i c. Yeeld our felves sinto thee to dispose of us at thy pleasure; which though it was finfully done by them, yet God by his wife and powerful providence did fo order it, that it should be a means of their deliverance by the band of Saul, and that hereby flowing his valor and magnanimity, he might by all the people be received as their king. And and brough bim no Presental As subjects used to do to their to this end, he allo inclined the proud heart of the tyrant to yield Kings, after they were elected, to do them homage, and to unto their motion, as thinking that it would little avail them for obtaining of any ayd; that hereby he might be breught to defiruction; whereas, it he had prefently fet upon them, he might,

V. 4. Then came the meffengers to Gibeah of Saul | Called before, Gibeah of Benjamin, as lying in that tribe, and now Gibeah of Saul, either because Saul was born there, or, because he did now refide there who was their king and Captain; and therefore now they address themselves to him in this their extreamity, and crave his ayd.

and all the people lift up their voices and meps ] Not only our of compassion and sellow-seeling of their brethrens distress & mifery, but also out of the apprehension of their own and all If-raels reproach, which hereby would redound unto them; and it may be alfo, out of fear that it might fhortly be their own cale, feeing if they thus prevailed against them now, they might hereafter do the like against other cities.

V. s. Saul came after the berd out of the field ] For though be were elected king, yet he was not crowned, nor received generally by all the people as their Soveraign : yea.contrariwile.was cluded from coming into the Congregation unto the tenth ge- despited and murmured against by many sons of Belial. And cluded from coming must not be Congregation unto use terms get accepted and material against by many toro set. An artificial plant, $1, $4, and all of to renor their old claim unto the land, which the lifesticated a taken out of the hands of the dition, till God was pleaded to give him form good opportunity. Ammonites, which they challenged in the time of Jephthath, of approving himfoll, unto all the propely, worthy to be cheir king. Judg. 11.12, and to revenge their quarrel and ancient grudg And this was no diffearagement to his royal dignity, feeing it hath been the practice of many great Potentates, as divers of against usem, or total great cereat sind oversition which test plate been the practice of many great Potentiates, as divers of their gave them; and now having gathered more friength; and the Confuls, Dictaors; and Emperiors of Rome, year of David taking advantage on the cellation of Samuels government, and himfelf, who, after he was anoynted king, by Samuel, ch. 16.1; a the unfeedbards of their flaves, and diffractions about the elécti-continued fulliflor at time, to keep his fathers flaves, but 7.1°0.28. on of a new king, they make war against them, and presume And though this may feem not to agree with that royal guard which did attend him home from Mizpeh, ch. 10. 16, yet lecing Philiftims at this time being their enemies, were ready to in- this was only a company of volunteers, who did him this honor, Paillitim at citis time oring their enemies, were ready to in-yade them on the other fide of their country.

and enemped againff 3thet-Gilted J Which was feituate bewhen that was done; and feeing he did not choole his royal and given to the tribe of Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of

and given to the tribe of Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of no hindrance to his retyring, and leading for a time, a private Manaffeh ; unto which they made their first approach, not only life : neither doth it feem, that his coming after the herd, was because it was neer to their country, but also, because it was accidental, seeing it is said, that he came after the herd out of the weakest part of the land to make resistance, seeing, not long the field, and did not only happen and chop upon them, being what ayleth the people that they weep ] In which they thewed their womanish weakness; for whoreas they should have taken unto be used for the relieving of their diffressed brethren, they effe-

V.6. And the Spirit of Gol came upon Sant] Not the Spirit of regeneration and fanctification, but of fortitude and princely prudence, as it did upon Samplon, Judg. 14 5. and upon Da-and his anger was kindled greatly | Whereby it appeareth, how V. 2. On this condition will I make a covening, that 1 may wrap out all your right eye? Nathath prefaming on his own dirength, 8c the weakings of the enem of Jaheth to make refinemen, cour of his

the weakings of the enem of Jaheth to make refinemen, cour of his tart from him; for though be was milde and meek in his own caute, when he was defined by the fons of Bellal, th. 10.17, yetScale afficient was that difference with the difference with the difference with the control of the with Expd. 22. 10.20.

V. 7. And he took a yoke of Oxen and herred them in pieces and prefilent; and knowing that men are more affected, and their passions raised with an object presented to their sight, than only by hearing of it in a bare narrative and relation, he taketh this course, that those who would not be moved by hearing this meffage, in just anger to take revenge, might yet be induced to joyn with the reft of their brethren in this war, for fear of punwhofoever cometh not forth after Saul and after Santuel ] Who accompanied this new and unfetled King in this expedition, not the Ammonites pleafed themselves in, when they had the If- only as a prophet to direct him, but also as a Judg to affet him, Chap.xii.

Chap. xj.

fpifed, having no experience of his worth, yet they might at ro. 9. And David against the Amalchite's, Chöpter, 30. least, follow Samuel, whose government they had long known ver. 17. ly given over his government, but executed the office of a Judg. as long as he lived.

And the fear of the Lord fell upon the people] Though Saul had fet forth a levere Edict, as it became a king elected, that his its torm a severe doi:t, as it became a king elekted, that his authority might not main too contempt yet ethis alone would not have prevalled with many, for they that depited his performing, and therefore this its added, as the chief coule of their following and the deficiency, that the fear of the Lord offel upon the people, and moved them to by this threatning to their the coule of the country of the count heart, which otherwise, they would have slighted and contemned. And fo it is faid before,ch. 10.26. that a band of men waited upon him from Mizpeh, to his own house, whose heart God bad touched. And this is rendred as a reason, why the Canaanites did not purfue Jacob and his family to revenge the flaughter of the Sichemites, because the terror of God fell upon all ter of the streemines, between the cities round about, and reftrained them, Gen. 35.5.

V. S. And when he numbred them in Bezele] Or, at Bezele.

i. e. In the territories belonging to it, or, neer about it. See Juig. 1. 5. the children of Ifrael were 300000, and the children of Judah 30000 ] The reasons given by Expositors why the tribe of Judah was numbred alone by themselves, in the general muster of all the tribes, are divers : First, because it was the greatest tribe in number, and in the extent of their inheritance. Setriue in numer, and in the extent of their inheritance. Se-condly, because they used to have the precedency in all their expeditions, which was fird given them by God, Judg. 1.2, and also in their encampings, Num. 2.3. Thirdly, because the Messias was to defeend out of this tribe, that should weild the royal experter, according to Jacobs prophecy. Gen. 49, and also the race of kings should come by lineal descent, untill his coming; howloever the first King, which was not to continue, was cholen by God out of Benjamin, the least of the tribes, because God gave him in his anger, and intended not to eftablish the kingdom in him and his posterity. Where by the way, we may observe the humble submission of the tribe of Judah to the government of this King, notwithstanding they had a former promife of the kingly throne and feepter, only upon this ground, because they saw it thus determined by Gods good Will and pleafure.

V. 9. And they faid To wit, Saul and Samuel. V. 10. The mon of fabels faid Namely, to Nahash, and the Ammonites, that beleagured them.

to morrow we will come out unto you] Whereby they intimate, that they had sent to their brethren for nyd, but getting none, they were destitute of all hope, and therefore would the next day yeeld themselves over into their bands. The which they faid, to make the Ammonites the more fecure, that the If raelites when they came, finding them unprepared, might obtain a more easie victory. Now this was not a direct lye, but only in suppressing of the condition of their former covenant, namely, that they would come our and yeeld themfelves, if in the mean time they had no help; yet it was a mental referencion, wherein they concealed part of the truth and their intention in it, which they were not bound to dilcover to an enemy that fought to deftrey them, feeing they would have made this use of it, to have affaulted them the same night, and to have prepared themselves against Saul and his tary ian memicres increases one every ince on a moden 3 to remit such capital fine. So Sood hath morally lentenced to be which end allo, he furprized them in the nights or at the break of day 3 and allo, when he had routed them, that there is failed to have done on the morrow, that is, after that Suil and he is failed to have done on the morrow, that is, after that Suil and he may had marched all night, as Johns had done hefore restricted in 1 failed, as Johns had done hefore remarked all night, as Johns had come hefore remarked all night, as Johns had co in the like cafe, Josh 10.9.) they came upon them betimes in the morning on the 8. day after their truce taken, on which they had promifed to furrender themselves, if in no day of the

Leven they were relieved. feven they were relieved, and they came into the midfle of the boft in the menning watch]
Which is spoken to command Saulsdilligence and military prudone, in making a long march in a short time, that he might on a sudden surprize the enemy, and that in the night, coming on a todden turprize the centry, and not in the injurious of the purpose of the control of the John School o in the example of Saul here, of Joshua, Josh. 8. 4. 9. and him.

any refitance. Where Expositors do question, whether Na-hath himself were slain in this battle; and Josephus sup-poseth he was, though (as it is thought) amils. For Mahash dyed in the beginning of Davids reign, who, because he had fecution, not (as it may be well thought) to much out of love to David, as out of hatred to Saul his mortal enemy, who had given him this great overthrow) fent mellengers to comfort his fors, 2 Sam. 10. 1. unless it should be suppo-

is not likely.

V. 12. Who is be that faid, Shall Saul reign over ma] Saulsgood futcefs procured him many friends, who were now zealous in his caule, and feek that they should be brought to condigne punishment, who had spoken high treason against their king, and despising him had refused to submit to his govern-

V. 13. And Saul faid, there shall not a man be put to death this day In which speech he sheweth his piety, in resusing to take private revenge; his elemency, in remitting so foul a lo take private revenge; its clemency, in remitting to roul a fault, which is a princely vertice, than the which nothing more (except piety and judice) beformeth and graceth a king; and its wildome and kingly prudence, in applying himself to a feafonably, according to the time and prefent occasion; not using feverity in the first entance into his government, but rather chasing to win them with lenity, which did, no doubt, much take with the people. And laftly, he sheweth and exercifeth his kingly authority and prerogative, in pardoning fuch David, pardoning Shimei, 2 Sam. 19.25. But it may be de-manded, if Saul did well, in pardoning these traytors, seeing manded, it Saul did well, in pardoning their trayers, iceng it is the duty of Kings to execute justice and judgment, Rom. 13. 4. Prov. 17. 15. To which I answer, that as justice is the vital heat of government, so mercy is the natural humor, which vital neat of government, io mercy is the natural numbi, which qualifying and tempering it, maketh it durable; and both are good, if they be rightly and duly used. There are some laws meerly humane and political, which chiefly receive life from the prince; this power being put into his hand by the fundamental laws of the Kingdom, and answerably he may dispence with fuch laws as inflict punishment meerly in their own in his princely prudence, he thinketh it equitable, profita-ble, and feafonable. But there are other laws that are meerly divine; or necessarily, and inseparably grounded upon them; and with these he ought not to dispence, nor pardon the transgreffions, or remit their punishment, unless to be the tending tending is not expedied, but left to be determined by positive laws of Princes and Nations. And therefore, (as I conceive) though they may crimit treasson against themselves, at least, in some cases, yet not ion against toemieves, at least, in some cates, yet not wilfull murcher, against that negative Commandement, thou shalt do no murther; seeing the punishment thereof is expresly and morally determined, both before Moses law was given, Gen. chapter 9. ver. 6. and also under the law, Numb. chapter 35. verse 16. 30. and by our Saviour Christs own senience and fanction in the time of the Gofpel, Matth. 16. 52. Revel. 3. 10. Though in some cases he punishment may be respired; as when the inflicting of army, coming the next elsy.

V. 1, Sulf par the copie in these (empanies] The which be idd, that he might (like Gideon, Jung. 2.19.) firshe the more terror and fear into the hearts of his enemies, when he cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw them fearly fur or benefits fur or daded as to the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw them fearly fur or benefits of the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw them fearly fur or benefits of the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw them fearly fur or benefit of the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw them fearly for the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw fearly for the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw fearly for the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw fearly for the cale between David and Joab, when he had murthered here faw fearly fea t will bring greater damage to the Common-wealth, thin reasons are implyed, why he would not have these offenders put to death; First, because he would not have their rejoycing, in the day of their triumph, become unto any a day of mourning; nor their victory over their enemies, to be stained with the blood of his subjects: And secondly, because God having the ed himself so gracious and good unto them, notwithstanding their provocations, as not only to pardon their sins, but also to give them such a glorious victory and deliverance out of the bands of their enemies, it was unterly wares the Acquaints dispated them most over. And netted point is apparent, that it is lawful to the walkle fraish and politique firstagems againfian enemy, as well as the fword, by barbarous cruelty, when this Spirit departing from time hat. Covenants be now broken, and fight byloard, as we fee | he was politicide, and led by that evil plaint that came upon

A place neer unto Jericho, where the people were circumci- monitions putting them in minde of their duties, and much fed at their first coming over Jordan, and so renewed their more reproofs, when they do amits. See 1 Sam. 12. 13.2 Covenant, Josh, 5. 9. And therefore thought by Samuel, so be the more fit for renewing the covenant of the Kingdom, between the new king and his people. Befides, it was one at Gilgal, by general confert of the whole people, whereby all of the three places which Samuel did yifit in his Circuit for occasion of rebellion is taken away. ot the three praces which samuer one vine in his Circuit for the judging of the people; in which, (as is thought) was an alta-upon which they facrificed peace-offerings; and in this respect-also, resorted unto in their publique and general affemblies, as title of the Lords auoynted, ch. 12.5. and used all other folemnities requifice for his Inauguration, facrificing facrifirequire torins transportation, rectining seriors of percenterings and thankefgiving unto the Lord, praising him for giving them a king, by whose conduct they had obtained such an happy victory, and praying for him, and Gods bleffing upon his government. For though he was elected before ; yet they now meet again to confirm bim in bis Kingdome, and to prevent all future rebellion, by giving their univerfall confent a feeing now having good experience of his wisdom and valour, none could question his calling, and the va-

before the Lord in (filed) That is, in a folern manner, as in Gods presence, upon the alar there creeked, and (as it is likely) before the ark, the fign of Gods prefence, which was by Samuels appointment brought thither, that they might confult with God, as occasion served, in this weighty bufinels; and also (it may be) that it might grace the

CHAP. XII.

Vers 1. And Samuel faid unto all Ifrael That is, having affembled the people of all the tribes together, with all their Elders, Captains, and Magistrates, like a faithful Judge, and religious Prophet, he layeth hold on this op-portunity to make a speech unto them; the main scope where-of is to convince them of their fins, and to bring them to unfeigned repentance, for the averting of those heavy judgments, which otherwise God would furely inflict upon them. But more especially, he laboureth to make them fensible of that great fin by them lately committed, in asking a King, in that violent and impetuous manner, whereby they rejected God from reigning over them as their supream Soveraign, and himself as his Deputy and Vicegerent. And though he had formerly done it in the eighth Chapter; yet he thought it fit to press it again at this time upon their consciences, with more earnestical, for divers reasons, as being an high different unto God, and a most ungrateful wrong offered unto himfelf; it being now most feafonable and necessary, both for the peoples good, and the clearing of himself from unjust calumnies and aspersions. For as for them, they were apt to be puff'd up by their late victory, and to applaud themselves in their wickedness, seeing they found to appause teemleives in their wickeoness, teeing they toond fuch good fuccess, by having a King and Captain to conduct them; and on the other fide, to centure Samuel, as one that aymed at his own ends, in distingating them from him; as namely the continuance and feeling of the government upon himself and his sons; and to this end, had spoken worse of Monarchy then it deferved, branding it with fuch imputations tial government of their Judges, and making choice of the bard of tyranny, as they found it to be innocent of, and free from, in their own experience; feeing the king whom they had chosen, was not only wife and valiant, and to fit to be their Captain in time of war a but also meck and merciful in governing his subjects, and far from rigour in taking revenge. Again, he could not have a better opportunity to clear himself from all thoughts of ambition, in all his former courannier troin alt deughts oramothol, in an uts former cour-les, feeing he had now voluntarily laid down the government, and from acts of injuffice, feeing by divelling himfelf from all his former power, and refigning it over to their new king, as his supream Soveraign, he was liable to give accompt of all his former dealings, if they had now any thing to lay to his charge. And therefore if any thing afterward tell out under their new government, which being intolerable, should give them cause of complaining, they could not lay the blame on him, that he had necessitated them by his avarice and injustice to run into these mischiefs by desiring a King, to be eased of his corrupt government, feeing he was clear of thefe crimes; where, by the way, he tacitely upbraideth and convinceth them of their groß ingratitude, who being weary of such a milde and just Judge, had rejected him as a man unworthy to continue in his place. And finally, by their clearing himfelf from all rigor and injustice in the presence of their new King, he tacitely propoundeth unro him an example, in his own carriage, of a just and

V. 14. Then Samuel faid to the people, Let us go to Gilgel ] ears are tender in hearing plain and direct instructions and ad-and have made a king over you] i.e. Not only chosen him by lot at Mizpeh, but also established, anoynted, and crowned him

V. 2. And now behold, the King walketh before youl i.e. Is fetled in his kingly office to govern you, and to go before you as your General in time of war, Numb. 27.16.17.

allo, reforced unto in their publique and general alternoires, as a this time.

and three they made Saul King.] That is, they anopyred him to manage the great affairs of the Kingdome in deepublique king publiquely, as Samuel had before done privately; whereof it is, that Samuel afterward giveth unto kim the and my own interest, to give over the lupream government. to another, which, in respect of my age, is grown heavy unto and behold my fons are wish you ] Not now as rulers, but as private men, to do you fervice, and to give account to you and your King, of their former courles and carriage, and to make fatisfaction for any thing, wherein formerly they have done amils, whileft they were in place of government.

and I have walked before you from my childe bood unto this day? i.e. I have faithfully, and in the uprightness of my heart, performed the duties of my calling in the fight of you all, both in the fervice of the Sanctuary in my younger dayes, when I was a Levite; and in my riper age, by administring justice fince I was called to be a Judg.

V. 3. Bibold, here I am, witness against me] To wit, not as your supream Magistrate, whom yo might fear to accuse, but as another man, who have furrendred my power to your king;and therefore, being now ready to give an account to you and him, of all my actions in my former government of the Commonwealth, fince I undertook it, you may freely, and without fear, challenge me for any of my faults and failings in all my foregoing administrations, Ecclus, 46. 19.

and before his anounced i.e. Before Saul; who is newly anount-

ed your king, as it is more plainly expressed, ver. c. So chap.

of who/e hand have Ireceived any bribe to blinde mine eys therwith]
Or shat I (hould hide mine e.es at him i e. Either that I should not fee to administer righteous judgment, being fore-stalled and prejudiced, by taking a bribe so as I could not see, nor be able to puta difference between a good and bad cause, no more then a blinde man can fee his way. And fo it is faid, Deut. 16. 19. that a gift doth blinde the eyes of the wife, causing a Judge partially to wrest judgment, and to pass sentence on his side from whom he receiveth a bribe. And Solomon faith, that a gift is as a precious flonein the eyes of bim that bath it; and if it he taken in our fence, it is a pearl in the eye which maketh it blinde ; or, if we read it thus, that I bide mine eyes at him; the meaning is, that I might not take notice of their faults, to punish them according to their demerits, being corrupted with their bribes.

V. s. Tebave not found ought in mine hand ] To wit, which I have taken to pervert justice. And thus he cleareth and justityeta himfelf in all his former government, (as Mofes had former-ly done, Numb. 56. 15.) both that he might be an example to their new king, whom he calleth to witness, to make him avoid thole oppreffions, and acts of injuftice, which he told them 1efore, would be incident to a tyrannical government, ch. 8. 11. And alfo, that he might hereby convince the people of their finful fally in rejecting him, and with him the upright and unpacand oppreffive government of kings, which in many of them, they should after finde and feel by woful experience.

V. 6. It is the Lord that advanced Mefes and Aaren] Heh. made. i.e. making Mofes the governor of his people, and Aaron the high prieft; and when you were oppressed in that grievous Egyptian bondage, fent them to deliver you out of it.

V. 7. Of all the righteous alls of the Lord ] Heb. righteoufneffes, or, benefits. To wit, as well benefits as punish ments; in both which he juffifyeth God against them, and sheweth how fairbfully God had kept covenant with their fathers, in giving them help and deliverance out of the hands of all their enemies, that hereby he might convince them of their diffidence, in not relying itil upon him; and of their unthankfulnels, in rejecting his government, who had alwayes been so good and acious unto them. V. 8. When Facob was come into Egypt ] Gen. 46. 5,6. That is, when he and his posterity had long continued in Egypt, and were exceedingly multiplyed. See Exod. 1.13,14. And being grievously oppressed, cryed unto the Lord for help and delivery ance, Exod. 2. 23,24.

made shem dwell in this place That is, made way for their enjoyment of their inheritance which God had given them in the land of Canaan, by leading them through the wildernels, and overcoming the Amerites, Sibon, and Ogg, and giving unto them their land to inherit, as an Erneft of all the reft, and Bracious governor, that herein he might be unto him a pattern unto them their land to inherit, as an Ernelt of all the relland and president for his institution, because he knew that Princes substituting Joshua in their place, as Captain and General, to Canage, according to Gods promife. V. 9. And when they forget the Lord ] Where he maketh their forgetfulness of God to be the cause of all their rebellion, apoltafie, and idolatry; into which they had never fallen, if shey had born in minde Gods mercies in their marvailous deliverances, and multiplying upon them fo many favors, Pfal,

V. 10. And they cryed unto the Lord ] i.e. Confessing their fins, and repeating of them, they addressed themselves unto the Lord, by servent prayer, for help and deliver-

V. 11. And the Lord fent Jerubbaal] Where he giveth divers inflances of feveral deliverances, not much regarding their number, which were many more then are here mentioned, nor naming all the Judges, by whole means they were delivered, nor our the order of time in which they lived, nor the enemies, out of whole hands they had deliverance, but only infifted upon four, as being sufficient to put them in minde of all the Ferubbaal] i.e. Gideon, Judg. 6. and Bedau ] Whom fome suppose to be that Jair the Manaffire, spoken of, Judg. 10. 3. because it agreeth withthe order of time of their Judges here named, he being after Gideon, and before Jephthan, and because he was the grand-son of Machir the Manaflice , who is called Bedan, 1 Chr. 7. 17. a name given him, to diftinguish him from an elder Jair, defcended from Manaffeh, Numb. 32. 41. Others conceive, that Sampson is here meant, called Bedan in this place, because he was of the tribe of Dan; for Bendan, significth a son of Dan; and Bedan, in or of Dan; neither in some few special instances was it much material, that the order should be exactly observed. Neither indeed is it, as hereby it appeareth, in that the oppression of the people of street under Eglon the King of Moab, was before that of Sisera and Jabin, and also the Philiftims, and yet is named laft, v. g. And this they ra ther think, because there is no mention of any remarkable thing, or special deliverance spoken of in all Jairs government, as was in the time of Sampson, to which end chiefly, thefe archere named.

and Samuel 1 Where he nameth himfelf, not out of vain-glory but because his victories, and their deliverances by them, heing lately archieved, were tresh in minde, and were fitteit to convince them of their diffidence and ingratitude, both to God and him, in that they would shake off their government, even in Samuels dayes, though the Lord had honoured him with fuch profeerous success in all his undertakings, and under his conduct and care, had given unto them such great deliveran-

V 12. And when we fam Nahash- come against you For though they had first a King before he came against them in this great and last expedition; yet he bad made fome incursions great and late explaints if you are discussed in the inha-into divers parts of the country, affiliating and vexing the inha-hirants; and they had beard also of these great preparations before he came against Jabesh, which moved them to desire a King. when the Lord your God was your King lie. Held in his own when the Lord your God was your King J. t. Held in his own hand the royal rights, and did accordingly rule over you by Judges, as his fubfitutes and deputies, with whose govern-ment ye should have been contented, till he had been pleased to alter it, by giving you a King.

V. 13. And behold the Lord hath (et a King over yeu) That is, when you would have no nay, nor be otherwise fatisfied in your importunate fuite, by any reason, or all my perswasions to the contrary.

V. 14. Continue following the Lord your God ] i. c. Though you have greatly offended, and by your fin have juilly deferved to be cast off from being Gods people, as you have reichted him from being your King ; yet upon your unfeigned repentance, he will ftill continue to be your King and Leader under whose government you shall be safe, by his grace and power protecting you,

V. 15. As it was againft your fathers] i. e. He will punish you with all feverity, as he did your fathers, when they re-belled against him, by causing them to fall in the Wilderness, and as for their fin, he would not fuffer them to enter into the land of promile; fo, if you follow them in the fame way, and provoke the Lord to just displeasure, he will cast you out of this good land, which you now have in your possession.

V. 16. Now therefore stand and see this great thing i.e. That you may be more throughly convinced of your fin, and brought to repentance, take special sotice of this great miracle of thunder and fuddain rain, which the Lord will prefently fend, because you are so bard-hearted and ftiff-necked , that no words will move you, unless they be confirmed by miracles and wonders, Math. 12. 28,29. 1 Cor. 1. 22. whereby it will appear, that all my former words, in diffwading you from a perfect what they had begun, and to give them possession of man, but from God, who hath sent me unto you as his Prophet and Ambaffador.

V. 17. Is it not wheat-barueft to day? I will call unto the Lord and he fhall fend thunder and rain ] Though among us, whose climate is colder and moviter, we have sometime thunder, and oftentimes rain in the time of our harvest; and because it falleth towards autumn; yet in those hot and dry Countries of Syria and Canaan, they never happened, because their wheat-barvest was in the very heat of Summer, which dryed up the vapours and exhalations, which are the causes of thunder. And this was the reason why it was thought miraculous, to have rain and thunder at this time, especially seeing the day when Samuel spake upto them, was fair, and no likelihood of thunder and rain, Prov. 26. 1. And whereas it may be objected, that it was no great wonder to have rain in harveft, feeing it is faid, that in the time of harveft, Jordan did yearly overflow its banks, Jofn. 13. 15. I answer, Though this were granted, yet it could not be but a great wonder, that the day being fair, there flould prefently upon Samuels prayer, be rain and thunder. But then in the fecond place, though lordan overflowed its banks in time of harveft, yet it was not in wheat-barveft, here fpoken of, but in the barley-harveft. which was peerer the fpring, and a good while before this, to wit, in the beginning of March, freing the Ifraelites passed over Iordan the tenth of that moueth, and before the Passeover ; whereas the wheat-barvest was in May, before the Feast of Pentecoft : neither is it necessary , that this overflowing of lordan should be by the aboundance of rain, but either from the melting of that abundance of Snow, which did lye upon that high mountain of Lebanon, (at whose bottom Jordan flowed) with other hills neer unto it, Jer. 18.14. or from some other hidden property of that river, or fecret cause, as it is in the rifing of Nilus.

that ye may perceive and fee that your wichedness is great, in asking a King] i.e. Not only finful, in rejecting the Lord from being your king, but also foolish, by withdrawing your felves from him, who is so mighty a Protector, that bath rain and thunder, beaven and earth at his command, whereby be is able to destroy all his enemies, as he had done in Jothuahs time, ofh. so. 11. and they themselves had lately found in their own experience, ch. 7. 10. and also from my government, as being his Deputy, who, of Gods free grace, have fuch power and prevalency with him by my prayers, as to obtain thunder and rain from heaven, to convince you of your fin , and to justifie me in mine integrity. Sec ch. 8. 7. and the note upon it. Burit may be demanded, how it could be faid, that they thus finned in asking a King, when as it is faid before, ch. 10.
24. that God had cholen him to be their King. I answer, hecause they failed in the manner and circumflances, that is, asking him very unfeafonably, not waiting upon God for his time, but in their own time, when they thought good. Secondly, not meekly fubmitting to Gods Wil, but with impetuous impatience, which would admit of no delay. Thirdly, proudly because they would be like other nations. Fourthly, distrustfully, resting more on their king, then on Geds power and promises.
And laftly, rebelliously shaking off Gods Government, as weary of it, and defiring to exchange it, that they might have a King fet over them.

V. 18. And the Lord fent thunder and rain that day ] i.c. In fuch an unufual and terrible manner, (the more powerfully to convince them of their fin ) that they were afraid , left they thould have been utterly deftroyed by this horrible tempest which caused them to defire Samuel to pray for them unto the Lord, that they might not dye, v. 19. Ezra 10.9.

and all the people greatly feared the Lord and Samuel] Namely, the Lord, unto whom thunder, rain, and tempelts readily obey; and Samuel, who was so highly in his favour, as to obtain them from him, by his prayers.

V. 19. Forme bave added to all our fins this evil, to ask ma King | Whereby it appeareth, that the people were by this great miracle fo throughly convinced of their wickedness, that they are hereby brought to the humble acknowledgment, not only of this fin, but upon occasion thereof, of all other their fins for-

V. 20. And Samuel faid unto the people, Fear not ] i.e. In a fervile manner, which would make you to flee further from God with a more fearful apoffafie, and so add fin unto fin, but with filial fear, which will cause you to cleave closer unto him ; for though you have grievoully finned, yet there is no fin fo great, but shall be forgiven, if ye turn unto God by unfeigned repentance.

V. 21. And turn ye not afide] Namely, from following the Lord in the way of his Commandements, either on the right hand, or on the left, but continue faithful in Gods pure worthip, with integrity and fincerity of heart.

for then ye should go after wain things ] i. e. Idols, which being empty vanities, and of no worth, do lead men into va-King, were not spoken from my felf, who am but an old weak nity , and do prove to be just nothing, and unable to give any Chap. xiij. 8. 4. Deut. 32.21. Jonas 2.8.

V. 22. For the Lord will not forfabe his people for bis great Names [ake] That is, though you by your fins have juftly deferved to be refented, yet the Lord will not do it, because his name is called upon you, as being chosen by him to be his peculiar people; and therefore being in covenant with him, it will not itand with his glory to leave, and cast you off, before ye have forfaken and rejected him. Seeing other nations taking notice of it, would have been ready to fay, That the Lord was mutable in his purpoles, or unfaithful in his promifes, or impotent and infufficient in his performances.

hecause the Lord hath pleased to make rou his people. To wit, of his free grace, and not for any merits of yours, above others. So Deut. 7.7. and o.s.

Moreover, as far me, God forbid, that I should fin against the Lord, in ceasing to pray for you.] That is, though you have dealt unsuffly and ingratefully with me, yet God forbid that I should fin against him by neglecting my duty towards you, either in praying for you, or preaching to you; that you may be influcted in the true knowledg of God, and of his will and ways. With which duties. I neither can nor will difpence, feeing he whose messenger I am, requireth them at my hands ; howfoever you neglect your duty towards me, 1 Cor. 9.16. Matth.

V. 24. Only fear the Lord ] i.e. Be careful, with my prayers to joyn your own religious duties; the neglect whereof would make my prayers inefficacious ; where by fear, he m :anethall other holy versues and graces, and also the exercise of them in Gods fincere worthip and fervice.

and ferve him in truth with all your bears? i e. In fincerity without any mixture of bypocrific and diffimulation; and in integrity and simplicity, not dividing the heart between God and tools.

V. 25. But if ye fill do wickedly, ye fiall be confuned both you and your King] i.e. If you perfitt and continue in your rebelious couries against God, it is not your King that shall be able to lave you, as you have foolishly imagined, but both you and he shall perish together, if you communicate in the same fins.

CHAP, XIII.

Vetl. 1. Autraigned one year] Heb, the son of a year in bis lefted King at Mizpeth, unto the time when he was extend King at Mizpeth, unto the time when he was annoyated, crowned, and established in his Kingdom, by general consent, in Gilgal; in which year, those things related in the two former Chapters, were done, to wit, the defeating of Nahath and his army, and the raifing of the fiege before Jabez Gilcad, and the peoples affembling at Gilgal, and Samuels speech made there unto them, to bring them to repentance.

and when he had raigned two years ] That is, another whole year from the time of his Coronation, which being added to the former year, between his election and inauguration, make two years; and then he began to take upon him the royal flate of a King. V. 2. And Saul chofe bim three thousand men of Israel] Namely, to be his guard, or, Stationarie and Legionarie fouldiers. to attend his fervice, upon all occasions, as he pleased to imploy them. Especially to preserve the people from the invasions and incursions of the Philistims, and from the oppressions and infolencies of their Stationary fouldiers, which were in those garifons that bordered upon them. And fome gather from hence, that Saul raigned onely two years, to wit, before he was rejected of God, and ferfaken of his Spirit, ch. 15. 26. and 16, 12,13,16. And though he be faid to have reigned fourty years, computing the time of Samuels government with his, Act. 13, 21. yet he reigned onely two years lawfully, being then depoted from his regiment by God, and the relt of his time as a tyrant; the Lord, for his own ends, tollerating and permitting his government, though wicked and unlawful. And this they gather from ch. 1 4.47. where it is faid, that Saut work the Kingdom; that is, like a tyrant usurped it by force and whereof two thousand were with Saul in Michmash] Which whereog two toouland were with Jones in astempting which was not a city, but a tract of ground, so called, in the border of Benjamin, neer the mountain of Bethel. So ver. 6, and a thousand were with Joneshau in Gibeah of Benjamin] and the rest of the people ] To wit, which he had affembled, that out of them he might make his choyce of his Legionary fouldiers. Some think, that this was done at the time of the general affembly of the people at Gilgal, before it was dif-

See ch. 10. 5. and the note upon it.

V. 3. And Fonathan [mote the garrifon of Philiftims 7 To wit, by Sauls command, as appeareth, ver. 4. See chap. 7 ver. 14. and the note upon it, help in time of trouble to them that truft in them, when they f and the Philiftins beard of it ] That is, hearing of it, prepared

Anad in most need, Jcr. 2.9. & 10 8, 14. Habat. 2. 18. 1 Cor. to fight against them to reveage their quarrel, and Suil blew the trumper throughout all the land That is a dispatched his agents in all parts of the Kingdom, with com-mission to publish, by found of trumper, both Jonathans victory to hearten and encourage them against their enemies, and the Philiftims preparations, being thus provoked, to make war against Ifrael, in way of revenge; that fo taking notice of it. they might fland on their own diffence, and also fend fuch forces as they could foare unto him in Gilgal, that he might be enabled to give them battel, if they made any attempt against > Ler the Hebrews bear. That is, take notice of the Philiftims preparations against them, that they likewise may prepare for

V. 4. that Saulhad smitten a garison of the Philistims] That is, Jonathan by Sauls command, whereof it is, that it is ascribed unto Saul, because he had put him upon this service, as his King and General and that Ifrael alfo was bad in abomination with the Philiftims] Heb. did fink. Not onely out of ancient deadly feud that was between them, but also upon this quarrel, wherewith they were to much incented, that they breathed nothing but revenge. S. Gen 34.30 and the people were salled together after Saul to Gilgal] To wit, according to Samuels appointment, ch. 10. 7. See the place, and the note upon it.

V. 5. and the people as the fand which is on the Sea-shore in multitude } Which is an hyperbolical expression of a great mutitude, qu'alla in the Scriptures, Gen. 2: 17. John. 11.4-1. Kieg. 4.19. and this is expecifed, that the grant is drawn, might circu to magnife Gode infinite power and goodness towards his people, who did caust it to be routed and goodness towards his people, who did caust it to be routed and intimed by luch weak and despicable nations, as that feasily handful of Sauls army.

Estward from Beth-aven Which signifieth a house of vanity.

and wickedness. So called by way of anticipation, because of the idols there erected and worshipped, if at least it were not abufed to thefe ufes, both in thefe and former times. But here it fignifieth the city and wildernels of Beth-aven. Of which fee Jofh. 18.12.

V. 6. When the men of I/rael ] To wit, which were of Sauls army, and for fear had left him, and fled away to fhift for themfelves. as appeareth by the verse following, where the other Hebrews are opposed unto them which were not in the

for the people were in diffre[s ] i.e. They were indeed much diffrested, and in great firaits; as they, not without great reafon, apprehended their danger, in respect of an innumerable multitude of their enemies, well armed and prepared, with all manner of warlike ammunition, horfes and chariots ; and their own poor handful of fouldiers to r. fift them , and that fauall number unarmed and difficurented number maximes and ameritand in recks.] That is, in the clefts of the tocks, and in high place.] That is, which were places of strength, and more fit for their defence, if their enemies assumed

V. 7. And some of the Hebrews went over Fordan, ] That is, thole that were neer to the Philiftims in the west part of the countrey, left their habitations and fled into the eaft, as being most remote from them , to secure themselves by passing over Jordan into the land of Gad and Gilead, that they might be out of their reach.

and all the people followed him trembling, ] That is, those few of his legionary fouldiers, mentioned ver. a. that did not fice away and leave him, were to furprized with fear of the imminent danger, that they were quite heartlefs and hopelefs, and fo unfit for any fervice, if they were put unto it : Whereby is intimated the vanity of creature-confidence, and the folly of those that leave God, our chief ftrength, and pur their truit in the arm of fleth; as appeareth in the example of the Ifraelites in this place, who formerly defired a king to go before them and fight their battles; prefuming that he would fave them from all their enemies: But now when they have him, they are perplexed with fear, as not finding themselves any white by his prefence fecured from danger; and so are taught by woful experience; that there is no lafety but under Gods pro-

V. 8. And he tarraed feven days according to the fet time that Samuel had appointed. ] That is, towards the latter end of the feventh day, and not the whole day according to Samuels appointment, thap 10. 8. For which he is reproved,

V.9. And Saul faid, bring bither a burnt-offering to me, and peace offerings: And he offered the burnt-offering, That is, as forme conceive, he himfelf did offer it ; for though it was unlawful for any, fave a prieft, to offer a buent facrifice upon that publike altar in the tabernacle appointed for it : yet (as they fay) a private man might offer it upon a private altar; for fo Sa- of the leventh, and then I made bold to offer a burnt-offering, mus! (though but a Levite) offered a whole burntfactifice, in the latter part of the day at the evening-factifice, being now chap.7.10. And therefore he was not reproved by Samuel for quite out of hope that thou wouldst come at all, or at least in chap.7.10. And therefore he was not reproved by Samuel for offering it, wherin he offended not; but because he had not staid the full time, according to Gods appointment, ch. 10. 8. Others (and as I conceive) more probably think, that Saul is faid to have offered it, because the priest did offer it by his appointment. And thus Elkanah is faid to have facrificed in Shiloh, chap. 1.2. And Solomon at Gibeon, 1 King. 3.4. And that he offered a thousand burnt-offerings upon that altar there. Neither moun oan have necess to nave trayes leven daystor this, feeing he had the priefls with him, appointed for this fer-vice; effectally confidering, that when Samuel came, it was as unlawful for him to have factificed, being onely a Levice, as for himfelf, or for Uzziah to offer incense. And therefore the fin of Saul was, partly, that he did not flay the full time appointed by God, out of his diffidence in him, and fear to be furprized by his enemies; and partly, that he prefumed to rush upon fo weighty a bufiness, without the advice and direction of Gods Prophet, which was required of him; and in an hypocritical manner lought to please God, and secure himself and the people from danger, by ceremonial facrifices performed in an external manner, and not in faith and obedience. Unto which night be added, his diffidence in Gods power and pro-miles, as being infufficient to protect them, by to weak means against their many and mighty enemies, many of these few fouldiers which attended him, being fled away; and it may be also some distrust in Samuel, though he had alwaies sound him faithful, as if he would not now come unto him according to

V. 10. As foon as he had made an end of offering the burnt offering behold samuel came? Saul waited for Samuels coming, until the rime of evening facrifice on the feventh day; and having offered the whole burnt-offering, before the peace-offering, which was to follow after it was done, Sanual came; and to for default of waiting, a fmall time longer, he transgressed Gods commandement, and became guilty of deferved punishment; which fhould teach us this wildom, not to dispence with Gods commands, in the least tittle or circumstance, lest we make our felves guilty of fin, and liable to punishment.

and Saul wens out to meet him, that he might falute him] Or, his him. That is, as one well observeth, after the manner of bypocrites, he neglecteth to obey Gods commands brought Kingdome over Ifrael, was before promited to Judah, Octa-unto him by his Ministry, and seeketh to please him with an 49, 10, and the everlasting kingdom was established upon outward formality, and ceremonial complement.

V. 11. And Samuel faid, Win buff thou done? Which is not a question of one desirous to be informed 3 for he knew what he had done; but an expression of his just indignation, for his disobedience to Gods command, and an intimation of fome great mischief, unto which thereby he had plunged himfelf, like unto that of God unto Eve, Gen. 3.1 3.

And Saul faid, Because I saw that the people were scattered from me In flead of an humble confession of his fin, as we fee atterwards in David, 2 Sam. 12. 13. Saul, after the manner of hypocrites, guildeth over his fault with fair, yet falle, excuses, and addeth fin unto fin; for first, he pretendeth the desection and departure of the greatest part of his fouldiers, to be the cause of his making this haste, who, if they had staied, would little have availed against such a multitude of enemies, wherein he discovereth his confidence in the arm of firsh, and his diffidence in God, when that failed; though it be alike with him, to fave with many, or with few, as appeared in Gideons vi-Gory, Judg.7. and of Jonathans afterwards; and then because Samuel came not within the dayes appointed, whereby he put eeth off the fault from himfelf, and layeth it upon Samuel ,(as Adam did upon Eve, and confequently on God himfelf) which excuse was untrue; for Samuel came on the seventh day, though not at that hour when Saul expected him.

V. 12. the Philiftims will come down upon me to Gilgal ] As though the Lord of Holts wanted power to restraine them, or would have wanted will, if they would have put their truft in him and obeyed his commands, having graciously bound himfelf thereunto by his free promife.

and I have not made supplication unto the Lord ] Namely, for protection from our enemies, direction in our courles, and his bleffing on our endeavours; as though ficrifices were better then obedience, or that God would hear finners, baving their bands and hearts polluted with wilful transgreffions.

I forced my felf therefore, and offered a burnt-offering] As though he had faid, I was very unwilling to have done it before thou carnell ; but I was necessitated unto it, unless I would by my delay have had the Philiftims to furprize me and my weak supplies, before I had fued unto God for his protection, which would have laid us open to ruine and destruction. Others read it, I restrained or contained my self; in which fence the word is taken, Gen. 45. 1. and Ilai. 42. 14. And fo the meaning is, I contained my felf with much adoe, till I due time.

V. 13. And Samuel faid to Saul, thou baft done foolishle? To wir, because thou hast not waited seven dayes, as the Lord by me appointed thee,ch. 10.8. where he fpeaketh, not as a fubicht to his Soveraign, but as Gods Prophet, fent by him, to do his meffage; in delivery whereof, representing Gods person, he was to speak what he had put into his mouth, plainly and ther should Saul have needed to have stayed seven days for impartially, making no difference between King and Subject. feeing to this supream Soveraign all are alike; neither doth be accept the person of Princes, nor regardeth the rich more then the Yea, if they fin against him, be poureth contemps upon Princes, as well as upon mean men, and weakneth the strength of the miehty. And therefore Gods Prophets, howfoever they have carried themselves with all meekness and humility in their own cause, and civil affairs; yet ceming in the cause of God, as his ambaffadors, they have done his meffage with all imparrial plainness, as we see in the example of Nathan to David, Sam. 12.7.9. &c. compared with 1 King. 1. 23, 24. 0 Jeremiah to Zedechiah, Jerem. 37. 20. and Elias to Ahab, thou haft not kept the commandment of the Lord thy God] Where he shewith him wherein he had done toolishly; namely, in that wherein he thought he had done most wifely and providently, for his own and the peoples fafety. But this he ought to have declined, truffing in the Lord with all his heart, and not leaning to bis own understanding, Prov. 3. 5. For our chief wif-Deut. 4. 6. Keep therefore, and do them, for this is your wisdome and understanding in the fight of the nations, &c. whereof it is, that in the Scriptures, fin is called folly; and though in ploting and contriving of fin, we think that we do most wifely, as Saul here, and Pharaoh in another cafe, Exod. 1.10. Yet certrinly therein we do most foolishly, by provoking God to anger who is stronger then we, and so draw upon our selves swift and fearful destruction, 1 Cor. 10. 22. For now would the Lord have established thy Kingdome upon Ifrael for ever ] i. e. All the dayes of thy life. And fo it is taken Deut. 15.17. 1 Sam. 1, 22. For the promife of a durable David and his feed only, who came of the tribe of Judah; and principally to be understood of our Saviour Christ himself, whose Kingdom is for ever. For whereas it may be said, that be lived; and therefore, the perpetuity of his kingdom in himself and his posterity, is here meant, had be not finned. To this I answer, that he did not hold it lawfully, as a gift of Gods grace and favour, (for fo he ceafed to be a King, when he was rejected of God, and David choand anounted in his room ) but as a Tyrant and oforper; and fo was cut off by an untimely, and unnatural death; whereby he was taken from his kingdom, and his kingdom from bim; whereas, had it not been for his fin, they might long have continued one with another. Or if we should understand this place of the establishing of the kingdom upon Saul, and his posterity : This doth not cross Jacobs prophecy, feeing this is not spoken of Gods secret and absointe decree , whereby the kingdom was defigned to the tribe of Judah; but of a revealed and conditional will, which is not cff: ctual unless the condition he observed, which was the case of Saul in this place, and of Jeroboam, 2 King. 11. 38. who had a promise of the continuance of his kingdom to himfelf and his house, if he hearkened to all that God had commanded bim, though God knew, he would make this promife voyd, by his apostasse and rebellion.

V. 14. But now thy kingdom fall not continue, ] That is, shall not be established upon thee, and thy posterity; but shall be rent from thee, and another chosen in thy room ; which at the first fight, may feem to have been a fore and over-fevere punishment for fo small a fin as Saul had committed, as not waiting upon Samuels coming, as he was appointed, and offering a of fome diffience in Gods power and promifes, when he was in great extreamity, and did lye under a fore and fearching tentation: To which I answer, that no fin can be counted fmall, which is committed against a great God, and infinite in majefly, feeing it deferveth no less then eternal damnation; if in his justice he be pleafed to proceed against a finner. Se-condly, that sin is not to be measured by the materiallity, but the formality of it, as it is the transgression of Godslaw, the fupream Soveraign of Heaven and Earth; and the less the thing is about which we offend, the offence in this respect is the greater, in that we will in fo fmall a matter offend fo great, could no longer refrais, expecting the fix daics, and a good part glorious, and gracious a God; as it was in the case of Adam.

Chap!xiij. Thirdly, that God doth not so much look to the outward set so so company named unto the way that leaded to Ophrah! Which of fin, as to the multicoinfest of his will who doth commit it is way a city of the Benjamites, 10th. 18.25. which lay Sputhand efform Michaelland to or, as other think, a toward setter. humane frailtie and infirmity, with reluctation of the will; and as nothing, when it is done unwittingly and unwillingly, though it feemeth horrid in the outward act; as appeareth in their case who killed a man unawares, and against their will, for whose safety God purposely provided cities of refuge; and on the other fide, accounteth fuch fmall fins capital and heinous, as are committed wilfully, prefumptuoufly, and malicioufly, as is manifest in the punishment of him that gathered flicks on the Sabbath day. To which ag-gravations, it feemeth, Sauls offence was lyable, who was at the belt, a gross hypocrite, destitute of faith and a good conscience, of the true fear and love of God; and proved afterwards a milicious and bloody tyrant, when his vail of hypocrific of men, and so either rewardeth or punisheth them, not according to their particular acts, but according to their conflant course and wayes in which they continually walk; and fo paffeth by and pardoneth far greater fins in those whose hearts are upright before him, and constantly walk in the way of his commandements; howfoever he may, for their spiritual and everlatting good, correct them with his fatherly chaftisements, as we see in the example of David, who walked in the waies of God, howfoever, in fome few things, he gricwoully transgreffed, and fell fearfully, though he role again by repentance, and having erred, and (as it were) flipped afide, recurred again into his old and ufual way of holy obedience. And on the other fide, he regardeth not the fits and qualms of fome religieus, or righteous acts, done by wicked men, when as in their constant course they go on in the waies of wickednels; because their bearts are rotten and unfound ; and if they and contrariwife, teverely punisheth their fins which feem | fin and Sathan. leffer, because they are filthy streams, which flow from a much more polluted and flinking fountain. And this was Sauls cafe in this particular, whose fin God did thus severely punish,upon thefe grounds; and the rather alfo, (it may be ) because, bement, to keep close to Gods commands, and not in the leaft thing to fereve afide.

the Lord bath fough him a man afing his own heart] That is, the Lord bath fough him a man afing his own feart] and Captain over his people; to wit, David, though Samuel at this time had no knowledg of him, ch. 16. 6. 12. but fpeaketh of him by a prophetical Spirit, and the Lord hash commanded him to be Captain That is, hath defigned him, though he yet knoweth not of it. Where he defigined him, though he yet knoweth not of it. Where he freakth of the future, as of a thing already done, to fliew the certainty of it, as it is full in the Scriptores.

V. 15. And Samuel Artife, and ga blim in from Gilgal, into Gibeth of Budjantin]. To which place Saul foun after followed him, it at leaft he did not accompany him thicker, as appeared in the next verife. For though the were displeased with him for his fin ; yet it is not likely, that be left him in this bis extreamity, when he most needed counsel and comfort, directions from him, and the help of his prayers; especially, seeing Saul did fill continue to perform the duty of a King and General, it leading and defending his people, notwithitanding that hard and uppleafing meffage, fent unto him from God, by his Propher. Neither is it probable, that Saul in that weak condition wherein he now was, would have gone with this fmall handfu of men from Gilgal to Gibeab, which was far neerer to Mich mash, where the Philistims encamped, if he had not been incouraged fo to do, by Samuels counfel and company and Saul numbred the people that were profest with him, about fit bundred men] To wit, the rest of his two thousand being fled for fear, and these onely remaining with him, ver. 6.3.

V. 16. And Saut and Finathan his fon-abode in Gibeab o Benjamin] i.e. Being in great fear, by reason of their small number, and the great strength of their enemies, they made choyce of this place, for their better security; because being feituate on an hill, it was of fome firength (if they were affaulted) todefend themselves against their enemies; and were likely to have the belt affiftance, being here among their kindred and fureft friends,

V. 17. Aud the spoilers came out of the camp of the Philiftims i. c. They fent out of their camp three feveral parties of fouldiers, to waste all the bordering pares of the country, and to bring all the spoyl which they had gotten by olundring, as provisions to victual the camp. And they profuned thus to divide their army, became they trusted in their huge multitude, and the imaliand unprepared number of the lifeatites; in which regard, chough they fent many to do this fervice abroad, yet they referved enough behinde to defend topir standing camp in Michmash, unio the land of Shutl] Called Shalifha, ch. 9. 4. Others read it to the land of Saul s and to the vulgar latine hath it a that is, fome part belonging to the tribe of Benjamin, in which Saul was born, and had his inheritance; and the rather (as fome think) they turned to wafte this country to revenge themfelves upon Saul and Jonathan, who had fmitten their gari-

V. 18. And another company turned the way to Bethoron] A. city of Ephraim, scituate on the borders of Benjamin, Josh, 16. 2. and 18.12. lying to the North-west from Michmash.

that looketh to the valley of Zeboim In the tribe of Benjamin, towards the defert of Jordan on the East, which is mentioned.

Nebem. 11.34.
V. 19. Now there was no fruith found throughout all the land of Ifrael] Where a reason is rendred, why the ifraelites were fo ill provided of arms and weapons, namely, the tyrannical government of the Philistims over them, being under their lubjection, left recovering ftrength, they might free themselves out of their flavery. And therefore having difarmed them, they took care to hinder them from getting any arms, or amunition, for the time to come. Yea, to jealous they were over them, that they took order to keep from them. not onely arms and warlike weapons, but even necessary inftruments of husbandry, as mattocks, spades, axes, plowshares, and coulters; onely they allowed them liberty to come to their smiths, to make them new when the old were worne; and allowed them filesto fharpen their tools when they were blunted; which they that lived in places remote could not do, without much trouble and expence of time. And this theweth, into what a miterable bondo any good, it is out of meer hypecrifie, not for any true love | dage and flavery the people of God were plunged, who defertof it, but for by-respects, and for their worldly and carnal ends; | ing Gods service, had made themselves the valids and flaves of left the Hebrews make them (words or fpears] i.e. They thus reasoned with themselves, and one with another; Let us take care, left the Hebrews procure arms to free themselves from being under our fubjection. So Gen. 3,22. But if the Ifraing the first King of Israel, he would make him an example to all the rest that succeeded him; to make them by his punish- a while since they had an army of 330000. which sought in a warlike manner against the Ammonites; and could they do this without weapons of war? To which it is answered, that in ancient times, when they were necessitated unto it, they came into the field to fight against their enemies with clubs, long Into the field to figit against uncer enemies white curry, sping flaves, and oxe-goads, pirchforks, bows and flings, which were of great off in those dayes, and they skillful intifing them, as we lee in the fix hundred 1.ft-handed Benjamites; and David, that flew Goliah with a stone out of a sling. And shus the Army of Ifrael under the conduct of Deborah and Barak, overcame Siferals mighty hoft, with no other weapons, but fuch as thefe; feeing (as the faith in her fong) there was not a thield nor fpear feen among fourty thousand of Ifrael, Judg. 5. 8. And thus Shamgar flew 600, of the Philiftims with an exe goad, or a plow-fhare, as the word may fignifie; and Sampson souted a whole army of them, and flew, heaps upon heaps, with the jawbone of an als, Judg. 3.31. and 15. 15. In all which, God magnified his power and al-fufficiency, and his great goodness towards his people, in giving them glorious victories over their mighty enemies, by luch weak and contemptible meanes.

V. 21. Testhey had a file] Heb. a file with mouth. i.e. To point and sharpen beir instruments and necessarie mensils, when they could not go to the Philiftims forges.

V. 22. There was neither frord nor spear found in the hand of any] Which was caused through the Philistims ayeaning, who had dilarmed them of all their old flore, and deprived them of their workmen, who should have made them new. Although they might have other weapons and ruflick inflraments, as clubs, goades, flaves, and flings, which for went of better ammunition, they might, being necessicated, ale for wea-

but with Saul and Fonathan was there found ] Who, in refpect of their place and command, had this priviledg above all the

W. 23. And the garrifon Or, flanding camp.
went out ] i.e. To surprize Saul and his dishearmed follows in Glbech.

to the passage of Mich mash To the end, that having taken it, they might make themselves masters of all the country that lay before it, and hinder the Ifraelites from coming on a fuddera upon their garrifon ; the which is added , to prepere a way to the flory in the following chapter.

CHAP. XIV.

Veil. I. | Ow it come to passunon a day, (or, there was a day)

Frindations on the first book of Samuel.

Chap.

Special infinite of Gods Spirit moving him theseuropy which had in respect of the breath, best and West on either hand, but in special was a construction of the promise of the threath, in being the first entrance is to the passing the state of the special threath of the passing was present to the passing on the spirit of the passing of the meaning hand as pigets, Deuts, 31, 30, and the breathest of the passing of the passing was again the discharge of the passing of the passing was again the discharge the passing on a gain the one away, housed the lastice the special water, but a spirit of the passing was again the discharge the passing was again the discharge the passing was again the passing was again the spirit of the passing was again the passing was John 23. 10. For otherwife, if he had in this enterprize rely-Join, 23, 10. For otherwise, it has been but fooling prefump-ed upon their own thrength, it had been but fooling prefump-tion, carnal confidence, and a meer tempting of God, for him and his armout-bearer alone, to have fee upon a garrifon, yea, and with it, a whole army of the Philiftims.

that is on the other fide ] i. e, Encamped in Mich-math, beyond the rocky paffage.

but be sold not bis faither] Namely, of his purpose and resolution; because he had affurance in himself, that God by the inward motion of his Spirit, had called him unto it; and knew that his father, who was ignorant of it, and would not have given credit to him if he had told him of it, would have diffwaded him from undertaking fuch a dangerous and defperate enterprize. For otherwise, in an ordinary way, according to martial discipline, it had been unlawful for him to have ing to mattai discipline, it had been unawful for him to have made fuch an artempt, without the knowledg and confent of his King and Generally and though it should have deprospecusly fucceeded, yet, instead of creard, be should have determined qualishment; as we fee in the case of Manilius Torquitus his

V. z. And Saul tarried in the intermess part of Gibesh ] i. e.
Neer one part of the strait towards Gibesh; where having fortified himself and his small camp, he observed the motions and actions of the Philiftims, actions of the Funitims.

made a pomegranate-tree which is in Migron ] Which is the name of a Place, or plain, scituate on the other side of the narrow passage towards Gibeah, of which mention is made, Isaiah,

V. 3. And Abiabthe for of Abitub, Jehabeds brother, the for of Phinehas ] Phinehas the for of Eli had two fore, the one named Animon J. ranneast the lost of En and two tent, the core named Ahimb, which was the elder, the other Ichabod, born after the death of his futher. And he not being named in the storie before, now is said to have been the brother of Ichabod, because he was formerly named, upon that sad occasion of his fathers and grandsathers death, and the captivating of the ark. statics and granditations death, and the captivating of the ark. Now this shints by futcerflow, came to the high Pictiflood, after the death of his fasher Phinchas; but (as it feemen) after the continued note in it, but according to the threating of the man of God, dyed before he came to be old, da. 20- leaving behinds than this Asiah, to futceed him in the high Pictiflo of the continued of God, and the picting of the continued of God, and the picting of the God of the Continued of God, and the Continued him the high Pictiflo of God of the Continued of God of the God of the Continued of God of the and is called Ahimelech, whom Saul afterward cauled to be flain for relieving David, upon fulpition of his compliancy and confederacy with him, ch. 22. 9. 20.

and conteneracy with min, cn. 21.9.20, with me at Ephod 1 Whereby is fignified, that he was now high Prieth, feeing he now wore the rich Ephod, which was accompanied with the bedf-plate, in which was the Urim and Thummin, wherewithal he confulled with the Lord, Exod. Lauranum, waterwaran ne consured with the 2001 LNde.
38. 30. To which purpole he was fent for by Saul, or at least came of himfelf into the camp, and brought with him the ark of the Lord, as appeared by re. 8. which they fonetimen used to do upon finch weighty occasions, or when they were in some great exigent.

yet. And between the passages, by which Jonathan sought to go over to the Philistims Carrifor ] In these and the following words, is set down the high and hard attempt of Jonathan, in going over to the Philiftims garrison, by describing the diffi-culty of the passages that led unto them. In the describing cuty or the pulsages that it d unto them. In the defcibing whereof, it may from, that there is to us as much difficulty, as there was to them in the action and execution. And theretokongh! define one one entre into a labyrinth of curiofity, where I have not the thread of Scripture, or Reafon to lead and guide me out of it; a pleasility, when it is not a matter of great moment, to come to the clear and diffinft underfinance. ding of it; feeing it is fufficient in fuch cafes, that the Scripture telleth us that fuch a thing was forthough the manner how, be not clearly evidenced to our shallow and weak capacity: Yet not ciearly evinence to our minute and water expecta-feeing fome thing is expressed in the text, which may give fome light unto these intricate and dark passages; I will set down briefly what I conceive. This passage here spoken of, was a certain in-let, between mountains on either fide, in which there was a paffage, between Gibeah, where Saul was, and Michmath, in which was the garrifon and camp of the ann Michmann, in waiton was the garrinon and camp or the Philidims, which are called pailingen in the plural number-because the lame passages served for both parties, to passe one to the other, the passage from Michmah to Gibeah, and from Gibeah of Michmah; although, it may be in such an hally and mountainous place, there might be two passages, meet-

V. 6. Come let us go over unto the garrifon of thefe uncircumeifed ] And therefore being aliens, and out of covenant with God, they are not under his protection; whereas we, who are Ood, taey are not under mis protection; whereas we, who are in covenant, and so the people of God, have his promises, that he will give us victory over his and our enemies; yea, a special promise, that Saul should save us out of the hand of the

Philiftims, ch. 9. 16.

it may be that the Lord will work for as ] Which is not a speech of diffidence and doubting, feeing he was carried onto this dangerous adventure by the inward motion of Gods Spirit, and was perswaded of Gods al-sufficiency, to give victory by few as well as many; but to flow unto his fervant the great difficulty that was in this their enterprize, in it felf, to the end omteuty max was in masteur enterprizes, on trees, to take end that they might not, in any part, rely upon themfelves, or their own aftengets, but putting all their semfidence, in God, might be fervent prayer frie unco him for his affiliance and good fue-ceffe. As Caleb did in the like cafe, Joth. 14,12, Yea, and it may be alfo, that feeing we cannot have that absolute ground of our affurance for temporal, as we have for spiritual things; and because he had no special promise from God of victory at this time, he thus speaketh, to shew his humble submission to Gods will, and his readinesse to adventure his life in the cause Uceds will, and his reasurence to automatic missing in the cause of God, and his Church and people; and to yield himself over to be disposed of, according to his good! pleasure, both in life and death. So Judg-77, John-181.

omnipotent and al-fufficient, that it is all one with him to fave with few, as with many. So 2 Chro. 14. 11.

V. 7. Do all that is in thine hear! That is, what locver feemeth good unto thee. I am with thee according to thise beart ] That is, I will follow thee whither foever it pleafeth thee to go.

V. 9. If they fay unto us, Tarry untill we come unto you] Here Jonathan, for the ftrengthening of their faith, that they might couragiously go on in this dangerous enterprize, pitcheth upon a fign, which, no doubt, was fuggefted unto him by the inward motion of Gods Spirit, whereby he doth not doubtingly tempt God, (for we are faid truely thus to do, when we make an unnecessary experiment of his truth and power) but onely denecessary experiment of ans truta and power) but onely defered his fign, for his better confirmation, that God would blief and shift him in this weighty buffacts; as Eleazar, Abrahams fervant, did to the fame end, Gen. 24, 13,14, and Gidon likewife, Judg. 6, 36, 37, & 7, 13, Nisher was this fign (as some of the Hebrens will haveir) without some natural ral reason; For if the Philiftims faid, Tarry till we come to you; it was a fign of their courage and boldness; but if they faid, Come up unto us, it was a bewraying of their fearfulnel to fer upon their enemies. Others will have it thus, That if they faid come up unto us, it was an argument that they put their confidence in their own fittength, which God hating, would therefore confound them in their pride and prefump-

V. 10. And this fhall be a fign unto me] That is, as it pleafed God to put it into my heart to defire this fign, fo is my earnest prayer unto God, that it may prove a true fign unto us, for the confirmation of our faith, in the affurance of our good fuc-

V. 11. And both of them discovered themselves to the garrison of the Philiftims That is, as they went up towards their gari-of the conditionary passage.

Rehald the Hebrews come forth out of their holes, where they had bid shenfeloes ] To wit, for fear of our great army; against which having no power to defend themselves, they lay hid in caves and rocks, as it is, ch. 13. 6. Or elfe, they speak this by way of jeer and scoff against Sauls army, who had fortified, and intrenched themselves, for fear of being suddenly surprized and interached them leives, for Feat or being funderaly suppraces by their many and mighty enternite.

V. 13. And the men of the gariffen any fuerce! I that is fixed continued to the parties of the second to the second power which phase was usual with the Hebrews, though there was no question off the power of the second power and we will flower us a thirty. Which were words and we will second power to the parties of form and contempt, as it they had need up if you do not not consider the second power of the second power to the second power hither, we will teach you more wit, then thus to thruft your Selves into such a desperate danger.

V. 13. eAnd Fonathan climbed up upon his bands, and upon his feet] i. c. Being full of true valour and courage, and thus protogether in the first in-let or entrance. And on the one voked with their scorns and jeers; but much more, because God and the other of this pattage, there was a tharp rock, not had answered his defire, in giving him this fign of victory, he

Chap. xiv. bendeth himself with all his might, to set upon the work; and | every mans sword was against his fellow] Not being able, because the rock, which was in his passings, was so high, crag-Decline corrects that he could not in a utilul manner get up to the mics. So Judg, 7.21. 2 Chr.20.33.

roanfit, he clambreth and climbeth upon his hands, as well

V. 21. Moreover the Hebreus which were with the Philiftims as his feet, to keep him from sipping and falling backward; Where Jolephus observets, that Jonathan and his servant did not go up on that fide where the Philistims first espeed them. but they fetch'd a little compass about unto another place, which was not kept with any garrifon, because they thought it furely defenced by nature; and fo unexpectedly and fuddenly fell upon them.

and they fell before Fonsthan and his armor-beaver flew after him? i.e. Jonathan hunfelt, like a valiant leader, flewfuch as he first met with, and his armout-bearer, having gotten weapons from fome that fell, did also flay others that came in his way.

V. 14. Wishin, as it were an acre of land, which a yoke of oxen might plow] i.e. They made quick eispatch, and flew to many in a very finall compass of ground.

V. 15. And there was a trembling in the hoft] i e. They were all generally, both the garrison, and those three companies which went out to fpoyl, and were now returned to the camp, with all the rell of the Philislims army stricken with such a year and amazement, and with fuch a giddineffe and diftemper of brain, that they miltook their fellows and friends for their enemies, and fo fell upon, and flew one another; the which befell them, by the deluding and blinding of their phantafie; but principally, by a supernatural power of God, infl ating this judgment upon them. And with fuch a blindnesse and giddineste the Lord Imote the Sodomites, Gen. chap. 19. 11. and the Midiznites, Judg. 7. 22. & the Syrians, 2 King.

and the earth quaked ] i.e God also fent a terrible earth-quake. which did much increase their fear and altonishment.

foit was a very great trembling ] Heb. a trembling of God. i.e fuch a tear God imore the Philiftims, 2 Sam. 5.14, and the Syrians, 2 King.7.6.

of the Philiftims were defleoyed by their flaughtering one antumult in the Philiftims camp, by fome skirmift with them,

V. 18. And Saul (aid to Abiab, bring bither the ark of God ] Namely, to enquire what was to be done, either to pursue the Pailiffims, or to keep their flanding. For the prieft being to which purfued the Philiffims, v. 20. confult with God, was to fland before the ark, having on his rich Ephod and breaft-plate, and there to receive Gods Oracle and answer from between the Cherubims on the mercyfeat, as fome conceive.

V. 19. While Saul talked with the Prieft 1 i. c. About fuch things that concerned the prefent bufineffe, namely, the bringing of the ark, and what it was that he would have him to enquire, when it was come; which had been commendable in Saul, to confult with God in fuch a weighty matter, but, ashe d.d.it, was but the colourable act of an hypocrite, who fice unto God only when they are in firzits, and neglect him and bis ordinances when the danger is past, as the sequel shew-

And Saul faid unto the Pricft, withdraw thine hand \ i.e. When he conceived by the increasing of the noyle, some great difafter had befallen the Philiftims , and if he took hold on the prefent opportunity, there was great hope of victory; he thought that it was but loft time to flay, that he might confult with to faint, he tafted some of the honey which he law lying on God, to crave his direction; feeing he now knew of himfelf, upon this occasion offered, what he was to do, without his help; whereby Saul discovereth his falle, prophane, and hypocritical heart, who, whilest he apprehended danger, fought unto God for his direction and protection; but when he did but hope that the danger was once over, and he out of this first, faintneffe for want of pirits. then he thinketh himfelf ftrong enough to walk on his own legs, without any reliance on God, and so who'ly neglecteth Souldiers, who following him in the pursuite, and taking nohis ordinance, as thinking it needlesse to be directed by him, tice of it, spake unto him. For in the Hebrew phrase, a Numb, chap. 27. ver. 21. And thus, when he was in danger man is faid to answer, when his speech relateth to a thing beby the defection of his own Souldiers, and the approaching fore done, as well as to a thing before places. So Num.11.28.

of the Philhftims great ermy, be was fo devout, that he fought Johna is faid to have answered Moses, when he asked him no unto God by Sacrifice in all hafte, not having the patience to queltion; but his speech only bath reference to Eldad and Meflay Gods appointed time; but here, when he conceived that dads prophefying, related by the young man that came from he was in no luch need of him, he prophanely n glecteth his the camp with the news. So Joh. 2. 18 ordinance, and trusteth to his own course, as if he had that eatth any food this day ] i.e. Till the evening, as v. 24. for faid, in these straits of time we have no scilure to attend Gods with the Hebrews, the present day ended at evening, and the answer, but will lay hold on the present opportunity, which | next day began. already appeareth.

e. Those who being formerly taken captive, and were now their flaves and bondmen, and forced to follow their camp, and attend upon their carriages, and they also, who as fugitives that fled unto them to fave their lives, joyned now with their brethren against the Philistims. So that there were divers forts of men, which joyned in this battel, to work their deftruction a the Philistin's themselves, who slaughtered one another; Sauls army, and he Ifraelites which they had among them, both bond-men and fugitives. And the Ifinelites, who had for four left Sauls camp, and had hid themselves in caves and rocks. ch. 13. 6.

V. 23. So the Lord faved Ifrael Not they themselves, but the Lord of Hosts, who give them victory. and the battel paffed over to Beth aven] which was not far from Mithmath, ch. 13.5. V. 24. And the men of Ifrael were diftrefed that day ] To wis, with hunger and faintness, not daring to ear.

For Saul bad adjured the people That is, had bound them by an oath, under the penalty of a fearful curie, devoting them who transgressed unto death, ver. 44 faying, Curfed be the man] i. e. Let him be rooted out, as an accurfed thing.

that eateth any food] Heb. bread. Whereby all food is fignified; elfe Jonathan had not offended in eating honey, ver. 3. Gen. 43. 21.

may be avenged on my enemies] His end was, that (by flaying to eat) they might not be hindered from pursuing the victory. The which though it had a fnew of zeal, and a good intent. to destroy Gods enemies, yet it was, in many respects, simul and wicked. For it sayoureth of pride and arrogance, seeing (6) in what out great trombing. 1 Heb. a trombing of Gal. 1.6, and wiscoed. For it is valuetine of pride and arrogance, items A very great trombing, as we have it in our translation; for hereby, he defireth to have the glory of the victory after for the braile is sometimes taken. Gen. 10. 8 or a fear not bed to himself; and his zeral and pulsey, which may grounded upon any reason, (for why should a great army durly belonged to his son. Secondly, he doon rashly and infear only two men pursuing and setting upon them?) but considerately instructed consciences of the people, by a curse fent miraculously from God, such as the Lord threatned to and oath, meerly cut of his own head and will, having no fend upon his prople for their fin. Levit. 26. 36,37. And with warrant for it from God. Thirdly, though he pretendeth a good end, yet he useth ill means, that is, the interdiction of food to the people, though never so much necessitated to eat, and the V. 16. And behold the multitude melted away i.e. The army binding them unto it by an oath and curfe, and that under penalty of prefent death,v. 43.44. which it was unlawful for him to of the Pinintuns were outstroyed by enter insigneting one are: naivy or present section, 43,44-30 and a was unlawful to min of chirt.

V. 17. And fee who is gone from any 3 supposing us it in ingic.

hereby he weakerd and dilabled the people, and so included them before of his Army that were the casic of all this filtr and from the chaining a much more glorious widery, v. 30. Laffly, the was the occasion of the peoples sin, in that being hunger-star-ved, they, for greediness, did eat the flesh with the blood.

V. 25. And all the Lind ] i.e. All the Israelituh Souldiers.

cano to a wood ] To wit, which lay between Mich-mash and Aialon, v. 21. And there was boney upon the ground For in that Country bees in great abundance bred in the woods, in hollow trees, and gathered there fuch plenty of honey, that it dropped thence upon the ground, which being an ordinary thing in may places of Canaan, it was thereof laid to be a land that flowed with milk and honey.

but no man put his hand to his mouth] Namely, to take and car of the honey

V. 27. But Jonathan heard not Because he was not with his father in the camp, when he adjured the prople, v. 2, 17. and therefore was wholly introcent, leeing by reafon of his abfence, he could take no notice of it.

when his father charged the teople with the outh | Unto which was annexed the penalty of the turfe and death ; and therefore, being through weaknefs, hunger, and wearinefs, ready the ground.

and dipt it in the honey-combe | Or, wood honey. i.e. the wilde honer which lay before him, Math. 3.4. and his eyes were enlightened ] i. e. He gat new ffrength and vigor, and his eyes grew cleer, that were dim with fasting and

V. 28. Then answered one of the people ] i.e. One of the

QQQ

Chap.xiv.

and the people were faint ] Or, weary. So as they could not of but with Saul, for his rath eath and curfe, which be in his arroany longer pursue their enemies; which was the occasion of Jonathans following speech.

V. 29. My father bath troubled the land] i. e. The whole army of Ifrael, by imposing upon them this inconsiderate oath, seeing it is the cause that hindreth them from obtaining a more full and compleat victory. V. 20. How much more if bapily the people had eaten freely As if he had faid, if I by the alone tafting of a little honey, am fo much refreshed, that I am thereby enabled to go en cheerfully, as your leade, in the pursuite; how much more (if all the fouldiers had eaten freely of the enemies spoyl, as they hapned to light upon it) would they have been enabled thereby to have purfued and flaughtered their enemies? Others read the words thus; how much more, if the people had freely eaten of words tones; now much more, it the people mad treety eatern of that footlor their cnemies, which they had gotten? but now there is no great flaughter made amongst the Philistims. Junius, word for word, readth it according to the Hebrew text, and fo the sence is perfect ; yez, because I would to God the people had been permitted freely to eat; because (I lay) by their being reftrained, no greater flaughter bath been made of the Philiftims, by reason of their faintingsfor want of food: Where he dif-lloweth of his fathers course, for three reasons: The first, because the people were hereby disabled for pursuing their enemies, as he frund in his experience. The ficond, taken from the event; because hereby the flaughter of the enemy was not fo great, as it would have been had the people eaten, they by fafting being fo faint that they could not purfue them. Third'y, because the people being by this rash oath inhibited to eat, were restrained of their lawful liberty.

V. 31. And they (wote the Philiftims that day from Mich-malh to Aidlon! There were two Cities of this name, one in the tribe of Dan, Jofh. 19. 42. and given to the Priefts, Jofh. 21. 24.

Another in the tribe of Judih, 2 Chr. 11.10. which (as I conceive) is that which is here mentioned, feeing Mich. mafh, which did lye on the border of Benjamir, was not far from it, and the lot of Judah and Benjamin joyned together, and bordered on the Philiftims Country.

the Philitims Country.

V. 32. And the people fiew upon the fpoyl] i. e. The night being come, and the time of the oath expired, and they being with long fasting extreamly hungry, they feized on the fleep, oxen, and calves, which were in their enemies camp, for their provision, as a ravenous hungry hawk upon her prey ; and beforethe lood could have any time to be drained out of the finite best, being illed on the greund, and not after the usual ferrig ghis own groundless command, before the law of God, manner, hung up, that the blood neight run out; they did not of the chief. and cat the blood with the fit. fit, facer ball rolled or lod, which and cat the blood with the fit. fit, facer ball rolled or lod, which and cat the blood with the fit. fit, facer ball rolled or lod, which are the fit of the other. and dat the blood with the fi.in, icarce has rotted or low, mich was contrary to the law, Gen. 9, 4. Levit. 31. 17. & 17. 14. Deut. 12.16. & 15.23. and fo, though hunger could not force them to transgreeffe the kings commandement, for fear of death; yet it would not reffrain them from breaking Gods commande ment, though it brought them under the penalty of his curfe, and hell it felf.

V. 33. And be faid , Ye have transgressed] Or, dealt treacheroufly. Where, like on hypocrite, he chargeth upon them, and condemneth them for their fin; but, without any acknowledgment of His own, which was the cause of theirs.

roll a great flone unto me this day ] To wit, that the beafts might be killed on it, and the blood of the flain beafts preffed out; or, because it is not probable that one flore could be sufficient to have the beafts of fo many thousands, all hally and hungry pecple, at the fame time flain upon it; others, with more likelihood conceive, that it was to build that altar spoken of, v.35, that so killing and eating before it in Gods presence, and the fight of the king, they might no more prefume to eat the blood with the as the words may fignifie, though Saul meant the contrary.

V.35. And Saul built an altar unto the Lord ] To wit, that all, who would, might offer upon it peace-offerings, in thankfulnelle not out of any respect to his prayer, but to his own prerogative, as being the sole dispoter of lots. And in this respect, when the note upon it, and Judg. 21. 4. with the annotation.

the same was the first alter that he built unto the Lord] Heb. that alter he began to build unto the Lord. It is said to be the first, because it was the first that he built himself, or, by his sole ap-pointment; whereas those at Gilgal were built by Samuel and others, though he had the use of them, ch.11.15. & 13.9. And this (as some think) is faid, to tax him of impiety and prophaneness, that whereas he had before great cause to shew his thankfulneffe to God, by facrificing peace-offerings, and gratulatory facrifices, as namely, his famous victory over the Ammonites; yet he had not till now, built any for this use.
V. 36. Then faid the Prieft, Let sa draw neer bither unto God]

s. e. Before we undertake fuch a weighty enterprize, let us firft confult with God by Wrim and Thummim before the ark, craving his direction in it, Numb. 27.21. V. 27. And Saul siked counfel of God To wit, by the high Prieft, as he advised him. But he answered him not that day ] Which was a fign that God was displeased; but not with Jonathan for eating the honey;

gancy and tyranny imposed upon the people, having no warrant for it from God. Howsover it must be granted, that God took occasion from Jonathans eating of the honey, to use this filence for other ends, as appeareth by Gods directing the lot to fall upon him. See ch. 28.6. not because Jenathan had finned in eating the honey, for he did it in case of present necessity, and to a good end, that being refecthed thereby, he might be more able to pursue their enemies; and though his father had bound the people by an cath, under the penalty of a curle, not to cats yet he was ignorant of it, and was not (being ablent) bound to know it, unleffe forme means had been used by his father, or fome other, to give him notice of it. But rather. God by lot did difcover his fact, when by this means he was fought unto, for his own glory, that feeing the dispesing of lots belongeth unto him. Prov. 16:33. it was for his honour to give a true lot. Secondly, to discover unto all, Jonathans innocency, when the caufe came to a full hearing, which those might have questioned that faw him eat the honey, and did not know that he was ignorant of the oath. Thirdly, to convince Saul of his inconfiderate raffiness and folly, together with his hypocrifie, cruelty, and tyranny, in lentencing men to death, before he knew whether their fault deferved it, and ratifying his dreadful doom, when he knew that they did not deferve it . And what mischiefs did accompany it, in hindring the greatness and glory of the victory, in being the cause and occasion of the peoples fin, and indangering his fon to death, who, in respect of his true worth, and his own natural affection, could not but be most dear unto him , if at leaft, his pride and arregancy did not quench this heat of love, and caused him to envy unto him the glory of this victory, as afterwards it fell out in the case between him and David, cb. 18.7,8.

V. 38. Drawje neer hither all the chief of the people ] Heb. corners. See Judg. 20, 2, and the note upon it. He commandcih all the chief, i. e. all the Elders and Heads of the tribes and families, to approach unto him, that they might by lots finde out the man, who, by his fin, had provoked Gods dilpleafure, fo, as being consulted with, he would give no answer; where he concluded, that fin, as in the case of Achan, Jefh. 7. was the cause; and presumeth, that it must needs be the breach of that eath which he had imposed, and nothing else; and never thinketh of the breach of Gods law by himfelf and the people; he, by imposing a rash and finful oath; and they, by cating the blood with the fleft; but like a grofs bypocrite, pre-ferring his own groundless command, before the law of God, though it be fromthan my fou, he shall furth out. Which he speaketh, or magnifich is unpartial justice, though what he did, proceeded from arregancy and tyramical crucity. For what lawful power dad he to institted death upon any, for transfered-fing his lawless and rash cath a and especially on Jonathan, who had done it ignorantly, and had fo well deferved, both of him and the whole Common-wealth, by his undaunted valor; when he in the mean time, for fear, durft net look in the face of his enemies.

V. 40. Be ye on the one fide, and I and my fon Fonathan will be en the other ] To wit, that being thus divided, we may fee on which party the lot will light, and so he that bath finned may

V. 41. Therefore Saul (aid unto the Lord God of Ifrael] i.e.

v. 44. I reterier count fair inno me Lora Goa of spratt file.

Prayed unto him, that he would dispole of the lots.

Give a prifed los Or, flew the innocent, i.e. an upright and unpartial lot, or a lot which may fice w and cleer the innocent, but the people escaped ] i.e. were elected, and freed by lot; where the Lord heareth the prayer of Saul, though it were void of faith, who would might office upon it peace-contengs, at the state of this great without, and that it might be alter ands a frontument and memorial of it in time to come. See ch. 9.12. and the heathenish Mariners referred it unto him by lot, to different the effender, that was the cause of the temperh, he caused it justices.

ly to fall upon Jenas, Jon. 1. V. 42. And Jonathan was taken] Who really and truly was innocent and faultless, but not in Sauls sence. But why is Jenathan taken by lot, who was innocent? Many reasons are rendred by fundry men. As first that hereby God might shew now tender he is in allowing the least show of disobedience to the supream power. Secondly, to make children to fear and avoid even the rash and causeless curses of parents, which out of Gods feeret judgment, are femetimes inflicted. Thirdy, to punish Sauls rofh oath , by bringing thereby bis deareft fon into extream danger. Fourthly, to discover Sauls gross bypocrifie, who was ferupulous in keeping a 1ash and wicked outh, and made no conscience of killing his innecent son. Others alleady other reasons: As first, because if Saul, who was the chief offender, had been fo discovered by Lot, it would have impaired the credit of the King, and fo weakened his government. Secondly, because it was a greater grief to Saul, than if himfelf had been taken; because no man durft have presumed to the fentence of death upon him, being the fupream be took him must him] Nimely, as Samuel had fore-watered the and Soveraign King. Thirdly, because the Lord hereby would prople of 8.11. eitablift military discipline, and that orders made in armies. thould be firetly observed.

V. 43. I did but taste a little boney — and lo, I must die]
As if he had said, though the fault be little or nothing, seeing I was ignorant of the oath, yet I must dye for it. Where one well observe the candor, ingenuty, and honest simplicity of Jonathan. He doth not shift it off by excuses, and pleading his innocency, but plainly confesseth the fact, he doth not alleadg ignorance of his fathers oath, nor his extream necessity by realon of hunger and faintness, nor the benefit he had by his eating; nor acculeth his father of temerity and raffinels, in the imposing of the oath; nor of cruelty, in punishing the breach of it; nor pleadeth his own merit in this his fervice, by which all the Common wealth fared the better ; nor appealetn to the army, being unjustly oppressed by a rigorous fentence; nor crayeth their help for his deliverance ; only he faith, this have I done, and loe I must die.

V. 44. And Saul answered, God do fo , and more also T Sec. Ruth 1. 7. and the note upon it, Saul here, and in many other places, is faid to fwear ; whereby it appeareth, that he was much given to that vice of swearing and cursing.

V. 45. Shall Jonathan dye who hath wrought this great salvation in Ifrael ? ] Where the people oppose a just oath against Sauls oath which was full of vain-glory and hypocrifie, swearand that Jonathan flould not dye; first, because he had committed no capital crime worthy of death, implyed in the words, Shill fourthan dye; as if they had faid, should be dye that is ignocent, and bath committed no offence that deferveth death > Secondly, because he is rather worthy of all honour and reward, feeing the Lord by him, as his chief instrument, bath given a great and miraculous deliverance to his people, when they were in a forlorn and desperate condition : which act of the people was very commendable, if they carried it on by humble supplication and intercession; but not so, if they did it in a mutinous and forcible manner, as it seemeth they did, feeing it was against military discipline, in the relation of fouldiers to their General, and against that loyal obedience of fubjects to their King.

as the Lord liveth] i. e. As furely as God liveth, who punisheth falthood, and rewardeth truth.

there (hall not one hair of his head fall to the ground ] A proverbial speech with the Hebrews, fignifying a totall immunity from all burt and evil. So 2 Sam, 14. I 1, Math. 10. 30. Luk. 21. 18

V. 46. Then Saul went up from following the Philiftims ] i.c. Cealed to puriue them, becaule God feemed angry, in not anfwering him; and also because it was now late.

V. 47. So Saul took the Kingdome | i. e. Being by this gloriour reason y extert construence ann action on the royal throne; he for weaknels, were not able to march with the formoff or took upon him the managing of all the affairs of the King-dome; but ofpecially in fighting againful the enemies that by giving them battle, that fo they might hinder them from made war againful him; or elfe hereby's meant, has hearing jerning into Canana, Data, 52, 17, 18, Esod, 17.8. Num. Gods doom against him by Samuel, that the kingdom should be taken from him, chap. 13. 14. he used all the means he could, to strengthen himself against all those who were any wayes likely to deprive him of it. See chap. 13. 1. and ver against Moab and the children of Ammon ] Bordering on the East of Canaan.

and against Edom | Bordering on the South. and against the Kings of Zobab | Which lay on the North of Ca naan, between Batanea and Euphrates. See 2 Sam. 10.5. and whither focuer be turned him [clf he vexed them] i.e. Though he did not wholly vanquish and subdue them, because God had reserved that work, and the glory of it, for David, who did fueceed him ; yet he much molefted and weakned them, fo as they did not with that confidence, courage, and successe, fight against Israel, as they had formerly done. The which came to pass, out of Gods meer mercy to his people, who gave good

V. 48. And be gathered an hoft ] Or, wrought mightily. and smote the Amalekites ] As appeareth in the following chapter, and is here spoken of by anticipation, that his warlike exploits might be fummed up together. V. 49. Now the fons of Saul were Jonathan, Ifbui, &c. ] Who is also called Aminadab, ch. 31. 2. in which register of Sauls ject to vanity for their takes, Rom. chap. 8. v. 20, 22. Gen. cons. Ishbosh this somitted, who is called also Eshbaal, 1 Chr. 8. 3. 17, 18. And this justice is here exercised for the manifesta-33. Some think, because he reckoneth up his sons, Souldiers, tion of his own glory, in making them examples of his vengeand valiant Worthies, that fought his battles, and both lived and dyed with him; whereas lift officth furvived him, though he were a man of no great worth, either for wildom or valor : Neither are his children by Rifpah, named , because the was but his Concubine, and not his wife.

V. 51. was the fon of Abiel] See ch. 9. 1.

V. 52. And when Saul fam any ftrong man or any valiant man.

CHAP. XV.

Ver', 1. C Amuel alfo fai luvto Saul, the Lord feut meto an-Inoynt shee to be King over his people, over I,rael] i. c. appointed me as his prophet; for he was not fent by God to go unto Saul, but Saul, by Gods providence, was directed to go unto him, though he intended it not to this end a where Samuel, before he telieth him of the duty which God required of him , putteth him in minde of Gods fingular favour towards him, that hereby he might move him to undertake and perform it with more diligence and cheerfulness; namely, that when he feemed little in his own eyes, he advanced him to the supream dignity of being a king, and that over Ifra l; his own people; and to supply his own place of government, as his Viceroy and Lievtenant.

Now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the words of the Lord] i.e. Howfoever thou half formerly tailed, and displealed the Lord by thy disobedience, ch. 13. 13. yet now, at laft, obey his commands, in thankfulnels unto him for fo high an

V. 2. Thus faith the Lord of boffs | Who hath an absolute V. 2. Thus faint use Lorsey boys y was used at some command over all his army, according to that, Ifa. 40. 26. He hash created all thefeshings, and bringeth out their boff by numbert, and calleth them all by their names; and therefore he is in all things to be obeyed, feeing all creatures obey him; and being Lord of boths, and of omnipotent power, and able to protect his fervants that obey his commands, and to destroy all his enemies that rife up against him; Saul might be affured of good fuccels, when he did fight the battles of this mighty Lord of hofts.

I remember that which Amalek did to Ifrael God cannot properly be faid, either to remember, or forget, because he feeth all things pait, prefent, and to come, with one perfect view; but by such phrases, he speaketh to our weak capacity. after the manner of men. And whereas by his long deterring to punish the Amalekites, for the wrong which they had done unto his people coming out of Egypt, Exod. chap. 17. he might feem to have forgotten it, he is now faid to remember, when as he taketh order to punish it, and revenge his bow he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt ] The wrong and cruelty done unto the liraelites by them, was of two forts, whereby they thewed their extream malice against Gods people, without any cause by them offered: The one was, that in secret ambuilt they way-laid them; and as they passed by, fell upon their rear, cutting off their old and impotent perlons, women, and children; who ous victory better confirmed and fetled on the royal throne, he for weakness, were not able to march with the formost or

> V. 3. Now go and [mite Amalek] Not only taking just revenge for the old wrongs, but also, because ever fince they have continued in the fame malicious hostility; and in Sauls dayes (it seemeth) had fought against, and slain many of Gods people, v. 22.

and utterly destroy all that they have] Which is spoken, both generally and particularly, to take away from Saul all thew of excuse, if he neglected to do all, and every thing, that God commanded.

(ay both man and woman, infant and fuckling, oxe and sheep ] That is, I have anathematized and devoted all to destruction , as I did Jeticho in former times, Joshua, chap. 7. and therefore fee that thou spare nothing. In which case, it had been no cruelty in Saul, to execute that to the uttermost which he had in charge, feeing he had Gods absolute command for it. Neither was it multice in God , to punish fuccesse to Saul in his wars, though he were a wicked man, for infants with death, even to the third and fourth generation, who are the children of tho'e that hate him , feeing death is but a temporal punishment; whereas that corruption of nature, derived from their parents, maketh them guilty of death eternal; noryet to flughter their cattle, feeing they were their malters goods, which were to itand or fall with them; and being made for them and their ufe, were fubance against them that deal cruelly with his people; and of his truth; hereby causing his word and oath concerning Amalek, to be fulfilled, Exod. 17. 24, 26.

which Amalek did] Amalek was of the posterity of Esau, who had a fon born unto him by Anah, the daughter of Elon, a Hittite, Gon. 36. 2, 4. nam d Eliphaz, from whom Amalek QQQ: descended.

descended, I Chr. 1. 36. And as there was an innare empity, vids time, and before the death of Saul, he is said to bave in-even in the womb, between their progenitors, Esau and Jacob; vaded the Amalekites, and to bave brought away their spoyl, eren in the womb, between their progenitors, Elau and Jacob; vaded the Amalekites, and to have brought away their floyil, ori perpetually continued in their pointerty, and bothes one into all milite and cruckly, when the firaclites itsely coming out of the Egyptian bondage, and were in a low and affidited condition, they encounted them in their pailings, they peaceably paffing by, and giving unor them no cause of quarter.

V. 4. And 8 and gaboret the people together, and mandered them to the control of the cont

In country adjoying to the City Telaim, for the country adjoying to the City Telaim, for the of Judah, called also Telem, Josh. 15, 24, and ten thoughand ment of Judah | Which though it were the greatest trib, tent out the least number in this expedition, because their inheritance bordering upon their arch-enemies, the Philiftims, they were constrained to imploy the chief part of their ftrength in defending their own Coaffs against their inroads and incuisions. Now concerning the cause why they are numbred apart from the rest of the tribes; See the Annotarion on ch. 11. 8. And Saul came to a City of Amalek ] i.e. Either the first that was in his march, as it is likely, because the Kenites lived neer unto it, who inhabited upon the borders of Judah and Amalek ; or their chief City where their kings dwelled, being the Metropolis of their Kingdom, (as fome think;) but it doth not feem to probable to me, that they should have their royal City on the very borders of their enemies.

and List wait in the valley i. c. Not only to take advantage against them by some sudden surprize, which was bard to do with fuch a numerous army; though the word , waiting , may feem to imply it : but to make fome thay there in the valley for a time, till he had given the Kenites warning, to avoid the present danger of being involved in the common destruction . who dwelt in the hills, in the way to Amalek; as they might eafily do on the fudden, feeing they lived in tents, which were foon removed, Judg. 5. 24.

V. 6. And Saul (aid to the Kenites] Who were the nation of whom Jethro Moles his father in law came, who is called a Kenite, Judg. 1, 16, who dwelled on the borders of Judah, neer Amalek; and of them descended the Rechabites, mentiuned by Jeremiah. Jer. 35.

For ye frewed kindness to all the children of Ifrael when they came fhewed to his people, to punish them for it, so the kindness of the Kenites to reward it in their posterity, by preserving them from ruine. And to this end, Saul willeth them to get them down from amongst the Amalchites, because they dwelled in the rocks, hills, and Mountainous places, Numb. 14. 21. and upper grounds, in reference to them, to go, depart, and get them down, using divers words to the same purpole, thereby intimating his earneffnels to have them do it with all speed, feeing there was no hope of any fafety, if they did not prefently abandon the company of that wicked nation, which God had devoted to utter destruction; whereby is implyed, that they that would escape the punishments of the wicked, must feparate themselves from their company and fellowship, a Cor. 6. 7. Rev. 18. 4. Ifa. 51.11.

V. 7. And Saul [mote the Amalekitet from Havilah] Which is a region of Arabia, Gen. 2. 11.

to Afbur] VVbich is the uttermost border of Arabia towards

Egypt, Gen. 25. 18. Exod. 15.22. V. 8. And be took sigag the King of the Amalekites alive ]

Which it feemeth, was the common name of the kings of Amalek, Numb. 24-7. 28 Pharaoh was of the kings of Egypt; and Abinielech of the Philiftims. And whereas he should have flain him with the fword by Gods command, he kept him flain him with the liveta by Goas Command, he kept aim alive, either out of pride, that at his coming home he might lead him in triumph; or, out of foolish pity, looking upon him as a King, and with the eye of felf; love reflecting upon himfelf, and fearing, that in time to come, it might happen to be his own cafe. And so Ahab spared Benhadad, 1 King. 10.31. or out of coverousness? (as some suppose) that he might discover unto him some hidden treasure, Jer. 41.8. or, being his prisoner, he might put him or his friends to pay some great fum for his ranfon and usterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the [word] i.e. All them that came out with Agag to fight against them, with all other which they met with, or could come at, and all their Cities and Towns, with all their inhabitants, men, women, and children; though many of that nation might escape the could not finde out all that were in every bamlet, village, wood, or mountain, or because many hid themselves from the dewouring sword, or saved themselves by flight. For that all the nation was not at this time destroyed, and utterly rooted gur, hereby it plainly appeareth, in that, foon after in Da- proud Pharifee in the Gofpel, Luk, 18.11.

ciful, as to spare those whom God, by an absolute command, had devoted to utter destruction, shewed himself afterwards so bloody and barbaroufly cruel, that he caufed all Gods prieffs. whom he should have preserved, to be slaughtered and butchered most un justly, and without caule, meerly out of his rebellious will, upon a falfe fufpition.

and the best of the fleep, and of the oxen, and of the fattings I In an hypocritical manner, pretending that berein they aymed at Gods glory, in referving the best for his service by facilitie: but it feemeth, that they did it out of a covetous defire to enrich themselves with the speyl, as the word, flying upon them, implyeth, v. 19. But how/oever herein they greatly finned, in disobeying Gods absolute command, seeing obedience is better than seetifice, and rebellion as the fin of witcherast. And besides, God having anathematized and devoted all to destruction, he would have esteemed it a pleasing facrifice, if hey had thus offered them unto him; as it was in the cafe of Jericho, Josh 6.17. So Jer. 46. 10. Isa. 34. 9. whereas their facrifices which they intended after their manner, were meer will-worship, and directly contrary to Gods absolute command.

V. 11. It repenteth me that I have fet up Saul to be King | God cannot properly be faid to repent, feeing it would argue muta-bility in his Will, and a defect, either in his knowledg and wildom, in that he did not at the first fee what was best, or in his power, in that feeing it, he was not able to effect it, and that his counfel is not absolute in it felf, but depended upon mens courle, and fecondary caules ; but he is faid to repent, in an humane phrase, according to our capacity, when he doth as men do when they repent of their actions. He doth not change his counfel and purpofe, but his manner of working, as if he repented of what he had done. He doth not change For ye feared knishely to all the children of Jiste whos need case as the experience of wad as an one. The color in the change you of Egypt 1. to . Jehro your progenture, Moles stather in blaw, by his counfel, and by guiding them in their way in the wilderness, Exod. 18, 9, 10, 19. Numb. 10, 19, 31. So that, as God remembered the unkindereds of the Amagkites long after 1 an unchangeable courfe of thisgs changeable, which he so decreed, that they fhould be changed. And thus God is here his purpole; for he bad decreed, that the Kingdom should not continue in his posterity, or tribe, but in the tribe of Judah; but the change was in Saul, when he rebelled against Gods com-mandement; upon which, God changed the manner of his administration, his decree in the mean time remaining un-changeable; namely, fore-seeing Sauls desection, he purposed to take the Kingdom from him, and to give it to David, who was of the tribe of Judah, according to Jacobs prophetical bleffing, Gen. 49. 10.

and is grieved Samuel] Not because Gods Will was fulfilled in Saul, by casting him off from being king; but because, by is fin, he had pulled upon him this heavy doom, of being rejected and depoted.

And he creed unto the Lord all night ] i.e. Thinking that this temporal judgment threatned against Saul, was not absolute, but conditionall, if he repented not of his fin ; therefore, he but conditionally, it he repented not on its in; therefore, he carneflly prayed unto God for him; that turning unto him by repentance, he would not call him off from being king. But God being otherwise determined, would not grant his suite, . 23,26,18. & ch. 16.1.

V, 12. Saul came to Carmel] A Town belonging to the tribe of Judah; lying in the way from Amalek to Judah, Josh.

and behold, be fet bim up a place | Heb. an band. i.e. (as fome think) a monument of triumph, for his victory like an hand, to fignifie, that by his hand and fword he had conquered Carmel, flaying there while to refresh themselves, and divide the spoil. But this agreeth not so well with the expression bere ufed, appropriating it unto Saul, Bebeld, be fet him up a place, feeing the other, of picching tents for those uses, was common to him with the whole camp.

V. 13. And Saul faid unto him, Bleffed be thou of the Lord] Where, at the first meeting, he fawningly faluteth bims and (as is the manner of hypocrites) he expresseth himself in a glorious manner, with pious and religious words.

Thous primed the Commandament of the Leval Where, like a proud by pocrite, he vain-glorioully (theugh fally) boasteeth of his obdefence to all Gods Commands, feeing, by that which followeth, it proved to be apparently untrue. So the Ghap. xv. V. 14. And Sannel faid, What meanth then the bleating of | ments, and commit a fin, the rather, because it is evident to them the floop in mine ears As if he had faid, this convinceth thee of that God hath forbidden it. Neither is it to be fo thurch refrect. untruch and disobedience, steing they fill live, bleat and lowe.

V. 15. They have brought them from the Amalekites] Though both he and they Joyned in this action of disobedience, ver.9. yet Saul shuffleth it off from himself, and laveth the blame wholly upon the people, as hypocrites use to do; whereas true penitents being convinced of afin, which is common to them with others , are ready, when they are reproved, to acknowledg their fin, and to accuse themselves, that they may excule others; as we fee in David, 2 Sam. 14 17. yet fearing, left upon due examination, he likewise might be found to have had an hand in the action, he gildeth it over with a pretence of piety, that the best of the cattle were reserved for Gods fervice, that they might offer them to God for facti-fices, to testifie their thanksulness for the great victory which he had given them to the Lord thy God ] Which he speaketh, to please and humour Samuel, sceing all this was done for his service in whom he had interest in a special manner; as though he should have faid, We have kept this cattle alive, not for our own ule, but to offer them in facrifice to the Lord thy God, whom thou lovest and servest, and therefore thou canst not but allow the means of his worthip.

the reft we have utterly destroyed] The which excuse, if it be rightly understood, was in truth rather an aggravation of his fin, in that he was content to obey God in deftroying their refufe cattle, which were of no worth; but as for the beft and fateft, they referved them to be disposed of according to their own pleafure.

own picature.

V. 16. And he fald unto him, fay on ] He is willing to give him the hearing, hoping that he should (having had such a fair presence for what he had done) by him have received some good sydings.

V. 17. When thou wast little in thine own fight] i.e. But of a mean condition, as he confessed, ch. 9. 21, he advanced thee to a Kingdom. And with this he upbraideth him, to aggra-vate his fin, and to convince him of his great ingratitude, having received such eminent favours from God.

V. 18. And the Lord fent thee on a journey | i.e. A warlike expedition against Amalek.

go and utterly destroy the sinuers, the Amalekites ] i. e. These transcendent finners, (above others) in malice and wickednels, against God and his people. So Gen. 13.13. Math. 9.10. Toh. 9. 24.21

V. 19. but didst flee upon the Poyl ] To wit, as an hungry hawk upon his prey, converting that to thine own afe, which God had devoted to destruction, like Achan, Josh. 7.

And Saul faid unto Samuel yea, I have obeyed the voice of the Lard | Here again Saul difcovereth bis hypocrific ; and interad of humble contession of his fin, he justifyeth himself; and graceth his rebellion with the name or obedience.

and have brought Agag the King of Amalek] Whom, if he had obeyed the voyce of the Lord, he should have smitten, and

But the people took the Sport ] As if he had faid, it was the people, and not I, unto whom I gave way for fear of mutiny, v. 24. And therefore, if this were a fault, yet I am clear, feeing it was they, and not I, that committed it; though it feemeth to me, to have been no fault at all; feeing out of a good intention, they have referred the chief of the things which thould have urterly been destroyed for a better use; namely to facrifice them to the Lord thy God in Gilgal, in token of their thankfunc's for their great victory over their enemies.

V. 22. Behold, to obey is better then factifice Of which one giveth two good reasons; the first, because obedience preserveth us from sinning; and sacrifices were ordained to clenke us from it when we have committed it; and it is much better to, prevent a dilen'c, then to be cured of it. The other, because God alwaies accepteth of obedience, and is well pleated with it but rejecteth facrifices, when they are not joyned with it. being bue a dead carkale, when obedience, which is their life and toul, is fepareted from them; and a bare shadow, and formal and fruitloss ceremony divided from it. So Jer. 7. 22.

Ha. 1. 13, & 66. 3. Pfal. 50. 8, 13. Prov. 15, 8. Eccles.5.1. Hof. 6. 7. Mar. 12. 7. In which places God doth nor simply reject facrifices, which he himself had commanded; but comparatively, in respect of moral obedience; neither doth he chiefly require and delight in them, but in a less and lower degree: And that in the Scripture phrase is said not to be done, which is not done chiefly and principally. And so Paul saith, that he was not fent to baptize, but to preach the Goffel, 1 Cor. 1. 17. Thatis, not chiefly to baptize, but to preach; For all the A-postles were font to do both, Math. 28. 19. and himself bap-

ixed, as he speakoth in the same place. V. 23. For rebellion is as the fin of witeberaft, and flubbornels is as iniquity and idelatry | Rebellion and flubborness, is when as men wilfully transgreffe Gods known known commande-

ed, what is the quantity of the fid, but the quality : not the materiallity, but the formality of it, to intitle it to the hame of rebellion; feeing the leaft fin is rebellion, which is committed with a stubborn and rebellious heart, against Gods teverless and expresse commands. And this here was Saus cife: for had not God plainly and firstly required him to definy all the Amalekites, with all their cattel and substance, it had been at his own thouce, to do with them what he pleased t but now that he had done it. Sauls wilful and flubborn disobedience, was plain rebellion. And this, Samuel faith, was as witchcraft or divination : when as men leave God and feek to divels sand as iniquity, whereby generally is meant all fin, and a course of wickedneffe, Gen. 15.16. Rom. 4 7. and idulatry, when men forfake Gods true worthip and letve idols. For as Witches and Diviners leave Gods word, and go to the Devil for counfel and direction; fo Rebels refift Gods known will, and obey the Devil in their works : and as Idolaters ferve and facrifie no. to their idols, and neglect Gods true worfhip; fo ftubborn to meritain, and neglect Goos true Worling; 10 Intoborn and obtlinate finners, despising Gods commands, serve their own lusts, and satrifice to their own ness, Hab. 1. 16. Whereby they rob God of his glory, and prefer before him contemptible creatures, as witches and idolaters ple to do.

V. 24. And Saul faid unto Samuel, I have finned 7 This his confession of his fin was falle and hypocritical, like that of Pharaon, Exod. 9 27. not arifing from a true repentant heart, or from the love of God, or hatred of fin, but from cargal feltlove, teare of punishment, and fuch base and by-ends. And though he uleth the very fame word that David did, 2 Sam. 12. 13, Yet there was great difference between film and Saul in their confessions; for David did it readily, but Saul is very hardly drawn to m, and a long time shuffles it off with frivolous excuses 3 the one, like a found penitent, taketh the whole guilt and blame upon himself; the other, when he wasconvinced, that he could no longer shift it wholly off; yet, like an hypo-crite, he would not (even in his confession) bear the burthen alone, but lay eth it chiefly upon the people, who had compelled him, for fear, to do what he did, whereas he would not have done it, if he had been at his free choyce : though herein he must needs confesse he had faulted and failed, in that he had obeyed their voyce rather then Gods.

V. 25. Now therefore I pray thee pardon my fin] i. e. Pray for me to God, that he will pardon it, and fo be reconciled unto and turn again with me, that I may worship the Lord] i.e. That we may rogether praife him for our victory, and offer unto him peace-offerings, and gratulatory facrifices.

V. 26. And Samuel faid unto Saul, I will norreturn with thee?

The which he laith , to shew his indignation ; and that he would have no communion and convertation with him, that had thewed himfelf fuch arebel, in rejecting the Lord, left he' thould by accompanying him, feein to allow and countenance him in his rebellion. Neither did he nican to do orderwife then he faid, if he did not use importunity to retain him in his company, So Luk. 24, 28,29.

V. 27. And as Samuel turned about to go away, he laid bold on the skirt of bit mantle, and it rent | He was extreamly loath that he fliould depart from him, because the people would have taken notice of this breach between them; and confequently, that he was deeply in Gods displeasure for some fin, which would have impaired his credit, and weakened his government; and therefore, using some force to hold him, he rents his mantle.

V. 28. The Lord bath ront the Kingdom of Ifrael from thee this day] Where he taketh occasion by this sudden accident, as a fad omen and fign fent of God, to ratifie the fentence of his deposition from being king; for though he was not actually deposed to the day of his death, yet he was deprived of the right of his regency by Gods doom, and David chole and anounted King in his itead. And by the renting of the mantle, (as fome think) was intimated and fore-shewed Sauls violent death, whereby he was rent from his kingdom, and his Kingdom from him.

And buth given it to a neighbour of thine that is better then thou That is, to David, though he were not yet known, either to him That is, to David, though he were not yet known, ethner to mind or Samuel himfelf; who is fluid to be better then Saul; becambe of Gods free grace; he was accepted and preferred before him; and alloin refipred of the uprightness of his heart, and his fincere obedience to Gods will; in both which, Saul failed and came much fhort of him.

V. 29. And alfo the strength of Ifrael, will not be, nor repent] Some read it, the Eternity of Ifrael; and chuse rather so to take it in this place; because (as they conceive) Gods unaltey rable decree for ever, is better set forth by the attribute of his Eternity, then of his power. Others think; that this reading of firength, may as well fland; leeing the word most properly fignificate firenge; and in this fence may fit the occurrence of Samuels using it, namely, that Gods decree of deposing Saul should surely stand; for though he seemed to be firmly settled in the Kingdom, and had great flrength to maintain his title and intersit against all oppolers; yet God, who is omnipotent, was able to dethrone and cast him out; and though Saul, who was their Captain and King, appointed by God to fave his people, ch. 9.16. where taken away, yet the Kingdom and people of God, thould not miscarry with him, or fear the worfe ; feeing the strength of Ifrael still remained, to preferve and to protect them against all their enemies, and also to exalt and eftablish him on the throne, whom he had defigned to not ige, nor repent] See ver. 11. & Gen.6.6.

Chap. xvi.

V. 30. Then be faid, I have funed; yet bonour me now, I pray thee before the Elders of my people] Where with the confession of his fin, he reneweth and preffeth his fuite, not on the fame ground, that he might be pardoned, but that he might be honoured in the fight of the people; as if he had faid, though the fentence of Gods rejection, and my deposing, be so firmly de-creed that it cannot be revoked, yet for the present uphold my credit with the people, by gracing me with thy company.
V. 31. 80 Samuel turned again after Saul ] That is, being thus importuned, he yeeldeth to gratifie him in his request, partly to fhew his allegeance to his King ; who though he were rejected by Gods sentence and decree, yet he was not yet actually deposed and dethroned a partly, to uphold the government for the present, and to preserve it from the disrespect and concempt of the people; and partly, to execute juffice and judgement upon Agag, which saulbad hitherto deferred and neglefted. V. 32. And Agag came unto bim delicately] That is, retaining flill the countenance and carriage, the garb and gate of a King, although in his present condition he was become a pri-

Aud Agag faid] That is, thought with himfelf, or fpake to others about him.

Surely the bitterness of death is past ] Which he faith, either because his onely care was to retain the Majesty of a King, in this last tragical act of death; having prepared himfelf, and armed his resolution against the fear of it, which is the greatest part of deaths bitterneffe; or elfe he perswaded himself that he had now no cause to sear it, seeing he having escaped the sury of a martial King, in battel and heat of war, he could now be in no danger of being flain by a feeble old Prophet, in cold blood being their prifoner.

blood, being their pritoner.

1, 32. And Samuel fild, as thy fword bath made women childleft, fo field thy mother be childleft i.e. Whereby is implyed, that not onely his progenitors had flain many of Gods people, in former times, Exod. 17. 11. Numb. 14. 45. but that he also himself in his wars with them, had stain many with the fword; and therefore he would deal with him by the just law of requital, grounded on the law of Nature, Gen. 9.6. Mat. 26. 50. and repay him with the fame measure which he had meted unto others, Mat. 7. 1, 2.

And Samuel bewed Agag in pieces before the Lord in Gilgal] That is, either by appointing Executioners to do it; or, (as it is more probable) he did it with his own hands, (as Elias flew Baals Priefts, I King. 18.4. and 2 King. 1.10. 12. and Phine-has, Zimri and Cosby, Numb. 25.7.) But if fo, then no doubt are of the like profession ; for a Bithop must be no ftriker, 1 Tim. 3.3. And the Counfels and Canons of the Church, have alwayes interdicted the ufe of the fword unto men confecrated to Gods spiritual service, saving in the lawful desence of themselves and their own lives.

V. 35. And Samuel came no more to fee Saul ] That is, though verpurpodely went to fee him, or at loaft, not as formerly, to influed, direct, and affilt him in the affairs of the Kingdom.

nevertheles Samuel mourned for Saul ] Not chiefly, because neverbiels Samue more and femenced him to be deposed, food had julily ejected him, and femenced him to be deposed by the beautificated by his fin, had brought this heavy judgmentupe on him, and fill continued in it without reprenate on him, and fill continued in it without reprenate of the food of the food of a Kingdom, heavenly and eterminated by the first of the food of a Kingdom, heavenly and eterminated by the first of the food of a Kingdom, heavenly and eterminated by the first of the food of a Kingdom, heavenly and eterminated by the food of the food of a Kingdom, heavenly and eterminated by the food of t and the note upon it.

CHAP. VI.

fimply for his calamitous condition, in respect of his being rejected by God, and sentenced to lose the Kingdom, (for it is lawful to bewayl the miscries of others, into which they have plunged themselves by their fins;) but because he continued so long in his mourning, after God had evidenced it unto him. that the decree of his rejection was absolute, and therefore could not with all his mourning be revoked.

Fill thine horn with oyl] See ch. 10. ver. 1. and the note and I will fend thee to Jeffe the Bethlemite ] Who was the fon of Obed, and the Grand-child of Boaz and Ruth, of the rribe of Tudah, Ruth. 4. 21,22.

for I have provided me a King among his fons ] That is, I have. out of my freee grace, and in favour to my people, made choyce of a King to rule over them; and not fuch an one as Saul, whom I gave in my anger, being pressed thereunto by their sin-ful importunity; in which respect he might be said to be a King of their own chusing, rather then of mine.

V. z. And Samuel said, How can I go; if Saul bear of it, be will kill me] In which quettion, though Samuel might discover fome infirmity and humane frailty, in making fome doubt of his fafety, in executing Gods command, having had fo much experinety, in executing your command, naving that to much experience of his goodness, power and providence, watching yet him; for even the best men, naturally, sear death, as we see in the example of Abraham, Isaac, Moses and Ezechias; Yet his speech was not so much out of diffidence, and reluctancy to Gods revealed will, but onely an expression of his desire to be directed by God, how he might do it with most safety, like that of the bleffed Virgin Mary, Luk 1. 34. How food this be, feeing

And the Lord faid, Take an beifer with thee, and fay, I am come And the Lora Juna, a arean neight was the same pay a dark control of farrifice unto the Loral That is, peace-offerings, or a facrifice of thankligiving, after which followed a Featt made out of the remainders of the offerings. See ch. 9.12. Which facrifices it was lawful to offer upon an altar erected in another place, befides the tabernacle, before the building of the temple; especially at this time, when the tabernacle and altar were separated, and that when it was done by an holy Prophet. But above all, it was lawful for Samuel to do it, having Gods special command, which is above all laws. Now whereas he biddeth him fay, I am come to facrifice unto the Lord; though bounts in may, a micronic to natifice unto the Lord; mough the chief caule intended in his coming, was to anoynt David King; this was no untruth, (for God, who is truth it felf, cannot command a lye) but onely a concealing of fome part of truth, which was not fit to be different, out of civil prudence; for, as he is a fool, that believeth all things . Prov. 14. 15. fo he is no less that speaketh all he knoweth. So Jeremiah being queflioned, what speech had passed between him and the King, telleth the truth in part, but concealeth the chief and main bus-of between them, Jer. 38. 27.

V. 3. And call fesse to the sacrifice That is, the Fenst, made of the remainders of the tacrifice and peace-offerings, which usually was offered in some high and publike place, set apare for that fervice, where none were to be prefent but Priefts, Levites, Ministers of the tabernacle; though it be probable, that the Feast after it was held at the house of Jesse.

V. 4. And the Elders of the town trembled at his coming Because it was not usual for Samuel, so great a Prophet, to come has, Zimri and Corby, Numb. 25,77). Butiffo, then no doubt unexpectedly to fo fmall a city, especially aow in his old age, it was by a feefal and extraordinary infliner and motion of when he went little abroad; and therefore they feared, left Geds Spirit, before whom he is Lid to have acked it. And therefore it ought not to be drawn into perfident, by fuch as thirter-to-deliver fome find meffage of Gods heavy judgements; or elfe, coming fo fuddenly privatly, & without attendance, that he was fled thither to avoyd Sauls fury, incenfed against him by his sharp reproofs, and denunciations of Gods judgements against him for his fins, whom if they received, and either concealed or protected him, they should hereby make themselves liable to Sauls rage and revenge.

V. 5. [andifie your felves, and come with me to the facrifice] To Chrift, whose blood purifieth from all finful defilements, of God had juftly rejected him, and fentenced him to be deposed, which these legal ceremonies were types and shadows; and re> vided for their fakes; Whereby it appeareth, that this was no common Feaft, unto which they were invited, (as lome have conceived) but an boly Feaft, which followed the gratulatory facrifice. Neither could Samuel indeed, under any other which yet necessarily must be understood; as the offering | Samuel, and other of the faithful which came to the knowof the Excrifice, and that done, the meeting at the Feaft, the acousinting of Jeffe and David, in fome private place, with Gods purpose and will to have him anounted King over Ifraely which was done (as it is most likely) before they sate down to the Feath, and the with-drawing of Jeffe, and his fons, into fome private room from the rest of the guests, that the matter might not be commonly known, and come to Sauls ear.

V. 6. And it came to pais when they were come. That is, Jeffe and his lone into iome private place, where they were brought before Samuel, one after another, by their Fa-and [ail] Namely, to himfelf; or, thought in his own kearr.

Eliab 7 Called alfo Elihu, 1 Chro, 27,18.

Surely, the Lords anoguted is before him? Because he was the eldeft fon, and a goodly perfon, both in respect of his beautiful countenance and tall stature, (fit ornaments to commend and grace a King in the fight of his people ) he refolveth that this was the man whom God would chaic; yet not by the inward motion of Gods Spirit, as a Prophet, but onely out of his own opinion; unto which he did the rather incline, not onely because he was taken with his beauty and countenance, but because Saul was such an one, whom, by Gods appointment, he had formerly anoghred.

V. 7. But the Lord faid unto Samuel] i. e. Secretly, and by divine inspiration. Soch, 9, 17.

because I bave refused bim That is, and not purposed to chuse him to be King. So ver. 8,9.10.

for the Lord seeth not as man seeth ] That is, so sleightly and man looketh upon the outward appearance] That is, judgeth all things according to the out-fide and fhew, his fight not being

But the Lord looketh upon the heart | That is, being Omnifci ent, fearcheth the heart and reins, and esteemeth of men, according to the in-fide, and not the outward appearance, 2 Chron. 28.4. Pfalm. 7.9. Jer. 11. 20. and 17. 10. and 20. 12. Luk.

16. 15. V 8. Then Feffe ealled Aminadab] That is, after that Samuel had told him, that God had refused Eliab to be King. V. 9. then feffe made Sammah to pafe by ] Who is also called, Shimeab, 2 Sam, 13. 3. and Shimma, 1 Chro. 2. 13.

V. 10. And Jeffe made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel That is, four more, belides thefe three fons that palled by first By which it plainly appeareth, that, with David, he had eight in all. And fo likewife, chap. 17. 12. whereas, 1 Chro, 2. 13. it is faid that he had feven , which are also there named : because it may be one of these eight was dead, not having any iffue, when that Book was written; and he nameth in the genealogie, onely them that were then alive, and had fome iffue defcending from them.

V. 11. And Samuel faid unto Fesse, Are here all thy children Samuel (appofing that, according to his appointment, Jeffe had brought all his fon seeing raat God had refuled them all, he was at a fland, and therefore maketh a more curious inquiry, if he had no more; the which came to pais by a forcial provi-dence, that David floudd not be cent for, at the first, to come in with the rest, that by Gods resusing them, it might more clearly appear, that he had cholen him.

And he fail, there remaineth yet the youngeft, and behold, he keepeth the focep ] Waereby he implyeth, that he had not brought him, as not thinking him confiderable in this election; both in respect of his youth, and the meanness of his imployment; for whereas his elder brethren were men of some note, and the Kings fervants following the wars ; he poor boy, was imployed to keep his fathers theep, and to run on his errands, and to wait on his brethren, when he was pleafed to appoint him, ch. 17. 17. 1 Chro. 17. 7. Herein David was a type of Chrift, who when he was most despited and rejected of men, was most highly esteemed in the eyes of God, was will not fit down till be come bither] Which he speaketh out of that honour and respect which he bore him, sceing he was the chief guest , for whose lake the Feast was provided.

V. 12. Now be was ruddy | That is, of a fresh complexion, in the due mixture of white and red; arguing that he was of a lively disposition, and full of spirit.

And the Lord said, Arise, anount him, for this is he] It was not God's purpose that David should, soon after Sauls rejection come to the Crown, but that Saul should still reign divers years, (that is, feven at leaft, as fome think) even to the day of his death; and yet he was pleased, that he should presently be anoynted. Because David must pass many trials and tentatihe was exalted to the Crown and Scepter; and therefore there was great need, that this feal of anovating should be added to ledg of it; in this affurance, that though God had rejected Saul, yet he would ftill take care of his people; and when he was gon, would give them a King, that fhould fight their battels, and fave them out of the hands of all their ene-

V. 12. Then Samuel took the horn of oyl and anoyneed him ] The relation of which his action is passed over with as great brevity, as the other before, v. o. with the omiffion of divers circumitances, which is the cause of some doubts and difficulties.
For it is not faid, when, or where, he anounted him; nor is it cleer by the text, whether he did it fecretly and privately, none knowing of it but only Jeffe, David, and himfelf; or, whether it was done before many witnesses. And therefore there is much diverfity of opinions among Expositors. For some think, that he was anounted openly before all the guefts, to the end, that there might be many witnesses of it, because Samuel dyed before a way was made for David, to be elected and crowned, by Sauls death. But this is not probable, feeing Samuel uled much fecrecie in this action, that it might not come to Sauls knowledg, left he should kill him; as it would foon have done, if it had been done in the prefence of fo many. And we fee alfo, that afterwards David was much loved and effeemed by Saul, v. 21, whereas, had he known that he was anounted king in his room, he would have mortally hated him; feeing he did it afterwards upon a bare jealousse and suspition of it. conceived, upon the hearing the women fing his praises, ch. 18. 8. Others think, that he was anounted King in the prefence of all his brethren. But neither can this frand, for the fame reason, seeing it was not likely that it would have been concealed, if they had all known it, in regard of that envy which it would have cauled in them, when they faw themselves refuled, and he that was youngest, chosen to be king over them; as we fee in the example of Joseph and his brethren, Gen. 37. 8. 11.

And yet it is not probable, if they had feen him anoynted king by Samuel the Lords Prophet, that Eliab afterwards would have infulted over him with fuch pride, arrogance, and caufeleife choler, ashe did, ch. 17. 28, Others suppose, that he was annoyated before them , yet not as a King, but as a Prophet; or for some other special end, that being endued with a pro-oberical Spirit, he might compose Plaims and Hymnes, to the praise of God. But this had been little to the purpose, of having them therefore prefent, that they might be witneffes, after bambels death, that they had formerly feen him anoyan him king; but would rather have made against it; seeing they could not witnesse that, of which they had taken no cognizance ; namely, that he had not anounted him king , but a Prophet only. And finally, it cannot be imagined, that when Samuel anounted him, he made only a dumb thew, pouring out the oyl out of the horn upon him, and faying nothing; but that with this ceremony, he used some words to explain his meaning, namely, that he had anounted him to be king over Ifrael. And this is implyed in the speech of the tribes that came unto Hebron, to anoynt David their King, 2 Sam. 5. 2. And the Lord faid unto thee, (namely, by Samuel his propher, when he anounted thee) thou shall feed my people Ifrael, and thou first be a Captain over I/racl. The which, no doubt he spake to David and his Father, but not before his brethren,upon the former reasons. Now the only confiderable objection against what I have said, is this, That the Author of this book faith, that he anoynted him in the midfl of bis breibren. But this proveth not, that his brethren flood by and favy it done, feeing this may be otherwise understood; namely, that amongst all Jesses fons, Samuel, by Gods appointment, anoynted David, or, that he took him from among all the rest of his brethren, and anounted him King. And thus this phrase is used, Deut.
18. 55. The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from themiast of thy brethren like unto me; and Exod. 23. 25. I will take fickness away from the midst of thee, that is, from among you,

And the Spirit of the Lord came upon David ] That it, not onely the spirit of wisedom, courage, strength and fortitude, whereby he was enabled, from after, to encounter the Lyon and the Bear; but also all other heroical gifts fit for a King; and (it may be) the gift of prophecy and poefie, wherein he excelled; and with them, all fanctifying graces, fit for a good King; with which, though he were formerly endued, yet now much more, and in an extraordinary manner and measure, when he was thus ancynted, of which this junction was a figu. See Judg.

13. 25. Att, 13. 22. V. 14. But the Spirit of the Lord departed from Saul] That is, those kingly and heroical gifts of wifedom and fortitude, whereby, God by his Spirit had fitted and qualified bim, when ons, afflictions and dangers; and be throughly humbled, before he called him to be King, were taken from him, chap. 10.

and an evil spirit from the Lord troubled him] Or, terrified Gods promife, for the strengthening his faith in all his doubts him. That is, Sothan, who is said to be an evil spirit from and difficulties. And also this was done for the constort of God because he was sent from God to punish Saul for his sins, both in his minde and body; and to be by fits vexed and tor. | a fun-thine-gloom before a fearful florm; leaving an experimented by him. Like a man posselled and given up into his mental example to future ages, of that which the Plasmit mented by him. Like a man posselled and given up into his mental example to future ages, of that which the Plasmit figeaketh, That it is better to trust in the Lord, then to put confipower. And so Sathan taking advantage of his extream meit, of his Kingdom; he filleth him with frights and fears, arifing from a guilty conscience, and with disquietness of minde, and grief of heart, which fo diftempered and diftracted him, that he fell into fits of phrensie; whereby he was so transported and hurried, that he became outragious, and ready to kill and destroy all that came in his way, friends as well as foes: with which diffempers of minde, his body, likewife, was fo affected and afficted, that fometimes he fell into trances and extafies,

V. 15. and an evill firit from Ged troubletb theel That is. vexeth and difquieteth thee.

V. 16. which are before thee] That is, attend and wait upon thre, and are at thy command, to do thee fervice.

And it Shall come to pafe, that when the evil fbirit from God is upon thee, that he (ball play with bie band, and thou fhalt be well. ] Not that there was any efficacy in mulick, and the melody of an harp, to drive away Devils; for spirits are not wrought upon by corporal means: But because, in a natural way, it disposed a fixed Saul for case, by raising up his beart way, it disposed and fitted Saul for ease, by raising up his heart and spirit out of his melancholy dumps, tempering his rage, and moderating his griefs and discontents, by which the Devil took advantage, to drive him into frenzie fits and furies : For which, mulick is thought to be very efficacious ; and therefore nne trophet Entina maning nas sporta especiated by the pretence opinion they totals teamletive necessitated, for the reconci-of an idolatrous King, and the diliter's in which Gods people ling of divers palispees in both Chapters, especially, chapter were deeply plaqued, calletch for a Mustian, to cheer and revive wr. 11. compared with ver. 55. and 58. of this Chapter, his staking heart, that he might be the better fitted for prophe-ling of divers palispees in the compared with ver. 55. and 58. of this Chapter, mow the Philistims gathered together their armies to hantel ] cy. And this effect Saul tound of it; partly, in this natural way, but chiefly, because God by his power and providence to disposed of it, that it might be a means to bring David to the Court, and into Sauls acquaintance and favour, for the furthering of those ends which be intended; that is, the fitting of him for the Kingdom.

and thou fielt be well | That is, thy fpirit shall be composed and thy passions and diftempers qualified and moderated.

V. 18. Behold I have seen a son of Fesse- that is cuming in playing, and a mughty valuant man, and a man of War ] From he now came to Saul, whereupon they grounded this commendation, that he was a mighty valiant man, and a man of war, and the Lord was with him, that is, helped and affifted him in all his defigns, out of that experience which they then had of him. But, though I conceive this opinion to be for weighty and probable, that it should not be fleighted and reiected : Yer this commendation doth not clearly evince it feeing his strength, valour, and good success in his enterprizes, might be taken notice of, by his killing of a Bear and Lvon and other famous and valorous exploits, which he atchieved foon after that he was anounted, when the Spirit of God came upon him, ver. 13.

V. 19. Send me David shy fon Where Saul finding, that he might have some good use of Davids service, sendeth for him. using that kingly power and prerogative, of which Samuel had fore-warned the peope, ch. 8

which is with the sheep In which words he closely coucheth a motive, to make him willingly to condescend to this motion, feeing it was for his great preferment, in taking him from his mean imployment, of keeping theep, and retaining him, as a Courtier to ferve the King, neer unto his person. Where, by the way, it appeareth, that David, though chofen by God, and anointed King, yet in the humility of his spirit, he returned to his old imployment, of keeping his fathers sheep, waiting upon God, when it should be his pleasure to provide and give upon God, when it induit out is pleasure of provide and give the means of rayling him to this royal dignity. V. 20. And Fesse took an as laden with bread, and a bottle of wine, and a kid, and sent them by David his son unto Saul] Which he fent as a prefent to testifie his love, homage and allegeance; and though it were but of fmall worth in it felf, yet it could not but be well accepted, being fent with fuch due respecies. For though great personages, (as one faith) are not pleased with small gitts, out of their covetousness; yet out of presence with intermediate to the control of the co favour Gen. 42. 11.

V. 21. And David came to Saul, and fleed before him] That is, waited upon him, being alwaies ready to do him fervice. Gen.

18. 3. Deut. 1. 28. & 10.8.
and be became bis armour-bearer.] The which great love of dence in Princes, Pfalm. 1 18. 9. & Pfal. 146.3.

V. 22. And Saul fent to Jeffe, faying, Les David, I pray thee, fland before me] That is, continue itill in my service; For though he had power, as a King, to command it, yet he choofeth rather to make it his request, that he might enior him with his love and liking.

V. 23. So Saul was refreshed, and was well, and the evill shirit departed from him] That is, he was, for the time, freed from his fits of rage and melancholy positions, God working with Davids mulick; and giving Saul eale, that hereby he might make way for his advancement to the Kingdom. Yet it was no perfect cure, but rather an intermission of his fits, because he had not used the right means to effect it, which was faith and repentance, fasting and prayer, but onely musick, to drive away melancholy.

CHAP. XVII.

that which was spoken and done chap. 16. 18. In which is related things done before David came to the Court; and that it is added, for the confirming of those words, whereby the fervants of Saul commended him to their Master. Unto which the Prophet Eliftha finding his spirit depressed by the presence opinion they think themselves necessitated, for the reconci-

That is, having new strength, and recruited their army, fince that great defeat and flaughter, cauled by Jonathan and those that followed him, they refolve to make a new attempt upon the Hraelites; and to this end gather together all their forces, preparing for another battel; that so they might put off the fhame and diffeenour, which they had contracted upon their whole Nation by being fo difgracefully foyled with a fmall number of the Ifraclites, in comparison of their puissant, and (as they thought) invincible army, in respect of their huge multitude, and warlike preparations. Unto which (it is prowhence Junius hath probably gathered, comparing it with other bable) they were the rather encouraged, by hearing, that their pailinges in the Chapter following, that their is an hyterofis, or King, and captain, was so much distracted, and different with transposicion in the flory; and that he had flain Goliah before | his melancholy passions, that he was thereby disabled to perform the duties of a prudent and valiant General.

and were gathered together to Shochoh and Azekab ] Which were Cities belonging to the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15.35.

Ethes-Dammim Or, the coast of Dammim.

V. 2. and pitched by the valley of Elab] Or, of the oak, or, the grove of oaks

V. 3. And the Philistims flood on a mountain on the one fide. and Ifrael flood on a mountain on the other fide ] That is, baving bad fo long and great experience, on both fides, of eithers valour and prowefs in war, they were not hally in attempting one another with any difadvantage; but both of them keep on the mountains, on either fide, one against another, having a valley between them; expecting who should begin, and adventure themselves to give the first onset against their enemy, that had the advantage of the higher ground. Only they sent from the body of their armie, fome parties to skirmifh, one with another, ver. 20. Like Abner and Joab, at the pool of Gibeon,

2 Sam. 2. 12 V. 4. And there went out a Champion out of the camp of the Philiftims | Heb. a man between two. Or, a duellift. So called, either because be put himself between the two camps, or, offered a duel between two, that is, himfelf and another.

a duel between two, that is, nimely and abotter.

named Golish of Gath] That is, a mighty and monfrous Giant, of the race of the Rephaims or Anakims, who being beaten out of Hebron by Johua, Joh. 11.22, placed themselves in the country of the Philiftims, about Gath, Gaza, and Afh-whose beight was fix cubites ] That is, three yards, counting according to the common cubites, and so higher by a yard and a fpan, then any ordinary man.

and a span That is, three hands bredth, or, twelve inches-V. s. And be bad a belinet of brass upon his head, and bewas armed with a cost of mail That is, he had arms that were large and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of brass ] Which counting a shekel at half an ounce, (which was the weight of the common shekel) amounted to two thousand and meight of the common interest amount-nearers.] The which great lore of Saul towards David, evidenced by this preference, was founded the control of the common interest amount of the common and atterwards turned into montal hatted, and proved to be but as possible and additional controls. Adjustice, a digning to every point whether common and controls, a digning to every point whether controls. Chap.xvii. legs, and of his target of brafs between his shoulders, and the When they mustered their men for the firvice of war, he was faff of his fpear like a weavers beam ; and the weight of his frents head, altogether amounted to more then two hundred pounds, according to the lowest citimate; a butthen heavy enough for any ordinary man to bear; yet fo strong was this mighty gyant, that he was able to walk and fight with fuch arms upon him. And this is brought to shew the vanity of all humane firength, when it is at the highest, and Gods al-mighty power, who is able to quell it by fuch weak

V. 6. And he had greaves of brafe upon his legs, and a target of brafs between his floulders ] Which others chuse rather to read, a fhort fpear or trunchion of brafs, which he carried on his shoulder, the word it felf being so taken, Josh, 8. 17. Job 41. 29. Jer. 6. 23. because one bearing a shield, is said to have gone before him, ver. 7. for though there be also mention made of another Ipcar, yet (as they think) these two were of divers kindes; one, a brafs trunchion born on his shoulder; the other, a long spear which he had in his hand, both of them offenfive, and not defenfive weapons. For fo David useth the word, v. 45. V. 7. And bis spears head weighed 600 [lickels of iron] That is, five and twenty pound, computing cwelve ounces to a

V. 8. Why are ye come out to fet your battle in array ] That is . If you think your felves too weak for us, and dare not try out the quarrel between us in a battle; to what purpole do ye order your army, as though ye would fight ? But eflusion of blood, and that is by a duel or fingle combate; and fo let that party, which prevaileth by his champion, and getteth the victory, have the dominion; and the other that is van-quished, be under rule and subjection.

quinted, be under rule and tubjection.

am not I a Philiffim ] That is, chofen by the Philiffims for their Champion? Or, am not I the Philifim, who am famous for my valour and warlike exand you [ervants to Saul] He doth not fay in a right antithefis, and you Ifraelites, but fervants to Saul, by way of contempt, who having subjected themselves to his government, were as fervants at his command.

chufe you a man fer you] i. e. A Champion, to try your caufe and title in a fingle combate.

I defie the Armier of Ifrael That is, by daring and challenging them to fight with me, I expole them to fcorn and con-tempt, if not a man in their whole army can be found, that dare answer my challenge. And thus he began to infult, when he faw that none durft come out to fight with him. So ver. 25,

V. 11. When Saul and all Ifrael beard thefe words of the Philiftim, they were difmayed and greatly affraid ] Whereby they discovered their infidelity, in not believing Gods promi-fes, that if they truffed in God, and walked in his wayes, one of them should be able to chase a thousand of them enemies; and their forgetfulneffe of his omnipotent power who, by a word of his mouth, was able to quell and crush this muo, oya wora or nis mouth, was anic to queit and cruin this proud infulting gyant; yea; after they had fo lately the experience of it in Jonathan and his armour-bearer, whom God fo endued with courage and firength, that they whom God to enduce with course and trength, that they alone routed the whole army of the Phillitims; and yet, as if all were forgotten, none of the whole camp, no not Jonathan himfelf, durit answer his challenge; of which we can give no other reason, but that, confidence and courage being Gods free gifts, which he bestoweth on whom and when nemy coos rice gitts, which are bettiened both from him and all aftern with the King and people. But contrativitie, they the will, he had now withdrawn them both from him and all aftern with the King and people. But contrativitie, they have referred and heldowed then upon David, that he antivering whom God had refuted, were imployed in the wars; and the reft, and bestowed them upon David, that he answering the challenge and obtaining the victory, and to becoming fa-mous and in high effects, both with Prince and people, there might bereby a way be made for the fulfilling of Gods pur-scription of David by his lineage, country, and parentage, in a more exact manner, then where he is named in the ftory, ch. 16, 18, maketh their opinion more probable, that think , that there is some transposition in the history, secing Authors the more fully to describe a man, when they first begin to speak of him, then they afterwards do, when they have spoken much of him already.

and he had eight fone | See Chap. 16. to. and the note upon it. | there came any deliverance.

unto which, if we add the weight of his greaves of brafs on his [ and the man went for anold man in the dayes of Saul ] That is, reputed fo old, that he was not thought fit, being superannuated, to be thus imployed; and therefore in this expedition be flaid at home, but yet fent three of his fons, to attend the fervice of the King and State.

or the King and State.
V. 17. And the names of his three four that went to the Existe, were Eliab the first born, &c.] See ch. 16.6.8.9.
V. 15. But David went and returned from Saul, to feed his fathers [heep as Bethlebers] That is, he was often fent by his father to Sauls camp, to and fro, to visit his brethren, and fupply their wants is which being done, he returned to his fheep. Others understand it of his returning from Sanls Court, where he was entertained, and lived fome time, doing him that fervice unto which he had called him; and af-terwards being dismifted by Saul, went back to keep his fa-thers sheep. The which his dismission, they impute either to the fickleness and inconstancy of Saul, as being distracted with melancholick fits, and humorous paffions, whereby his affection towards David being cooled and quenched, he began to neglect him; or, because being recovered by Davids mufick, he conceived that he had no turther need of bim; or elfe, because his minde and heart were so wholly. taken up with the prefent wars , that he had shaken off his melancholick tears and diffractions, and wholly intended the weighty affairs, that no leffe concerned him, than the loffe of his Kingdome, yea, his liberty, and even his life it felf : Or finally, Saul returned him to his aged father, to be a comfort unto him in the absence of his three other fons, who were imployed to do him fervice in the for all your brave shew, ye dare not now do it, when it is other sons, who were imployed to do him service in the come to the point; I will after another way, to put an end to wars, having no use of him or his musick, but rather come to the point; a win a atter anomet way, to put an enato before controvering of obversigns, both with the controvering of obversigns, both which we contend, which of solversigns, both which we contend, which will bring the matter to a quicker trial, and with much leffs do not throughly fair for, fering the rest gives how the edition of blood, and thate by a dealer of fingle comblete and left that the of saids afterious and distillation towards to the edition of blood, and thate by a dealer of fingle comblete and left that the of saids afterious and distillation towards to the control of the control of the observations and distillation towards to the control of the cont vid ; and though Sauls present imployment in the war, via 3 and thought cause pretent imployment in the war, abated, for the time, his fears, and existed his fits, yet this would not have caused him, being a King, to fend away a fervant, of whem he might have need again, when the war was ended 3 or, if he found himslift recovered by Davids mustick, this would the more have indeared his fervice, and have made him the more loth to part with him, for fear of a relapfe. And suppose that he had no need of David as his Musician; yet he had now more speciall occasion to use his service and attendance, as being his armour-bearer. Neither is it the manner of Princes to respect more the comfort of a private parent, then their own fervice in the publique affaires of the State and Common-Wealth. And therefore, fiving other mens better judgements, I conceive, that this going and returning, is meant of his going to and fro from his fathers house, to the camp, which was the present occasion why it was here spoken of. But whether this was done before Saul sent for him , and entertained him into his fervice , or afterwards, (as we have it here expressed ) I will not deter-to feed bis fathers sheep at Beibleben ] After that David was by Samuel anounted King, he returneth to his former imployment, and leadeth ap ivate life; (as Saul likewise had formerly done, chap. 11. 5. and so Moses, after he had long lived in Pharaohs Court, Exod. 3.1.) waiting upon God till it pleafed him to provide means for the accomplishment of his promile; whereby he shewed his great humilty and patience, in the exercise of his faith and hope. One would have thought, that both his father and himself, being acquainted with Gods purpose of raising him to be King should have defired, that he, abe ve the reft of his brethten, fhould have been imployed in the wars, that his valour and prudence being approved, he might become famous, and in high David, whom he bad chofen, is used as a fervant, to run to and fro on their errands, because God would have the whole glory of raising him to Soveraignty from such a low condition, wome.

1. Now David was the fonof that Expanding of Bable.

1. Now David was the fonof that Expanding of Bable.

1. Now David was the fonof that Expanding of Bable.

1. Now David was the fonof that Expanding of Bable.

1. Now David was the fonof that Expanding of Bable.

1. Now David was the fonof that Expanding of Bable.

1. Now David was the fonof that Expanding of Bable.

1. Now David was natible of the contribution of the was born of the was of the ribe of Expanding to the ribe of the ribe Phil. 2.6.7.9

V. 16. And prefented bimfelf fourty dayer In all which time, not one, in the whole Army of Ifrael , durit answer his challenge $ God withdrawing from them their courage and resolution, that this victory might be referved for David, and make him much the more famous in the efteem of the people , when 45 they had folong continued in their fear and diffresse before

V. 17. Take now for thy brathen an Eptat of this parched corn ] | lenge, but even fled for fear, when they did but fee his An Ephah contained ten homers, and an homer about a por-tle, a fufficient allowance for a dayes food. See Exod. 16.16.

36. and the note upon it. V. 18. And carry the eten chetfes to the Captain of their thou-[me] To gain his favour, that he might use them with more reflect, and not put them upon dangerous and desperate fer-and look bow thy brethren fare, and take their pledg ] i. e. Bring what me fring token from them, whereby I may know that they are allies and well. Or, as others take it, if they have laid with the are life in the baye. with thee to redeem it : Others expound it of a token which he received, to go out and in to his brethren in the army, withour fuspition of coming as a spye.

V. 10 Were in the valler of Elab fighting with the Philiftims That is, in the valley between the two mountains, skirthushing one with another.

V. 10. And David rofe up early ,&t. ] Where David is commended for his diligence, in executing his fathers commands, although he were anoynted King; and for his care and providence in looking to his charge, not leaving his flicen without a the photoid.

and to be add to cit!] i.e. The token which his father had fent to his brethren, and hafted on his journey.

In the claim to the transil Or; face of the carriage. That is, where the circus and carriages law, which brought provisions for the drawy, with their fault and beceffaires; which compatting the camp in the reer, were unto it as a fort or barricado, to defend it from fudden attempts, and breaking in of enemies. The like we read of, ch. 16. 5.
is the boft was going out to the fight ] Or, battle array; or, place of flight. V. 11. For I freel and the Phillstims had put the battle in array

i.e. Stood in battalla, ready to fight upon any advantage, which thould be given them by the adverse party.

V. 12, And David left his carriage | Heb. the wellels from upon him. i.e. The things fent by his father, to the Captain and his breitrin, that he might with more freed go into the Army.
Rame and faluted his breshren] Heb. asked his breshren of peace.

i. e. how it fared with them. V. 23, There came up the Champion | i.e. Towards the mounand pake according to the [the words] To wit; which were be-tore expressed, v. 8. V. 14. Aid all the men of Ifrael when they (and the man fled from bim] Heb. from ble face, thereby discovering their fear,

V. 25. Surely to defie I frael is be come up ] i.e. To reproach them as daffards, who durft not fight with him, being to often challenged and provoked. and is fall be, that the man who killeth him, the king will en-eich] As if they had faid, all men are lo possessed with fear. that there is not one to be found that will bazard himfelf, by undertaking the combate, norwithflanding the King bath given such great encouragements to him that shall get the victory.

and make bis fathers bouse free in Isrsel] i.e. Will inable his family, by freeing it from all taxes and impositions. And this they laid, to encourage one another to undertake the combat, bir all in vain ; for though they all hungred after the baye of honour, and riches, yet they durit not bite at and fwallow it, for fear of the book.

V. 16. What fhall be done to the man that hilleth the Philiftim, and taketh away the respects from Ifrael David again hearkements after the rewards promised, not because he was taken with them, or thereby encouraged to undertake the combat; (for after be had gotten the victory, and was brought into Sauls pre-fence, he never laid any claim unto it:) But his chief inducements were Gods glory, the honour of his nation, and the wel-fare of the Common-wealth; which, with the hazard of his life, he was willing to vindicate from those impious blasshe-mies, and foul reproduces, which were believed out of the filthy miges, and ton't reproduces, which were beloard out the many, mouth of this freathenish microam, as his questions here to the Randers by do plainly import. And to this end, he bushesh himselfir all companies where he came, by making their enquiries, Both to flew his inclination to fight in the quarrel of Ood and his people, and that form of those who heard him, might take notice of it, and relate unto Saul his courage and at fundry times, one after another, taking feveral lumbs, or

V. 28. And Eliabs anger was kindled against David] Namely, (out of meer pride and envy) that he should so bufily inay, our or meet price and envey that he included bothly in-termeddle with martial affairs of this high nature, making luch diligent enquiry, as though he had fome thoughts of un-dertaking the combate, when as neither he himself, who was his tideft brother, and a martial man, nor any of hair under his mether jaw. the great Worthies of Ifrael, durft accept of the chial-

And with when buft thou left those few sheep in the wilderness is if he had faid, It had been much fitter for thee to have bu fied thy felf about thine own businesse and charge, in tending the firery, especially being in the wildernesse, where they are in danger of wilde beasts; than to thrust thy felf into the army, and there to talk of combating with a mighty gyant, whom better men then then cannot look upon without fear and horrour: Whereas a theep-book would better betome thee then a fword, and an harp to play upon, rather than armes, unto which thou haft never been accustomed. Which Words of dilparagement, though they might feem to have prowords of alpharagement, mongo tavy inight even to nave pro-ceeded from from and contempt, yet it is probable, that they werefloken our of malicious price and easy, feeing, having had experience of Dávids frength and valour, and especial-ly of Gods affiftance and blefting upon him, in killing the Lyon and Bear, he might fear that he would have the like forceffe, if he undertook this combate, and so dazzle his glory, who was his eldest brother, by having all the honour and praise conferred upon him.

I know the pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart] Where he arrogate to to implest that which is peculiar to God, that is, to fearchand know the heart; though in truth, he knew no fuch thing by David, but took a falle feantling, measuring his heart by his own that was full of pride and envy. Where we have David a true type of our Lord Chrift, who, though he were the Brime pattern of meekneffe and humility, Marte, 11. 29. Phil. 2: 6, 7. yet was he not only accessed of pride and ambition by the Scribes and Pharifees, but suspected thereof by his own brethren and kinfmen, Joh, 7. 2.4. and chap.

for theu are come down that theu mighteft fee the battle] Where, out of his own jestoufic, he chargeth him fallly, that he had thinft himself into the battle out of an ambitious define of doing some exploit to gain glory; when as his own coalicence could have told him, that he was sent thit ber by his father, to bring them provisions.

V. 19. And David (aid , What have I now done ? ] Where 29, Nan David has, Wond have I now mone! I were being his devention of reproach for reproach, but and wereth him with all mecknetle, as being his cladeft brother, What have I main done; that is, wherein have I for offended, as that I thould deferre link a thirty reproof; I is it not limited for me to fpeak that which is in every mans month > and have I herein given any caufe to be taxed of pride?

Is there not a caufe? ] That is, have I not had just caufe of coming to the Army, being fent of my Father; and being come, have I not a just charte to buffe my felf, in maing come, nave a not as jun came to other myter, a mar-king this diligitht thquiry, when I hear God diftonom-ed by a blifpenion whereh; and uncircumsifed insidel; and his own peculiar people thus foomed and reproach-

V. 30. And be turned from bim towards another] That is, finding fach hard and harth encertainment from his bro-

and flake after the fame manner ] Both that he might know the certainty of the matter, and also shew his willingnesse to fight ? that thus speaking to many, the King at last might come to the knowledg of it. V. 32. Let no mans beart fail because of bim] Namely, because there is tone found that dare encounter with this full-ous Monster; for I my felf, though the weakerl of many trust-ing in Gods thrength and affinence, will maker his proud chal-leige; and enter combat with this boatling Phillithm. V. 32. And Saul fail to Dends, below are weaker to gegatif 33. And Saul faid to David, thou art not able to go agaitft this Philifilm] Towit, with any hope of prevailing, and obrain-

for thou are but a yearb] And therefore are not yet come to thy full and manly firength, and also unexpert, not having been trained up in warlike affairs and be a man of war from his youb] i.e. A man grown to full age and vast statute, and an expert Souldier, trained up in the fervice of the war.

V. 34. And David (aid unto Saul, Thy fervant kept his fathers fheep] He confirment his own courage, and Sauls faint hope, by a reason grounded upon experience, which giveth way to

And there came a Lyon and a Bear | Not both together, but kids, our of the flock.

V. 35. And I went out after bim and [mote bim] That is, I purfixed both the fron and bear, one after another, and imote them, taking from either of them the prey on which they had feverally feized.

I caught him by bie beard i.e. Laid fail hold of the lyons long V. 16

Chap.xvij. V. 16. Thy ferving flew both the Lyon and the Bear | That is, finitely in the plural number, for the fingular. So Gon, chap.

killed the Bear, as I had done the lyon : which being perform- 21. 7. ed by clean firength, grapling together, and not at a diffance by a long (word or fpear, was an argument of great might and taroth, and Baalim, whom he imprecated against David, that magnanimous valour.

and this uncircumcifed Philiftim thall be as one of them? i.c. Seeing I truft in the fame God, who can give the fame ftrength Where, out of carnal confidence, he braggeth and boatleth in and not in my felf, who can do nothing without his affiliance, his own strength, and gloriously triumpheth before the victo-I am affured that I shall have the like success; and the rather, because I fight not in my own quarrel, but of the Lord of hofts, who giveth victory, when he pleafeth, to the weakeft, over the ftrongest; and against an uncircumcifed Philistim, who being out of covenant, is an alien to God, and there- own strength, and warlike preparations, which commonly defore out of his protection; whereas I being in covenant with him, have interest in all his promises, and namely, of victory who is sand his peoples entenies; yea, and not against an in-filel of the ordinary fort, but a blashemous mitereant, who hath reproached and defred the armies of the living God; and confequently God in them; as though, baving taken them from him, I come now to vindicate his glorious name, from into his protection, he were notable to defend them; though thy reproaches and blasphemies, seeing what thou hast being Al-mighty, he ever liveth to take revenge on such blasphe- spoken against his people, he esteemeth as spoken against him-

V. 27. [hall be as one of them] By the experience which he had in time past of Gods gracious affistance against the Lyon and Bear, he doubteth not of victory over Goliah, So 2 Cor.

7.10. And Saul faid unto David, Go, and the Lord be with thee] ie. Seeing Davids confidence fo well grounded, not on his own he reposed in him.

V. 28. And Saul armed David with his armour 7 i.e. With armour taken out of his own store, which was every way fit for Davids body; and not his own personal armour, which himfelfused to wear, seeing this would have been unfit for David, Saul fo much exceeding him in height and flature, chap.

V. 39. And David faid to Saul, I cannot go with thefe, for I have not proved them | That is, I cannot go with thefe armes and weapons, because I have not been used to wear them; where by their opinion feemeth more probable, that think that this was done before David was fent for to the combate. Court; because, in his private shepheards condition, he had never been accultomed to the use of arms, with which he could tyed to fave by these means, Pfal. 44 6. not have been fo much unacquainted, after he was Sauls armor-and Devid put them off him] i.e. Perceiving that they rather as others underthand it, I his battle is the Lords, we fighting would hinder then help him, he putteth them off, and made for him, and ye againft him; and therefore it concerneth his no use of them, as he would have done, if they had fitted him; which God to disposed of by his providence, that he alone might have the glory of the victory, wherein David was a type of Christ, who subdued his enemies, not with outward pomp and power, but by spiritual weapons, and the internal vertue of his Divine nature.

V. 40. And betook bis fisff in bis hand] i.e. His shepheards and chose him five [mooth stones out of the brook] Or, villey;

and his fling was in bis band I In the use whereof the Israelites were the more expert, because, having been oppressed by the Philiftims , they were forbidden the use of Iron weapons; chapter 13. And with these weak means, God was pleased that David should prevail, that himself alone might have the glory of the victory. Thus Mofes his rod wrought miracles in Egypt, divided the red Sea, and brought water out of the rock in the Wildernesse; Gideon by his earthen pots and lamps vanquisheth the Midianites; and Christ with clay and spittle, giveth light to the blinde man.

and he drew neer to the Philistim 7 i.e. Being full of confidence and courage, in affurance of Gods affiftance, he flaveth not for the approach of his enemy, but half th to go out against

V. 42. And disdained him ; for he was but a youth, and ruddy, and of a fair countenance \ Where three causes are expressed of the Gyants contempt; his youth, which argued his weaknefs and want of experience, his ruddy colour, which shewed his youthful temerity and rashness; and his undiscreet choler; and his beauty, which made him feem effeminate, and too tender to hold out in a combate.

V. 43. Am I a dog, that thou comeft to me with flaves ] For a flaffe (as he thought) was fitter to beat a deg, then to fight a combate with a gyant armed with spear and sword. Where, though David had but one staff, he speaketh inde-

And the Philistim curfed David by his cods | i.c. Dagon, Afta-

hey would destroy him. V. 44. Come, and I will give thy flesh to the forels of the air ? ry, that he might firike terror into him, and make him to flee efore the fight.

V. 45. Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a [held] i. c. Thou truft: ft in the aim of flefh, in thine ceive those that confide in them, but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of bofts ] That is ; his command, to do him fervice; and having a Commission

V. 46. This day will the Lord deliver thee into my hand ] He doth upt fay, that he would vanquish him in his own strength, but that the Lord would deliver him into his hand, and inable him to destroy both him and his army. The which con-fidence, he had partly out of well grounded Reason, because he fought in a good cause, and his enemies in a bad. Sefrength, in which there could be no hope, but in God who is condly, because he had reproached the Lord of hosts, who intengra, in water tere could be in today, but it to do will be could be taid reprotected the Lordon noise, who complorest and al-foliation, he giveth him leave to undertake will done fulfer his highpenies to go untrevenged. Third-the combate, and difinities him, with his prayerer God, but by, because he came in pitels, prefumption, and iel-footing he would be with and affilt him, according to that trust thick discharges, which God abstracts, and feverely passificher, where as he came against him with an humble concert of his own ftrength, refting and relying wholly upon Gods power and promifes. Fou thly, because God would do it for the glory of his own holy name, that all the earth might know that there is a God inlfrael; and that all the prefent affembly, both Ifraelites and Philiftims, might know and acknowledg, that the Lord ordereth and giveth the iffue to all battles, and faveth not with the fword and spear, but by his Word and Almighty power. And partly this was made known unto David by prophecy, and by the inspiration of Gods Spirit, enduing him with beroick gifts, and exciting him to undertake this

V. 47. The Lord faveth not by [word and fbear] i. c. Is not for the battle is the Lords | That is, To guide it by his providence, and to give victory to whom he pleaseth. Or, as others understand it. This battle is the Lords, we fighting honour to give us victory, and to overthrow you, 2 Chron.

V. 48. When the Philliftim a ofe ] i.e. Prepared himfelf for the combate, Gen. 31.17.

and d em nigh to David ] To wit, that he might get him within the reach of his fword or spear, and so fight it out with handy blowes.

that David hafted and ran toward the army to meet the Philistim ] Thereby shawing his courage and confidence, and the control in the co clofe together.

V. 49. And mote the Philistim in his fore-head | For, though he had his belmet on his head, yet he had not pulled down his beaver over his face and fore-head , because he would more cleerly fee his way before him, intending to do it time enough, when they came neer together; although it is not like, that the proud daring Philishim cared much for the covering of his face, when he faw David, whom he fo much contemned, come against him unarmed, and his face bare. Or, it may be, that he had only an helmer, and no beaver, feeing they were to fight their duel on foot.

that the ftone funk into bis fore-bead 1 That is . Pierced deep into it, as a ftone speedily finketh into the waters. Where Gods fingular providence is most observable, in directing the stone to the only killing place. For though David, and many other of the liraelites, excelled in the art of flinging flones, and coming very neer the hitting of a fixed mark, as appeareth, Judg. 20, 16. Yet feeing the fore head of the Philipm was in continual motion, it was not likely to be hit eyen at the first c.ft, without the special guidance of Gods al-ruling providence.

V. 50. So David prevailed over the Philistim with a sling and a flone ] God ufing fuch contemptible means, the more to manifelt his own power and glory, 2 Cor. 12. 9.

V. St. David ran and flood upon the Philiftim, and took bie RRR + port weapon, which he had prepared for the destruction of David and Gods people, for his own raine; like Haman, who was hung on his own gallows, which he intended for Mordecai. hung on his own galoows, when he interiod in violectaria, wherein, David fighting and prevailing against Collais, was a fingular type of Chirth, fighting against Satun, fins, the world, and death, and vanquishing them with their own weapons; for his darth, he dairly relative that the power of darth, this, the death, Heb. 2. 14. Swallowed up death in vistory, and w, no arms, reco. 2. 14. Swattown up cream in vectory, and cook away fin, which is the firing of cleanly, and the fterageth of fin, which is the law; cancelling this band-writing of ordi-nances, and onlying it to his crofte; and finally, by his burial, broke open the prilom of the grave, and so fet all his Elect ar liberty, 1 Cor. 15. 54.55. Col. 2.14.15.

And when the Philiftims [aw their Champion dead, they fled] Nor that they had any true cause of steeing for the loss of one man, having luch a itrong and numerous army; but because they having placed all their confidence in him, God juftly struck them with terror and amazement, when they faw their idol, in whom they trufted, taken away

V. 52. And the wounded of the Philistims fell down by the way to Shaarim ] A Town in the Confines of Judah, Josh. chap.

V. 53. And they spoyled their tents] Like wife Souldiers, not plundering before they had obtained a full victory. And fo se feems, that Goliahs armone and fword came to Davids fliare, who had best deserved it.

V. 54. And David took the bead of the Philiftim, and brought it to ferufalem) Namely, after that he had firft brought it before Saul, in his hand, v. 37. he carried it as a crophie of his victory unto Jerusalem, which was before conquered, and now possessed by the tribe of Judah and Benjamin; though the strong Fort of Sion was ftill in the bands of the Jebufites, till the beginning of Davids reign, 2 Sam. 6. Whither the Ifraclites and men of Judah going in triumph, after this famous victory, and David accompanying them, he carried this head with him, and (as it is probable) for it upon some high turrer, to the terror of the Jebusites, and the comfort and encouragement of Gods people, exciting them hereby to praise God, for giving unto them this glorious victory.

But be out bis armor in bis tent Which (as some think) is fuoken by way of anticipation, namely, in after times, when he was king, he made this tent instead of the Tabernacle, and therein placed the Ark; and also amongst other things, the armour and sword of Goliah, i Chr. 15. 1. Or, as others conceive, hereby is meant his own private tent, in which he might referve Goliahs arms for a time; though afterwards, they were kept in the Tabernacle at Nob , in the custody of they were kept in the favernacie at 1400, in the cuttody of Abimelech the high Prieft, ch. 21. 9, that being fometimes presented to the view of the people, they might be put in mind of that great victory, and be moved thereby to praise the Lord, who had given it. V. 55. Abner, whose son is this youth ? And Abner faid , as thy foul, O King, liveth, I cannot tell ] From whence, fome very probably gather, that this battle was fought before David lived in Sauls Court, ch. 16. 21. otherwife, Saul muft needs have known David, seeing he greatly loved him, and had him daily in his fight; or, though Saul, by reason of his melancholick and frantick firs, might bave forgotten him ; yet it was only whileft the fit was upon him, and not when it was over, as it feemeth they were now in the time of his wars, and at this present, when he talked with David; or, though his memory had failed, yet Abners could not, who was a great Courtier, and much resident in the time of Davids waiting; seeing there were no wars (which we read of) that should cause his absence, were no wars (wonte we rear or) that mount came as a being General of the Army; or, though he might excuse himself by his absence and imployment, (as we see he dots not) yet there were Courtiers enough besides, that might have refolved the question, though Abner could not, feeing he was appointed by Saul to make enquiry, v. 56. and yet it feemeth, that neither the other Courtiers could inform them of him , feeing, when all these failed, he asked David himself whose son he was. And here hence (though divers other reafons might be alleadged) they conclude, that there is a transposition in the story, that being set down before, ch. 16. which followed after. And whereas this is the main cause which maketh godly Expositors to reject this opinion, because it is dangerous to admit of fuch transpositions in the Scriptures : To this it is answered, that they are to be found in divers other places, as in the fifth of Genesis, where, for the continuance of the Genealogies, the birth of Noah is recorded divers hundred yeers before he was born; and the last chapters of the book of Judges, in which, the things related, were done in the time of the first Judges, long before the dayes of Sampson, to the end, that the flory might not be interrupted, but be orderly continued in one Judges time after another. And fo in the book of Jeremiahs prophecies, we have some passages of

- and cut off ble bead therewith And fo used his own / things done in the time of Zedekiah, who came after him, as appeareth, by comparing chapter 36. with the other chapters that go before it. Notwithflanding almost all Expositors are against this opinion, and endeavor to answer the objections that seem to make for it. For though David had formerly lived in the Court, and had neer imployment about the King; in which he fo much pleased him, that he greatly loved him; yet in which he to much preased min, that he greatly loved him; yet this was fink a love of a Kim, to a fubject of mean quality, as might from he forgotten, when he had no further ule of him; and though he had formerly known him, yet now, after fome diffance of time, he could not fo well remember his face and fayour, because, being dismissed by Saul, and sent home to comfort his father, he had been a good while abfent from the Court before this battle, and a little time might make a great change in growing youth, especially there being also a change in his habite, he having divested himself of his Court apparel, and coming to the battle in his fhepheards weeds; though (I confe(s) the time in which this change in him was wrought, could not be long, if he were diffinitifed by Saul, and fear home (as they fay) to comfort his father in his brethrens absence in this war: unto which they add, that Saul being distracted and diffempered with melancholy and frantick fits, might cafily forget him, though be had formerly known and greatly loved him. And as for Abner, be had taken no great notice of him, because, being General of the army, he was much absent from the Court, and wholly taken up in martial imployments. Others conceive upon the former reasons, that Saul might know him in his person, and yet enquire after his condition and parentage, his family, and tribe, having promifed to give him his daughter as the reward of his victory. But of this it is fearce probable, that Saul could be ignorant, if he were thus made known unto bim, when first be entertained him, ch. 16. 18,19. And thus having fet down the feveral opinions of Expeditors, and the grounds of them, I leave the Reader to his own chovce.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verl. 1. He foul of Fonathan was knit with the foul of David i. e. In a neer and firm bond of love and friendthip; the which was caused by those excellent and eminent gifts and graces which he observed in him, as his wildom, courage, and fortitude; his faith and confidence in God, his zeal for Gods glory, and the good of his people; the which gifts and good parts, God having wrought in Jonathan alfo; from this luitableneffe of their qualities and dispositions, did arife a firm and extraordinary love towards him, and a firm friendthip between them, which is usually grounded on the fimilitude of natures, conditions, and manners. Again, Jonathan thus dearly loved him, because he perceived that he was highly in Gods tavour, feeing, by bis affiftance, he had obtained fuch a glorious victory over fuch a mighty and fo malicious a gyant, as had lately breathed out mischief and ruine to all Gods people; from which they were now delivered by his means and valour, when the case seemed desperate, not any one man daring to fight in this cause and quarrel. Unto which we may add that which is also implyed in the text, though not plainly and fully expressed; namely, that he standing by, and hearing Davids speeches to his father, observed therein much piety, grace, and goodnesse, in his felf-denyal, and giving God the whole glory of the victory. But above all these, this love and friendship is to be afcribed unto God, as the chief Author of it, who having the hearts of all in his hands, to incline them which way he pleafeth, wrought this extrarodinary love in Jonathan towards David, that he might have alwayes a fure, able, and faithfull friend at hand, to affift and comfort him in all those great troubles and tentations, wherewith God was pleafed afterwards to try and exercise his faith, hope, and patience.

V. 2. And Saul took him that day, and would let him go so V. 2. And Soul took him that day, and would let bree go be more to big fabre buile? To wir, as he formerly had done, th. 17.15, going and returning from Saul to teed his fathers, here bounded and retained him full in his court, after he had full feet too Jeffe his father, defining that it might fland with his liking, as it is to. 16.3. For whereas the most Experious hold, that David was (after he was entertained to be Sauls Mufician and armour- bearer) dismissed and fent home to his lather by Saul, before this battle with the Philiftims, and combate with Goliah, there is no mention made of it. And therefore some learned Expositors think, that there is a transposition in the story, and that in these words there is a regreffion to that history which is intermitted, ch. 16. 22. And whereas it is here faid, that Saul would let him go no more to his fathers houle; hereby is meant, (as they conceive) that he would not let him go to and fro between the Court and his fathers house, as he is said to have done, chapter 17. ver.

V. 3. Then Jonathan and David made a covenant] i.e. after things done in the reign of Jehoiakim, interred, after divers that Saul had taken him to abide in the court, which was Chap. xviii. ( as forme conceive) when Saul first enterrained him to play on Kings admis of no partners in their glary. And yet it may well his harp before him, when he was in his fits of diffemper and be thought, that Davids transcending praises, did not fo much diffraction. Journton and David observing the prery and good | vex and displease him simply, because he was preserved before parts that were in one another, and dearly loving them, entred him in valour and fartitude, as because this wrought him into a next leaves of love, and contracted a firm covenant one the hearts and high effects of the people, and so made way for into zecer league of love, and contracted a firm covenant one with another, that they would joyn together in feeting Gods glory, the advancement of rengion, the good and welfare of | his graces and good parts, and the properous fuccels which he, he Common-wealth, and continue for ever faithful friendfhip through Gods bleffing, had in all his enterprizes; he now bebetween them, which frould not be limited to their own perfors only, but extend also to their posterity.

V. 4. And Jonathan Stripe himself of the robe that was upon bim. and gave to David) i. c. Not only his courtly ornaments, but heart, ch. 13.14. and 15.28. And this the last words in the alfo his arms and military garments, even to his fword , bow , and girdle, because, in making contracts, they used outward dom? figus and fymboles, as pledges and pawns of their inward love and affections. And though he might have ftill referved thefe things to himself, and procured the like for David; yet he chose to observe unto what end they tended, but also did behold and rather to divert himfelf, and to adorn him with these ornaments, peculiar to his own perion, to initinate that neer com-munion of perions and goods which was between them, and tenance, Gen. 4-5,6. But being a diffembling hypocrite, and that whatfoever he had should be at his fervice.

pleased to imploy him (having had former experience of his they broke out in his raging fits; howsoever he did not flick valour in his combate with Goliab) in any other expedition afterwards, to profess them openly, when as they to swelled in against his enemics, he cheerfully undertook it, and carried his brest, that he could no longer conceal them. himfelf to wifely and valiantly in the managing of it, that he V. 10. the cold first from God came upon Saul, and fill prospered in all his wayes, for which he was accepted of beprophesed in the midst of the bouse | Nor as he had done before, Saul and all the people.

did not (as some think) make him General of his Army, seeing that was the place of Abner his neer kinfman , which he now held, and long after retained, even after Sauls death.

V. 6. And it came to pals, as they came ] That is, in process of fervice of the King and State against their enemies, this fell out which followeth.

when David was returned from the [laughter of the Philistims] Thas is, of Goliah the Philiftimat first, (as some understand it) and afterwards the army in general. Others take the word (Philifim) indefinitely, the fingular number being put for the plural, as it is usual in the Scriptures, and in our common Specch, Gen. 13.7. And thus understand it, that when Saul, David, and the rest of the army, after divers warlike exploits, came from some other fight, wherein they had obtained some great victory over the Philiftims; the women came out of all phefies of the heathen oracles, and the Sybils. the cities of Ifrael, finging and dancing, &c. The which pra-Etife was of ancient ufe in their triumphs, after fome famous and moderate bis raging passions, as at other times. See ch. victory, as we fee, Exod. 14, and of Jephthabs daughter,

Judg. 11. 34.
V. 7. And the women answered one another] That is, singing interchangeably by turns, fongs of triumph unto their inffruments. For as they are deep fharers with men in the miferies of war, when their enemies are victorious; so have they as great interest in joy and triumph, when their enemies being that sought his cure; wherein David was a true type of Christ, vanquished, they were freed from their fears. The which expreflions of joy, by finging longs of praise unto God, for temporal deliverances from worldly enemies, were shadows and types of the joy and rejoycing in God of Gods Saints and fervante, for their spiritual deliverances out of the power of the enemies of their falvation, by Jesus Christ, our onely Lord and Redemer, Luk. 1. 46. and Luk. 2. 13. Revel. 5. 9. and

7: 9, 10, 12. Saul bath flain his thousands, and David bis ten thousands] A if they had faid. Sauls valour deferveth much praife, but Da- prefervation being a fairer mark, and neerer band; though he vids ten times more, feeing by his means the whole Army of the Philiftims was routed and defeated; which was of mere moment, then if he had flain ten thousand with his cwn hand. Others understand these words indefinitely, of all those flaughters, which Saul and David had made among the Philiftims, both in and fince that first battel, especially of some great victory which they had now lately obtained. The which triumph, and song of victory were so solemnly acted that they became famous, even in the Philisms country, chap. 21. 9

V. S. And Saul was very wroth, and the faying displeased him] Heb, was evil in his eyes. Where he showed his arrogance and ambition, in affecting that praise which he had not deferved and envied it unto another, unto whom it was due by just merit. For Saul had not merited that praife which the women gave him; feeing when he heard the God of Ifrael blafohemed by the Gyant, and his Army diffied and reproached through fear and cowardize, kept bimfelf in his camp and place of advantage, and durit not, by fighting, vindicate Gods glory and the honour of his people; though he were challenged his depoints and Davids reigning ; freing now, in respect of gan to look uposchim, as that man spoken of wate him by Samuel, who was better then he, and cholen by God, after his rejection, to be King in his room, as being a man after his own verse do plandy imply; And what can be have more but the King-

V. g. And Sauleyed Davil from that day and forward I That is, not onely carefully and curtoully pried into all his actions, intending to do him feeret mischief, there is do doubt but that V, 5, And David worston whitehopferor. Sun fant him, and beginded over, and disjuiced his inward malice and eavy, with behaved him/elf wise). Or, prospered, i.e. When Saul was outward complements and shewe of love; though sometimes when Samuel had anoyated him King; for then, being infpi-And Saul fer him over the men of mar] i.e. Advanced him from red with Gods Spirit, and endued with common graces, he pro-And Saules was over memors of mary i.e. currence uses non-being any longer bis armour-bearer, to be a Captain and phefied, and praifed God, together with the reft of the Pro-Spirit being departed from him, and the evil spirit, Sathan, being fent of God, and possessing him, he falleth into devillish extaffes and raptures, and carried himfelf, in his uncomposed motions and actions, in an extraordinary manner, feemingly, time, when David was thus advanced and imployed in the like the true Prophets in their visions, and was as a man ravished and beside himself, either uttering strange languages which he had pever learned before, or broken, imperfect and broken fentences, dark speeches, and mystical riddles, like the beathen Oracles. Or it may be, being prompted by the devil, he did fore-tell things to come, though in an ambiguous and doubtfull fence, feeing Saran himfelf bath no perfect and cleer knowlede of future contingents, unless they be revealed unto him by God, but only some probable guesse out of natural causes. And thus Balaam prophefied; and Baals Priefts, I King. 18.29. and the Divining maid, Act. 16. 16. And fuch were the proand David played with his hand] i. e. To quiet Sauls fpirit;

and there was a javelin in Sauls hand | The which, as a tyrant. (who is still in fear) he usually had in his hand, or neer about him, Chap. 20 31. & 21.6. & 26 7.

V. 11. And Saul caft the javelin To wit, at David, whileft he playd before him to give him eafe, defiring to kill him who when he fought the falvation of the Jews, they fought his ruine and destruction, Luk 4 18, 29. Joh. 8.59.
For he said, I will (mite David to the wall) i. e. He thought, and refolved in his minde. So v. 17. 21.

and David aveyded out of his prefence twice] i.e. At two feveral times, when he intended to do him this milehief. And thus the fame good providence of God that guided the flone which David did fling unto Goliahs fore-head, for his ruine, diverted the point of Sauls javelin from piercing his body, for Davids himfelf ferved Gods providence in declining his stroke.

V. 12. And Saul was afraid of David \ i.e. Observing that God prospered him in all his enterprises, and watched over him with his providence, preferving him from imminent danger, he feared that he was the man whom God had chosen to be King in his room; and therefore miscarrying and failing in these violent courses and attempts against him, he now resolveds to try other wayes, and to supplant him by secret and subtile fraud, feeing he could not do it by open force and violence. vith his own hands.

V. 13. Therefore Saul removed him from him] As thinking that he was not lyable to much danger, living in the Court with those that much honoured him for his worth and famous and made him his Captain over a thousand ] i.e. A chief Commander and Colonel in his Army. Neither do I think ( 25 fome conceive) that Saul did disparage him by this remove, but rather pretended to honour and advance him ; neither would it have flood with Sauls policy, by the wing his difpleafure, to giy : David any discontent, when as he intended to encourage him and provoked fourty dayes together, and twice every day. But to the undertaking of dangerous fervices, hoping that at one

Chax six:

venterous. So v. 17,25.
V. 14. And David behaved himself wifely ] See vers. 5

But all Ifrael and Judah loved David, because be went out and in before them.] That is, because, as a chief Colonel and Commander, heled them out in their expeditions against their enemies, and acted all his martial affaires with fuch prudence and valour, that he ftill profpered in them ; therefore Saul durft no more attempt to kill him with his own hand, because he was no more actempt to kin aim with also with name, occasion has a fogenerally beloved among all the people, that they would have been ready to mutiny and thake off his government; but chufeth rather to lay a plot to supplant him, by the hands of the

V. 17. Behold my eldeft daughter Merab; her will I give thee to wife] He had bound himself before in the general, that who-foever killed Goliah, should for his reward have his daughter never Kilica Soliaa, inould for its reward nave his caughter in marriage; but David having performed the condition, he forgetteth this promife, and falleth upon a new covenant, and offereth David his daughter, under pretence of love; with a treacherous intent to work his ruine; and because he durst not kill him himself, being the reoples chief favourite, for fear of a mutiny or rebellion, he engageth him by marriage to undertake dangerous exploits, that he might fall by the hands of only be thou valiant for me, and fight the Lords battles ] That is which are undertaken to maintain Gods glory against idols and idolaters, and to protect his people against their enemies. And thus he hypocritically pretendeth his zeal fer Gods glory, when as he maliciously intended Davids ruine.

V. 18. And David faid unto Saul, Who am I? ] As if he had faid, How far unworthy am I of fuch an high honour and advancement, as to marry the daughter of the King , being to mean a perlon? David, though but mean in birth and education, bad enobled bimfelf by that glorious victory over Goliah, whereby he was looked upon as a Saviour of the Kingdom and people; and Saul had indefinitely promifed, that he would dignifie that person who should vanguish the Giant, with this reyal marriage; and yet David, out of great modeliy and humility, was fo far off from challenging this honour, as his due, that he rather declineth it when it was offered him.

and what it my life? That is, bow mean is my flate and condition of life, in respect of my education, being taken from the sheep-coat from following the sheep, 2 Sam. 7. 8. Pfalm. 78.70. And thus David, in humility, abafeth himfelf, though he well knew, that God had advanced him to the highest dignity, and had ancynted him to be king over Ifrael.

or my Fathers family in Ifrael ] That is, my parentage also, is fo low and mean, that though there were no other cause, yet this alone, that I come of fo poor a parentage, were fufficient to reader me unmeet to be fon in law to a King.

V. 19. And it came topafe,that at the time when Merab. Sauls daughter, should have been given to David ] That is, after he had approved his valour in fighting the Lords battels, and contrary to Sauls expectation, run through, and escaped many difficulties and dangers; Szul, perfilicusly, broke his promise with David, and married his daughter to another man.

[he was given to Alriel the Meholathite to wife] Who was the fon of Barzillai the Ephramite, and was born at Mehola, called Abel-mehola, Judg 7. 22. whereof he is called, a Meholathite, 2 Sam. 21.8. Which perfidious injustice in thus marry ng his daughter, God feverely punished long after, by cutting off their posterity, all Adriels five sons being hanged, to faissie the Gibconites, in revenging those cruelties which Saul had excrifed upon them. Where by the way, we may observe, that though David (with much meeknefs, submitting himself to Gods will) did, with great patience, bear this indignity and Gods will) too, with giral patienter, but in indigation, foul affront offered by Saul, (who it may be did purpotely give him this doge and difgrace, to intenfe and provoke him took formething by way of revenge, or, at leaft, speak some discontered speeches, unbeleeming a subject, which might bring him under censure, and give Saul some colour to cut him off) yet God, to whom vengeance belongeth, would not fuffer Sauls fin to go unpunished.

V. 20. And Michal, Sauls daughter, loved David; and they told Saul, and the thing pleafed him | Not because David was beloved, (for Jonathans love to him did highly displease him) but because, he hoped to gain some opportunity by this match, to supplant David, either by causin g him to run desperate adreceives the procuring it; on, by intring her, being his good good by the first fair, being his good deady and eagerly about this depenate fervice it is fair, that when he failed of his fonce, by reading of Michals love, he was in greater fear then he had formerly been, verf.

[nare to him] i.e. He thought and resolved with himself to time prefixed, Saul having no colcur of excuse to put it off, bestow her upon him in marriage, that one way or other the gave unto him Michal in marriage.

time or other, going out against his eaemies, in military expe-ditions, he would be slain by them, seeing he was valourous and seeketh to pervert Gods institution and end of marriage, which was, that the wife should be a comfort and helper to her huiband; whereas Saul intendeth, by giving his daughter, to bring David to death and destruction. But it pleased God to crofs his design, making Michal a means of his prefervation, and to deliver him out of a snare, which he maliciously and mis-

and to deriver min one or a management he management and indicated of the philiftims may be againft bim.] To wis, when to compais this match, he went out to fight againft then. And berein also God croffed his defign, and caused the fame mischief which he intended against David, to fall upon isme mitcher which the mitchest against a party of this own pare, Plalm. 7. 16. caufing him atterwards to perith by the means of the Philiftims, ch. 31.

thou flast this day be my lon in law is one of the twais ] i. e.
This day, I will give thee full afforance, that thou fhalt become my fon in law, (namely, upon a condition now concealed, but afterwards expressed) by one means or other; and howsoever, upon some weighty causes, I did not perform my promise in giving unto thee Merab in Marriage, yet I will now do it in her other fifter, whereby I shall do thee no wrong, but rather he better then my word, in referving her for thee, who (as I hear) doth dearly love thee. And thus Saul Shuffles over the bufinels, and fets a fair gloss en a foul matter.

V. 22. And Saul commanded his fervants, saying, Commune with David secretly. That is, as speaking of your selves, out of your meer love and respect towards him and not by my motion, as fent by me. The which, perhaps, he did, because he thought that David would rather believe them then himfelf. who had formerly deceived him; and especially when they had notice of Sauls minde, by his speeches with him, which had paffed in fecret between them, without any intention that they should tell David.

Bebold , the King hath a delight in thee] i. c. Doth highly frem thee, and is lo well pleafed with thy person and parts, that he much defireth to make thee neerer unto him, and one of his own family, by contracting affinity with thee; and thou half no back friends, who envying thy high preferment, would kinder this match, feeing all the Courtiers are fo taken with thy worth; that they dearly love thee, and think no advance-ment too high for thee. And therefore do not lofe time, by making any demurrs, but accept of a fair offer when it is tendred unto thee.

V. 23. And David said, seemeth it a light thing to be the kings son in law] As if he had said, do you think it so small a mater, that there needs no deliberation, feeing there is such an apparent disparagement in the match, she being so high, and I so mean; she a kings daughter, who may have daily the greatest offers of Nobility and wealth; and I a poor man, that am not able to give her any befitting dowrie. And in this regard, am of no great efteem, feeing men ufually are valued rather by their wealth, than by their worth.

V. 15. The King defireth a t any dowrie] For in those dayes, and long before, it was the custome to give dowries to their wives, and not, as now, to receive portions, Gen. 34. 12. Exed. 22. 16. Deut. 22. 29 which dowrie was at her difpofing; and if her husband dyed before her, ferved for her maintenance, and the education of the children, if no other portions were left them.

but au hundred fore skins of the Philistims ] To wir, in lieu of a dowrie, heping that he would be flain in procuring them.

to be avenged of the Kings exemics ] This he hypocritically and deceitfully pretendeth, whereas in truth, his main defign was, that the Philistims should revenge themselves on him for this great despite, it he haply did atchieve it. For why else did he require their fore-skins, rather then their hands, or heads; but because hereby he would exasperate their spirits againft him , for imposing upon them this scorn and disgrace, in circumcifing them being dead, who above all things abhorred it, when they were alive; and fo cause them being filled with malice and rage to bend and imploy their whole firength, in reveng-ing themselves upon David, who had thus dishoneured their whole nation. Where by the way, and many other passages in the story, it may feem, that Saul was not so slupid and sence-less, when he was out of his frantick fits, but that he could know a man, after fome fmall discontinuance, with whom he had formerly had familiar acquaintance, ch. 17. 55,58.

V. 26. And the dayes were not expired Namely, a certain number of dayes appointed by Saul, for the bringing in of the fore-skins, which in all likelihood, were not many, that fo,

V. 27. And flew of the Philissims, two hundred men, and brought their fore thins, &c. ] And so presenting them unto V. 21. And Saul faid, I will give bim her, that fhe may be a Saul in a double number, and within the composite of the V. 33. Said firm and beam that the nation was the David stag.

V. 3. Said firm and beam that the nation was the David stag.

That is, feeing and finding by continual expresses, that God profered him and things, to both in him the other, and the lose cough to forewarm him oblindances and to leave him to him and the office wile, to was the more afraid of him, that he was the image whom God had choice, to elibblish in the Kingdone, at means to, feeing the lose that the configuracy of the country to his forewhile pand place until the morning, and then the would mediate with configuracy, opposed Gods Will, and performed David with further his behalf, and performed, him all he could, to defit continues open and tury, even until his death, to prevent (if it from his bloody intention, all makes and tury, even until his death, to prevent (if it from his bloody intention, and hidothy [df]. To wit, in fume cave of that field where his Kingdome and life by the rebellion of Ablaion, meekly fub-

by, to raile a new war against the Hracites, partly, to revenge themselves upon them, for their former defeats, but especially (as some think) being incensed and enraged with this disho-nor and reproach, which David by his last side, had pur upon

David behaved himfelf more wifely] See v. s. and the note upon it.

CHAP. XIX.

Verl. 1. And Saul fishe to Fourthan bit fon , and to all bis ed upon him ever fince he heard the womens longs in his praifes, with an evill, envious, and malicious eye, as fearing that he was the man whom God had cholen to be king in his room; That is, he expoled his life to much danger, in the undertaking and studying by all means to prevent it, he thinks none more a fine combate, with a mighty and monstrous gyant, from effectual, then to take away his life. And therefore, he at- whom all others did fice at the fift sight. And so his obtasic is effectual title to take away his site. And the temperate to do it, by marcheting him with his own hands, used, h. 28. 21. Judg when he was in his framisk fits, thinking that this bloody fact and the nort upon it would by the people be afferibed tather to his madnesse, then to ans unessex, occasine the did not know what he did, and fotheir that and difference and difference and difference when the project finited, (God watching and preferring David by his forcial providence) then the contracts this death be fread and terminal the contracts the death be fread and terminal the contracts the death be fread and terminal. he contriveth his death by fraud and treachery, masked under the vizard of piery, zeal for Gods glory, love of the Common-wealth, yez, even of Davids perion, whom he would feen to obtain the period of the taw base netmer one women nuccess, and onat Davin propercy in all his dangerous underskings, and so more and more gained reputation and love among his servants, and all the people; a the could now no longer continue his hidden malice and madassife, but burling our into open and professed emmity and fury, he giveth command to his fon and fervants to made him to become more desperate, and to break our into kill David, alledging no reasion or cause, of his cruel and barbarous deliga, but his tyrannous will.

V. 2. But Fonathan, Sauls fon, delighted in David, and Jona-shantold David As if he had faid, Though Jonathan were Sauls fon, and by fueceffion, their to the Crown, yet he would not conceal his fathers defign, but revealed it to David, that he might use all good means to prevent it; For which he is not to be blamzd, as a man that betrayed his fathers secrets, but highly to be commended, seeing he chose rather to obey God then man; for he knew, that God had forbidden murther, under the penalty of his curfe and death; and that if any man concealed at, he made himfelf guilty of the fact ; that David was not onely an innecent, but also one that excelled in all grace and goodness; that he was a man of beroical vertues and parts, the which he had imployed and excercifed, for the advancement of Gods glory and good and falvation of his people. with David in Gods prefence, whereby they had mutually bound themselves, one to another, to feek, by all means, the penticuration, welfare and prosperity, of nex analy either parry, as be fate in his boule with bis j medicards that in polarity discretion. Henally, he confidence that of the polarity discretion and bloody delign to David, on (cl., 18.11, 8, 20, 33, 8, 20.6). preventit; that he tid not onely approve his duty and faith-tunels to God, dee Common wealth, and his dear friend, but even to his father himfelf, and keeping him, by this means, from plunging himfelf into a gulf of milery, to his prefeat and eternal perdition, by imbruing his hands in insuccest blood. In all which respects, his faithfulness to God and man, is highly to be commended , and contrativite, all other Saula fervants and Courtiers, are worthly to be branded with perpetual igmonitory and reproach; which though, when David was in favour with the King, they fawned upon him, and peccended much drove, ck. 188, 4, 22, yet now, what he was in his displeasure, there was not one of shem to the found, that would speak a word inhisbehaliger differede Sani frem his bloody delign,or, refule to be his inftruments and agents en fo winked an act ; or, slo

Davids practice, who, when he was in danger to lofe both his father uled to walk for his recreation, to take the air, as an-Eingelance and life by the rebellion of Abdalom, meekly, fub-institute intaileft to Gods good pleafure, 2. Sam. chop. 15, ver. 37, 26.

Then the Primers of the Belliffins went forth] Name-underland, the reliffer the mode agreement which he frould different underland, the relifferent which he frould different underland, the relifferent which he frould different and difcern, which David could not hear.

V. 4. And Fonathan [pake good of David unto Saul] Though it might have endangered his life to forak unto him in Davids behalf,in his mad mood, as afterwards it appeared, ch. 20, 32, 7. yet the unnoft perit could not make him to defert his friend in bis righteous caufe.

let not the King fin against his fervant ] i.e. Do not feek to take away his life who is inspecent, and hath done thee no wrong, especially flanding in the relation of a servant, who ought to be secured by his masters protection; and above all. David, who is both thy fervant and thy fon, who by his worth in himself, and his actions towards thee and the whole flate. hath highly merited thy love and favour.

V. J. For be put his life in his band, and flew the Philiftim] whom all others did flee at the first fight. And so this phrase is ufed, ch. 28.21. Judg. 9.17. Pfal. 119. 109. See Judg. 12. 3.

and the Lord wrought a great falvation for all Ifrael ] And as his intrument to work lawasing for an us people.

thou famelf, it, and didft rejoyed i.e. Thou neededt not, for the convincing thee of this cupb, to hear of it by my relation, feeing thy felf was an eye-witnesse of it, and didft greatly rejoyce in this victory. And therefore, what groffe ingratitude, and even belifft implety were it, to murther him who hath fo highly merited both of thee and the whole Kingdom of Ifraels And thus Jonathan having gotten the opportunity of speaking unto his father alone, doth freely admonish him, that he might keep him from finning, though he had faid nothing against Sauls bloody command, when he first heard it in the presence of the Kings forvants. The which he did forbear to do, out of good discretion; as thinking it no fit time to diffwade him. when he was in his fury and madnesse, which would but have greater violence; nor yet in the prefence of his fervants, beore whom, he would have scorned to be convinced of his sin. The which (it may be) made him to furious afterwards against Jonathan, for speaking in Davids defence, because it was done at the table, in the presence of many others, chap. 20.

32, 33. V. 6. And Saul mare, As the Lard livesh, he foil not be flaim] The which facred outh, he feeketh from after to break and violate; and by his example, proveth that to be true, that great and frequent (wearers, do often forfwear and falfifie their

OAINS.

V. 7. And he was in ble presence as in simes pass ] i. e. He was again received to do him service, and to play before him, when he was in melanchollick and frantick fice , to moderate and mitigate his furious paffions.

V. 9. And the evil Spirit from the Lord was upon Saul] That is, which was fent from God, as his executioner, to wex and torment him for his fin and rebellion. See chap 16, 14, and as be fate in his house with ble javelin in his hand ] Which he usually bad by him, (like a tyrant) being continually in fear,

V. 10. And Saul fenght to fmite David evento the wall with the javelin | Upon the occasion of Davids great victory over the Pailiffirm, Saul, inflead of hosquing and respecting him the more fur his valour and good fuccesse, don't the more envy and eage against him, as thinking that all his worth and merits, were but steps to dimbe up by into his throne, See ch. 18, 11. and the note upon it.

And fought to fruite David even to the wall ] See chap. 18, 11. and the note upon

and the note upon it.

V. 11. Saud die fast meifingers saus Davids brufe] That is, fill increasing in his rage and malice, when David, by Gods good providence, had elesped the deadly blow which Saul increaded to give thin; and had a worded his prefence, be full perfilling in his mickedaedie, fendeth after him fome of anticarant, So much, (liften reftr ander irbem fonom all thefe) as descover it to surprise and much er him achone, the next morning; of making is the made choyer for this assistance, rather than the made choyer for this assistance, rather than to hardit acted in the night, (being over-studely, of Sofs spe-rial providence herein, that David, by this delay, might have in the orange of the special providence herein, that David, by this delay, might have in the orange of the special providence herein in the special providence herein, the country of the special providence herein, the country of the special providence herein, the special providence herein of the special providence herein of the special providence herein of the special providence herein special providence in Code providence, as being unfulficient to preferre her from power and providence, as being unfulficient to preferre her from manner us the unget, when they were many to must some to power and providence, as oring unsumment opportunity fifthence; or elic, because he feared, that if he were assaulted her fathers anger and rage, unless, by ying, the provided often in the night, he might, while they were breaking open the low fatty. Where by the way, observe the nature of this said doors, make an eleape by some back door or secret passage, of lying, which, if once way be given unto it, doth increase and which he could not do; if they fuddenly fet upon him in the day-light.

And Michal, Davids wife, told him, faying, If thou fave not thy felf to night, to morrow thou shalt be flain ] The which she knew, enter by recreamengence, from some arten in County of process the mount rance agar instance of formers because by her fell, or four other, the had discovered the example, and spectro-boldly to her father, in defeace (of her hull-meffengers, whom soul had form, to wareh about the doors of bands innocency. either by lecret intelligence, from tome friend in Court, or

V. 12. So Odichal let David down through a window] Because the doors were beset with Sauls servants that watched the

V. 13. And Michal took an image ] Heb. Teraphim. Which may be) out of her love to it for the curiofity of the work-manship; or elfe, because Teraphims represented a man, this perhaps is here called by that name, though it were no other then an ordinary flatue, or mans image.

and list it in the bed] Intending by this device to delude the watch-men, if haply they should, by violence, break into the house to surprize David, by making them believe, that he lay fick in his bed, and therefore, in all humanity, was not to be diffurbed, if their committion were not over firict and rigorous ; Or, if fo, yet at least, David might gain some time, before it were d scovered to make his escape, whilest the matter was in examining, and he gotten out of their reach, though they fhould purfue bim.

and put a pillow of goats hair for a belfter) As if it had been Davids hair, hereby deluding Sauls men with hope of taking him at their leafure, though they did not do it prefently, being intreated, by her, first, to know Sauls pleasure. Or, it may be, that it was a pillow, only stuffed with goats hair, such as they then used to lay under their heads, as being fit for this service, both in respect of ease and warmth.

both in respect of ease and warmen.

V. 14. And when Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, be is sick.] That is, when the messengers, whom Saul sent to watch Davids house, had waited till morning and saw that he came not out of doors, as they expected, they went back and told it unto Saul; and thereupon he fent others, or, the fame again, with a new commission to enter his house, and take him. But Michal, (thinking it a reasonable excuse to keep them from too cager preffing upon him, being in a fick condi-tion) that the might gain time for Davids escape, telleth them an officious lye, that her busband was fick.

V. 15. And Saul fent the meffengers again to fee David] Tha v. 15. and saufern we migreger again we fet David I that is, fulpe ting that it might be but an excule, which Michal made out of love to her husband, to preferve him from danger, he returneth them back, to fee whether it were fo or no; but howfoever, whether he were fick or well, with a ffrict commifnownever, wastner ne were fick or well, with a flrick coammif-fion, to bring him, that he night flay him; being nor fairfied, as before, that they flould ill him, unlefs himfelf, for more fecurity, did fee it done.

V. 16. And when the messengers were come in To wit, with a full resolution to execute Sauls wicked command, they were frustrated of their hope, and found in the bed an image instead

V. 17. And Saul faid unto Michal, Why baft thou descived me [6] That is, being certified by his meffengers, what Michal had done, he goeth to her, or fendeth for her, challenging and reproving her for deceiving her own father; as having therein committed a foul fault, whereas the rather deferved great praife, for her love and loyalty towards her dear busband; yea even to her father himfelf, in ufing this means to withhold him from falling into a bloody and barbarous fin; and had but (as it were) taken a fword our of the hands of a mad man, wherewith he was ready to have killed a faithful friend inflead of an

And Michal answered Saul, He said unto me , Let me go, why [bould I kill thee] That is, why shoulds thou, by forcing me to stay in a place of much danger, constrain me contrary to my will, and the lowe I bear thee, to take away thy life, rather then with the fore 1 occurrence to the foreign of the fo

multiply; one lyc drawing on another, and a leffer a greater and lowder; an officious lye, one that ispernicious; as we fee in Michals example, who first told an officious lye to preferve her husband, ver. 14 and now a pernicious lye, to fave her felf; Whereas the thould rather have imitated her brothers

V. 18: So David fed and escaped, and came to Samuel, to Ramah] Namely, to aske his advice and counfel in these extream dangers, and to be comforted by him in this diffress, and to have his faith confirmed in the promise of the Kingdom, by Samuel from God made unto him, which, through these great trials ,was ready to waver, Pfalm. 116.12. cb. 27. 1. and (28 trails, was ready to maver, prain, 116.13, cn. 27, 1. and (avits likely) also for fecurity, thinking that the Prophets prefence would protech him, and over-awing Saul, would ident him from his bloody practice; and that the place, which was a School of the Prophets, would be a fanctuary unto him; feeling they had lived fafely there, though the Philliftims garrifon was neer unto it, ch. 10. 5.
V. 10. And it was told Saul, (aying, Behold, David it as Naioth in Ramah] That is, by some tiple which he had sent abroad to search for him; or, some pick-thanks, who had discovered him, and did tell it in this manner to Saul, Behold the man, after whom thou fo much enquireft, that is, David thine enemy, is at Naioth in Ramah, where was Samuels dwellinghouse; and Naioth, which was neer Ramah, and scituate in the neule; and ratorts, which was neer Kaman, and Icitiate in the field and territory belonging to it; which being (as the word fignifieth) a foliatry place, the School of the Prophets was fea-ted in it, as being fit for fludy and meditation; where was a School of Prophets neer unto it, whereof Samuel was Over-feer, Father, and Prefident.

V. to. And Saul fent meffengers to take David ] That is, being now grown bloody and worse then barbarous, he pursues David with fuch desperate boldness, that neither fanctuary, nor presence of the holy and highly esteemed Prophet, could proect him from his rage and malice.

and when they faw the company of the Prophets prophelying ]
That is, praising God with Plalms and Hymns, praying unto him, and speaking of divine matters. See chapter 10. 5. and the Spirit of God was upon the meffengers of Saul, and they also prophefied] That is, were, for the time, transported (like the Prophets) with a divine rapture and spirit of prophesic, and so Prophets) with a divine rapture and lpirit of prophetic, and to forgot their bloody bufinels, about which they were feat, which was to take David and bring him to Saul.

V. 2.1. And Saul (see suffergers against be third time, and they propheled 40]. And thus God, by his good providence, diffuring the convince Saul of his fin in purfuing David, when led of them, to convince Sain or nis mi in puriting David, wite he saw him preferred by fuch a miracle, and that in vain be perfected him whom God thus protected, or elfe, at leaft, to leave him without excufe. The like example we have in the high Priefits officers, which were fent to apprehend Christ, and bring him unto them, Joh. 7. 45, 46.

V. 22. Then went be also to Ramab] That is, when the meflengers returned not, and he knew not what was the matter; or, being returned, had related unto him, in their excuse, this or, being returned, naar retaired unto min in direct the firtungs wonder, they failing him, be thought to make fure work by going himfelf, whom, he might now thin priviledged from the good fpirit of prophere, which had infpired his medlengers, the evil fiprit from God being fent to pofferfe him. But Bert, use erusput trom voon being tent to pottene bin. But it iell out quite contrary to his especiation, for whereas his mellengers did not prophefy till they came into the company of the Prophets at Naioth, be prophefied before he came thinker, in the way as he went; thereing, by his example, That we beart of Kings; a ret in the hand of the Lard as the rivers of water, be turneth them whitherfover be will, Prov. 11. 1.

and came to a well that is in Sechu] See ch. 17. 1. V. 23. And the Spirit of God was upon bim alfo ; and be went on and prophefied ] That is, as it had befallen his meffengers, fo it did likewife himfelf, that is, he was transported with divine raptures, as in an extaste, and joyned with the reft in their Prophetical exercites.

V. 24. And be firin off the clastics also That is, he put off his upper and out fide habite, whether his military coats and habilaments, or Princely robes now making no difference; be-

Chap, xx. keep him from cold & flame, but only without his Kingly gar- | feruns Mofes, Exod: 14, 31, yet not with the fame faith, be-ments and ornaments; in which fence David is faid to have un- | lief in God, in and for himfelf, being peculiar unto him, and covered himfelf, when he danced before the ark in a linnen Ephod, having laid aside his princely robes, though Michal in feora and spite, disgraceth his humble deportment, to a more uncivil end, and Isay alo is said to have gone naked, when he had put off his shooes, & loosed the fack-cloth from his loyns, Ifa. a.o. 2. and the Propher Micah alfo, ch. t.8. And thus as one diftracted in his minde and fenfes, he lavor fell down like one in a trance, not knowing what he faid, or did, like balaam Num. a4.4. whereby, as God was glorified in his power, by the dejecti-on of Saul in his proud rage; so was Saul dishonored & difgraced, when as all that faw him in this plight, took notice how he was hampered and reffrained, maugre all his malice and fury. wherefore they fay, is Saul alfo among the Prophets \ See ch. 10.5. and the note upon it.

CHAP, XX.

Ver. i. A Md David fled from Naioth in Ramah] i.e. Whilest and president in the government whilest his sather was absent, that he might bemone himself unto him, as his dear and surficiend, and desire his counsel and assistance, and said before Jonathan, what have I done, what is mine iniqui-

y &c.] Which he speaketh not by way of enquiry, to know his tault, (for both he and Jonathan too well knew that he was wholly innocents) but by way of expollulation and complaint, as to be fimited within the bounds of things lawful, pious, and because he was thus unjustly perfecured; as if he had said, thou just; which caution is to be alwayes understood, though not knowest right well, that I have done nothing that deserveth thy fathers displeasure, though he hath fully resolved to take away

V. 2. And be faid unto bim, God forbid thou fhalt nor die To wit, that my father should feck thy life; and therefore let such an hard conceit be far from thee, And this Jonathan fpeaketh an hard conceit betar from mee. And tens Jonanan speaces proposes a may wateren is under the wind for which for confinence, out of a fails charity, which would not fulfer him to enterein to fail to an ill opinion of his fasher, David on the first day of every montes, wherein they offered peace having given him past causes and he bad (trum by Joney et al (fine, and gestulatory Jarifices, founding trumpers over the proposed of t heard of his fending meffengers to kill him at his own house, or of his pursuing him to Naioth ; or if he had any intimation of these things, yet he imputed all, not to his malice, but to his distemper in his frantick fits, which being over, he would (as he thought) be as readily reconciled unto him, as he had been in former times. And befides, having lately fo folemnly fworn that he should not dye, ch. 9.5. he could not think him to be for it mel and wicked, as presently after to violate his oath, behold, my father will do nothing great or small, but that he will flow it me]. As if he had said, this also perswadeth me, that there is no fuch matter as you suspect, because there is no secret of any importance which he doth not impart unto me; and therefore feeing he hate not fooken a word of any fuch bloody intention, be not afraid, for it is not fo.

V. 2. And David frare moreover and faid ie when he faw Jonathan fo confident in his conceit, that he gave no credit to what he had faid, he took a folemo oath, that the thing was fo, and also giveth him a reason why his father had concealed his intention from, because it would but anticipate his grief, in respect of that great love that was between them; and also having little reason to trust Saul with his life, in respect of the would cause him to use all means to hinder him from that which he was fully refolved to do.

But stuly as the Lord liveth, and as thy foul liveth ] Where is expressed the form of the oath which he used, to perswade Jonathan of the truth of that, whereof he much doubted ; for when the thing is of great importance, (as this here was, Da-vids life being highly concerned in it) and can no otherwise be proved by convincing reasons, or cleer testimonies, and the party also to whom we make our attestation, will no other-wife be moved to give credit to our word; a in such a case it is lawful and necessary, even in private dealings between man and man, to call God to witnesse, as being omniscient, and omnipotent, to defend and reward truth, and to puniffs falthood and perjury, that so all jealousies and misconceits may be removed, love and peace preferved, and an end pur unto all controversies, Heb. 6.16. Now whereas he jovneth here thefe together, As the Lord liveth, and as thy foul liveth, we are not fo to take it, as though he Iware by both; for an oath is a part of Divine worship, peculiar unto God alone, Deut. 6. 13. and we are expressly forbidden to swear by any creature, Math. 5. 34.35,36. for God will not give his glory to another, Ifa. 42. 8. that is, the glory of his omnipotence and omniscience, Neither doth it follow, that the latter of thefe is an oath, as fidelity and credence only belonging to man, & t Chr. 29.20-That they bowed their heads, and worshipped the Lerd, and the King, but not with the same worship, Divine worship being proper unto God, Math. 4 to, and civil worthip belonging to the King. And therefore we are not to take these words, as thy foul liveth, for an oath , but as an earnest affeveration: either thus, as furely as I defire that thy foul may live; to fure this is which I speak unto thee; or thus, it is as certain that this thing is true, as it is certain that thou liveft, or the fire burneth, or the Sun fhincth. And this kinde of Affeveration, Hannah uf:th, ch. 1. 26; and Abner, ch. 17. 55. and Uriah, 2 Sam. 11.11. and the woman of Tekon, 2 Sam. 14.19. yea the Lord himself, Jer. 31.3 .

There is but one step between me and death] i. ê. I am in extream and imminent danger of death; like a man that is upon the brink of a gulf, and within one flep of falling in. Where David cannor be acquitted of humane trailty and infirmity, in fo deep apprehension of danger, and of fear in falling into it; feeing his diffidence appeareth in this paffionate expression, and whole day and injuranteed tim no properciate axian = 1 ering in sommence appeared in one spationare experience and building and whole day and injury united tim not, so pprehend or kill birm, all paid maketh use of this opportunity, which God by his provision and hashing a fur point or despeaks tim try, by fright from Nacich, in the sharing a future promise from God, who had caused based and besides on Globah of Saul, where Jonathan was refident, to anonyth birm hing, that he would clibblish him in the King-and prefident in the government while this latter was aboten; Jonathan was formed for the control of the cont these fears. Howsoever in this combate with doubting, faith ftill prevailed, and got the upper band, as appeareth in many paffages in the book of Pfalms.

V. 4. what forver thy foul de reth, I will even do it for the Or. (ay what is thy minde, and I will do it. Which indefinite promife bere expressed, because he well knew that David was so pious and just, that he would defire nothing of him, but that which he knew to be lawful and honest.

V. c. Behold to morrow is the new moon | Where David doubting, or rather despairing of Sauls good affection cowards him, proposeth a way whereby it might be discovered. The Israelites by Gods appointment, in the ceremonial law, had a solemn feast their offerings, Num, 10.10. & 28. 11. Pial. 81.3. and on the remainder of these facrifices and oblations, they feasted together. The which feast was to be kept holy as a memorial before the Lord; & though it were not required, that they should whally abstain from all bodily labour, faving on the first day of the feventh moneth, which was to be kept as a Sabbath, and no fervile work to be done therein, Levit. 23. 24, 25. yet some legal preparations and purifications were to go before, as appearcth, v. 36. This feaft was to be kept at Sauls court the next day, in a folemn manner, his chief nobles accompanying him at the table, and every one having his known feat, which was Copeculiar to him, that (as it feemeth v. 25.) if he were ab-feat, no other fate in his place. Among the reft, David had his, being a great Commander in the army, and the Kings fon in law, of which he here speaketh.

Let me go, that I may hide my felf in the fields unte the third day at even ] 1. 6. Give me leave to go, that I may keep the feaft o the new moon with my kindred at Bethlebem, and on the third day I will come and hide my felf in the field, v.6,19,35. David late experience that he had of his rage and malice, defireth, before he made any appearance at the Court, to make fometryall of his disposition towards him, for Jonathans better fatisfaction, by feeing how he would take his ablence. And to this end. he craveth leave of Jonathan, who was his fathers Lievtenant, whileft he was abroad, (as now at Naioth) that he might hide himfelf three dayes. For though the feaft it felf lafted one day only, yet there being provisions in ample and plentiful manner provided, and especially at the Kings Court, they were allowed to eat what remained, on the next day, if the facrifice which was offered, were a vow, or a voluntary offering, Levit. 7. 16. of which kinde, it feemeth, this facrifice and feast was, v. 27. and required on the third day to burn all that was left. But because he knew not what conveniency Jonathan might have on either of thefe dayes to acquaint bim with what had paffed, he defireth a third day for his non-appearance, for better furety and fecurity.

V. 6. If thy father at all miffe me, then fay, David earnestly ssked leave of me] i.e. If observing who are present at the feast, he take notice of my absence, (my place being empty) and speak of it as one that expected my company, then make this excuse unto him. But how could Saul reasonably expect his justice and truth, as they do, that swear by any creature. Davids presence, being so lately put in fear of his life, both at his own house, and at Naioth ? I answer, that though he well as the former, because they are here both joyned toge- bad little affurance of it, yet he might conceive some hope, ther; for it is faid, that the people believed the Lord, and bis that David would not refrain coming, because he would be

Chap. xx.

by his father

being over, and he coming to himfelf, he would be reconciled, and entertain him again without any danger to him, as he hald done divers times before, ch. 19.7. & 18.11,17.

Bubleben his Gir] i.e. In which he was born, Joh. 7.42. So

Gen. 22.18. & 24. 10.

for there is a perly facrifice there for all the family ] The dthough in his main intention he went not thither fo much for the facrifice fake, as to make it his excuse of absenting himself from the Court For that family having in time past received from God fome fingular benefit, might annually fet apart a day for a memorial of it, and might on it, offer peace offerings and gratulatory facrifices; it being lawful to offer such at their houles before the Temple was built, especially at this time, when as the alear and tabernacle were feparated. See ch 9 12 and the note upon it

V. 7. I be fay thus, it is well, thy fervant fhall have peace He defireth Jonathan to observe bow his father would take his absence, freing thereby he might plainly diftern how he was aff tied and disposed towards him. For it he were not difplerfed with it, he intended bim no barm ; but if he were bighly off-inded, it was a manifest fign that his absence did éreffe his purpose and resolution of doing him a mis-

V. 8. dest kindly with me To wit, in giving me timely warning to escape danger.

thou baft brought thy fervant into a covenant of the Lord with shee] i.e. a just covenant, agreeable to Gods Will, and contracted in his presence, with invocation, and calling on him as Witness and Judge, to reward the faithful observers, and to punish them that violate and transgreffe it.

punin them that violate and transgrette it.

if there be iniquity in me, flay me thy [elf] Seeing if I bave delerved death, you have power to inflict it. And this he Speaketh, not only in confidence of his own innocency, but al tween them by their mutual oath; which also at his motion ipezkein, not only in connuence of also will innocency, one at the willingly did, as appeareth, ver. 41. & 2 Sam: chap. 21.

contenence.

bring me to thy father] To wit, to be killed by him.

V. 9. And Jonathan faid, Far beit from thee] i.e. That thou being innocent, shouldft dye, either by my hand, or my then would I not tell it thee] i.e. Affure thy felf, without all por entruft any fervant with fuch a fecret.

V. 11. Come, and let us go out into the field ] To wit, where we may talk privately together, and none may over-hear us, upon it.
and where we may advite of some six and secret place where V. 15 fathers minde and intentions, by fome means which we shall he had hid himself. there spree upon

V. 12. And Jonathan faid unto David, O Lord God of Ifrael] carre, teem trany or taken intenser, ear me com not need; he take that the carrier of your analysis and the verte of photosis but non David, cas in the beginning of him notice of Sautre-fording to killishing, chap 162, where the verte of photosis in the third person. As if he had stat, by it is evident, that he did not bye three hid all the time, when I have founded my father, and known his midner and party of the control of the property of the control pole, it do not een intuitivity with uses, and trusy revent it in gree appointed mit from themees with the integral event, then let the Lord Gold of the third day.

And finite remain by the fines Eq. 1 Or., the fines that flow it is in the light and deferred quantiments upon me as falle [where why] i. E. Either which flood in the colds wayer, fines. and faithleffe friend. The which his specch, being uttered with some vehemency, he abruptly breaketh off, and flop. David sled to walk, when they intended to have private and with Isune velectioner, the abruptly breaketh off, and flop-th in the beginning oils, the Line If Get of Jiffelt, and then included the condition of it in a parenthelis, in the follow-ing words, when them familed my fater, see, and for refu-cioning the free that the famile of the condition of the things the free the broken off, in the beginning of the 1, veric, he impresents a cure Gapisth build, if the proved peridious and creatherous, The Lard do fo, and much move to Spanishas; and then stated the action of the condition o and then addeth the other branch of the condition; to wit, of his father intended milchief against him, and he should conceal it, that then he might be lyable to the fame curfe. See Ruth 1.17.

V: 13. And the Lord be with thee, as he hath been with my feber] That is, both in raifing thee to the Kingdom, and in giving mito tice many famous victories over thine enemies. The which he prayeth, being affured of his fathers rejection, and that God had made chorce of David to succeed him, ch.

V. 14. And then shalt not only whilest I yet live show me the kindnesse of the Lord that I dye not ] i. e. When God hath made thre King after my father, thou shalf not cut me off, as thou mayft do , when the regall power being in third hand, thou mayft do with me what thou pleafeft; and also haft some ready to impute those assumes and out-rages, unto Sants temse to do it in strict justice, being thus provoked by my fenezie sits, enter them to any strict and resolved malice, which staters us just and rigorous courses, and perfectution of thee fathers usual and rigorous courses, and perfecution of thee without cause, whereby he hath made all his family guilty of death; but having respect to my faithfulness and love which I have born thee, thou shalt shew unto me the kindnesse of the Lord, that is, unchangeable love to them that love him, and great love according to his own greatness and goodness or such kindnesse as thou hast bound thy felt to shew unto me by solemn coverant, which thou hast contrafted with me in Godsname, and in his presence, which God will therefore require from thee. Where Jonathan showeth his great piety and humility, in submitting himself patiently to Gods Will, even to the loffe of a Kingdom , unto which he was beir by lineal descent.

V. 15. But alfo thou fbalt not cut off thy kindneffe from me boufe for ever ] Namely, because the covenant made between us, extendeth not only to our own persons, but also to our posterity after us.

potterity after us.

no not when the Lord hath cut off the enemies of David] That is, when thou haft absolute power in thy hands, there not being an enemy left to oppose or hinder thee from doing any thing that feemeth good in thine eyes.

V. 16. So Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David e Renewed and ratified the covenant which was formerly made between them, cb. 18: 3.

Let the Lord require it at the hands of Davids enemies'] i. e. call to a ftrict account, and feverely punish all Davids perfidious enemies and fo my felf among the reft, if I discover my felf to ententies and nomy tert unlong the cett, it is discover my lett to be one of them, by thewing my/left falls in breaking promities, and not revealing my fathers purpole towards David; whether he intended him good, or evil.

V. 17. And Journal canfed David to frees again] i.e. as he had renewed and confirmed his covenant by a folemn oath with David and his house; so he requires him to do the like with him and his pollerity, namely, to ratifie the covenant bever. 7. having not done it before in this place. Others read it thus; Jonathan sware again to David, But of this there was no need, feeing he had fworn before, and not David, and in a covenant a mutual oath is required. And befides, the other reading flandeth better with the text,in the original.

non water are true trues | 1.e. onure my self, without an original, perilion, that would not keep it from thee.

V. 10. Then fast David to Jesselm, Who find tell me? | Covernate by a reciprocal onto ) because, introface of biasarie. What thy facture (packet, logo, of, robd, towards one, see-ing thou cannot hardly conce to me thy felf, without subjection, in the word are the packet of the property of the propert

V. 18. to morrow is the new moon ] See v. c. and the note

V. 19. And when thou haft ftaid three dayer | i.e. Ar Beththou mayft hide thy felf, till I can discover unto thee my lebem, or some other secret place of security and safety, where > then thou fhalt come down quitkly ] Namely , from that place where thou didft lychid.

N. 12. Ank Jonathan fait with Durate, O Leva Gea of Jirest. I water tood until vients.

Or tous, Jebouh the Geal Jirest. Which I conceive to be the better reading, in the nominative Gel, rather then in the volume of the place where them didft hide thy judges to the med. Namely, that feeree place where he did extert, lefenge than you be taken in either. For he doth not here at the first hide himself by Jonathans advice, when he gave ingatravellers which way to take; or where Jonathan and fecret conference.

V. 10. And I will floor three arrowes on the fide thereof, or stong b I flor at a mark] That is, this shall be the roters between thee and me, whereby I will shew there what thou shall do, (if I cannot with conveniency, and unfern, come to fpeak with thee) as thou didft defire, ver. to. which device Jonathan used to acquaint David with his fathers resolu-Jonathan uted to acquirin David with his inther reconstruction towards him, whether good or evil, rather either to go unto him in the place where he lay hid, because he might fear that the coard would not be cleer, but foul repfling to and fro, who effying him, might feeth of the good come to his fathers ear, and make him more; leasts of him, when as he underflood that there was fill fach intercourfe beween them.

V. 22. For the Lord bath fent thee away ] That is , by this fign given umo thro by me, he hatheommanded thee to be gone, and to shift for thy felf. And so he telleth him by what means he would perform what he had promifed and fworn, v. 13.

V. 22. eAnd as touching the matter which then and I have fine

hen of ] That is, the covenant which we have made between | gave David fufficient warning to avoid his presence, and shift us, and confirmed by oath, the Lord be a just Judge and Witnesse of it, that it may for ever fland firm and invi-

V. 24. The King fate him down ] i.e. Being returned that morning from Natoth, he fitteth down at the feast of the new moon,at Gibeah.

V. 25. And the King fate upon bis feat ] i.e. In a chair of flate, fer at the midit of the table on the wall fide, as being the chiefest place for honour and royalty.

and Fonathan arofe, and Abner fase by Sauls file | These words by divers Expositors are diversly understood. But to omit the most of their conceits, which have little probability; fome think that Abner coming late after they were fate, Jonathan rofe up, and gave him place, out of that honour and respect which he bore him; but this is not likely that the Prince and heir to the kingdom being late, thould rile up and give place to the Genekingdom being late, mound rise up and give place to the General of the army, being a subject; or that Abner would have taken it, though he had in courteste offered it; and therefore, to make it more probable, it is conceived, that Jonathan compelled him to fit next his father, under the fhew of doing him this honour, or fome other pretence; whereas indeed he teared to fit next him , left he should do him some mischief , for speaking in Davids excuse and defence, when he was in his frantick fits; the which he was likely to do, as appeared the day following, v. 20,22. Others think (according as Infehrus hath it) that Jonathan used to fit on Sauls right hand, and David on his left, and Abner next unto him; and fo Davids place being at this time empty. Abner was next unto Saul on his lett file, there being none between them; and that the meaning of thele words, And Fonathan arole, is no more but this, that Saul being already fet down in his chair of State at the table, Jona-

V. 26. Le is not clean, furely be is not clean ] And therefore he cometh not to the feast, because the law forbiddeth it under the penalty of being quite cut off from the people, Levit. 7.19. 20. & 11.24, & 15.16. and these legal uncleannesses, were flux of feed, touching dead bodies, &c. as by those places appearcth; the which uncleannesses lasted but to the evening of the fame day in which they were contracted, Levit. 71. 39. and therefore Saul asketh for him the next day, wherein again Saul heweth his groß bypscrift; in ferupling at eremonial un-cleanneffes; in the mean time, making no confeience of moral pollutions, public, envy, and the flueding of innocent blood. V. 27. Wherefore cometh not the son of Jesse to meat?] i. e.

than arole, i.e. did addresse himself to the table, and sate down

David.whom he calleth the fon of Jeffe, in fcorn and contempt, to thew his displeature and indignation against him. So Doeg, ch. 12.9. and Nabal, ch. 15. 10.

V. 29. our family hath a facrifice | See ch. 9.11. and the note and my brother hath commanded me to be there ] To wit, having

Commiffin fo to do from my father. Let me go I pray thee] i.e. Thou having authority to grant my fuit, in thy fathers ablence,

V. 30. Thou fon of the perverse and rebellious woman Heb. fon of perverse rebellion. Where, to make his fau't more desperate, be implyeth that it was hereditary, and fixed in him by birth and blood; and therefore being descended from a mother, who being perverse and rebellious, had alwayes croffed him in all his deligns, he could expect no other from him, nor better fruits from fuch a tree. Neither canI account thee my fon, (for then there would be some likeness of affections and dispofitions ) but a rebel, who refilleft my known Will ; nor lawfully begotten by me, but fonce ftranger, and born of a mother rebellious like thy felf. Others refer the first to Ionathans mother, Thou fon of the perverfe woman, and the latter to lonathan himfelf, repeating the word fon, thou fon of rebellion, or, most rebellious ion. Now it is not much material to inquire, whether Jonathans mother were fuch an one, as he reporteth and rendreth her in his raging fit; feeing though fhe were innocent, yet it is the property of men transported with frenzy and fury, in their paffion, to vent and eafe themselves, by speaking as much ill against them whom they ma'igne, as wit and malice, spite and spleen can invent.

thou haft chofen the fon of Jeffe to thine own confusion ] That is, by making him thy choyce friend and favourite, thou half ruin'd and undone thy felf, feeing he will take the crown and Kingdome from thee, which by right of inheritance belongeth to thee.

and to the confusion of thy mothers unkednesse] Either because thou doft deprive her of her due honour, of having a King to her fort, or brand her with a surpition of dishanesty, that therefore thou are ellegitimate, and not lawfully begotten, beciuse thou dost not succeed me in the Kingdom, but David chofen in thy place. V. 33. And Saul caft a javelin at him to [mito bi n] Wherefor himfelf. And thus by his rage and fury, he croffeth his own purpole and defires; for whereas if he had diffembled his anger, he might casily have gotten him into his hands, now by thus proclaiming his anger and passion, he teacheth David to ule his best means to provide for his own fafety.

V. 34. So Fonathan arofe from the table in fierce anger Being provoked by the groffe injuries and foul affronts which his father had offered him, as by railing against him, branding him with the suspicion of bastardy, and attempting to smite him with his avelin; and all this, to a wicked and pernicious end, to draw him hereby to partake with him in a horrid and bloody wickednesse, by killing David, and desperate impiety against God and his known Will, by bandying against him, and using all indirect courses to keep the crown full on his own head, after God had rejected him, and intayling the Kingdome to his posterity, when as God had declared his Will unto him, that he had chosen another man, better than

For he was gricved for David ] To wit, because his fathers wrath against him was implacable, though he were innocent, and had in this furious manner difgraced him in a publike affembly, as though he had been a traytor and rebel.

V. 35. And it came to passe in the morning i.e. The third day of the new m. on, which was the time appointed between Jonathan and David, v. 5, 19.

V. 40. and Jonathan gave his artillery ] Heb. instruments.

i. e. his bowe, arrowes, and quiver, go carry them into the City ] i. c. Gibcah, that he might the more freely and fecretly talk with David when he was gone,

V. 41. Ani asson as the lad was gove, David arose To wit, out of the secret place where he lay hid. For though they had agreed of the former secret way, by shooting arrowes, to give David intelligence of his fathers minde and purpose, searing that he should no otherwise do it with conveniency and secrecie, because passengers going to and fro, might haply discover them; yet now feeing the Coalt cleer, and none in fight, that might take notice of them. David arofe cut of his place to go unto Jonathan, that so having gotten this opportunity, they might more freely and fully confult and confer together. out of a place towards the South | i.e. The South fide of the field, or of the flone Ezel, by which David had hid himfelf. and wept one with another | Bewailing their compelled parting, who were fo dear one to the other.

untill David exceeded | Because his condition was most lamentable, dangerous, and almost desperate. Seeing he was constrained not only to lose the sweet society of a dear friend, but also of his wife and family, to leave off the affairs of the Common-wealth, and the professition of the wars against Gods enemics, in which he had been to often victorious, and (that which was most grievous unto him) to be banished from the house of God, the tabernacle and ark, with all the holy ordinances, in which he fo much delighted, Pfal.42.1. & 84.1,2. And to flee as an exile he knew not whither, where he might live in any fafety; not to Sauls friends, ( and who will not at least feem fo to a King that liveth in profperity?) for they would be ready to betray him; nor to his enemies, for those also he had incensed against him by his many victories over them; into all which, and many other ftraights, God was pleafed to thrust David, for the exercise of his faith, hope, and patience, and making him his only rock and refuge, to flee unto him by frequent, fervent, and effectual prayer, Plal. 16. 1,2. & 144.1,2.
V. 42. For as much as we have foorn both of us in the name of the Lord | Or, the Lord be witnesseof that we have (worn both the Lord be between thee and me] i.e. Namely, to bleffe and protect us, to preferve and deliver us from all thefe difficulties and dangers, and to confirm and perpetuate for ever this live and friendship between us, and our posterity after us, which we have renewed and ratified by a folemn covenant in and he arose and departed] i.e. to Nob. and Jonathan went into the City | That is , to Gibeah-Saul, where he kept his Court and refidence, Chapter 23. 18, 19.

CHAP, XXI,

Verl. 1. Hencame David to Nob ] Which was a City fcituate in the tribe of Benjamin, 12. miles from Gibeah, and not far from Anathoth, Nchem. 11. 31. where the inheritance lay that belonged to the high Priest of this family, as appeareth, r King, chap. 2. ver. 26. unto which (it feemeth ) Saul had caufed the tabernacle to be removed, with the altar and table of thew-bread, from Shiloh, although the ark remained at Kiriath-je arim, untill Davids time, because it was in his own tribe, as before Joshua an Ephramite had placed it in Shiloh, a City of Ephraim, for his own use and by he discovered his desperate resolution to kill him, and so conveniency, that he might upon all occasions, with more speed and cafe refort unto it; and David also being of the tribe of [ Judah, caused the ark to be removed from Kiriath-jearim to Jerulalem, that he might have Gods Oracles and ordinances neer him. And this was the cause, why at this time there were fo many Priefts at Nob, that they might be ready to attend the service of the Sanctuary. And hither David, intending to flee for the safeguard of his life into the land of the Philittims, reforted, that he might visite the Tabernable before his departure, (although he could not do it without great danger of his life, in resp. ct of the great resort thither from all parts of the land) and call upon God in a fervent and publike manner, for his direction and protection , help and comfort, in this his diffreffed condition; and also to consult and ask counfel from Gods oracle, as appeareth, ch. 22. 10, 13. and 13. as he is accused, and himself there consessed.

to Absmelech the Prieft | Who (according to the manner of the Hebrews, that gave divers names to the fame man) is alfo called Abiah, and was with Saul in Migron, executing the office of t' e high Prieft, ch. 14. 2,3. Though others conceive, that he might be brother to this Ahiah; and he being dead, succeeded him in his place. He is called also by our Saviour Chrift, Abiathar the high Prieft, Mar. 2.28. which was likewise the name of his fon, ch. 22. 20. even as afterwards Abimelech is faid to be the fon of Abiathar, 2 Sam. 8. 17. whereby it feemeth that both of them had the fame two names, and were called promiferoully, femetimes by the one, and fometimes by the otter. See 2 2m. 8, 17, and the note and Ahimelect was afraid as the meeting of David ] Suspecting that fome fingular accident had befallen him; and knowing him to be in Sauls displeature, he feared that he was now fled from him, which might bring them into danger that did entertain bim. Soch. 16.4.

why art thou alone, and no man with thee? ] Or, with fo fmall a retinue, as doth not befirthy place. For it appeareth, that Davidhad some company to attend him, some of his servants either at his departure following of themselves, or by Jonathans direction, or by himfelf called by the way to wait upon him, ver. 4. and Math. 12. 3, 4. unleffe we will fay (as it is very probable) that David, to the end he might come with more fecrecie, did come alone, and no man with him, as it is in the text, and had appointed his company to flay in some place till he returned, as himfelf telleth Ahimelech, See

V. 2. The King bath commanded me a bufinesse ] Where David through fear and humane frailty, that he might relieve his preferra and perfing necessity of hunger, telleth a fir un-terth; the confequents whereof, through Sauls and Doegs maliciousnesse, were very laminable; as the utter destruction of Ahimelech, and 84 of the Lords Priests, the whole City of Nob, with all the Inhabitants, men, women, and children , yea even the very beafts ; of which horrible massacre though David were innocent, yet it cannot be denyed, but that he wittingly gave the occasion of it, by thus coming to fully to dispence with it, as well as with the other, of eating the high Priest for relief, when he saw hough the ceremonial law, belonged only knew to be a curfed pick-thank and Sychophant, that would undoubtedly discover it to Saul; in which respect, it must needs be acknowledged, that it was a great fin which David committed, in telling this pernicious lye, though his prefent necessity did much extenuate it, seeing hunger (as we use to fay) breaketh through ftone-walls, and necessity bath no law. Yet David himfelf doth not fo excule it , but charging it home (like a true penitent) upon his own heart and confeience, doth acknowledg, that he was the occasion of this bloody and horrid flaughter, ch. 22. 22. and as (no doubt) he did much bewail it long after; foit made him hate the more this fin of lying, and earneftly to beg of God to be freed from it, as appeareth, Pfal. 119 28, 29. But howfoever, God in his wife and just providence, fo ordered the whole carriage of this businesse, that upon this occasion his righteous sentence was in a great part executed upon Elies house, chapter a.

to fuch and fuch a place \ Heb. Peloni Almoni. See Ruth 4. 1. and the note upon it.

V. 3. Now therefore what is under thine hand ? ] i.e. In thy present custody, and at thy disposing, ready to be eaten.
V. 4. There is no Common bread under mine band] Namely, of what there was there prefent , as David defired,, v. 3. he had (no doubt: being an eminent person) better flore of pro-visions at his own house, both for those that belonged unto him, and the entertainment of ftrangers ; but his dwelling (it feemeth) was at some diftance from the Tabernacle, and Davids halle was such through his apprehension of danger, that he could not fray, but must presently be gone; and therefore his request is, that without any further delay, he might be supplyed with five loaves out of the flore belonging to the use of the Tabernacle ; of which at this time, there was none to be had but the fnew-bread only, v. 6.

but there is hallowed bread] That is, not in respect of the matter and substance of it, but as it is holy in the inflitution of it, and confecrated to a facred use. And this was the fhew-bread; twelve loaves whereof were to be fet on the table covered with pure gold, fix on the one fide, and fix on the other, which were to fland before the Lord alwayer, and to be supplyed every Sabbath with new store, the old being taken away, which belonged to the Priefts alone, and none other might eat of it. See Exod. 25. 30. & Levit. 24. 5. 10 the tenth verse. The which holy bread was called shew-bread. because it was alwayes in Gods presence, and was a type of our Lord Jesus Chrift, the bread of life that came down from heaven, who alwayes appeareth before his father, to make intercession for us, Hcb. 9. 24. yet though it were appropriated to the Priests in the ordinary use, Levit. 24.9. yet in the case of necessity and charity, others also might eat of it, Math. 12. 4.7. feeing it is a ruled cafe, that in all matters of weighty concernment, ceremonials must give place to moral duties, when they cannot both fland (together. Now whereas fome on this ground think, that it was lawful for the Ifraelites to eat things that were legally unclean, as fwines flesh, and the like ; it is true, if it were in cale of necessity, and fo preffed upon them under this notion; but if the breach of a ceremony did bring with it the transgreffion of a moral duty, there being no fuch necessity, and were imposed as a neglect or cortempt of the law, (as Antiochus prefied the Jews, in the hiftory of the Maccabees) then it is not to be done, (though we dve for it: ) because thereby we profesie, that we renounce our religion, and obedience unto Gods law, and so commit an heinous fin. And the fame is to be faid of things offered unto idols; of which we may eat in a common and civil way, for necessity fake, to fatisfie our hunger, and not in areligious way, to t flife our approbation of idolatrous fervice, I Cor. ch. 10.

if the young men at least bave kept themselves from women] i.e. their wives; for of no other women can it be reasonably under-flood, if we respect David, or those whom he had chosen to attend him. Now this , in the judgment of Ahimelech , contracted a legal and ceremonial uncleannesse, Exod. 19.15. Levit. 15.18. yet not in it felf, for marriage is benowable, and the bed undefiled, Heb. 13. 4. And it was Gods own ordinance, inftruted in the flate of innocency; but in respect of the abuses of the marriage-bed unto which it is lyable through the source of the mattrage-reasons which it is you're through mans corruption. And in this regard, the Apofile would have Christians to forbers the use of it when they feriously de-vote themselves to religious duties, especially fasting and pray-ers; because natural and carnal pleasures, do not fairly with exercises of humiliation and mortification. But admit that the use of their wives, did bring with it a ceremonial uncleanneffe; yet Ahimelech was much miftaken, when he thought, that for this they were to be debarred from eating the fhewbread, to fatisfie their hunger, and to preferve their lives ; feeing this was a moral duty, which might make them lawto the Priefts.

V. 5. Women have been kept from us about thefe three dayer ] All which, time we have been in our journey, and absent from and the velicls of the young men are boly By which fome understand, their vessels, in which they carried their provisions in their journey, as their bags, baskets, scrips, wallets, and the like; but it is not like that they would bring out fuch veffels with them, but they would also bring their provisions in them; and if fo, they must needs be very scant, and scarce worth the carriage, or elfe how could they be fo foon fpent, and they reduced to such want and bunger, having yet travailed but a few miles, or if they had none to bring, is it not likely, that where they expected meat, they would also finde portage, and means to carry it? especially, if they were so moderate and temperate as David, who onely defires five loaves for himfelf and his company; or what holineffe do we read of, that was legally required in fuch veilels, wherein they carried their ordinary provisions for their journey? And therefore I rather incline to their judgement, who by [veffels ] understand the young mens bodyes, seeing the word is sometimes taken in this sence, as 2 Cor. 4. 7. 1 Theff.4.3,4. Act. 9. 15. 2 Tim. 2.21. 1 Pet.3.7. Neither is this addition superflous, because he had faid before, that women had been kept from them three dayes; but a necessary consequence of it, that therefore their bodies must needs be clean; feeing for the space of three dayes they had been kept from them, which might foon be fpoken, though David were in much bafte.

and the bread is in a manner common, yea, though it were fandified this day in the vessel. ] Or, especially, when this day there is other sanctified in the vessel. That is, though whilest it should upon the table in Gods prefence, and confectated to his fervice;

Chap. xxi. it was to holy, that whileft the dayes of confectation falled, it to go on in his journey. was not lawful, no not for the Priefts themselves to eat of it; and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to edshift Which yet when the time being expired, it is taken out of the diffies was his proper name. But Pfalm 34. 1. he is called Abimefrom the table, and liot bread put in the place of it, then it be- lech, which was the common name to all the Phillitine Kings, cometh but as common and ordinary food, which the Priefts | Gen 20.2. As Pharach to the Kings of Raype, And to him may lawfully feed upon, as being that portion which God hath he did flee, being King of Gath, one of the five chief Cities of allowed them ; and therefore we having the like allowance by the Philiftims. See ch. 5.8. That is, not to his Court and allowed them 3 fast therefore we naving the pitch allowance by the Philittims. See cm. 5.4. June 18, note to his Court and the moral laws, in the cale of neterility and charity for the pre-fereing of our lives, may lawfully car of the fluw-bread, discovered. But however, where he hoped to be hid and unfereing of our lives, may lawfully car of the fluw-bread, discovered. But however, the was the Sabbath days on which David came to Nothyutien; new bread was put in the place of the Pailittims, showth day were profetfed enumies to the old; or at leafl, that there was full flow remaining of that Illineties, claded feed thy by him, who had killed their Golish, which had formerly been taken away. And the like judge- and had gotten to many victories against them) resher then ment is passed on the outward rest of the Sabbath day, by our Saviour Christ himself; which is to give place to the moral testants, at this day, finde it lesse dangerous, to live among the duties of necessity and charity, upon this ground, because the duties of necessity and coarsty, opon tims ground, occasing the state of the control of the state of the stable of the outward elements and figns in our Sacraments, are holy, were, another King in the effect of the people; Or, is not be onely in their facramental ufe, as water in baptifm, and bread the man whom Saul looketh upon, as him whom God both and wine in the Lords Supper, but become again ordinary and chofen to be King in his room, and therefore doth purfue and common, when the celebration is past and finished.

V.7. Now a certain man, of the servants of Saul, was there that or fome other occasion not expressed.

and his name was Doeg an Edomite | Either fo called. (as fome think) because he had so ourned among the Edomites, though, by birth, he was an Ifraelite, and of the City Adamah , Josh 19, 36. Or rather, because he was by Nation an Edomite, but by profession, a Profesyre unto the religion of the

for I have neither brought my fword, new weapons with me, beprized by fome, whom Saul had appointed, to watch for him ; but this he concealeth, and telleth another untruth, to excuse

V. 9. And the Priest faid, the sword of Goliah the Philistim, —it is here] The rest of his arms David had disposed of, chap. 17.54. But his fword was brought to the tabernacle. there to be referved, as a memorial of that victory, to the praife wrapt in a cloth behinde the Ephod ] That is, laid by the Ephod in the tabernacle, as fome would have it; but feeing the Ephod and breft-plate were kept in the holy place, where none came burthe Priefts onely, 5 it is not likely, that Goliah's fword was referred there, because it would not have fixed the use for which it was kept, which was to be unto the people, a memorial of the victory, when as none of them might come into that holy place. Therefore others read it thus, after the Ephod, That is, after Abianelech had put on the Ephod to ask counsel of God; of this Chapter, but this, fp aketh of any fuch confuling with God. And thus the like phrase is used, Gen. 24.67. & Deut, 24. 70. 21.

and David faid, there is none like that, give it me] That is, none fo fit for my use, seeing thereby I shall, when I look upon it, be put in mind; of Gods gracious affiltance of me, for the for the obtaining of that victory, to praife him for it; and the altrengthning of my faith, and affince in God in the like difficulties and dangers. Nor was it more unlawful, for David to take this fword, in cale of his prefent necessity, for his defence, (he having no other) though it were kept in the tabermaele, as a monument of that victory, to the praise of God, then the shew-bread, in the like case ? especially, if (as it is probable) he had a purpose of returning it again, when he was otherwise provided. Although it may seem, that Goliah's fword was less convenient for his presentule, then any other; feeing he was to go among the Philiftims, where (in all likely hood) it would be known, and bring him into danger, as it did, is mad, wherefore then have je brought him to me? ] Whereby (it may be) though it be not expressed ; feeing it was Davids purpole, to live fecretly and unknown, as a fojourner, in that that having for a time kept close, he was at last discovered by country; but by fome means was discovered to Achish his ferwants and to by them brought unto him. And then God justly afed this fword, which he had gotten by lying for his fafety and defence, as the means whereby he was brought into extream to endanger himfelf to Sauls rage and fury; even as Pro-Tu ks , then among the Papiffs in Spain or Italy.

profecute him, to prevent and hinder this choyce?

V. 12. And David Laid up thefe words in bis heart 7 That is day, detained before the Lord ] i. c. Either to keep the Sabbath, feriously confidering the dangerous consequence of the words or to pay his yows, or to perform fome other religious service, which he heard them speak, and how likely they were to inconfe Achifh against him; he much feared, that he would take occasion thereby to destroy, and revenge himself upon bim, and so preventhim from doing him any further mischief.
V. 13. And he shanged his behaviour before them, and he fained himfelf mad] Heb. his tafte. That is, his gefture, words and carriage, whereby it may be differred, whether a man be wife lifacilities; though a notorious wicked man, and a malicious of foolish, mad, or in his right vite; as the talled differenth of means whether they be favoure or unfavour, Job. 12, 11, and troubled when he law him there, left he flould relate to Saul 34.3. And this David did, both, because mad men are his coming thither, and what he did. Some make him a type of usually the objects, rather of pitty, then of malice and revenge; Judas (who betrayed Christ to the Priests, as this Dorg did Da- and also, because they might now well space him, seeing he was not likely, being in this cofe, to do them any further mifchief. Which carriage of Davids, fome excute, as being lawcaufethe Kings bulinefs required by fife] The true coule why he full-because it was not a lye, (which is properly in words, and whos came without his fword and weapons, was because, when he parted with Jonathan, he came fuddenly away, and durft haviour, and diffembling of that which was in him in reallity not go to his own house to fetch them, for fear of being fur- and truth, that is, Reason and Understanding, under theoutward thew of madness; and because his end was good; not to hurt any, but to preferve himfelf in this extream danger. sthe matter; for one lye told, maketh fute a breach in the | But I fee little difference, between feeking and doing that conference, char another following it, will finde an easie pal- which is falle, and not as it is preferred of Generative are both which is falle, and not as it is pretended, feeing they are both contrary to truth; and the one areal, as the other a verballye; specially, when there is in both, an intention to deceive. and though his end were good; to preferve his life, yet this cannot justific the use of unlawful means; and whereas they say, that howfoever he diffembled with men, yet, at the fame time, he put his truft in God, and prayed unto him for deliverance, as appeareth by the 34 and 56. Pfalms, which were made by aim on this occasion; yet this doth not prove, but that there might be much diffidence in Gods providence and promifes, mixed with his affinee, (as it usually fareth with Gods dea-rest children) which made him to use this base diffembling, in un-manning himfelf, and as though he had loft thouse of his reason, and were now become a bruit, and without all understanding. Neither doth Christs staying at Emmaus, when he made femblance to the two Difciples of going further, excuse which, mention is made, ch. 22. to, 13.4. and yet no place in Davids diffembling here; feeing Christi intention was not anscente, but conditional, (though real) if the Disciples did not importune his Raying with them. And thus also God threatneth to inflict judgements on those whom he intendeth to spare, as he did to the Ninevites; and maketh thew of prefent execution, when as he doth not intend it; as he dealt with the Ifraelites, 2 Sam. 24. 26. Because his threatnings were not absolute, but conditional, if they did not repent, and appeale his wrath, by building an altar, and offering facrifice.

bo Jer. 18. 7, 8.

he feigned himfelf mad in their hands That is, because the fame of his wisdom an valour, would bring him into danger, he layeth them by, and counterfeiteth madness, while it was in their power to do him a mischief.

and [crabled on the doors ] Or, made marks. That is, used the postures, gestures, and actions of a mad man, herein exercising his wit, to act his feeming madnefs.

V. 14. Then faid Achifh unto bis fervants, Loe, you fee the man it appeareth, that David came not of himself to Achish, but Achilh his fervants, and brought by them before him, that he might deal with him as he pleased. And this also the title of the fifty fixth Pfalm importetb.

wherefore then have ye brought him to me > ] As if he had aid, though it might well befeem me, as a King, to revenge V. 10. And David arofe] That is, prepared and fet himfelf my felf on my enemy, when as he is in arms, against me; or at a man to do to him as he hath done to me, being in the ike condition to my felf; yet it is below a king, or a man, to like condition to my felf; yet it is below a king, or a man, to finde the more favour at his hands, becaute Sund, when preferented reverge kinnfelf on one, who being neither loadider nor man, him, was the kinge exemp allo, and had propher only made was is fuch an unworthy object of his difpleafure.

V. 15. Have I need of mad-men ] i. c. Seeing I shall gain my enemy, upon such an advantage, who was able to encounter me, whilest he was himself; therefore I scorn to defile my hands, by imbruing them in his blood; and yet I am not willing that he should upon any rearms, stay here any longer, feeing it is a difhonour to my house, to have such a madtellow in it, and therefore fend him away with all speed. And thus God in his all-wife providence, maketh Davids feeming madneff: the means to befool Achifh, in fending the man abring him and his people to utter ruine.

CHAP, XXII.

Vers. 1. Deve of Adullam] A city in the tribe of Judah, not far from Berh ehem, cituate eight miles from Jetufalem, South-welt; of which mention is made, Joffi. 12. 15. and 15 35. From which Town, this Cave bordering neer upon it, had its name; unto which place David reforted, partly, because it his father and mother might live in his country; and this reaits name; unto which place David resorted party, occular it was an hold of form thrength, 2 Sam 12; 13, 14, and party, because lying in his own tribe, and among his kindred and triends, he expected from them, favour and protection, and which he reptren and all his fathers bonfe heard it! To wit, by lome mellengers which he fent unto them, to give them notice of his being there, feeing otherwife they could not bave known of his coming thither. For hearing (as it is likely) Saul for his fake, and that it was likely that it would be worfe and worfe with them ; he took care for their prefervation, and fo fent for them, that they might be fafe under his protection. V. z. And every one that was in diffress, and every one that was in debt, &c.] Not because David (who was a man after Gods own heart, holy and just in all his waies) intended to make himfelf a protector, and the place of his abode, a fanctuary for | country. rebels, fugitives and our-lawries, (though his enemies took this occasion thus to calumniate and reproach him, chap. 27. 10.) but onely to relieve, comfort and protest those, who were afficted, and suffered in a good cause; as those, who were oppressed by Sauls syrannical government, or, were in-debted to cruel creditors, who would not be fatisfied with their lands and goods, or all other means they had to make payment, unleffe alfo, they made them and their children flaves ; and fuch others as were embittered in their spirits, and greaned under the burthen of such like discontents. Or, if any other did thruft themselves into his company under these p etences, (as it is ufual in fuch a cafe) it was unknown to him, neither would be countenance them in their ill courses when they were any way of theblion against their King (although his mortal may way of theblion against their King (although his mortal may way of the blion against their King (although his mortal may have the many) but if they had any hard thought, or, bad intentions the may aspect the discovered him, he checked and reliabilities them, as aspected, the checked and reliabilities them as a spected, the checked and reliabilities them as a spectrate, the checked and reliabilities them as a spectrate, the checked and reliabilities them as a spectrate, the checked and reliabilities the major the checked and reliabilities the checked and reliabilities the major that the checked and reliabilities the major that the checked and reliabilities the checked and reliabilities the major that the checked and reliabilities the discovered. Nor did be countenance any of his followers, in that lived upon plunder, and the speyl of the country, but were me > rather a wall of defence unto the people amongst whom they lived, to preferve them from the incursions and inroades of the tempt. common enemies, as Nabals fervants witnesse of them, chap. common receives. 20 Ausona receivants remember or mean, range gueecory was you grantest and sergant y 1.6. Elemer can be do 25,15,16. Burthey were men that lived in a poor, sfilledt in more and difference or more than the state of the stat types of Christ and his Disciples that believed in him. Seeing he entertained such as were base and contemptible in the eyes of the world; maligned by their enemies, and under the then of their own fins, Joh. 7.48. 1 Cor. 1. 26,27. Matth. 11. exactions from his other fully cits, 18 Samuel had forerold them,

V. 3. And David went thence to Mizpeh in Moab ] There were divers places of this name, but this was a watch-tower, or firong hold, in the land of Moab. Sec Judg. 20. ver. 3, and the out of the land of Judab, and fo journ for a time in thy com-try and kingdom. The which he maketh, to the King, his fulfit, that he might provide, parties for the state of the land of Judab, and to do all ill effects fulfit, that he might provide, parties for the land of land of the land of the land of land of the land of land of the land of land thit, that he might provide, partly, for their case, that they might not be forced, in their old age, to post from place to with the sould provide provide partly for their case, the sould not pully blame them. place with him, as his prefent condition would necessitate him seeing they could not know that which they had done in secret to do and partly for their fafety, that they might be out of the by themselves ; neither indeed did himself know it, but only reach of Sauls cruel persecutions. And this request he maketh suspected it, and (it may be) on this ground, because Jonato the King of Moab, upon this ground (as some think) be- than bad fin ce that groffe affront offered him, absented bimcause David was descended from Ruth, a Moabitish woman, self from the Court; and he thought also that David durst cause David was descended from Kurn, a monomin woman, territorial to the land with such little strength, unshe mother of Obed, Davids grandfather; or, rather (as it is not have returned into the land with such little strength, un-againft him, ch. 14.47,48.

V. 4. And they dwelt with him all the while that David was in no honour, but differed and obloquy, to revenge my felf on the bold! That is, Davids father and mother dwelt with the King of Mondy, that is, in his country, all the time that David was in the hold; that is, (as fome understand it) in Mizpeb, where the King had placed him; because, it is unlikely, that having re-ceived them into his protection, he would not leave them in ceived them into his protection, he would not reave them in a strange and heathenish country; and because, it is faid, in the verse following, that the Prophet Gad bad him, from God, nor to abide in the hold, but to depart, and get him into the land of Judah, implying, that he was not now there, in the cave way, when he was in his hands, who was ordained by God to of Adullam, which was in that tribe, but in the hold of Mizpeh, from whence he is commanded to depart. Others think. that hereby is meant the cave of Adullam, because there was no need, that David and his parents should live in a strong no need, that Lavia and his patents into an invent a trong hold at Mizpeb, feeing they were now out of Sauls reach, and lived among their friends, who had given them courteous en-tertainment; and also because it is faid, that he left his father and mother in Mizpeh of Moab, which he could not have been faid to do, if himfelf had there still lived with them. And befides, his fuit to the King of Moab, was not for himfelf, but that fon hath some colour for it, but the other is grounded on a miltake; for it is not faid, that David left them with the King of Meab, but onely, that he brought them before him, and having obtained his grant, that they should sojourn in his country, they lived in the hold together, till Gad gave David warning to be gon.

V. S. And the Prophet Gad ] Which was Davids Seer, r Chron. 21.9. and a Prophet of the Lord, with whom he used to confult, and was fent unto him by God, after he had num-bred the people, 2 Sam. 24. 11.

Said unto David, abide not in the bold; depart and get thee into the land of fudab) Either because the King and his people were treacherous or idolarrous; or, because God was pleased to bring Davids faith to a further trial, by Sauls perfecutions, and by many trials and tentations, which he found in his own

V. 6. Now Saul abode in Gibeab] Under a tree in Ramah, or, a grove in an high place; which is the better reading, to or, a grove in an bigo place; which is the better reading, to take Ramab here appellatively, for an high place, and not properly, for the name of the city. Because, it cannot be faid, that he was in Gibeah, or the territories of it, and allo, at Ramah, at the fame time ; feeing thefe two places were diffant, the one from the other, twelve miles. And fo the word here ufed, is better translated Grove then Tree, as being the more proper fignification. And thus it is taken, Gen. 21.33. And Abraham planted a grove in Beerfteba.

having a spear in bis band | Like a tyrant ful of jealousies and fears, who thinketh not himfelf afe and fecure, though he be compassed by his friends and followers.

V. 7. Then Saul faid to his fervants that flood ab nt bim, Hear will the fon of Jeffe] Whom he fo calleth in fcorn and con-give every one of you fields and vineyards] i. e. Either can he do (like a tyrant) having no true worth in himfelf or his government, feeketh to make fure unto him his followers and fapreffures of many affictions, deeply and desperately indebted vourites, by his largesse and bounty, in conferring upon them to Gods justice, and groaning especially under the heavy bur- such gifts and riches, as he hath gotten by his oppressions and ch. 8. 14.

V. 8. that ye have all conspired against me ] The which he speaketh out of jealousie and suspition, and not out of certain knowledg ; yea rather the contrary was true ; for howfo-

Chap, xxii. liffe there were fome new plot and confirmey between I knowledgeth the doing of the things, wherewith Sant chargeth that my fon bath flirred my fervant againft me to lye in wait ] Which allo was utterly falfe, leeing David did not lye in wait out of that good opinion which he had of David; and was he for hillis; but he for David, feeking by all theins to take away him well deferred; feeing he had alwaies approved himself. his life. And here to make the matter more odieus; he joyneth together his fervant and his fon in this confipracy; the undertakings, for which the Ring himlelf hat to highly values car organic us letvain and us not in this comparacy; to: undertaking, for which the King limitelf that it to highly valued one; a micri and contemptible point, whole cheff honder life in the contemptible in the travel callinace, and one him was to observe and plate life mailer; the other, who bring to that thomour, to make thinking into in-law; and shad because the area and deat unto littin, ougher organic in Swarfier with Monor of contracting construction. before all other friends in the world.

V. 9. Then answered Doeg the Edomite 7 A' Court-Sycopliants wito conceiving by Sauis speech some likelihood, that the would prefer and enrich those who would be helpfull unto Him in his malicious defigns againff David and his friends ; he applyeth his speech to the filimor of his Maffer, rather then to he flieuld have fait; If Load now onely done it, when he was inform him in the truth, and maliciously and flanderously traduceth'an innocent; Pfall 52.1,2;

which was fet over the fervants of Saul | That is, as the chief; and matter-herdiman over all the reft, eh. 21. 1. Or, as o. there read it; Who fibot ambity the fervatite of Saul, as it is ver. 6. thers read it, the option among congression of ours, as the reco-kind being aright Edonite, and so an enemy to David a true Health; as Elat, before, was to Jacob. He relief Saul the-thry of Davids coming to Adirielecks, and what paffed be-tween the compalication of the most fence. tween the minaccounty wretuing at mey on, to the wont the and contecting all that emight any water excute them, as will appear in the particulars; the which cauled David, to charge for it with lying and flandering, as well as with malice and missing and flandering, as well as with malice and missing and flandering, as well as with malice and missing and flandering, as well as with malice and missing and flandering, as well as with malice and missing and flandering, as well as with malice and missing and the missing and t chief, for which he tilrentnetil against him utter ruine and defliudion, Pfal. 52:3,4,5.
If swite for of felle coming to Nob ] Where he callett Da-

His too jor of Help coming to Moo! where he cauten Develop way, of contempt, the ton of Jeffe, to pleafe Saul in his kumor, through fo called him in Doegs therring, although, the being King, might better do it, then such a bat e fellow as the, who was but the Kings herdfman, and David his for in law, and a great Comunder.

V. 10 And he cupulred of the Lord for bim; and gave him ulffitals]. Wiere he tellett Saul; that which might incente his wrath againft' him; but concealed that which might have appeafed it, and cleared Ahimeleth from any fault or blame; as that David cold him, that he came, fent by Saul, upon histervice; and that in fucti hafte; that he had no rime to make further vice, and that in the batter, that he had been before from the first being he had been before from plor field imployments; and influctuales, he had often endured of God for him, with Sauls good liking and approbation.

probation.

V. 1.1. Then the King fan to call Abstinatedy the fan of Abitubl.

To wit, that the might lay to hir charge those thing which Dieg had within field against blim. See ch. 14.3.

and all his father house; the Prings that were at Nob.] Who were the molt of the remnant of Elies houfe; that God threatned to cut off ch. 2. 21. V. 12: And Sant faid, Hear now thou fon of Abitub] So he callett him, without any offer title, by way of continuely and of grace, not voichfaling to give him his own name, to shew his difpleafure and indignation against him.

V. 17. Why have ye conflired against mr, thou and the foref fesse! Which words contain his arraignment and inditement; in all the parts whereo, there is not one word of truth in that fence, that it is laid against him; for there was no conforracy between them against him; but he had done all these things which he here charged upon him, in the truth and finplicity of his bearthaving there, in this respect, to do him service. But Saul, being a bloo by tyrant, and fully resolved to cluff and ruine film , taketh upon bim to be his accufer, a witnelle againfi him, and his judge.

that be fould rife againft me, to lye in wait ] Which was utterly falle, feeing he had no fuct end in relieving him; neither had David the least purpose to rebel again it him, or, to watch for any opportunity, to do him the least hurr; but contrariwise, Saul did rife against tim with all his might, and ulted all possible means he could, to deffroy him urrerly.

V. 14. Then Abinetics answered the King, and faid, And who is fo faithful among all thy forwards, as David Where he maketh if falhful atting all the forunts, as Desis! Where he makes his ful applice, with all honeff fulnition, within the way would policy; of the full and the full applice, or the full and the full applice, or the full and the full and the full applications as high rammer, in effectely rates the full and full applications are full and the full and the full applications are full and the he did but the more incense his wrath, both against himself and David also. Whereas the Politicians of our dayes, would have acknowledged their error and militake, and would have profested, that now, they knew David better, they would take heed of him for the time to come. Bur this good man abhor-rett thefe full he and finful fluffe; and rather then he would not keep's good confeience, in juffitying the righteous, he is content to tun himfelf into da iger In this his apologie, he achim, but uterly, denyth that they were done with any treather brown minde against Saul, but rather here is to do him; fettyiere. above all the roll of the Kings fervants; to be faithful in all his obedleift to the Kings commands; going out on all fervices obedient to the Kings commands, going out our an arrivers, when he was pleafed to appoint, though they were full of difficulties and dangers; and also, who was highly advanted in the Court; and held in great honour among all the Kings fer-

V. 15. Did I then begin to enquire of God for bim ? ] As: if formewhat in the Kings displeasure, there might be forme ground of jealoufie; (though it bath been often fo before and yet they have been again reconciled) but feeing it hath been my usual custom thus to enquire of God for him in former times, when he hath gon out on the Kings fervice, it cannot now be imputed unto me for any fault, and much lefs for a treacherous conspiracy against my Lord and Soveraign, which my foul abhorreth; and therefore be it far from me to deferve fuch a hard cenfure, and the King alto, to conceive and enter-for thy fervant knew nothing of all this left, or more. ] That is, for toy fervant name naturage of an ton tip, or more. I lake is, of any confrictor or rebellion against thee. In all which his apology, he faith nothing at all of that which (as if teemeth) would have been most effectual for his execute, namely, that he had been deceived by David, and drawn on, et a do all he did, by those untruths which he had told him: The which he did. either to avoyd Davids difpleafure, who, if either he were again reconciled to Saul, or, himfelf thould come to be King, might revenge, upon him, the discovery of his secrets, so much to his prejudice; or rather, (as I think) the good man was loath, by excusing himself of a seeming fault, to accuse David of one that was foul and real, and thereby to incenie Soul the more against him, whom he faw already, out of measure, in-raged.

V. 16. And the King fald, Thou finit furty de Abimelech, thou and all thy fathers house! And thus, like an unjust Judg, and bloody vyrant, he pronouncets the fentions of death against the innocent Priest, desperately flustring his ears to his againt the innocent Priets, deliperately thuring his cars to his juit defence, besaule he was fully refulved to execute his ma-licious Will upbathen; not only. Ahimelech himfelf, but his whole family, though he had not to much as any colour of faul-tenffe toolayor their charge. The which his cruel doom, as it was transcendently horrible into felf, and the matter of, its fo was it most unjust and illegal in his manner of proceedings For whereas by the law, none frould dye under two or three witnesses, he condemneth fo many upon the bare and maliciour testimony of a falle and flattering Sycophant ; neither doth he take any time of deliberation to examine the cause. and the reasons, and further rollimonies which might be produced; but in rage and fury proceeded from a raft fentence. to a prefent execution , without any delay. And thus this to a present execution, without any octay. And thus this damnable hypocrite, who, out of his feeming pity and mercy, would force Agag, that was appointed by God to dye, is now for fleshe in blood and cruelty, that in his fury and malice, he flicketh not to murther and maffacre fuch a multitude of inco-

V. 17. And the King faid to the footmen! Or, to the guard which waited upon him, and attended his person, to preserve which wants opening, as the Lord Which words have sin-him front days the rainful of the Lord Which words have sin-emphalis in them; thewing that Sauls malice extended unto the Lord himself; because he favoured Divid, and had reject-ed him; and therefore show his Priests, because thirtage could not reach unto God himfelf. Whence some very probably gather, that Saul committed that unpardonable fin against the Holy Spirit, maliciously opposing Gods known Will, and perfecuting to the death those who submitted unto it, and law boured to execute it

But the fervants of the King would not ] Chuling rather to obey God, who had forbidden murther , than this wicked King, in being his instruments and agents in such an horrid.

V. 18. And the King faid unto Doog. Turn thou and fall upon the Priofis] i. e. When all others refused, he knowing him to be a desperate bloody villain, that made no conscience of perpetrating any mischief, commands him to be his executioner; and joyning to him his fervants who were alike bloodily minded to himfelf, (for it is not like that he himfelf in one day could murther and maffacre fuch a multitude, without help) they frould rogether fall upon them, and put them all to the found and he fell upon the Priefts, and flew upon that day fourfcore and

Chap. xxiij.

fore perfest ] And thus whilest this base and bloody wretch, and but the Philistims fight against Keilab] Which was a city his cruel matter, thought of nothing but revenge, and stating of the tribe of Judah, John 15-44, bordering on the Philistims their batherous bloody thirth, they are unwritionely made, but the executioner of Gods just forence against littles family, same tribe.

ch. 2.31. that did wear an Epbod] That is, fuch Priefts as were of full that are wear an Epona; a textes, usen reteres a were or that it was proughet into them, and becare not in them, which (as is age to execute their Priefly function, Exod. 25, 49, 43, 43. [likely) lay out in the fuburbs, and out-parts about the west. [likely] by out in the fuburbs, and couple parts about the west. [likely] is left being defentible against fudden intodes, having walls drem, youths, and fuperannusted; for all the whole family was land gates, bolts and bars, to keep them out. fearenced to death, v.16. and execution done accordingly, v.19. All which together, amounted (as Josephus relateth it) to the

All which together, amounted to Josephus tention to the number of 38 persons.

V. 19. And Robbte City of the Priefts, smotebe] Having (it is very likely) Saulis command for this hortid execution, though against Elies house, which was justly deserved by the outraagainst likes house, which was juilty deserted by the outra-folious wickedness of his forms, and his dishonousing God, by folious wickedness of his forms, and his dishonousing God, by not pushing the first year least to be inflicted on them in this teartul, yet just manner. Bor though the may just-by possible the first of the force-folious to the chird and fourth by possible the first of the force-folious to the chird and fourth of the chird with the Ephod, till he was a Keilab. ly punish the fins of the tore-dathers, unto the tures and tourn ham swith the typhod, till he was at Keilsh.

generation, with temporal punishment, because in a civil relation dry areall anothers of the fame boy; communicating the dath of the country among our with one another; in their temporal benefits and afflictions, the dath of the country among our with one another; in their temporal because and attictions; though, we now are in the heart of the country among our wrall and wor; yet be doth follow inflict any temporal indecement of the property of the country among our ment upon the policity, even of writed the country among our ment upon the policity, even of writed the country among our ment upon the policity, even of writed the country among the ment upon the policity, even of writed the country among the country amon in the lame neps of wickeonene, or not made. Another more present the early of Judob, yet it is focusive on the every frontiers of infants cannot be guilty, nor accessing to the desult fine of their parents; yet for that original courtpoins, which they have desured to the every form them, where we have a support of the every fine of t and foul, which God may justly inflict, at what time, or in what manner he pleaseth, which will mest turn to the advance. doubting, himself, of the truth of Gods first answer, but to manner he pleaters, which will melt turn to the advance. deubting, himfelf, of the truth of Gods first answer, but to ment of his glory. And therefore however thefe Prietis [attailed his followers, who were infear, and took no notice of were innocent of the crimers, for which they furflered 1 yet. God former answer, but by Davids report onely, who were the Krilab, and fought with they were guilty of other fins in the fight of God, for which v. s. So David with his men went to Krilab, and fought with they were guitty or other has in our uger or 300, for which is differ upon them their punishments, which were most in the punishment with which were most in the punishment with which were not in the punishment with the final infants had upon the final infants had been upon the proving the final infants had been upon the punishment with the puni transgressions, from which they spring and flow. In which respect, it is not our wisdom, in our afflictions to contend with God, as Job did, before God had discovered unto him his folly; but like him, when he was convinced, to lay our hands upon our mouthes, and with David, to pray that God will not enter into judgement with bis fervants, feeing, in bis fight, no fiefh living can be justified, Pfal. 145.2.

and fled after David] And came to him, when he was going to Keilah, ch. 23 6. V. 21. And David faid to Abiathar, I knew it that day ] v.1. some Javos (see 16 notation. Letters it that shy] [God, in I That is, I verily thoughts or ny minde did much mili (see me. ) which [saw Dong done ), and snew his malice and wicked, saw then I saw Dong done in a malicious manner, retare all that person the King, whereupon would follow thefe parties that the would be saw that the saw that nailed there unto the Aing, whereupon would rollow their michieft and almentable accidents, in which respect, David was much to be blamed, for bringing the Priest into this dan-ger, by deluding and investiging him with bis untruths. I have acceptanted the death of all the persons of thy fathers bouse] and care, that I may, as much as in me lyeth, repair thy loffe, and ease the force amends.

be that feekth my life, feekth thy life] That is, we are both purfued, even to the death, by a common enemy: But be of good comfort, for I will adventure my own life, to preferve thine, and will be as careful of thy fafety, as of mine own; so that he who will take away thy life, shall have mine alfo. ...

CHAP. XXIII.

Verf. 1. Then they told David I That is, whill the choose in the foottle of Hareth, ch. at Some man Jack the foottle of Hareth, ch. at Some man Jack the foottle of Hareth, ch. at Some man Jack the foottle of Hareth, ch. at Some man Jack the Hareth Cheng the Har Verl. 1. Hen they told David ] That is, whilft he abode in diffrefs, and crave his help.

Report Charles

and they reb the threshing floors ] To wit , of the corn that was brought into them, and beaten out in them; which (as is likely) lay out in the fuburbs, and out-parts about the city;

V. 2. Therefore David enquired of the Lord, faying Shall I go and smitestese Philistims] Before he would go out to war, he would confult with God, and not raffily undertake it, being a bufiness of great weight. The which had been formerly pra-difed, upon the like occasion, Judg. 1. 1. & 10. 18, 2.7. And this he the rather did, becaute, this was the first expedition, which he undertook of himself, against Gods enemies, the for-this nothere expressed.

this hether athered id, because, this was the first repedition, which be underrook of himself, against Gods enemies, the fear of parts of the first o

V. 6. And it came to pass, when Abiathar——fied to David

10 Keilah that be came down with an Epbed in his band] That is, in his custody and postersion, and together with it, the brestplate, with the Urim and Thummim, whereby he confulted with God, being the high Prieft, Exod, 28. 30. whose coming must needs be very acceptable to David, not onely because he had escaped the common flaughter, but also brought with him the Ephod, whereby he might consult and ask counsel of God, in all difficulties and dangers; of which comfort and pri-yiledg, Saul being by this means deprived, it was a plain evidence of his rejection, and of Davids advancement to the

And it was told Saul, that David came to Keilab ] Namely, by some of his spies, whom he had appointed to watch over him, and to observe his motions.

And Saul faid, God bath delivered bim into my hand] Though Saul were hated and rejected of God, and David accepted and I have except med the death of at interprint of 100 Janeers 1004 [3] Shall were nated and rejected on 7004, and LARVA accepted and That is, Though I was no caule of it, a shaving no (uch intended tion, (it being fore against my will) yet I must needs confels, becare, yet, like a foolish hypocrite, he putteth out his own ton yet agrief and fortow of heart, that I have been the occopy, and is willing to delude himlest and others, with a conceit, only great grief and fortow of heart, that I have been the occopy of the puttern of tion, (it being fore against my will) yet. I must necess contents, per, nice a nonim orporette, nor posterior my great grief and form of the freing they full result that Labay been the co-closed from of its; fering they full result that the calentines, not onely form yill keep, but partly also, through my fault.

V. 32. Ability thou with mill. That is, under my protection of the second of th a noole, as he might eafily catch bim.

V. 8. And Saul called all the people together to war] That is, v. o. eans Sant sauce au tre pepte regener to war j 1 nat is nutfred a great Army, under colour of going to make war a gainst the Philitims, and to relieve Kcilab; whereas his pur-pose and intention, was, to fluorize David and his men. V. o. And David knew, that Saul fearethy practified mightig against bim] That is, both by secret intelligence from some of his friends, and upon good grounds of reason, he plainly understood, that how soever he pretended, in raising this army, to make war against the Philistims, yet he intended to come therewith against him and his followers, as it is verse

V. 10. Saul fecketh to come to Keilab, to deftroy the city, for my

V. 11.

V. 17 Will the men of Reilab deliver me up into bis band ? ( &c. Of which be had full affurance, by Samuels anovnting Will Stall come down? ] David being in a great flrait, maketh | him, and Gods profering him in all his kercick acts and his addresse unto God, and doubting whether he might (having done them lately fo great a favour ) continue with any fafery to himself and his company among them, seeing the City was of good strength for defence against Sauls forces, if the Citizens would be faithful unto him. To which end . he propoundeth two questions, wherein he defireth to be refolyed from Gods Oracle; the one, whether the men of Keilah would prove treacherous unto him, if they were put upon ian would prove reconctous unto him, it they were put upon trial; the other, whether they would be put unto it, or no, by Sauls coming; unto both which, God giveth an affirma-rive andwer, which was not to be understood as absolute, seeing neither Saul came to Keilah, nor did the Keilaites de-Refing persone counting to the state of the then a positive truth, to inform him what they would do. And thus God in his præscience knoweth, in future contingents, what would come to paffe, in the course of natural caufes. though in his absolute decree, he bath purposed that they fhall never happen; and therefore croffeth their courle by other contingents. So here God telleth David, that Saul certainly would come down, and that the men of Keilah would deliver him into his hands, if their purpole were not croffed by Davids

V. 12. Then faid David, Will the men of Keilah deliver me and the Lord faid, They will deliver thee up. ] Though in common humanity, they were bound to have protected David, with the hazzard of their lives, against Sauls rage, seeing they knew him to be innocent, and had ventured the life of himself and his followers in their defence; yet all this would not make them faithful to David, nor keep them from requiting his fervice with base treachery. The which proceeded not out of any barred to David, but love of themselves. For hearing that Saul was coming against them with a great army, and what cruel execution they had done on the City of Nob, they feared, if they fhewed any favour to David, it would be their case; and therefore thought it better, that one inno-cent person should perish, then that their whole City should be destroyed.

V. 13. Then David and his men, which were about 600. arole V. 13. Then David and on men, white were about 600, angle, and departed on § feelab! Though having lately obtained to great a victory, with his small company, against a great army of the Philittims, he might conscive hope by the same affishance, to prevail in like manner against Saul and his forces, yether rather chose to go away, and to make what shift he could, for rather chole to go away, and to make what thirt ne could, not their fafety, then to fight with Stall and his army; partly, because he would not lift up his hand against the Lords anowned, and partly because he would avoid the firedding of the blood of Gods people, who would have been slugghered on both sides, it is had come to a battle; which would have brought this feandal upon him, that out of his ambition, he had by forcible means affired to the Crown, and had laid the foundation of his Kingdome in the blood of his and it was told Saul - and he forbare to go forth] i.e. He defifted to profecute his purpofe in going to Keilah.

V. 14. And David abode in the Wilderneffe in Brong bolds

v. 14. Ante source were relatively progress own j As intending only to stand on his own desence, and not to raise an offensive war. and remained in a muncian in the Wildernesse of Ziph There were two Cities of this name; one spoken of, Joh, 15. 14. which was neer to Idumea, distant from Jerusalem, 22. miles, (as travellers report) and neer unto Idumea; in which were many steep mountains, and cliss of rocks, Obad, v. 4. The other neer the wilderneffe of Maon, mentioned, Jofh. 15.55. and four miles from Keilab, which is here meant; from whence this wildernesse adjoyning to it had its name.

and Saul (ought him every day] i. e. So maliciously was he bent against him, that he made it his chief work to profecute him every day, that is, as long as David stayed in the land,

1 Sam. 27.4. V. 15. And David fam that Saul was come out to feek his life

v. 15. And David for rose only was come our to seen to seen the set of seen of could reftrain him from doing this feafonable duty, of vifiting and comforting him in his greatest need, and most desperate

And firengthened bis hand in God] i.e. By putting him in mind of Gods promifes, and affuring him of his protection and favourable providence watching over him, he firengthened his faith, rable providence watering over another the fauther and filled his heart with comfort and courage.

V. 17. And be faid amo him Fear not, for the hand of Saul any father shall be by all his distribution of the saul and father shall be by all his distribution.

ligent and daily learch discover thee; neither shall his power reach unto thee, to do thee any hurt.

enterprifes.

And I shall be next auto thee Of which he conceived home grounded on Davids love, and the firm covenant contracted between them; though he had no affurance of it, God having paffed no luch promife unto him, but was purposed to dispole otherwise of him, and to advance him from an earthly pil-grimage, to an heavenly Kingdom. And thus (as it is oblerved) Gods faithful children do sometimes fail of their hopes in carthly things, whereof they have no absolute promise, for their better preferment unto things spiritual and heavenly.
And so Paul hoped that God would deliver him from death. as he had formerly done, and that he should be restored to livered from thence, but there ended his dayes by a glorious martyrdome, 2 Cor. 1.10. Phil. 1.24.

and that also Saul my father knoweth ] To wit, by remembring Samuels words, ch. 15.28. and feeing Gods favour towards thee, in thy good fucceffe, and continual prefervation. ch. 20.30,32. & 24.20. V. 18. And they two made a covenant 1 i.e. Renewed and confirmed their covenant by oath in the presence of God, the fecond time, after it was first made, ch. 20.16. & 18.3. and (as some think) in the presence of Abiathar the high Pric st, with his Urim and Thummim.

Then came up the Ziphites to Saul to Gibeah] Who were of the tribe of Judah, and of Calcbs posterny, descended from Ziph his grandson, who gave them their name, I Chr. 1.42. And this must needs much trouble and afflict Davids foul, that his brethren of the fame tribe, thould deal thus treacherously with bim; yea, and prefently after he had faved them out of the hands of the Philistims, their mortal enemies. And therefore, in anguish of spirit, upon this occasion, he penned the fifty and fourth Pfalm, in which he complaineth of their perfideoufness, under the name and notion of ftrangers, that were rifen up againft him, v.3. for though they were brethren in respect of their tribe, yet they were strangers in respect of their alienation in affections of which their treachery, there was (as it is likely ) the fame cause that moved the men of Keilab, to wit, their fear of Sauls wrath and rage, and the horrid effects which issued from ir, to all the inhabitants of Nob, if he should be suffered to thelter himfelf in their councry.

V. 19. Doth not David bide bimfelf] i. o. Know affuredly . that he bath bid himfelf.

in the hill of Hachilah, which & on the South of feshimon Heb. on the right hand of the Wildernesse: As the vulgar latine also readeth it, and others also take it. Though (as I conceive they are in the right, who use the words, Hachilah, and Jeshimon, as proper names of particular known places, (as our translation also hath it;) seeing they were more fit to direct Saul to the par-ticul it place where David lay, then those more general tearms, the right hand of the wildernelle

V. 20. And our parts shall be to deliver him into the kings hand] t.e. Do but grace our action by thy presence, and back it by thy power and assistance, and there shall be no sailing on our parts for power and annuance, and once man do not along on our part for the apprehending of him, and bringing him under thy power. V. 21. And Saul [aid, Bleffed be ye of the Lord] Where, in his hypocrific, he maketh filew of religion, to encodarge them in their treaton and creachery, and darent to pronounce a bleffing from the Lord, after that in defiance of him, he had flain his

V. 22. Go I pray you, prepare yet, and know - for it is told me that he dealesh very subtilly ] As if he had said; ye cannot be too cautious and cunning, in discovering his lurking holes, feeing he is fo full of craft and fubrilty, (as I am informed by those who have well observed him, ) that he will deceive you, and escape out of your hands, if you be not very circum-

V. 23. And come ye again to me with the certainty, and I will go with you ] i. e. So by your care and diligence, provide for my case and honour, that I may not lose my labour, and come off with thame and diffrace, by his escaping, and I will not be wanting on my part to do what you defire, but will finde him out, if he be above ground, though in the most secret corner of all the land.

V. 24. And they arose and went to Ziph ] i. e. Prepared and addressed themselves for their journey, and went before Saul as his guides, to bring him to David.

But David and his men were in the Wilderneffe of Maon ] i. e. Being told that the Ziphites had discovered him to Saul, and that he was coming with an army to take him he removed with his company from that place where he was formerly hid, that is, the hill Hachilab, in the Wilderneffe of Ziph, to a Plain in the Wildernesse of Maon, on the South side of Teshimon.

V. 25. Saul alfo and bis men want to feel; bim ] Or, for Saul and then shalt be King over Ifract ] Or, but thou shalt be king, and ble men, &c. Where a reason is rendred why David did because it was told him by his spies, or friends, that Saul was coming thither to feek him:

and when Saul heard that, he purfued after David in the Wil derneffe of Maon] Which was also in the tribe of Judah, Josh.

15.53. V. 16. And David made bafte to get away for fear of Saul ] That is , being thus botly purfued by Saul , and thereby brought into extream danger, they being fo neer one another that they had only the mountain between them, he was that mey had only the mountain between them, he was brought into great lear of being furprized by Saul, and there-fore made all possible speed to get surther out of his reach, yet so, as that in his fear he was supported by his faith, though mixed with much doubting, and even flaggering with weak ness; which caused him to call in question the truth of Samtiel the Propher, and Gods own promifes made by him, 25 appeareth by the 16. Pfalm, v. 10, 12. which David penned upon this occasion.

V. 27. But there came a meff uger unto Saul ] And thus God, even in the very nick of time, was feen in the mount; and when the forrower of death, and the pains of hell did compafe bim, and were ready to get hold upon him, he calling upon the Lord was delivered. Pial, 116, 2.4. God fo ordering it by his providence, that Saul, by an unexpected message, is taken off from perfecuting David, and forced to imploy his forces in another

Y. 28. Wherefore Saul resurned from purfuing after David Because be knew that the Philistims, if they were not prevent ed, would utterly waste and destroy his land; and therefore them, whereas there was no fuch bafte of pursuing David, leeing separate himself, and to leave off from following David, and to turn his forces against the Philistim.

V. 19. And dwelt in ftrong holds at Engedi] A City of Judah, Jofh, 1 5.63. called also Haz zon-Tamar, the City of Palm-trees, which abounded there, Gen. 14.7. 2 Chr. 20. 2. where was a ftrong Caltle feituate on an high craggie mountain, and a craggie rock, neer unto the dead fea, (as travelers relate) under which were fruitful places abounding with ers relate) under which were trutten places abounding who Ballam, wines, and other reuits; unto which Solomons Song alludeth, Cant. 1.14. My beloved is ansome as a chafter of Camphire in the vineyards of Engedi; unto which a Wildernesse adjoyned, that borrowed its name from it, unto which David now fled ; and here (as it is thought) penned the fifty feventh Pfalm. And thus he did, hoping that Saul would not purfue him thither, feeing it was in the utmost borders of the land and 36 miles diftant from Maon , especially , being fuch a and 30 miles of the third that and repetations, some content on pass through it without much difficulty. Though berein he failed of his hopes, seeing (as it appeareth in the next chapter) Saul was fo transported, and (as it were) carried upon the wings of malice and fury, that he pursueth him bither also in his flight, there being no difficulty or danger that could hinder his pallage.

CHAP. XXIIII.

Verf. 1. T / Hen Saul was returned from following the Philistims] Which had invaded the land of Ifrael, cb. 23. 27. V. 2. And Saul - went to feeh David and his men upon the rocks of the wilde goates] i. e. Upon the high craggy rocks and cliffs, upon which, flore of wilde goates lived, as their manner is: whereby he shewed his desperare rage, and mortal malice against David, in that nothing could discourage him from pursuing his life, though this expedition were likely to prove tedious, troublelome, and full of danger, both to him-fell and his whole army.

V. 3. And Saul went in to ever his feet ] i.e. To do his eafement. See Judg. 2. 24. and the note upon it.

And David and his mere remained in the false of the cave ] i.e. Lay hid in the innermost parts of the cave. For (as it is objerved by writers and travellers,) fome caves in that country, and others alfo, as in Germany, are of luch vaft wideneffe, that they are sufficient to contain in them great numbers of men. And such an one was this, which (as it is thought) the inhabitants in those parts made use of, to shelter their sheep in the fcorrhing heat of the day, and to fold them in it by night, to preferve them from wilde beafts, which abounded in those defert places. Into which, Saul might enter, and not discover them that lay hill in it, both in respect of the largenesse of it, and because, though they might see him coming into it, there being some light in the first entrance, yet he could not discover them in the immost pares, having purposely bid themselves in the mine hand, I spared thy life, and that when I was much pro-dark, by the fides of the caye, that Saul and his men might not worked and pressed by some of my campany, to eake that leave the bill Hachilab in the Wildernesse of Ziph, and came ( V. 4. And the men of David said unto bim, Bebold the day down from the rolk there, into the Plain of Maon, to wit, of which the Lord hath said unto thee] We do not read of any see day that God had formerly spoken of, wherein he would de-liver Davids enemy into his hand; and therefore some think. that this might be faid unto him by Samuel, when he was with him laft at Naioth; Others, that this might be comprehended under Gods general promife, that God would deliver all Davids enemies into his hand, which they here apply parti-cularly to Saul, as being the chief, and above all the reft. Bur more probably, (as others think) no more is meant hereby her this, that God by his providence, had offered unto him a prethis, that God by his providence, had direct unto him apre-fent opportunity of cutting off his enemy; that thirsted after his blood, which he could not let flip without offending God, by neglecting to high a favour, and wronging himfelf and all his the glecting to night a travel, and with furth mortal malice.

then David arofe, and cut off the skirt of Sauls robe privity.]

Which (25 Expositors conceive) be might do, Saul not discerning him, either because of the noyle of Sauls souldiers about the Court, which might easily drown that little noyfe which David made with his itealing upon Saul as quierly as he could; or, because it was their custome in those times, to cover their head and feet when they did their eafement, for comlinefle and modelly fake; from whence the phrase of covering their feet did come. Or finally, because (as others suppose) it was the skirt of his robe or upper garment, which (haply) Saul laying afide till he had done his businesse, in some distance from him, it was cafie for David to cut off the skirt of it. And this David did, to demonstrate his innocency, and the calumnies of his enemies, as though he fought to take away Sauls life, to he falle and frivolous, leeing he spared him when he was in bis power, and might as eafily have cut his throat, as the skirt of his robe.

V. s. And -..... Davids bears (mote bim, because he had out he might meer with him at better leifure.

**Therefore the called that place Sela hammabicketh] i.e. The core of divisions, so called, because Sala hammabicketh are to conficience, because he had as core of divisions, so called, because Salai there was torced to conficience, because he had done the least injury to the Lords are nted, though it were upon good ground, and to a profitable end, namely, to convince Saul of his falle jealousies, and his own innocency.

V. 6 And be [aid unto bis men] That is, when he faw them much discontented, and even ready to mutiny, because he would not kill Saul, baving this opportunity put into his band, that fo both he and they might have an end of all their tedious troubles; and, being freed from all further danger, they might go quictly home to their own habitations, and enjoy the comfort of their wives and children , he ufed this weighty, feafonable, and conscionable speech, to pacifie and keep them from bursting out into further fury.

The Lerd forbid that I flould do this thing to my Mafter, the Lords anounted That is, the Lord forbid, that it should once come into my thoughts to kill him, unto whom I am fo deep-ly bound in a double obligation; first, because he is my mafter, unto whom I owe the fubjection and fidelity of a fervant, and also my Soveraign Lord and King, anoynted and fet over me by Gods own appointment, unto whom I owe fe-alty and alleagiance; and though he feeketh unjuftly to take away my life, yet I will not revenge my felf upon him, by taking away his, but refer it unto God, to whom vengcance b:longeth, because the Lord, who made him King, bath only power and right to depose him.

to firetch forth mine hand against the Lords anounted] i.e. To kill, or lay violent hands upon him to do him any hurt. So Gen. 37.22, & 22.10.

V. 7. 80 David flaged his fervants with thefe words ] That is, pacified and took them off from profecuting their purpole.

V. 8. David alfo arofe afterward, and went out of the cave, and eryed after Saul] Though before he had, for fear, hid himfelf from Saul; yet now, having not only the testimony of a good conscience, inwardly witnessing his innocency, but also a cleer evidence to convince Saul of his integrity, with all considence and boldnesse, he cometh out of the cave, and cryeth after him, that he might flay to hear him plead his cause; but withal, useth the best means he could, to appease his wrath and dis-pleasure towards him, and to free himself from all those jealousies and hard conceits which he had conceived of him. first he stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed himself in all humility, doing his obeyfance, as to his King and Soveraigu; and then he maketh his just apology, wiping away those foul afpersions, which slanderous tongues had cast upon him, not imputing any blame to Saul, but to his Sycophants, and ill counfellers, though in truth, he himfelf was chiefly faulty; only herein he could not juffifie him, that he had given an eafice

V. 10. Bebold, this day thine eyes bave feen, &c. ] As if he had faid. I shall need no other arguments to cleer my innocency against their table calumnies, and pernicious imputations, but thine own experience, in that, when thou wast this day in opportunity of killing thee, which God in his providence had (whom, lately, his spiric was so imbittered with rancor and ma-given me; the which lail odd on a religious and conscient—liee, that seconing to give this his name, he contemptuously tious ground, which allowed ship-crust ethou are the Lords | called him the sin of Jeffe, ch. 20.31, $2.213. anovated, and not out of a prefent pang of pity, which might quickly vanish.

moreover my father] So he calleth him, because he was his father in law, having married his daughter, and being a King, was the father of his people, that he might 'fhew his' reverend respect unto him in both these relations.

bops the Lord had delivered thee to day into mine hand ] Not that God had delivered him into his hand, that he should kill him, for then David had finned in sparing him, as Saul did in sparing Agag, or Ahab, Benhadad, 1 King. 20. 42. But his meaning is that God had offered unto him opportunity of killing him, which in all likelihood, he might have laid hold on, being his mortal enemy, had not God restrained him, by making him know that he had done it to this end, not that he should kill him, which be could not lawfully do, (for though be were anounted King, yet Saul was fill in possession, and his Lord and Soveraign.) and though his fins against God had deserved death, yet he had no authority to inflict it; but rather that hereby he might have a fit occasion to exercise and approve his patience, humanity, and charity, in sparing him, and to manifelt his innocency, and how guiltleffe he was of that foul afperfion with which his enemies had blacked and branded him, that he did lye in wait for Sauls life.

See, yea fee the skirt of thy robe] i.e. Do not look upon it flightly, as a small matter, but seriously consider of it, as a plain evidence to cleer my innocency, feeing if I had been fo ill-affected, as thy base flatterers render me unto thee, I might as eafily have killed thee, as to cut the skirt of thy robe. yet thou baunteft my foulto take it] i. e. Thou doft with as much eagernesse seek my life, as an huntsman pursueth the wilde beafts through woods and hills, bushes and hard passages, to catch and kill them

Chap, xxiv.

V. 12. The Lord judge between me and thee and the Lord avenge me of thee] i. c. beeing I have not taken upon me to be judge in my own caufe, because it doth not belong unto me, but unto the supream Judge of heaven and earth, nor avenged my own quarrel upon thee, when it was in my power to have done it, as not belonging to me, but unto the Lord alone, to whom vengeance belongeth; therefore I make my appeal unto him and his judgment leat, defiring him to paffe a righte-ous fentence between thee and me; and hearing my innocent cause in which I do so unjustly suffer, that he will be pleased to do me right. But howfoever, though it should not feem good to him to do it, yet I am fully refolved not to avenge my felf, by fecking thy ruine.

As [sith the Proverb of the ancients] Having convinced Saul of his innocency, by that experience which he had lately of him, he confirmeth the fame by an ancient Proverb, containing in it such a truth, as bath been of old generally received wickednesse proceedeth from the wicked, but mine hand shall not be upon thee | i. e Wicked men like themselves will act their evill counfels in their evil actions, for fuch as the tree is, fuch will the fruit be; but thou needest not fear any thing from me, to thy hurt and prejudice, feeing thou half found the contrary by thine own experience; but let them do what is most fuicable to their wicked nature, I for my own part, being of another disposition, am resolved to act accordingly, that is, to refer my caule to God, and not to revenge my felt in my own private quarrel.

V. 14. After whom is the King of Ifrael come outa dead doz, and after a fea] i. e. In pursuing me, thou holdest a courie that doth much difparage and difhonur thee, feeing when as God bath exalted thee to be a great King, even over his own chosen people, then dost that which is far below thy greatness, in taking to much pains, and bending thy strength against me, who am so weak and contemptible, that in comparison of thee, I am no more to be esteemed then a dog, or flea. So 2 Sam. 9. 8.

V. 15. The Lord therefore be Judge] i. o. Seeing I have neither will nor power to do thee any burt, and yet thou pursuell me with such engernels, the Lord who both promised by his mighty power to support the weak and humble, and to protect the innocent against their oppressors, take my cause into his own hand, and preferve me, his humble fervant, against thy

V. 16. Is this thy voice, my fon David ? ] Being throughly convinced of Davids innocency, by his late experience, and very fensible of the great danger out of which he had cscaped, through his humanity, he was possessed and affected with admiration, and for the time fo rapt up and ravished with apprehension of it, that he seemeth to be in an extasie, or dream, doubting whether he heard David speak, or no. And so did

And Saul lift up his voyce and wept ] Being, for the prefent; convinced by Davids carriage, of his innocency and his own fin, he was (as we lay) overcome with kindness, and built forth into tears, and other expressions of his grief; whence one taking notice of Sauls obdurateness in all wickedness. Girls that Mofes did a great miracle, in bringing water out of a rock. but David a greater who with his carriage and words fo fmore the flinty heart of Saul, that there iffued from it these teares and contessions.

V. 17. And he faid unto David. Thou are more righteness then I ] With the expressions of his forrow, he joyneth the confestion of his fin, and how unworthy he was to finde such favour at Davids hands, whom he had pursued as an enemy; and a profession and testification of Davids, both innocency, and merir, with a petition and prayer to God, that he accordingly would reward him, especially, for preserving his life, when it was in his hands to take it from him.

V. 19. For if a man finds his enemy, will he let him go well away? As if he had faid, furely a man will never do it; judging all others by his own disposition, who was much addicted to feek revenge, and not according to the rule of true charity. which overcometh evil with goodness.

V. 20. I know well that thou fhalt furely be King \ Namely, because I fee that God bath endued thee with kingly vertues, prospereth thee in all thy enterprises, and watching over thee, doth preferve thee from all dangers, and from the attempts of all that rife up against thee.

V. 21. Swear now therefore unto me by the Lord ] Saul, being guilty of his own demerits, is affected more with fear of Davids hard dealing with his house and posterity, then put in hope, by the experience which he had of his humanity and elemency; and therefore, carrying fome natural affection to his children, he laboureth to fecure them from the danger of Davids revenge, when he came to be King, and had power to do it. And David [ware unto Saul] Having, in effect, bound himfelf by covenant and oath before unto Jonathan, to do the fame that Saul here required; which if he had refused to do, his jealousse would have been thereby increased, and he more excused for persecuting David, of whom he had no better assurance. But here it may be demanded, how David can be said to have observed this oath, when as afterwards he delivered the five sons of Merab, Sauls daughter, and the two fons of Rizpah, his Concubine, to the Gibeonites, to be hanged > 2 Sam. 21. To which it is well answered, that David sware in truth, having a full intention to observe his oath, for his part, as much as in him lay, as appeareth in his putting them to death that murthered Ishbosheth, though he had taken up arms against bim, 2 Sam. 4. and by his preserving and cherishing Mephibosheth, ch. o. But in the other , he was not left to his own choyce, but necessitated by a special command from God, to deliver them into the hands of the Gibeonites, for their fatisfaction, that Gods wrath being appealed, the heavy judgment of famine might be removed from the land, 2 Sans. chap. 21. ver. 1, 6, q. And therefore, in this he brake not his oath, feeing he did it not voluntarily, but in obedience to Gods command, and by his Special Commission and direction, which is sufficient to difrense with all oaths.

But David and his men gat them up unto the hold ] That is, of Engedi, having yet no confidence in Sauls fincerity, feeing after reconciliation, he had so often returned to his former malicious practices, chapter 26. ver. 2. and chap. 27. ver. 1.

CHAP. XXV.

Ver. 1. And Samuel dyed] i. e. A natural and peaceable death; for though Saul, like a bloody tyrant, raged against David, and the Lords Priests, yet he never attempted any thing against Samuel, though he had denounced from God his fentence of Sauls rejection, and of the election of another in his room, better then he, who was David, as he vehementin his room, better then he, who was David, as he vehement-ly suspected, year filting, ch. 14, 20, partly, becaule he was in high esteem among the people, as being the Lords Propher, who also had for many yeers been Judge over the land, executing his office with all justice and integrity, and to the fingular benefit of all, both in the time of peace and war; and partly, because, having retired himself to a private life, be conceived that he was no way dangerous unto him, feeing be did not intermeddle with the affaires of the State and Common-wealth; But especially, it came to passe by the good hand of Gods providence, who restraineth the rage of tyrants, it take with him, that he expresset his affection towards him Pfal. 76. 10. not suffering them to act such cruelties asotherin a fweet compellation, and calleth him his fon David, againft | wife they would. By which providence also it came to paste, TTT 1 that Samuel dyed not fo long as his testimony was necessary, natural abilities, pains, and industry. that David was the man whom God had cholen King ; but that David was the man whom God had created hing; but then departed this life when as Saul himself knew it, and al-fo had confested and protested it. But withal, this is here brought in, to firew, that God, for the further tryal of Davids brought in, to in: w, tout couls for the lifetions, that he took away

Samuel from him. who was his chief itay, to firengthen him

v. 22. with his counfels and comforts, in all his croffes and calamities, doubts, and difficulties, that lo he might wholly reft up- of peace. on him, as his rock and refuge. Now concerning the time of Samuels death, it is thought to have been not long before Saul was fain upon Mount Gilboah, he having lived as Judg 20, years, and is yeers in the reignost Saul; unto which there are two yeers only wanting, to make up thole 40 yeers flower of, ACL 12, 21, which is likely to be the time between the death of Samuel and Saul. and all the Ifraelites were gathered together, and lamemed him? i.e. very many of all forts and conditions affembled to folemnize his funeral, and to bewail, not only their loffe of him. as heing a faithful Prophet, who revealed them unto Gods Will, but also their fin, in rejecting his government, which by fad experience they had now found, to be much more profitable, then that of a King , which they had cholen and preferred before it.

and buried him in bis bouse at Remab ] Which now was the place of his habitation, and his fathers before him; in which was the usual place of burial than belonged to that fa-

And David arese, and ment down to the Wildernesse of Paran] Which lay on the South border of the tribe of Judah, towards Idumea, and neer unto the wilderneffe of Maon; unto which place David withdrew himfelf from Engedi, taking advantage of this time and occasion, wherein they were busied about Samuels funeral, boping (it is like) to finde there more friends, and to be in leffe danger of Sauls pursuit , lying hid in this Wilderneffe, then in the other place where he had been dif-

V. 2. And there was a man in Maon, whose possessions were in Carmel Maon and Carmel were Cities in the tribe of Judah, ner unto one another, and therefore they are named together, John 15, 55, and in the one, Nabal had his habitation; and by the other, a great part of his lands and inheritance, where he kept his cattle, and much of his businesse lay. The ed; but it was also the proper name of two places; the one, in the tribe of Iffachar, where Eliah flew Baals Priefts, neer the brook Kishon, 1 King. ch. 18. 20,40, the other, this in and the man was very great] i.e. Abounded in wealth 2 Sam. 10.22. which if Gods grace be wanting, maketh men not the better, but the more proud, infolent, churliff, and fooliff, seither knowing themfelves, nor other men, Prov. 1-32. fooltis, neither knowing themfelves, nor other men, Erov. 1-21, which effects is wrought in Nhall, from whence (if temeth) he had this firmame, fignifying a fool, and not from any narul defeft that was in his underflandings. Now this is add as an aggravation of Nhalla churithi incivility towards David and has followers; for had be been a man of but a mean clatae, he might have had fome excelle of not tellering. Davids great number of men, seeing what he had been able to give, had not been confiderable among fuch a multitude ; but being now of that vast wealth, and upon the occasion of his great feast so well provided, he might have been bountiful to them, and referved plenty for himself and his fervants, if his minde had been fuitable to his present con-

V. 3. And the name of his wife Abigail ] Signifying the fathers joy, a name well fuiting with her nature and condition. For what can bring more joy to a fathers heart, then fuch a vertuous, wife, and beautiful daughter? only it brought grief to his and her heart, that the was thus croffe-match'd with a to his and her nearr, that he was thus croite-mated a with a victous, foolish, and churlish husband; as it is, and bath been the lot of many of those few her equals; God so in his providence disposing of it, for the exercise of their faith, patience, and obedience, and to work in them contempt of the world, and willingnesse to leave it when he pleaseth.

and evil in ble doings] i. e. Ill-conditioned, and wicked in all his course and carriag and be was of the boufe of Caleb] i. e. A degenerate off-fpring of a vertuous, wife, and noble parent, as it often happeneth, feeing grace goeth not by inheritance, nor can be intailed to posterity, but is Gods free gift, which he giveth to whom he pleaseth, and often denyeth to the children of vertuous and religious parents, that they may not be thought to come by nature or education, but that the glory of them may be afcri-bed to him alone, as the fole donor. For though they may provide for, and bequeath to their children riches, lands, and postedions; yet not grace, vertue, and wildom; so, nor yet those company gifts a which cap only be acquired by their own

V. 4. And David beard in the Wildernesse, that Nabal did (bear bis [beer] i.e. Being in the Wildernesse he heard it. Ar which time it was their custome in those Countries, to make a great feast for their fervants, workmen, and friends . which was the occasion of Davids fending unto him, 2 Sam. th. 12.

V. 5. And greet bim in my name ] Heb, ash bim in my name

V. 6. And thus fall ye fay to him that liveth in profpwity] i.e. Samuels death, it is thought to have been not long before In my name pray, that as he now liveth in peace, plenty, and profperity, fo that shefe bleffings may be continued un to him fill even to the end of his life. peace be both to thee, and peace be to thine boufe] t. e. Let all pappinefic reft upon thy felf, and all that belongs tinco thee, and a bleffing from God upon all that thou baff.

V. 7. And now I have heard that thou haft [bearers] i.s. That it is the time of thy theep-thearing, whereat, it is the cuftome to make a feast, which is the occasion of my fending unto thee, and making this my fuite.

now thy [hepheards which were with m, we burt them net] i.e.

Though it be usual for Souldiers and men of war; having power in their hand, of doing what they pleafe; and to be very yexatious to those that live neer them, yet it was not so with us, who carried our felves peaceably and juffly sowards thy fervants, doing no man wrong thy iervants, doing no man wrong.

neither was there ought milling unto them ] i.e. They loft noting by our means, of thy goods, we taking nothing from them to supply our wants, though they lived necruntous; (a thing rare and commendable in military men) but feeing it was of necessity, that they must have some relief to live upon, it is like that they fetch'd their provisions further off, out of the Country of the Philistims, and other their bordering enemies, as Jephthah had formerly done, Judg. chapter 11,

V. 8. Ash thy young men, and they will fhew thre ] Unto whom he referreth him, not only because their tellimony might perhaps carry more credit, then his speaking in his own cause, but alfo, because they were able to testifie that, which in his modefly he concealed; namely, that they were fo far off from defly he conceased; namely, that they were to far on from doing them wrong themselves, that they protected them a-gainst all injuries, which otherwise they should have suffered arthe hands of theeves, or by the in-roads of bordeting enemies.

wherefore let the young men finde favour in thine eyes, for we come in a good day] i. s. In the time of mirth and featings in which there is much plenty, and wherein men are bound by law of charity, to contribute to the relief of their brethren who are in want, Deut. 14.26,29. & 15.7. & Hefth. 9.19. And thus David, rich in grace, and highly in Gods favour, is for the prefent brought to low, and into fuch a poor condition, that he is fain to make his humble addresse to a rich and chur-

lift fool, Ecclef. 10.7.
give I pray thee whatforver comet to thine hand] i.e. which thou hall in readincite; and are willing to befow.

into this (errants, and to the fon David) i.e. Who have done thee service, and are willing to do so still; and unto David, whom thou canft not but take notice of, by his fervich which he bath done to the Common-wealth, and his many victories over Gods enemies, whereby he hath descrived thy love; especially, seeing he carrieth towards thee a son-like affection. By which humble and modest carriage in his fuit, interlaced and sweetned with so much love. Nabals faultinesse in his churlish answer, is much aggravated, as being contrary to reason, sence, and common humanity.

V. 9. They spake to Nabal according to all those words, and cassed i.e. They gave him no just offeace by their surther mportunity, preffing him no more then was fit, to grant their fuite, but only propounded it in this fair manner, and then were filent, expecting his answer.

V. 10. And Nabal answered Davids servants, and said, Who it David ? ] i.e. He thinks it not fufficient to deny the fuite, unleffe he also vent his rancor and malice, by rayling and reproachful freeches. And first, he slighterh his person, and in way of contempt, he asketh who he is as though he were a man altogether obscure, and not worthy to be taken notice of like Pharaoh, Exod, c.z. though David were fo famous for his vertues and good parts, his victories over Goliah, and the rest of Gods enemies, his marriage with the Kings daughter, and the high honour and effeem which he had formerly been in with all the Kings fervants , yea, the whole land, court, and country. And therefore it was not the ignorance of his minde, but the malice of his heart, when he faw him in an afflicted and poor condition, and now out of favour with the King, which made him, by way of feorn, to ask who he was; to which purpose also be addeth, and who is the son of geller as not vouchfaling to call him by his own name, and much lette Chap, xxv. the kings fon in law, but twitting and upbraiding him with , never forcefonably, which is the cause why I now addresse my his poor parentage.

There be many ferumes now adapts, that break away every man from his mafter] i. o. That breaking away, do con from their mafters; which is a metaphor borrowed from refty horfes, and refractory cattle which break their bridles and bands, and run from their owners. Where, unto his contempt, he addeth a caiming and repressing, as usuing use and use minoress were no better their rogues and running arts, that had left their callings, so the in this idle courie of hits feeing not only David himlelf had thus tun from Saul his Lord and mafter, but alfohad animated many of his followers to follow his example,

V. ar. Shall I then take my bread and my mater ] Which he nameth, because water was very scarce in that hot and dry Courtry, Gen. chap. 21. ver. 25. & 26. 15. but it may be, here, and in many other places, it is put generally for any

V. 2. So Davids young men turned their way, and ment again] Or, went their way from Nabal, and returned to David their

V. 13. And David faid unto bis men, gird son on every man bis [mord] David is fo incenfed and enraged with this inhumane, churlifh, and contumelious answer of Nabal, to his first that being out of all patience, he beestheth nothing but flarp re-venge; and he, that at other times, could with humble meeknelle bear Sauls perfecutions, Shemei his railings, and Abloloms rebellion, bere, had no power to coatain himfelf from desperate sury: Yea, he canses and proxoketh his followers to joya with him; and he, that before, depressed the rage and violence ch. 26.6. is now the hellows, to blow the coals, and inflame others. Which was not onely from hence, that grofs ingratitude, and reprochful speeches, are more intolerable to a generous spirit, then blows and wounds, inflicted on the body; but especially, because God is pleased, sometimes to withdraw his grace from his dearest children, and leave them to themselves; that discovering their feathy and weakness, they may rely upon him, as their onely firength, for the time to come, and not rest upon the bruised, and broken reed of their own ftrengeb. And thus David, being bere left, discovereth much inward corruption, and deeply plungeth simfelf into gross and grievous fins. For he resolvesh to take, not onely private revenge, and so to incroach upon Gods royal prerogative, Rom. 12.49, but in a most unjust manner and measure: for though Nabals authe wore great and odious, yet they were not such, as by the law of God, deferweih death. Secondly, he taketh upon him to at a thing, of such great confequence, very rafuly, and without any deliberation. Thirdly, he bound himfelf to perpetrate this bloody fact by an oath drawing hereby, God himfelf, by being a witnesse, to countenance his horrid flaughter; as if this corruption had not been flrong enough, if it had been left to its own liberty, nor hafty enough to perpetrate mischief, unleffe it were spurred on by an oath, to act it by such a time. Fourthly, Though Nabal onely had offended yet he relolveth to defiroy with him all his innocent family, wife children and fervants, even to the very dogs, though they that knew his faults haved them as much ashe himfelf.

V.14. But one of the young men told Abigail] That is, one of her and Nabals fervants, fearing what mitchief would enfue, upon his Mafters churlifh answer, and not daring to tell and fore-warne him of it, by reason of his froward and perverse disposition, he addresseth himself to his Mistresse, whom he knew to be vertuous and prudent, that, taking notice of it, by his information, the might use some good means, timely to to falute our Mafter, and he railed on them ] That is, in way of currefie, to thew his kinderespects to him ; and he, in strad of taking it kindly, did abuse both bim and them, by reproaching and differening them, ; or, as it is in the Hebrew Text, he flew upon them, like a bird of prey, fuddenly and fecretly.

V. 15. But the men were very good unto us | To wit, when we lived by them in the wildernelle of Paran, and there kept our

V. 16. But they were a wall umo us, both by night and day] That is, a fure defence and throng guard, to protect and defend us, from receiving any hurt or damage, either by wild beafts, or men, that is, theeves or enemies.

V. 17. Mom therefore know, and confider, what thou will do? As if he had faid, there is no deferring and demurring on the matter, For David, being a man of worth and courage, will never fuffer fuch groffe abole to go on revenged, yea rather, you may well think, that he is already fully relolved on it, and will fuddenly put his purpole in execution, if you use not presently (ome good means, whereby you may prevent it.

For be k fuch a fon of Belial ] See Deut. 13. 13. and Judg. 19.22. and the note upon it.

that a man cannet fpeak ume him] That is, he is to harth and [elf unto you, and not unto him.

V. 18. Then Abigdi made hafe] That is, knowing, that the present approaching danger, to her whole family, would admit of no delay, the makes all, possible speed to pacific Davids wrath, with a liberal Prefent, which could not but be accepted. in this bis great necessity, being joyned with an humble and just apology.

V. 19. Bebold, I come after you Herein, thewing her prudence, not sectuding a businesse of such great concernment, to her servants, but acting it herself, as being most able to ma-nage it, and most faithful to her own coule.

but the sold not her bushand Nabal Because the knew him to be of fuch a croffe and crooked nature, that he would rather have exposed bimfelf, and all his, so despesate danger, then have vielded to her enterprize.

V. 20. As the red on the als, the came down by the covert of the bill 1 That is the did not ride on in the common rode way, left going in fuch great hafte, the might be ftopped, and hindred in her paffage by fome occurrent, but maketh choyce of a covere and fecret way, under the hollow of a hill, that being nor feen, the might not be interrupted in her journey : And David alfo (as it feemoth) comingagainst her,upon the lame ground, that he, and his company, might not be discovered, they mer together, as foon, almost, as the one could see the other; God fo ordering it, by a special and gracious providence, for the good of them both. V. 21. Now David bad [aid ] To wir, when his fervants zeturning from Nabal, had reported unto him his churliff anfwer. Others think, that he now fpake, or, again repeated it in Abigails hearing.

V. 22. 60, and more alfo, do God to the enemies of David] That is, So, and no otherwife; or, on no other condition, do I defire, and imprecate Gods just judgements, upon all other Davids enemies, that being destroyed, he may be delivered from their malice and sury; then I purpose and resolve to deftroy and atterly root out this Nabal, my malicious enemy, and all that belong unto bim. Or, God grant, that all the enemies of David, may fo fare, and no better nor worfe, then I intend to do unto this wicked and ungrateful fellow. Concerning this form of imprication, See Ruth 1. ver. 17, and the note upon it.

any that piffeth against the wall] Which a is proverbial speech used by the Hebrewe, signifying a total extermination of an house; so as, not so much as a dog should escape unkilled. So I King. 14. 10. & 21.21. & 2 King. 98. Some think, that by this phrase, is implyed, that he onely intended to deftroy all the males; but that he extended it to all males and females, it plainly appeareth, ver. 24, where he faith, that God had kept him back from hurting Abigail her felf, by her wife and feafonable counfel.

V. 23. she bisted and lighted off she ass, and fell before David on her face By which humble deportment, the qualified his rage, and moved him with patience, to give her audience in what the should speak.

V. 24. Upon me, my Lord, upon.me, let this iniquity be That is. Let me be punished instead of my husband and his family, if I do not both clear my innecency, and also make it appear unto thee, that there is great reason, why thou shouldest forbear to revenge thy self on Nabal, and these that belong unto him, for his folly and wickedness, so that thou wilt vouchfafe to give me the hearing. Or, if you pleafe let me be reputed an offender. and fuffer for it , rather then thou shouldst destroy our whole family, and thereby make thyfelf guilty of a great fin, in feeking private and cruel revenge. So the woman of Tekoa, 2 Sam. 14. o. And thus doth the wife'y divert Davids wrath from her husband, who had justly deferved it upon her felf, who was not onely innocent, but even exceeding commendable in Davids judgment for her vertue, wildom and humility; knowing him to be fo pious and jult, that he would rather spare the wicked for the righteous fake, then punish the innocent for the faulty, according to Gods own example, Gen. 18.25,26.

V. 25. Les not my Lord, I pray thee, regard this man of Belial] That is, it is not for thy honour, to take any great notice of his words and carriage, who is forfar below thee, that he cannot be thought upon without great difparagement; feeing, by contending with him thou wilt, in some fort, make him thing equal, who, in respect of thy picty, and his wickedness, is not to be named with thee the same day. See Judg. 10. verse even Nabal; for as his name is, fo is he: Wahal is his name and folly is with bim] i.e. Seeing but a fool and a churle, therefore nothing but foolish words, and churlish actions can be expected from him. In which respect, you should not lay them much to heart, feeing wife men do not much regard the words of fools. And thus doth the defeant on her husbands name, and difgrace his person, not because she took any delight in caurlifh, that he hath no patience to hear a man speak, tuqugh thus speaking, (though it were nothing elle saving a known

Chap, xxvj.

keep him from utter ruine. But I thine bandmaid fam not the young man ] And was therefore wholly innocent of all that paffed; and had I feen them a mount mave account to present an the minority can make the coroning to transtationness and now, which is made in the present and the based to more write and the fober carriage; of if I could not prevail with him, by sing my precedity shall require. I should have laboured to prevent all this mischief and miscar-confirmeth her speech by a solemn oath, being about matters of great importance, and needing confirmation; namely, that if he would not feek private revenge, but commend his caufe unto God, unto whom vengeance belongeth, he would furely revenge his quarrel, both upon Nabal, and all other his enefeeing the Lord bath withholden thee from coming to Joed blood.

That is, feeing, he hath to ordered it, by his wife providence, the bath made in the procession of the providence of the providence of the providence of the procession of the providence of the provid [seeing the Lord hath withholden thee from coming to [hed hlood]

Nabal, and all other thy enemies that rife against thee.

now let thy exemies, and they that feek evil to my Lord, be as Nabal Or, now shall thy enemies be as Nabal. Or otherwise, here there thould be nothing expressed, that the oath hath reference unto. But being thus read and taken in this sence, then the inearcth, that if he would leave vengeance to God, and not take it himfelf, then he would do it for him, and make all Davids encomics as Nabal; that is, as edious for their wick-all Davids encomics as Nabal; that is, as edious for their wick-edness, as he, both to God and man; as impotent and weak, and favour; itesing, men will not receive gifts from entomics, to do him any hurt, and as fure to be feverely punished by the hand of God, as Nabal shall be, or should have been, if David had done as he did intend.

V. 17. And now this bleffing, Or, prefent-let it even be given to the young men ] hat is, though it be fo mean, that it delerveth not the acceptance, nor the personal use of so great a Wortby, yet do not reject it; seeing, it may, in refirct of their prefet condition, be of some use for the fervants that follow thee. And thus doth sie, in her modesty and humility, extenuate her Prefent, though it were of good worth in it feli, and of greatule, in respect of their present necessity, to whom ann on geathin, the strong ive the stroppis of thine hand-maid I Sceing, I took all the blame upon my felf, that I might appeale thy wrath against my husband.

for the Lord will certainly make my lord a fure boufe] That is, not flitting, as now, from place to place, but fixed and permanent, not for a flort time, like Sauls, but durable, and perpetual; As if the had faid, Thou thalt have an everlatting Kingdom, and nothing better becometh a King then clemency and

Because my lord fighteth the battels of the Lord ] That is, which are undertaken by Gods appointment, and fought for the de-are undertaken by Coas appearance.

fence of his cause and people, and evil hath on been faint in thee all thy daye! That is, felffive, and cuelty, especially, and therefore do not now revenge, and cuelty, especially, and therefore do not now revenge, and cuelty, especially and the common than the control of the was very drank.

Added there was very merry, for he was very drank.

Mabals beart was very merry, for he was very drank. lose the honour of thy former innocency and clemency, by flaining and defiling thine hand with blood.

take away thy life, though all in vain, feeing thou art lafe under but the foul of my heaf fault be bound in the bundle of life with the Lord] That is, being very precious, and highly effected in his aim to admonth him when he had loft the use of his Reason, fight, he will carefully preferre it, as men use to binde up the will carefully preferre it, as men use to binde up and therefore she wisely deferred it till a better opportuthings, which they much value, in bundles, that they may not be nity loft, nor taken from them, Pfal. 116 15.

men use to fling out stones which they value not; to wir, suddenly, swiftly, and afar off, Jer. 10.18. V. 30. And it shall come to pass, when the Lord shall have done to my lord, according to all the good which he hath spoken] Which is my lard, actorius to all the good which be twit flocker] Which is the conclusion of her (uit, grounded on the conduction of Goods roomics made good unto him, and Davide enjoying them. As if the had fish, When Good had feeled their they Kingdom; all that profiperity, which he had promited there.

V. a. they fall he no griften to thee, nor offence of bears more yield, either that thou half, fleet blood staffers, &c., I That is, and they discontinued to the control of the control o when thou enjoyed all thy professity, thou withstere bave cannot consider the theorem as fall followed my country, it and that the bat followed my country, it and that the bat followed my country is a shallowed to repent, that then bat followed my country is abflair ing from thele things, from which I have diffwaded thee ; that grace to repent of his fin. is, feeking private revenge, and shedding inaccent blood.

Whereas, if thou dost otherwise, it would be a corrasive to thy veneras, it mou nonconcernie, it would one a corrainte to the configured, and a grief to the heart, which would deprive the configured, and a grief to the heart all the mirrh, if the guilt of the fe fins should by upon thee.

truth) but being necessitated to it, having no other excuse to | then remember thing handmaid] That is, when thou findest the benefit of my counfel, in keeping thee from the guilt of fin. do not forget me thy fervant, that gave it: And when thou comest to thy Kingdom, let me finde favour in thine eyes, according to that faithfulness and love, which I have shewed in tectety tome means, as I have now done, to give thee tatisfaction, and avoid thy dipleasure.

V. 26. Now therefore my Lord, as the Lord liverb, and as thy down now proudly refer it, as coming from a woman, but having feel thruth; Sect. 1.0, v. 4, and the nore upon it; where the a meek, numore, and tenderspirit, ne impraced it with all thankfulers, both to God and her; and with the like modelly and humility, he hearkend afterwards to the admonitions and reproofs of Nathan and Gad, when they were fent unto him, reproof of Nation and Suo, where they were tern tumo time, Sam. 12.15.13, and 44.1314.

Bleffed be the Lord Ged of [first] That is, who, though he be God of the whole jearth, yet, in a special manner of Itrael, whom, by coverant he hath made his own peculiar people, and guidance of his al-ruling providence, and the inward motions

V. 34. which bath hept me back from burting thee] And thy whole family, as in my rage I did rafhly swear, ver. 21.
V. 35. Se David received at her hand, that which soe had brought bim] Whereby he gave her affurance, that his wrath was appeared, he fully fatisfied, and she received into grace upon whom they intend to be revenged.

[seeing I have bearkened to thy suit] And therefore will not revenge the wrongs offered unto me by thy husband, either upon himfelf, or any of his family.

and have accepted thy person ] i. e. Received thee into grace, and granted all which thou half desired. And thus David altered his purpose and resolution, though he had ratified it with an oath; and did lawfully break it, because it was unlawfully made; whereas had he kept it, he should have been guilty of a double fin , fieft in making it, and then in keeping it; for the end of an oath, is to binde us more firmly to that which is good, and pleasing unto God; and if it failesh of this end, it is vain and sinful, being the bond of iniquity, which must be broken, because it tyeth us unto that wickedness which God abhorreth. Notwithstanding, he that maketh such an oath as must be broken, ought to repent of his fin, not for breaking it, but for his inconsiderate rashness in making it, as no doubt David did.

David of the bull a feeft in bis boule, like the feeft of a King ]
That is, (As we use to say ) a churles feast, which seldome comets ; but when it doth; is full of buxor, gluttony, and finful excets. Wherein he showed his wicked and finful dispositions. fition, who, though he had nothing to bestow on charitable uses, as the relieving of David and his followers in their neces-

Which is added, to shew the wickedness of Nabals dispositi-Value of the state on, who, though he were of fuch a fowr, fullen, and froward felf; yet he could exceed in mirth in the midit of his cups, and fo add madness to his folly, Eceles. 2.2.

V. 37. But it came to paffe in the morning, when the wine was and the fouls of thine exemite, them [full be fling out] That is, as gone out of Nabal] i. e. When he had out flept his drunkennene. bis wife told him of shefe things] i.e. Having gotten an op-portunity, that the might speak to some purpose, for which the had waited till she found him sober, the layeth hold on it, and wifely admonisheth bim, both of bis fin, and the desperate danger which thereby he had run himfelf into, if in the very nick of time, the had not prevented it.

bis beart dyed within bim, and be became as a ftone] i.e. He was so astonished with sear, and stupified with the deep apprehenfion of the danger, related to him in a pathetical man-

V. 38. And it came to passe about ten dayer after, that the Lord smote Nabal, and be dyed] i. c. The Lord took Davids quarrel

V. 3.9. And when David beerd that Nabal was deat; be V. y. And be fare that Santame after thin ] That is, he fail, Bieffed be the Lor I] Not finally rejoying in Nabals ruine; had fome intelligence of it, given more him by some of his Prov. 24. 18. but becaule it tended to the manifestation and magnifying the glory of Gods justice, in punishing the wicked, according to that, I fal, 58, 10, 15. And because he had withheld him from falling into a great and bloody fin, in reventing his own cause and quarrel; and having taken it into his own hand, had done it himfelt.

And David fent and communed with Abigail to take her to him to wife] That is, having observed, that the was every way fit for him, both in respect of her piery, prudence, person and portion; as being of great wealth, which his prefent condition, might fomewhat cause him to respect, he sendeth his servants unto her to commune with her about marriage; yet not prefently (as it is likely) upon his death, but in fome convenient. time after the mounting being over, which would beft fit their credit and occasions. And he chose rather to lend others, then go bimfelf, that the might be the more free in her choice, not being over-awed twith his personal presence ; and that he also might come off with less disgrace and discontent, if he thould (haply) receive a repulse in his suit.

V. 44. And the arose, and borned her self on her face to the emib That is, in honour of David, before his Commissioners. as representing his perfon.

Les thine handmaid be a fervant to wash the feet of the servants of Les thing disamma of a jer count to will diserver of the fervants of my ford? Where the expresses the town, sweet, and meck spirit, by a most humble complement; wherein she acknowledgeth her self to far unsit for such an high advancement, that the was unworthy the place of one of the meanest servants of his servants, and that in the basels service, of washing their of this tervants, and chart in the object tervice, of waiting their feet. And hereby, the showeth, not onely her humility, but also her faith; not looking upon David, as a poor fugitive and exile, but as he had Gods promise of the Crown, and was, at his appointment, by Samuel annoynted King of Ifrael, ber feet. That is, who, as her handmaids, waited thon her.

V. 43. David also took Ahinoam of Iefraet 7 A City in the

V. 43. Datus was sown Annaus of septect 1 A City in the tibe of Judah, John 15, 54th had given Mitchal, Davids wife, V. 44. But [Or. for] Said had given Mitchal, Davids wife, to Phalitibe from of Lalip] Who is also called Phalticl, 2 Sam. 3. 15. And this is rendred, as a reason, why David now took thefe wives, because Saul had taken his wife Michal from him, and given her to another. Which was a fingular act of injustice, to take away a mans wife from him against his will he puttee, to gate sawy a man wite from our against in win, set with grade that a block of the same developed in the said of districts and the said of th having ventred his life to objain her, in a dangerous service, now he had (as he thought) greater reason to hearken to his Baving-vented as the coopins are, in a camperous tevrice, for killing two handerde Phillifram, and giving their fore-skins or Saul in flead of a down. And this act of injulities Saul added coal his order wickefundle, not unsit out of his delegation of the coal of the co mend his title to the Crown, or, gain any of her kindred and friends to further his claim, especially, if his male-iffue, in those times of war, should be cut off by the fword, as it hapned afterwards.ch. 3 1. 2. which was of Gallim ] A place in the tribe of Benjamin,

CHAP: XXVI. · · ·

Vers. 1. And the Ziphites] i. e. The inhabitants of Ziph, in the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15.55. Into whose coafts David came again, though, once before, they had fought to betray him, ch. 23. 19. Either hoping that he should now finde there more lafety, because, having experience of Gods fayour towards him, in his former deliverance, they would not faid, I will not hearken to thine advice; for I will neither finite again attempt to betray him; or, that Saul would not now him, nor fuffer him to be finitten, but leave vengeance unto purtue him, having bound himself to defift from such practices, God, to whom only it belongeth, Roin. 12.,19. and him also by their former reconciliation, when he had spared his life, chap. 24-16,17. Or, because (as some think) this place was most at for my felf, I will have no hand in his death. convenient for him, upon his marriage with Abigail, because tonvenient for thin, upon his marriage with Abigail, becaule her goods and polificions adjoyned unto it.

came again suto Sault o Gibeah J For having before plaid the traitors, and fearing, if David should come to the Crown, he would call them to account for it, they use all their endeavour to cut him off, that he might not come to it, for their own indemnity. And feeing that Saul, for a while, had defilled, and David had lived in quiet; and was lately married, thry come, of death, and David to his Kingdom. their own accord, to betray him to Saul the fecond time.

Doth not David bile bimfelf in the bill of Hachilah ] That is, know for certainty, O King, that he hideth himself there, in the very same place, where thou didft before finde him, and hadft surely furprized him, if the coming in of the Philiftims had not pre-

V. 2. baving three thousand chosen men of Israel with him? That is, such as were the snoft skilful and valiant.

friends.

V. 4. David therefore fent out fries, T That is, baving fome notice of it, he fent our feoures, that they might difcover the certainty of it, whether that which was reported, were fo or no, who brought him word that it was fo indeed

V. S. And David arofe, and came to the place where Sant bad pitched] That is, he went first thinher, secretly, humself alone, and(as fome think) difguiled. and Abur the for of Nr | Chap. 14. 15. & 17. 55.

and Saul lay in the trend] Or middle of his carriages. That is, enclosed with the carriages, fearing, left David thould in the ight, make fome fudden attempt to furprize his person.

V. 6. Then answered David | That is, faid on this occasion. to abimelech the Hittito] That it, by Nation, but now an Ifraelite by protession, being a Prote yte, converted to their reand to Abishai the son of Zerviah ] To wit, Davids fifter, who had three fons, Joah, Abifhai, and Afabel, 2 Chron. 2.16. Who are fill mentioned under her name, and not their fathers, as chiefly taking their honour from her, being Davids fifter, and not her husband, who was of a meaner family, and to us unknown, being no where spoken of in the Scripture.

Who will go down with me to Sand to the camp ] David him elf. no doubt, was moved by Gods Spirit to undertake this dangerous enterprize, as Gideon, when he went to the camp of the Midianites, Judg. 7. 18. For the confirmation of his faith, in theassurance of Gods protection; and that he might have another occasion to convince Saul of his innocency and fidelity. And that it came of God, it appeareth by that deep fleep which he had fent upon Saul and the whole Army, to lecure David from danger. But this not appearing to others, he enquireth, who had the heart to accompany him, defiring to have fome V. 42. with five damofels of bers, that went after ber] Heb. at [ with him both for his comfort, and that they might be witneffes of all that hapned.

And Abishai said, I will go down with thee ] David had made the motion, both to Abimelech and him; but it feemeth, that Abifful accepted of it alone, and not the other; or rather, because David would have no more but one to accompany him, that he might act what he intended with the more secrecy.

V. 7. came to the people by night i.e. Entred into Sauls camp, through the midft of his army.

V. 8. Then fail Abilbri to David, God hath delivered thine God, if he should let slip such an opportunity of providing for his own fafety, when God so apparently, and even miracu-lously had offered it unto him.

let me fmite bim, I pray thee with the spear ] To witswhich flickcth in the ground at his bolfler.

and I will not fmite him the fecond time ] That is, I will firike him fo furely, that I will kill him at one blow, fo as there shall not need to give him a fecondwho can firetch forth bis hand againft the Lords anoynted, and be miltleffe? ] Though David was the Lords anounted in reverfion, yet Saul in poffession; and therefore he thought it unlawful for any to remove him, but he alone, who had thus called him to this King y function.

V. 10. David faid, Morcov r, as the Lord liveth] As if he had to do with him, what he pleaseth, and when he pleaseth; but the Lord first finite bim | i e. With fome plague, or mortal fickneffe, as he did Nabal or bis day shall come to die ] To wit, according to the course of nature, in his old age, when the principles of life are decayed and Spent, Job 7.1. & 14.5. & 5.26. or he shall descend into bestle, and perish ] Which was that way, of these three that God was pleased to use, to bring Saul to his

V. I t. Take thou now the flear that is at his bolfter ] To wir. that I may use it as a means to convince him once again of my fidelity and innocency, feeing it will appear to him and all men. that I might, if I had been ill-minded towards him, have taken. away from him, as cafily his lite, as his forar.

and the cruise of water ] Which he might use in those hot countries to quench his thirst in the night, or to wash himself, as be should have occasion.

Chap. xxvii.

becape a deep fees from the Lerd was fallen spon them? To writ, That Dard might have this opportunity to clear his moceans, and might come and go fafely about it.

V. 1.3. And fixed on the top of an itil a faref]. To wit, on an hill, that his voce might be the better heard, and it as good diffunct from the carp, that after his freech to Saul, he might more easily electory by lightly the were profued.

called often, before he could awaken him, because they were in a deep fleep.

Who are thou that cryest unto the King ] That is, who cryest so loud that the King shall hear, and be disturbed of his rest. Or, it may be, Abner not hearing at the first, he might indehim, Abner might take notice of it.

V. 15. Art not thou a valiant man ? And who is like thee in

For there came one of the people in to destroy the King thy lord ]
Or, when there came in one of the people. That is, either Abishai, who made this motion; or, he meaneth indefinitely, that any one might have come in (for any care that they took) to flay the King. V. 16. And now fee where the Kings spear is ] That is, take notice of the truth of my words, seeing I have the Kings spear, and cruse of water here in my hands, which stood at his beds. fide, when he was afleep, that I may not feem to accuse thee wrongfully.

V. 17. Is this thy voice my fon David > ] Here again, being convinced of his innocency, and even in an extance of admiration in the apprehension of his humanity and clemency, he ac- cited him unto it knowledgeth him for his fon, and thereby professeth his love and reconciliation; whereby it appeareth, that the hypocrite persecuted David against his own conscience, and contrary to his premife and oath, 19.6. & 24. 20.

Saul, namely, that if the Lord, for his fins, bad flirred him up, by Sauly namely that it the Lora, for all time and threed him up, by the ministery of that evil spirit, whom he had sent to inrage him, topersecute David, without any just cause, a Sam. 24. 1. Then it was his best course to reconcile himself unto God by facrifice, that he might be freed from those frantick fits, and naerince, that he might be treen from those trantick his, and not be hurried on by Sathan, as his instrument, in these malicious courses and perfecutions. Or, if it were for Davids fin, as well as his, that God had done all this, it were fit they fhould both of them, the one as well as the other, labour to pacific Gods just displeasure, by oblations, joyned with repentance and confession of their fins, and fervent prayer for mercy tance and confellion or their fins, and tervent prayer for mercy and forgivenels. Or elle, it may (in the conceite of others) her referred more David bimfelf, namely, that if it might appear that he had offended, and polly provoked Sauls dipleature against him, he was willing that the law flould proceed, and that being juffly condemned, he might be offered as a factified, even to the death, if the had deferved it, that Gods dipleating the conference of the c free, even to the cate, in the case, the case of the first might be appealed, justice being faithfield.

But if they be the children of men, carfed be they before the Lord.] That is, if it be court-Sycophants, or any other malicious enemy, that by their lyes and flanders, have fine in the court of the c against me, I leave them, as curfed creatures, to Gods just re-

againt me, i seave tacin, as cursed creatures, to your juit re-venge, who will plead my caude against them, for they have driven mecus this day, from abiding in the inheritance of the Lord J That is, the land of promise, which God a-bove all other places and Kingdoms hath chosen for his peculiar inheritance, and there placed his tabernacle, ark, and holy liar inferitance, and there placed his tabernaces, aris, and hosty after seeding to the setting of the continuence of the conti neerer his heart, then the loffe of house, lands, friends, and all other his worldly enjoyments, Pfal. 42.2. & 84.1,2.

[aring, Go ferve other Gods] That is, though not verbally, yet really they have done it ; and as much as in them lyeth, they caufe he went not now covertly and fecretly, but openly and have compelled me to idolatry, by forcing me, as an exile, to profetfiedly, making himfelf known to the king; and (it may beings a despece from the Lord was fallen upon them] To V. 20. Now therefore let not my blood fall to the timb before wit, That David might have this opportunity to clear his the face of the Lord] That is, feeing thou feel my impocency, do not thus purfue me, even to the shedding of my guildesse. blood; for God is a prefent witnesse of all our actions; and as a just judge will severely punish blood causelesly spilt, when from the earth it cryeth unto him for vengeance, Gen. 4. 10. Others take it as a profession of Davids confidence in God, as more eafily eleape by flightif he were pursued.

V. 14. And David cryed unto the people, and to Abner] That if the Lord who is precline, and electh mine innovers, and the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Krings fairty.

Kings fairty.

Albert? I fetemeth, that he cryed and Abner? I method to the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Army, had the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Army, had the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Army, had the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Army, had the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Army, had the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Army, had the chief charge lying upon kim, to provide for the Army, had the will not permit thee (O King) to thed my Alpert? I have the will not permit thee (O King) to the d my onoo.

for the King of I fract is come out to feek a fica! See ch. 24

ver. 14, and the note upon it.

V. 31. because my faul was recious in thise eyes this day! That is because having my life in high efteem, thou half spaced me, finitely cry out, Who is there about the King, and so naming when it was in thy power to have killed me; and preferred my life, as precious in thy fight.

Rehold, I have played the fool, I have erred exceedingly] Where

15. Art not not a value man 3 of the new N section in 15 of the new payments of the ne that ne migat not emotitee his pirits but speaking unto min single to the subject and the size with this honourable respect, he might make the better passes, the size of the missister of the size of tor insteption. Wherefore high that not kept the land the King? Or, not kept a vigilant watch about him for his fafery, that no enemy which cased him unknowingly togo out of the right, into a wrong way, through a militare, against his will; whereas it was the envy and hatred of his heart, which made him to perfecute David, though he knew his innocency, onely for this cause, be-

V. 22. And David answered and faid, Behold the Kings fpear Having taken it from the King, onely to clear his innocency; when it had lerved for this ule, he maketh confcience of retaining it, (as before he did of cutting the skirt of his robe) and erefore taketh care to return it to the right owner. Yet he durst not trust him, by going himfelf to carry it, because he had so often, after shew of reconciliation, returned presently to his old practices, when the evil spirit which was upon him ex-

V. 23. The Lord render unto every man bis righteoufnefs and V. 23. 10 to to a render into every man but rigorous legis and faithfulness Or, and the Lord shall render. That is, recompence every man according to his works, or the equity, or iniquity of his cause, with rewards or punishments; rewarding his primite and onth-1-0. A. 14-10.

V. 1.9 If the Lord hath filter the early experience and the state of the tatinut; and to me, among the reas who now and neterotors, have approved my felf to be one in this number; and punifi-ing thole who are faithleffe and numighteous; and me among them, if ever I be found to be fuch an one to thee or on

> V. 24. So let my life be much fet by in the eyer of the Lord] Who is able to preferve it, though thou shouldst fail of thy promise, and feek again to take itaway, as not effeeming it a thing of any

> Thou [halt both do great things, and also fhalt fill prevail] To wit, sgainst thine and Gods enemies ; or, all things shall profper in thine hand, according to thine own heart, and thou shalt be crowned with Regal dignity, mangre the malice of all thine

> So David went on bis way | That is, that he might retire himoo DAMA MORION DIN MAJ ] HART IS, that he might reture him-felf to fome place of fatery; not trufting to Saul, for all his good-ly words and fair (pecthes, having alwayes found him malacious and faithleffe, as appeareth in the first verse of the following and Saul returned to bis place ] That is, to Gibeah-Benjamin of Saul, where he kept his Court.

CHAP. XXVIL

Verl. 1. And David feid in hie bears, I fhall now perifione day by the hand of Saul To wit, if I do not use means to escape the danger, by getting me out of his

there is nothing better for me, then that I foodd freedily efects into the land of the Philiffins) Because being professed enemies to Saul, his power could not extend thither. But as they were perience, what desperate danger he had run himieri into, by going to them; and what base shifts he was fain to use, that he might escape out of it. And yet now, he will need go thither again, trusting in his own canal wisdom; and hoping by his own policy and providence, to be there in fafcty; be Bee into idolatrous countries, and so endanger my felf to run be) contracting with him, by his agents, before he went, that he might have the publike Faith for the kings protestion, and ais own fafety, in regard that he came now with confiderable | mifchiefs, and was likely to do them more, if they did not make forces, to do him fervice. But herein David bewrayed his use of this opportunity to cut him off. But by this reason which weakness of faith, and affince in God, through humane fealty; is rendred for his not pursuing him, it is implyed, that notwho though he had Gods promifes of protection, and that he withflanding their late reconciliation, he would again have famild live and come to be king, maugre the malice of all his prefecuted him, if he had continued in the land. enemies; and had also much experience of Gods providence enemies; and had also much experience of Goas providence V. 5. And Dividiana to 20019— Let them give me a place in watching over him, and delivering him out of many great and [ometown] i.e. Let forme of tay Officers, by thy command deimminent dangers, in a mervailous manner, when as there apimminent dangers, in a mervailous manner, when a m danger, he relying on his own policy, for fecuring himfelf, in his prudence, maketh modelly and humility cobe the ground fleeth to the Phillitims, which was a course unlawful in it felf, of his fuite, though he had other ends and ayms mit; as fifth. and also of evil and dangerous consequence. For it was ex- that his followers might not be corrupted with their vices, and prefly forbidden Gods people to make any leagues and covenants with them, or to have any familiar converse and conver- might have the free exercise of Gods pure worthin, which would fation with them; and God before by his propher, had check-ed David for living with the Moabites, (which yet was more ing absent, he might not so easily be deaven in, to joyn with colerable, then to live with the Philiftims, who were in the them in their wars against Gods people, 4. That wanting other number of those cursed nations, which were devoted utterly to means to maintain his followers, he might more unknown, he rooted out) and was commanded to come from among and unfulpected, make in-roads into the bordering countries them. ch.22.2.4. Again, David was charged and enjoyned by and live upon their spoyl, who were by God, devoted to de-Gud to return into Judea; in obedience of which command, ftruction. he might be fure of Gods protection; and now not confulting unto which God had defigned him, and fleeth to the Philiftims. | 31. but was pofferfed till now by the Philiftims. Moreover baving been fuch a profested enemy to them,& done against their enemics, and fight their battles, (as afterwards he him to the kingdome, I Chr. 12, 1, 22, profesieth (though feignedly) he was ready to do, ch. 29.8.) was drawn to luc and diffemble, v. 11. to deny his profession,

W. 8. And David and his men went up and invaded the Gessue. By his absence from Julea, the power of Israel was much 16 3 best Souldiers, and greatest Worthjes in the land resorting unto him at Ziglag, untill they grew to fuch a number, that they descreed to be entituled, the army of Gad, that is, a great and mighty army, 1 Chr. 12.1,22, which (as fome think) was the cause of Sauls overthrow; though it seemeth to me, that and the Amalekites. this refort unto him was after Sauls death, feeing they came to him thither, to make him King, & Chr. 12.38. and yet it must fides Jordan. be granted, though he had not this great army when this battle was fought; yet the absence of David himself, and his 600 valiant men that followed him, was a great weakning to the army of Israel. Finally, hereby he exposed himself to the dishoneur of ingratitude, and breaking the bonds of civility and humanity, by making himfelf beholding to them for his protection, and provisions for his fullenance, whom he must afterwards, when he came to be King, fight against as mortal ene-V. 2. And David arofe, and paffed over with his fix hundred men] Having first (as it is likely) by his agents contracted with the King, on conditions agreed upon between them; and to having obtained from him fafe conducts, and protection for himfelfand unto Achijh the fon of March hing of Gath] Which some think was not the fame Achill that he was with before; and that he is faid to be the fon of Maoch, to difference him from the oagain ; but upon other conditions, and in another manner; before, fecretly and difguiledly, as a private man; but now, epencompany following him, to do the king fervice, and upon cauti-

Ons and conditions agreed upon between them.

V. 4. And it was told Saul - and be feeght no more again for bint] To wir, because it was bootlesse, being in the land of his fuch an holy and good man; yet think, that he did not at all tell enemies, and out of his reach, and (as he hoped) needleffe, because they were likely to kill and reveage themselves upon it right of the nations that divelt on the South of Judah, and him, being now in their hands, who had done them fo many

V. 5. And David faid to Achifo ... Let them give nie a place in for why (hould thy fervant dwell in the royal city with thee ] David especially the idolatry exercised in the royal city, 2. That they

V.6. And Achish gave him Ziglag that day] Which by Gods with God by the priefl, as his manner was, be leaveth this place, donation did formerly belong to the tribe of Judah, Jofh, 15.

where ore Ziglag pertaineth to the Kings of Ilraelto this day ? them fo much mischies by flaying their Goliah, flaugtering 200 Not only by right of inheritance from God; but also by the of them, and dishonouring the whole nation, by circumcifing Kings free gift; which was to ordered by Gods providence, their dead bodies, befides all other his victories, he could have not only that David for the prefent might have a fit place of had no hope of reconciliation with them, or fafety amongst them, bitation for himself and his followers; but also for raising and unlesse he would now leave his party, the people of God, and forming a great army; all those having hereby opportunity to turning wholly to them, would be ready to joyn with them refort unto him, who favoured his caule, and defined to advance

V. 7. And the time that David dwelt in the country of the Phi. professeth (though teignedly) the was ready to do, en. 29.0.) v. 7. extra we time to a work divers in the country of time was.

Finally, hereby he gave a grievous scandal, both to his friends, listims was a full year, and four moneths? Heb, a year of dayes for in leaving the cause of God, which he was bound to defend and dayes and four moneths. Some would have it, that he was there maintain, and themselves also to the malice of their enemies, but four moneths, and certain dayes. But because dayes is put whom (as much as in him lay) he was bound to protect; and alfo to his enemies, who through his fides would take advantage er, and because dayes is put for a year of dayes, and a facrifice to wound religion, and the professor of it, as being men who of dayes, for a yeerly facrifice, ch. 1. 21. and because Achistr to wound religion, and me processors of it, as being men may of days, for a year, measures (m. 1.21. and measure tentral would be ready, notwithstanding their goods finers, for the (faith, that he had long experience of his fieldity, which cannot fecuring of thems(leves, to betray the cause of God and his peo-) be limited to a few months, the 10.1, and all the things done per of earthly advantage. The evil confequents also of flecing to have been done in so florer a space; therefore (as I concerve) and to declare himself a friend to the uncircumcifed Philistums, rites, and the Gegries Who were some reliques of the Caand an enemy to Gods people. Upon this occasion, Ziglag naanites, whom God appointed to be destroyed; but at the was burned, their wives and children carried captives, and himfelf in danger to be stoned in a mutiny by his own Souldiers : of Ephraim, and went to the Amalekites, Josh. 17. 5, and and the Amalehites. 1 Which were descended from Esau. whom Saul was commanded to root out, ch. 15. 1,2. but left fome alive, which David now deftroyed. See ch. 15.7,8. and the note upon that place. Forthole nations] i.e. The Geshurites, and the Gezrites, were the inhabitants of the land] i. e. Of Canzan, ca both as thou goeft to Shur | i o. The entrance of the Wilderneffe to Shur, towards Egypt,

V. 9. And David [mote the land ] To wir, the inhabitants of that Country, that is, the Amalekites, the inhabitants of the land, which were to be deft-oved by Gods command, Exod.

17. 14. 2 Sam. 15 3. and left neither man nor woman alive? Both because he knew that God had d voted them to destruction; and also, because there flould none remain to carry tydings of it to Achilh, who would have been offended, if he had beard, that thele nations, who were his confederates, and (it may be alfo) his tributaries were destroyed by David, v. 1 r.

V. 10. and Achifh faid, Whither have ye made a rode to day?

V. 10. Ann Accept plant, promot many emails a rose rought 1 Or, did jou not - ake a role to day.

and David fail against the south of fudah, and against the South of the fersionelites, &c.] Whereby is not means, that he invaded all these Countries in one day, but one of them at one it fements to me, that because it was foliately, and he of the that he invaded the land of Judbin fell, and the other places, gains but upon other conditions. Not fame name, that he was the fame king, unrow whom he went as he would have Achifu under find him. ther, because it is not likely that he would go to him again, time, and another of them at another time, according as that berdered upon them, that is, of the Amalekites, Gefhurites, and Gezrites; wherein Da id, to avoid Achifh his dily, and professedly, as the Captain of 600 men, with all his spleafure, and to secure himself from danger, telleth him many premeditated lyes, and deludes him with equivocations. Divers Expositors, though they do not wholly acquit David, but say that he did not tile that plainnels in his answer, which became a direct lye, because his speech being ambiguous, he understood not of Judah it felfs though his defire was, that Achith thould | doubt) for the King of Ifrael to be made the chief Captain to underftand him otherwife, and contrary to the truth. But the end of queftions, is to be refolved in the truth of things demanded, in a plain fence, and not to be deluded by ambiguous anfwers; and he that speaketh in one fence, and would be underftood in another, and accordingly speaketh the truth, with a purpose to delude and deceive, it is no better then a lye, in that fence wherein he and would be underflood; yea, in this reforch worfe, because it is joyned with more crasty guile, and include a control of the state yes yet use 1 a, 3. At it was a transment equivocation, waits in a felfe finflig, or contrary to direct and plan truth, then a lye is, But with these ambiguous speeches, Achish is easily decrived, because he had a good opinion of Davids truth and integrity 3 and also, because he defired that it should be so, as he said; for we are the more apt to believe those things which we desire, though they be falle, because, for the time which we believe though they be falle, because, for the time which we believe them, they bring as much delight and content, as if they were and against the South of the Ferabonelites ] The inhabitants of a region in Judah, which the pofterity of Jerahmael, the fifth born of Hexton inhabited, I Chr. 2.9,25.

and against the Kenites 1 that were of the posterity of Jethro.

See Judg. 1.16. and the note upon it.

V. 11. And David (aved naither man nor woman alive] To wir, that none might earry the news of it to Achifh at Gath, which was in a good diffunce from Ziglag, and those spoyled countries that were scattered and solitary in which respect their ruine and defoiation was more easily concealed. But yet for all this, it must needs be confessed a great wonder, that such a flughter of men and women, in ne great womer, talkt line a flughter of men and women, in ne great efficience of places, fhould fo long time be concealed, unleffe there were a special band of God init;, for ordering and disposing of it, that David might be preferred from those dangers and evils, which would have befallen him , if ithad been discovered.

[aying, left they flould tell of us] i.e. thus thinking with himfelf. V.12. And Achifh belleved David] Heb. believed in David, i.e. Not only gave credit to his words, but also reposed trust in David, Exod. 14. 31, be hash made bit people utterly to abbor bim] Heb. to flink, Or, to abbor him, as a thing flinking and odious, Gen. 34. 30.

therefore be shall be my fervant for ever ] i.e. Seeing he can ucver have any hope of being reconciled to his people, he will never leave me to go to them, but will remain ftill with me, to do me fervice, as long as he liveth.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Ver. 1. He Philiftims gathered their armies together to fight against Ifrael i.e. Not only Achish, but with him, all the other four Princes of the Philistims; which came to pass by Gods special providence so disposing of it, that Saul, whose sin was now come to its full measure, might be cut off, with all his wicked followers, and so a way made for the accomplishment of his promise, of bringing David to the Kingdom, though on their part, (it may be) they were encouraged to undertake this war by Salls ill government, and the diffractions that fol-lowed thereupon in the Kingdom of Ifrael.

Know thou afteredly, that thou shall go out with me to battle! On which he thus refolveth, out of the great confidence he had in Davids valour and fidelity, whom he supposed he had made sure unto him, by his benefits conferred on him.

V. 2. And David faid to Achifh, furely thou fhalt know what by forunts and a Here again, equivorateth, becaule he would not dipleate recommendate the control of the contro thy fervantean do] Here again, David, through humane frailty, equivocateth, because he would not displease Achish by a reand uncertainting uncertainting up to the property of the first pr

the petry King of Gath, and a groffe idolater.

V. 3. Now Samuel was dead, and all Ifrael bad lamented bim)
The which was before related, ch. 25. 1. but is here again repeated to make way unto the following flory, of Sauls going to the wirch. For Samuel being dead he could not refort unto him for counfel in his great extreamity; and was now quite forfaken of God, and utterly deflitute of all other means, to advise him what to do; and therefore he could think of no other way, but to use the help of witches and wizards, to raise up Samuel from the dead, that he might confer with him feeing he thought that he would most pity his case, and was most able and ready to give him his advice, whom he had alwayes found fo faithful unto him. And thus this bypocrite is driven to feek and fue unto Samuel after his death, whose counsel he had alwayes neglected and Saul had out away those that had familiar shirits and the wigards out of the land | Which is brought in as a difficulty, that croffed Sauls defire ; namely , that he knew not bow to refort to any of these witches, for this purpose, because he had rooted them all out of the land. The which he had done, not out of zeal to Gods glory, or obedience to his commandments, or batred of their fin, but that (like an hypocrite) be might make shew of his zeal and love to religion; and not with an upright and or as zeta and rove to religion; and not with an Upright and true heart, but or airle up an high opinion of him and his zeal, in the minds of the people. For otherwise, he would not now have (ought most hom, if he shad done it in hatted to their fin; a she doth against the light of his own knowledg; and the relimony and conviction of his own conficience. V. 4. And the Philifium gathered themselves tagether, and can also the distribution of the conviction of the control of the contr

and pisched in Shunem] Which was a city frituate in the borders of the tribe of Machar, John 19.18, where Elifha hoafted and harboured, 2 King. 4.8, 10. where Abishag Davids-virgin wife, and nurse, was born, 1 King. 1.3.

And Saul gathered all Ifrael together] i.e. An army out of all the tribes of Ifrael. and pitched in Gilboa Which was a mountainous place neer

Icareel, where Saul and his fons were flain in battle, ch. 31.1. & 2 Sam. 1. 21

V. 5. And when Saul faw the heft of the Philiftims, he was afraid] To wit, cut of his inward guilt of confedence, thinking that the time was now come, of his cutting off.

V. 6. And when Saul enquired of the Lord, the Lord answered bim not] i. e. By fuch means as were at hand, which is rendred as a cause, why Saul defired to refort to a witch.

nor by Hring For Abiathar the Prieft, to avoid Sauls cruel rage. and fave his life, was fled to David, carrying the Ephod and breft plate with him, ch. 23.6. & 30.7. But though he could not enquire by Urim, which was in the breaft-plate, yet it is hero inferred among the reft, to thew, that he was utterly forfaken of God, who either deprived him of the means of enquiry, or would not answer him in those he had.

nor by Prophets ] i. e. By no means, ordinary, or extraordinary, Num. 27.21. And the reason is , because his enquiry was of meer and base fear, and not out of faith . for then he would have been constant in it, waiting upon God in the use of his own lawful means, and not run after witches, as a man desperately resolved to seck help of the devil, if in his own limited time, God would not answer him; which faithleffe enquiring, was no better then nothing; and therefore it is faid, I Chr. 12. 14. that he enquired not of the Lord, because he left the Lord, and enquired of one that had a familiar spirit, and for this, the Lord flew him.

V. 7. Seek me a woman that bath a familiar fpirit] Heb. A Pythonis, or a dame of a familiar spirit; and so familiar spirits means te might avoid the doing either the one or the other, as man unrefively, the dependent upon God; and (no doubt) it are stortly prayed unto him, to finde out fome way for him to earne thy prayed unto him, to finde out fome way for him to earne out of this halprint; a naw as accordingly beard, by being enlineed out of the Philiflims army, through the Princes milke of his going with them to barde.

**And Saud digital binding, and your outbury present Both that the winch might not know him, feeing it was likely, that if many the princes are the princes of the princes head for ever | Being deluded with Davids ambiguous answer, for fear of death; and also because he would not have any other and understanding thereby, that he would give him his faithful discover him, lest they should take notice of his gross hypocrife and bring him me my whom I [hell name unto thee ] That (ing to be King; Sauls beinous and raging fins against God and is, raife him from the dead, and bring him up out of the ground his fervants; the measure whereof now feemed to be full; the hand of Saul, for exercising these inhibited arts? where the woman (though unknowingly) convinceth Sauls conscience of a grievous fin, in feeking to have his purpole by fuch diabolical means, as he himfelf had formerly condemned and punished.

V. 10. And [ware to ber by the Lord ] Impiously abusing Gods holy name, in swaring that he would fin against him, by transgressing his law, which commanded that witches and Sorcerers should be put to death: Exod. 22, 18 Deut. 18,10,and to this end, that he might encourage her to do a wickednesse. there fall no punishment bappen unto thee for this thing | i. c. By my discovery, and making it known. V. 11. And be [aid, Bring me up Samuel] Though Saul reiefted him and his counfel, in his lifetime, and would not be advised by him, yet being now in straits, none but he will ferue his turn And when the woman [aw Samuel, fhe orged with a loud voice] To wit, because the Spirit had discovered to her, that it was Sault the suspecting that he had laid this train to circumvent her, and to take away her life, cryeth out for fear. Neither was it the true Samuel, whom the witch here raifed up, but a wicked spirit, in the shape of Samuel, personating and acting hispart. as if it had been Samuel himself; as may appear by thefe reasons : First, because there is none but an infinite power. (which is peculiar unto God) that can raise the dead to life again; which power, he communicateth fometimes unto his Saints and fervants, that they may confirm the truth by fuch miracles: as he did to Elias, Elizeus, Peter, Paul, and Christ himfelf: but never to the devill, to countenance lyes, and his diabolical acts. Secondly, they that dye in the Lord, are under his protection, and out of Satans reach, and their fouls in heaven. without which , the body can act nothing ; yea the body it felf is deligned to the grave, as a repolitory and place of roll, whence it cannot be railed to life again, unto the day of the general refurrection. And as the devil had no power to bring him, fo it is not probable, that the Lord did fend him ; for if he refused to answer him in a more ordinary way, by dreams, Urim, and his Prophets, it is much more unlikely that he would do it in a more extraordinary and miraculous way, by raifing the Prophet Samuel from the dead ; feeing this course is disclaimed by Abraham, in his speech to the rich glutton, Luk. 16: 21. Neither would Samuel have faid to the witch , Wby best thou disquieted me? ascribing it to the power of her charms, as the cause of his coming. Finally, his appearing in his mantle, doth make it manifest, that it was only a representative shew, to act a part, and not a real truth, feeing he had no mantle to to act a part, and not a resistant, seeing ac and no manute to bring with him from the grave, and place of the dead; but it was only a garmeut of the devils making, and by him put up-on him, that he might more speciously act his part. But against this, two things are objected. First, that in the story he is divers times called Samuel; and therefore he was fo indeed. To which I answer, that the wicked spirit personating Samuel, and acting his part, hath also his name fitly given him; as a Player acting the part of a King, and representing his person, is also called by his name. Secondly, it is objected, that he foretold things to come, which accordingly came to passe; and future contingents are not within the compafie of the divels cognizance, feeing they are wholly at Gods disposing. To this I anfwer, that Satan in some cales, and at some times, can foretell things to come, as being a great naturalift, and able to dive into the hidden causes, and deep secrets of nature, and so accordingly to frame his predictions, which feem wonderful and supernatural unto ils, who are unable to dive into these unknown mysteries. Seconcly, being acquainted with the causes of things, patural, moral, and political, as the premises, he is able to de-God be not pleafed to interrupt this feries and chain of cau-les, as he fometimes doth. And then in fuch a cafe, that his predictions may feem true, whatfoever hapneth, he delivereth them in fuch ambiguous, equivocal, and doubtful speeches, that they may be understood in this or that fence, though they be divers, yea even contrary one to another. Thirdly, God fometimes ufeth Satan as his instrument to execute his judgments, as in the case of Job, and the 400 falle Prophers, deluded by him; and then it is easie for him to foretell those things which belong to the execution of Gods commands. Fourthly, God may reveal things future and contingent unto Satan, and fo he may diffeover them to witches & Sorcerers, before they come to palfe, to encourage and harden their bearrs in their diabolical acts and practices, and others also that refort unto them. Laftly, he might very probably foreother as his rejection by God, and Davids election and anount- for fo, to morrow, is often telephas Exod, 73. 10. & Matin. 6. 34.

great preparations of the Philiftims, joyned with much confidence and courage, compared with Sauls diffidence in God; and and grave.

1. 9. Wherefore layes thou a suste for my life to cause me to deel dence and courage, compared with Sauls diffidence in God; and i.e. Why dost thou exposeme to the danger of death, by the thefeer and fainting of his heart, who had formerly been courage. gious and full of valour.

V. 13. And the King faid, Be not afraid] To wit that thou thalt fultain any hurt or danger by my prefence, feeing it have not fet thee on work to this end, but only to be fatisfied in my demands.

For what famelt thous Whereby is implyed, that he was not by at the first, whilest the exercised her charms and spels, to raife the fpirit; the which witches use to do secretly by themfelves, that their diabolical arts may not be discovered. For if Saul had been prefent at his first raising and appearing, he should not have needed to have asked this question, feeing he was an eve-witneffe of it himfelf.

And the woman faid unto Saul, I faw Gods afcending out of And the woman lata timo Sain, I faw Goost decenting out of the earth] Like an heathen the freaketh in the plural number, Gods, though the faw but one. So Exod. 12.4. And the calleth him a God, either because be appeared in the habite of a Judge or fupream Magistrate, (as he formerly had been) who are called Gods, Pfal. 83.1,6. Or rather, because he appeared. as a glorious and Divine person, like unto God, and with such majefty and brightneffe, as did difanimate and aftonish her: For the devil can transform bimfelf into an angel of light, 2 Cor. 11. 14. Or elfe her meaning is, to denote an excellent person; for so the word, Elohim, though it be of the plural number, doth fometimes fignifie.

and he is covered with a mantle] A garment used by Samuel in his life-time, and other of the Prophets, ch. 15. 27. 2 Kin. 2.8, 13.
V. 14. And Saul perceived that it was Samuel | i.e. Both by her description, and presently by his own fight, he knew him to be Samuel, though it were not the true Samuel himfelf , but the devil in his likeneffe. For foon after the had raifed bim by her divellish feells, the calleth Saul himself to see and talk with him, which was the cause of his coming; and she going out, leaveth them to themselves to debate together of their fecrets, as thinking it no manners to pric into them, as ap-peareth, v. 21.

and he floored with his face to the ground, and horsed himfelf] Being deluded by the devil, he doth him this honor inflead of Samuel; and he, who in his prosperity, neglected Samuel, now, in the straits of trouble, adereth bim as his Superior.

V 15. Why haft thou disquicted me, to bring me up ] It was neither in the witches, nor devils power, to raife up Samuel, bue God permitteth the devil to delude those to their perdition that believe him, and put their truft in diabolical arts.

that thou mayft make known unto me what I fhall do ] i.e. what beft to be done by me, that am in fuch a diffrested condition. V. 16. wherefore then doft thou ask of me, feeing the Lord is departed from the ] As the devil counterfeited Samuels perfon and babite, fo alfo his words and speeches, in all his conference with Saul. As if he had faid, Why doest thou feels to me for counsel, seeing I can do thee no favor, being Geds enemy.

V. 17. And the Lord bath done to him ] That is, to David. according to his promile; and by rejecting and bringing thee. to ruine, hath made way for him to come to the kingdom.
Others read it thus, The Lord hath done for bimfelf: That is, disposed his counsels to his own ends, as he spake by Sainuel, chap. 15. 27,28.

For the Lord hath sent the hingdem out of thine hand The which phrase of renting is used (as some say,) because the whole kingdom was not taken at once from Sauls pofferity, but a part of it, for a while, was held by Ifhbofheth, one of his fons a a part of it, for a wante, was need by interesticate of its losts as it is faid of Solomons kingdom in like case, i King. 11.31.

V. 18. Because then obeyeast not the vayee of the Lord, nor executed fits forecoverably non-America, Sauth and committed many other hainous fins, for which he deferved to be rejected and dethroned; as the murthering of the Locks pricely, and perfecusing David, being innocent, against his knowledge and confeience : But the devil nameth this fin onely, because it was that fin upon the commission whereof , the fentence of rejection was denounced, chap. 15, 28. Where observe the rejection was denounced, each, 15, 28. Where observe the devils method in dealing with his vaffals: First he tempted them to fin, under the notion of a good deed, or work of mercy; and when he base drawn them to committe, he prefseth it upon their confeiences, especially in the day of their calamity, as horrible and hainous, that he may bring them to

V.19. And to morrow finds thou and thy fons be with me Whereby is not meant either heaven or hell, but the flate of the dead, to wit, that they all should be dead as he was. So a Sami 13. 13. Now whereas he telled him, that he foould to morrow be with him in this state of death, he speakerh ambigu-oully; and might be understood, either of the next day soltell Sauls approaching ruine, by comparing one thing with an- lowing, or indefinitely of fome other time neer approaching; And to in this place it is to be understood; for it was not the reason to question his faithful as the rest day, that Saul and his fors were flain, in which the Phi- I have had good experience of him and his fidelity, many dayers liftims were but preparing for the battle, and fent away David or I may rather fay years, he having now dwelt among us a from amongst them, ch. 29. but as it seemeth, a day or two whole yeer and four moneths, ch. 27.7.

steet. And using the same ambiguity, he also faith, that Saul | said I bave found no fault in him] Which was an high comafter. And using the fame ambiguity, he alio saith, that Saul and I bave fined no fault in him] Which was an high com-and his sons should be with him; which, whether it were under-mendation, as being a man, not only adorned with many verflood, either of Samuel, or Saran; heaven, or hell, could not tues, but those also not blemished with any fault. he true of them all, without diffinction.

V. 20. Then Saul fell fireightway all along on the estib | i.e. Being frighted and difanimated with this dreadful news , his sital spirits so sailed him, that he fell into a deadly trance.

for he had eaten no bread all the day 1 i.e. His fright accomfor be had eaten to bread all the day 1 t. c. His tright accom-panied with falling, did, both working together, bring him to this fainting and deadly froon. And the caule of this his falling (as some think) was, that coming to enquire of a the devil imitating God as his ape, who will be fought unto by

V 21. And the woman came umo Saul] Namely, after their conference being ended, the counterfeit Samuel was departed from him; whereby is implyed, whileft it continued, fie had he be a fellow (howfoever high in thy effeem, yet) unworthy abfented ber felf from them.

and I have the my life in mine hand | i. e. I have exposed it to extream danger, to fatisfie thy defire, if thou fhouldft be plea-GA to deal with twe, as thou half formerly done with others of my condition, See Judg. chap. 12. ver. 3. and the note up-condition and never likely to make her any recompense for her colt and kindneffe. But others think, that it was an act of felflove, in which the buly respected her own safety; and fearing if he dyed in her houle, that she would be called unto account for his death, as having fome hand in it, by way of revenge because he trait flain so many of her conforts; the used the best means the could, to comfort and firengthen him, that he might depart fafe out of her hands.

CHAP, KXIX.

Veri. 1. To the Philipina gahered together all their semica to shipled There were diverse. Critics of this name in Canabas i, one that the the old golds, Jeff. 11, 25, 25, another in the withs of Aditrs, John. 19, 20, Judg. 1, 212. And this part tribe of Highest, nere Gibno, by the great field Megiddo, John. 629, 19, ver. 18. Where the Hirschies had then great did wind overthirden is Ming. 20. And the contribution in Ming. 20. And the he Philipina of the contribution is Ming. 20. And the he Philipina of the contribution is Ming. 20. And the Hirschies of their did do the contribution is Ming. 20. And the Hirschies of their did do the contribution in Ming. 20. And the Hirschies of their did do the contribution in Ming. 20. And the Ming. 20. A free the one to the other, and their Camps overfpreading both alike, they are Wid promiseuoully to have pitched fometimes in the one, and fometimes in the other place.

Gilbon, where the battle was fought.

V. i. And the Lords of the Philiftims pafed on by bundreds]

F. They came to take a view of their armies, as they were divided into hundreds and thoulands, before they were to lead them out to battle.

but David and bis mon paffed on in the rearward of schift. Who, though he were but one of the five Kings, or Lords, of the Philiflims, yer (as it feemeth) was cholen General in this expedition and having cholen David and his followers to be his Life guard, placeth them in the rearward of the battle, together with himself, as reposing most trust in them, especially David, unto whom he had faid, that he would make him keeper of his bead for ever, cis, 28. 2.

V. 3. This site Princes of the Philiftims] i. c. The other Lords of their chief Cities, who had affociated themselves with Achifh in this war.

what do thefe Hebrews here] So they call them, in contempt and despite, as being their mortal enemies. As if they had faid, their room were much better then their company, feeing they are likely to do us more than the most a they are likely to do us more than the most and among this people for his wildom and fortitude, and therefore able to do us special service, being now fallen to our

And fo in this place it is to be underflood; for it was not the reason to quellion his faithfulnesse in doing us service, seeing fince be fell unto me] i.e. Since be left his mafters fervice being much wronged by him, and came unto me for protection. And though it cannot be denyed, but that by reason of his valor and prudence, he did us much mischief before time, whilest he was our enemy, yet we shall now thereby receive the more benefit by his fervice, being become our friend, and having left his former interest.

V. 4. And the Princes of the Philistims were wroth with bim] which, he might thus prepare himfelf to receive her answers, To wit, because they thought that Achish was much deluded upon flight and weak grounds, and by his error, would greatly indanger the whole army.

Make this fellow return _____ to bis place which thou haft appointed him? I.e. To Ziglag, which thou haft given him, though of it, being at the beft, but a reconciled enemy, and as yet unknown to us how he will prove.

left in the battle bel be an adverfary unto se ] i. e. Turn from our fide to help our enemies, as others of his nation have ferved us in former times, to our great burt and prejudice,

10. 1. That T may fee smoftl of freed before the T That is, make form poor provision, at I am able, for thy comfort and its method between the bearth of the between the between the between the between the betwe it cannot be, but that it much discontents him, to lose all the N. 14. And the woman had a far calf in the boyle, and he bifted and filled it? Eve with Jofephon much commendeth her; a through a through period more anothe a coff of humanity, and that to Saul, who had defenoyed all whom he could finde of her profittion; and when allowed her had been considered to he will be the service of the large mation yet thus he mult do, and that to Saul, who had defenoyed all whom he could finde of her profittion; in a dwhen allowed was in this defetted and delegrate in mark as the it, to make him visitorious over the service of t mies.

V. 5. Is nor this David of subum they fang one to smather] 1.6.
As he is a man likely to betray us in respect of his own insertes, so is be a most dangerous man, in respect of his great ability to elifect is, being so much renowmed for his yalour and military ry prudence, ch. 18. 7. 8: 11.11. V. 6. Surely as the Lord livetb] He (weareth by the true

God Jehovah, though he were an idolater, either because be had learned to to do of David, or, became twearing by his God, he fhould the rather believe him.

he should the rather bettere min.

thou biff been spright] i.e. Approved thy felf to me as a faith ful fervant, and all thy dealings since thou emiest into the army, I approve as just and good, Num. 2,7 M.

Keversbeigli the lord; favour the mo!] Heb. then art ast good.

inthetyes of the lords. Where he qualifight their hard and harth confures and suspicions in fair tearns; that he might not too much grieve David, nor incense and valle up his spirit against

V. 7. That thou diffleufe not the lords of the Philiftims ] Heb? V. 7. That thu displays mo the leading the resultinum! Medi-done result integrate of the lowfar, i.e. In this follow my directi-ons 3 for though thy actions may be good in themselves, yet if they seem evit to them, they will displace stem, which would not be fare for thee; Iteing thou are now in their pow-

CT. V. S. And Deviz (sid unto Achifo. But what heve I done I that I man not go to fight against the extender of my sand the Kimg.) Where David between this great Entily, to using this deep difficultation, to place the King; for he had not the least direct on fight in the quirted of the toldarous and uncircumicated faillitims against Gods propie; and no doubt he recommendity proper tum Gods, one prime in Gods and Academic A camenty prayed unto Jon, to give min tome mean, whereby night prevents, without running into extream dangers and now that God had heard his prayer, and found out a way for him above the reach of human reason, he maketh thew of his great willing nestic to decline it, and of much discontent, because he was put off from doing the King service.

V. 9. Thou are good in my fight, as an Augel of God] i. c.

A man of fuch excellencies in mine eyes, that thou ferrich as an Angel, to be fent from heaven. The which phrase he had an angel, to be ten from neared. In which phase he had bearned from David, or had it from the Hebrews, who were a neighbour action, or from fome reliques of the light of nature, which ftill remain even among heathen idole-

V. 10. And afform as ye are up early in the morning, and have light, depart] And this advice he giveth him, to make all hafte to get away, left the fords of the Philiflims should be incessfed by his flay, and fo either fall upon him and his followers in the camp, or lay fecret ambuthes to intrap him in his return. Bur God, by a fecret hand of providence, to disposed of it is enersoure ause como un special iervice, acing nom rainen to our parron, op a terete anno er provisence, so dispose of the parry in this bank been with me this days, or these years it is no destre is no doubt to be made of his abilities, so here is no service of his, either against Gods people, contrary to his constitution of the constitution of Chap. xxx. Annotations on the first Book of Samuel. name with infamy, for his perfidiousnesse and unprareful inhu. I manity, having been to much ingaged unto him for his courteous entertainment. And alfo that he might, by his fpeedy return, come feafonably to recover his captives, and the fpoyle of Ziglag, out of the bands of the Amalekites, who had carried them away.

V. 11. to veturn into the land of the Philiftims] i. c. Ziglag. which lay in the confines of the Philiftims country; and the arrive of the Philiftims marched on to Jezegel, to give battle to Saul and the army of Ifrael.

CHAP, XXX.

Vers. 1. David and his men were come to Ziglag on the third day ] To wit , after they had departed from the Fullilines Camp.

The Analogises but invaded the South and Ziglag ] That is, pare of the Pullillines Country, and part of Judah, which lay on the South, as the Egyptian lervant expoundeth it,

v. 14.
and smitten Ziglig, and burne it with fire ] That is, slain the men subabitants of Ziglig, and burne their City. And this was done by the Amalekites, which were either the remainder of them that estaped Saul in former times, and David of late; or elfe forme others of that Nation, that inhabited in fome oor elle jume others or that vaction, that instances an innecessaries of the Land, who took this opportunity of Davids ablence in the Philistims country, to revenge themselves on him, by foraging his tribe of Judah, burning this City, which belonged auto him, flaying the mein habitants, and his fervants which he had left behinde him, and carrying the wofervants which he has been companies unit, and carrying the wa-men and children shoy, septivate make them their flaves, be-caufe the had invided, floyled, and flaughted them, ch. 27, 8,9. But chiugh this was bein sym, yet God had fo, by his providence, difford of it for other ends; as namely, for the providence, disposed of it for once enus; as namely, for me chaffening of David for his fins, that he might thereby give him a fight and fence of them, and fo be brought to repen-tance; as his diffidence and diffiult in Gods promifes and protection, which made him to fice out of Judah, where God protection, which made our to the out of Judan, where God had appointed him to abide, chap. 22.5. into the land of the nationalities Philiffling, hoping there to finde more fafety, then in that place unto which God had defigned him; and that out of his own policy, never confulting with God about that one of his own pouse, never consuining was won about it. And (for the kinnighting this torting hope, when it was ready to faint and fail) his fhifting and huffling for himfell, by telling many neutrales, and sting gross difficultation, counterfacting himfell, to pelose the health Ring, under whose probability has the health Ring, under whose probability has been been also be a friend to Code entering the confidence, to be a friend to Code entering the confidence, to be a friend to Code entering the confidence. protection as pur ins. companies, to De a ritema to woos ene-mies, and and entity to his telends. Again, God difpoled thus of it, for the trial and exceeded of Davids faith, by bringing him into fluid: Halts said dangers, as no humane wildom could teach himlows he might envasie. And then heterly he made way for David to oberan a glorious without over Gods enemies, which might raife bis fame, and make him to be held in high honour and effect among his own nation; whilf they admired his valour, and tafted of his bounty, in the fruits of his victory, which he fent among them; whereby he knit their hearts untu him, when he had most need of their assistance, for hearts unto thin, when are natimutation or their annuance, for the obtaining of the Kingdom. And finally, hereby a way was laid open for the ruline of the remainder of the Amalekites, that curfed Nation, which Goll had devoted to destruction.

V. 2. And had sien the momen captives --- they see not V. s. And had steen the somes capture———top flow me, any whose great or justification in the flower, not could of any place or pitry feeing they were alwaits most malicious to Gods people; and non-knelly extendingly-configurated and emaged, by that there per entirely extendingly-configurated and emaged, by the flower than the process of the people of hands) have revenged with all rigour, (if they had been left to their own rage) like for like. But God inclined their hearts thus to spare them, that David might refeue and recover them; they perhaps doing it out of a covetous defire, to make molt gain and advantage of them, either by keeping; or felling them for flaves, or, receiving from: David and, his company, round:

times from their redemption and ranform.

V. 4. Then David and 'bis pepts, then were mish birs, lift up their witches were! Than is, their hearts being opportfield with gifted witch and length of their great lottle, and their first as the ranke of it, fent forth aboundant tears, which are called the blood of the foul. Neither did they Stoically flighe this heavy ju genient, but laid it to beart , which being over burthened with the weight of forrow, fought eafe in venting it felf by the paffage of the eyes, in a shower of tears.

V. J. Anil Davids two wives were taken capitates ] Which is more specially added, to fire in great cause of grief for the losse of his dear wives, thought he had had no other burthers layd upon him, in the common loffe of the people, aggravated by their high discontent, which pur David to danger of his.

V. 6. And David was greatly diffressed; for the people pake of staning bim] For he was driven by Sauls rage from his own home, and lived as an exile in a heathenish country and having done, and need so see that had a flore time of breathing by dwelling at Ziglag, now that allo is taken from him; and the place of his habitation being burnt, he knoweth not whither to flee for comfort. Not to his own country, for then Saul purfues and perfecutes him ; not back to the Philiftims, for they having jealous and hard thoughts of him, had lately packed him away with difhonour and difgrace. The Amalekites his malicious enemies were become owners of his beloved wives, and had a firong Army to hold their possessions; and his friends and followers, from whom alone he could expect comfort, are so incensed and exasperated against him, that they think of stoning him, beexaperates against mm, that tury tunk or noning aum, pe-caule they now looked upon him, as the chief cause of all their loffe and milery; partly, because he had emaged them by in-vading their country, and flueghering their peoples and partly because having thus provoked them to revenge, he had improvidently drawn out all his forces, which should have defended the City, and left it naked to the malice of thefe enemies, to be imployed in the Philiftims country, in the affilling themin an unnecessary, yea, pernicious war against Gods people. But especially, they entertained these thoughts of floning David, not fo much out of any ground of reason, as becaule they were wholly transported with passion, having their hearts embittered with grief for the lofs of their wives and chil-

But David encouraged himself in the Lord bis God | Who being Lord, in general, of heaven and earth, and all creatures contained in them, he had by faith made his own in a peculiar manner; like the spoule in the Canticles, chap. 6. 3. I am my beloveds, and my beloved is mine, And the Apostle Paul, Rom. 1.8. Gal. 2. 20. And in him he encouraged himself when all other comforts failed, like Habbakuc, who resolveth, that though all other means failed, yet he would rejoyce in the Lord, and ov in the God of his salvation, Habbac. 3. 17, 18. And ftrengthened his faith and offiance in this great tryal and tentation, by remembring Gods former promiles, of his protection in all difficulties and danger, of which he had often experience; and of bringing him to the Kingdom: and comforting himfelf with his future hopes, and among the rest, that he should, by Gods assistance, recover all these losses, and be avenged on his encoies. And in this hope he calleth for the Ephod, that he might confult with God abour is.

V. 7. I gray thee bring me bither the Ephod] i.o. Go fetch the Ephod, and put it on, that thou mayft enquire for me by Urim, what is to be done in this diffresse. So ch.23.9. Num. 27. 21. Exod. 28.30. This David divers times had neglected to do upon weighty occasions; as, before he fled out of Judez into the land of the Philistims; when he invaded the Amale-kites, and Geshurites; and when he followed Achish in the war against his own people; but having smarted for it, and repenting of his neglect, now that he was brought into these great ftraits, he calleth for it, being unwilling to do any thing without Gods direction.

V. 8. And David enquired at the Lord ] To wit, by Abiathat the high Priest, and was graciously heard and encouraged to go on in this expedition, with promise of good successe.
V. 9. And came to the breek of Bezor ] Which was in the border, of the tribe of Simcon, derived and descending from the mountains of Judah, and running to the west Sea.

where shofe that were less behinde stayed.] Being so wearied and faint, that they were unable to go any further.
V. 10. For two bundred abode bebinde ] To wit, to guard and fecure the Carriages, that David with the other four hundred which were more fresh and able, might with more speed purfue their enemies; whereby God was pleased again to try and exercise Davids faith, in that after he had encouraged him to purfue their enemies, be thus croffeth bim in his courfe, bg difabling a third part of his company from going on with the reft, against a great army of the Amalekites, that the glory of the victory might be afcribed unto him, and not to their own ittengun.

V. 11. And they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought bin to David Which hapned by Gods good and special providence, who by this means provided them a guide, to bring them to their enemies. And relief for this poor diffrested Egyptian , who was ready to perith with ficknesse and and gave him bread, and he did eat] Which was a laudable act of their humanity and charity, in that when they were in hafte and the hot purfuit of their enemies, they would take notice of a poor miferable wretch, and cake such care to relieve him in this his diffressed condition ; yes, and this work of mercy they into an enterior condition; yes, and tou work of mercy rary-idd is the first place, before they had made any enquiry of him, whether he were willing, or able; to do them any ferrite; as requiral of this great kindness; The which act of kindness and charity, God righly rewarded, by making him the infrumerse of their ensuing victory.

that is, by this refreshment his spirits being revived, his foul which was ready to depart, returned to execute its former act of this cruel Amalekite, who left his fervant in his greatest act or mis crue: maniestic, who extens tervant in his greated diffiction dye of his fickness, without using any means for his recovery, or, to perith with hanger, if the distale were not mortal; or, to be torn in pieces with wilde beasts, when as it morms; or, to be corn in pieces with winds beaus, when a sit and mensy listful.) See Judg. 19. verf. 22. and the note up-ing him, to have carried him away with hill in a wargon, or upon form beall. The which his mentiles crucity God pointhard with all feverity, both in the ruine of himilist and the part of the wages and reward, feeing they have done no part

V. 14. we made an invafion upon the South of the Cherethites That is, the Philistims, as appeareth, ver. 16. For so they wer called (it feemeth) from fome part of their country, which had this name, Ezzk. 21 16. Zeph. 2. 5. and mon the South of Cateb ] That is, the South of the Land hale widdow.

V. 15. And be faid, frees unto me by God] Though he had good experience of Davids humanity and charity, yet in a matter that as neerly concerned him as his life, he requireth his tath for his better fecurity.

cause it is the manner of men, to hate the traytor, though they his admonition. So Lot Gen. 19.7. and the old Hoste, Judg. love the treason; and when they have served their own turn by fuch discoveries of secrets, to cut them off when they have dis-nor delever me into the hands of my mafter ] who, Though thou nor activer mesistoste basas of my major; y wao, I nouga incu-dost spare me, would surely revenge himself upon me for be-traying his secrets. Unto which his motion, it teemeth, Da-vid condescenders, (though it be not plainly expressed) as he might lawfully do, feeing the Amalekite, was not now his Ma-iler, having barb aroufly cast him off and exposed him to death; nor the Egyptian any longer his fervant, but Davids.

dunting the edge of their malice and fury.

V. 20. and they took ] To wit, Davids men

all the flocks and berds ] That is, all the refidue of the cattel which the Amalekites had taken from others, that is, the Phististims, the Calebites, and men of Judah.

which they drave before the other cattel] That is, thole which they had to ken from Ziglag, and belonged to David and his

And fild, this is Decide floot] That is, belongs to David, by his fouldiers free confert and gift, and therefore afterwards he bestowed it on whom he pleased, ver. 26. And with this gift Davids followers presented him, to make him some amends, Davids tollowers prelented him, to make aim tome amends, for the wrong they had done him, in their former mutering, by aferibing unto him the whole honour of the victory, as Gods infitumentalening he had, when the cafe feemed delperate, confined with God, encouraged them to the purificy, and, as their General, conducted them in this expedition, unto ghoun the praise of the victory is usually ascribed; and by enabling him by this rich gift, to gratific his friends, and to make them firm unto him, when he had occasion to tile them.

V. 21. And when David eame neer so the people, be faluted which was receipt to appear, represent to execute its softmer.

V. 13. And my delight left ma, because three depts agon I for the three might not be too much depteted and full field. Help. this the third dep. To wife, from which I fell field. Help. this the three deptetes and inhumans field, which is noted to considerant this band barous and inhumans. them] Or, asked them how they did. That is, spake curteously V. 22. Then answered all the wicked men] That is, when the two hundred men had fooken to have that part of the fooyl which belonged unto them.

and men of Belial | See Judg. 19. vers. 22. and the note up-part of the wayes and reward, teeing they have done no part of the work, nor run into any danger in the brant of the battel. In which they fpeak improufly against God, robbing him of the glory of the victory due unto him, and arrogating it to themselver. And unjustly, and uncharitably, against their brethren,feeing it was nor their fault, that they were not in the fervice, from which they were detained by meer necessity, and upon recession of cases 1 marsh, me bound of me and 1 service, from which may described by calculus policity, John 14, 13, where Davids the opposition to a which he had by his marriage with Abigail, Napolitificant asymmetric theorem and the property of the casemean time, along other unferviceable, feeing they kept the casemean time, altogether unferviceable, feeing they kept the car-if they had not guarded it.

V. 23. To [half not do [o my brethren] Though they were wicked men, of Belial, yet he calleth them brethren, because they were of the fame Nation, and professed the same religion. can tor an over the curry.

If the write reinber kill me] That is, thy felf, or, by shy command; no relative me into the bands of my Mafter to be killed by him; Of which he had fome fear and fulfition, beautiful on the had for the care and fulfition, beautiful on the more pliable to harken to > with that which the Lord bath given m ] That is, with the floyl, which we have not gotten by our own valour and firength, but by Gods gracious favour and free gift, in which these our brethren have a part and interrest, as well as > who hash preserved us, and delivered the company that came woo onto prejerved m, and adversed the company that came against m, into our hand.] And therefore, we should be very ungrateful unto him, if we should be thus injurious to our brethern, seeing he is Lord of us all, and respecteth not one more then another.

V. 24. For who will bearken unto you in this matter ] That is, nin, and rayed us lite.

**sal I will bring thee down to this company ] Having learned, the thing which you propole, is to users an animal property of the pro the hearing unco meno.

V. 16. and sus of the land of Judab J Unco which Ziglag, and the land of Caleb belonged.
V. 17. And Judal fines them from the twilight J To wit, of the force joing evening, to the evening of the next day; for J Divid londs them eating and dimining daming and revelling;
I Divid londs them eating and dimining daming and revelling; DAVIA tound them eating and drinking,danning and reveiling; mental, but in a vicenterical proportion; for note that which usually are the actions of the evening, and not the twihight of the morning. And having fo finall a number, against though they were but vertice thousand men a grear multitude, the night was fitted for find an asttempt. Yet found take it for the morning twi-light, because of people, which were far morning than the tempt.

Yet found the first the morning twi-light, because of people, which were far morning than the tempt. The people is the substitution of the people is the people is the people is the people in the people is the peopl tempe. Ver fome cake it to the morning twi-light, occurs in the warnerfic and long march.

In the warnerfic and long march.

In the wind present in the mean detaile, and to be given to the respect to the mean detaile, and to be given to the present of the prese cording to their proportion and number, fhare with them that go out to war. go out to war.

V. 16. He fent of the flood to the Elders of Juddh, even to ble friends.] The which he did, both in a way of justice, refloring unto them that which had been their own, feeing much of thefe fpoyls had been taken from them by thefe Amalekites, v. 16. and allo in a way of gratitude, to teflifie his thankful-neffe for the many favours and courtefies received, when he had lived among them, and in a way of prudence, to make them ived among users and in a way or procedure, to make threather the first musto him, figuring him their affilhance-fee-ing the time now approached neer, of accomplishing Gods promifes, in bringing him to the Crown, Saul and his fous about this time being flain, and taken out of his way.

Behold a Present for you of the short of the enemies of the Lord]
To intimate unto them, that he had gotten these spoyle, not in the pursuance of his own interest, or taking private revenge, Chap. xxxi. by fighting against them who were Gods enemies, and the pro- miles made since him; and that to Jacobs prophetical bieffice felfed common enemies of the whole Common-wealth, whom Gad had devoted to utter deftruction.

V. 17. To them which were in Bethel ] Or, the house of God which at this time was at Kiriath-jearim with the ark, a Sam 6.21. & 7.1. and whither be fent (as it were) the first fruits of the spoyl, and by way of thankfulnesse, devoted them unto God, who had given them this great victory. Others under-fland it of the City Bethel, properly fo called; but this was not in the tribe of Judah, whither David for the most part sent his prefent; but in the tribe of Ephraim, Josh. 16. 2. Judg. 1.22.
unto which he was not bound by any special favours that we read of. Besides, the word, Bethel, is taken appellatively for the house of God, twice before, ch. 7. 16. & 10. 3. which allo was in the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15. 60. as most of these Cities were, which are here mentioned. Finally, it is most likely, that David would chiefly remember to fend a Prefent to that place where was the ark of God, to tellifie his thankfulnels for his late victory. to them which were in South Remoth | A City in the tribe of it from Ramonn in Oilean, 1 Aung. 22.13.

Simeon, Josh 19, 8. called here South Ramoth, to distinguish it from Ramoth in Gilead, 1 King. 12.13.

10 then which were in Jatir] A City leituate on a mountain in the tribe of Judah, John 15.48.

V. 28. To them which were in Areer] A City lying on the River Arnon, belonging to the tribe of Ruben, Joh. 13. 16. Dant. 2. 12.

in Sipmeth The fame (as some think) with Shepham, Num. 24. 10. one of the land limits of Canaan.

in Estemas A city scituate in the tribe of Judah, called also Ashtemoh, Josh. 15. 30. and was given to the sons of Aaron, 1 Chron. 6. 57.

V. 19. in Rachal | This town is not mentioned any where elfe in the Scripture. Some think, that it was in the tribe of Judah, though not named in that Catalogue, Joh. 15.

in the chite of the ferebucilies | See ch. 27. 10.

Kenites | See Judg. 1.16.

V. 30. In Horman | Called also Zephath, Judg. 1, 17. 2 Chron. 14. 10. belonging to the tribe of Simeon, Tofh.

Cher-Aften ] The fame (as fome think) which is called Afhan, in the tribe of Simeon, who had their inheritance out of in Athach. ] Which Saint Jerom, in his Book de luis Hebraicis, placeth in the tribe of Judah; we read not of it, but here onely.

V. 31. in Hebron ] A famous City in the mountains of Judah, given to Caleb, Josh. 14. 13, 14.

and to all the places where David bimfelf and his men were won to haunt ] That is, where he had found entertainment in his diftreffe, when he fled from Saul; to testifie bis thankfolness for their love towards him.

CHAP. XXXL

Verl. 1. Ow the Philiftims fought against Ifrael ] Here the writer returneth to the History, from which be had digreffed in the former Chapter, 1 Chron, 10. 1.

And the men of Ifrael fled before the Philiflims \ Which was an evidence of Gods wrath upon them for their fins, threatned evidence of Gods wrath upon them for their mis, inscanded Deut. 28, 25, Levit. 26, 36. For as they were guilty of much other wickednedic, to by confpiring with Saul in his perfecuting David, and not flewing any difflike of his horrible cruelty, in flaughtering the Lords Priefts; and therefore partaking with bim in his fins, they also did partake with him in his punish-and fell flain in mount Gilbox See ch. 18.4. And this hapned, as Josephus relateth it, at the very fame time, when as David was victorious over the Amalekites. So that God gave diversand contrary success, to David and Soul; victory and triumph to the one, who trufted in him, in the use of lawful means, and ruin and distruction to the other, who, out of his diffilence in God, confulted with a witch.

V. 2. And the Philistims slew Fonathan, and Aminadab (who as also called Ishui, ch. 14.49.) and Malchishua Sauls sons Only Ishbosh: th remained, of all Sauls legitimate sons, who was not at the battel, either because he was no martial man, and unfit for fervice; or, because be was left at home, to look to his for fervice; or, Decaule be was left at some, to leek to his fathers affairs, either domeflical or publike, in the time of his absence. But Jonathan is flain with the other two, though a most pious, noble, valiant and vertuous Prince, and (no doubt) very dear unto God; verifying, by his example, the wife raans faying, Ecclef. 9. 1. No man knoweth either love or hatred, by all that is before them. verf. 2. All things come alike to all; there is one event to the righteouse and the wicked. Onely we may gueste, that he was, by Gods good pleafure, taken out of Davids way, that he might have the more free and eafie access to the Crown and Kingdom, for the verifying of Gods former pro- [poyl, until the victory was complean.

mifes made since kinst; and that fo Jacobs peophetrical Dietling might be fulfilled. That the Seeper thould be eliabilished in Jadha, and not depart till Shibods, that is, the Medisa Bould come, Gen. 49. 10. For had Jonathan lived; it would have been a fore and firong tentation, to have refided a Kingdom, whose it was offered sunch hand shown bourse his bibodiffication. also his hereditory right. And though, out of his submission to Gods will, and love to David, he would not much have affic Red Soveraignty ; yet when it should have been presed upon him, with the importunity of Abner, and the reft of his kindred, and the peoples readiness to fettle him in his right, by the upnost of their fervice ; it would have proved a fore and fhrewd tentarion and above humane ftrength to refift it. For if the people were fo ready to fettle Ifhbofheth upon the throne, though a worthless man, and of no value, (yet ten tribes adhered unto him) how much more forward would they have been to advance Ionathans title to the Crown, who was to excellent in his own worth, and had done fo much good fervice to the whole comworth, and had done to much good activate to the whole com-mon-wealth? Neither are we to think, that he had any hard measure offered hereinsunto him by God, steing he was plea-sed, instead of an earthly Kingdom, full of care and trouble, to enter him into the prefent possession of an heavenly Kingdom, immortal, glorious, and full of unconceivable joyes, without the mixture of any forrow. The which also was Mojes his case, whom the Lord would not, permit to enter into the land of promile, in the mean time, taking him into heaven; of which the other was but a type and fladow, Deut, 31, 49.

V. 2. And the battel was fore against Saul ] Though for a little while he out-lived his fens, yet it was but for the aggravation of his punishment, seeing it could not be but a great grief to his very foul, to fee his army routed, all his friends and follow-ers flaughtred, and his dear fons killed before his face, himfelf also wounded and environed with his enemies, that there was allo wounded and environce waters stated by the mobile left him of eleaping.

V. 4. Draw thy fword, and thrust me through therewith] Thus after a wicked life, he maketh choyce of a finful and desperate death; and he that commanded Doeg to flay the Lores Priefts, now requireth his armour-bearer to do the like execution upon himself. Who this armour-bearer was, it is not certainly known. Bur the Hebrews, as Jerom witneffeth, and many Ex-

Rnown, but the recovery as jet on white the Edomite.

Left these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and abuse me] Thus he acteth the hypocrites part, even to the very death; difdaining the Philiftims for their uncircumcifion in the flesh, though himself were of an uncircumcifed heart.

naking no feruple of committing any wickedness.

and abuse me! Or, mock me. That is, put me to some difgraceful death, unworthy my place and calling, if they should gracetti desto, in morray my piace and cating, it trey thouse take me prisoner. So ver. 9, 1, 5 or be was fore afficial] To this the armour bearer would not, for be was fore afficial] To wit, out of his reverence towards the person on his king, therefore Suit took a found and full upon it]. He that could not be stated with thedding the blood of others, but after he had slaughtred the Lords Priest, thisself after Davids blood, though an innocent, becometh now a butcher to himfelf, and so conclude the wicked life with a desperate death. The which befalling him by Gods righteous judgement, rendring like for like, and giving him up to a reprobate minde, to act this horrid murther, for the punishment of his former wickednels, the Lord taketh it upon bimfelf, and faith, that he flew him, 1 Chron. 10. 14.

be fell likewise upon his sword, and dyed with him] So strong a motive it was to draw him to the committing this bloody fin, to have his Prince to be his prefident, leading him on by his example. And if this armour-bearer were that wicked Doeg, (as the Hebrews think) we must need acknowledg, that God justly revenged upon him the blood of his innocent Priests, by giving him up to be his own executioner, and with his own hands, to open the door that would lead him into hell,

V. 6. So Saul dyed and all bis men that fame day torether ] That is, most of his family, and kindred, courtiers and Commanders, with a great part of his army. So 1 Chron.

V. 7. And when the men of Ifrael that were on the other fide of the valley] That is, of Jezreel in the tribe of Iffachar, which had the mountains of Gibeon on the South, and mount Hermon on the North.

they for fooke the cities, and fled; and the Philiftims came and dwele in them ] That is, pursuing their victory, they made the inhabitants for fear to forfake their cities and habitations, and placed garrifons in them, that they might retain them for their

V. 8. And it came to pafs on the morrow ] To wit, after the battel was fought.

the Philiftims came to ftrip the flain Therein wifely observing, martial order and discipline, not falling upon the plunder and

Which they did, partly,by way of revenge, because their Gowhich they one, preceyed way of revenge, occasite their Os-liah was foured, and party, that they might, as a trophy of their victory, carry bis head about, to them it in all parts of their country, and afterwards might fer irup in the houle of Dagon their God, thereby alcribing unto him the glory of their vi-flory, as a speareth. I Chron. 10. 10. Which the, before, The Chron. 20. Chron. 10. 10. Which the Chron. 20. Chron. 10. 11. Which the Market of the bard of Child beight he cereint. David had made of the head of Goliah, which he carried to and sent to the land of the Philistims, round about, to publish it] That is, their great victory, and the death of Saul and his fons, by way of joy and triumph. And thus God was pleased to dispence with his own honour, for a time, and to suffer these idolatrous beathens, as though their idols were stronger then abuse, which might have been offered to their bodies, if the he, that thereby he might bring Saul and his followers to deferved punishment.

Jerusalem, cb. 25. 54. & 11. 9.

to publish it in the house of their idols | Heb. terrours. So persitious worshippers, with terrors and fears, and do neither that they burnt them there. teach nor comfort them.

V. 10. And they put bie armour in the boufe of Affitaroth] See Judg 1.3. Augustine thinketh this idol to have been Juno, worthipped in the form of a sheep or ewe, as Jupiter Hammon was worshipped in the form of a Ram. And it is written in the plural number, because there were many forts of this

And they faftned bis body to the roall of Bethfhan.] That is, to a wall at the end of the street in Bethsham, 2 Sam. 21. 12.

Ziglag. ch. 27.6. V. 11. And when the inhabitants of Fabesh Gilead beard of that, &c. ] In token of thankfulness to saul, who had rescued and delivered them from Nahafh, ch. 11. 11. they make this jing and mourning jiyyning (no doubt) prayer therewith for the attempt to free his dead body, and the bodies of his three fons, averting of Gods judgements, both prefent and imminent; from this ignominy and reproach, that was by the Philiftims cast upon them. For though Sauls body onely be here named, v. 10. as being the chiefsyet the bodyes of his fons were uled in

V. 9. And they cut off his head and firiped off his armour ] it, but by ftealth, secretly in the night, as appeareth, a Sam. 21,12, hich they did, partly, by way of revenge, because their Go-and came to Fabelh, and burnt them there.] That is, (as it is but also making a great burning for him, 2 Chron, 16. 14.
Now though this was not the usual manner of funeral-so lemnities among the Hebrews; yet they now used it to the dead bodies of Saul and his fons; both because their flesh, having been divers dayes exposed to the fun and air, was fo putrified, that they could not be embalmed with spices and odours : and also because they would hereby, prevent further Philiftims should attempt to get them again into their power.

Others take it thus, that they burnt by their bodies odours and fpices, as was nied to Kings, 2 Chron. 16. 14. Jer. 34. 5. But called, because they possesse the minds and hearts of their fu-

V. 13. And they took their bones and buried them under a tree at Fabelh | To wit, because, in those times, they had no folemn places of burial, therefore they made choyce of a tree, as the lafting Oak, or Terebinth, to bury them under it, that it might ferve as a mark or monument, to fhew men in after ages where they were interred. So Gen. 25. 8.

and fasted seven dayer.] That is, till the evening of every day, not out of any prefeript of law, but woluntarily to express their beaviness, not onely for the losse of their King and his called also Betbfh:an, Josh 17.11. which was in the lot of fons, from whom they had received such a special favour, which Manaffeh, but not recovered from the Philiftims in the fieft | did as much concern them as their lives and liberty; but also conquell, Judg. 1. 27. nor to this day; as it was faid before of for the great calamities which now lay upon the land, by reafon of that great defeat which they had lately received from the Philiftims, and the miferable effects which were like to fol-low it. And this moved them to humble themselves by fastwithout which, fasting and simple abstinence had been to little purpose. Some add that in these seven dayes of fasting, they had reforest to those seven dayes of truce with the Ammonites, wherein if they had not been rescued by Saul, they should v. 10.28 being the entripret de Douges of this bolds of the fault manners appeared by 1.28 x Carro, 3.1.2; which fault manners appeared by 5.201, 2.8 x Carro, 3.1.2; which fault manners appeared by 5.201, they have come for the others; and having their right types though have faboutized themselves to perpetual flavery. Hould have faboutized themselves to perpetual flavery. have come forth to them; and having their right eyes put out,

allowed in when the color of the color almost medical based and medical based and the color of the color of the CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF THE

ANNOTATIONS

On the second Book of SAMUEL.

Otherwise called

The fecond Book of the KINGS.

The ARGUMENT.

THe History concerning the state of the Church and Common-Wealth of Israel is continued in this Book from the death of Saul, to the end of Davids reign, and is the story of fourty yeers. In it is declared the infallible Truth of Gods promises, made and accomplished unto David, concerning the kingdom, who, though for a long time he passed thoroto many difficulties and dangers, yet at last, after those storms of trouble and afflictions, he arriveth at the wished Haven, and quietly enjoyeth the Crown and Scepter. Tet not all at once, but by degrees ; for at first, he is opposed by Ishbosheth, Sauls son, counselled and assisted by Abner, the Captain-general of his Host, having onely Judah, his own Tribe, adhering to him, over Which alone he reigned in Hebron, for the space of seven year, till, be growing, and they daily decreasing, at last by the treacherous death of both his chief enemies ( of which he was innocent ) the Warr is finished, and by the general choyce of all the Tribes, he is with applause crowned and stablished in his Royal Throne. In him is set forth unto all posterity, the lively picture and pattern of a truly Royal King, every way qualified with such rich graces, piety, justice, and heroicall endowments, as approved him to be a man according to Gods own heart. His piety towards God was singular, and not to be parallel'd with any that went before, or succeeded him; For he chiefly devoteth himself to Gods fervice, and the performance of all religious duties, continually meditating on Gods Law, composing and singing of Vlalms, which breathe nothing but piety and hotinesse; praying, and praising of God; excellently ordering the Ecclesiastical Government, and promoting Gods publike service to an high degree of perfection in all the parts of it; ordering the Tabernacle, and making and pitching a Tent for the Ark of the Covenant, neer unto his own dwelling, that he might more readily, upon all occasions, resort unto it for comfort, counsel, and direction. And thinking this too mean to be the place of Gods glorious presence, his whole care and study is taken up about the building him a Temple; which his pious zeal being accepted, and yet the work it self interditi-ed by God, he useth all his endeavours in preparing for it; and doth not only leave to his son Solomon, a modell and pattern of the building, being inspired by Gods Spirit; but provideth before-hand a valt masse of Gold. Silver, and all other materials, for the perfecting the work in a most sumptuous and magnificent manner. His Siever, made over materials, for one perfecting ton work in a most imprinous man magnificant manner. His judice also towards man appeared in many passages are especially in the panishment of the Amalekies, who brought tradings of Sauls death, and of Hibosheths foreasts, who had treathereastly manthered than For when they expected from him some Royall reward for flaying his enemies, and so preparing a way for his present and sectire enjoying of the Crown and Scepter, he abborring their treason, though attended with a King. dome, caused them instantly to be put to death. He was also excellently endowed by the Spirit of God, with dome, conjectivem infrancy to be put to acount. Lee was any executenty encourse up the spirit of you. With Heroicall verture and greate, if for a Georgial and great Commander; as wildome, couringe, firength, and magnanimity, whereby he was enabled to fight the Lords battles againf all his, and the Churches commer, as the Philistims, Ammonites, Moabites, and Syrians; all which he wholly vanquished, and either destroyed, or brought them under tribute; whereby the Kingdome of Ifrael was extended to the utmost limits which God had promiled. Tet as he was endowed with all these excellencies, he had also his failings, yea, strong corruptions, as exorbitant lusts, uncleannesse, cruelty, which discovered themselves in the matter of Utish; pride in numbring of the people; partial injustice, in passing an unrighteous sentence against innocent Mephibosheth; lying, diffembling, which the Holy Ghost hath also recorded, not to encourage any to do the like; but as Sea-marks, that they may avoid these Rocks, against which so choice a Vessel dashed, and had surely splitted and perished. bad not Gods Grace and holy Spirit, as a timely gule of viside holwa him off, and reduced him into his right comfe by unfeigned repentance: Upon which, though his fin was pardoned, yet to flow how horrible it was in te felf, and how odious and diffleafing unto God; and that also the enemies of the Church might not by his impunity, take occasion to blash heme, God severely corrected his sins, as it were, by the Law of Taliation, like for libe. To as he might plainly read his fins in his punishment.

Thus sinning by adultery, his own daughter was incestiously ravished by his own son, and his Concubines defiled by his son Absalon, in the sight of the sun; and causing Uriah to be murthered by the sword of the children of Ammon, the Sword departed not from his house; but Absalon murthereth his brother Amnon, and after rileth in rebellion against himself, and unnaturally seeketh his death, that preferred his life before his own; in which ambitious treason himself perished, to the intollerable grief of his over-loving Father: Besides all other wars, both forreign and intestine, with which he was continually vexed, to the end of his reign.

And finally, his pride and confidence in the number of his people, and the arm of flesh, was punished with a grievous plague, that consumed threescore and ten thous and of them in the space of three dayes; and yet for all this, the Lord did not, as his fins merited, utterly for sake him, but loving him with a love unchangeable, he doth by these fatherly (though severe chastissements) thorowly humble him in the sight and sense of his sins; and so rading kim from these grievous salls, by suffigured repensable, be foreigned bus said and receiveth him into former savour, (to encourage all that have so same, to follow his example;) reneweth his Covenant with him, and ratifieth, and, as it were, fealeth unto him all his gracious promifes, especially, that which was chief of all, the perpetuity of his Kingdome, which lasted long in a numerous posterity, but was accomplished in the eternity of Christs Kingdome, who came (according to the sless) out of his Loyns; of which, David and his Kingdome were a type and figure.

CHAP. I.

Verl. 1. Ow it came to pafs after the death of Saul, when David was returned from the flughter of the Amalefites | That us, when he had vanquished his many and malicious enemies, and came back (as it were ) in triumph loaded with spoyls, as the joyful crophies of a glorious victory within two dayes after his return, he is encountred with the fad news of that great defeat, given by the Philiftims to Gods people, which feemed to hazard the ruine of the whole land. the deed, he called to this Amalekite, and willed him to kill.

Wherein appeareth the wife providence of God, in mixing him. But in the true flory it is plainly faid, that he took 4 and tempering profestity with afflictions; and the joyes of his fword and fell upon it, and immediately dyed; which his

their mourning, they tellified their great grief and contrition him, and spend so many words in talking with him. ner mourtaing, two teatures user great given an economous of beart, thatset, unworthine[is, and deep humilation; ac-| for heart, thatset, unworthine[is, and deep humilation; ac-| for heart, thatset, unworthine[is, and deep humilation; ac-| for heart, thatset, and the humilation and the humilation and the humilation are a solid accorded and devocat do definding the humilation of the humilation and the humilation and therefore; the humilation in the humilation in the humilation in the humilation and the humilation and therefore; the humilation in t

V. 4. And David faid unto bins , How went the matter? ] That is, relate unto me the newes of the chief things that hapned in that battle. By which earnest enquiry, David sheweth how careful he was of the welfare of Gods people, and how forward and willing to use all good means to repair any losse which they had fuftained.

And he answered, that the people are fled from the battle ] In which following relation, he speaketh divers truds, but mis- on my lance, or sword, yet (to my grief) I cannot do it; and eth and interfaceth with them many lyes, intending them therefore do thou do it, and rid me out of my pain, and from for his own advantage, though they brought him to ruine; my fear of being differenced, the which will appear, if we compare his words with the for- V. 10, 80 I fleet upon him and flew him ] To wit, that I mer relation of Sauls defeat and death, ch 31. of the first might with my ftrength, force the spear into his body, and sq

V. 5. How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan bis son are dead? ] He doth in a more especial manner inquire after this. because, above all other passages in the battle, this chiefly con-

V. 6. As I hapned by chance on mount Gilboa A mountainous place on the South limits of the tribe of iffachar, neer Jezreel.

Sant leaned upon his fpear Being fore wounded with archers, Sant teames byong in spens | being toc wounded with arctains, and fo unable to get away, though he were horly pursued by the chariots and horlemen. Others understand it, that Said was fallen upon his spear, which he had affayed to thrust into his body ; but it being hindred, that it could not enter and do and tempering property with anisotron 3 and the physics with the control of the c with his clothes rent, and earth upon his head] Whereby, in or spear, whereof he was ready to dye, that he should call unto 29. John ch. 7. ver. 6. Job 2. 22. chap. 4. 12. and the note shis ground, Saul abborred to be flain by the one, what reafon had he to make choyce, to be killed by the other ?

V. o. For angetify is come upon me, because my life's yet whole in me] i.e. (as the Amalekine would be underflood) I am much grieved, that being in this desperate condition, I cannot dye, (as I desire) to prevent the disgrace that may befal me, it I come alive into my enemies bands. Others read it thus; My coat of maile, or embroydered upper garment, baving bindred me, what though I have attempted to kill my felf, by falling up-kill him outright.

Chap. ij.

because I was surethat be could not live after that be was fallen] of the Common-Wealth, in which this long was inferred that That is, my intention in this act, was not to kill him . if there had been any hope of his life and recovery; but his cafe being desperate, by reason of his mortal wounds, given both by the archers, and himfelf, I did what I did of meer pity, and at his earnest request to rid him out of pain, and prevent his ed, to finde grace with David, and to get fome great reward, as may plainly appear, it we compare his freeches with the true flory 1 Sam. 31. And I rook the Crown that was upon his bead] The which was true, feeing he now brought it with him, though it be not likemade him the fairer mark for his entmies, at whom they chiefly aymed, a thing which wife Generals avoyd, I King. 22.30. and have cumbred him in the fight; but we may rather think, that it was carried belore him as an enfign of honour , by his armor-bearer, or fome other.

V. 11. Then David took bold on bie clothes, and rem shem ] See v. 2. and the note upon it

V. 12. And they mourned and wept, and fafted unto even] And thus he had good caule to mourn; not only for Jonathan, who ant Caprant, and chief Pillar of the Common-wealth, both in peace and war; but also, because the enemies of God had given his people to great a detear, and flaughtered fo many of them; yea even for Saul himfelf in divers respects; for shough he were his del perate and implacable enemy, who consinually perfecuted him, and fought his life, yet he was the Lords arroynted; under which notion he had twice spared him ; and a valiant General , who had fought Gods battles against the enemies of his people, with continual good success, over whom, they would now inful; and tramph, and rake eccasion to blaspheme Gods boly Name, and prefer their idols before him, who had given them this great victory; besides, in him he had cause to bewail the common misery and mutability of all humane conditions; in that he, who lately was a great and potent king, now was made a spectacle of milery, in his fearful and ignominious death; and finally, there was great cause of mourning and lamentation, in that this grievous overthrow was an evidence of Gods wrath against his people, who had brought it upon themselves by their many and gricvous fins.

V 12. And David faid to the young man that told him Whence art thou? ] Though he had faid before, that he had told Saul, asking the fame question, that he was an Amalekite ; yet it formeth, Davids minde was fo diffurbed and diffracted with paffion and graef, that he took no notice of it; and therefore ber it, then like a wife Judge, he maketh this diligent enquity, doubting of his truth in the relation, to fee if he would spree with himfelf in the fame tale.

V. 15. And David called one of the soung men, and faid, Gi ncer, and fall upon bim] Though there were no witnesses of his act, rechaving his own testimony against himself, he might justly proceed to execution; leging there is no other use of witnesses, but to convince the offender, if he deny the fault, and plead not guilty; but if the party voluntarily conteffe the fact, it is inflead of many witnesses. And David might fact, it is inited of many witteness. And David might lawfully thus proceed a gainth him, becaule he was anounted Kings, and now Saul being dead, was come into actual poffer-fine of the veyal rights. Befides, this malefactor was apprehended at Ziglag, where he had the fole jurification.

V. 16. And David faid muo bim, Thy blood be upon try bead ]

See Joth 2.19. and the note upon it.
V. 17. And Datid lamented with this lamentation over Saul To win, in his name, and of all the people; not only because he was fittest to do it, in respect of his abilities, baying a prone was interit to no n. na mipecs or in admires, narving appearable phetical pipit, and gift of porce is ustallo because he had the greated interest and right to perform it. Seeing he was need added to him, his so no in law, and Succession in the kingdom, and also day and sale of the seeing he was not and also and a can and faithful friend unto Jonathan, who was an after and patient alle in this world tragedy, and a thirf fubject of this lamentable Eleg.

V. 18. Alfo be bad ibenticat bie ebilden of Judah the ufe of

v. 18. Aup no mattern teach the conference of greaten the ule of the benefit is. He gave order (that he might put courage into the hearts of God, people, which by this great overthrow, were much dejected;) to have them infludted in the right tale of their arms and weapons, especially in the skill of shooting; because thereby, the Philistims had most prevailed againft them. And this in a parenthele, is prefixed before this monipala funeral long, that by finging of it in all parts of the land, they might thereby be put in minde of their duty, and Apper it in practice with more diligence.

Apper it in practic with more diligence.

Apper it in practic with more diligence.

Apper it in practic with more diligence.

Apper in the first practice with the same been a book of a chief commission of the civil affairs defined.

it might be preferred; and to this book he here referreth them; at being commonly known, and usually read by them. The which book is now loft, as many other of the Jewith histo-ries, which concerned the affairs of that State.

V. 19. The beauty of Ifrael is flain ] That is, Saul, Jonathan, and all the flower of Chivaly, and valiant men of upon thy bigb places ] i. e. The mountains of Gilbon, where the battle was fought, v. 21. and I Sam. 31.8, which though the lifedites had made choyce of, as places of great advantage, verthere they foffered this great defeat , which was an evidence of Gods high displeasure against them.

hop are the mighty fallen?] i.e. What a wonderful thing is this, that so many great Worthies of such incomparable firength and valour, should thus fall before these uncircumcifed Philiftims, whom they have formerly so oftentimes van-quished! And this is thrice repeated, as the foot of this fad long or Epitaph, here, v. 24. and 27. V. 20. Tell it not in Gath, publifb it not in the ftreets of Af kelon] Which were two of the five chief Cities of the Philiftims; in which they were most likely to triumph and infult, upon the hearing of this news. Which is not spoken, as though he thought it possible, that this great overthrow should be concealed from them; for their people were chief actors in this war, and Sauls head was carried through the land, and fet up in the Temple of Dagon, and his arms kept in the houle of Afteroth; but this is only an emphatical expression, in 2 of A fintrorth; but this is only an emphasical experimon, and theorical and poetical manner, of his define, what he would have done, had it been possible; namely, that it might be concealed from the enemies of God and his people, left they should triumph and infult over them, Judg. chapter 16.

teft the daughters of the Philiftims rejoyce] Becaule they uled to celebrate victories with fongs and dances, Exod. 15. Judg. 11. 34. 1 Sam. 18.6.

V. 21. Te mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dem anyoul He corfeth thele mountains in a poerical mapner, that oxyon. He carlett their mountains in a poercia manner, and the might pathetically and hyperbolically experfie his grief, for the great loffe which the whole land fuffained in the death of Saul and Josenhan, with all the gallant Worthies that dyed with them; withing, that those mountains by their barrenness, might be a perpetual monument of this great calamity. So Job 3:3:4.5. Jer. 20.14.

nor field-offerings] Heb. of elevations, or high lands. That is, fertile fields, bringing forth truits fit for offerings in the Tabernacle.

For there the flield of the mighty is vilely cast away ] Where-by he expresses, the dishonourable manner of the overthrow of Saul, Jonathan, and the reft; feeing it is a great difgrace to Souldiers, when they cast away their shields. And hereby he fignificth, either that their fhields were as good as nothing, ferving for no ule; or that indeed, when they were routed in the field, they cast away their arms, that they might the faster flye away, and fave themselves by flight.

as though be had not been anomied with oyl, ] That is, as though he had been a common ordinary man, and not a

V. 22. From the blood of the flain, from the far of the mighty the bome of fonathan surned not back ] i. e. They never attempted their enemies in vain with their armes and weapons, but were alwayes victorious, piercing and killing the best and valianteft of them, and fatisting their weapons with blood and flaughter, even as a hungry man glutteth himself by greedy Sevouring his food.

V. 23. Saul and Fonathan were lovely and pleafant in their lives] That is, both in the fight of others, in respect of their persons and parts, 1 Sam, 9, 2, and also mutually between themselves. For though Saul was enraged against Jonathan in his frantick fits; yet no doubt, he loved fo worthy a fon, when his fit was over, yea, even his wrath and rage againft him, proceeded from his love; because, he having made a league with David, he would not joyn with him in coking his ruine, who would put him from the Kingdom, if he were fuffered to live.

and in their death they were not divided] Which be addeth ; to cleer Jonathan of that fuspition, that he conspired with David, against his father; seeing Jonathan approved his love and faithfulneffe towards him, by adhering unto him, both in they were fwifter then Eagles, they were ftronger then lyons ] That is, they were nimble and active in purfuing their enemies; and firong and valoreus, in vanquishing and subduing them. Whereby he fignifieth, in a thetorical and byberbolical manner, that they were compleat Souldiers and Commanders, in whom nothing was wanting that could be

V. 24. Te daughters of Ifrael, weep over Saul, who clothed [ Hebron, which was the Efetropolis or chief City, Joffmuh. 21. you with fearlet ] Partly by the peace which you enjoyed through his government, which usually is accompanied with plenty and abundance of all things, both for necessity and de-lights and parely, by intiching the land with the spoyls of the enemy. And here speaking of bravery in appared, he addreffeth himfelf to the daughters of Ifrael, rather then unto the fons; because they more then these, are delighted with fuch costly attire, and so mourn more when they are

V. 25. How grethe mighty fallen in the midft of the battle? That is, not like cowards flain in their flight, but as valiant Souldiers, who keep their ground, and do not forfake their colours, but fight it out to the death, even in the very face of the enemy.

O Fonathan, thou wast flain in thy high places That is, upon the Mountains and places of advantage in thine own coun-

V. 26. I am diffressed for theemy brother Jonathan] Whom he lo tearmeth, either in respect of alliance, being his brother in law by marriage, or rather, in regard of that neerer bond of most intimate love and friendship contracted be-thy love towards me was wonderful, paffing the love of women] That is, either one to another, or which the tender mother beareth to her only fon; or the most loving wife to her dearest husband a whole affections notwithstanding, are usually much thronger then they are in men; fo that by this expression, he thewesh, that Jonathans love towards him, far exceeded the dearest love, or necrest friendship.

How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished > ] That is, either Saul and Jonathan, who were the fwords and fhields to defend the Common-wealth, as its chovcest and chiefest strength; in which sence, Elisha calleth Elias, and Joath Eliftia, the chariots and horfemen of Ifrael, 1 King.chap. ter 2. ver. 12. and chapter 13. verle 14. Or, he meaneth fimply , the armes and munition , that were loft in the battle, and became a spoyl to the Philistims, to the dishonor and weakning of Gods people.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. And it came to passe after this, that David enquired

A of the Lord To wir, by the Priest, putting on the breast-plate, with the Urim and Thummin, Num. 27. 21. For having from God a promife of the Kingdome , he would do nothing of himfelf for the obtaining of it, but addreffeth himself to God for his direction, what course he was to take, and what means to be used, for the accomplishment of Gods promile. For though he knew that he should be King, yet be was ignorant of many circumstances which belonged to the managing of the bufineffe; as when he should fet upon the work, and what place he should first attempt, for the promoting of his cause.

(aying, Shall I go up into any of the Cities of Fudab | He was weary of continuing in the Philiflims country, or in that City Ziglag, which he had by Achifh his donation, as being also a place upon the uttermost borders of the Kingdom, and so unfit to fettle there, being in a great diftance from the chief place where he was to reign ; and defireth ( if it would fland with | faithful fervice ; and truth, in his conflant performance of them Gods good pleasure) to go up to some of the cities of Judah, as being his own tribe, where he was born and bred; and where his kindred, allies, and friends lived, from whom he was likely to finde best acceptance, and most affistance.

and he faid unto Hebron] A chief and ancient city, in the tribe of Judah, built feven years before Zoan in Egypt, Nam. 13.22. have shevred unto him. whither Joshuah and Caleb came when they were fent by Moles to fearch out the land ; and was afterwards given to him and his posterity, Josh. 14. 12, one of the Cities of refuge given to the Priefts, Joh. 10. 7. and chiefly renowned, because the Patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, were there bu-ried, unito whom the land of Canaan by promise belonged; I speaketh, to take off from them all jealousses and sears, that he and especially to Jacob, to whom it was revealed, that the

it was most fischey should, that as they had been constorts to have prevailed, if he would attempt it, untill he was compell-him in his troubles, and partakers in all his affictions, so they should be conforts with him in his pro'perity, and communicate in his high honour and preforment. In which they were subjects, and partly, in respect of his cath to Saul, that he types of Christ and his Church; which when it hath suffered would not destroy his posterity, and abolish his mame, ch. 24. with him, fhall alfo reign with bim, 2 Tim. 2.12. Luk. 22. 21,22.

18, 19.

V. 8. But Abner the fou of New, Coppain of Sault hoff, took
V. 3. And his menthat were with him did David being up] Ishbashath Called also Ethabal, x Chronicles, chapter 8.

11, 12. 11, 12. V. 4. And the men of Judab came, and there they anomated David King over the house of Fudab | David was thrice an oynted if hit, by Samuel, when God elected and defigued him to be King. Secondly, by the tribe of Judah, whereby they selfi-

fied their approbation and confent unto the election , actually receiving him to be their King. And laftly, by the whole body of the people, ch. 5. 3, to teftifie likewise their affent and approbation. By which anounting, was fignified not only Gods calling him to this royal dignity; but also the inward unction of the Spirit, whereby he was qualified with heroick eifts and graces necessary for this Kingly calling. Now it pleased God thus to reiterate Davids anounting, for the further confirmation of his faith in this affurance, that God, who had called him to the Kingdom, would chablish him in it, and blefs and prosper him in his government; of all which supports our weak faith ftandeth in need, in respect of the many tentations unto which we are subject, and our frailty and inability to make any resistance. Now it is said only, that Judah came to anoynt him King; though it is not to be doubted, but that many of other tribes did joyn with them in this action, even all those who being convinced of his just title from God, came unto him in Ziglag, and offered their fervice, to bring him to the Crown, 1 Chr. 12. 10. yet Judah is only named, because the whole tribe unanimoufly joyned in this action, whereas there was but fome alone out of the other tribes, that favoured his ticle; and the reft, which were their greatest part, adhered to the boufe of Saul, and defired to fettle the Crown and Kingdome upon his posterity. And thus David, through many tri-bulations, at last cometh to the Crown; and was herein a lively type of our Saviour Christ, who was first crowned with thornes, before he was crowned with glory; and after many perfecutious and afflictions, was exalted to his Throne and

And they told David, faying, That the men of Jabelb were they that buried Saul Towit, either upon his enquiry what was done with the bodies of Saul and Jonathan, as being willing to have them buried in an honorable maner, 1 Sam. 31.13.or elfe, because they reported it of their own accord, thinking that it would be ill taken at their hands, that they beflowed fo much care and coft in the burial of Saul, who was Davids professed enemie; or at leaft, they gave him this warning; that taking notice of their affection to Saul and his family, he should take heed of them, if they proved his enemies; or use the best means he could to make them his friends; who were worthy the having, feeing they were fo faithful to their former lord and king.

V. 5. And faid unto them] To wit, by those messengers which bleffed be ye of the Lord ] i. e. The Lord multiply upon you all his bleffings, as the reward of your faithful fervice. that ye have showed this hinducffe unto your lord, even unto Saul]

That is, who, as he was lord and king over the whole land, and therefore was generally to be respected and honoured; fo in a more peculiar manner by you, who, in your great extremity, received such kindnesse from him, in your deliverance out of desperate danger,

V. 6. And now the Lord [here mercy and truth unto you] i. c. Mercy, in making his gracious promifes of rewarding your unto you, who have in this action approved your felves fuch loyal and grateful fubjects to your lord and Soveraign. And I also will requite your kindnesse] That is , seeing your lord, who is dead, cannot do it, I, as his Successor, will pay his debt, and recompence your love and thankfulnels which ye

V. 7. Therefore now let your bands be firengibened, and be ye valiant] Heb. be ye fors of valour. i.e. Be not difmayed, though ye have loft your lord; for I, whem the house of Judah , by Gods appointment, have anounted King, will supply unto you would deal the worfe with them, for their expressions of love and elepterally to Jacob, to watom it was revealed, that they would treat not worth with them, for their superimon to sook kingdom findula be elibbilited in Judah, Gen. a.g., to . In all I to their deceded Juda. Unfing berien all lawed policy, and on the ment, to gain the peoples love, though he had affirmance from trift, when he were to enter upon the prifetilism of the Kingdom. [On the King and would not tife any habite V. a. And David were in philiber, and this rise wives also a superimon to bear in the Kingdom, though he were certain he thould ly, as a gracious king, who abhorreth to thed the blood of his

V.3. And the mentions were with own and Mauric oring and 1 specified by the second of and they dwelt in the Gitter of Rebron] That is, belonging to the Crown and Kingdom, leaveth Abner to the ambition and XXX himfelf of Sauls family, and neer of kin unto him, and by him advanced to be General of his Army, (an high place of honor and command;) be defired to have the Soveraignty to remain in the hands of Saul, that fo he might retain his dignity, which he had no hope to do, if David came to be King; feeing he had many worthy friends, and neer kindred of his own. to advance. And he maketh choyce of Ishbosheth, who was no martial man, and but of a weak foirit, and fmall parts; knowing that he could rule him at his pleafure, who was chief Ruler of the Kingdom, and fo in effect, make himfelf King; the other ferving only for State, or thadow, to colour his actions. Of which power and regency he had no hope, if David(a prudent and valiant Prince) should weild the Scepter. And because Mephibofheth, being but a childe, and lame of his feet, was not fo fit to colour his ends and ayms, he paffeth by him, though he were the right heir by lineal descent, and maketh choy of Ithbotheth his uncle, to proclaim him King. All which he did, out of his pride and ambition, against the light of his own conscience; seeing he knew well enough, that by Gods appointment, Samuel had anounted David to be King over Ilrael, and to fucceed Saul, whom God had rejected, and plainly acknowledgeth it in his rage, ch. 3. 9,10,18.

And brought him over to Mahanaim] A City in Gilead, in the tribe of Gad, scituate beyond Jordan, on the river Jabbok, tribe of Gaa, feituate beyond Jordan, ort the river Jadoos, forenfaber, edited, which had its name givend by Good, fig-nifying two holfs or, camps.) from the vilon of Angels that there appeared monbin, Gen. 22, 12, 10 White place, Abner made choyer, either, becaule being a remote part of the Kingdom, and far diltar from Junda, where Davids chief firength lay, it was fitted for the railing and forming of an army; or it may be, because he was jealous of those parts , 1 Chr. 11. 26. especially of Jabez-Gilead, lest they should fall to Davids party, being won by his kinde meffage; and therefore meant to refide there, with his firength about him, to keep them from

And he made him king over Gilcad ] i.e. All the Country beyond Jordan.

and over the Afburites ] i. c. The tribe of Afbur, on the north of Canzan. and over ferreel] Scituate almost in the midtt of Canaan , and on the borders of Zebulon, half the tribe of Manafich, and Iffachar, in which tribe it was. John 10, 18

and over all Ifrael | The tribe of Judah only excepted, and thole that reforced unto him out of other tribes; though it feemeth, that the whole people were well-affected to David, and inclined to choose him for their King, had they not been over-awed by Abner, who was general of the army, and had a great ftrength under his command.

V. 10. Ijbbofbeth, Sauls formas fourty yeers eld when be began to reign] And therefore was old enough to have accompanied his father with the rest of his brethren in the battle, had be been a martial man, and of parts fit for fuch a fervice.

and be reigned two years] To wit, before thefe wars between him and David began; and chiefly this, by the pool at Gibeon, For he had reigned over Ifrael all the time that David reigned over Judah in Hebron, before thefe wars; though it is not like that they lived in peace all the time before; howfoeverthis was the chief war that was between them, in thele two years. For otherwife, it could not have been faid, that there was long war between the house of Saul, and the house of David, if Ishbosheth reigned but two years in all, chap.

followed David] i.e. Took his part, and followed him, as their King and General. Wherein they could not be condemned for making a fchifm in the Common-wealth , feeing they being but one of the tribes, did separate from all the reft, and fo were the cause of a civil war; because they did it in obedience to God, knowing that God had appointed David to be their King; year rather they deferved great praile, in that they were fo ready to expose themselves to all the dangers and miferies of fuch a war, rather then they would transgreffe Gods

V. 12. And Abner -- went from Mahanaim to Gibeon To wit, his army attending him, to wage war against David and Judah.

V. 13. And Josh the fon of Zervish] i.e. Davids fifter; and was therefore entrufted in this expedition, to lead the armies, though he was not yet chosen the chief General, I Chron.

and met together by the pool of Gibeon ] Which was on the South fide without Gibeon; which was a Metropolitan City in the tribe of Benjamin, and the fame that was called Gibeah-

the things definating, and the same therms eased values as all, where he keep his Goart and relidence.

V. 24. And chang fall to Judy. Let the young men suife, and play befores 11. Ca. Try their values and skill in arms, to make un form sport, by their againg this bloody tragedy. The which will prove like fight freez means, that are specified the mouth-pride of his heart, to croffe him in his proceedings, by fetting challenge he maketh to Joab, in hope, that by the good fuccefs up one of Sauls fons to be King, for his own ends. For being of his gallant Souldiers, he should diffusy and daunt the courage of his men, and so obtain a more casse victory. And this challenge is no sooner made, then accepted of Joab, they both delighting and confpiring in cruelty, and shedding blood, as men often fleshed with these horrid acts and aspects: and accounting it but a play and fport, to see their followers massacre and murther one another. But how abominable this is in the fight of God, as it appeareth many other wayes, fo by the fearful iffue of this barbarous and bloody chal-

> V. 16. And they caught every one bis fellow by the head | i.e. His antagonist or adversary.

V. 17. And there was a very fore battle that day ] For they be. ing enraged on either party one against another, by the death of their Champions, joyned their main battles, and furiously fought together as mortal enemies, till at laft, Abner and his party were beaten by Davids fervants; and being routed. were put to flight.
V. 18. And Afabel was as light of foot as a wilde roe] Which is an hyperbolical expression of his swiftnesse in running. As Saul and Jonathan are faid to be fwifter then Eagles, ch. 1.22. And Josephus faith of him, that he not only exceeded other men in running, but also contended with horses in swiftnesse.

Unto which he trusting too much, it became the occasion of his death; by his example, verifying the faying of Solomon, Ecclef. 9. 11. That the rate is not to the fwift, nor the battle to the freng. V. 19. And Afabel pursued after Abner] Ambitionsly affecting the glory of taking presente General of the field; for as he was swift of foot, so he was valiant, and a man of his hands; and therefore reckoned among Davids Worthies,

V. 21. Lay thee hold on one of the young men, and take thee bie armour, or bis foot] As if he had faid, if thou doft affect the glory of the victory, I will not be against it; but then thou mult choose such an Antagonist as is thine equal, and a young man like thy felf; and not provoke an old experienced Souldier, to thy extream dangen and dishonour.

V. 22. And Abner faid again to Afabel — wherefore should I smite thee to the ground? ] As though he should have faid. I am very loth to kill thee. (if thou doft not too much prefs and provoke me) for thy brothers fake.

bow then should I hold up my face to Jeah thy brather? ] That is, with what considence can I look for any peace and reconcilia. tion with him, having killed his brother; and for this Abner was careful, even in the very heat of war, being guilty to himfelf, that he fought in a bad cause, and that David in the end would prevail, and when that came to paffe, he well knew, that Joab, who was so potent, and in so great favour with David, would be an heavy adversary, if incensed against him; or a good friend, to make his peace.

V. 23. Wherefore Ahner with the hinder end of the thear] i.e.

With the pike of his spear, in the lower end; for their speares were double-pointed.

[mote bim under the fifth rib] i. e. Under the lowest of the fhort ribs, ( which are five in number) near the belly; out of which wound his guts came forth. So ch. 3.17. & 4.6. & 10. 10. And in that place he fmote him, because, in all likelihood, it was below his armour, and so a sure killing place, if his fpear hit upon it.

As many as came to the place where Afabel fell down and dyed. flood flill) And fo were hindred in the purfuit, by gazing upon this fad spectacle, and lamenting his death.

V. 24. Josh aligand Abilhat purfued after Abner]. Not looking fo much unto their private interest and losse, as the common good of the people; but like wife and brave Commanders, more manding and respecting the publique and the fun went down when they were come to the hill Ammab]

To which hill Abner retreated, that being rallyed into a body, and having the advantage of the upper ground, they might the better fland upon their defeno

V. 25. And the children of Ifrael gathered themselves together after Abuer ] To wit, into one main body, or battalia, on the

V. 26. And Abner faid to Foab, Shall the fword devent for cver?] i.e. Wilt thou put no end to flaughter? Where he feameth to allude to a ufual metaphor in the Scriptures, calling the edg, the mouth of the fword; which deftroyeth men, as wilde beafts devour their prey. As if he had faid, there ought to be fome, mean and measure in the earts of hostility. 188ing war and flaughter is not a thing that is good in it felf, (for in fuch things there are no bounds, but the more, the better,

Chap. ii. and providing choler, are bitter in the stomach. For though in have a lively type of the kingdom of Sathan, and the Kingdom of Christ; for that is strong and ample in its fest beginnings, fruits of it are bitter, and diffulful; as rapines, spoyl, effusion bur groweth lesser and weaker in the continuance of it; This of blood, and innumerable other miferies, especially in a ciof blook, and momerane query interes; especially in a cr amain an weaker the first point is only the property, but also of the fame country, but also of the fame family, kinded, and allies, yea even necretic friends, and describ berthere, hopyl and morrise or another.

Will And this appeareth, both by Christis Kingdom, generally and also are the second of the fame family. And this being the condition and nature of this prefent war, Abner uleth it as a reason toperswade Joab to desist from it; raiseth daily war, by his chief General Anti-christ, as Ishbesheth or it might prove bitter in another respect; namely, if by too easer and mercileffe pursuance, they cut off all hope, and weaker and weaker, till being daily confumed by the Spirit of his brought their enemies into a desperate condition, and so mouth, the preaching of the word, he be at last wholly demaking them (refolute to fell their lives at the dearest rate) to stronged and abolished, by the brightness of his coming, 2 thest. rum again upon them, and renew the fight; which in the chance of war, fometimes proveth fatal to them, who a little that fight which is between the flesh and the Spirit; the one, before, feemed to have gotten the victory.

bid the people return from following their brethren Which he useth, as a strong argument, to make him defist from the purfuit; feeing they were not aliens, heathens, and idolaters , but all of the fame nation, even the Ifrael of God, who were children of the fame Father, and professor the fame reli-

V. 17. And Foab faid, As God liveth, unleffe thou haift Spoken] i.e. Sent us a challenge, and provoked us to a comhat between our young men, we had never engaged our felves in this fight, but were rather refolved to have marched away, and returned quietly to our own homes, that fo it might have been prevented.

V. 28. So Foab blew a trumpet, and all the people flood fill] i. e. Caufed his trumpeter to found a retreat; upon the hearing whereof his army defifted from purfuing their victory. Wherein Joab thewed much wildom and moderation in his affections and possions. For though he could not choose but be much moved and grieved for the death of his brother; yet he refpecteth not his own private revenge, but sheweth how unwilling he was to shed the blood of his brethren; thinking that it would be a good means to make Abner defire peace; and for the settlement thereof, to apply himself to David, as his lawful King. Soch. 18. 16.

neither fought they any more] Namely , at that time ; for otherwise, the war continued between the house of David, and Saul, for some time after this, as appeareth, ch. 3.1.

and went thorow all Bisbron Which are called the mountains of Berber, Cant. z. 17. that is, of Separation; because, lying in Gilead, they were, by Jordan, separated from Ca-bad (mitten of Benjamin and Abners men ] i. e. Had flain of his party, both of Benjamin, and all the other tribes that adhered to the lingle of Saut.

And they took up Afabri, and buried him in the sepulchre of his father, which was in Bethlehem. ] Where we have an transposition of the words in this verie; for they did not bury him that night; after the battel was fought, feeing they travelled all that night to Hebron, to bring unto David, with as much speed as could be, the good successe of the battel, and carrying the corps of Afahel along with them , they afterwards folemnized his funeral with more folemnity, when they were at better leafure. Others that are not willing to admit of such a transposition of the words, hold, that they did not go to David that night, after their victory, but firft ftayed to bury their dead, flain upon the the place, and then carried the body of Alahel to Bethlehem, and there buried it, and the night following they went unto Hebron, to carry the news to David of their victory. But, by that time, it was like to be stale news, if they staid so long, til the suneral was folermized; and I fee no reason, why a great worthy, flain in field in the Kings cause and quarrel. should be so suddenly, and ob curely buried in the night. Befides, it feemeth unto me, that as Abner and his men went all that night, after the battel, to their King at Mahanaim; fo Joab and his men are like wife faid to have gone, the fame night, to their King ar Hebron, ver. 29 & 32.

CHAP. III.

Verf. i. Ow there was long war between the boufe of Saul and odd moneths, from the first fight, ch. 2.12. to the death of Ishbosheth : For Davids reign over Iulah in Hebron, was feven years and fix moneths, two of which were fpent before that fight, ch. 2. 11. But David waxed fironger and fironger Gribe house of Saul waxed of weaker and weaker Because Davids Kingdom had a fure foundation, Gods never failing promifes and gracious affiftance, upon which he grounded his faith, waiting with patience for the accomplishment of his word; But Ishboshettis Kingdom was founded upon the arm of flish, humane policy and power, and had no word of God for the continuance of it, but rather fmall and weak at the first, but is daily enlarged, and groweth rally confidered, in the whole Church, against which bathan by his Abner; yet shall never prevail, but continually grow 2. 8. And alfo, particularly confidered in every Christian, in as Sathans Lievtenant-general, attended with innumerable lufts, feeming invincibly strong, in the first beginnings of the Christian warfare, but groweth daily weaker, till it be wholly abolished; But the other, as Christs Lievtenant, accompanied with his fivilitual Graces, waxeth stronger continually, till at last, getting a full and final victory, the Kingdom of Christis erected and established, both in grace and glory.

V. 2. And unto David were fons born in Hebron] Whilft he was exiled, and perfecuted by Saul, God gave him no children, though he had two wives with him, because, in his wife providence, he faw, that they would have been burthenfom and troublesom; but no sooneris he chosen King over Judah, and fetled in Hebron, then he is made the Father of fix fons, Yes God did not multiply his pofferity, as he multiplyed his wives, but, of his fix wives, gave him only fix fons; to teach him and us, that Polygamy (howfoever it was tolerated, in those times, yet ir) was not allowed, as his ordinance, to make a fruitful Progeny. And experience also teacheth us, that one man, joyned with one wife, according to Gods first institution, bave been bleffed with a more numerous pofferity, then they who have had many. But especially, this is evident in Solomon, who of his thousand wives and concubines, had onely one for, and he none of the beft; even as his father before him, though he had divers fons, yet was not much bleffed in them, feeing they were, many of them, father corrafives to eat out his heart with grief and vexation, then comforts and causes of joy, as Amnon, Absolom and Adonijah, I Chro.3.1.

V. 3. And bis second Chileab Called also Daniel, I Chro.

the third Absolom the son of Maachab, the daughter of Talmat ing of Gefhur.] A City scituate in the North, on the frontier of Gilead, at the entrance of the vallies of Syria Trachonitis, Deut. 3, 14. John 12. 5, and chap. 5.8. whence (as some think) David had his wife, when being at Ziglag, he invaded and forraged the country of the Geshurites and Amalekites. and taking her captive, did marry her, becoming first a Proselyte to the Jews Religion. Which after some ceremonial ob-12, 13. (though not very expedient, feeing he had choyce enough among his own people) because she was not one of those seven cursed Nations, with whom marriage was interdicted. But it is more probably thought, that David married her after his departure from Ziglag, where he had onely two wives, Ahinoam and Abigail, and with her fathers liking and consent, when he was choien King of Judah, and dwele at He-bron; that he might, by this alliance, secure his Kingdom from the like invasion; seeing if David and Talmai had not been in league and friendfhip, it is not like that Abfolom would have fled to him for protection, when for murthering his brother Amnon, he was in his fathers difplealure.

V. 5. And the fixth Ithream, by Eglab Davids wife] All the rest were his wives, yet she onely is so called; either because her parentage being obscure, the was no otherwise known, then by her title of being Davids wife, as all the other were; or, to diffinguish her from some other, that then lived, of the fame name, or, being the last that is named, the, in particular, is called his wife, to imply, that all the rest were his wives likewife, qy whom he had thefe children, besides those which he had by his concubines, 1 Chro.3.9. V. 6. Abuer made bimfelf strong for the house of Saul ] That is, be furnished himfelse with arms, munition and riches, and in-creased his army, to settle upon Hibbosheth the Crown and Kingdom. V. 7. And Ishbosheth said to Abner. Wherefore hast thou come in to my fathers concubine? ] That is, half lyen with and defiled her; with which fault he chargeth him, either because it was o reported unto him by others, or, out of his own groundlefs suspition and jealousie, seeing it appeareth not whether it was fo or no; Abner, in his answer, neither confessing nor denying it. But howfoever it were true or falle, it feemeth that Ithbotheths discontent did atile, not onely from this, that he had diffionoured his father, who was his King and Sovereign, in lythe contrary, for the ruin and the abolition of it. Where we ing with his concubine, being his hip jett; but chiefly, because observing unto what great firength he was grown, being Ge-land importunity, by which the was over-ruled. And feondly, neral of the Army, and in great favour with the people, he he might have therein a politick end, samely, to fettle peace, fulpeded that out of his sambition he adjoired to the Kingdom, and fecture the polificing on his Kingdom, by prograting hey made made why herero, by making ulfe, of the Kingdom, and fecture the politicing on his kingdom, by prograting who had two forn, which might give fount colour to his claim, this daughert to live with him as his wife; freely remissing that when Inflorith was raken out of the way. For it ferently, in great wrong offered unto him, in marrying he to another when libedicts was taken out of the ways. For it remote, in great wrong outered unto unit, minarying are of another their dayes, that the having of the slings wives and conclusines, man, after his decade, was shought to be a figure which discovered v. 14. And David fem moffenger to Ifholpheb Sauls for figure their ambition that a figure to the Crown; and fome help, allo, jing, Deliver me my mife Mitchell Wherein he defined no favour vilifi: me, as fome mean groom or fcoundrel, from whofe fupport, both thy felf, and all thy fathers house, have their whole subsistance; and who have power in mine hand, when I please, to deliver thee into thine enemies hands, who would denote thee and feek thy ruine >

Chap. iij.

V. g. So do God to Abner, and more alfol See Ruth. 1. verf.

17. and the note upon it.
except, as the Lord hath fworm to David, even fo I do to him.] That is, translate the kingdom from the house of Saul, and make bini King. Whereby it appeareth, that he knew, that God had chosen and appointed David to be King, and that all this while, he had opposed it against his knowledg and conscience, for his own worldly and carnal ends.
V. 10. from Dan, even to Beershebs. ] That is, over all Israel, from the North unto the South. See Judg. 20, 1, 1 King.

V.12. And Abner fent messengers to David on his behalf ] Heb. in stead of himself. Or, in his own name, not during, as yet, to go unto him in his own person, til he had from him a safe conduct, and might be entertained, with acceptance, upon some good conditions. Others read it, Because of this, that is, being coraged by this affront.

fajing, Whole is the Land? ] Which may be either meant, thus, Whole is it to be flow? Or, In whole power is it to confer upon whom he pleafeth, but in mine, who am ready to give it thee ? Or thus, Unto whom of right doth it appertain, but unto thee onely; whom God, who alone hath the right to dispose of Kingdoms, hath chosen and appointed unto it : Where, like an hypocrite, he pretendeth that it was Gods designation, that moved him to tender unto him his service: whereas indeed it was out of his indignation towards Ishbosheth, and his felf-ends, to secure him from danger of pumishment for his former demerits, and in hope, by this meanes, to be advanced by Davids favour; or, to retain his present power and dignity, at leaft, that he might not be rejected, and cast out with dishonour and disgrace.

Make thy league with me, and behold, my hand (ball be with thee) That is, enter into covenant with me, that thou will remit all that is paff, receive me into favour, and give me fuch place and preferment, as befitteth my person and parts, to bring about all Ifree unto thee. ] That is, cause them to leave sinhos cheen, and become thy subjects.

V. 13. And be said, Well, I will make a league with thee] That is, David returned to Abner this answer, I like and accept of thy propositions.

daughter there were two principal causes, which made David so with it, and obtained his consent. defirous to have Michal brought back unto him, that he might deficiols to have outcast orought case, unto bilinguate or miget

V. 2.0. Alla activata make a poster and use time travely from bilinguate with the control of the control proved her love, by using meanes to save his life, when he was in extream danger, though therby the incurred the difpleafure of the King her father ; and howforver he might make fome Joubt of the continuance of her affection, because she had as we do not do it of free choyee, and love of their company, given her consent to marry another man, yet he imputed that, to further their delign, as appeareth in the example of Adonijah; from him, but onely that be would do him right, by uling his with whom Solomon was fo much displeased, for defiring to authority, for restoring unto bim her that was his lawful wife. with whom Solomon was to much displated, to channe to automity, for relating uno out act can was ansawing with a marry Abifing Davids wife, as gloppoling, that heavy he intended to get the Kindgonn, 1 King. 1.2.2.

V. 8. Then Abert——[Aid, Am I a dog thead] Or, a dog-kept. That it, sam I to bafe and countemptible in thine eyes, the constraint of the might not inglored, that Abert did kept. That it, sam I to bafe and contemptible in thine eyes, the constraint of the might not inglored, that Abert did kept. That it, sam I to bafe and contemptible in thine eyes, the constraint of the might not inglored, that Abert did kept. That it, sam I to bafe and contemptible in thine eyes, the constraint of the might not inglored. The might not include the might not might not include the might not that thou shouldt suspect me of committing so foul a fault ; terests; and also , that it might be the more easily effected, Or, suppose that I were guilt of it, am I, in thy esteem, in such having Ishbosheths authority to countenance it, and Abners alow and poor condition, and no better then a dog, or dog-power to back and execute it. Though it is apparent, that keeper; that thou holdest it to be such a great disparagement Abner, as he did help it on with his perswasion, so he was the sceper; such doub sources into be mean a great capparagement; lower, such as per our means per invants, lold was the unto the for me to lye with this woman, who was no notity had been the comparation of the state of the comparation of the co promature terrets, out our seature; toy terr, and you waste.

Samily ? And thus this phraft is utiled, chep. 9. 8. and 16. 9.

1 Sam. 44. 14. Deut, 29. 18.

which againft fashed so flower kinded; this day to the boufe of Polithiral He felecated his right unto her, not by Sauls free

Saal ] As the had faid; Hatt thou any reason to flight and gift, but in a way of justice, because he had purchased herara dear and dangerous rate, ventring his life in the procuring of the Philistims foreskins. And here he nameth an hundred onely, though he brought two hundred unto Saul, because the covenant between them was for one hundred alone, 1 Sam. 18. 25. 27.

V. 1 c. even from Phalsiel ber bushand Who is called Phalti. Sam. 25.44

V. 16. And her busband went with her along weeping ] Heb. going and weeping. That is, in expressing his great grief withtears, because a wife io noble and beautiful, was taken away from to Bahurim] A city of the tribe of Benjamin, scituate on the frontiers of Judah, ch. 19.16.

V. 17. And Abner had communication with the Elders of Israel]

That is, according to his covenant made with David. Te fought for David in times past to be King over you] Where-

V.11. And be could not suffere a word again, because the feared by Being over-awed with the greatness of his power which being being over-awed with the greatness of his power which head with the people, and essentially with the foundiers and Army.

V.12. And Abuse feet sufferees 10 David on his bestaff 1 this change, over-powered them, and compelled them to take part with Illuboftants Saals fon.

Heb. in flead of himself. Or, in his own name, not during any extra the with Illuboftants Saals fon.

ing, &c.] We do not read, where this is expresly spoken; but Ing., 8c.,] We do notread, where this is exprelly ipoken; out Josephus saith, that it was spoken by Samuel, and commonly known amongst the people. And here like a politick hypocrite, he pretendeth that he was moved to set up David King, in obedience to God, and for the good and falvation of the people, whereas he did it meerly out of felf-love, and to ad-vance his own private interest and politick ends.

V. 19. Abner alfo fake in the cares of Benjamin] i.e. Having received a latisfactory answer from the rest of the tribes, con descending to his motion, that they would receive David for their King; he addreffed himfelf to the tribe of Benjamin, speaking unto them to the same purpose, as he had done to the Elders. And this he doth, in an especial manner to them, because Saul being of their tribe, was chiefly in their favour; and therefore, if they gave way to Davids title, and fubmitted to his government; little doubt was to be made of the other

And Abner went alfoto fpeak in the ears of David in Hebron] i. e. Having received fuch an aniwer from the Elders of Ifrael, and Benjamin, as fatisfied him, he himfelf, to fhew his industrious diligence and faithfulnesse, in agitating Davids bufine is, which he had undertaken, went to carry the news of his good fuccels to him at Hebron. The which he did, either fecretly, that it might not come to Ishbosheths ear , baving all about him as his creatures at his command; or rather (because this could hardly be done, he having 20 men in his company pt of thy propositions.

Thousall not fee my face, except thou first bring Michal Sauls with him, to colour his action, he having acquainted subscheth

V. 20. And David made Abner and the men that were with 46. wherein David is thought to have failed; though not (as I conceive) because he feessed Abner, who (as they say) was fowicked in himfelf, and now acting treachery against his King; seeing it may be lawful to eat with wicked men, when not to her want of love to him, but to her fathers authority our wordly bufinclie and important affairs. Neither could it be counted treachery; feeing he had openly, professed, that he been a cause of raising all his party against him, and the occawould thus do even to Ishboshethsown face, and if it were un- sion of a bloody war, which would have disturbed the peace of lawful to fet up Ithbotheth, being contrary to Gods express Wil. then it was lawful to put him down, although he might fail in his ends, and manner of doing it; but here was David faulty, that he thus far proceeded in his own politique plots, and never consulted with God about it, for his direction : which might well be the cause of the ill success of this transaction and that it had fuch a tragical conclusion.

1 yell great unta my lord the King] i.e. All the tribes, or the great cared, and debarred from entring into the Congregation and eff part of all, or all the chief of all effates and conditions. So Math, 3. 5. Phil. 2. 21.

V. 22. Fast came from pursuing a troop, and brought in a great spoyl] That is, a troop of enemies, and as it is most likely, the Philistims, who had fent out this troop to spoyl the coun-

v. 24. Then Joah came to the King and faid, What haft theu done That is, in a proud and infolent manner, he tax-th the this foul fact; feeing Abner flew Afahel, like a brave Souldi-King of imprudence and indifference, for fending avery a dangerous enemy, when he had him in his bands.

V. 25. Thou knowest abner the fon of Ner that be came to deceive shee] That is, thou mightift well have known, if thou amity, haddl been so considerate, that Abner being so subtile and V. politick a man, came not for any good that he intended to-wards thee, but onely to deceive thee; when, like a crafty spie he had discovered all thy counsels and courses, thy actions & proceedings. And thus he fweetneth his faucy reproof by pretending that it did proceed out of his love and care of Davids good; whereas, in truth, he did it out of felf-love, pride and envy, fearing left Abner, by this important fervice, should creep into Davids favour, and be corrival with him in honours and preferments. And was therefore vexed, because Abner had efcaped out of his hand, when such a fit opportunity was offer- | ple, though they had no hand in it. ed, but now thinks of revenging himfelf on him, for the death of [ A fahel his brother.

V. 26. And when Foab was come out from David] From whom he flung in a fury and discontent, not waiting for his re-ply, as he would have David conceive it; but indeed making all habe to put his defign in execution.

be fent meffengers after Abner] Ufing (as it is likely) Davide name to countenance his action; and pretending that he had some weighty and important business, to treat further with him about. Which, perhaps,made David afterwards the more earnell and careful in clearing himfelf, and wiping away this sufficient that he had some hand in Abners murther.

which brought him again from the well of Siriah \ Which was scituate on the North of Hebron.

V. 27. Fost took bim afide in the gate to speak with bim quietb) (1King. 2.5.) Heb. peaceably. That is, to treat with him enemy, making no refiltance? as if he had faid, no furely, he about the Kings affairs in fecret, and (as it were) in his ear, did not dye fo, but was fuddenly and treacheroufly furprifed, that no man might hear him. And because he would be the having no opportunity to flew his yalour, as the most conless suspected, he made choyce of this place to consult with has impected, be made tunged or this place to commit with Abuter, neer the gate of the city, which was the place of judica-ture, and of their publike and foleron meetings. and fingle birn under the fife vib, that he dyed! As he had done' before to his brother Afancl. See ch. 2, ver. 23, and the note, porthe bload of Alphel ble brother] This was one cause which made Joab take this revenge, though he had little reason to do it, testing Abute did it, in a fortunarillingly, and not before he was much provided to do it, by Alabels importantly. But God better is had his ends, as well as Joab bits, and that was, justly openith Abner, as for all other fins, fo for his total into, for list to the contrary to this own knowledg and conscience, compass he workless and conscience are conscienced as a manufactor bound in chains and fetters, and folded not conscience in the base of the conscience in the base and conscience, to compass his worldly and wicked ends; and for being the cause of shedding so much blood in this unlawfolwar , at which he fo little ferupled, that he counted it but a (port or play, ch. 24. And (countly, by this means he took) and friendflaip: fo was it with thee. And this he publisheth Abner out of the way, that David might not be beholding to hun for bringing Ifrael under his government ; but would have him come to the Kingdom by a better way.

V. 28. I and my Kingdom are guiltlefs before the Lord for over ] That is, Lam wholly innocent, of having any hand in this biynous crime of shedding Abners blood; and therefore the Lord, who knoweth it, will never lay it to my charge, to punish me for it, nor my Kingdom, for my fake, feeing it is alike guiltless V 29. Let it reft upon Josh and on all his fathers bonfe ] Though we are bound by Gods law to abiliain from all private revenge, to overcome evil with goodnesse, and to pray for our enemies that hure and perfecute us; yet in this publique cause, that concerned not David alone, but the welfare of the whole kingdome, he is fain to pie thele fearful imprecations, both against Joad and his whole family, that so he might the better cleer himself from having any hand in this horrid murther, of which, otherwise, he was likely to be suspected, by Abners friends at leaft, that he was confenting to it. The which would have the Common-wealth, caused much effusion of blood, and quite unfetled him in the Kingdom; in which now, by general confent, they were about to effablish him king.

and leather not fail fro , the house of Foab ] i. c. As long as his family, or any of it continueth, let tome of, or all thefe evils befal them. So 1 King. 5.27.

that hath an iffice] i c. Some incurable running fore, or pertaking of the publique ordinances, Levit, 15, 21 or that leaneth on a staffe ] To wit, by reason of feebleneffe and lamenetie. V. 30. So Josb and Abifhai bis brother, flew Abner | That is. both the brothers conspired together, and plotted this murther, though Joab alone did act it. at Gibeon in the battle] Which is added, as an aggravation of er, (though unwillingly) in the open field; but Joab flew Abner desperately and willingly, though in a base, cowardly, and treacherous manner, when he pretended peace and

V. 21. And David faid to Joab, and to all the people, Rent your clothes ] i. e. He proclaimed a folemn and publique funeral-mourning for the death of Abner, and for that heinous fin that was committed in his murther , that hereby he might thew he was innecent, and had no hand in it. And he would have Joab to joyn in it with all the rest, because he was the chief actor in it, that (if it were possible) he might bring him hereby to a fight and fence of the fin , and unfeined repentance for it, when he was convinced of the heynousnesse of it, by this publique lamentation of the King and all the pro-rent jour clothes, and gird you with Sack-clash That to teflific the renting their hearts with grief; and this, to afflict their bodies, and to acknowledg their unworthinesse to put on better clothing. See ch. 1. 4. and Gen. 37.29. and the notes upon them

And King David himfelf followed the beir] i.o. That he might the more honour Abners funeral, he laid afide his kingly dignity, and attended upon the coarle. For among all nations, Kings have been ever exempted from such expressions of their

V. 31. The King lift up his voyce and wept] i.e. Did not only expresse his grief by shedding of tears, but also did testific only expressed is greef by incoming or tears, but amount reasons it to the people by vocal lamentations.

V. 33. And faid, Oyed Abnet as a fool? i.e. As a base coward, that soolishly yeeldeth himself to be flaughtered by the ragious man on the earth, might have been in the like cale

V. 34. Thy hands were not bound, nor thy feet put into festers] That is, thou didit not dye like a bale weak captive taken in war, having neither courage nor strength to make resistance, world, that bath to do with falle, faithleffe, and gracelefs men, who have no respect to true valour, honour, or honesty; of whom he bath no tufpition, because they make shew of love before Joabs face, in the audience of all the people, as a part of his punishment, for his wicked fact, by branding him with this diffionour and reproach.

V. 35. And when all the people came to cause David to eat meat] That is, the Tribunes, Colonels, and chief Commanders of the people and army; hearing that David refused to est, they came and intreated him not to lay it fo much to heart, as to torbear his food, especially, there being a funeral feast provided, to refresh and cheer them in the time of their mourning, as the manner was then, and is to this day, in followin functals. See Jer. 16.7, 8. Ezek. 4.17.

So do God to me and more alfo] See Ruth 1.17. and the note upon it.

if I safe bread, or onghr elfe, 'silk the Sun be down] The which falling be joyned with his mourning, to experts his grief for Abper, and to eleer himself of being any way gainly of his death, that hereby he might give flatisaction to the people floing his innocency.

V. 26. And all the people took notice of it, and it pleafed them

theb. was god in thir eye. Which is fild, to intimate, that | fpoyl, chap. 3. 22 |
David attained unto his end, at which he prudently symed in | of the children of Benjemin | Though now the Philliffirm the carriage of this buffingle, that is, to cleer himfelf, and policified it, the benjamines after Sauls difcomfrore, being fled please the people.

As what sever the King did. pleased all the people That is, h was to waste expected and a guid demeasure in all his couries and 9.17.

that not onely his prudent carriage of all this buffnels, concertant of the couries ning Abner, but generally, in all things elle, he was exceeding lown of Benjamin, Neb. 11. 33. whither they fled for fear of the Philiftims.

Of which dight mention is there made, that

V. 37. that it was not of the King ] That is, not by his will, countel, or instigation, directly, or indirectly, that Abner was flain.

V. 38. Know ye not that there is a Prince, and a great mas fallen this day in Ifrael? That is, ye cannot chuse but take fallen ; and that , therefore, they that killed him fhould be punifhed as murtherers, where there is power to do it.

V. 39. And I am this day weak, though ansinted King] That is, unfetled in my Kingdom, like a tender plant that nath not taken root, and therefore of small power to see justice execued; efpecially, on those murtherers, who are in fuch favour with the people, and command the army. The which excuse was below pions, and valiant David, and too much favoreth of carnal policy, and ung ounded fear. For he had Gods infallible promile, that he would not onely bring him to the Kingdom, but also establish him on his Throne, and his posterity after him. Which could not be frustrated and made voyd unto him, by all the power and plots of all wicked traytors, combining together and conspiring against him; and there-fore he needed not to have feared the executing of justice upon fuch an haynous malefactor, maugre the might and malice of him, and all his allies and adherents. Again, where there is from God an absolute command, there is no disputing with flesh and blood. He that sheddeth mans blood, must by man bave bis blood fbed, Gen. 9.6 and the wilful murtherer muft be taken from the altar, if he flee to it for fhelter and fanctuary, and be putto death, Exod 1.1.14. And though there were danger nit, yet let juffice be done, though heaven fall. Neither was there so much peril in the execution, as there was in the neglecting of it. For at this time David was highly in the peoples favour; and Joabs abominable fact must needs render him odious to all men, who were not as wicked as him felf. And whilft justice was delayed, the guilt of blood did lycupon the King and the whole land. Which if it had been duly ex-ecuted, Amala his death, had been prevented, whom Joab, being fleshed with cruelty and impunity, did, in like manner, take away. Nor is it sufficient to say, that his punishment was onely respited and not remitted, seeing, all that while, the guilt of blood defiled the land, and cryed for vengeance, till it was expiated by his punishment, 1 King. 2. 31,33. Yea, but this command, of executing the murtherer, is an affirmative precept, which is alwaies binding to obedience, but not to all times, for the acting of it. To which I answer, that though forme delay were allowed for the punishing wilful murtherers, (for which we have no warrant in the Scriptures) yet this would not excuse David, for his not executing justice upon Joab, when he was established in his Kingdom, even to the very end of bis riegn ; feeing, it was more then probable, that in fo long time he would have dyed a natural death; or being a martial man and in continual wars, have been flain by his enemies, and fo justice should have been never execu-

the Lord fhall remard the evil door ] That is, though I be unable to inflict condign punishment on these potent offenders; yet the Lord, in his due time, will do it himfelf; and referring it unto him, I defire him to do it, 1 King. 2. ver. 5, 6. and 24.

Vers. 1. And when Sauls fon heard that Abner was dead in Hebron, his bands were feeble] That is, when Ishbosheth heard that Abner was taken away, upon whom he wholly relyed; he was fo daunted and difanimated, that he became weak, both in courage and counfel, and was utterly disabled for action, and managing the great affairs of the Common-wealth. So Ezra 4. 4. Neh. 6. 9. Ifai.13.7. and

And all the Ileaclises were troubled That is, all the tribes that adhered to his partie, were in great fear and perplexity, with she fuddeness of this news, because they knew not what would become of the Treaty of peace and reconciliation, Abner be-ing dead, who did negotiate it; and if it should break off for want of his profecution, and the Kingdom should again be imbroyled in a new war, they should now be at a great loss, Abner being dead, upon whole counsel and conduct they chiefly relyed.

out of it, I Sam. 31.7. the four of Rimmon a Beerothite That is, born in Beeroth, a was fo well accepted, and so gracious in the eyes of the peoples city which belonged to the tribe of Benjamin, Josh, 18. 25.

these Captaines might be known to be Beerothites, though they now fojourned in Girtain, and their city, at this time, was inhabited by the Philiffims. Others think, that there were two cities of this name; one in Benjamin, the other in fallen this day in Ifract? ] That is, we cannot chuse but cake the South frontiers of Judah, whither these Borrothites fled, notice of it, that there is a great Peer and Pillar of the land and there inhabited, liking it so well, that they returned not to their own city, to the time that this flory was written.
V. 4. And Jonathan Sauls fon, had a fon that was lame] The drift of this narration concerning Mephibosheth, is to shew what induced thefe two Captains to murther Ishbosheth, that they might thereby ingratiate themselves into the favour of David:to wit, because there was none remaining of Sauls house that were likely to vindicate his death; for Mephibofheth only was left, when libbofheth was taken away, and he bur a childe, and lame of his feet ; and therefore, as he was unlikely to revenge his uncles death, being thus young and imporent, effecially when as he could not look otherwise upon him, then as an ulurper, who had put him by his title in lineal fueceffion; fo he was as far unable to hinder David from quiet possession of the Crown and Kingdom, being a lame childe, whom no man much respected. Whereupon they conclude, that the taking away of Ishbosheth would be so advantageous to David, that he could not choose, in common humanity, but richly reward the contrivers and actors of it. Whereas on the other fide, Ishbosh:ths Kingdome was (now that Abner was dead) in fuch a declining and tottering condition, that there was no hope of advancement by him, though they were never fo faithful in his fervice.

when tydings came of Saul] i.e. Of his overthrow and death, out of Ferreel] Where the battle was fought and loft, I Sam.

and bu name was Mephibosberb ] Called also Merib-baal,

Chr. 8.34. See ch. 11.21. and the note upon it.
V. 5. And the sons of Rimmon went i.e. Seeing that all things grew worfe and worfe with Ifhbusheth, and that David was likely to be king of all Israel, they resolved to flay him; and to this end now came, thinking hereby to gratifie David, and to endear their fervice, prefuming of indemnity, because there was none, but a lame childe, to revenge his and came about the heat of the day to the house of Ishbosheth, who lay on his bed at noon] Which though it were a common custome in those hot countries, to take their ease in the heat of the day, which made them unfit for action and imployment ; yet it feemeth, it is spoken bere in a special manner of Ishbosheth , because he was a dull unactive man, who having put off all bufinefs to Abner, gave himfelf over to floth and eafe; the which was unfuitable for a King at other times, but especially to him in his present condition, full of desperate danger, Ab-ner his chief strength being taken away. And therefore it was just that he should dye in his floth, that had lived flothfully all

V. 6. And they came thither into the midst of the house, as though they would have fetched wheat ] To wit, either having difguiled themselves in the habite of such as came to buy corn, Ishboshthe lands (if fement) yeeling great flore and plenty el is or of potters, that come to carry away fome that had been bought; or elfe, (as it is more probable) being Commanders in the botherths army, and well acquainted in his house, they came thirder, under this pretence of fetching corn for the provision of the camp, or for themselves and their own Souldiers which were under their command; by which colour baving free acceffe, they went into the chamber, where he lay, and finding him affeed upon his bed, murthered him ; and cutting off his head, took it away with them, and carried it to David, expetting fome great reward.

and gat them away through the Plain all night ] i. e. They making all possible halle, for fear of being pursued and overtaken, travelled all night from Mahanaim, where they did commit this bloody act, unto Hebron, through the Plain between Jericho and Hebron, ch. 2.8.

and they [mote him under the fifth rib] Sec ch. 2. 28. and the N. 8. Behold the head of Ilhholheth the fon of Saul thine enemy, norsynam a new war, they indume now near a great corts, there is no start of the property of t this fact had revenged upon his fon.

Chap, iv.

and the Lord bath avenged my lord the King ] Which though it dence, thing this a means of tering Davia in the quiet aim | eq. | and maning term partners in the same repulsers, who had perceible polificial of the whole Kingdom; and it was jult! been partners in the same canie, | and had both alike fall by with the Lord to bring Hilboffierth to luch an end, | as having treacherous bands. usurped the kingdom contrary to Gods revealed Will, yet in excused not them at all for murthering their Lord; seeing they berein had no respect to accomplish Gods Will, which express forbiddeth all treachery and murther, but only aymed at their own private profit and advancement

V. 9. As the Lord livesb, who hash redeemed my fout out of all adverfity] i.e. As fure as the Lord liveth, who hath alwayes hitherto delivered me out of all my troubles, by just and law-ful means, without the felp of any base villany or wicked treachery; I will inflict upon you, according to your demerits, fevere punishment ; the which latter part, he abruptly supposeth, as it is ufual in oaths.

V. 10. When one told me] That is, The Amalekite, who brought news of Sauls death, and that he had flain him, chap.

4 '55,15, [aring, Bebold, Saul & dead ] Saying withal, that upon Sauls requeft, he did but help to kill him, and rid him out of his pain, chap. 1. 10.

V. 11. How much more when wicked men have flain a righteem perion] That is, how much better reason have I to execute not fimply in himfelf, yet in reference to you, having done you no wrong, to provoke you to do this horrid act ; but contrariwife had well deferved at your bands, by advancing you to a place of command in his army.

ger. By all which circumstances, he aggravateth their horrible reluctancy in the times of their ignorance, according to that, crime, as being in many respects far mure baynous, then that Pfal. 210 2. of the Amalekite, the which he had punished with death, For he was an Amalekite, and in respect of nation and birth, an enemy to Gods people; from whom no better was to beex-pecked, especially by Saul, who not long fince had stain al-most all their nation; but these, liraclites and bretaren of the fame religion, and thereby obligged to perform all good duties they were all brethren; but alfo, and chiefly, to fhew upon one to another ; yea, they were of the fame tribe with Ifhbothe Community jets, and we were the same trios with most of the same ground they conclude to be used and in facts, and for one of their brother; from their mafter. He did but haften his death, bring deadly among whom they were bound, by Gods law, to choole their their maffer. He did but halfen his death, bring death) wounded, and out of all hope of recovery, to eaf his pain and prevent his finame and dishonor; but they took away his fine, when he was in his prifted health, and dispected in adsager. He did it (as he pretended) at his earnet frequest, out of meetings, of the him from contenue. But they do it had in a violent master against his will, when he was taking his repole, and was ease. He, when he was particular of his remains in the field. He was a first that the sum and the sum person against the attempts of any other.

Isolage to not more more in journe; o pound you not this notine.

Isolage t not more more in journe; o pound you to this that critic with all leverity; letting neither the example of bim that peace; but alloexpert, and much experienced in war, and flw Saul, nor the innoceacy of the pelfon, nor duty to your mafter, nor reverence of the place, nor time, could deter you and the Lord buth faid to thee, Thou fluid feed my people I fael] from committing fuch a trescherous and bloody fact.

V. 12. And they flew them, and cut off their hands and feet, and hanged them over the pool of Hebron. ] They were diffuent-bred of their hands and feet, because these were the special area or enter manes and acted, occasion times were user precise influences in adding this valianty, their feet in carrying them in the time of war, 1 sam, 16, 11, 11, 181, 28, 71. In both to it, which were furfit to find blood, and their bands in flab.

which refrects, he was a type of Christ, Pfal. 1.6, 10. 10. ing him and cutting off his head. The murtherer, by the letter 3,4,10,11. of the Law, was appointed only to be put to death but when the crime was more bainous and horrible; it was in the Magit firstees power to aggravate and uncreast the pumiliments, and make them exemplary, to deter others from the like wicked and the meaning that the most power of the meaning that the meaning the pumiliments, and that they would be meaning the pumiliment, and that they would be meaning the meaning nels. And though, as the Jewish writers observe, it was not bound themselves by solemn Covenant; confirmed by a facred lawful to leffen the punishment which the Law had appointed, oath, calling God to witness, and invocating his Name, for as imprisonment, whipping, luss of goods, instead of death; a bleffing on their proceedings; in which respect it is faid, that yet they might adde unto it, according to the nature of the fing they made this league before the Lord. See Judg 11.11. and breause God, in mercy, had appointed the least degrees of the note upon it. punishments, which in justice could be required. Now these hands and feet David caused to be hanged over the pool of hands and feet David couled to be hanged over the pool of thebron, (their bodies, it is their first ferning, being feetond, by the ribe of Judsh. ch. 2, and the brited beer, by taken down according to the preferrptor she law, Dutat. 23.) both, that they might be a publike spectacle and example, began to execute his Kingly effice, like David, at the age of to deter others from committing the like wickedness, and to thirty years, and was thrice anounted by God, and, as it were, flew his deteflation of such a treacherous villary; that foir proclaimed King over his Church. First, by the secret might appear to all the world, that he was clear of having any unction of his holy Spirit, Plal 45.7. & 2.6.7. Secondly, at hand in this bloody fact, either by contriving it, or giving any his baptisme, by a voyce from heaven, Math. 3. 16, 17. And incouragement to the actors of it.

but they took the head of Ishbasheth, and buried it in the sepulchre of Abner ] Honoring him (though an enemy) with an honorwere true, in respect of the secret workings of Gods provi- able burial, in that city where the great Patriarks did lie interdence, using this as a means of setting David in the quiet and ed a and making them partners in the same sepulcibre, who had

CHAP. V.

Verf. 1. Hen came all the tribes of Ifrael to David unto Hebron] i. e. Not only the Elders and chief of all their tribes, as it is v. 3. but with them their tribunes, Captains, and Commanders, with a great army, gathered together out of all Ilrael, armed and well appointed for the war, as it is specially expressed, I Chr. 12.22, where the number of the feveral wibes that came to him at Hebron, being fummed up together, amounteth to three hundred thousand, which continucd three dayes with David, feafting and rejoycing at his inauguration, and coronation , their brothen of the tribe of Judah dwelling at Hebron, and all the country adjoyning, having made liberal provision for their entertainment, with the help also of the tribes of Islachar, Zebulon, and Naphtali, who were neer unto them, and brought in likewise their provisions, as it is expressed, 1 Chr. 12.30,40, which feast being ended, David taketh the opportunity of this great affembly, before he difmifsed them to affault the Jebufites ftrong Fort, which was thought fevere juffice on fuch bloody and treacherous affafanates as you, to be impregnable; and therefore was never attempted bitter-who have murthered one who was juft and innocent; though to by any or but Judges, Samuel, or Saul. Now this free comming in of all thetribes, after their long reluctancy and oppofition, and their peaceable submission unto David as their King, was a type of the voluntary submission of all nations, Jews, and Gentiles, called and gathered by the preaching of in his own busse, upon his bed.] That is, in a place where he the Golpel, to the Kingdom of Christ, and his gracious accephad reason to think himself most secure and free from all dan- tance of them as his subjects, notwithstanding all their former > behold, we are thy bone, and thy flesh ] i. e. All of us Ifraelites, both thou, and we, being defeended from the fame father, Ja-cob, and therefore all brethren; which they alledg, not only as an argument to move David to receive them graciously, as his subjects, notwithstanding their former oppositions, feeing what ground they choic him to be their King, namely, be-and had no nope to etcape then they; out they alrea min in against our enemies, and diote oring them oath, crowned his own house, and sleeping on his bed, and in no danger to with victory, and laden with spoyl; by which former benebe surprized by any other enemies, but such treacherous vil- fits received by thy prudent and valiant conduct, as we are lains as they, who ought to have been his guard to fecure his much obligged unto thee; fo having had already fo much experience of thy parts, prowefs, and prosperous success in all [ball I not therefore now require bis blood at your bands. ] That thy enterprises, we cannot think of any to be fo fit to be our is, ought I not much more in juffice, to punify you for this hourid King; because thou art not only prudent to govern, in time of

That is, bath already anounted thee by Samuel, to be king over all Ifrael; and to be, both as a good Shepheard to provide food for them, and to guide and govern them, in the time of peace; and as a good Captain, to go out and in before them,

And they anoyuted David King over Ifrael ] Which was his thirdly, at his tansfiguration, Math. 17.5.

monethe? See ch. 2. 11. and in ferufalem be reigned thirty and three years over all Ifracl and Fudab] The lait yeer being begun, bur not finished. For he reigned precifely but thirty and two years and fix moneths; but to make a round number, the laft yeer, though not compleat, but currant, is added, to make up the full number, as is usuall in the Scriptures, Judg. chapter 24. verle

V. 6. And the King and be men were to Fernfalem] i. When he had on this oceasion such a great number of the choyce and chief men of his Kingdom assembled, he took this opportunity to affault and vanquish the Jebusius in their

ment to Ferusalem unto the Febustes Before called Jebus Judg. 19. 10. and Sziem, Gen. 14. 18. Pial. 76. 2. which wards caused the rort or suon, and exceeding irrors, tell to Ben, ausirs portion; but they being not able to vanquish it; though they were affilted by Judab, Judh. 15.52. the John-fites did fill inhabite it, Judg. 2.23, and so did in the time of the wandring Levite, Judg. 19. so, 11. and even to this prefent, when David affaulted and took it. And in this part belonging to Benjamin, was the hill Morish, where Abraham was appointed to facrifice his fon, but afterwards was inhibited, the Lord having provided him another factified. Whence, it feemens, Jerulalem had its name, being derived from Jirch, God will be forn in the mount ; and Shalem, figuitying seare, and both conjoyned in that one name, Jerusalem, ing peate, and both composed us that one name, Jerulaises, the vision of peate. And this David at the very entrance into the rule of the whole people first attempted, intending to make it the metropolis and chief city of the Kingdom, where the Temple was afterwards to be built on the hill Moriah. And the rather, because Melchizedek the Prieft of the high God. bad dwelt and reigned there, Heb. chap. 7. ver. 1. and was also the most commodious place to be the chief seat of the Kingdome , being sciuse in the midft of the other tribes, and in his own tribe, whom they had chosen to be their

Which spake unto David, faying, Except thus take away the blinde and the lame, thou foult not come in buther) Which words, blinds and the lane, these fault and some in bethe? Whench worlds, and the next verifes followings, being obvieue, intrincates, and very preferred, are diverfly underflood by many Expositore, bettering patient mond of them, I will only produce their which term most probable. Some underflamd them as a proud and formful brage of the Febouriers, who prefuming that their Fore was for flrong and impregnable, that though they had none to defend it but imposents means and fuch as were binded and home, exit it would be in wain, and but more than the production of the prod loft labour for David and his army, to attempt the affaulting of it; and that out of this confidence, by way of contempt and derifion, they fet only fuch to defend and guard it. Others think, that by the blinde and lame, they meant their idols and images, in which they put their truth, being their tutelary gods, as fufficient, being placed there, to make good the place against all the power of Mirel, without any other help a which they called the blin-leand hame, not out of that opinion which themselves had of them; who highly efteened them, as their Patrons and Protectors; but as they were upbraided by the Ifractites, who thus conceived of them; as if they had faid, though you have fuch a base opinion of our gods, as blinde and lame idols; yet being placed on this impregnable Fore, you shall finde, that if you dare attempt the furprizing of it, you shall be able to do it, though you found

V. 7. Nevertheleffe, David took the ftrong hold of Zion. The [ame is the City of David] i. e. Notwithstanding all their confidence, expressed in their proud brags and scorns, David caufed this their firong hold, in which they put their truft, to be affaulted and raken, and called it the city of David; the maner of which furprize, is expressed in the next verse.

V. 8. And David faid on that day, who fever getteth up into the gutter] Or thus, For David faid. Where the manner how, and the means whereby, are expressed taking the frong hold; namely, first Davids plotting and contriving the best and readiest way of taking it, which was by scaling the walls, and getting into the gutter, and killing the Jebulnes with the lame and blinde, who were placed there by way of fcorn to man, and defend it; and fecondly, Joahs executing of his defign, by first entring into the Fore, and slaying al there: which he undertook, partly moved hereunto by his de-fire of recovering Davids favour, which he had loft by his kill-

V. 5. In Hebren he reigned over Judah fecen years and fix | plainly and particularly expressed, a Chremicles, chapter 11.

ver. 6 and the lame and the blinde that are bated of Davids foul] Which if we understand literally, is not simply meant, that David hated the lame and blinde, because of their impersections, who ought rather to be pitted and relieved, but respectively, as they were by the Jebusites, in a way of from and de-rision, presented unto him, to diffrace and dishonour him and his whole army. But if we take it in a fambolical fence, to be meant of the idols and images, which have eyes, and fee not; and feet, and walk not ; then it is to be understood absolutely, that they were listed of Davids foul.

wherefore they faid, the blinde and the lame fhall not come imo the base of Or, because they had said, even the blinds and the lame, be shall not come into the bouse That is, on this occasion they took it up as a common proverb, faying, the blinde and lame shall not come into the boule. Whereby some understand, (and dan and benjamin. The one part fell to the lot of Judah, most probably the royal butter of Pallace of David, from called Shalem, which they conquered and inhabited, Judg 1.

18. The other flanding on the North fide, which was after pride and that the forest flam of the work of the day of the probably the royal butter of Pallace of David, from called Shalem, which was after pride and thate, as the Portion the Part of North Pallace of the Pa into intir Courts in lackcioth, because they would not one that the beholding of mournful objects. Heft, 4. but that it might be a perpetual memorial of this victory, to have the blinde and lame feeluded from entring into the Kingshoufe, because they were used, as the Jebusites instruments, to put fuch a foul feern upon him. Neither can it himder us to take the words in this fence, that Mephibosheth (though lame) was admitted to fit at the Kings table, feeing no rule is so general, which may not have some one exception; and the presence of Mephibosheth had another use, namely, to put David in minde of his dearly loving Jonathan, and to to pur Dayse in turnor or no occarry towning Jonatesin, and to be turn to him a caule of 100 and content; when by thewing breichneffe to the fon, he had fome opportunity of expretting his love and thankfulneffe to his decertied father. But they who would have their blinde and lame idols to be underflood, do think, that leaveby is meast, that these idols and images should be wholly excluded from entring, or being admitted into, either the Kings hours, or the house of God. But I fee no reason why this should need a new interdiction, in remembrance of this great victory, steing alwayes before, they were forbidden to be received, either into one of these places, or notonadem to perfectives, entire rites one or tracte praces, or the other. Now as this protect he at taken to among the peo-ple, for a memorial of this great victory, for which they had al-ways cruft to prafte God; for was applyed according to spe-dial occasions; as when they would intimate, that a thing feeming impossible, might come topas; as the taking of this impregnable tower. Or, to reprove them who were proud impregnance cover. Or, to report them who the Foundary and prefumptions in their own frength, either in respect of place and foutfactions, or the arm of fieth, by relling them that they might be deceived, as well as the Jebuffres; or to give men warning, that they should not commit the like error give men warning, that they should not commit the like error. with them; that is, prefinne too much of their own firength, with them; that is, prefirme too much or their own and left they failed in their hopes, as well as they; feeing oftentimes, what begins in confidence, doth end in thame. rake heed, left that befall themfelves, which they intend to others; as the Jebusites thinking to make fure, that David should never enter their Fort, were themselves expelled, and never ro-entred. Others read thefe words, as we have them in our margin, because they bad faid, &c. that is, David promileth this reward to bins that should take away the blinde and mutten mis rewarded size away need blande and lame, because they had put this form upon him.

V. 9. And Draid built round about from Optilo and inward!
Which was a deep or broad valley or de th, dividing Sion from the lower city; from whence David raided his wall of defence about Ston. See 1 King-9. 15. Others think, that this Mills was the town-houle in the City of David, where the prople had their folemn affemblies, fo called from filling and rep ishing. Others (and very probably) think, that it was forme tower, or fortrels, and place of munition belonging to the ci-City of David, and he made darts and firelds in abundance, 2 Chr.
3. 5. And the like place of the fame name, and for the like nie, we read of, Judg. 9. 6, 20, 49. And from this tower or fortreffe, David is faid to have built the City round abour, even from Millo, and that Joab repaired the reft of the eity that was without. Compare this with a Chron. chap. 15.

V. 10. And David west on and grew grest Heb. west going and growing. i. c. Prospered in all his attempts, because the Lord by his special favour was with him , and affisted

V. 11. And Hirsm King of Tyre] Which was a royal, potent, and famous city of merchandize, feituate on, and in the fea, by the West limits of Ashur, Josh. 19. 29. and buik by the Phoenicisms, who had formerly dwelt by the red fes, nce or recovering parsons stroots, when ne man mat on its life. The resultating, were one intermity owned, or frequent in gathers; and party encouraged to attempt it, by the land being datums thence by carefugathes, frequent into reward promited, of being made, for this fervice, General of those Comparison, and other caluminos, they are proposed in the regular party of the proposed in the comparison is better only imaginated in greyard largerap, but Chap. v. on a low ground, which was of little note, for fiftermen called by anticipation, on this occasion. on a consistency of the long bridge forth upon my enteries beforeme, as the lond hash bridge forth upon my enteries beforeme, as the lond hash bridge forth upon my enteries beforeme, as the lond hash bridge forth upon my enteries be referred to his enclonies, as Carthage, Leptis, Utica, and the Islands of mies, which were dispersed and scattered, like weak waters Gades.

fent meffengers to David ] i. c. Hearing of his fame and vertaken with them, he fent ambaffadors unto him, to congratulate his happy fettlement in his Kingdom , thereby thewing his great respect and kindnesse towards him.

and Cedar trees, and Carpenters, and Masons] i.e. After that Hirams messengers had been with him, and were returned to their mafter, by whom he made it his fuite unto him, that he would accommodate him with these men and materials for the building of him an house, seeing there was the greatest plenty of the choyceft Cedars in Lebanon, which for the most part was scituate in his country, and the most excellent arti- er success. fans, both in wood and from the most excellent after fans, both in wood and from there, above any other place.
All which according to his request he sent unto him.
V. 12. And Davil perceived that the Lord had established him]

i.e. By Gods bleffing and prospering him in all his affairs, he experimentally found the truth of Gods promifes, in the feeling of him in the Kingdom.

V. 13. And David took bim mo Concubines and wives ] Which (as it feemeth) he did to multiply his friends and allies, for the ftrengthening of him in his Kingdom; but herein he fhewed much humane frailty and infirmity, in using that as a means to establish him, which God in his law had expressly forbidden, Deut. 17. 17. Concerning Concubines, See Judg. chapter 19. ver. 1, 2. and the note upon it, 1 Chron. chapter 3. V. 14. And these be the names Shammua] Called alfo Shimea, 1 Chr. 3.5.

V. 15. Elishus Called also Elishama, 1 Chron. chap.3.

V. 16. And Eliada | Called alfo Beeliada. 1 Chr. chap. 14.

ver. 7.

V. 17. But when the Philistims heard that they had anoynted David King over I [rael] I Chr. chap. 11. ver. 16. & chap. a ceffation of the civil war between the houles of Saul and David , and that the whole Kingdom was now feeled upon David, and that he now peaceably enjoyed it; and (it may be) hearing that he had vanquished the Jebusites, and taken their ftrong Fort; and that Hiram, a rich King, of a neighbour nation, was in league and friendship with him, they became jealous of his greatness, and think it high time to look unto him, and keep him down, feeing they were now out of hope, (in which they formerly were, whileft the civil wars lafted,) that they would deffroy one another, and so save them a labour, and put them to no coft, or bazard of war; and perhaps also, they did forbear to take up armes against them, left a forreign enemy invading their Country, they should make peace one with another, and joyn together with united forces, to keep off a common danger, which would involve them in an universal ruine.

All the Philistims came to seck David] Which came to paste, by Gods good providence to disposing of it, for the preserving Davids honour, and to keep his name from being branded and blemished with the note of inhumanity and ingratitude towards the biliftims, who, in the time of his trouble and exile, had given him kinde and courteous entertainment; which afperfions would otherwife bave been caft upon him, it he had raifed war against them, before they bad first preffed and provoked him unto it.

all the Philistims came to seek David ] To wit, that they might fight with him, before he were throughly fetled in his kingdom, left he should grow too strong for them, if they should let him and David heard of it, and went down to the bold | i. c. No to the Fort of Zion, (as some conceives) for that standing on an high hill, he should not have been said to go down, but rather to have gone up, or ascended unto it. But either it was the strong hold of Adullam, or some other neer unto it, un-to which he resorted, that he and his camp might be safe and free from the attempts of his enemies, till he had further direction from God what to do.

V. 18. The Philiftiers also came and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim] te. Of Giants, Gen. 14. 5. scituate on the North limits of Judah in Bernjamin, not far from Jerusalem, and lying Westward on it, Josh 14.8.

V. 19. And David enquired of the Letd ] Namely, by the way of Urim and Thummim, Num, 27. 21. Sec 1 Sam. 23. 10. and ch. t. 2.1. though he had a great army, and had been nothing.

themselves into this Island, and built a City here, at first, ( V. 20. And David come to Baal Peragin ] Isa. 28. 21. So that are eafily divided with the foot or finger, or being shed upon the ground, are not eafily recollected; or to Gods powtues, and his growth and greatnesse in glory; and being much erful scattering them, like waters, suddenly breaking through their banks and bounds, which violently (weep all away that lyeth in their paffage.

therefore he called the name of that place Baal Perazim \ Or. the Plain of breaches.

V. 21 And there they left their images 7 Which they had brought with them, as their chief Patrons and Protectors, in which they trufted for victory; of which they failing, and being put to flight, they left them there, for fear, flying for their lives : or out of neglect, because they had given them no bet-and David and his men burnt them ] To wit, according to the law . Deut. 7. 25. and that by Davids commandment, Chr. 14 12.

V. 22. And the Philiflims came up yet again | Though they were a little before beaten, put to flight, and flaughtered ; yet fuch was their inveterate malice to the Ifraelites, that they recruited their feattered army, and came again to provoke them to fight, in the very same place, where they had their form, er defeat, though David had not incensed them, by pursuing his victory.
V. 27. And when David enquired of the Lord Though

David before had gotten a famous victory over his enemies, yet he is not thereby lifted up in an opinion of his own thrength, burrelyeth wholly upon the Lord, and now again feckerh unto him for his direction.

thou [halt not go up] i.e. In an open manner, as before, but ferch a compaly behinde them fecretly; that coming upon them finddenly and unexpected, their hearts might be fmitten with the greater fear and amazement,

V. 24. And let it be when thou hearest the found of a going in the tone of the mulberry trees \ Which was not an ordinary found. caused by the winds, but, as if it were, of an army marching, or going on the tops of the trees, and (as it is probable) with chariots and borfemen, like that, 2 King, 7.6. which was no other then the Lords hoft of Angels, fent to destroy the Philiflims; and was given unto David as a fign to encourage him films, and was given unto David as a light of encoding a little to the fight, in affurance of victory, feeing God and his Angels were prefent to affilt him. The which, perhaps, was also heard of the Philiflims, (as that other by the Syrians) whereby being terrified, they were put to flight.

for then shall the Lord go ] Or, then is the Lord gone. V. 25. And smote the Philistims from Geba ] Called also Gibeah in Benjamin, Judg. 19.13. & 20.10. and Gibeon , Chr. 14. 16.

untill thou come to Gager] Scituate in the West of Ephraim, Jofh, chapter 16, ver. 10, but now poffeffed by the Philithims.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 1. A Gain David gathered together all the chosen men of Ifrael In the Book of the Chronicles, 1 Chr. chap, 12. the fetching of the Ark, is fet before the victories over the Philiftims in the former chapter; and from thence fome have thought, that there is here fome diforder and tranfposition in the story. But if we understand it aright, the just order is here observed: For David having first vanquished his enemies, and bein gin peace, doth, in the next place, take order for the promoting and fetting up of religion; and first of all, for the fetching of the ark from the house of Aminadab, to the tent which he had prepared for it; in which order we have it here rightly expressed. And therefore, for the reconciling of that in the Chronicles with this place, in respect of the divers order of doing things, there related, differing from this here, we are to know, that David did twice affemble the chief of Ifrael, that he might confult with them, about fetching home the Ark. First, when he had taken the Jebustes Fort; which confultation was interrupted by the Philiftims invasion. And they being overthrown and put to flight, he doth call them the fecond time, to confult about the same bufineffe; and therefore it is plainly faid in this verfe, that again he gathered Ifrael. And both thefe gatherings of Ifrael are expressed, 1 Chron, chap. 13. ver. 1, 5. The first was of chosen men, which were the Officers, Colonels, and Captains; the other of all Ifrael, from Shihor in Egypt, even to the entring of Hamath, that is, the whole land and people, from the South to the North, Josh chapter 13. verle 3. Now if alwayes victorious, yet he relyed not on his own frength, but it be further objected, that the doubt is not quite cleered, fecks to God for direction ; without which, he would attempt because all that is faid to be done here, to the tenth verse, is in YYY 1

the Chronicles fet down, as done before the battle with the &c. ] To wit, because he caused his holy Ark to be entried in a Philiftims: To this it is answered, that mention being made care, which they should have born on their shoulders, and for there, of that confulration which David had before the battle, that narration is finished together, (nowithflanding other things intervened) as it is usual in the Scripture, which more respecteth the co-herence of the matter and substance related.

then the order of times. V. 2. And David arofe, and all the people that were with bim] Which he fummoned to appear and joyn with him in this fervice in fo great a number from all parts of the land; not onely the Elders and Magistrates, but also, the Colonels, Captains, and Souldiers, both to grace this action with greater glory and magnificence; and also that it might be done with general confent, and more folemnity, and that they might have fufficient strength at hand to bear them out in this action, if there should happen any attempt to be made by the enemy, to diflurb and hinder their proceedings.

from Baal of Judah ] i. c. Kiriath-jearim, 1 Chr. 13. 6 called allo Kiriath-baal, Josh. 15.9. and Baalah of Judah. Where it was placed after it was brought from Bethfhemefh, in the house of Aminadab, 1 Sam.7.1. and had there ever fince continued above fourty years. And from hence, David now ferched it; because (perhaps ) it was not so much respected and reforted unto, being in a private house, as it ought to be, and brought it to legulalen, breause it was now the chief city in the Kingdome, and also scituate in the heart of the land; and fo the more convenient for the people to refort unto from all parts for Divine worship, and to consult with God in all difficultand important cases; and because also, being the regal feat where himself resided, he might frequently, and with more cale, enjoy the benefit of it, upon all occasions.

whose name it called by the Lord of hosts. Or, at which the name, even the Name of the Lord of holls was called upon; or, whose name is called by the Name of the Lord of hosts, that dwelleth between the Cherubims ] i. e. Whose name is called on it, as it is, 1 Chr. 13.6. or at which the name of the Lord was called upon; to wit, when by the high Priest they confulted with him. 1 King. 8.20 And he is faid to fit between the Cherubims, though he be every where prefent, because he was there in a special manner, by the presence of his grace; from thence giving his answers, and delivering his Oracle when he was consulted with, as he did to Moses, Num. 7. 89.

Exod: 25. 14. V. 3. And they fet the Ark of God upon a new cart ] To wit, that they might save themselves a labour in carrying it so far me to desist, then to proceed with so much danger, most their shoulders, as from Kirjath-learing to Jerusalem; V. 10, So David would not remove the Ark of the Lord unto upon their fhoulders, as from Kiriath-jearim, to Jerusalem ; mentable experience, acknowledgeth to bave been the cause | and warrant for what he did. of that fevere judgment executed upon Uzzah , though there with his hand, being only a Levite, and no Pricft. Sec 1 Chr. 12.13,15. compared with ver. 6,7. of this chapter.

that was in Gibeah ] Or, the hill; not in Gibeah the city, fo

V. 4. And Abio west before the Art Namely, to drive the oxen while Uzzah came behinde, or by the fide of the ark; as appeareth by his putting forth his hand to flay it when it was

Lord on all manner of infruments ] As they used to do at those Divine services and solemnities in the time of the law, that thereby they might express their joy and cheerfulness in holy duties ; or ftirr up their hearts, if they were dull, and drooping, to more alacrity, 1 King. 3. 15.

before the Lord ] i.e. Before the Ark, which was the visible fign of Gods prefence.

V. 6. And when they came to Nathons threshing floor ] Who is born.

also called Chidon, i Chr. 13.5.
and took hold of it, for the exen shook it] Or, stumbled. As it therefore put forth his hand to flay it; and fo the word it the extension of Potishar, and the jaylor, entertaining Joseph Lakes, a king, 233. And thus God was placted by the fluum-bling of their dumb beaft, to convince them of their errors, a king, and fix, potish the convince the property of the dumbling of their dumb beaft, to convince them of their errors, lelishas, and Zaccheus Christ.

Beithas, and Zaccheus Christ. is, 1 Chr. 23. 9. That is, by their flumbling, they fo shook the touching it with his hand, being but a Levite, and no

and God (metabim there ] To wit, by a violent death. And that (as fome think) by fome rent or rupture in his body, which gave the name to the place where it was done, Pere: -1/274b. that is, the rent, or breach of Uzzah.

for bis errour Or, rafinesse, i. e. His sin, in touching the holy things, Num. 4. 15. which was his own sin, peculiar to himfelf, befides that of carrying the ark in a cart, which was common to all the reft, v. 3. wherein it pleased God to make bim an example of his fevere justice against them, that fwerve afide, in the leaft things, from the first rule of his word, that concern his worthip, and follow their own wills and inventions, though they have never fo good a precence for it. The like we fee in the example of Nadab, and Abihu, struck with present death, for offiring firangethings before the Lord, which he commanded them not Levis. 19.1.

V. 8. And David was diffleafed] i.e. Much grieved and disquieted in his minde, both in respect of his fin and punishment , yez, confidering humane frailry, which is apr to fleight and exemuate fin, and to amplifie and aggravate the judgments of God, and punishments inflicted for it; it may be probably thought, that with Davids forrow, there was mixed some pertiffanels, and previffanels, impatience, and discontent; as thinking this punishment too severe for such a small errour, and over-fight, committed out of a good intention; and now unfeafonable, when they were acting fuch a pious work, feeing thereby it was discountenanced, and wholly interrupted and hindred; and so all the joy of the people turned into grief and lamentation.

Perez-Uzzah] i. e. The breach of Uzzah. to this day | To wit, when this flory was written, or for a long time. . g. And David was afraid of the Lord that day ] To wit.

because of this severe executing of judgment, he seared to proceed any further in this action, less himself also, through some errour committed, might also milearry and perish in bow fhali the Ark of the Lord come unto me ? ] i.e. How shall I with any fafety proceed in this action , feeing the Lord is not pleafed (as it feemeth) that I should carry it hence to the tent that I have prepared for it a and therefore it were better for herein propounding the example of the Philiftims, as their pre- bim Wherein David discovered his great infirmity; for either fident, who had done it before without any dammage. But he had thus far proceeded of his own head, (as afterwards he herein they transgressed the express Law of God, which ended his control of the cont joyned the Levites to carry it upon their shoulders, though God; and then, though his zeal and good intention were they might not touch it upon pain of death, Num.4.15. And commendable, yet not the means and action it self, seeing it say ungo no soo no punithed in the fall things the bug has was not soon punithed in the Phillitans, where these, and begin the say and provided the say and soon of the say and the say and soon of the say an given, and knew, or ought to have known, and also have discouragement; but rather he should have considered, that raught others all that was contained in it; it was a great fin in though the action were good, yet there had been fome failing them and very difficating to God, and accordingly feverely in the manner of doing it; and fo finding our, and reforming punished. And this David himself, being taught better by la- what was amisse, he should have proceeded, having Gods word

But David carried it afide unto the house of Qbed-Edom] Not were another caule concurring with it; to wit, his touching it forcing the Ark upon him against his will, and so putting off the danger which he feared, from himfelf, to another, but having (no doubt) his confent and approbation. For though he knew what had befallen the Philistims and Bethshemites, called properly, but appellatively, upon an high place, which whileft the ark was among them, and Uzzah also at this time; was in, or by Kiriath-jearm. See 2 Sam, 7.1. ers to the having of the ark, which was a gracious fign of Gods presence, but to their miscarriages and abuses, want of due reverence and other faultineffe. And being resolved that here could come no ill, but much good, by entertaining it, if V. s. And David and all the boufe of Ifrael played before the things that had been done amifs, were reformed, as he was purposed they should be, he doth willingly and cheerfully give it entertainment the Gittite] Not by nation, for he was an Ifraelite, and of the tribe of Levi, and one of the porters and fingers, as appeareth, 1 Chr. 15. 18. but because he was of Gath-Rimmon, a royal City of the Philistims, scituated neer Gath, appropriated to the Levites, Joh. 21. 24,25. where it feemetb be was

V. 1.s. And the Lord bleffed Obed-Edom] i.e. Caufed him; and all that he had, to profper; the Lord thereby thewing, that they shall be no lofers, but great gainers, that give him, or

V. 7. And the anger of the Lord was kindled against 1/22ab, wit, by the ministry of the Priests and Levites; i.e. finding

now by experience, that there was no danger in entertaining |vity, or modefly shis garments which hung loofe upon him, flying the ark, but only in the milearriages about it, which he had open, se discovering some bare parts of histegs or displess which the Priefs and Levites to their feveral charges, and how they and that in the eyes of the handmaids of his fervants, who lee paces, he facrificed oxen and failings] i.c. He took order to nave them facrificed by the Priefts, upon an altar there erected, upon this occasion, for this service. See's Chr. 15.26. And this they did, to testific their thankfulness unto God, for blesfing their beginning and proceeding hitherto, and to move favour. Concerning the creeting of an alter here, Sec 1 Sam.

9.12. and the note upon it. V. 14. And David dayneed before the Lord with all his might Not vainly and carnally, but excited with inward spiritual joy; expressing it self outwardly, in this holy service of Gud, by these gestures and motions, in a grave and sober manner and mealure, a it was ulual with Gods fervants, in those times, fo to express their spiritual ravishments of rejoycing, for some fpiritual favour received. So Miriam, Exod. 15, 20. and Jephthaths daughter, Judg. 11.34.

And David was girded with a linnen Ephod ] That is, an upper garment of linnen, in fashion like that of the Pricits, which he used at this time, not onely as being more light fit for motion, but alfo to fhew his devotion in this religious fervice. Sce 1 Sam. 2.18. and the note upon it.

V. 16. Michal, Sauls daughter—faw King David leaping —and she dispifed him in her heart] That is, looking upon his perion and deportment.

V. 17. And they brought in the Ark of the Lord, and fet it in bis place | To wir, which he had prepared for it, before he went to fetch it, I Chron. 15. 1. The which David did by Gods special inspiration and direction, that it might continue there till a Temple were built for it; Which because it was shortly to be done, therefore he prepareth for it, not a permanent building, but a tabernacle or tent. For the tabernacle which Moles made for it, after their coming into Canaan, was erected at Shiloh, Josh. 18.1. and there long continued, 1 Sam. 1.3. and 14.3. then at Nob, ch. 21. 1. and now at Gibeon, 1 Chron. 16. 37. where it remained to Solomons time, 2 Chro. 1. 3. 4. and 1 Chro. 21. 29. and then all the holy things were brought from thence, and placed in the temple,

1 King. 8. 4. V. 18. be bleffed the people] 1 Chro. 16.2. That is, 25 2 god ly King and holy Prophet, he prayed for their peace and prosperity, and for all bleffings spiritual and temporal.

V. Q. And he dealt unto all the people-to every one a cake of bread,&c.] He doth not onely give them the bleffing and benediction, but bountifully teatteth aud refresheth them. Which he is not faid to have done at his inauguration and Coronation, but now, when he had brought home the Ark; to thew, that he more rejoyced in Gods coming to him, in the presence of the Ark, then in his coming to the Crown and

V. 20. Then David returned to blefs his houshold ] That is, to pray with, and for his family, as he had done for the people; as thinking it not enough, as a King, to care for the Commonwealth, unless also, he performed the duty of a good governour in his own house.

And Michael the daughter of Saul came out to meet David That is, being no longer able to contain the proud (welling thoughts of her minde and heart, the hafteth out to eafe and empty her felf, by venting bitter and fcornful reproaches a gainthim. And theis called the daughter of Saul, because hereby the showed her resemblance of her father, in his disposition, who was a proud hypocrite, neglecting Gods service, when it did not promote his own greatness and glory; contrary to Davids practice in this place.

Hew glorione was the King of Ifrael to day ] Which the fpeak eth ironically, in way or derifion and contempt, implying the contrary, that his carriage was loofe and unbeleeming such a King, as the King of Ifrael. As if the bad faid, Thou didft this day, behave thy felf, as one of the vain and light commonto his dancing, but also to his babit; in being clothed like one of the Levices (of whom the had but a mean opinion) in a linnen Ephad.

who uncovered himfelf to the ever of the band-maids] By which her meaning may be, either that he laid open his nakedness now fonad out, and was purposed to reform; he letteth a fresh is not unlikely to have been her intention, seeing the setteth is now tofind outside was purposed of cross of the most of the special part of the specia fhould demean themselves in them, as is more fully expret- red and scorned him for it. Or elle, though no part of his fed in the 15. and 16. Chapters of the first Book of Chro- body in truth appeared base, yet she conceived, that he exposed himself to be derided as a naked man, whilst he discovered his V. 13. When they that have the Ark of the Lord had gone fix vanity and lightness to all the beholders; or, like a fool that putteth off his clothes, and theweth his nakedness, to make o-

V. 21. And David faid to Michel, it was before the I and I That is, I did thus demean my felt in Gods prefence, and to his glory, that I might by this abasement of my felf, shew my. him to be propitious for the future, in the continuance of his thankfulness unto him, and the joy of myne heart in doing him which chose me before thy father, and before all his bouse ] Where David the weeth great that paels in his reply, upbrayding her with her fathers rejection for his, and the miferies of the whole family that did fall upon it ; but her infolences and reproaches extorted it from him, though contrary to his fweet nature ; and the rather, because the cast upon him these difgraces and fcorns, for showing his zeal for Gods glory, and faithfulness in his service; which in some fort, trenched upon God himfelf.

V. 22. And I will jet be more vile then this | That is, I am fo far from repenting of that I have done, that I will be ready ftill to abase my felt, when as I may thereby glorifie God.

of them [hall I be had in honour] That is, they can lose no honour that become vile in their own eyes to glorifie God, feeing he hath in his band the hearts of all men, and hath promifed that he will honour them, that honour him, 1 Sam, nished by God with perpetual barrenness; for though she hitherto had no children, that we read of, yet fhe might, by Gods ble fling, obtained by Davids prayers, have become fruitful, Gen. 10.17. and 25.20. whereas now the is punished with perpetual barrennels, for deriding her husband; for the had no childe to the day of her death; that is, the never had any, as this phrase is taken, 1 Sam. 19. 35. Matth. 1.

CHAP. VII.

Vers. 1. And it came to pass | Compare this whole Chap-when the King sate in bis house | To wit, in peace and satety.

And the Lord had given him reft yound about, from all his enemies Which might be understood, either of that time prefent, that he then lived in peace, when he spake and did that which followeth, being not molested by any of his bordering enemies; or, that now he lived in fuch a peace, as was not interrupted with the invafions of the neighbouring nations, as they had been formerly. For from the time of his fecond victory, over the Philistims, both they, and all other people round about, were fo over-awed with his prosperous success, that they durit not make war against him though contrartwise, be after this fought many battels against the Ammonites, Syrians, Moabites, and other nations, and obtained many victories. Or, as others, it may be, understood of his quiet possession, and feeling his Kingdeme, without any refistance and opposi-

V. 2. That the King fail to Nathan the Prophet] That is, no fooner was he peaceably fetled in his Kingdom, then he taketh care for the promoting of Gods true Religion, and to this end, he fendeth forth Nathan, an holy Prophet, to advise with him about some special meanes, which tended thereunto, as the building of the Temple, and fetling the Ark

See now I dwell in an boufe of Cedar, but the Ark of God dwelleth within currains ] As if he should fay, it is a most unfitting thing that I should dwell in a most fair, costly, and setled habitation, then the Ark of God, which is the visible sign of his glorious presence, See Hag. 1.4. For though, whilest the Ifraclites were in the Wilderness in affitting condition, it was fit that the publike place of Gods fervice should not be fixed and permanent, but a Tent or Tabernacle, which might be people, and notas it did become the flate, majellie and gravi-ty of a King. And it may be, that the bad respect, not onely promise, be thought it more suitable and convenient for their present estate, that the house of God allotted unto his service, frould no longer be a removeable Tabernacle, but a flanding Temple; especially, confidering, that the Lord had promi-fed, that when they were come into the land of promife, he would choose out such a place for them, to cause his name to ig bis dancing, without any respect to his Reg il Mijefty, gra- dwell there, &c, Deut, 12, 10, 11,14. And therefore, in zeal to Gods glory, and to promote his service, he desetch to build V. 7. Bulge I a word with any of the tribes of Issael; Or, any to Gods glory, and to promote the service, he desetch to build V. 7. Bulge I a word with any of the tribes of Issael to feel any a Temple for his publike worship. Yet though he were of the Gudges, I Chron. 17. 6. whom I commanded to feel any Issael, a wife King, yes, a pious Prophets, he did not in his weighty profit press, playing by haiding to me man habyle of celar Thatis; a wife King, yes, a pious Prophets, he did not in his weighty profit press, playing the single profit prof would attempt it, he consulteth with Nathan, the Prophet of was not built a Seeing, though I had a purpose, that it should would attempt;, no consisted with meaning the frequency of the Lord, about it; by his example, teaching Kings and Princes, what they ought to do in the like action. Where (though the case of the cas but the Ark of God dwelleth within currains] That is, in a sabernacle covered with skins and curtains.

V. 3. And Nathan faid unto the King; Go, and do all that is in thine heart ] The which he fpake, as a friend and counfellour, out of his private opinion and advice, and not by any revelation from God, which he should have waited for, in a matter of fuch importance, before he gave his fentence; whereby it appeareth, that the Prophets did not alwaies speak as Prophets, having upon them the spirit of prophecy, but sometimes as other private men; as we fee also in the example of Samuel, 1 Sam. 16 6, and Elisha, 2 King. 1.27. Yea, sometimes they spake like frail men, unadvisedly and finfully, as Moses and Jeremiah, Pal. 106. 33. Jer. 20. 14.

Do all that is in thine bears, for the Lord is with thee ] That is, moved three to do its will profeer thy work.

V. 4. And it care to pass that night, that the word of the Lord came unto Nathan God delived not to bring him out of his errour, because it proceeded from simple ignorance, and out of a good intention; and because David having encouragement from Nathan, was most zealous and serious in his defires, to have it presently acted; in somuch, that (as some pro-bably conjecture) he bound himself by a solemn vow and oath, that he would never be at reft, till he had fet himfelf upon the accomplishment of it, as appeareth by the 132. Pfalm. ver. 2, 3, 4. where this oath is expressed; although others expound this place of his bringing in the Ark into that tent which he had pitched for it. But howfoever God was able to dispence with fuch a vow or oath, as was not agreeable to his will; much more then the father and husband, had power to difanul much more then the rather and nusuand, nad power to distinct the vow of his daughter or wife, Numb, 300, 88.

V. v. Go, and tell my ferount David — Shalt thou build me an boule for me to dwell in ? ] That is, assured by thou shalt not do it. David thought, that because God had promised, that be would have such an house built when they were setled in the land of promife, Deut. 12. 10, 11. that now the time was come, and that he was the man, whom God haddefigued to do this work : But God, by his Prophet, telleth him, that though he rightly gueffed at the thing, yet he was miltaken in the man who must effect this great work; feeing it was not he, but his fon, whom God appointed to do it : and though his pious in zention was very commendable, and God wouldnot only gracioufly accept of it, I King 8.18, but also bountifully reward it, as if he had done it, as it is ver. 10,11. &c. yet it was not his pleasure to use him for the effecting of this great and glori- of the Judges, when their enemies prevailed against them, ous work, for divers reasons, some whereof are here expressed, and since also in Sauls time, by the incursions and invasions of and fome to be gathered out of other places of the Book of the Kings and Chronicles. As firft, because, being a martial man, he had shed much blood, which reason God renders unto him, why he would not use him in this service, 1 Chro.28. 3. not because it was not unlawful for him to fight the battels of the Lord, and to shed the blood of his enemies; or, because havving flied it, he was thereby defiled ; for this was acceptable fervice, and pleasing to God as a facrifice in which he delighted, Ifai 24.6. Jer. 46. 10. but because the building of the Temple was a type of the spiritual building of the Church, by Chrift, the Prince of peace, Ifai. 9. 6. it was fit that the Temple should be built by peaceable Solomon, that the shadow should be suitable to the substance, I Chro.21.9. The second reason is rendred by Solomon, I King. 5:3. because also, for the time to come, he was to have war with the nations about him, not yet subdued, and so would have no leasure to go through with fo great a work, as the building of the Temple. The other reasons given, why God would not have him build the Temple, do follow in the Text.

V. 6. Whereas I have not dwelt in any house, fince the time that I brought up the children of Ifrael out of Egypt ] That is, I have not made choyce of any itanding and permanent house, wherein to flew my gracious presence, to this day, but have manifested my self in a tabernacle, secting and removing from place to place. Where another reason is given, why he would not have him build the Temple, taken from himself, because there was yet no need of it. For though he had dwelt in no houle, fince their coming out of Egyt, yet all this while be had been present with them, as their God, al sufficient in bimself. As if he fhould fay, there is no prefent hafte, or necessity of building an house for me, who have all this while been con-tent with a tent, and so will be still, sill my own time be come; and also have been as efficacious, by my presence, in the Ark in a tabernacle, as in a temple, and so will be still, as long as I leale to make ufe of it.

he accepted of Davids zeal and care, in desiring to do it, yet) he fecretly taxeth him for not waiting his leafure, and for undertaking the work, having had no special command for it, no more then the Judges had in their time.

to feed my people Ifrael ] That is, as faithful thepherds, to govern and provide for my people.

V. 8. I took the from the fleep-coate, and from following the ficep 1 Sam, 16. 11. Plalm. 78.70, 71. Where God recounts eth his former and future benefits, not to upbraid David with them, or to taxe him for ungratitude in not walking worthy of such high favours, as he afterwards did in the case of Uriah, (chap. 12.7) but that he might not be discouraged, as doubting of Gods love, thinking, that for want of it his fervice was rejected, in building him a Temple, feeing he had multiplied build an house to the Lord, as thou desirest, and he that hath | fo many blessings upon him, and was still ready fo to do, for he time to come.

V. 9. And I was with thee whither foever thou wenteft | That is, profpered thee, by my gracious affiftance, in all thy enterprizes; asin the combate with Goliah, and many battels against the Philistims. So chap. 8. 6.14. and have cut off all thine enemies, Saul, Doeg, the Philistims, and all the

and have made thee a great name] That is, I have made thee famous and formidable, among all the nations round about like the name of the great men which are in the earth] That is, the great Princes and Potentates of other nations. V. 10. Moreover, I will appoint a place for my people Isra-el, &c. ] Where he breaketh off from the recounting of the bleffings, which he had conferred upon David, and inserteth a promile, of what good things he was purposed to do to the whole Nation, under his government, for his greater comfort and encouragement; because the happiness of a King, doth much confilt in the happines and prosperity of his appoint a place and will plant them] That is, eftablith and fettle them in their owner land, allotted unto them ; which promifes, though they were in part fulfilled in Davids and Solomons reigne, yet they were to have their full accomplishment in the spirituall Kingdome of Christ, the promised Messiah. Neither must this promise be understood of their bare habitation in the land of promile, for fo they had dwelt in it ever fince the time of Joshua; but of their peaceable and quiet possession of it, which had been often interrupted and difturbed in the time the Philistims.

and move no more ] That is, they shall no more (as in former times) be tumbled and toffed up and downe , being compelled to flye out of their Cities and habitations , and to leave them to their enemies to dwell in them, 25am. 31.7.

Neither shall the children of wickednesse afflict them any more as before time That is, how foever their malicious perfecuting enemics may make fome attempts against them , yet they shall not so the provided the state of the state o true God, in a right manner, Jer. 18.9. 1 King 8.12.1.1 Chro.
22.12,13. For when afterwards they fell from God unto Idolatry , he gave them over to be afflicted by the Affirians, Egyptians, and Caldeans, by whom they were conquered and led into captivity.

V.11. And as fince the time that I commanded Andges to be over my people Ifrael, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies] That is, as they have been divers times afflicted in the dayes of the Judges, when as their enemies did often oppreffe them, and even unto the time of thy reigne, fince which I have given thee and them full victory over thine and their enemies.

alfo the Lord telleth thee that be will make thee an houfe ] That graciously rewarding thy pious intention to build him a house.

gracousty rewarding thy poiss internious to based and see Exod. 1.1. and I Migh. 1.4. V. 1.1. I will fet up thy field after the thu final protect out of the bowled! That is, Solomon as the type, and the Melliula prefigured by him, both which he refpected in the following fromties; from whereof are penuliar to Solomon, and form to Christ, and fourchelonging to them both, as the type and anti-type,

Chap, vii. V. 13. He fall build me an boufe for my Name] That is, for fais advice, which he had before privately given ; wherein he understood of Solomon, who was appointed to build this Temple, for which David had onely prepared the materials, ritual and evertaining aboute, trace is an Scautea, or or white the temple was a type, Like 1, 2, 3, 31 - Pet. 25.

and I will establish the throne of bit Kingdom for ever? Which is proper and peculiar to Christ Kingdom alone, and cannot be understood of Solomons, seeing this Kingdom was onely continued to Zedechias in his posterity.

V. ta. I will be bie father, and be fhall be my fon ] Which belonged both to Solomon and Christ. For Solomon was his iongen note to solumon and thrist. For Solumon was his fon by grace and adoption, but Christ by nature and eternal generation; and 6 he is his onely begotten [on, John. 18. Pfal 2.7. Act. 13, 33. 1 Joh. 4.9. Heb. 1.5.

The womain iniquity] Le which is to be understood of Solumon and the solumon and th lomon, and not of Chrift; for though our fins were imputed unto him, and he suffered and satisfied for them; in which regard the Prophet faith, that he was wounded for our transgreffrom, Ifai. 53.4. and the Apollic faith. That he was made fin for us. 2 Cor. 5. 22. yet he himfelf did not commit any iniquity or fin, neither was there any guile found in ais mouth,

Ifai. 53. 9. 1 Pct. 3.22. and 1. 19.
Ifai. 53. 9. 1 Pct. 3.22. and 1. 19.
I will chaften him with the rod of men] So Pfal. 89.30,3 1,32. That is, either by temporal corrections, using therin men, as my rods and instruments as he corrected Solomon in the latter my ross and mittuments, an ecotracted submitted in the meteor of this teriple, when he fell to dollarty, it king it. 1, 5, 14, instead and continued to perform this there wild, or the state of the steps, when he fell to dollarty, it king it. 1, 5, 14, instead and continued to perform this like our ferrier, at the 23,56, and the people of Ifac, Ifai to 5, 0, elle, the word is intentilent, which is there wild, as Gen. 27,4,124vit, meaning it, that he would correct this first found in a serious production of the state of t father his beloved fon, with fatherly chastizements, for his amendment, and not in wrath to his perdition. For lo, as when he speaketh of his destroying punishments inflicted on when he peaked of his detroying punilments indicted on his enemies, he faith, that he will not meet them so a man, but as a Good, who he accombining fire, Heb. 12, 29, Ital. 33, 14. So when he faith, that he will correct them as a loving father, he thus expresseth it, that he will draw them unto him with the cords of men, and with the ftripes of the children of men, that is, not in rigour , but with a gentle and fatherly hand, with is, not in rigiour, out write a gentle and tamerly nature, which much pitty and moderation, Jer. 30, 11.

V. 15. But my mercy faill not depart away from him, at I took it from Saul] That is, I will not quite call him out of my favour, and deprive him of his Kingdom, at I did Sauf. Neither can this be understood of Gods eternal love, wherewith be loveth his cleat; feeing Saul, had never any interest in it; for those whom God loveth, he loveth them to the end, John

Y. 16. And thine boule, and thy Kingdom shall be established for ever before thee! That is, I will begin thy Kingdom in thine own dayes, in thy self, and in Solomon thy son, in thine own fight, i King. t. 48. to firengthen thy faith in this affurance, that it shall be continued in thine and his posterity, for a long time, and be established for ever, and compleatly accomplished in Chrift, who shall descend of thee. So that if it be applyed to Solomon, then we are to understand these words, for gover, of a long time; namely, that David should enjoy it him-felf to his death, and before his departure, see it setted upon Solomon, in refrect of title and right, and so continue in his pofterity, till the Scepter departed from Judah, Gen. 49. 10. before the coming of Shiloh, or Christ, in whom it was to be eftablished for ever. But how can Christs Kingdom be faid to be established for ever, seeing the Apostle faith, that arthe end of the world, after the last judgement, Christ shall deliver up his Kingdom to his father? r Car. 15. To which I answer, that is to be understood of his Occonomical Kingdom committed unto him, as the Messiah and mediatour, which he exercifeth in fubduing his and the Churches enemies, in making intercession for his chosen ones, given him out of the world, and perfecting his members and mystical body; for when all things are done and finished, there shall be no use of that Kingdom, in respect of this administration, and therefore it shall cease; though the effect and fruit of it shall never have end. But then Christ, as he is God and man, shall reign for ever with his father, and even in his humane nature he shall everlastingly enjoy that glory and Majesty, which by vertue of that hypoltatical union, of the two Natures, belongeth unto it; though that outward administration of the mediatorship shall

V. v. According to all these words, and according to the vision,

[6 did N. Anhas flech; to Devid] That is, made a true and faith bash then do not all these great things] i.e. Not for any deleter of full relation of all which God had commanded him to speak, mine, but for thy truth and promise fake, and of thy meer though it were to his own disparagement, being contrary to grace and love, half thou conferred all these benefits upon me;

V. 1.3. He flull build mean buile for my Zeme I hateix, for a base advance, which ne had orence privately given a water had been advancement of my glory, in the public means of my carried thinglef, pioully and prudently, for as it is the first worthing and fervices to be performed in the Temple, according to that, Dute. 1.1. The which is literally to be repeated what we have plocken in 60 it is the fector point, when maderflood of Solomon, who was appointed to bouild big is we have flocken amile, to retreat and revoke it; as a full inc. excellently faith, in excuse of his own practice; Neither doth and net use parcell of it to the configuration of t 14, and 25.11. Dute it was sometiment over use one out as pass operating white or repeting an own feeting and finish it, I king, 5.1. 5, and 6.1. But [printually] for Christ, who was to build, to the glory of Gods name, a phase most of the control of the contro sointed by God and promifeth that his life thould be prolonged fifreen years. Whereas Ionas, out of pride and felf-feek" ing, neglecting to do it, is justly taxed and condemned by God for it. But seeing David himself was a Prophet, why did not God immediately inform him what he was to do in this great bufineffe, but ufeth the ministry of Nathan, to teach and inftruct him? I answer, though there were no reason hereof to be given, but his own good pleasure, it were sufficient : but besides, God looketh upon us as members of the same body, who are linked together in love and fervice one with another, needing our mutual help; whereby as every member bath its imployment, fo it tendeth to the endesting and increafing of love and affection, to the common good of the whole body; as it is in the body natural, in all its members, as the eye, ear, hand, and foot, which perform mutual fervice to one another, whereby the whole body is preferved, I Cor. 12.

Then went David and fate before the Lord | To wit, in the tent before the ark, that he might pour forth his foul in holy foliloquies and meditations, where it is faid, that he fate, not in refrect of the poffure of his body, but because he there reuse this posture of sitting, in prayer and meditation; for the Lord having no where tyed us to any gesture of the body, but only requiring a fit disposition of the foul, and that we should call upon him with humble hearts, and with contrite and broken foirits, in fincerity and truth; the Saints have taken to them this liberty, and have proyed unto God in all posteres of the body; as lying in bed, walking, standing, and this of sitting; as we see in the example of Moses, Exod, 17, 12, and ntting; as we tee in the example of moles, Exod, 17, 12, and Eliab. I King 194. Notwith flanding the geffure of kneeling, and profitzing of the body, in the time of deeper humiliating, being fitteft to express the disposition of an humble foul, is fometimes required, and most commonly practifed by Gods Saints and fervants, Pfal. 95.6. 1 King. 8. 54. And fo it is probably thought David did in this place, first fitting, whilest he medicated on Gods grace and goodness rowards him, and afterwards kneeling, when he had addressed himself to God

V. 18. Who am I.O Lord God, and what is my houset hat thou haft brought me hitherto] i.e. How bafe and unworthy am I, and all my parentage and family, to be so highly advanced as I am already, out of thy meer grace, and undeferved favour.

V. 19. Then haft fhelen also of the servants bease for a great white to come ] i. c. Thou hast promissed also to continue the savour, not only to me, but also to my posterity after me, for many

and is this the manner of man, O Lord God ] As if be bad faid. how admirable is this thy grace and goodness, which then ex-tendest towards me, and how far above, not only the practice of men to act, but even the reach of their understanding to conceive, that thou shouldst shew such favour and goodness of meer grace, above all desert. And therefore, feeing this is peculiar to thy self alone, to thee only be the praise. Or thus, domen deal fo freely and familiarly with their mean inferiors, as thou haft done to me? Surely no , fuch incomprehensible Iove is not to be found among mortal men. So Pfalm. 8. 3. into which excase of admiration, David is chiefly brought, by Gods promite, of perpetuating his Kingdom in Christ, which should come out of his loyns, as the Apolile applyether, Heb.

V. 20. And what can David fay mere unto thee? for thou Lord knoweft thy fervam] i.e. Either what can I ask more of thee. knowest my servant 1.e. Either west can I ask more of thee, then thou of thy free grace half already promified; at which fence, that place, I Chr. 17. 18, feemeth to aym, and what can David speak more to the for the honour of thy fervant? Or thus; what need have I to use many words, to amplifie thy goodness, and express my thankfulness, seeing thou knowest my heart, how real I am in this duty.

V. 21. For thy word fake, and according to thine own heart,

Chap.viii.

Annotations on the second Book of Samuel.

or (as some take it) for thy Christ sake, who is thy eternal word, and thy meer grace, and free good will.

tomake thy servant know them] i.e. To acknowledg thy benefits with all thankfulness; both which thou haft, and wilt confer upon thy fervant for the time to come.

according to all that we have beard with our ears ] That is, according to all that by thy word thou haft made known unto

V. 22. And what nation in the earth it like thy people] That is, so advanced in high and holy privileeges, Deut. chap. 4 whom God went to redeem for a people to bimfelf] i. e. Came (as it were) down from heaven to manifest his power in redeeming them, Exod. 3. 7, 8. which was the work of the whole trinity, in the unity of the God-head. And therefore the word God, Elohim, and the verbe, went, are both in the plural rumber, ; yet his speech is directed to one God alone, Before thy people which thou redcemets, and, Thou Lord art become their God. Where God, who is omnipotent, is faid to have come to redeem his people; God went to redeem, which is ufually fooken of God, when he applyeth himself to do any great, or ffrong eftion, though he is generally prefent in all places, at all times. and to make bim a name] That is, either to make his people renowned, and famous among all Nations, as it is expounded, I Chro. 17.21. Or, to magnific his own glory, by his great works; according to Numb. 14.21. All the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord, Ilai. 63.14. So didft thou lead thy people, to make thy felf a glorious name. and to do for you great things and terrible] Not onely in their deliverance out of Egypt, but alfo, in the subduing of their enemies in the land of Canaan; which are therefore joyned together, 1 Chro. 17. 21. And fo from all other Nations that fought againft them, and their idols, in whom they trufted. Where he useth an apostrophe or figurative speech, converting it abruptly, from God to the people of Ifrael, and to do great is abruptly, from God to the people of Ilracl, and to degreat brings for you, Offset), and in the next words again, converting his freech to God, for hyl and before thy pople. So David, his mourning fong, for Sul and Jonathan, by the like apostrophe, turneth his freech to the people, O mobile frail, between the first pop the play factor, a Gome read it, ch. 1-19.

Vi. 14. For them his Gordfmad to the fell by pople I frail, be a pople under for every I fairs, the natural Ilracl, for a long turn, even to the comming of Christ but the fiptimal of the control of the control

Ifrael, consisting both of the Jews and Gentils, for ever; of which he affigueth no other cause, but Gods free election,

V. 25. And now, O Lord God, the word that thou haft token -establish it for over ] Though David baving Gods infallible promife, was affured that he would be as good as his word, yet he earnestly prayeth, that he would fulfil it; because Gods necarrenty prayers, maxine wound nutrity because Goods promiles must nor make us neglect the means, but to be the more diligent in the use of them, baving a good ground to make our prayers, with more firms confidence, to be heard. And this our Saviour hath caught us, by his example, praying that the Father would gloryfie bis Son, though he were molt his posterity, he thought that he could not sufficiently express his affection, but in the fervency of his devotion, repeateth the fame thing again, and again. And fo our Saviour Christ himfelf, in his bitter agony, is faid to have prayed in the fame words, to flew his carneftness, Matth. 26. 44. and Luk.

V. 27. For thou -baft revealed to thy fervant] Heb. opened the eare | That is, haft made him clearly to know. See 1 Sam.

[aying, I will build thee an boufe] That is, continue the Kingdom to thee, and to thy posterity after thee.

therefore bash thy fervant found in bie beart ] That is, hath found his heart thus disposed to call upon thee, having thy pro-mise as a sure ground of his faith and prayer. So Pfalm,

V. 28. Thy words be true ] Josh. 17.17. That is, there can be no doubt of obtaining my fuit, feeing I have thy promife, who are true of thy word, and powerful to perform it. V. 19. For thou, O Lord God, baft fochen it ] And therefore descend of me.

CHAP, VIII.

Verl. 1. A Nd after this it came to pass, that David finete the Philiftins, and jubdued them ] Compare this whole Chapter with a Chron. 18. In this, and the following Chapters, he rendreth a reason why God would not suffer Da-Chapters, he rendrets a reaton way Goo would not linter Da-vide to build his Temple, namely, because he had no leafure, being, by the Lords will, imployed in the wars. And withal, by the following flory, he sheweth how God accomplished his gracious promife, made unto David, in the sormer Chapter, concerning the establishment of his Kingdom, in all prosperity, and the confluence of all his bleflings, to the jey of himfelf, and all his people.

And David took Methog-Ammah out of the bands of the Philtfims | This was the third war against the Philistims, after he was anounted King over all Ifrael, in which, having vanquished them, he took from them this Metheg-Ammah; that is, Gath, a chief city of the Philiftims, as appeareth, 1 Chron. 18. and all the fmall towns which were under its jurifdiction. Which was called. Mether-Ammah, because it was scituate on a hill, or a moustanous tract of ground; and a Bridle, because, by its great ftrength, it restrained enemies from invading it, and the country adjoyning to it; and alforuled, and gave laws to all the leffer towns and parts adjacent; whereby they were governed, and kept in awe and order. It was after-wards called, Dio-Casarea; and was scituate on the frontiers of Palesline, at the entrance into the tribes of Judah and E-phraim. And this city of strength, David surprizeth and holdeth; that thence forth it might, as a Bridle, restrain the Philistims from invading the land of Canaan.

V. 2. And he [more Moab ] At the coming of the Ifraelites out of the wilderness, they were forbidden by God to invade their land or to do them any hurt, because he had given it to the child en of Lot for a possession, Deut, 2.9. But now David maketh war against them; but for what cause, and upon what occasion, it doth not clearly appear. the Hebrews think, befather and mother under the Kings protection, they treacheroully murchered them, after he was departed from them. Which their perfidious and bloody fact, David now revengvaries used permitted and bloody rates David alter terms et upon them. But for this, we have no good ground or warrant out of Scripture, why we should believe it. But it is rather thought, that God then reflrained his people, from differing of them, because they had done them no wrong. But afterwards they shewed themselves malicious enemies to the Ifraelites, upon which they were interdicted by God from coming into the congregation, unto the tenth generation, Deut. 23.31. And they shewed their malice, in hiring Balam to curse lirael; and when that would not take, in following his curfed counsel, tempting them by their women, to commit, both corporal and spiritual whoredom, whereby a great commonous conjours are apprictual morecomy mercery a great plaque was brought upon them, also in not relieving them with bread in their necessity, and for their cruel syrannyzing over them, and eppressing them by gloon their King, in the time of the Judes stor all which wrongs, David had just cause to make war against them, they fill continuing in their former that the Father would glovife his Son, though are were more affected of his glovifeation, Joh. 1-75.

V. 1-6. And let the busine of the fervier Travial be efficielled by first theel White Darie repeated in his prayer what he had faid before, yet not in that vain manner, which Chrift comments, Matthe 6.7, but being raviifed with boy, in the fivere travelled from 6 Gods gracious promites, made unto him and magnitude them while all the spirits which they had a magnitude them while all the spirits which they had a magnitude them while all the spirits when the ground promites, made unto him and the spirits which the spirits which them, and brought them into an ab-

That is, he vanquished them, and brought them into an ab-folute subjection and servitude, using them at his own pleafure, to kill and keep alive whom he would; and as conquer-ors ule to do, divided their land, as he thought good. The ors ule to do, divided their isno, as ne thought good. Lee which is metaphorically expertled, by a finnlitude taken from thofe, who meafure land by a line, or, from a Carpenter, that fittless his timber with a line, which be intendent to ule inhis building, and then cutteth off what he thinks unnecessary and superfluous. For so David, subduing them by an absolute conquest, used them at his pleasure, levelling their cities and towns with the ground, and laying all open and flat before him to be measured (as it were) with a line, and so to be divided and disposed of, like a new plantation; as Joshua did the land of Canaan, which he divided by lot among the Ifraelites. Others, thinking that the hiftorical and plain sence is best, when there is no need of metaphors and allegories, do take the words here literally, that David did indeed measure their country, being subdued, with a line, allotting two thirds of the lands and cities, with I firmly believe plant it finll come to pats.

If the buffe of thy ferum the bleffed for ever, [ That is, both it fall come, and a clear the buffed for the present in the come, and the principle will kingdom of the McHub, which thou half promited final [ God as first appointed his people to spare them, Deut. 2.9, yet becoming malicious enemics, David exercifeth upon them this hoftile feverity.

V. 3. David [mote alfo Hadadezer] Called alfo Hadarezer . 1 Chr. 18.3.

V. 3. Devil smote also Hadadezer ] Called also Hadarezer, | cess; especially by this his fubduing the Syrians, in which fer-the [on of Rhehob] Who reigned in that part of Syria, called 18. 12. compared with the title of the 60 Pfalm. Beth-Rehob, after his name, ch. 10 6.

